THE ARCHITECTURE OF

FRANK
LOYD
WRIGHT

a GUIDE to Extant Structures,
1991 edition
William Allin Storrer, Ph.D.

This is a GUIDE to the extant structures built from designs by Frank Lloyd Wright. Each building in this 1991 Edition is identified both by a name and a number. The name, and the number, is that assigned in The Architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright, a Complete Catalog, published by The MIT Press (The Catalog); on the maps the "Storrer" number is always shown in oblique (italic) bold-face type. The Storrer number, 1 to 3 digits in The Catalog, is now always 3 digits for computerized operations.

Each map is accompanied by a listing of the items shown thereon. Each item is also cross-referenced geographically by its US Postal Service ZIP code; please refer to the Geographical Index in The Catalog for specific addresses. Address changes since publication of the 2nd Edition of The Catalog are given at the back of this publication. Buildings are also cross-referenced in the Alphabetical Index of The Catalog by city as well as client name.

Each extant Wright-designed structure is referenced on these maps, as much as possible, by its proximity to an Interstate highway. Less than a score of extant Wright buildings are more than a quarter hour from an interstate interchange.

For clarity, inessential detail has been suppressed. Further, scale has been altered to complement the essential detail. Use these maps with a standard road map. Do not judge driving times by the scale of this map. Interchange/exit numbers on interstate highways are, with a few exceptions, the same as the nearest mile marker, and may be used as indicators of distances between interchanges. Where this does not apply, we have tried to supply mileage information relative exits.

Since municipalities often change their minds, one-way streets are usually not identified. Instead, parallel roads are shown so that, whatever the one-way system in effect, some method of access will be indicated here.

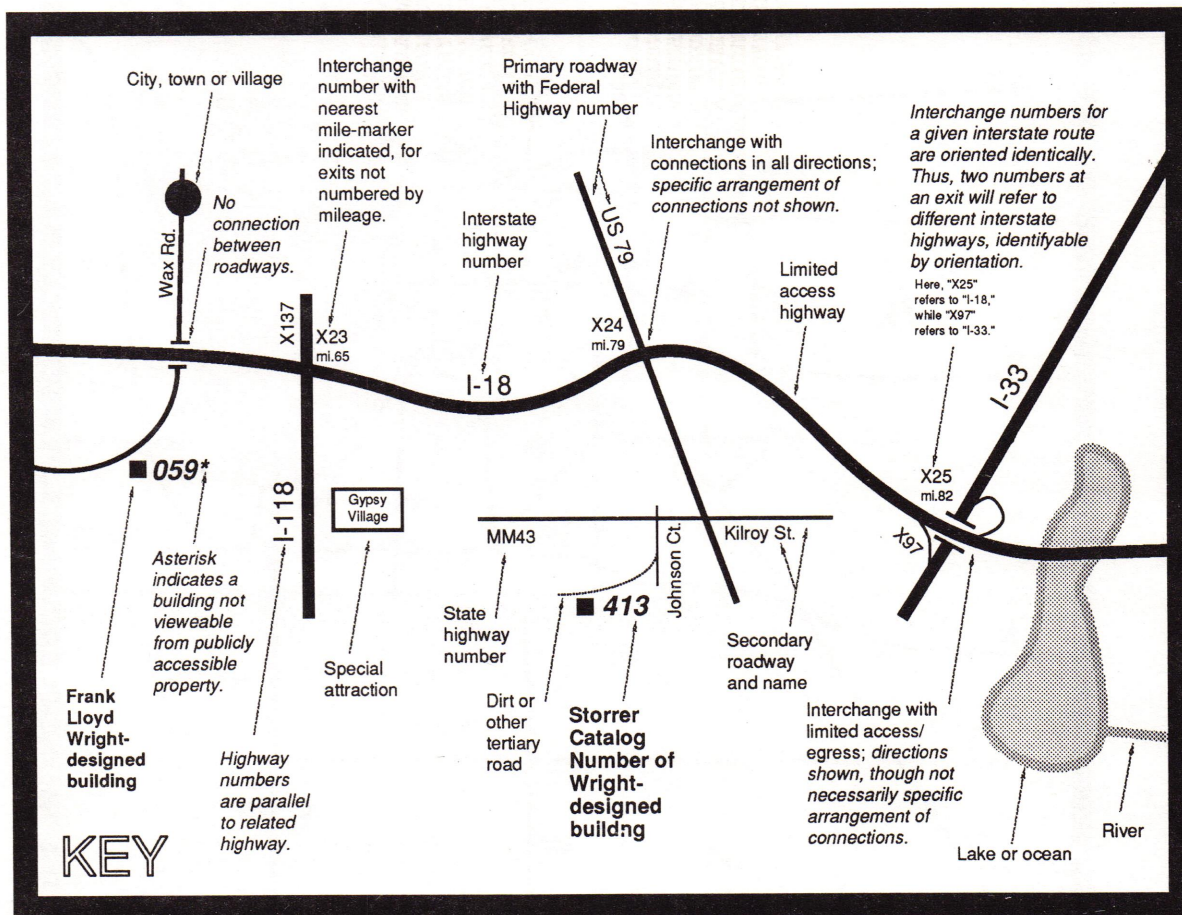

While roadside viewing may be expected by all, the GUIDE maps do not in any way convey a license for entering private property or in any way disturbing the privacy of the indwellers. Particularly with respect to domestic work, one should write for permission to visit well in advance of ones expected arrival time, always including a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Failure to obtain this permission may leave one liable for conviction for trespass.

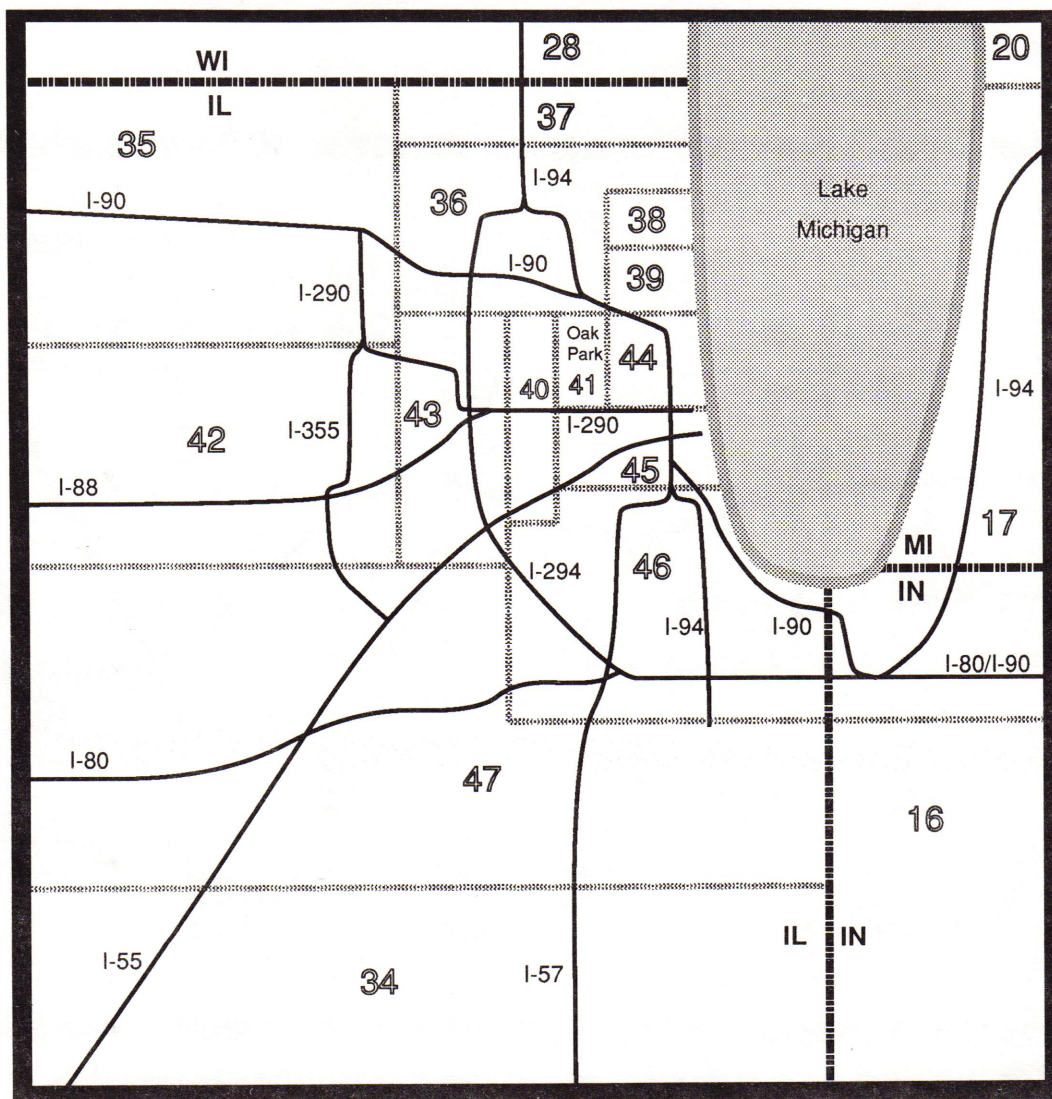

These maps were designed and produced on an Apple Macintosh® computer using Cricket Draw® software. Production of these maps was aided by a grant from the Graham Foundation for Advanced Studies in the Fine Arts.

These drawings are copyright © 1973, 1974, 1976, 1977, 1978, 1980, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990 and 1991 by William Allin Storrer. Reproduction in any form, in part or whole, by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, or by any information storage or retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher, WAS Productions, is strictly forbidden by international copyright laws.

Please report any errors or suggested improvements to the publisher. Some changes have been made to the numbering system since publication of the 2nd Edition of The Catalog, particularly with respect to American Ready-cut System Built houses and Erdman Prefabs; these are reported at the back of this publication. The ZIP code, catalog number and client name provided with each map should eliminate questions of building identification that result from revised numbering. These new numberings will be reflected in future editions of The Catalog and other books by William Allin Storrer.

Chicago area Visual Index

One-quarter of all buildings built from designs by Frank Lloyd Wright are in Illinois. 30% of all extant work is in Illinois. More interestingly, perhaps, one must note that one-tenth of all Wright's work may be found in Oak Park, and three-fourths of the work in Illinois is within 25 miles of Oak Park. What Illinois lacks is a significant representation of Wright's ultimate statements on what constitutes a Democratic American architecture, namely architecture of his Usonian period. This may be found in abundance in those states other than Illinois that share borders with Lake Michigan; Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana.

Most of the Residences designed by Frank Lloyd Wright remain in private hands. Please respect the rights of the owner. Do not enter the property of any house here identified without obtaining permission from the owner well in advance of your intended visit. * houses are not visible from publicly accessible property.

The Merritt Parkway, CT 15, is one of the oldest turnpikes — toll roads — in the country, though now free of tolls. Its exits are numbered as an extension of the Hutchinson River Parkway in New York, which begins at the Bronx White Stone Bridge. Exit 34 is but 12 miles from the NY-CT border, X 37 another five miles down the 'pike.

Michigan and its system of roads could serve as an example for the rest of the nation. There is less congestion in Detroit during rush hours than in Chicago, New York City, north New Jersey and most other metropolises. Michigan has long followed the now Federally-mandated practice of numbering exits according to the nearest mile marker, making easy the determination of distances between exits and related towns. The only toll within Michigan is at the Mackinac Bridge between the two major land masses of this Peninsula State.

Visitors to Oak Park have several resources to help them tour local architecture.

The Oak Park Visitors Center (marked with a circle) [312] 848-1500 is at Lake Street and Forest Avenue, a short walk from the Oak Park train and elevated stations. Unity Temple is one block east, and the Frank Lloyd Wright Home & Studio four blocks north, of the Visitors Center. Each offers daily tours.

Not all Tri-State Tollway (I-294) interchanges connect in all possible directions. Some interchanges are very complex. It is necessary to observe sign-posted directions in order to make proper connections and avoid delays. Do not assume that, because a connection is indicated here, that it will be made exactly at the point shown. For instance, traffic eastbound on I-88 intending to head south on I-294 will exit at mile/X 154 rather than northbound exit 156.

The Tri-State Tollway is I-80—I-294—I-94. It connects to I-55, I-88, I-90 and I-290. If passing between Wisconsin and Indiana, one can save on tolls, but not on time, by using I-94 through downtown Chicago. I-290 west of O'Hare airport saves on time and tolls over I-294 - I-90, if one is coming from or going to northwest suburbs.

Chicago, like many other mid-west cities, employs a baseline system for the numbering of streets. State Street divides west from east, and Madison separates north from south. Numbering increases 800 per mile. Place two zeroes after numbered streets (south of Madison) to obtain the address number at that cross road.

Perhaps no building among the demolished non-residential designs from Wright's drafting table excites a Wrightian more than the Midway Gardens, S.180, a "pleasure palace" built just before World War I. It filled a double (thus "square") block at the southwest corner of 60th and Cottage Grove, across from Washington Park. Though entirely enclosing its activities from the surrounding city, its site is worthy of note.

The Tri-State Tollway carries traffic around Chicago, between Indiana and Wisconsin. It includes all of I-294, and is extended at its north (west) terminus by part of Illinois I-94 and at its south (east) terminus by part of Illinois I-80. Mileage is marked along I-80—I-294—I-94 from the Calumet Expressway I-94 where it joins I-80 eastbound (with IL 394 to the south). Exits along this route are here indicated by "X@ mi.xx" notices. Along I-80, exits are (also) marked with the correct Interstate mile number, which mileage begins at the Mississippi River.

Federal regulation calls for interchanges on Interstate highways to be numbered according to the nearest mile marker. Thus, exit numbers are a useful guide to distances on these roads.

"Sandalwood" (S.A443) is the clubhouse being constructed on Maui in the state of Hawaii as the centerpiece of Sandalwood Estates. This residential community will include 30 homes which were designed by Wright but unbuilt at his death. Taliesin Associated Architects (TAA) is in charge of design and construction. Fifty-five unbuilt designs, ranging from the Esbshade project of 1911 to fifteen Michigan Usonian projects have been selected to provide a base of designs to be built, one or more a year, as originally designed. For most posthumously built designs prior to Sandalwood, changes were made to suit the needs of specific clients; here, for these "spec" houses, alterations are unnecessary.

Wright-designed structures are still being built. When a client indicates an interest in having a home from a design by Wright, Taliesin Associated Architects (which completed some thirty projects under, or about to begin, construction at Wright's death) has available the entire archive of the master's unbuilt projects from which to make a suitable choice. Starting from drawings that range from preliminary sketches of a concept to fully-completed working drawings of a totally-realized project, a TAA architect will engineer Wright's design with modern appurtenances and to contemporary building codes and practices. He will oversee modifications to suit client, site, and climate, continuing the tradition practiced in Wright's lifetime.

Some of Wright's most interesting designs were built shortly after his death. The Gammage Auditorium (S.432) was completed by William Wesley Peters. He, with Aaron Green and Jack Howe, guided the development of the conceptual design through working drawings and construction for the Marin County Center (S.415-417). The Pappas residence (S.392) was moved to a different site and rotated 180°, yet it is an authentic Wright-designed home.

What is undeniable regarding the "A" (for Addenda) listings is that they are: 1; for a client other than the one for which Wright designed the structure, and 2; built on a site other than the one originally intended. These posthumous works, A434ff, are included in this edition of THE GUIDE.

Note: if you ask directions to the Jiyu Gakuen School, you will be directed to the far western suburbs of Tokyo, to the "new" Jiyu Gakuen. Ask, instead, directions to the Mejiro or Ikebukuro stations on the Yamanote R.R. line, then navigate your own way via the detail map, which is drawn to scale. The Ikebukuro station is a major shopping area, with the following department stores; Marubutsu, Seibu, Mitsukoshi, and Tobu.

The Japanese address their buildings in a manner quite different from that of the European world. Addresses are not sequential from one end of the street to the other (linear American fashion). They are numbered within a district, by block-plot, in an order determined approximately as they were developed, namely, the first building built within its district is #1, the forty-first is #41, and so forth. Would-be visitors are advised to consult with local police or post office officials if they experience any difficulty navigating this Japanese system.

GEOGRAPHICAL INDEX BY ZIP CODE; changes since the 2nd edition of The Architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright

THE LISTS ON THE NEXT 3 PAGES ITEMIZE ONLY THOSE ITEMS
CHANGED SINCE PUBLICATION OF THE 2nd Edition of The Architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright, a Complete Catalog.

The ZIP code system was devised by the United States Postal Service around geographically related distribution centers. Governmental units in generally contiguous regions share the first two or three digits of their given ZIP codes: i.e., 537xx is Madison, Wisconsin, including its suburbs (such as Shorewood Hills).

Readers may employ this system to locate structures known or remembered only by the general area in which they stand. For instance, one seeking a building somewhere around San Francisco would look at all listings that have the same beginning ZIP numbers as that north California city. The 94xxx ZIP listings include all extant structures by Wright in the Bay region.

The numbers in the right column refer to the Storrer Catalog entry number (now S.XXX, though simply X, XX, XXX or A.XXX in the 2nd Edition) for ease of access to additional information concerning the item listed.

The Alphabetical Index in TAOFLW lists structures by the city in which they are currently located. Each map in this GUIDE lists the buildings shown thereon, by ZIP codes, so a full cross-referencing by ZIP codes is available. Use the complete Geographical Index in TAOFLW with this list of changes.

ZIP code ranges, and relevant state listings, are:
00000-09999 Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire,
New Jersey
10000-19999 Delaware, New York, Pennsylvania
20000-29999 Maryland, South Carolina, Virginia
30000-39999 Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee
40000-49999 Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio
50000-59999 Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Wisconsin
60000-69999 Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska
70000-79999 Oklahoma, Texas
80000-89999 Arizona, Idaho, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming
90000-99999 California, Hawaii, Oregon, Washington
Foreign listings follow the U.S. listings

Note: The Geographical Index of extant buildings by Frank Lloyd Wright is not meant to encourage visits to private homes. Rather, the availability of these addresses places upon the would-be-visitor the responsibility of gaining advanced permission from the current owner before entering any private property. The privacy that Wright designed into his clients' residences must be respected.

Buildings that are open to visitors are now noted in the list with the name of the owner-institution; phone numbers are given for those buildings regularly open to the public.

THIS LIST ITEMIZES ONLY THOSE ITEMS CHANGED SINCE PUBLICATION OF THE 2nd Edition of The Architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright, a Complete Catalog.

Please refer to that publication, to which this GUIDE is meant only as a supplement, for a complete list of addresses.

Have you heard of the FLIW UPDATE?

This is the only publication that supplies all the information that one needs in order to keep up to date on what is new in the world of Wrightian interests:

BUILDINGS; found, lost, for sale, sold, demolished, newly built, restored, ruined, moved. William Marlin, with whom Mrs. Wright entrusted the writing of the Three Volume Official Biography of Mr. Wright, brought us the 1914 Women's Building in Spring Green, with photo of this demolished building.

ARTICLES; on restoration techniques, proven by building owners. Usonian floor repair, stopping roof leaks, and such.

PUBLICATIONS; what has been written about Wright or his works by scholars and others, and where to obtain copies.

BOOKS; reviews of those you must read, and those that are overpriced or badly done! Books in which the architectural photos are not perspective correct are identified, as well as are other errors of good/bad taste.

PEOPLE; the scholars and owners who are active in making Wright a household name. What's wrong with Wright scholarship, and what is (occasionally) right.

ORGANIZATIONS; news of conferences and other get-togethers of Wrightian interest. The demise of Tom Monaghan and rise of the Frank Lloyd Wright Building Conservancy.

All that is important, and sometimes not-so-important, that has to do with Frank Lloyd Wright and his work may find its way into the pages of the FLIW UPDATE.

OTHER PERIODICALS ON WRIGHT MAY COST YOU $35 OR $40. The FLIW UPDATE tells you what is in the others when it is important and only costs $15 a year.

If you do not wish to cut out part of the index on the reverse of this sheet, Xerox a copy, or just write your name and address on a piece of paper, and send it with your check or money order.
