Contributors

... ROBERTA M. KOLL whose bright young apartment in a grand old house is the subject of our lead article, is a Chicago decorator born on the North Shore, where she now lives. She studied art at the University of Illinois, then opened a "different" gift shop. Decorating was a hobby at first. Now a professional decorator, she is designing furniture, fabrics, wallpaper, and the like on the side—and she finds that the demands of such assignments can be most exciting.

... GERARD R. COLCORD, Los Angeles architect (page 34), trained at the University of Southern California and the Paris École des Beaux Arts. Nearly a score of his houses, scattered from Texas to Spokane, have been shown on the covers of national magazines—on our cover this month is the one he designed for the M. Thorners. ("Mrs. Thorne knew what she wanted. I just helped," says he.) His clients include such stars as Alan Ladd, Gene Tierney, and Bill Boyd.

... MARGARET M. CAMPBELL, collector of Minerva glass (page 42), feels William Cowper's description fits her: "No wild enthusiast ever yet could rest till half mankind were like himself posses'd." Her family is in on the act: Husband George, engineer for Bethlehem Steel, lends a hand; son Michael, 19, drives her over the countryside in search of Minerva; son Paul, 17, helps; daughter Mary Margaret, 10, has her own collection of child-size antique glass and china.

... J. LLOYD BERRALL designed the house on page 50 for his own use, and keeps his hand in that garden. A graduate of Harvard College, he took his M.A. at Harvard's School of Architecture, and has practiced architecture in Montclair, N. J., since 1934. Most of his work has been in the design of homes and garden apartments, but he was Montclair's town planner for three years. During the war, he worked on camouflage projects. His hobbies—painting and singing.

... JULIA S. BERRALL, wife of J. Lloyd (above), is "mother" of the garden on page 50—and of Jim and Pete Berrall who cut its grass. After Vassar, she spent eight years in museum work, and her training in art is evident in the way she has planned the garden's handsome color scheme. She has lectured extensively on flower arranging and related subjects, and is author of Flowers and Table Settings, recently published by Studio-Crowell. Her hobby—good music.

"Here's how we learned Plywood Sheathing is Best under ANY conditions"

REMEMBER the big winds that ripped the Eastern seaboard last year? Our house was right in the middle of it. And as it turned out, a choice we had made a few months before saved us a great deal of money and no end of inconvenience.

Based on our architect's recommendation, we chose plywood wall and roof sheathing. "Your home's armour," he called it. "The structural casing over which outer wall and roof coverings are placed." He explained plywood is over twice as strong and rigid as any other sheathing material. "Plywood makes your home warm, snug and stable, and it means extra protection against earthquake or windstorm—if that day ever comes."

It came. The howling winds toppled giant trees, washed frenzied breakers over shore line drives. Houses all around were racked and twisted by the gale, but our house—thanks to plywood sheathing—withstood the tooth and nail onslaught like a granite boulder.

Since, we've found plywood pays its way in comfort and fuel savings, too. It insulates . . . seals out unwelcome drafts. Plywood lowers construction costs by saving time and labor—over 25% for sheathing, 50% for subfloors. Large, light sheets cover big areas quickly, virtually eliminate expensive waste.

Want More Information?

Write today for free folder, "Extra Strength That Saves You Money." Write: (USA Only) Douglas Fir Plywood Association, Department 11, Tacoma 2, Washington.

Ask your architect or builder about plywood's advantages for every building or remodeling job—smart, modern siding . . . strong, firm subfloors . . . rich, real wood paneling . . . space-saving built-ins. Your lumber dealer has waterproof Exterior plywood for outdoor and marine use; Interior for inside jobs.

Off Your Chest

STRONG CASE?

Dear Sir:

In the June issue, "Stopover on the Way to a Dream House" starts out "Bill and Betty Froug . . . found their champagne taste did not fit their beer budget." The reader is left with the impression that not only should he include beer in his budget but that . . . people of distinction include champagne in their budgets.

—CLEORA S. SHOCKLEY

Gentlemen:

. . . A suggestion of this kind that all household budgets must include items for intoxicating beverages is about as strong a case as one could make for its use in every home.

—MRS. ROLLIN G. JOHNSON

DEPENDS ON WHERE YOU SIT

Dear Sir:

All we see is rooms decorated with Modern and Duncan Phyfe. What about us that have this heavy Oak Italian furniture (we have a dining room set) that would cost a fortune now to buy?—EUGENE CIUNCHARD

Dear Mrs. Bender:

I enjoyed your article . . . "Please, a Dining Room." The outfit that you wrote about is my ideal of a practical roomful of furniture. Mahogany dining rooms are lovely without a doubt, but the hostess has to follow all the guests with a furrowed brow hopeful that they will be exceptionally careful . . . With your ideas any hostess could entertain without a slight nervous collapse . . .

—MRS. JOSEPH M. BURACK

ONE MAN'S MEAT

Dear Editor:

Being strictly an Old Colonial homeowner and dyed-in-the-wool New Englander—your magazine has had too many modern-type designs in homes. Where are those huge closets people always look for—but never get?—MRS. S. RICHARD STRAND

Gentlemen:

Ever since you published the pictures of Mrs. Ida O. Yakel's house (April, 1951, cover) I have wanted to ask if it would be possible to obtain the plans for her house . . . have fallen completely in love with the general contours of the house, gray shingles, white and blue trim . . .

how to play "Hide the telephone wires"

It comes early in the game—before you build or remodel your home.

Just mark on your floor plans the locations where you want telephones. Then, your builder can install pipe or tubing in the walls to carry the telephone wires out of sight to these locations.

It's a sure way to protect your walls and woodwork from exposed wiring.

For more information about this important home feature and for free telephone planning service, call your nearest Bell Telephone Business Office.

Gentlemen:

I have mislaid my copy of THE AMERICAN HOME which told the name of the manufacturers of the Ladies' and Gentlemen's Wardrobes shown in the magazine. I have the blueprints for making them but would prefer to buy those made by regular manufacturers.—MRS. MABEL DRAKE

ED: For Mrs. Strand, the house and its closets on pages 22-25, December. Also, another look at the Yakel home on our last April cover! For Mrs. Rynbergen: Sorry, Mrs. Yakel has asked that we do not reveal her address or her architect's. For Mrs. Drake: Write the Widdicomb Furniture Company, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

MALE CONVERSION

Dear Editor:

How come you have such a sway over the feminine mind?

Ever since my wife, Mary, has been getting THE AMERICAN HOME I've been forced to change the whole routine of a once happy and care-free life. Mary has become such an ardent disciple of the know-how articles, that she now demands that everything prosecuted in this manor of ours must be executed according to the maxims of THE AMERICAN HOME.

For instance, Sir: I'm painting the floor in my snappy style when Mary shoves her head through the door. "That isn't the way you do it," she says. "THE AMERICAN HOME says . . ." I'm thinning out carrots and turnips in our garden. Mary comes out and yells at me. "No, no, that isn't the way to do it. I saw an article . . ."

I want my wife back as she used to be: the little woman who used to shower me with praise and tell me I was a genius.—ROLAND C. SCHOFIELD

Dear Editor:

Thank you for your kind letter.

I've got good news: I've capitulated. And you'll be pleased to hear that I'm liking my conversion. I must admit that during the last few days my cabbages, turnips, and carrots have found new life and vigor since A.H. has crept into their lives.

—ROLAND C. SCHOFIELD

WHEN YOU CHANGE YOUR ADDRESS

Please report both new and old addresses directly to THE AMERICAN HOME, five weeks before the change is to take effect. Copies that we address to your old address will not be delivered by the Post Office, unless you pay them extra postage. Avoid this unnecessary expense by notifying us five weeks in advance.

WANTED: A New Kind of "Old People's Home"

FRANK A. COOPER

A cottage for two with room for twenty—that's what my wife and I are looking for. We can't find it. We want a retirement place—an Old People's Home—and nothing we have seen fills the bill, even remotely. The tiny "parlor, bedroom, and sink" recommended by bright young architects for the elderly won't do at all. Such a place would be a coffin for us. How would we have our four married children and nine grandchildren for Christmas? How could we have those wonderful grand kids for part of their vacations? No, we must have room.

We realize that, having reached the age of 60, we probably will do most of our own living in a couple of rooms. A big living-kitchen plus a bedroom is all we need for ourselves. But when the young ones come—that's something else again. So we are in rebellion against the doll house (or dog house) our solicitous children think would be "just wonderful for the old dears." Our rebellion is open and loud.

We have done something about it. We have roughly designed the kind of retirement home we think we need. In a nutshell, it consists of three parts: that living-kitchen and bedroom on the main floor, a basement playroom for family parties below, and an attic dormitory for as many of our offspring as can be happily huddled together. It violates all conventional rules. We have seen nothing like it anywhere. Young people may call it screwball. But we don't care. We are crusading for 12,000,000 other oldsters who want some years of living at the end.

If some bright young architect with heart and imagination will design the home we visualize, he will create an Old People's Heaven. To such a young architect we want to bare our souls. Like many others, Mom and I will retire on a pension of about $100 a month. We have some war bonds, a little cash, and we can sell our old house. So we'll have about $12,000 in addition to our pension. At 60, there is a lot of life in the old body. I can still putter for eight hours a day, taking care of a flock of chickens, a garden, and some berries. So we plan to leave the city and buy a big lot outside some small town where taxes are low. There we hope to live in the home of our dreams.

Come on a tour of inspection with us. Nothing unusual about the exterior—Cape Cod will do nicely. We'd like your opinion about cinder-block construction, because cost is vital to us. Now, come in the front door, and hang your hat in the closet. We're in that apartment you all think we should have. Here's the great big living-kitchen, perhaps 30 ft. long. We want it finished in natural wood—vertical planks—because we can't afford to decorate every two years and Mom is a bug on neatness. The ceiling joists are to be heavy, and exposed, giving a beamed effect. The floor is to be linoleum tile. One end will be for cooking. Don't make it shiny white. We want cupboards of natural wood, and may even refinish the range and refrigerator in dull tones. The kitchen part, when not in use, must be inconspicuous as possible. Not far from the range we want a drop-leaf table, big enough for ourselves with one leaf raised, but capable of expanding to seat a dozen when the clan comes "home to Grandma's."

When Mom and I are alone, we'll live in the far end of this room. Across the end, give us a long window seat which serves as a davenport and a place to stretch out for naps. It will be good, too, for bedding down a couple of grandchildren. And put some storage drawers under it. This built-in sofa, plus a couple of easy chairs, radio, TV, lamps, bookshelves, and tables, is what we'll need when we're alone

PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG WOMAN

Reproduced in miniature by The Metropolitan Museum of Art

PRICE FOR THE FULL SERIES OF 24 MINIATURES (including 32-page Album) $1.25

THIS STRIKING SET is an example of one of the most exciting developments in art education—both for adults and young people—ever undertaken. For more than two years, The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York has been making fine Miniatures, in full color, of its most famous works of art—in order to enable cultivated people everywhere to build up gradually a full replica in their own homes of a great museum.

The Museum now prepares a separate set of 24 Miniatures every month, in the new large size shown above. Eventually they will include the most interesting and most representative work of every period, every school, every great painter. With each set of 24 Miniatures an Album is provided in which the prints can be affixed in given spaces; and under each one you find fascinating information about what is pictured. Thus each Album, with its Miniatures, is like a guided visit through the Museum under the instruction of an expert. In effect, the project is like a comprehensive university course, carried on by the staff of the Museum, in both the history and appreciation of art. Yet the plan is of such a nature that it can be understood and enjoyed by persons of all ages.

A SUGGESTION: To acquaint yourself visually with the project, we suggest that you send for this single set of Rembrandts. Or, if you wish to subscribe now on a continuing basis, you can do so with the right to stop whenever you please, just as you might wish to stop going on “guided personal visits” through the Museum. On this basis, you will receive with the first Album, and with every sixth thereafter, a handsome Portfolio in which the Albums may be kept for constant enjoyment and reference. The price for each series is $1.25, with Album.

PLEASE NOTE: Since The Metropolitan Museum is unequipped to handle the details involved in this project, it has arranged to have the Book-of-the-Month Club, of New York, act as its national distributor. The selection of subjects and the preparation of the color prints remain wholly under the supervision of the Museum. All matters having to do with distribution are handled by the Book-of-the-Month Club.

NUTRITIONAL TIME BOMB?"

"Nutritional Time Bomb" is science's dramatic name for an equally dramatic discovery about diet...the discovery that injuries caused by mistakes in diet may not reveal themselves until years later.

Like actual time bombs, these injuries remain hidden and unrecognized, exploding into symptoms when it is too late to do anything about them. Thus, the dietary wrongs of childhood may be visited upon the adult.

Such scourges of later life as tooth decay, goiter, high blood pressure, heart disease, anemia and hardening of the arteries are not necessarily caused by present diet faults. They may be the delayed effects of earlier injury, where a dietary deficiency has existed too long.

A sound child body—the foundation of a sound adult body—must be built from the food that goes into it. The true effect of a mother's care during childhood has only begun to be understood. And, since eating habits are formed in childhood, the conscientious parent can do much to insure the child against later penalties of wrong eating.

The protective foods should be used generously in the daily diet. Important among these are bananas—long prescribed by doctors as one of the first solid foods for infants. Bananas have a well-rounded supply of vitamins and minerals, and are distinctly beneficent in their action upon the digestive tract. Because of the many appetizing ways in which bananas can be served, as well as because of their nutritional value, they are now being more widely used than ever.

MORAL REHABILITATION: Members of Polio Parents offer hope and courage, and provide vital information to stricken families

Polio Parents

KEITH and SARAH WINSTON

Talking to you has relieved my mind more than I can ever hope to tell you . . . I don't feel alone now." That's usually the closing remark made by the dazed parent of a new victim of infantile paralysis when a member of Polio Parents calls to offer sound advice, real help—and comfort. Somehow a cloud has lifted—a ray of light comes through. This remarkable organization, which was founded three years ago in Delaware County, Pa., and now has three other chapters in Pennsylvania and New York, is one of the most active, and unusual, community service groups in the country.

It doesn't furnish medical treatment, and it doesn't have funds at its disposal, though its members see to it that the families of polio victims are informed about the medical care and financial help available through the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis (the March of Dimes organization). Instead, it does what no other outfit is geared for: its object is to improve the morale in confused, stricken homes and, later on,

A small living room can look twice its size

This dining alcove disappears and becomes part of the living room as soon as the meal is over. But whether used as a dining or living area, it is still enhanced by the beautiful textured effect of the new Conestoga* pattern in Armstrong's Embossed Inlaid Linoleum. The style is No. 5204. You'll find it's a practical floor that's long-wearing, easy to clean, and quiet underfoot. See it today at your Armstrong merchant's. For a free room plan and a complete list of furnishings, just drop us a post card.

*T. M. APPLIED FOR

IF YOU like large rooms but find that building costs are making you scale down your house plans, don't be discouraged. You can lower your costs with a small living room and a dining alcove without giving your house a skimpy look.

What appears to be a large living room in the picture above is really part dining alcove. Anyone seeing the room for the first time is impressed by its spaciousness without suspecting its double usefulness.

The neat disguise is a result of furnishing the alcove to blend in with the living room, and using one smooth sweep of Armstrong's Linoleum in both areas to tie the whole decorating scheme together.

The room gets an added look of spaciousness from the brick wall that serves as both outside and inside partition. Ivy, inside and out, makes the garden a part of the room.

At mealtime the adjustable coffee table is raised by turning the cross legs to their high position. Draw the curtain, and you have the perfect setting for dining.

Aside from contributing to the beauty and the spacious appearance of this house, Armstrong's Linoleum proved an economical choice. Its original cost is moderate. It also has the advantages of being a decorative floor and never needing costly refinishing.

So, whether you are choosing a floor for a new home or old, be sure to look at Armstrong's Linoleum first. Chances are you won't have to look any further.

Send for helpful book . . . "Go Ahead and Decorate." This inspiring decorating guide was prepared by the noted home stylist, Hazel Dell Brown. Its 32 pages, illustrated in full color, are packed with stimulating ideas for every room in your house—new or old. # HOW'S YOUR LAWN?

It needs 2 things, right now!

First of all it's hungry. All your little grass roots are waking up from a winter sleep crying for food and they should have it. There are many fertilizers but none equal to Woodruff Turf-Maker Lawn Food (Gro-Sod) prepared exclusively for lawns. It's a complete and more economical fertilizer containing an organic moisture-retaining substance that ordinary fertilizers do not have. It goes farther — lasts longer, and gives the grass a more beautiful green lustre. Use no other lawn food but Turf-Maker.

The second thing is a reseeding of any bare or thin areas with Woodruff Turf-Maker Lawn Seed, which produces a long lasting heavy turf that withstands the extremes of weather and traffic better than any other lawn seed mixture you can buy.

Plan now to sow Woodruff Turf-Maker Lawn Seed and feed the grass Woodruff Turf-Maker Lawn Food as soon as the weather breaks. See your Woodruff dealer about lawns. He knows what to do and when to do it — or write

Quilting

(Begins on page 48)

Here are directions for making the chair back on page 48. Technique applies to any machine quilting. Make paper pattern of each chair section, or use the old covering if you're reupholstering. To allow for quilting, cut new fabric  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -3 in. wider than pattern, all around

Cut cotton batting and thin muslin lining (such as batiste) same size as outer covering pieces. Pin outer fabric, cotton batting, and lining together, placing pins a few inches apart. To guide your first row of machine stitching, make one diagonal row of pins

Sew on lining side. Use quilting guide attachment. Sew first row along row of pins. Avoid bunching by reversing direction of alternate rows: if first row is stitched from upper right to lower left, stitch next row from lower left to upper right

Keep reversing direction for each succeeding row. To make lines parallel to each other, use quilting guide correctly: before starting a new line, place guide in line just sewn—keep it there as you stitch

After quilting chair back, trim pieces to fit. This is a close diagonal quilting. For diamond quilting (spread, page 49), stitch diagonal rows further apart, then repeat process in opposite direction

DOUBLE DRESSERS...

A Couple's Worth of Storage

CHERRY GOES TO TOWN in a dresser with formal 18th-century manners. Just a foot wider than a regular dresser, it provides ample storage for two (56" wide, 21" deep, 35" high) $163.00

GLEAMING SWIRLED MAHOGANY is worked into a bow-fronted unit with an elegant traditional air and a modern, space-saving point of view (56" x 22" x 34") $172.00

HONEY-TONED AMERICAN PROVINCIAL. Solid maple, punctuated by traditional hardware, makes this double dresser inspired by Colonial country furniture and wise enough to hold a couple's clothes in a small space (49" x 20½" x 35") $171.00

CONTEMPORARY. With its slanted base, its drawers of varying depth, this is a sleek design of 1952. But the warm brown tones of its solid mahogany suit it for use with pieces of other periods (56" x 20" x 31") $159.00

See "Where Credit Is Due" on page 80

The first run of the spray overlaps the masking paper. Succeeding runs will overlap the previous ones

Bird's-eye view from above. With both flat and curved surfaces, keep the spray axis at right angles to the point of impact, keep the gun horizontal and an even distance from the surface, and move it at a uniform speed to deposit an even spray, without floods or misses. The distance and speed of moving the gun varies with the paint texture and the spray-gun tip. Experiment a bit before doing each job

After each job, empty and clean the container. Then, with the container  $\frac{1}{4}$  full of thinner, spray old newspaper until only thinner comes out. If tip becomes clogged, soak it in thinner and then spray thinner through it. Bad clogging may require overnight soaking in thinner. Never probe tip with a wire

Usually at least two or three coats are needed. When the last coat is completely dry, pull the tape away at a sharp angle, doubled back on the mask to insure a clean edge. Tape will break away and not pull off the newly sprayed area

How to Paint with a Spray Gun

You can paint much more quickly with a spray gun. Try a little experimenting and you'll get the knack in no time. Thin the paint, lacquer, or other coating to a thin-cream consistency. Heavy-bodied enamels and coarse pigment paints don't spray well. The gun may be a professional model with an air compressor, a vibrator type as shown, or even a vacuum cleaner attachment. The light type of equipment have limitations, but can do fine work on most home projects. For work indoors you can buy a nose mask or make one like the mask we show—it just takes several thicknesses of cheesecloth.

Be sure to strain out all dirt or paint skins to insure a smooth result and prevent clogging of the spray nozzle. The principal faults to avoid are: floods of too much paint with the resulting runs; too little paint; spots missed completely.

With pencil line or other indication, mark off area to be sprayed. Cover adjacent areas with newspaper to keep them from being sprayed, too. Masking tape holds paper in place and enables you to achieve a clean, sharp edge for the sprayed area. Smooth the tape down firmly over the pencil mark to make sure that none of the paint creeps under the mask to make the edge ragged and messy and glass retaining catches on a sheet of 20-gage copper. Following diagrams, cut all pieces except inside edges of door frame with tin shears. Use a cold chisel to cut inside side edges of door frame (see drawing detail of inside of door). File edges smooth. Mark on each piece lines indicating bends. Bend each piece by placing between two hardwood boards, keeping marked lines even with top of boards. Clamp in vise and hammer down. Inside of door frame has top, bottom, and sides bent in same way. After sides and bottom have been hammered down against frame, insert a length of 1/4-in. band iron in recess. Hammer outer edges down tight, and shape inside rim over edge of band iron (as shown) leaving a channel on sides and bottom to receive glass.

Drill all holes as shown; assemble top with small rivets. Shape bottom. Rivet four corner posts to top and bottom. Copper glass retaining catches are formed as shown, then riveted to inside corners of lamp frame. Cut floor board for lamp from 3/4-in. pine and set into frame at bottom. File and fit metal knob for door. Drill hole through door, insert knob and rivet on 1/16-in. catch. Make copper hinges as shown. Rivet into place. Cut and fit single-strength window glass into side frames by moving soft copper retaining catches so glass will slip into place, then push catches back against glass. Slip door glass into place from top of door panel. Wire old kerosene lamp (or use a copy of one) and set in lamp frame. Make post from 7-ft. length of 2-in. iron pipe. Add steel rod just under lamp as shown. Drill 7/16-in. hole in center of block of wood to fit at top of post for threaded pipe. Drill pipe for bracket screws to hold lamp in place.

Old People's Home

or have a few guests. We need no other living room.

We have some funny ideas about our bedroom, too. It needn't be a fancy boudoir. Just make it plenty big, and connect it with our living-kitchen by wide sliding doors so we can throw the rooms together. With some comfortable chairs, it will be an auxiliary sitting room. And put the bath so it can be reached from bedroom, living area, or by youngsters from out-of-doors.

Now get one thing straight, young man. For 40 weeks out of the year Mom and I will be alone. So we want this first-floor apartment a thing in itself, divorced from the rest of the house. Insulate the ceiling and heat just the two rooms and bath.

Now, let's go downstairs. The basement room we visualize is not an integral part of the "apartment" I've just described. So we won't clutter up the apartment with stairways. The basement can be reached from the garage which is attached to the house.

Down you go. We want to build our house on a slope so we can have deep windows on one side to make the basement light and cheerful. Here's where the clan will gather. The Christmas tree will stand in that corner, and the kids can raise rumpus here!

The overhead joists will be exposed and stained. The floor will be asphalt tile. That door at the end leads to the heater room, laundry, and the store-room. We'd like to hear your ideas about low-cost heating. Remember that we want only to heat the main-floor apartment. The return flow should take the chill off the basement, and we can use auxiliary heaters here and in the upstairs dormitory.

Now let's go up to the space under the roof. Here is where we may have some argument from you. This is to be one great big room, reaching from one end of the house to the other—over the garage and all. Mom and I call it the "summer cottage." Really, it will be a dormitory with built-in bunks—enough of them to sleep 20. We don't plan an upstairs bath—but "his" and "hers" dressing rooms, each with washbowl and toilet which can be drained in cold weather.

This room won't be heated by the furnace, but will have a chimney outlet so we can install an oil space heater. We can't afford costly finishing with lath, plaster, woodwork and concealed wiring up here. Just use wallboard, and maybe I'll do the work myself if you advise about materials.

Lack of privacy? Listen! One of the fondest memories Mom and I have is of going back to her folk's big farmhouse where we sat around the big upstairs wrapped in robes and blankets while we chewed the fat into the wee hours. We want our children to have such fun.

When I first approached flower gardening with serious intentions, a friend whose experience I respected and whose results I admired, told me that she avoided reds in her color effects since that was the color which caused most clashes. I was reluctant to accept her dictum because I like red. A red rose is romantic, a red poppy dramatic, a clump of red phlox cheerfulness itself. Since then, I have found that the pure reds and the bluish ones, as found in carnations, peonies, most roses, and tulips, can be combined successfully with pastel colors, while brilliant orange and the bronzy reds belong with the gold and rust tones. Learning this, I didn't give up red. I merely used it cautiously.

In the yard of a small city lot it might seem impossible to have more than one color scheme; but actually this depends upon the arrangement. In interior decorating, inharmonious tones cannot be used in the same room, but there is nothing to prevent the use of, for instance, wine in one room and orange or rust in another not adjoining. Similarly, even in a small garden, two or more pictures can be created if there are areas that cannot be seen from the same point. I solved such a problem as the result of developing an unusual color scheme. In trying various flowers new to me, but whose catalogue descriptions sounded interesting, I came on Salvia patens. I didn't know how to winter it and lost my first plants, but I kept at it, for it offers the purest blue I have ever seen in a flower. I inadvertently placed it near a golden alyssum and a bright red carnation, and the three, seen from my kitchen, reminded me of the three primary colors in my childhood paint box. This border, on a slope beside the garage, gradually settled into a blue and yellow scheme, with delphiniums and daylilies for its backbone, and other, lower-growing seasonal fillers, like the Salvia.

On the other side of the lawn, against the house, was a narrower bed with a pink climbing rose as its main feature. Below the rose I had foolishly planted some oriental poppies of a most vivid red shade. I loved them, too, but they simply swore at the rose, so I decided I would have to throw them out. Then suddenly I remembered my little paint-box picture. Why not, I thought, make a whole flower bed with that "three primary colors" scheme?

Before long I had moved the red poppies over with the delphiniums and daylilies, and added here and there some clumps of scarlet geum. Then I filled in under and in front of the rose with canterbury-bells and some pink and soft red English daisies. My bed of primary colors cannot be seen from the same direction from which we view the pink-rose-lavender one against the side of the house, so it does not disturb color-sensitive eyes. And the same thing applies in reverse.

In choosing my materials, I have found that I must forego some color, so I have given up orange. Although I gaze yearningly at the wonderful calendulas, marigolds, and other orange-colored beauties listed in the seed catalogues, I have come to realize that, if I must have reds, those others I must eschew. In the average city-lot garden, there is usually no room for a separate cutting garden, so a wise choice of colors includes those which harmonize not only with one another, but also with the color scheme in the home. Inside my house, for instance, I can use trations were used on seed containers which were not consistent with the variety label or with the variety contained within the envelope. . . The most serious type of misrepresentation was that of selling seed so poorly bred that they would not have been acceptable under any variety label. . . This inventory shows that New York seed vendors have progressed a long way toward providing farmers and gardeners with the best seed obtainable. It has also shown the ways through which further improvement may be accomplished—by selling seeds in more carefully illustrated containers, by maintaining the identity of seed lots more conscientiously, by labeling them more precisely, and, most important of all, by maintaining greater genetic purity of crops grown for seed."

The flower seed tests in 1950, reported C. E. Heit, included the inspection of 70 different kinds of flowers obtained from 35 sources. "Many stocks showed good strong germination, 70 per cent being commercially acceptable in this respect. Only eight packets (1.4 per cent) were found to be filled with unfit or worthless seed—an improvement over 1949. Yet it was found that too many (28 per cent) were filled with seed which germinated between 20 and 60 per cent, which is below the expected values for good quality seed." The report concludes that: "The field trials demonstrated that seed stocks of many excellent and beautiful flowers are being sold in packet form by several reliable growers or seedsmen."

The new annuals pictured on page 44 are two 1952 All-America Seed Selections. Cosmos Klondyke Fiesta received a silver medal and Zinnia Persian Carpet honorable mention, as did Phlox Globe and Petunia Bal-lerina. In vegetables, gold medals went to Salad Bowl lettuce and Wade snapbean; silver medals to America spinach and Allneck pumpkin; bronze medals to Golden Delight muskmelon and Vinedale pepper (regional), and honorable mention to Stringless Hort bush bean. These novelties will be listed in 1952 catalogues.

Picket Line

First-coating pickets was Susy's job. Paint-smearing smocks (and children) meant extra washing, but the family's fun was worth it and helped in parceling out the work.

We nailed the painted 8-ft. 2 x 4's flat to the tops of the posts with 8-penny galvanized nails. Then we cut the 16-ft. 2 x 4's to fit between the posts and form the lower rail, nailing them with one side flush with the inner side of the posts. Pickets come in various sizes and lengths, which enables one to keep a level top line even on uneven ground.

Even spacing between pickets is a must. As we wanted ours a picket's width apart, my husband devised a "spacer" by nailing a metal template to a loose picket so it could hang from and slide along the top rail. As each picket was nailed in place, we would place the spacer against it, then hold the next one snugly up against it. (See illustration on page 83, lower right.)

To get the tops level, he made a guide of a 9-ft. piece of 2 x 4 against which, as it rested on two pickets nailed at the right height, the tops of the intervening pickets were held. To make sure every picket was exactly vertical, we held a spirit level alongside it before nailing it with three nails to each rail. The 215 ft. of finished fence, including a 3-ft. gate, cost $173.90, as follows:

444 ft. of 2 x 4 @ .09¢	$39.96
538 pickets @ .14¢	75.32
31 4 x 4 posts @ .85¢	26.35
3 lbs. 8d. nails	.57
10 lbs. 6d. nails	1.90
1 gal. linseed oil	2.50
1 gal. turpentine	1.00
4 gals. outside paint	20.00
Gate hinge and latch	3.00
1 gal. creosote	1.80
Rental for post-hole digger	1.50

Total $173.90

of seed produced well-bred, uniform plants nearly 100 per cent of which developed excellent heads. . . Obviously the better seed in this case was worth at least ten times as much as the poorer seed. It cost more to produce and it should have sold at a higher price. On the other hand, it is not always true that poor seeds are sold at a lower price than good seeds. Poor seeds, as well as good seeds, are often sold at high prices. As a matter of fact, for seeds which are sold in retail packets, there is often little relationship between price and quality."

Of course, novelties which for the time being are in limited supply will—and should—cost more than standard, time-tried varieties of which adequate stocks of seed are planned for and (weather permitting) grown every year. An example is the All-America Seed Selections, announced each year after having been tested for two years in a score of trial grounds scattered over the country. Also some varieties of both flowers and vegetables are prima donnas and demand special handling. As a gardener gains experience and skill, he learns to know and appraise these kinds, to appreciate their merits and particular requirements, and to treat them accordingly. Until then, he does well to rely mainly on the standard, proven varieties, buying his seed, we repeat, where top quality can confidently be counted on.

Consider the results of the 1950 trials at the Geneva Station. Some of them (illustrated on pages 44 and 45) show how widely squash may vary even though grown from seed sold in packets bearing the name (and picture) of the true, desired type. B. E. Clark reported in Farm Research that 300 samples of vine crop seeds, collected in the open market, were planted in control field trials and the crops grown to maturity and judged critically for conformity to varietal characteristics. "In general, the field performance was very good. Only two lots—less than 1 per cent—were so low in vitality that they failed to produce crops, and only six lots were badly misrepresented as to variety. . . There is still room for improvement, however. For one thing, illus-diet, we parceled out tasks, made this a "family fence," and finished it in a little over a week. Roberta (7) and Susy (4 plus) helped with morning housework so we could rush out and "help Daddy." Painting was my department—mine and my two little assistants!

First, following our plot plan, we strung lines along our exact boundary (to avoid future arguments). An inexpensive "line level" hung on the cords was indispensable here and later when leveling the ground. We set the 4 x 4 cedar posts 8 feet apart because the 2 x 4 rails come in 8- and 16-ft. lengths. But before setting them, we treated their bases with creosote and gave the rest of them two coats of a good outside white paint, thinning the first with linseed oil and turpentine. In fact, we painted all the fence parts before assembling them. This protected rot-vulnerable spots, kept us off our neighbor's land, was easier,

All fence members were painted before being assembled. Picket ends and edges were given two coats before bundles were untied. Next, one side received two coats and the other side one—until pickets were nailed in place. Then second coat covered nail heads, etc.

To align tops of pickets, we let each one touch a 9 ft. 2 x 4 guide frame, one end of which rests on picket last nailed in place, the other end on a picket nailed, temporarily, at proper height 9 ft. away. Loose picket hanging in foreground is "spacer" (see text)

A Good

After only six months in our new house, the price of a fence was an unplanned-for expenditure. But by spring we realized that you cannot hope for a good new lawn unless it is protected from roving children and pets, and I found it harder and harder to keep our two girls where I could see and supervise their play. So we decided to postpone flooring the attic and to use the money for a fence. After studying different types in the neighborhood, we concluded that the old-fashioned white picket fence has a charm all its own. A backdrop for plant foliage and flowers, it also means safety for youngsters and pets.

Estimates from fence builders first shocked us, then sunk us into despair. So off we went to local lumber yards, hardware, and paint stores—and we were in business for ourselves. Rudy, my husband, devoted most of his vacation to the project, but as steady work is poor vacation

To rot-proof posts below ground level, we gave the lower 18 inches three coats of creosote, 48 hours apart. This can be applied with a brush (left), or by dipping (right). Deep container was made by soldering together two square gallon cans, one with bottom removed

Determining our property line, we stretched two cords along it, the upper one to mark height, the lower one to insure alignment of the 4 x 4 cedar posts which we set 8 ft. apart on centers in holes

Polio Parents

raphers. One bit of practical therapy has been a psychological masterstroke with polio victims: there is a class in which they have been taught to transcribe Braille. Here the halt really do lead the blind!

The organization doesn't neglect the patient's social adjustment, either. Of course a newly disabled youngster is apt to be shy and beset by a host of complexes. But not if he sees others who have learned how to live in the same boat. Teen-age groups of polios meet regularly, special trips and parties are frequent—and laughter is as spontaneous when they get together as it is with youngsters anywhere. In most cases, once a polio has become adjusted in these groups, he can rejoin his pre-polio friends with a feeling of assurance.

Those patients who are able to do so, attend public schools. Their numbers would be greater if only the schools were provided with a few ramps and easy-to-open doors to serve crutch and wheel-chair cases. Polio Parents has been crusading for such ramps and doors in all schools, because they strongly object to the segregation of disabled youngsters in schools of their own. Once in an ordinary school, a polio child makes his emotional adjustments—he finds his classmates are eager to help.

A newsletter keeps members of the club informed of its activities—and of each other. Some act as reporters or correspondents. Others are assigned to the jobs of stenciling, typing, and mailing the 400 copies which go out. Membership is not limited to polio victims and their parents. Interested parties—some of them day laborers, some presidents of corporations—have joined. And there is an impressive list of honorary members whose lives polio has touched: Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, opera star Marjorie Lawrence, radio's Don McNeill.

Will this organization's activities spread? Its members have reason to hope so. Not long ago, its "Mothers March on Polio" campaign so impressed the National Foundation that a feature-length film was made of it for distribution among the Foundation's 2800 chapters. Other Polio Parents may be inspired.

[NOTE: One of the editors of AMERICAN HOME, herself a polio victim many years ago, showed the manuscript of this article to her mother. Along with tears, it drew solemn thanks that such an organization has somewhat dulled polio's brutal edge. Back in those days, the terror of the first black months, and the doubts of the years that followed, would have been greatly alleviated had there been a National Foundation to provide medical care, and a Polio Parents to bolster the family's—and the patient's—courage.]

The wallflower below now blooms as the house on the right. But a close look shows that there were few major structural changes: an inviting door and picture window replace the uninspired openings which used to be there, a brick planting box now ties house to ground. The rest was a matter of pert fence, good planting, and paint

They Turned

This looks like quite a "before" and "after" story—and it is. Yet it wasn't an expensive project, for there were few structural changes. It cost its owners, the Charles Allison, more thought than money—thought which was well spent on such important details as good furniture arrangements and good color schemes inside and out. The front is quite an improvement, isn't it? But you really have to walk around to the rear to see the cleverest part of this remodeling job. For the price of a shaded walk and some cementing, three more rooms were added to a four-room house—all in the once down-at-the-heels back yard! Now it's an outside living room, a dining room, and even a guest room!

This used to be a path from kitchen to garage. Now it's headquarters for meals, shaded from sun and showers by a wall made of fencing, a roof, and canvas pull curtains (not shown). The house didn't have a dining room before. At the opposite end of the "room" (and out of the picture), is a sofa bed for family cat naps or for overnight guests

Drain spout makes it easy to remove fat from fryer. If fat contains food residue, it should be drained and strained. Place cheesecloth on strainer and allow fat to drain into container. If desired, the fat may be returned to the fryer and covered for future use

ROSE M. GUERRA

Electric Fryers

With an electric fryer, draining is a dream. Just raise the wire basket to brackets inside the fryer, and most of the excess fat drips right back into the well—no shaking or holding. With all fried foods, of course, you finish the draining on paper toweling

Wash it each time, and treat it to a good cleaning periodically. To clean, fill well with water, add soap or detergent, set dial at 300°, and boil 10 minutes. Remove gummy film with scouring pad. Dry inside and out, and give it a good shine. Never place fryer in water!

WASHES EVERYTHING BETTER!

...and so gentle on hands!

Cleaner washes as they come from machine or tub . . . fresher and sweeter as you take them from the line . . . softer and fluffier under your iron . . . yes, in every way FELSO washes everything better.

Sheerest nylons, rugged cottons or heavy woollens . . . FELSO washes everything better.

White, free-pouring FELSO bubbles into "just-right" suds, no matter how hard or cold the water; and FELSO's pleasant fragrance makes it such a nice product to use.

No matter how often you use FELSO, you'll find your hands stay soft and smooth. Use FELSO, too, for easy, "no-wipe" dishwashing.

Q. How much would insulation for my attic cost?

- ☐ $25   ☐ $75   ☐ $150

A. You're right if you guessed $75—a figure based on attic coverage with KIMSUL* for the average six-room house. If walls, too, are insulated, the approximate cost would be $150. But an insulation like KIMSUL in walls and ceilings can cut fuel bills almost in half each year. That means the initial cost of insulating is paid back within 2 or 3 years, and these savings continue for life.

Q. Which kind of insulation employs the most effective barrier to heat loss?

- ☐ Batt   ☐ Loose fill   ☐ Many-layer reflective blanket

A. Batt? Loose fill? No—the third answer is correct, because the combination of a thick, many-layer fiber blanket and reflective aluminum cover provides a double barrier against heat loss. This feature of Reflective KIMSUL forms a vaporseal and reduces heat loss by conduction and radiation through the walls and ceilings. KIMSUL insulation (both Reflective and Regular types) offers uniform protection over every inch of covered area—without thick spots or heat-leaking thin spots.

Q. Should insulation be resistant to —

- ☐ Insects   ☐ Mold   ☐ Fire   ☐ Drafts

A. A good insulation protects against all four. Furthermore, it's important that the insulation you select will never sift, settle, deteriorate or lose its insulating efficiency. Your local building supply or lumber dealer is the man to see first for complete information — before insulating your home.

Q. Can I install insulation in my present home?

- ☐ Yes   ☐ No   ☐ Depends on weather

A. Some insulations require special equipment and skilled labor for proper installation; others are awkward to handle or may irritate the skin. KIMSUL insulation—non-irritating and packaged in easy-to-carry rolls—can be installed by the home-owner himself. Simple instructions show how KIMSUL is easily placed in existing attic areas or completely throughout new homes.

Want digestible fried foods? You can have them with electric fryers because their controlled heat cooks your food evenly throughout—no soggy, and none of that overheating which produces indigestible fatty acids. Just plug in the fryer, set the dial to the correct temperature—and let the fryer worry

Facts About

See "Where Credit Is Due" on page 80

No one-job appliance, your electric fryer can simmer a soup or stew, or do a small roast to a turn. Use it as a casserole, a saucepan, or bring it to the table as a chafing dish. Its automatic control, set low, keeps second helpings ideally warm

Like popcorn? Take your electric fryer into the living room and pour in the corn with some oil. Then watch the corn pop under the heat-proof glass cover. You won't need to stir or shake it. The pan in this model is removable for easy cleaning

Place and Show

(Begins on page 56)

Press modeling clay inside lower section of container, first making certain latter is dry to give good adhesion. Use candles shorter than chimney

Place inside chimney two galax leaves (always part of a bunch of violets). Seen through the glass, they help to make the arrangement attractive from all sides

Insert tubes and tiny receptacles in modeling clay. Fill them and container with water. Add foliage and clusters of violets of varying lengths, building one side slightly higher than the other

These clusters may be wound with florist's tape to strengthen stems before inserting in receptacles. Add white freesias for lightness

Duplicate the arrangement in the second container. Place them on your table so that the low sides will face each other

WORKS on dirt THREE WAYS!

Do you know why FELS-NAPTHA banishes "tattle-tale gray"?

It's because FELS-NAPTHA, and only FELS-NAPTHA, combines two great cleaning agents . . . good golden soap, with gentle dirt-loosening naptha. These really dig out the dirt. Then, third, FELS-NAPTHA adds a "sunshine" ingredient that restores whiteness to your white goods and gives renewed brilliance to colors.

Bright New Colors

The groups of table coverings illustrated on pages 52 through 55 weren't designed to go together. But to show you how effective mixing can be, we mixed them to our hearts' content, and teamed them with a variety of dinnerware, glass, and accessories.

Some cloths and mats come only in sets with matching napkins. Some come alone and leave the choice of napkin up to you. Others are offered in open stock—buy cloth or mat alone, or choose matching or contrasting napkins of the same fabric. But if you buy sets, don't miss the fun of sometimes mixing them up—if your eye for design tells you the mixture is a happy one. And don't forget that a napkin, ironed flat, sometimes makes a good mat.

Of course, we picked good value and good quality for you as well as good design. All these coverings, even those woven with metallic thread, take to soap and water. Wipe the plastic and grass ones with a cloth—put the others in a tub.

Here is the full data about these exciting new fashions for tables. Prices, of course, are only approximate—you'll find that they vary in different sections of the country.

that does not mean that if pompano is not available you cannot employ this sensible mode of cooking and seal in this delicious, delicate sauce with whitefish, haddock, mullet, bass, flounder, trout, grouper, fluke, sheepshead—filets of any white, sweet fish can be cooked in this same sensible manner. Pompano en Papillote has always been associated with Antoine's of New Orleans, where it originated and was first served to honor a famous balloonist. It takes good timing and deftness in handling—but beyond that there is no reason in the world to be timid about cooking this famous delicious dish. It will cost far less to serve than a roast, bring down loud plaudits from your dinner guests. Good cooking, ma'am!

• Danish apple cake

Peel, core, and slice 2 lbs. cooking apples. Simmer, covered, in a little water until partially cooked—not soft. Sweeten to taste. Add vanilla. Butter a casserole. Alternate layers of dry bread crumbs and sliced apples. Begin and end with crumbs.

Pour 1 cup melted butter down through the apple cake. Bake for 30 min. in hot oven. Turn out on serving dish. Decorate with jelly and whipped cream.

• pompano en papillote

Have fish man split down back of pompano and remove heads and backbone. Wipe 6 filets of pompano carefully. Put in baking dish with 3 tbs. olive oil.

Sprinkle with: 1 large onion, finely chopped
2 tsp. chopped parsley
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper

Brown lightly in a moderate oven; turn filets once, handling very carefully so as not to break. Add ½ cup dry white wine or sherry. Cover dish tightly and bake 10 min. more in a slow oven. Keep filets hot; do not wash the pan in which filets were cooked.

Cut squares of parchment cooking paper large enough to cover the filets on both sides. Butter each square.

Lay a filet on each square and close the envelope, leaving 1 flap open. Into pan in which filets were cooked blend and add:

½ cup butter
1 cup finely chopped mushrooms
¾ cup finely chopped cooked shrimps
¼ tsp. powdered mace
1 bay leaf

Juice one large lemon
¼ cup minced truffles
½ clove garlic, minced
3 well beaten egg yolks

Simmer slowly, stirring occasionally, until sauce is thick. Pour some sauce into each envelope and seal. Heat for a few minutes under broiler flame, watch carefully. Serve immediately in envelopes.

1 cup broth (chicken or veal)

• Irene's oatmeal bread

Everyone is so "health food and molasses minded" these days. This is a 150-year-old recipe handed down from my Boston ancestors. It is heavenly to serve with baked ham and to have left over for ham sandwiches or toast.

1 heaping cup oatmeal (regular old-fashioned)
2 tsp. salt
½ cup molasses (medium dark Brer Rabbit)
4 tbs. shortening (lard or bacon fat)

Over all this pour 1 pint boiling water. Let stand until cool. Add 1 cake Fleischman's yeast dissolved in ½ cup warm water. Add 5½ cups (more or less) flour and knead thoroughly, being careful not to add more flour than needed to keep dough from sticking to board. Let rise double in bulk in a warm place. Knead into two large (or three small) loaves and let rise again until double. Bake at 375° F. for 45 min.

This can be made and kept in refrigerator overnight and proceed in morning. In which case only put in 2½ cups flour and add the rest in the morning. Knead—let rise—knead again and make loaves. Yield: 2 large loaves.

Infinite are the ways that elegant vegetable can be cooked and herewith, two of my favorites—potatoes Anna are but wonderful with broiled chops and broiled or baked fish, Sherried Fancies likewise. Good with roast chicken or spread with jam or jelly and eaten as a sweetmeat, these same Sherried Fancies. Try them instead of the eternal French Fries—and try them real soon. You'll be right glad for these two potato recipes, ma'am, and you're welcome to two of my top-drawer recipes.

Take a Can of Pineapple

SPECIAL pineapple tips from our American Home kitchen! For instance, frost a baker's angel cake with whipped cream, jewel with pineapple chunks which have been rolled in shredded coconut.

● Use crushed pineapple for basting good flavor into a roasting pork butt.
● For a hard-to-beat broiled sandwich combination, spread bread with deviled ham, cover with a slice of processed Cheddar cheese, top with a golden pineapple slice. Broil until pineapple tips are lightly browned. ● For "dunking" salty pretzels, mix  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup drained, crushed pineapple with 2 tsp. chopped mint. Blend with 3-oz. package cream cheese. ● Appetizer treat or hot, juicy meat accompaniment—pineapple chunks are brushed with French dressing before slipping under the broiler. ● Quick Pineapple Sandwich Salad . . . season cottage cheese with horseradish and chopped green pepper. Spread over slice of pineapple, add thin wedge of cranberry jelly. Cover with another pineapple slice. Top with mayonnaise to which pineapple juice has been added.

REALLY, I DO NOT KNOW why I put the word "just" before "plain good food" in the subtitle on the page opposite. Too late to recall it from the engraver, I hope you will not read into it anything derogatory—for since when has plain good food been anything but the best of food? And for that matter, who but the best of cooks can turn out plain good food? Red cabbage, for example. So beautiful before it is cooked, it so often turns up at table a purplish mush floating in an island of greasy water. Just so with apple puddings—the whole dreary, dull procession of them by any fancy name. Yet this one, so simple to put together, so good its crusty top of baked-in butter, gets into company class by reason of the care given its table debut—a bit of doing with cream and jelly. The cabbage, cooked with apples, red wine, and broth is taken up before it becomes limp and dispirited—and believe me is just as digestible and far more palatable than the cooked-to-death variety. Oatmeal bread certainly falls in the category of plain food. This one is an old recipe handed down from Irene Weston's Boston ancestors and 150 years later it's still heavenly served with baked ham, for making ham sandwiches or spread with Cliff's beer and cheese mixture. Plain cooking it is and good eating it is. Ever have pork sausage spiced to the hilt, then a drift of snowy mashed potatoes, a foamy, golden egg to crown this piquancy? Nothing better, nothing quicker to feed the hungry mouths on a cold and blustery night. All simple foods these—cabbage, apples, sausage meat, oatmeal bread—and yet there's not a reason why they should be handled indifferently, served plain-Jane and dully. And the same

Oven Time One Hour

*—includes
tangy, glazed Ham Steak,
Chocolate Swirl Custards*

Oven Time: 1 hour; temperature: 350° F. This isn't the tag line on a recipe—but the success story of a January dinner with family dimensions! On these pages we have planned for you a super-special oven dinner turned out quicker than you think. For your family, it's simple, hearty food with "look appeal"—all mighty welcome to holiday-jaded appetites.

Chalk up the points in favor of a smacking-good dinner from a reliable, temperature-controlled oven. We believe you'll place these easy-to-manage, wonderfully flavored dinner combinations in top place on your list of ways with family meals.

The only departure from "done in the oven" is a 10-minute quickie soup to warm you up on a cold night. To the youngsters' favorite tomato juice, add a really new flavor with orange juice and finely chopped onion. Serve it piping hot with salted crackers, crisp from their individual waxed-paper packets, and we're off to a flying start!

Ham steak topped with grapefruit slivers peeping through a golden, sweet-sour glaze? No menu could find a better feature! Plump, clove-studded canned peach halves tucked around the fragrant baking steak 10 minutes before removing from oven make the platter look as if this is no ordinary dinner—and, after all, family meals should have one star performer.

Old-fashioned combinations are so often the best eating. To us, corn pudding has always seemed a perfect partner for ham steak. They go together like pork and beans. But deliver us from the kind which "waters" and separates when it leaves the oven! Here is a recipe we guarantee against temperamental behavior.

Even though brown-and-serve rolls have taken over the chore of home-made rolls for busy cooks, we like variety in the best of things. Five minutes before rolls are finished baking, top with a generous pat of herb butter. Try any combination to your liking—ours happens to be  $\frac{1}{4}$  tsp. onion and  $\frac{1}{4}$  tsp. thyme blended with  $\frac{1}{3}$  cup soft butter or margarine.

Chocolate Swirl Custards topped by fluffy chocolate and vanilla meringues need only a light touch of browning. Slip them in 12-15 minutes before the oven timer is due to sound the "oven off" alarm. The bitter-sweet of melted baking chocolate marbled into the bland sweetness of cream pudding really tops a cold-weather dinner—and brings deep sighs of satisfaction that just naturally go with food enjoyed to the fullest.

7. Emphatic solids make your china important: fringed cotton mats are 69¢; plastic straw ovals, made to take punishment, about $2.

8. A grass "skirt," woven for your table by natives of the Philippines, has nature's own browns, favorites of smart designers ($1). 9. You can find singing solids in a variety of textures from sackcloth to fine-spun linen. Pocket mat and napkins, $5.50 a set. Other napkins, 69¢-80¢. 10. # Bright New Colors

Rich tones like these have dash and character.

As a change from the same old pastels, try mixing them boldly—your china won't know itself!

Here is fashion news on which you can really go to town: color has come to the table. Just look at the mats and cloths on these four pages! Grouped together, they remind us of paintings in a gallery. And they should, for these are the right but daring colors—the spices, the wood tones, the subtle florals—first borrowed from nature by artists. Exclusive designers picked them up for coddled customers. Now, in wonderful weaves (some shot with golden threads) they've gone democratic without losing cachet. They're yours, some for as little as 39¢ a mat, and come in every material from linen to plastic. Imagine your own china changing its personality against these backgrounds, and you'll see how to make one set of dishes act like a dozen.

1. Bold black and white checks are high table fashion. You can have the cloth, together with contrasting matkins (used as mats or napkins) for $5.50 a set and up. 2. Aristocratic Belgian linen takes to bold stripes—at about $4 a set, with napkins. 3. Playing subtle colors against gold-toned thread, these textured mats look like luxurious handweaves ($1.50 each). 4. Those mauvish, pinkish tones are as sophisticated as they are appealing. Have them in a sturdy, knotted texture with metallic thread ($2.50), or in linen with a knowing basket-weave border (70¢). 5. We've mixed the pet colors of the great painter, Léger, in a composition of bold napkins (65¢–80¢) and lacy mats braided of plastic and metallic threads, and oval for a change (about $2).

The house rared up on a plot shaped like a piece of pie, 134 and 120 feet along the southern and western sides, the latter extending below the beetling cliff at the right. The only trees were an elm (left), an apple, ash, and small spruce

In 1952

One fine day last summer, three AMERICAN HOME editors on a garden tour drove up to the house on your right—and felt as if they were meeting an old friend who had improved with age. We published this house back in April, 1939, shortly after architect J. L. Berrall built it for himself. Situated on its eagle's nest of shelf land high in the hills near Montclair, N. J., it was handsome then. It's handsomer today. Surrounded by planting, the green house itself seems to have taken root on its hill. Luxurious growth gives it privacy from the road, but once inside the grounds, you have the surprise of lawn areas, a garden pool, a terrace right under the cliff, and colorful borders which are the joy of Mrs. Berrall. The rewarding changes show what you can do with planned planting in a dozen years, starting from almost nothing. The plan was the work of landscape architect Gertrude Smith. At first, to surround it with planting in short order, quick-growing shrubs were put in to supplement the few existing trees. But the "quickies" were replaced gradually by more permanent beauties—dogwood, evergreens, birch, rhododendron, named lilacs, viburnum, forsythia, yew, and mountain laurel which nestles around the house. Perfect backdrops, these, for the performance put on by spring bulbs and summer perennials and annuals, and for the splendor of fall chrysanthemums.

The house is now sheltered by the mature trees and smaller ones, plus a curving screen of shrubs, evergreens, and perennials against the picket fence which edges the highway, and bends in toward the house on both ends. The plantings have worked a veritable transformation

Framed by yews, rhododendrons, spirea, hawthorn, a tiny pool nestles at the lawn's edge. From driveway (flanked by roses and a low stone wall), a flagged terrace leads to front door and to west side of house.

At the rear, against the cliff, is a picnic terrace

DOROTHY LAMBERT TRUMM

The fine old art of quilting has become so popular with decorators that it's a fine new art again. And no wonder, for any fabric, quilted, will take on a spendthrift look. The catch is that quilting itself is expensive. But trust us to help you over the dollar hurdles—we've come up with these beauties warranted to lift the spirits of your rooms, and we've made them into AMERICAN HOME patterns complete with instructions. Because we know that you don't have all the time in the world, we've worked out designs for big pieces which combine the hand quilting with background areas you can run up on your sewing machine. ## A SUCCESS STORY

Years Old

The Same House in 1952

Alone, new color and shutters which make beauties of the windows would have changed gloom into cheer. But would you believe a garage and breezeway could so vastly improve the lines of a house? Instead of looking like an awkward box, this one now seems to spread out in graceful comfort, and to invite you in for a cup of tea

In 1907

Even when it was new, this was "just a house"—it wouldn't tempt you to enter. Note interior changes: living room is now large, the pointless pantry became a breakfast room and washroom

A renovated house can be "good as new"—or even better.

New color, a garage, and a breezeway make this one handsome for the first time

This House is 45

Compared to the majestic century-old mansion whose rebirth we hail on page 29, the dreary little house shown above is relatively young—but how it needed a helping hand! You've seen hundreds like it—dank and dinky-looking despite their ample cubic footage. Inside, with their dark woodwork and frequently impossible kitchens, they are still more depressing. And when they come up for sale, they're cheap—because most people lack the imagination to visualize the wonders you can wield (if the house is sound) with a can of paint, some plaster, and a garage set in the right place.

But the Richard Sullivans of Nashua, N.H., were blessed with just that kind of vision. They took a chance and bought this house ten years ago, and made their changes gradually, as their budget permitted. The first alterations were mostly interior, though that cavernous front entry was immediately replaced by the Colonial front door and graceful stoop which beckon passers-by. Inside, in addition to new paint, paper, and kitchen equipment, they conjured up a large living room, big enough for a grand piano, by throwing down a wall and incorporating the hallway and former entry. They also went to work on the rear lean-to, eliminating the back porch and making the whole thing an enclosed playroom for their very small youngsters. (Finally, it became a breakfast room and downstairs washroom.)

A few years later came the things which made the greatest difference to the looks of their house—and added most to their joy in living here. They bought the plot next door, acquired a garage and breezeway, and treated the exterior to a paint job which turned gloomy brown walls into gay white ones. A garage needn't cost a fortune, and if you set it away from the house, and connect it with a generous breezeway, you really have something! The breezeway, of course, is a summer living room where you choose your sun or shade. But what a beauty treatment it is, too: it gives this house a smart new low look, and makes it inviting for the first time in its career.

To Buy The Best!

If you doubt it, look at the pairs of squash pictured herewith. They show how widely crops may vary when grown from seed sold under the same variety name, but in different packets, by different dealers. They indicate what can happen when you plant what you suppose is seed of what you want to grow, but which turns out to have been seed of something quite different. The reason for this unfortunate outcome may be your unfamiliarity with varieties; or your carelessness in checking catalogue descriptions, or in making out your seed order. Or it may be the sort of mistake that occasionally happens, even in the operations of the best managed firm, along the complicated route between the planting of a seed crop and, the following year, its gathering, cleaning, packeting, and selling. But the reason is much more likely to be that you bought and planted low-grade, unreliable seed, whether through ignorance, carelessness, or indifference. For, despite commendable efforts of the seed trade and various federal and state agencies, too much flower and vegetable seed which is mislabeled, misrepresented, inaccurately described or pictured, or otherwise substandard, is still sold. Until the sources of such seed are dried up and the product made unprofitable by the concerted efforts of trade leaders, government workers, and the public (which can do a lot by refusing to buy it), the gardener's best protection against disappointment is to buy only the best seed available from dealers who have made reputations, want to maintain them, and are scrupulous in their technical and business practices and as to the names, descriptions, and claims they apply to what they sell. In other words—those of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, which supplied the data for this article—“Seeds purchased from reputable sources usually produce crops closely matching the catalogue illustrations.”

In its annual Seed Report Bulletin for 1949, the Station said, with typical scientific restraint: “The purchase of good seed is almost always a good investment.” It then cited two stocks of Chinese cabbage tested that year: “One lot of seed produced coarse, variable plants only 10 per cent of which developed heads fairly suitable for table use. The other lot

If you arrange it in groups and play light upon it, Minerva glass looks like frozen lace in a story-book palace. An American pressed-glass pattern used in the 1870's to decorate everyday table accessories, its delicate air has inspired such collectors as Mrs. George J. Campbell of Sparrows Point, Md., to pursue it through antique shops and the pages of collectors' magazines until she assembled the pieces we show you here—and nearly 100 more.

Like many another fine collection, Mrs. Campbell's started with a single item, the large oval bread platter illustrated below. A gift from her mother, this piece shows the components of the pattern well. It gets its name, of course, from the central figure of the Roman goddess who was patron of the arts of war and the crafts of peacetime. She appears in several poses, all copied from drawings made by the Neo-Classical English artist, John Flaxman (1755-1826), who was celebrated for his sculpture, his illustrations of Homer and others, and his early designs for Wedgwood pottery. In adapting the Flaxman figure of Minerva, however, the American glass designers surrounded her with a decorative aura as characteristic of this pattern as Minerva herself. The scalloped borders of tiny, dewdrop-like beads, the frosty bands enlivened by grape arabesques or inscribed with amusing legends, added borders of dewdrops to imprison the light—all give a fragile, lacy quality to the glass which was made to be used as well as admired.

Delicate Air

This oval platter, a present from her mother, started Mrs. Campbell's collection of Minerva glass which now contains about 100 items. Some carry legends—this one is inscribed: "Give us this day our daily bread"

On serving dishes, you really see the goddess for whom this pattern is named. Based on drawings by the English artist, John Flaxman, these representations of Minerva are effective when large and stark, complemented by the fragile border. On the oval pickle dish is printed: "Love's Request is for Pickles"

In contrast to the serving dishes which Minerva dominates, pieces like the butter dish and covered, footed compotes show designers relegating the goddess to second place. They rejoiced in elaborating the scalloped borders and grape arabesques which give this glass its delicate air

MARY E. MONZE

Popular as a decoration for American pressed glass in the 1870's, this pattern is named for the goddess Minerva represented in a different pose on each of these pieces (two sugar bowls and a covered jam jar). Other elements of decoration are very similar on these examples

The Glass with the

This pattern gets much of its charm from secondary elements — festoons of dewdrop-like beads which imprison light, and frosty bands in which the medallions showing Minerva are set. They show up beautifully on an open compote and blend with the decoration of the silver stand holding the covered pickle jar

Minerva is especially good in groups. Set two cake plates together where the light strikes them, and you get a wonderful effect — like a clear musical note and its echo. The dewdrop shapes are repeated in clusters of grapes decorating the frosty center bands

Like most pressed-glass patterns, Minerva was applied to a variety of objects which appeared on Victorian tables — the spoon-holder, goblet, creamer, water pitcher. They were made to sell inexpensively, but because beauty knows no price tag, they happened to be handsome — that's why collectors cherish them today

Of course it looks well—a gay color scheme did that. But study this bright, young-people's kitchen in detail, imagine what a dream it would be to work here in air-conditioned comfort with your favorite music piped in, and you'll see how well youth can get itself served these days. This was no ready-made room. Its young owners, the Robert Conhaims of Dayton, Ohio, planned it during years of living in Army camps and makeshift apartments. Together with architect John Schott, they planned it so well that we're sure kitchen-wise oldsters will applaud its many practical ideas.

Just look at the layout. Instead of a tiny kitchen, a crowded dining alcove, and an off-by-itself laundry, they rolled the three spaces into one big airy room with a picture-window view of their orchard. Here Maryll Conhaim can cook conveniently, dine with dignity, and do her laundry at her leisure. But the space is so arranged that these activities don't conflict. Note how the refrigerator, sink, dishwasher, and range are arranged in an L, out of the way of the dining area; how that handsome, un-kitcheny eating spot is served by the cabinets of the peninsula which divides kitchen from the workable laundry.

But what fits into that plan is every bit as smart as the plan itself. Since they had to buy equipment anyhow—and for a home of their own—the Conhaims were wise enough to stint on neither quality nor size. They are a small family, but with a 11-cu.-ft. refrigerator and an electric range whose single oven can act like two, serving dinner guests is no problem. And with a dishwasher and garbage disposer to take on her work, Maryll doesn't regret the dinner invitations at cleaning-up time. The laundry is equally well equipped with its fully automatic washer and dryer, and its roll-out ironer which invites you to sit down. The floor is restful, resilient rubber tile; the counter tops nearly indestructible. And count those cabinets: 14 double ones on the walls, six on the floor—and no need for a bit of clutter, ever, in this laundry-kitchen where a happy family is so well served.

KITCHEN EATING IS KITCHEN DINING HERE: When family meals are served in the kitchen, you needn't make them second-class affairs. Redwood walls and well designed furniture make this area attractive as an honest-to-goodness dining room. Good music is piped in from the living-room's radio-phonograph, and there is a plug-in for the telephone

LOOKS CRISP, STAYS COOL: That goes for the kitchen and its owner. You can take time out for chats when up-to-the-second equipment (a great big refrigerator, a capacious range, a dishwasher, a garbage disposer, and oodles of cabinets) makes your work easy. There is air conditioning here, and an excellent ventilator system keeps your nose happy

THREE-IN-ONE-PLAN: Dining area and laundry were designed into the kitchen—they're no afterthoughts. Peninsula divides kitchen from laundry, serves dining area. Refrigerator, sink, dishwasher, range, are arranged in a workable L, as is the laundry equipment. Notice that there are 14 double wall cabinets and 6 double base cabinets in this small-family kitchen planned by far-sighted people

ANY DAY IS WASH DAY in a good home laundry. Since this one is part of the kitchen, Maryll can do odd laundry jobs with one eye on the pressure cooker. Here she's pretreating clothes. There's an extra sink next to the washer, too

IRONING TIME IS RESTING TIME: Flat pieces go like a whiz on ironer. Pressurized shoe gives superior finish. Soft fabrics, such as towels, come out of the dryer fluff dried, ready for storage. Cabinets next to ironer house supplies

With notched spreader, spread mastic for holding tiles in place. Use a broad scraper to dip mastic out of bucket and pile on spreader along notched edge. Hold spreader as near right angles to wall as possible. Start from floor and work up, using broad scraper to push mastic against wall

When using outside corner tile, apply this first and work away from corner. If your outside corner is not perfectly square and perpendicular, avoid using corner tiles as they will throw all lines off

Work from top down. Start at one end. Lay first row of tiles along horizontal line drawn on wall. Using plumb line, establish vertical line near corner. (Leave corners untiled for the moment.) Don't slide tiles into place. Nose corner of tile, then edge into mastic hard against adjoining tile. Snap flat into position. Press on corners for tight bond. Butt tiles in each succeeding row tightly

If you use a bull-nose cap (rounded finishing tile for top), corners must be cut in a miter box. To fit in corners, cap must be cut on 45° angle while standing vertical. For around medicine cabinet, etc., cut cap while laying flat. File edges smooth

"Grouting" between tiles beautifies and water-proofs joints. Grout is a thin mortar made with cement. Clean out mastic between tiles with a thin stick or putty knife. Apply grout to joints with fingers, press firmly to avoid air pockets beneath surface. Do only one or two tiles at a time. Remove excess with a damp sponge or soft cloth. Wipe diagonally across tiles

Run rubber eraser on a pencil down between tiles. This makes grouting clean and even. With a damp sponge, remove any excess eraser may work up to surface. Be very careful not to mar grout line

Tile it Yourself

You can, too! Just follow instructions carefully. Read them all the way through. Study each step before starting until you have a clear picture of what you must do for a satisfactory tiling job. Tiles come in many colors, so you can choose your favorite shade. Use this procedure for plastic and metal tiles. We recommend professional installation of ceramic tiles

Tile wainscot is usually about 5 ft. high. Top line is starting point and must be determined accurately. Using a level, draw perpendicular line up side of wall to desired height. To figure out where to put top line, set a pair of dividers at exact width of tile (next picture)

To determine rows of tile needed, measure up penciled line with dividers. Adjust top of tile line to avoid cutting small pieces of tile for use along baseboards, under windows, along top of tub. Avoid using tiles less than half width. When height of top line is decided, draw straight line that height all around room. Use a level

PROP THIS UP OVER YOUR WORK BENCH—IT'S ALL HERE

You'll have to cut tiles for corners. To mark tiles for cutting, place one tile squarely on top of last set tile near corner. Place another tile over this loose one, but move it out to butt against corner. Top tile acts as a straight-edge guide for marking cutting line on first loose tile placed over set tile. Use tile cutter, coping saw, or electric jig-saw to cut tile

Cut tile to fit around pipe and fixtures. Use a coping saw for plastic tile; a hack saw for metal tile. As fixtures and pipes usually have a chrome ring around them, accurate fitting is not essential

A big family can work here

While some of the family reads by the fire, two students might share that sturdy table, and Dad or Mother could work at the secretary. The room looks traditional, but clear modern thinking lies behind its décor as well as behind its architecture. It is cleanly tailored, not cluttered, and except on the just-so curtains, ruffles are scarce. Note how the color scheme flows into the hallway

This dining room is a full-time room

It was designed for a large family's meals, of course. But with its split-brick floor, its comfortable chairs and sofas, its eloquent fireplace, this is anything but a one-shot room. For young parties, it is a practical playroom, far from the sleeping quarters; its cozy country kitchen air makes it just right for a good cup of afternoon tea. It is the hub for outdoor entertaining as well, for the covered dining porch is on one flank, and the pantry which serves the patio and second porch, is on the other

A big family can relax here

Red predominates in the color scheme of this happy harbor of a living room, but it is a restful red because it is used glowingly, not shockingly. The red of the sofas is picked up in the print, echoed faintly in the tone of the paneled walls. In contrast, the den (cover) is dashing green. There are other fireplaces in the house, but these sofas keep a hearthside promise to a brood. Won't you draw up a chair?

A Big House (Begins on page 34)

Big House for Big Family Living

GERARD R. COLCORD, ARCHITECT

If you have big ideas about the Old Homestead you want your big brood to remember, take a long look at this one. It could harbor a Mama, a Papa, and as many as eight youngsters, and still brim with both privacy and laughter. It offers room for study and sunning and sitting by the fire. It invites hobbies and friends—three parties for three different age groups could take place here in simultaneous gaiety without embarrassing conflict.

Those three cross-ventilated bedrooms, each sizable and separate, are good for two parents and four children. But this big house is elastic: you could use the den as another bedroom (it's near a bath) and turn that maid's room into a private realm for a pair of husky boys, or into a secluded studio for a talented teen-ager. And notice, too, that there's no waiting in line for ablutions—in addition to the conventional bath, that three-section affair off the master bedroom behaves like two baths and a half when it's time for primping.

For relaxing, study, or big party-giving, there are three living rooms, each with its own fireplace: the main one, the den (pictured on the cover), and that masterpiece of a dining room whose sofas, chairs, and brick floor make it a perfect playroom for young merrymakers—you don't even have to roll up a rug to dance (see next page).

When you can be out of doors, three more "rooms" are added. There's the squarish covered porch, good for meals many months of the year. The long sheltered porch connecting house with garage and hobby room has its own serving pantry. And they both face the brick patio which is so sheltered that it's an ideal outdoor living room.

The lucky owners of this domain are Mr. and Mrs. M. Thorner of Los Angeles who planned it for themselves and their nearly grown sons. They think of it as a traditional house, and they've furnished it to carry out the spirit of architectural details straight from a New England farmhouse. But this good, and completely unconventional, plan is as contemporary as tomorrow morning. It expresses a way of life, not a style. Modern houses and ranch houses contributed the ideas behind it. You could enclose such a plan equally well in walls of Georgian brick, or in walls of glass and redwood, and furnish it accordingly. Either way, it would look as handsome as it does here.

BEFORE: In the kitchen, tall narrow windows typical of very old houses. The room was actually taller than it was long or wide. Modern range, refrigerator, and sink have been installed on wall opposite radiator

Lopped off a Century (Begins on page 29)

A gay treatment for beanpole windows

AFTER: Kitchen-dinette (above, right) is now pink and pretty as a strawberry pie. Skinny windows look smart with heart-shaped valances in upper half, plaid café curtains in lower part. Some of the former terrace furniture is used for indoor dining. Another trick to remember for old houses: too-tall look is greatly relieved by painting the ceiling a very dark color—in this case, deep purple. Inexpensive purple felt makes the cushions for chair backs and seats

A smart entrance foyer where none exists

A bedroom which plays several roles

As smart as any living room, the bedroom has a desk in one corner and a comfortable leather chair which invite it to act as a den. When there are large parties, it's formal enough to be a second living room. The good-looking sofa bed converts easily into a downy couch. Two windows, different in height and width, are smartly treated: instead of draperies, louvered shutters extend beyond and above windows, hide the uneven openings, let in light and air. The color scheme is new: rich tobacco brown combined with lots of black, bits of pumpkin and gray dweller did. Roberta Koll, who lives here, had known and admired this stately "old castle" in Glencoe, Ill., all her life. But she was never inside until its owners converted it into apartments. She was lucky enough to get one—and smart enough to see its possibilities.

Though these interiors have the air of a big-city apartment, Glencoe is actually a village on Chicago's North Shore. Ideas here could be adapted by anyone, anywhere. Not the kit and caboodle, of course, because they were designed by a pretty young professional interior decorator to suit her way of life (just as any sensible decorator would design rooms to fit your way of living).

For instance, if you like a bit of drama and have a big old-fashioned room with an alcove, bay, or adjoining sun porch, why not lay a loose brick floor over carpet padding and furnish it as you would a terrace? "Don't get giddy with me!" you say—but, as a matter of fact, many houses of this size and vintage used to have "conservatories." Bobbie Koll took the idea, mentally threw out the potted palms and wicker, and furnished her alcove as an attractive, up-to-date sunroom. Believe us, it looks plenty cool and inviting on a sweltering summer day. If you have tall stately windows with handsome moldings, why smother them in draperies? Bobbie installed window shades made of the same fabric that's pasted on the walls, and left window frames unadorned. A lot cheaper, incidentally, than draperies!

BEFORE: Six windows bring in lots of sunshine and air—with two forfeits: there is little wall space for furniture, and the cost of draperies and glass curtains for so many windows is high. Huge radiator and deep niche on opposite wall were further complications

AFTER: One room with the look of two provides a refreshing change of scene. Terrace furniture came from former house. Since there was no terrace here, an illusion of one was created by flooring bay with used brick, laid over layer of carpet pad and held in place by molding nailed to floor. Tiny electric fountain in zinc pan sprays same water over and over, aerates it for goldfish swimming therein

BEFORE: If you're apartment hunting, consider this tip: Old houses converted into apartments usually offer better value, space-wise, than new buildings which often have dinky rooms. That's because old rooms are difficult and expensive to partition. Rentals are about the same, sometimes less. No structural changes were made here your housing. You can start from scratch in a brand-new home. Or you can study a still-firm old one, recognize it for the bargain it is, then figure out how to make it look wonderful again and—more important—how to make it behave as well as a new house. If you do the latter, you've produced a success story. And you can work such a transformation on any sound but dated house, whether it's an aged mansion in need of some really major operations, or a small middle-aged horror to which new color, the removal of tasteless ornament, and the addition of modern equipment will give a new viewpoint.

And while you're at it, make a success story of the decoration by playing up your own house's innate charm, as this apartment-

A SUCCESS STORY

How can we call this handsome old sombersides "gay"? And why a "Success Story"? Well, turn the page for a peek at the bright new apartment coaxed out of a suite of its 100-year-old rooms, and you'll agree with the "gay" part. Then consider other houses of its period—houses filled with gloriously big rooms you could breathe new life into if the buildings were habitable—and you'll see why it's a success. Most such houses molder away, looking like the haunted houses in the comics. But not this one. That's why our hat is off to its owners who faced the fact that an out-of-date house needn't die. They made it live again by ripping off its gingerbread, leaving good, clean lines outside, and by transforming its interior into spacious modern apartments. One of them was rented to a young decorator who made a success within a success when she capitalized upon the old beauty by giving it a new slant (see the next four pages).

We've been showing a number of AMERICAN HOME "Success Stories" lately. Briefly, they all have one thing in common: they tell of the transformation of an old house whose owner refused either to pass it by or to wither away in its obsolescence. Because our technical improvements leap ahead, and our living habits change rapidly (who serves the enormous dinners or keeps the staff of servants the original owners of this home took for granted?) our houses don't just grow old—they become obsolete. There are two ways to keep up to date in

How We Work

If you thought a magazine like ours was edited in an office, weekdays from 9 to 5, news of our peripatetic proclivities in this column must have dispelled that notion! But don't think we're a martyrish bunch of Footsore Floras, either. Those extra-curricular activities (they're plain "curricular" to us) bring fun and gratification, too. For instance, the girl with the bouquet isn't Greta Glory of Hollywood. She is our own Gertrude Brassard, met in Dallas by Mrs. Joe Sanders, wife of our representative down there. Texans love Gertrude so much, they gave her a full welcome. She deserved it, too, for she worked all the next day (the Sabbath), and the next (Labor Day), and the one after (a regular working day) to cover the gift shows and pick new things for you to see in her department. And directly below, the smiling man on

To be ready for morning photography, they worked way into the night before. ## Polio Parents

A NEW INTEREST IN LIFE:

Polio Parents conducts occupational therapy courses to develop new skills. Carolyn Carty learned jewelry making in such a class, finds it profitable, and spiritually rewarding

HE'S FINANCIALLY REHABILITATED:

Though totally paralyzed, Fred Hoefel is once more the family wage earner. A special telephone operator's headset permits him to conduct a general maintenance service from his home to assist the polio victim himself to find a useful place in society.

Its members have been through the ordeal. They know the tragedy of polio, because their own youngsters or they themselves have had it. The group's founder, Mrs. Richard Bennett, has had the bottomless feeling—in spades. One month after her four-year-old Betsy came down with polio, her grown son, Jerry Chapin, 21 and just out of the Navy, was hit by the disease. Betsy's was a mild case—but Jerry had a long, uphill battle. Today, he's a fine example of rehabilitation and adjustment. Now a college freshman who gets around under his own steam on specially designed crutches given to him at Warm Springs, he is the proud and successful inventor of a new type of crutch, of a portable shower designed for polio patients, and of a power-driven wheel chair run by a lawn-mower's motor.

When the worst at her home was over, Mrs. Bennett organized the parents of other polio victims to aid each other and future unfortunates. "Our help comes from Heaven," she says. "We collect no dues, we raise no money." Whenever a patient needs material things, they somehow seem to be forthcoming through Polio Parents. Gifts of money, hospital beds, wheel chairs, crutches, and morale builders such as radios, typewriters, and the very important occupational therapy materials always seem to arrive at the right time.

After that initial telephone call to newly-distressed parents, the organization follows up its work with a transportation committee to drive patients to swimming pools for treatment, to special classes, to club gatherings. There is a sitter service which enables parents to take time out with the comfortable knowledge that their patient is in charge of an experienced person.

A living part of the club is the warm, spontaneous spirit of non-members who offer their services saying: "I've been spared. I want to help." One man supplies an apartment at the seashore each summer for three polios and a mother to care for them. Others turn over their houses and swimming pools: the club was actually born on the Swarthmore estate of a couple who lend their pool to the National Foundation for therapy classes.

In encouraging patients to lead a useful life, as normally as possible, the club realizes that the ability to earn money is vital to a feeling of independence. Classes in jewelry making, woodworking, ceramics, and sewing have already enabled many to earn money at home. Through special shorthand and typing classes, some patients have become proficient public stenog-
