Color brings an outmoded dining room up to date

THERE was nothing wrong with the furnishings in the room shown on the right. The room was practical and livable, but it suffered from one major fault—outdated decoration. The color treatment dated back to the time when people were afraid to use color. The lack of it made a drab background for the nicely styled furniture, and it didn't show up to its best advantage.

It's not difficult to see the character that has been added to the old room by combining colorful walls with a colorful floor of Armstrong's Linoleum. Because of their large areas, walls and floors are the most logical places to add the color every room needs.

In this room the color for the Armstrong Linoleum and the colors for the rest of the room were worked out together. Consequently, the linoleum acts as a harmonizing element to tie the whole scheme together. The dramatic white organdy curtains, the exciting pink accent of the upholstery, and the crisp inlaid design in the floor give the room the sparkle that it so badly needed before.

No matter what room in your home may be suffering from old-fashioned decoration, you can help bring it up to date with a modern color scheme. If you'd like help in your color planning, talk to your local Armstrong merchant. He'll show you a wide choice of color and designs in Armstrong's Linoleum that can be the basis of your color scheme.

You'll not only like the beauty and style of this handsome flooring, but you'll also appreciate its smooth seamless surface that makes cleaning so easy. You'll find that your home will be brighter and your housework lighter, with a floor of Armstrong's Linoleum.

Send for . . . "Go Ahead and Decorate," newest decorating book by the noted home stylist, Hazel Dell Brown. 32 pages of full-color illustrations offer stimulating ideas for every room in your house . . . whether it's new or old. Send 10¢ (40¢ outside U.S.A.) to Armstrong Cork Company, 5203 Pine St., Lancaster, Pa.

There are a lot of advantages in having a floor of Armstrong's Linoleum in a dining room. Its stylishness is obvious, and any design that can be drawn can be created in this wonderful material. Some of the unseen qualities are its underfoot comfort, its durability and its glistening surface that never needs costly refinishing. Above is Armstrong's Marbelle Linoleum, Style No. 032, inset with plain black and turquoise . . . just one of the many lovely color combinations possible. Send for free room plan today.

HOW I RETIRED IN 15 YEARS WITH $200 A MONTH

"Down here in Florida, boating, fishing, getting brown on the beach, and taking trips in my car, my old job in New York seems far away. Yet it was just about five years ago that I retired. And even the boss envied me. For I was retired at 55 with a life income of $200 a month.

"But I'd never be here if I hadn't lost my shirt in the crash of 1929. Just before that, everything was going up. I had a little money and put it in a 'sure thing.' It went up—then down. At forty I lost everything but my job.

"Well, I'd always pictured myself retiring before I was too old to enjoy life. Now, I had nothing to show for all those years. Suppose I could save again—could I hold on to it?

"One day, the man who lived next door to us in Bayside, John Hughes, told me he was planning to move South. He was retiring. I couldn't help saying how I envied him.

"But John said something that woke me up. There's an up-to-date way almost any man can use today. There's just one secret—starting in time. You can get a guaranteed income, with no investment headaches, when you're—for instance—55. It's a modern plan called the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan. With it, you simply make your salary now buy you a retirement income later!

"That night I dropped a card to Phoenix Mutual asking for details. As soon as I read the booklet they sent, I said here's just what I need.

"Soon after, I applied and qualified for a Phoenix Mutual Plan. It was a marvelous feeling to know I'd get $200 a month—guaranteed—every month, when I hit 55. Meanwhile, my family was protected with life insurance.

"You'd be surprised how quickly the years tick off. A while ago, I got my first Phoenix Mutual check and retired. Now my checks come every month to my Florida mailbox. I've security a rich man might envy."

After a hard day's work... stuck with the dishes again!

WHAT A WAY for the weary male to end the day! You've just finished a big dinner. That tired, drowsy feeling is coming over you. You'd love to relax with the pipe and the paper. But, no! Once again you're staring at that acre of dirty dishes, too many for your wife alone.

You dutifully shrug and say, "Well, dear, might as well get started."

You ought to talk to one of the men who's made his home a place of leisure after mealtimes for himself and his wife, with a General Electric Dishwasher.

No hand-rinsing! Dishes out of sight!
Pots and pans, too!

Just brush loose food off the plates. The dishwasher pre-rinses, then washes with famous "spray-rub" action that makes even sticky pots and pans come sparkling clean. Takes off all but soil that's been baked on! Finally, the washer doublerinses with clean hot water . . . fan dries the dishes to a sparkling glitter . . . and then shuts itself off.

Dishes Cleaner than "Hand-Washed"...

. . . because they're washed in water hotter than your hands can stand. Hot water stays hot thanks to G. E.'s famous Calrod® unit.

In the dishwasher, dishes and glasses are cushioned on soft plastic-coated trays that remain stationary. Only the water swishes around.

It's so convenient. The sturdy, dependable G-E Dishwasher glides out at a touch. Easy loading. No tiresome bending. No tiresome stooping, and plenty of counter space left. Your kitchen's always cleaner because the G-E Dishwasher holds (and hides) a complete service for eight, including ten glasses.

You'll save her as much as an hour a day!

A General Electric Dishwasher saves many wives at least an hour a day . . . sometimes more. And, as the man of the house, you can appreciate that here is an investment which will increase the value and saleability of your home.

Let a General Electric PRE-RINSING Dishwasher do the dishes for you. See your G-E dealer for a demonstration today. General Electric Company, Louisville 2, Kentucky.

... NANCY C. LANGLEY, who pursues houses for the benefit of readers—in this issue, the Elliot Lewis home, page 52—claims she is like the proverbial shoemaker's daughter. Due to a serious heart condition of her newspaper publisher husband they sold their home and for two years have been living in a beautiful trailer on the water front at Newport Beach, California, where she has been pursuing both health and houses.

... INEZ MacWHINNIE attributes her love for and appreciation of Americana to her mother who, while raising her brood of eight in Old Town, Maine, was scarcely ever without a hooked rug or crocheted bedspread in the making. "Collecting with Sense" (page 41) has been her hobby and she's been practicing it for the past 14 years. Her husband shares her avid interest in antiques and it's our guess that in time her three sons, Morgan, John, and "Chuck" will, too.

The Secret of FINE ROSES

Here's how it seems in wishful dreams...

You dreamed you heard the captain say,
"We're counting on you, come what may!"

You don't hold back to think or ponder,
You head right for the wild blue yonder!

You fix the charge and throw the switch,
The job is done without a hitch!

but here's what really happens

From dreams you wake up with a start—
Was what you heard your quaking heart?

You're rarely warned of fumes below
Until the spark sets off the blow.

Explosions happen every day
If one hits your home, who would pay?

Is your home protected against explosion?

North America's Service Offices, located throughout the United States and Canada, help Agents provide their customers with fast, efficient service, from moment policy is written to claim settlement.

Explosion, from within or outside the house, ranks high on the list of home hazards. Escaping gas, a defective water heater, or an explosion nearby, can cause costly damage to your home.

To make sure you're protected, ask an Agent of the North America Companies to examine your insurance. You'll find the North America Agent careful and dependable, conscientious in his profession. He'll present a plan of protection professionally shaped to your own needs and problems. His advice will cost you nothing extra, but it may save you hundreds of dollars.

Behind the North America Agent and his expert services is one of America's strongest and most progressive insurance groups. If you haven't met him, write us. We'll be happy to introduce you.

If you have an unusual risk, talk to your Agent about it. The North America Companies have a record for developing many "firsts" in protection that are in widespread use today.

Insurance Company of North America, founded 1792 in Independence Hall, is the oldest American stock fire and marine insurance company. It heads the North America Companies which meet the public demand for practically all types of Fire, Marine, Automobile, Accident, Aviation and Liability Insurance; Fidelity and Surety Bonds. Sold only through Agents or Brokers.

You Can Hook Rugs by Pearl McGown. (Pearl McGown) Price $6.00. . . If you never have hooked a rug before, this book will both inspire and encourage you to start. Beautifully illustrated with 106 photographs of specially designed rugs, some in full color. There are also several sketches to show you how to shade your colors. All in all, an invaluable aid to the veteran rugger as well as the "just started my first rug" school.

Parties on a Budget by Louise Price Bell. (Prentice-Hall, Inc.) Price $2.95. . . Everyone will welcome this book which deals with parties and keeps an eye on the budget at the same time. Suggestions are given for decorations, invitations, food, and new twists for bringing the party to a successful conclusion. The author covers a wide range of parties from those that are patriotic to the holiday variety, and shower and informal tea ideas are included. A complete section is devoted to parties for club or church groups.

How to Make Good Pictures (Eastman Kodak Co.) Price $1.00. . . The 29th, all-new edition of the famous picture-taking book. This manual makes learning to take good pictures a joy, without any of the complicated theory and technical discussion so often confusing to the amateur. It includes every facet of picture-taking, with pages of "good, better, best" photographs of the same scene to illustrate simple rules. There are sections on developing, printing, and enlarging at home, and suggestions for keeping your pictures and displaying them to best advantage.

Civil Defense Supplement to the American Red Cross First Aid Text Book. Price, from the A. R. C., 10 cents. . . A 55-page manual dealing with problems of a major disaster not covered in the standard text book and class work. Includes a 16-page pamphlet for Home Nurses and Volunteer Aids. Approved by Civil Defense Administrator Millard Caldwell.

Beginner's Guide to Attracting Birds by Leon A. Hausman. (Putnam's) Price $2.00. . . 127 pocket-size pages of practical directions for attracting, feeding, sheltering, protecting, and otherwise making birds welcome in your garden. With helpful

The luxurious tailored effects of triple pleats, double pleats, and smartly-trim box pleats are easy now, thanks to the magic of Kirsch Easypleat. This latest Kirsch accessory enables you to make beautiful, uniform, "professional-looking" pleats in any fabric — any width. Nothing could be easier, with the special Kirsch Easypleat heading tape, forming-hooks, and simple instructions.

BOX PLEATS

These most-tailored-looking of pleats, formerly a job for experts only, take shape like well-ordered magic with the help of Kirsch Easypleat. No special skill is required.

DOUBLE PLEATS

Double pinch pleats and triple pleats (as illustrated at the top of this column) can be made simply and easily, with just the right touch of "professional flair" with Kirsch Easypleat.

Kirsch Easypleat directions are easy-to-follow. A handy dimension chart even shows the width-after-pleating for all three types of pleats. Trust Kirsch to have developed the very handiest pleating system ever. Ask for Kirsch Easypleat by name!

"turns out she was right after all!"

"Jane kept harping about not having hot water enough for her new automatic washing machine. I said nonsense—we have a good water heater! But to keep peace I called our plumber.* 'Only ONE automatic water heater heats fast enough to run these modern appliances,' he said, 'and it's Gas. It's 3 times faster than any other all-automatic fuel.' He said also a Gas heater would be cheaper to buy, install and run. Must say I've got hotter water for shaving, too!"

*Mr. C. W. Powers,
Master Plumber
1705 West Lewis
St., San Diego, Cal.

Ask your plumber—he'll tell you there's nothing like Gas for automatic water heating.

And there's nothing like Gas for automatic cooking...refrigeration...house-heating...air-conditioning...clothes-drying...incineration

This is an A. O. Smith Permaglas automatic Gas water heater . . . one of several fine brands on the market today. Your Gas company, merchant plumber, or Gas appliance dealer will gladly advise you about the right size for your family.

Photographs by F. M. Demarest

STRICTLY PERSONAL is the girth of your waistline, but if you're proud of it, you should have this good-looking cowhide belt. Comes with 3 movable pieces of leather on the front, each stamped with a 24k gold initial. Wear them pushed together or separated. In suntan or bamboo leather, 24" to 30". Allow 2 weeks. $2.95 prepaid. Circle Studio, P. O. Box 189, Staten Island, New York.

HOUSEWIVES NEED some kind of thermometer to tell them when to water their house plants and when to leave them alone. Floregarde is just such an indicator that stripes pink when there is enough moisture, stripes blue as the soil dries. Just 1 1/2" high, it is barely seen above the soil. Get enough for all your plants. Seven, $1 ppd. Walter Drake, Drake Bldg., Colorado Springs, Colo.

Spencer goes in for Flowering Crabs

MARGARET POLLOCK

For years a few flowering crabapples sprinkled about through Spencer, Iowa, have burst into radiant pink bloom each May and delighted everyone with their delicate color and cheerful fragrance. Noting the hardiness and beauty of the trees, the Clay County Garden Club (with a membership covering Spencer and the surrounding rural area) early in 1950 suggested that the flowering crab be made the community tree and planted wherever circumstances warrant. By the close of the spring planting season in late April, more than 300 trees had been set out in that town of 7,400 people. Some went into the parking area along sidewalks, some into front yards, some into back-yard gardens where they could be seen from terraces, picnic areas, and the indoors, and still others (with the City Council's permission) along several of Spencer's streets, where the planting was done as a project by the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America.

The Park Board had trees planted in several of the local parks and the County Fair management used them to beautify the entrance to the 120-acre fair grounds; only those passing by will see them in bloom in the spring, but at Fair time, thickly studded with bright little apples, they will greet the 200,000-odd people who attend. When a courthouse employee died, his associates sent two trees to his widow to be planted at his home as a memorial. The local newspaper and radio station boosted the project by telling people where to find the most attractive trees when they were in bloom, thus stimulating interest in planting more. Meanwhile, the Garden Club stood ready to help with advice on choosing varieties, and locating, planting, pruning, and otherwise caring for the trees. Not only local dealers, but also nurseries throughout the area benefited by the demand for young trees which continued in 1951 as the Club pushed steadily toward its objective of two flowering crabapples per block on every street in town. Already, a few of the trees planted in 1950 have bloomed. The rest, now graceful and attractive as to foliage, will come into full flower in a few years. And how lovely Spencer will be then!

"My house is made of this, too!"

Only a few years ago, insulating sheathing was a brand-new idea. But it has certainly proved itself in a hurry. Nowadays, it's so commonly used that even the children are familiar with it.

There are good reasons why Armstrong's Temlok® Sheathing has become so popular. Temlok is made of interlocking wood fibers formed into these large, strong boards. When it is nailed to the framework of a house, it makes the entire structure strong and solid. Temlok also provides excellent insulation for year-round comfort. It cuts heat loss in winter; it keeps the house cooler in summer.

You'll never have to worry about dampness harming Temlok. Each pine fiber is thoroughly waterproofed with asphalt.

With all these advantages Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing usually costs less to use than ordinary sheathing lumber. The big boards go up faster, saving labor costs, and there is practically no waste of material. Your fuel savings can actually repay the cost of Temlok in a few winters.

Before you plan your new home, be sure to get full details on Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing. For details on this remarkable material, stop by your lumber yard or building supply store.

WRITE FOR FREE BOOKLET, "How to Build a More Comfortable New Home." It's packed with ideas about building materials and methods. Illustrated in color. Just write to Armstrong Cork Company, Building Materials Division, 5203 Vine Street, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

How We Work

We were honored recently when the Secretary of Agriculture summoned our E. L. D. Seymour to Washington, D.C., to act as sub-committee chairman at a meeting of the National Garden and Home Food Preservation Advisory Committee—quite a mouthful, but a good cause. Ned Seymour, as you know, is our esteemed horticultural editor, and we're glad to share him with our government in matters that concern you and the food you eat. Up top there in the usual order is the committee: D. S. Weaver; E. L. D. Seymour; Prof. B. S. Pickett; Dr. M. L. Wilson; Hon. Charles F. Brannon, Secy of Agriculture; Dr. H. B. Tukey; Dr. R. J. Haskell; Paul C. Stark. Ned flew back in time to edit final copy on his big story, "Tuberous Begonias," a fascinating subject which you'll find on page 28.

Arts and Crafts Editor Dorothy Trumm was snapped this month as she went over to Radio City to act as one of the judges in a Bristol Meyers handicrafts contest. BM's employees in branch offices all over the world were invited to submit samples of their handwork: woodworking, photography, painting, etc. Doty had an awful time singling out one item. Her favorite, which won first prize, was a lovely mahogany blanket chest with a lift top—which she wistfully said would look fine in her own bedroom! That's she with Joseph Allen, vice president of BM, and Robert Shaw, art director of Doherty, Clifford, and Shenfield.

The gent with the horn rims down at bottom is Executive Editor Jim Wiley who went out to Minneapolis to photograph the prize-winning Blueprint Home for this issue—you'll see it on pages 23 through 27. Jim took along our Land Camera, snapped dozens of shots to study photographic angles before professional photographers went to work. The Kleenex, Jim says, indicates a lousy cold—he finished up and took to bed for 36 hours before catching a stratocruiser. How we work—and how we rest!

Another beautiful home of West Coast Woods...

The classic lines of this lovely colonial style home are enhanced by the use of horizontal wood siding. These wide boards, with their interesting shadow lines, form a perfect background for the gracious entryway and the formal bay windows.

You'll find every style of architecture can be beautifully expressed with versatile West Coast Woods. The warmth and friendliness of wood, plus the sturdiness and dependability of frame construction, have made homes of wood America's favorite for generations.

Start planning that beautiful home of yours now... and let your retail lumber dealer help you with that planning. He is familiar with building conditions in your community, and will point out the advantages of building with time-tested West Coast Woods... ARCHITECT: WALLACE S. STEELE
BUILDER: JACK E. BORAN

Come on in and have a look at one of the most applauded houses of the year. Its honors have multiplied: First, its plans by young Minneapolis architect Wallace S. Steele won a $2,500 national prize plus a $750 regional award in the biggest architectural contest of its kind ever staged. Next, J. E. Boran, Minneapolis builder, backed the jury's verdict in a very practical way—he thought enough of the design to bet on it heavily, so he brought it to life by planning to build a whole development of homes just like the sample we illustrate above and on the next four pages. Finally, because the editors of AMERICAN HOME agree that this house is exceptional, we're telling you about it, and offering blueprints from which you can duplicate it yourself. (SEE BLUEPRINT ORDER FORM, PAGE 131.)

Because its planning is so advanced and so sound, we call this Forecast House. Its style is Comfortable Modern. If your family is medium-sized, and if your ideas are too big for most moderately priced houses, we think that you'll be as excited as we are about this one. Here are its merits in a nutshell: With its 1,080 square feet, it's about the size of the average two-bedroom house, yet it has managed to embrace three bedrooms plus an amazingly versatile dining-and-everything-else room, all in a compact, squarish rectangle—an economical shape to construct. It has well defined areas for children's outdoor play and adult's outdoor living, yet you could make it sit happily on the average small 60 x 100 suburban lot. Moreover, it was planned to accommodate itself to a variety of different orientations.

Solidly built, endowed with many refinements, and insulated against the extremes of Minnesota climate, the house we show sells for $20,000 (but unfurnished, of course). But in many parts of the country, especially if you use a concrete slab instead of a basement, you could adapt the plans to a house costing thousands of dollars less.

It is a house with a purpose much bigger than itself, for it was designed to bring the best architectural thinking within the reach of the vast majority of homebuyers—the millions of families who usually have to settle for so much less. Here is how it came to be: Some 85 per cent of our homes are put up by merchant builders who construct them on speculation and sell them already finished. Few such builders employ the services of architects. Meanwhile, the talents of our best home designers have been going almost exclusively into built-to-order luxury homes way beyond the pockets of most of us. To bring architect and builder together for their mutual benefit and the profit of the public in general, The Magazine of Building and the National Association of Home Builders staged a giant small-home competition. Prizes—a whole flock of them—were offered for houses with fresh ideas: houses good to look at which would be sound investments and economical to build; houses advanced in design and use of materials, but neither so starry-eyed that they'd be impractical or highly experimental, nor so “different” in appearance that they'd fail to sell easily. Of the staggering 2,727 house plans which competed,

How to grow them

You can start with tiny seed sown on top of loose, peaty soil, but it takes 3 months to get a small tuber. Quicker and better, buy top-quality tubers; count back 8 weeks from average date of last frost, and set tubers, dished side up, on peat moss bed.

In 3 to 5 weeks, when tubers have sprouted and leaves opened, lift tubers carefully, disturbing roots as little as possible, and plant each one half an inch deep in a 3- or 4-in. clay pot, or a waxed milk carton cut to about 4 inches high.

Tuberous Begonias

For an exotic and all-around useful flower to grow, look to the tuberous begonia! This I say without disloyalty to the popular perennials that are the mainstay of any garden, providing variety of color, foliage, height, and texture; like old friends, they are tranquilizing to the spirit. But tuberous begonias seem—at least in our Mid-western garden—like the guest who makes a dramatic entrance and manages to catch your eye even when you are exchanging confidences with a dear friend. So far from the equator and the flamboyant trees and flowers of their native tropics, their luxuriant growth is unbelievable; yet, with reasonable care, they have become thoroughly useful residents of Northern Illinois without losing any of their glamor.

Last October 5th, when our living room boasted two lovely arrangements, we sent at least a dozen blooms—two bowls full—to the hospital, and half a dozen to our son's teacher. How many plants have we that we get such generous returns? Only 24. But half that many will keep a family supplied with cut flowers, a daily corsage, and a bright spot in the garden from July 1 until frost. The cost? Well, our tubers are not of the rare, expensive kinds; half we bought locally, the rest from a large specialist in the West. And at an average price of a little over 20 cents each, they have been equally satisfactory as to quality and quantity of bloom. Although we always order tubers of the camellia type, we have received some of the carnation, rose, and single types. But the percentage not true to form and color is small; and, besides, the resulting variety is interesting. One of these months I hope to tell about some of the uses to which I put these fascinating flowers. But, for the present, I want to talk about proper potting soil is essential. It must be light, loose, absorbent of moisture, but well drained. Good formulae are: $\frac{2}{3}$ sandy loam, $\frac{1}{3}$ peat moss; each sandy loam, peat moss, rotted cow manure; each heavy soil, sharp sand, and leaf mold

In potting up tubers, cover hole in pot with bits of broken pot; add half an inch of gravel or other coarse drainage material; fill two thirds full with soil; set tuber in place, cover half inch deep, firm soil gently with thumbs while revolving pot

Before June, prepare soil in outdoor bed, mixing in humus, also a tablespoon of bone meal for each plant. When frost danger is past, set out plants from pots or milk cartons, 12 in. apart and about 2 in. deep. If ground is dry, water well, then apply mulch

Can you trace the ancestry of these gay chests? They were born illegation Unpainted with scalloped aprons and little round drawer pulls. The key to their present good manner is a sprightly adaptation of Chinese-flavored decorations by the 18th-century French artist, Jean Pillement. New, homemade bases have a Chinese accent, and 1-in. dowel sticks replace drawer pulls. (For latter operation, apply one dowel to each side of the chest, then cut between drawers to permit opening.) Decorations are our patterns 1419 and 1420, which make good company for a French bed whose headboard was built from our blueprint pattern 1218

Tall twin chests are companions to the low ones opposite, and, like them, started life as run-of-the-mill unpainted furniture made worthy of their Pillement decorations by new bases and 1-in. dowels replacing the drawer pulls. Our patterns 1422 and 1423 make the chests good alone or together as here. You can paint the "chinoiserie" pictures at your left from pattern 1421

The French Had a Word for It

The young woman whose bedroom we illustrate opposite is no Marie Antoinette, but she sure knew how to get cake when there was no bread—and with AMERICAN HOME Patterns, you can do the same. Our heroine is a bright American career gal who shot her budget on living-room furnishings, and then made the most of what was left by fitting out her bedroom with the most inexpensive of chests, bought unpainted, and then given the delectable fillip of decorations fit for a queen.

"Fit for a queen" is no figure of speech here. The granddaddy of the designs which gladden the furniture on this page and the next, is one Jean Pillement, 18th-century

French painter and muralist to royalty, an artist who lent a hand with Marie Antoinette's Petit Trianon and with the palace of the King of Poland, no less. The work which charmed such patrons has gone right on charming down the years, so we've taken some Pillement motifs and adapted them for you. There's a French name for the gleeful, graceful style they embody: chinoiserie, which means in the manner of the Chinese. Pillement didn't invent the style, but he was one of its most skilled practitioners. It was the rage of the 18th century, along with Chinese tea and the thin Chinese porcelain Europeans were just about discovering. A Chinese artist wouldn't recognize it, of course, because this particular brand of lighthearted prettiness is really French as all get-out. But the themes are Chinese, and the wonderful way in which a few strokes can be used to bring a large area to life is very Chinese indeed. In fact, making a little count for a lot was a major lesson Chinese art taught us—important to you, too, since it means you can have so much effect for so little effort. You've met up with chinoiserie before, of course, especially in some Chippendale furniture. Like most Europeans of his time, Chippendale embraced the Chinese manner—sometimes a bit too enthusiastically. The Chinese returned the compliment of all this attention: when every self-respecting garden in Europe had a pagoda summerhouse, little versions of Versailles sprang up in the Far East. If we should ever find a Chinese Pillement, we'll let you know.

Meanwhile, we can be grateful for the French one, since his decorations have infinite possibilities. You've just seen how we adapted them for inexpensive bedroom furniture, enlarging them and applying them broadly. But the aristocratic secretary-desk at your right is something else again—Pillement decorations about as Pillement would have used them, the Chinese details fitted into a French rococo outline with ravishing effect. We know, because we took this piece along to the American Home Economics convention and everyone loved it—including the men.

Patterns adapted from the work of

Marie Antoinette's court decorator are glad tidings for your tired furniture

Do you own a desk like the dullard on your right? Take heart, for this one was pretty hopeless, too, when we found it in a second-hand store and set about making something of it. You can see that we were successful. After scraping and treating it to a coat of off-white paint with gold accents, we garnished it with some extraordinarily handsome drawer pulls and served it up with a set of the handsomest of Pillement chinoiserie designs. Then we decided that we had to share them with you. Our patterns give full instructions for applying this French 18th-century enchantment to furniture. The door panels are 1373; the desk lid is 1374; and the delightful fripperies on the sides and dancing around the drawer pulls are 1375.

Not French with a Chinese accent, but pure Chinese are the paintings which grace the Four Seasons plates at your left. Petal for petal and twig for twig, we lifted the designs from a set of old (probably 18th century) Chinese plates symbolizing the seasons. For your infinite pleasure and edification, we turned them into painting patterns. Nobody knew more about the subtleties of design than the Chinese masters, and in copying their work stroke for stroke, you'll learn lessons in color and arrangement which will stand by you. Looks difficult? Not with our patterns which make it easy to reproduce these beauties. But it's a sit-down-at-leisure project—you can't turn out such gems with one hand and feed Junior with the other. Because these plates are heirloom stuff, we used lovely Limoges with a "modern" rimless coupe shape (the ancient Chinese knew it, too), but the designs would sparkle as brightly on inexpensive white pottery. Painted in oils which permit you to shade and accent in the delicate manner of the Chinese originals, these dishes are intended for your walls and display shelves, not for your dinner table.

Plum blossoms may mean spring to us, but to the Chinese they are the flower of winter, and long life. On the top plate they are used in an especially Chinese manner, filling the space gently, but not obviously. How sharp the tree trunk looks; how few strokes do it! Ancient Chinese used this kind of shorthand painting—delicate as handwriting, but it captured the exact look of the thing represented. Autumn's chrysanthemums decorate the second plate. In the Chinese language of symbols, they stand for fidelity, and wish you friends in the autumn of your life. They also mean joviality—and a life of ease and retirement from public office! The artist captured their sturdiness and their live grace. So can you. Together, winter and autumn motifs are pattern 1417.

Love and affection, richness and honor, feminine beauty; that's the peony, the flower of spring and subject of the third plate. How fully and richly the blooms are painted—a fitting prelude to the final plate bearing the lotus of Buddha, flower of summer, flower of purity and fruitfulness. The Chinese say that in a good painting the "idea is present even where the brush has not passed." You can see what they mean if you study the blank spaces in these four designs. They are unpainted, yet important in the composition, for Chinese artists consciously make use of such blanks. In the peony plate, for example, the design seems to hug the bottom, yet the composition isn't overweighted, for the larger white areas balance the smaller dark ones to make a design of great delicacy. The spring and summer patterns together are 1418.

In the designs which deck the plates, the flowers are filled with meaning. But the birds seem to be along mostly for the ride, and for the joy their presence gives us. Some pairings of flower and bird are suggested in Chinese poems, but no traditional symbolism is involved. The five-clawed dragon which fills the cover of the little box at the bottom of the page is another matter—he appeared only on pieces belonging to the Emperor. He's yours, however, to use as indicated on our pattern 1416.

1 In jonquil yellow as delicate as its design, or in any of 7 other colors, this tough, supported plastic looks—and feels—like matelasse. But the pattern is embossed. 54 in. wide, about $4.40

2 A fine ribbing which you hardly see adds texture to this tweedy plastic. A facsimile of the popular nubby woven fabrics, this unsupported material comes in 5 colors. 54 in. wide, $3.75

3 That bamboo pattern is so deeply embossed you'd think nature had produced it. Fabric-backed, it comes in 13 colors, 54 in. wide. Heavy weight, $7.35; medium weight, suitable also for wall covering, $6.30

4 It looks just like pin seal, and a minute graining is what does the trick. Backed by a fine cotton, this plastic is soft and flexible, easy to use. There are 27 colors. 50 in. wide, $3.30

5 Vinyl plastic threads were woven into narrow, solid-color stripes (shown here actual size) to make this striking material with a satin sheen. There are four color combinations. 62 in. wide, $4.25

6 An alligator mightn't recognize all 10 colors it comes in, but he would know this deeply textured, cotton-backed plastic is tough as his own hide, though far more pliable. 54 in., $6.00

7 This one's a print, a fresh-as-spring plaid on a plastic (unsupported) whose dull finish welcomes the design. Four color combinations, each with metallic accent. 54 in., $3.95

8 Because the design is non-directional, it is economical to fit. The deeply stamped pattern looks like a brocatelle weave, but it's unsupported vinyl plastic. 4 colors. 54 in., $2.50

9 Familiar? Its prototype is a traditional luxurious woven fabric, but deep embossing processes bring it to you in unsupported plastic at $2.50 a yard. 9 colors, 54 in. wide

10 Like the new cottons and linens, plastics are printed with geometrical designs. Here the unsupported plastic was given a texture before printing. 6 color combinations. 54 in., $3.95

11 Color vies with texture for interest in this realistic kissin' cousin to straw cloth. The hardy plastic is deeply embossed and fabric backed. Comes in 13 colors. 54 in., $6.30

12 This plastic, which looks like leather, has an elasticized backing—latest development for ease in cutting and fitting. It minimizes stretching, sagging. 27 colors. 50 in., $6.00

13 Embossing gives this medium-weight supported plastic the graining of real leather. Antique finish adds interest to the range of 9 colors. 54 in. wide, approximately $4.45 a yard

14 Ombre stripe of woven vinyl plastic comes in 6 combinations of colors, has subdued textural quality. 62 in. wide, $4.25

News in Plastic Upholstery

It's no news that plastic upholstery materials welcome tough wear and respond to soap and water cleaning. We've been saying so for years. Now we're shouting about them all over again because they have blossomed out with beauty to match their talents—witness these 14 examples. New vinyl plastics have been made to look and feel more like the long-familiar woven fabrics. Their designs range from modern geometrics to traditional brocatelles, their colors fit today's palettes, their textures range from the sleek to the heavily embossed. Regardless of design, they fall into three general types: (1) Unsupported films, which are all-plastic sheets. (2) Supported films, which are fabric-backed. (3) Materials woven from plastic threads. They need little special handling, and the few tricks necessary for cutting and fitting them have all long since been worked out. The ones we show were carefully scaled by their designers to make the job of upholstering with them an easy one.

Points on Padding a Budget

JANET McHENDRIE

This is a furnished apartment. At least, that's what the ad said. But it's what came after the Before you see on the opposite page that makes the story interesting. It cost less than $500 to make the changes you see in the After pictures, but the difference in style in the new room seems to amount to much more than that. The layout is a typical "efficiency" unit—one room, a tiny kitchen, bath, and a large closet euphemistically dubbed "dressing room." The walls were tan, the carpet taupe, the furniture a collection of items of a type called "borax" or "dogs" by furniture men—the term is just as derogatory as it sounds and perhaps the kindest translation is "no traceable ancestry."

Outside of the obvious need to make the room more attractive, the biggest problem facing the tenant was to utilize the three seating pieces (sofa and two upholstered chairs) and yet make them look completely different, and to do it with little cash outlay. As usual in this common case, a combination of wit, work, and canny shopping was the answer.

To transform the sofa, the three seat cushions were stitched together to make one. Then lines were squared off and the ugly machine-carved wood trim was padded by cotton batting and muslin stitched into place. Two chairs received the same treatment. A sale at a fabric counter fetched a six-yard length of blue-and-green plaid—enough to slip-cover one chair. A dress-goods counter yielded sturdy green gabardine to slip-cover the sofa and blue gabardine for the second chair. Both, $1.50 per yard.

Other padded points that look better than their cost: Only one wall was painted dark blue, yet it seems to give the room another dimension. Unjoined lengths of monk's cloth with roughly basted hems (saved labor charges) drape the window and the wall holding the Murphy bed, slide on traverse tracks. Cotton string rugs, laid over the worn carpet, feel thicker than they are. The dining table was homemade of plywood, painted, flanked by inexpensive yacht chairs. Two little secondhand tables are covered with silver foil, serve as coffee tables or (with pads) as extra seating. Storage chests flanking the sofa cost more than other pieces, but their purchase was made possible by the other savings.

Less than $500 made this

Before and After difference!

The expensive look of the room at top right belies its actual cost. Old sofa had its lines changed with cotton batting and muslin stitched into place, was slip-covered in dress-goods gabardine at $1.50 a yard. Two chairs on wall opposite sofa received same treatment. Combined with taste, inexpensive materials (monk's cloth, deck chairs, string rugs, secondhands) produced style here. Radio was from owner Bill Kipka's former apartment

What else could those doors hide (top) but a Murphy bed! Inexpensive monk's cloth draperies now conceal the telltale doors, suggest a window—at least the skeleton in the closet is a mystery. Two chests flanking slip-covered sofa contain English tray-type drawers, hold owner Bill Kipka's full complement of shirts, underwear, socks, accessories

ROBERT M. ROSS

Each awning needs 2 triangular side frames of 1 x 1 lumber. True corners with square. Awning height should be little more than half height of window. Use yardstick to measure angles for cutting long slanted end braces

Cut long slanted brace to fit top of triangular frame. Then place this brace in position as shown. Square in corner keeps angle true. Mark cutting line on end of long brace. See photograph

PROP THIS UP OVER YOUR WORK BENCH—IT'S ALL HERE

Front of awning has double row of slats, one under the other. Decide how many slats you need for outside row, how much space to leave between them. Make spacer of wood, and use it to space slats evenly. Nail slats with thin wire or with small gimp upholstery nails

After top row of slats is in place, turn frame over and nail on under row of slats. These should be nailed directly beneath spaces between slats on top row. This will permit leaving top windows open in rain

How to Make Awnings from

For strength, reinforce back corners of frame with strips of tin or sheet metal. With tin shears, cut strips $\frac{1}{2}$ in. wide by $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. long

Fold the tin or sheet-metal strip around the back corner of frame, as shown. Fasten with long nail driven clear through metal strip and wood to other side. Hammer end of nail flat

Fasten two triangular frames at top and bottom with strips of 1 x 2 lumber. Add center braces in middle of each triangle and across center front of awning frame

There is only a single row of slats on sides of awning, so nail them closely together. Cut slat tops to follow angle

To form a header and add to the appearance of the finished awning, use the long face board which hid the "works" of the Venetian blind. Cut it to fit awning, and nail it in place

A vacuum spray will do a speedy paint job, and a good one, for the paint will reach small angles hard to paint with a brush. If you use a brush instead, paint slats and frame before assembling. Retouch nails

enetician Blinds

A wooden awning like this would cost about $75 if you went out to buy it. But if you're the owner of some old Venetian blinds, make your own awning for the price of a few sticks of lumber and some paint. When it's finished, simply screw it onto window frame

Built for $60!

JANE McKENRY

Reading "A Million Dollars Worth of Fun for $15.00" in the July AMERICAN HOME, I was thrilled. "Why," said I, "isn't more attention given to what we women can do when our female determination goes to work?" With that in mind, I just had to tell you how I built a 5 x 9 ft. fish and lily pond for $60, entirely by myself, despite the skeptical grins of family and friends. The work started with a hole 10 ft. long, 6 ft. wide, and 3 ft. deep. (Depth is important if you plan to leave fish in the pond over winter.) That dug, I bought a load of brick ("seconds") for $33 a thousand; a level ($2.49); a bricklayer's trowel (49¢), and a garden cart ($7.95). The rest of the $60 went for sand and cement as needed.

Mixing the cement in the cart, I poured it into the hole on top of a layer of broken stone and brick to a depth of about 4 in. A few days later I laid the walls (one brick thick), filled in behind them with broken and useless brick, and over this poured a very wet cement-sand mixture up to ground level. I laid the top course of bricks on edge crosswise to form a rim above the ground, and used the rest to build a pedestal for a plant urn. As the onlookers' grins began to disappear, I proudly painted the inside of the pond with blue pool paint to both waterproof it and give it a professional look. Finishing in August, I planted hardy waterlilies right away to give them a good start. The picture shows how my work blossomed into a thing of beauty the following summer. In the plant box at the right (4 in. below the surface) I put a cattail, pickerelrush, velvet leaf and water-poppy; in the other (2 in. below), I put a papyrus, green taro, lobelia, and dwarf sweet flag. Around the pool are marigolds, zinnias, phlox, roses, pansies, coleus, and other easy-to-grow old favorites that provide color and cut flowers.

The pool has no drain and when I want to empty it I siphon the water out with a hose into the basement drain. To take care of any overflow after heavy rains, I inserted pieces of 3/4-in. pipe just below the brick rim so the water can flow out onto the grass.

So ends the tale of the "big ditch," which isn't such a joke among my friends any more. Who said that women are the weaker sex?

Collecting with Sense, Not Dollars

Meet the M. J. MacWhinnies. Physically, you won't see a one of them in these views of the remarkably pretty, and remarkably sensible house they live in in Freeport, L.I.—yet each picture is filled with their personalities and reflects the happy life a home like this one can harbor. But the family may not be just what you'd expect. For instance, Mrs. MacWhinnie isn't a little old lady who has been collecting antiques since Hector was a pup, and Mr. MacW. doesn't have to ease himself gently into his venerable

Chippendale chair for fear it will break. Milton MacWhinnie wouldn't put up with such nonsense—nor would he be bothered by Inez of the dark tresses and bright eyes. From the grandfather's clock to the Victorian china on the dinner table, the furnishings in this house were bought to be used, and are used. They are the kind of American provincial things which were made to give service. Aside from some prized porcelain and glass, there are few touch-me-nots here, for everything is sturdy enough to be not only husband-proof, but boyproof as well—Chuck, aged 5, John, aged 6, and 16-year-old Morgan love their home just because they don't have to tiptoe through it. That's the charm of this house—its owners don't treat it like a museum. They love and respect antiques but they don't revere them. If Inez has a chair or table or bibelot which looks better in a given spot than the one she has, she'll make a swap without tears—she's not afraid of furnishing with antiques, not just collecting them, and she wants the best furniture she can have. Oldness for its own sake doesn't matter. She can come up with an idea a second for decorating with and around antiques, and each room in her house gets a good switching around at least annually. There's no gobbledygook, either, about authentic details. An old hand-woven linen bed sheet, the side of somebody's Grandma, made dining-room curtains which are fresh, warm in tone, and amazingly opulent lined up with hairpin lace salvaged from a Victorian pillow sham. What if the original owners of these materials didn't know them—or a lot of other things used so inventively here? If a chair is more comfortable with a cushion, it gets one. After all, you live with the 18th century without period room"? Not on your life—nothing so stuffy. From the hutch table to the tiny chair, its furnishings are used—but they have been assembled to be used, not just to be admired, by a lively modern family. Notice how a fine painting brings everything else into focus and how perfectly at home the grandfather's clock, with its sophisticated bonnet top, seems to be with countrified furniture here

Antiques are not prohibitive luxuries if you buy the useful kind and learn to rescue

beauties which have been ill-used by time

Here's how to welcome antiques into your family circle.

Three lively boys live here and there's been no catastrophe yet!

Did you ever see a more graceful wing chair? It's good for sitting in, too. The slender object next to it is an old European lace maker, the delight of its owner who loves it as she'd love a bit of sculpture. When you're furnishing with antiques, you don't have to use draperies of the period. See how handsomely at home a modern window treatment is in this room

Almost everything on the fireplace wall could stand alone as a symbol of "home." From the Boston rocker to the Staffordshire cows on the mantel, you wouldn't want to change a thing. Yet, because this is a growing collection, its family may see an entirely different setting next week. They know the spirit remains the same, and any change is always for the better

Ancient pegged desk from Vermont seems to glow with satisfaction at its surroundings. It was in terrible condition when the MacWhinnies bought it, but years of collecting taught them wonders a restorer can work—and they learned to do some of it themselves

Dining table, bought in ruins for $20, is spectacular example of astute buying and restoring. Top had to be reversed to be usable, and old cherry rolling pin furnished lumber to piece it. Chicken-coop Windsor chairs, almost modern in line, hail from Newport, R.I., home of aristocratic American furniture before it ever became the home of aristocratic Americans trying to live in it. The main point is that everything in this house blends together in happy good fellowship.

But because Inez started her collecting fifteen years ago when her husband and his salary were both very young, Maison MacWhinnie (not just an alliteration—Inez comes of French stock) does more than offer an object lesson in how to live with antiques: it can teach us how to acquire antiques in the first place without investing a king's ransom in them. The secret? Well, for one thing, though you'll find things here which the fanciest big-city dealers would be proud to display, Inez didn't start by buying the rarest of pieces with the finest of finishes in the best of condition. She loves and collects country furniture—the best kind to have if there are youngsters around—and buys it from country sources. Then, too, the first chests and tables and chairs in this collection were bought as necessary furniture, not as show pieces, luxurious extras. And because of the wise way Inez did her buying, the furniture was acquired at bargain prices.

That solid cherry dining-room table, for instance—mellow as it is now, all mortised together with nary a peg nor a nail, it would be tagged high in a deep-carpeted antiques gallery. It cost Inez $20 plus a tidy sum for refinishing, but less, at that, than an ordinary sturdy dining table might have cost. When she found it, it had been sitting in a Long Island barnyard for years—and looked it. It was in such bad condition that its top had to be reversed before it could be used. But Inez knew enough, when she spotted it, to recognize its wonderful wood and construction, to see the beauties, and the strength, of its fine T stretcher—and to grab it knowing that she'd invest several times its original cost in bringing it to life.

Then, there was that pine Welsh dresser in the dining room. It took both knowledge and imagination to see its possibilities behind broken doors and under six coats of paint—but Inez knows good proportions when she sees them. She also knew how handsome solid pine could look brought down to its natural color—so she bought the thing, paid $20 for it plus a restoration charge, and ended up with a very fine antique. When you've been at it as long as Inez, you learn how to do some of the simpler restoring yourself.

Of course, not all of her treasures were orphans of the storm, and

Idea for windows in beach house or development house with high windows: Hinged wooden panels are set on track at top of frame, fold back like shutters to admit full light, can be arranged to combat glare and let in just a little light. Paint them a bright color and they take the place of curtains. Equip them with series bolts, and they're practically burglar-proof. The Richard Emisons' residence

Mrs. George Ross, a professional decorator, made this unusual bracket lamp from an old copper pudding mold, placed it at end of sofa on a swivel arm. It is fitted with a brass top plate, brass finials. Paper shade is wrapped neatly inside and out with wool yarn

"Why didn't I think of that?"

Barbecuers, ahoy! Here's an idea for an inexhaustible supply of paper tablecloths. Wooden box on patio storage wall holds big roll of ordinary brown wrapping paper. Old saw blades on edge of box tear paper neatly. Pull off as much as you want, use it, burn it with trash

A busy lazy-Susan arrangement for nuts, bolts, and screws. Wooden frame holds a vertical length of hoe-handle to which are fixed round wooden disks. Mason jar tops are screwed to under side of disks. Jars, which hold supplies, screw into their own tops. Give it a whirl and the whole works is easy to see and reach Bright idea fools many, costs pennies. Your cabinets needn't go without handsome Colonial black iron hinges because they're hand-wrought and expensive. Make 'em yourself out of cheap pressed wood—trace the pattern on the board, jig-saw it neatly, drill the holes, paint it flat black, screw it into place—and admire!

Upright piano doesn't seem to fit in your new modern room? This one's neatly concealed by a handsome blond case that looks like built-in storage. Four satiny birch doors unfold on strong piano hinges when the music mood strikes, and you'll be all ready to play. A. Quincy Jones, A.I.A., architect

There's more storage than meets the eye lurking in space beneath your seldom-used attic stairs. Gwendoline Spang sends this idea: Build in drawers, a whole flock of them, beneath the treads. A fine place to tuck away winter things with a few moth balls around for protection

R. L. Conhaim made this simple but good-looking bookshelf to hang over his bed. A pair of fluorescent tubes hide behind the apron, give good reading light. Fine idea to copy and hang over your child's desk

Mrs. Brady calls her sofa "Big Mo" after the battleship—there's eleven feet of it. Three-fold screen in corner was painted by Mrs. Brady's mother, as was picture hanging over fireplace (see cover). These windows face east; others opposite the sofa face south, flooding the room with sunshine

Designed for a Busy Street

Unorthodox planning of storage wall and service wing insulate this house against traffic noise of busy thoroughfare

The house that turns its back to the road to face garden or view is as much a part of our time as the front porch was a symbol of another era. Seldom is a plan so neatly devised as this one, however, to combat the night-and-day noise of a heavily trafficked road and yet confine itself within the limits of a narrow lot. The shape of the plan is less common than the problem, as a careful study of the drawing on the opposite page will show.

Architect Igor Polevitsky has sensibly ranged a double-walled stack of bathrooms and storage closets along the front façade of the house as an insulating barrier against sound. To further this purpose, the service wing projects streetward from the house, terminating in an open car port. Protecting the car port, and cutting off direct view of the entrance door, is a louvered baffle of poured concrete.

Main rooms of the house—two bedrooms and a huge living-dining room—face the rear and a view over an adjoining golf course. Exposure is primarily east and south to catch prevailing winds and winter sunshine, with few windows on the north and west elevations—orientation fits the locale, which is Florida.

Exterior walls are of brick and concrete. The living room with its simple fireplace (see cover) is paneled with vertical boards of bleached cypress washed with white paint. The owners, General and Mrs. Francis M. Brady, have furnished the house with pieces from Rome, Paris, Panama, and the United States.

Short and Sweet

Abbreviated window dress

is the latest home fashion—

here are some pretty variations

Your windows are the eyes of your home—make them sparkle, and the whole house is bright; make them beguiling, and they give individuality to every room. Let them tell a new story. Here is a nosegay of ideas which prove that the ubiquitous ruffled tie-backs or the usual glass curtains flanked by draperies, though often excellent, aren't the only solutions. Your windows can be friendly and still original, rich without being rubber-stamp. What's more, the crisp and imaginative window treatments here are both inexpensive and easy to copy. Remember that your windows' dressing improves your outlook in more ways than one: if it frames a good view, it must still afford you some privacy; if it hides a bad view, it must still let in some light. It must modulate the daylight, sometimes filtering it, sometimes letting it in full strength. It must be attractive not only from the inside, but from the outside as well—not only a thing in itself, but part of your room, and it must reflect the room's whole character.

1 Shuttered windows are even more romantic with a veil of embroidered eyelet-batiste half-curtains. Get the effect from one deeply flounced curtain, or from two tiers of simply gathered fabric hung on rods in line with mullions

2 An excellent way to keep your windows light, yet dress them to match your room: Simple draw-curtains in a light solid color are banded in print used elsewhere in the room. The valance is a gathered flounce of the print, deep and full

3 This bewitchery, exceptionally pretty itself, gives privacy without cutting off a good view. Wood half-shutters have chintz panels. White cotton curtains are hung by self loops bound in yellow. They keep fabric in neat, even folds

4 Troubled by a narrow window smack against a wall? Then dare to drape it on one side only—it can be handsome. This floral chintz has plain ribbon bands which are themselves accented by a binding of plain chintz. Lampshade makes nice balance

5 Double tiers for a small dormer are white sateen with ball fringe. Just make two pairs of curtains. Hems are applied to fronts of curtains, ball fringe sewn in hem. Corners are neatly mitered. Stenciled design on wall is from old coverlet

6 Another way to use shutters and half-curtains. Shutters were cut down from full-sized ones, enameled white. Half-curtains are white cotton with three rows of ball fringe at hem. Casing fits rod closely so plain, inch-deep heading stands up

Your own house plants may furnish all the blooms you'll need for this arrangement. Put them in a pin holder around which you've bent a 6-in.-square sheet of plumber's lead. This will hold all the water they need

Driftwood is so decorative and imaginative in itself that it can make a very few flowers go a very long way. Select a piece with rhythmic shape and a flat base which will rest solidly in a low bowl. Be sure to wax it well

For color, use African-violets, begonias, and grape ivy. Don't be afraid to cut them from your house plants, for such pruning is beneficial—it keeps plants from becoming "leggy" and it stimulates new shoots

A walk in the country produces materials you can force for this: apple blossoms, fern, fiddleheads, dried, spore-bearing fern leaves, skunk-cabbage leaves. Use blue-green pottery container of spiral or asymmetrical design

To force blossoms, mash lower 2 or 3 inches of fresh-cut stems with hammer, then put in deep water in a warm room. Force ferns and skunk cabbage by covering plants with basket or keg. Cutting a few fronds isn't harmful to plant

Establish high point by placing curved apple branch in pin holder. Next place fiddleheads, wrapping skunk cabbage around stems as shown at left. Use fern fronds of varying lengths, but point them all in the same direction

How to do it

BETTY B. MERRIAM, Flower Arrangements

Big Effects with

Start with tall stems of begonias and grape ivy, then add cluster of African-violets at base. For filling in, use leaves of the latter with their beautiful texture. Follow line of driftwood for motion and continuity

You can make your arrangement flow gracefully from the upper left to lower right by adding apple blossoms—this time shorter stems. To give the whole thing accent, fill in empty spaces with dried, spore-bearing fern leaves

Woods are full of fern, fiddleheads, and skunk cabbage.

Use them, and driftwood, to extend scarce flowers

Fewer Flowers

Yes, that's the "before" picture above!

This house, built about 1912, was tastelessly remodeled in the 1920's when it acquired the ill-conceived modernistic look shown above. Opposite, see its 1951 reincarnation (after a second remodeling). It was given the timeless good looks of an English cottage by ripping off the gimcracks, facing the front with brick, adding a new roof and some simple but excellent landscaping

A SUCCESS STORY

House is 1 Year Old !

It looks so happily rooted on its hillside that it's hard to believe the house above hasn't basked there for years in that sunshine, just as it is. But actually, though its foundations are forty, its face is only one year old. Here's the story, a remodeling Right and Wrong as well as a Before and After: This house was built about 1912, then brought "up to date" during the 1920's by the tasteless masking of its façade with that modernistic gingerbread you see on the opposite page. That was Wrong. Now skip a few decades. Last year, radio actor Elliot Lewis bought it for the sake of its sound structure and spacious interior, and, with help from architect Gerard Colcord, endowed it with its new and engaging personality. They were Right. They ripped off that heavy band around the top which was supposed to make the house look modern (but didn't), then repaired the scars with a brick front, and added the gently pitched roof to achieve serene and timeless architectural design.

Dollar for dollar, it paid the Lewises to buy and alter this roomy house inside as well as out—a new one with the same amenities would have cost them much more. That new floor plan is perfect for a couple with very full lives. There's room for entertaining, plenty of it: formally in the large living room and dining room, informally in the tavern which flourishes in full view of the rear garden where the small den used to be. Since actor Lewis needs a den, too, they arranged for a large one on the site of the old patio—it was mostly walled in, so no important structural to-do was needed for roofing it over. Perhaps best of all is that master bedroom suite which follows a formula deserving high priority in your file of dream-house ideas: the big double bedroom provides for each of its owners the singular blessing of a private dressing room and bath.

A vintage illustration of a white ceramic teapot and three matching cups and saucers, all decorated with a delicate floral pattern of blue and purple flowers and green leaves. The teapot is large and bulbous with a long spout and a handle. The cups are small and round, each with a matching saucer. The entire set is arranged on a light-colored surface.

A detailed photograph of a formal dinner table setting. The table is dark wood, covered with blue placemats. Each place setting includes a white plate with a blue floral design, a silver fork and spoon, and a glass of water. In the center, there are two silver serving dishes, a small glass jar of green relish, and a small glass of water. The background shows more of the table and a blue napkin.

The place mats, which catch the color of the crystals and send it winking through reflections in silver and crystal, are Belgian linen with a basketweave border—about 75¢ each.

MODERN END: Good equipment in compact U with view from sink. Refrigerator opens at right for accessibility to counter. Cupboards have roll-up fronts instead of doors—good idea in a narrow space

Modern Kitchen— Country Air

Data from Lois Rea

Here's the built-to-order headquarters of a woman who loves the view from her home and sees no reason to waste it during her working hours. So when it came to the kitchen of their new house, Mrs. Willis Broadhead of St. Louis Co., Mo., specified a long, narrow room divided into working and social halves, paneled with pickled pine, floored with rubber tile which resembles brick, and open to the view by a series of large windows. In addition to an excellent arrangement of up-to-the-second equipment which includes a thermostatically controlled ventilating fan over the stove, it has to its credit: toe space under the counters, a pair of lazy Susans in corner cabinets, a tray file, slide-out bottle holders, slide-out pot rack, acoustical ceiling.

COUNTRY END: Wood paneling, wealth of windows, comfortable chairs, sawbuck table make this a perfect place for a visit as well as for meals. Rubber-tile floor is cut and laid to look like old-time brick

What fun—what good corn eating!

What country sweetness! Each handsome ear of DEL MONTE Corn is bred for higher natural sugar content—with all the hearty, rich-as-butter flavor you love in farm-fresh corn.

What special tenderness! Those golden DEL MONTE Corn kernels all but melt in your mouth, the skins are so tissue-thin. This corn is grown on purpose for easy eating, extra enjoyment in each summery spoonful.

What dependable value! You know that DEL MONTE never fails you in quality or flavor on any food. So if it's more honest-to-goodness pleasure you want for your money, try DEL MONTE Brand Corn.

CORN-BURGER STACKS

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1½ lbs. hamburger | 4 tbsps. finely cut parsley |
| ½ cup dry bread crumbs | ½ tsp. celery salt |
| ¼ cup milk | ¼ tsp. salt |
| 2 12-oz. cans DEL MONTE Golden Whole Kernel Corn | ¼ tsp. poultry seasoning |
| 6 tbsps. finely chopped onion | Green onions and DEL MONTE Catsup if desired |

Make 12 thin patties of the meat. Let bread crumbs stand in milk; then add ½ cup of the corn and the remaining ingredients; mix well. Sprinkle patties with salt and pepper; put together with the stuffing mixture, in pairs. Place in shallow pan; bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 15 min. or till done to taste. Serve with the rest of the corn, heated and seasoned. Garnish with DEL MONTE Catsup and onions as shown, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

The Dinner Bell

A broiler split in quarters and baked in our own very special sauce—a rich, red tomato sauce compounded of sugar and spice and everything nice. . . . here is a queen of dishes for you, but one which is as easy on the budget and as easy in the making as it is easy on the tongue and eye. And it's a symbol of one advantage the dear new days have over the dear old ones: you can have main courses like this at "just family" meals because the mass production of chicken has brought its price right in line with once-lowly fare. And you don't have to eat your fill of it in the spring and yearn for it the rest of the year the way you used to, because chicken is now in plentiful supply the whole year around.

The Little Red Chick we're crowing about here is easy in the doing because you can combine its sauce in five minutes flat, then ladle it over the chicken quarters before baking it at 350° F. Two hours later, you'll find the goodness of the chick blended with that hot and handsome sauce, all ready to serve up four husky appetites. And you can repeat it soon!

Those potatoes were designed to go with the chick both in looks and in taste. Instead of just plain mashed spuds, we fashioned them into nests after adding a whole egg to give them fluffiness. Then under the broiler until lightly browned. Nesting in the nests is a filling of chopped buttered celery and pimiento, a compliment and a complement to our chicken.

Now for the salad which seems so right with this dinner: grapefruit sections offer a refreshing tartness, while avocado slices contribute a subtle mellowness. Between the slices, tuck an occasional crisp onion ring, and if the red variety isn't available, a white onion will do just as well. For a superb dressing, copy a French model by substituting fresh lemon juice for vinegar in your favorite French dressing recipe—you'll borrow this idea for use with any fruit salad.

And now for those crusty skyscraper popovers! If you would like to add to your reputation as a cook with a list of specialties which never fail, here is one your public is sure to approve. Popovers are usually tricky—but not these. They're foolproof, and to make them more so, we give you some how-to's on page 62. And to make them taste still better, we added the flavor of onion to them. A tip from our AMERICAN HOME kitchen to yours: as soon as popovers come from the oven, prick their tops with a fork to let the steam escape. This operation is our secret for preventing the soggy which so often blights popovers.

Lemon Feather-Lite seemed to be the best name for a beautifully light cake which is angel food with golden yolks added. It has that angel touch, and it's decked out in a sweet but tart whipped-cream glaze. After a sample, we know that you will ring the dinner bell out loud for this one, too!

Imagination— an essential ingredient

As Americans, we probably have no set tradition in our pattern of cooking—for, after all, we are a real “melting pot” of all nations, and what is more natural than our food assuming this same blending of ideas? We may pride ourselves on the ability to cook “as well as Mother”—typical New England fashion, or deep South in trend—however, food ideas do change through the years for one reason or another. G.I.'s who served overseas found French or Italian cooking, for example, suited their palates, and, tucked in a corner of their overseas bag, came a special recipe. Or perhaps foreign travels have alerted some of us to the real goodness of foreign cooking—and all to the good! For just plain American food has tended to be bland, seasoned toward no particular flavor—and don't forget the old saying that “food without seasoning is like talk without reasoning.” We admit there is glamour in the very thought of herbs and spices, but we're willing to bet there's a lot more glamour in food with a pungent, herby, well-seasoned flavor!

One word best describes the use of herbs and spices in cooking: “Subtlety”! Over-seasoning as well as under-seasoning should be guarded against. The dish should be such that people say “What have you put in to give this delicious flavor?” rather than “Um, you've got oregano in this, haven't you?” How delicious an ordinary recipe can become when the seasoning is alluringly mysterious and not the least bit obvious! When using more than one herb at a time, blend them carefully so that only one flavor predominates. And, very important, be sure to remember that the delicate aroma and flavor of savory herbs is lost after long cooking—the herb touch should come toward the end of the cooking period.

Herbs are a weapon-in-hand for the homemaker who's struggling with the high cost of meat on a budget—for the flavor of thriftier meat can be improved tremendously with the addition of only one, or a proper blending of herbs.

A tip to enhance the flavor of pork chops or pork steak is to add a generous sprinkling of sage to the pork while steaming. A sprinkling of thyme during braising also does wonders to make fresh ham even more savory—

try rubbing powdered sage into the ham before cooking!

Thrifty and quick cooking—creamed dried beef flavored with a little powdered sage—or a pinch of thyme added to corned beef hash will really bring questions from a hungry crowd. Even hamburger takes on added glory for the addition of a dash of oregano. Or try fixing chipped meat as an herbal meat loaf! For about 1½ pounds of meat, add a ½ teaspoon both of marjoram and savory.

When chicken's on the "good buy" list, add a new taste-turn to the plain roast fowl by basting with melted herb butter—made by adding ¼ tsp.
dried tarragon to ⅓ cup melted butter—or (only please, one at a time!)
½ tsp. oregano, ½ tsp. sweet basil, ¼ tsp. powdered thyme, or ½ tsp.
powdered marjoram.

Spices, too, can do much to improve the flavor of thriftier cuts of meat—and even the spices we associate most generally with pastry cooking add a marvelous touch to certain meat flavors. When cooking a pot roast, just before flouring, sprinkle the roast with ¼ tsp. ground cloves, pepper, and celery salt. Or if it's whole cloves you'd rather use, just add six (plus a crushed bay leaf, naturally!) to a cooking pot roast.

Hamburger that's seasoned with onion salt becomes better tasting with a dash of powdered allspice—and the same dash added to the flour used for dredging roasts is very good.
About three or four whole allspice berries added to the water used for boiling fish adds worlds of flavor improvement! Chili powder, so typical of dishes of the Southwest, should be reserved not for hot, steaming chili alone! A wonderful addition to most stuffings, and perfect for bringing out the flavor of the meat and vegetables in the plainest of stews—just try half a teaspoon.

Where herb and spice cookery are concerned, our imagination runs on and on—and, really, imagination in cooking is the ingredient most necessary in experimenting with new taste treats which herbs and spices can bring to everyday cooking!

 Remember lemons when*

Your home freezer turns leftovers into good plan-overs. Make a pair of meat pies from those bits of roast. Then eat one, freeze one. Or freeze scraps until you're ready to use them. Wrap in freezer material, seal, label, freeze

Is your home freezer stocked only with uncooked foods? Then, my lady, for all your ownership of its mechanical marvels, you're an old-fashioned girl. Of course a freezer pays for itself by letting you buy foods in season and eat 'em when they're dearer, by encouraging you to purchase in quantity, to do a week's marketing at a clip. But it also lets you do a lot of cooking at a clip and thereby leave yourself with several kitchen-free afternoons a week. In the few short years since the home freezer has come into wide use, the American woman has found that you can freeze a surprising number of cooked foods, some of them for a long period. When you're making stews or soups or fine-flavored sauces, it takes little additional effort to make twice, or even four times the quantity to stock your freezer. Baked goods freeze well, too—breads, and cakes, and pies. Of course, keep a whole party dinner frozen, from a special soup to an ice-cream pie, and you'll never be flustered by unexpected guests. But your freezer is good for more than emergencies. Count on it in your regular good household management program: plan, as a regular thing, to cook the week end's meals at the beginning of the week, to prepare next month's dinner while you're working on tonight's.

EDITH RAMSAY

Keep a Frozen Inventory

Your large oven means more when you use it in conjunction with a freezer. For example, make four meat loaves at once and stow three away for delicious quick dinners a week or a month hence. Plan your program so that you cook intensively some days, are free of it others

Make several ice-cream pies while you're at it—one for tonight, several for the freezer to gobble up, for freezing crisps the crumb crusts. Line pyrex or metal-rimmed paper plates with cookie crumbs, fill them with your family's pet ice cream, and then garnish and freeze. Let the company come!

Cooked liquid foods will keep deliciously fresh in plastic containers, wax-lined paper cartons, or glass jars. They are easy to handle. Fill them, snap on tight-fitting lid, freeze

You have a choice of freezer wraps—aluminum foil, cellophane, pliofilm, or special moisture-vaporproof paper are all good. Fold wrapping close to food, double-fold ends, seal with tape

Want a good, but quick, dessert—for some day next month? It can taste as if it had been cooked that very day, for cakes and other baked goods may be frozen after baking as well as before

Meat patties (cooked or uncooked) won't stick together if you wrap them like this before freezing. Between layers of patties or chops place a double thickness of freezer-wrapping material—this lets you separate them easily when the time comes

SURE IT'S SMART, THESE DAYS, TO OWN YOUR OWN FOOD FREEZER!

BUT, IT'S SMARTER,
THESE DAYS, TO BE SURE
YOUR FOOD FREEZER
IS BUILT RIGHT!

Knowing which food freezer to buy is as easy as ① - ② - ③

How wonderful it is, to enjoy the garden-fresh goodness of out-of-season fruits and vegetables! To have a constant supply of wonderful frozen foods at your fingertips. To save lots of food money by buying in quantities at sale prices—all because you have a food freezer!

But be sure to get the right food freezer! It's as easy as 1-2-3!

- ① Look for rugged construction. Frigidaire Food Freezers are strong and sturdy, built to last. Can't buckle or warp even when loaded with hundreds of pounds of food. The lid seal is always good and tight. Moisture-laden air can't leak into the cabinet to cause frosting and icing. Complete wrap-around freezing coils put and keep cold where it's needed most. It's the only freezer with coils on all four sides and bottom for complete freezing protection!

- ② Look for efficient insulation. Three things are important. The amount of insulation, the way it is packed, the way it is sealed. Frigidaire insulation is thick and efficient. And years of experience have taught Frigidaire engineers the way to pack and seal insulation against outside and inside moisture. As a result, it can't water-log, can't expand . . . keeps all the cold inside.

- ③ Look for cold-making power. The Frigidaire Meter-Miser, simplest refrigerating mechanism ever built, provides more reserve power than you'll ever need. And only Frigidaire has it! . . . See the Frigidaire Food Freezers, and inspect all their advantages, at your Frigidaire Dealers now!

You've Asked About Them

Home Freezers—Our answers to questions most frequently asked on their use and care

NEED SPECIAL WIRING? No. Plug it into a direct outlet (no extension cords) in any place convenient to you. Do put it on a circuit of its own.

HOW COLD INSIDE? Run a new freezer for 24 hours at near-zero temperatures before putting in food to be frozen. About 4 lbs. of food per cubic foot may be frozen every 24 hours. Fluctuation of temperatures causes unsatisfactory results, so keep a thermometer in the freezer and never let the temperature go above 10° F.

IF POWER FAILS? Keep the door to the freezer closed! Power is seldom off long enough to cause damage to frozen foods, for it takes many hours to thaw foods in a well-insulated freezer. A well-stocked freezer will keep most foods frozen for several days, for the fuller the freezer, the longer foods will stay frozen. If service is interrupted for longer than a 24-hour period, add dry ice (usually obtainable from ice cream or frozen food stores) or take your frozen foods to a locker plant. Notify your local power company that you are a freezer owner. Many companies have priority lists for freezer owners, and should power fail, these circuits are repaired first.

WARNED OF POWER FAILURE? Most new freezers are equipped with either a light or alarm signal to warn you that all is not well. Heed these signals, and look for them daily!

DEFROSTING? The freezer should be defrosted when the accumulation of frost on the interior of the cabinet interferes with closing the lid, removing storage baskets, or efficient use. It usually consists of scraping frost from the sides with a special wooden or plastic scraper. Some manufacturers, however, recommend that the current be cut off and the freezer defrosted in a way similar to defrosting a refrigerator, so be sure to read your instructions!

NEED CLEANING? By all means! Clean the interior with baking soda and water after each defrosting. If it has a rubber gasket, keep it free of oil and grease, for these are natural enemies of rubber. To keep it looking shiny as new, wash exterior with a damp soapy cloth and protect with high-quality wax.

DOES MACHINERY NEED CARE? This depends upon the freezer you own. Those using the finned-type condenser need periodic cleaning.

Tune in Pet Milk's Fibber McGee and Molly Show, NBC Network every Tuesday night

MOLLY'S RECIPE for OLIVE 'N TUNA Super Supper

1 (4-oz.) pkg. noodles (2 cups)	1/4 tsp. dry mustard
1 (12-oz.) pkg. frozen asparagus	1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
3/4 cup ripe olives	1 cup Pet Evaporated Milk
2 tbsps. butter or margarine	1 cup grated American cheese
2 tbsps. flour	1 (approx. 7-oz.) can tuna
1 tsp. salt

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Cook asparagus according to directions on package. Drain and reserve cooking liquid. Dice stems and leave tips whole. Cut olives from pits into large pieces. Melt butter and blend in flour, salt, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Stir in milk. Add enough water to asparagus cooking liquid to make 1 cup and stir into sauce. Cook and stir until thickened. Remove from heat. Blend in cheese. Combine lightly with drained noodles, asparagus stems, olives and tuna in shallow 8-inch round baking dish. Arrange asparagus tips on top, pressing lightly into sauce. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Serves 6.

Fix tuna Molly's enticing new way...and you end up with a wonderful dinner-in-one-dish

1 cup milk
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tbs. melted butter or margarine
3 eggs, well beaten
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. onion salt
1/4 cup grated onion

Brush 6 baking cups well with cooking oil. Combine milk, salt, butter or margarine, and eggs. Add flour and onion salt. Beat until smooth. Add onion and blend. Fill oiled baking cups 3/4 full. Bake at 400° F. for 50 minutes.

1 cup sifted cake flour
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cups egg whites
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cream of tartar
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tbs. grated lemon rind
4 egg yolks

Sift flour and 1/2 cup sugar together 3 times. Sprinkle egg whites with salt and cream of tartar. Beat until frothy. Add 1 cup sugar gradually, beating constantly until stiff. Add vanilla. Fold in flour-sugar mixture gradually and thoroughly. Fold in lemon rind. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Fold into batter. Pour into an ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Eggs Aplenty

• versatile baked eggs

Breakfast, lunch or supper, baked eggs are an ideal menu choice. Especially handy for breakfast—for while they bake, there's enough time to set the table, pour the juice, and make the toast and coffee. For luncheon, pour 2 tbs. tomato juice over each egg, then sprinkle with chopped parsley. Pop into a 350° F. oven for 15-20 minutes. If you prefer a fancier touch, we suggest chopped ham and grated cheese over the top, too.

• celery scrambled eggs

When scrambled eggs are the order of the day, why not try some new tricks? Here is one of our specialties: To serve four, combine 6 slightly beaten eggs, ¼ cup milk, 1 tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper. Pour into a lightly greased skillet, cook over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture begins to thicken, then add ½ cup cream of celery soup. Turn heat off (the secret of moist scrambled eggs) and continue stirring until done.

• 1-2-3 baked custards

Only a twist of the wrist brings delicious baked custards to the table. To serve six, combine 4 slightly beaten eggs, ⅓ cup sugar and ¼ tsp. salt. Slowly add 1 quart milk which has been scalded. (A word to the wise: remember never, never allow milk to boil!) Add ½ tsp. vanilla and pour into eight greased baking cups. Bake at 325° F. for 20-25 minutes. To test for doneness, slip a spatula into the center. If the spatula comes out clean, custards are ready to leave the oven. For honey custard, use ½ cup honey in place of sugar.

• eggnog surprises

A snack that's good at any time—that's the eggnog. For a super treat, separate the egg. Add desired amount of sugar to yolk, and beat the yolk until thick and lemon colored, then add one cup milk. Fold in the egg white which has been beaten until stiff. For variety in flavors, try adding ¼ cup orange juice, pineapple juice or grapefruit juice for each serving. Two tablespoons of molasses or chocolate syrup is a change you are sure to like. Frozen fruits in egg-nogs add color and a flavor that's hard to beat. Top egg-nogs with a sprinkle of nutmeg or cinnamon.

Serving buffet? Here's your chance to contribute to table-setting tradition, for since this easy form of entertaining has become so popular even for small parties that the buffet is nothing like it used to be. New traditions are in the making, so improvise to your heart's content until you develop an arrangement best for your table in your room.

Keep two things in mind: first, traffic control must be good, which means that you should arrange plates, silver, napkins, and food in such a way that each guest can help himself conveniently to each dish—and walk away with the proper implements. Second, use your wits to make the setting a treat for the eyes.

For convenience, decide, to begin with, whether circulation will be best in your room if the table is against the wall surrounded by plenty of space on three sides, or away from the wall where the table's whole perimeter may be used. Then let your menu determine the details. You may make one unit of plates (never more than 12 to a stack), napkins, and flatware. Or you may put silver and plates near the food for which they'll be used, grouping cups and saucers with the teaspoons, the coffee urn, the sugar and creamer; dessert plates with dessert and the silver used for eating it. At a dinner, it's usually better to serve dessert and coffee after the main course has been cleared away. When the crowd is large and the table small, and everything comes on at once, try to have side tables for coffee and sweets. Avoid foods which need knives, and skip the salad fork if your main course is eaten with a fork.

Use your imagination, and plan the table for color interest. Your table may be uncovered, or covered with anything you like from paper mats to the finest of linen cloths. But be-cause so much goes on at a buffet table, a solid-color cloth or a hand-table, some bare table top is usually best, especially if your china is patterned. You can pile the napkins, place them between the stacks of plates, or arrange them attractively at any easily accessible spot on your table.

Whether it is a colorful mound of vegetables or a formal flower arrangement, make your centerpiece as gay, and as handsome, and as much a conversation piece as possible. Build it as high as you like and place it where it won't block traffic around the table. Your best candlesticks, your chafing dishes, all your favorite table bedeckments are at home on buffets so long as they do a job, go well with other appointments, and don't interfere with the main business at hand: the serving of food.

here's how to "roll back" your own food costs!

Speed-cook every day, EASILY AND DELICIOUSLY IN A MIRRO-MATIC PRESSURE PAN

No need to wait for help in "rolling back" food costs to fit your budget! You can do it for yourself, by following one simple rule. Just make sure that the first utensil on your range at mealtimes every day, is a MIRRO-MATIC Pressure Pan!

Heartening hot lunches, so satisfying to hungry, young appetites, take only minutes of your time and pennies from your pocketbook, if you plan them with MIRRO-MATIC in mind. And MIRRO-MATIC really rings the dinner bell, quickly cooking economical cuts of meat to tasty tenderness... helping vegetables to keep a bigger share of their natural, appetizing color, garden-fresh flavor, and mineral and vitamin values... topping off the meal with inexpensive quickly prepared desserts.

Every single day, MIRRO-MATIC can save money, save time, and save fuel for you, actually letting you serve your family better, for less... as anyone who already owns a MIRRO-MATIC Pressure Pan will tell you.

Cooking Without Looking WITH THE CONTROL YOU CAN HEAR

The exclusive MIRRO-MATIC Selective Pressure Control automatically prevents pressure from going higher than your recipe requires... 5, 10, or 15 lbs. Because you can hear it, you can be doing other things while MIRRO-MATIC cooks your meals and saves your money!

Photography is our number 4 national hobby, but few amateurs are lucky enough to have display areas for pet prints—never enough wall space. This screen not only organizes the clutter of an assortment of photographs, but turns them to decorative advantage. It can be a permanent fixture or be folded away for easy storage. It is equipped with metal shelf track (kind used for mounting bookshelves) so your prints can slide in and out for frequent changing. The prints we show are all mounted on 12 by 15-inch boards, but you can plan your screen for any size. For the panels, use $\frac{3}{4}$ -in. plywood boards; for frame, $\frac{3}{4}$ by 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. lumber.

Make frame. Cut corner joint on 45° angle. Before nailing plywood panels to frame, apply a little glue. Use small nails. Countersink

Install two hinges between each two panels. Note $\frac{1}{2}$ -in. overhang which permits screen to be closed with metal shelf track in place

Attach shelf track to panels with $\frac{3}{8}$ -in. screws. Your mounting board size will determine number of tracks and space between. For 12 by 15-in. boards, leave 15 in. between tracks, with $3\frac{1}{2}$ -in. border at top and 5 in. at bottom of screen

Give Your Home The Matchless Beauty Of Famous Williamsburg Colors...

● One of the delights of visiting restored Williamsburg is seeing the beautiful colors used by our ancestors. These same hues are available today in Pittsburgh reproductions for modern homes. For example, you can have lovely Rose-Tan which decorates this enchanting bridal suite in the Chiswell-Bucktrout House. This and many other beautiful shades are represented among Pittsburgh Historic Wall Paints, priced well within the range of ordinary finishes.

As Practical As They Are Lovely, These Authentic Period Colors Are Available Exclusively In Pittsburgh Historic Paints, Approved By Williamsburg Restoration, Incorporated

NOW YOU CAN ENJOY the glorious hues that contributed so much to gracious living in the cavalier homes of early Virginia. These distinguished colors, steeped in centuries of tradition, are reproduced exclusively by Pittsburgh in a series of Historic Paints which bear the hallmark of Williamsburg Restoration, Incorporated.

● Just as careful research paved the way to the faithful restoration of the once proud capital of the Royal Colony of Virginia, so painstaking work by Pittsburgh's color experts and technicians has made possible the authentic reproduction of these colors for practical use in modern home decoration.

● The charming rooms shown here are from restored Williamsburg. They suggest the pleasing, decorative effects you can obtain by applying the principles of COLOR DYNAMICS in the use of Williamsburg colors.

● This remarkable Pittsburgh painting system makes use of the energy in color to help you harmonize these lovely hues to the best advantage in every room of your home.

● The distinctive results you obtain are made all the more enduring by the live-paint protection that is a time-tested advantage of all Pittsburgh Paints. Enriched with special "Vitolized Oils" which remain in the paint film, these high-quality paints provide a smoother, richer finish that keeps its fresh, new beauty longer than ordinary paints.

● See your nearest Pittsburgh dealer and have him explain how much more enduring satisfaction you enjoy when you paint right with COLOR DYNAMICS and paint best with Pittsburgh Paints.

● Walls and fireplace of Colonial Blue give this lovely dining room of the King's Arms Tavern a pleasing atmosphere of hospitality and good cheer. This is but one of many colonial colors authentically reproduced in Pittsburgh Historic Paints.

BEFORE: Definitely a problem! Ordinary paint can't hide those cracks. Patching would be an endless job. And a complete replastering job costs a mint of money. But there is an easy answer . . . DRAMEX! It resurfaces as it colors!

EASY, INEXPENSIVE WAY TO MAKE

Cracked Plaster Walls Look Like New

WITH ONE COAT OF A NEW PRODUCT—DRAMEX

AFTER: Look now! . . . after one coat of Seafoam Green Dramex Interior Finish, not a crack remains. Walls are unbroken . . . plaster-hard . . . beautifully colored! Cost for whole room . . . about $6.00. And Dramex is easy to apply.

With Dramex, you literally "brush on" new wall surfaces. It's thick but light . . . spreads on as easily as soft butter!

Cross-section of cracked wall shows how heavy-bodied Dramex fills cracks solidly. Ordinary paint isn't made to do this!

No "paint" odor—and far less mess—with Dramex. It doesn't drip or run like ordinary paint. Pleasant to use.

Dramex dries in about 4 hours . . . becomes plaster-hard. Make your walls beautiful . . . with Dramex Interior Finish!

Where to buy DRAMEX

Dramex is available at better paint dealers. For name of nearest dealer PHONE WESTERN UNION AND ASK FOR "OPERATOR 25" . . . or write: The Reardon Company, St. Louis 14, Missouri. In Canada, write: The Reardon Co., Ltd., Montreal 1.

Except in the shallowest of closets, there's extra space on the back of the door.

This chrome-finished fixture, 20 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. wide, 17 in. high, 5 in. deep, has 6 brim-fitting rests to hold hats securely in place and keep them in good shape. Rod below is curved outward for easy use in hanging scarves, belts, ties. Attaches to door with 4 small screws. Approximately \$3.50

There's just so much floor space in a closet—and here's a way to conserve it. A shoe valet of chrome-plated tubular steel, 24 in. high, 24 in. long, and 6 in. wide, holds 12 pairs of shoes. Specially shaped supports hold the daintiest pumps or sturdiest brogans. End pieces are formed for easy handling. About $5.00

Shirts on view—and that's where a busy man wants them for easy selection. Six clear plastic pockets are sized to hold a shirt in unmussed freshness. Flap drops down to protect them from dust.

Smaller pocket holds such oddments as cuff links, tie clasps, collar stays. 20 x 24 in., $2.00

To catch soiled shirts and socks as they come off, try attaching a laundry hamper to the back of the closet door. Of quilted plastic, this U-shaped bag is held rigid by supporting rod in pocket at top. Eyelet device makes hanging and removal easy. 24 in. high; 17 in. wide; top, 5 in. deep; in green, blue, and rose, $1.50

Wallace Steele's came in third, in addition to winning First Prize for the Midwest region. And those prizes really counted, for they were awarded by a jury which included not only top architects but down-to-earth builders as well. Actually, the house we illustrate is an improvement over the prize design: the only faults the jurors found with the original drawings were in details of exterior design and the garage location, shortcomings which architect Steele corrected before this house was blueprinted and built. Take a close look at the practical plan (page 24). It's all good, but the thing which really sets it above most houses of its size is the section which includes the front entry, the kitchen, and that thousand-and-one purpose area we've marked "dining." Especially the latter area. In most houses of this size, a dining room, a real one, is an unknown blessing. There's usually "dining area" in the living room, but it's apt to be more a builder's designation than an actual fact, so the family eats its meals in the kitchen's dining nook." Not the family who lives here! This dining area can join up with the living room or remain completely aloof from it, but it's a whole dining room, and you could set up a large table in it without going near the living room proper. It's an informal dining room for the family, but it can get as formal as you like. In addition, the open counter which connects it with the kitchen (see illustration on page 27) is a snack bar. This space becomes the handy dining nook as well.

But feeding the family is only one of the functions of this area. To see how it works with the house, imagine what a boon a layout like this would be to a sociable young mother.

See what happens, for instance, when your committee comes to tea. No need for a flurry at four—your living room has been serene since morning, because nobody had to so much as walk through it, thanks to that hard-working dining area which is also the main traffic way of the house. It was here that you served your offspring their lunch and after-school snacks, here that you did your sewing, wrote those letters, and perhaps pressed your dress. This area has its own door to the outside, and since that door is the one nearest the play yard and garage, it's the main family door—the little foyer off the front door stays spruce and ready for visitors

So your guests will come in through the main entry (in too many small houses, this is part of the living room, not set off as it is here). They'll hang their coats in the generous closet, then settle down in that living room which seems more spacious than it really is. The goings-on won't be interrupted, because a big-house principle has been incorporated here: this is a dead-end room—the dining area assumes the heavy traffic.

Your young Jack and Jill won't disturb you. They have plenty of space of their own in the great big playroom. Who ever heard of a big playroom in a small three-bedroom house? Well, thanks to an accordion-like folding partition, the youngsters' two bedrooms become a single large one by day, and two distinct units by night. With double-decker beds, these quarters designed for two, could house four children.

As the tots reach the age when study is as important as play, the house adjusts to their needs—and yours. Put a wall where the folding partition was, and the nursery becomes two real bedrooms, each with wall space for furniture to supplement big closets with built-in shelves and shoe racks.

As the family grows up, the uses of that dining area will grow, too. The useful snack bar is just right as a work table, a hobby table, or a fine place for games on rainy afternoons. And how grateful you'll be for that dining area when the small fry troop in with their friends after school! They can be "entertained" here with milk and cookies, but they'll be out of your kitchen, out of your living room, and close to the play yard which was designed for them.

When party-time comes, the dining area suddenly remembers that it is part of the living room. Used together, the two are big enough to welcome a teen-age gang. Then you may all be happier if they use the rumpus room in the basement—next to the laundry, space was allowed for just such hospitality headquarters: a rumpus room with its own fireplace.

That kitchen (page 27) is something to hanker for, too—not only for the sake of its very new equipment, but because of its location in the house as well. You're really in command of the whole place from here.

you can be a part of whatever activity is going on in the dining area, and you can even see out into the play yard; you can tell who's at either door, and you're just a short step from the living room.

Your master bedroom? Don't miss its cross ventilation, its views of the play yard and the rear garden. Note its nearness to the bath, its two large closets, and the fact that a double battery of closets separates it from the main area of the house.

Scaled to fit the house, the living room is a small-house room which has learned a whole bag of tricks from the custom-built living rooms of big modern houses. Here a whole wall of south-facing windows is protected by a broad solar overhang so it will bring in the sun's warmth in winter and shut out its heat in summer. If you have a view, this window can greet it. The fireplace is given an important treatment, for the entire wall is designed around it, a wall sheathed in wood and set off by a long hearth.

This is a woody house whose warm materials lend softness and richness to its economically simple lines. The exterior redwood siding, gaily interrupted by bright yellow doors, comes right into the house: it panels the fireplace wall and appears on the ceiling of the kitchen and dining area. The well-favored cork floors, quiet and soft, need few rugs—they're warm in winter, cool in summer.

Heating here is by means of a new air-wall gas system which distributes its warmth through inexpensive 4-in. ducts rather than through costly custom-made outlets.

"Well, fine, all of it," you say. "But if it's in the $20,000 class, this small house is too rich for my blood!" But it doesn't have to be in that class. Your local contractor, who knows the average per-square-foot construction costs in your area can tell you the price of building it. Builder Boran made this Minneapolis version a little gem of a house. Everything in it would be nice to have. But you could pare it down.

For example, if you build it without the basement and the fireplace, you'll still have a prize winner, for the contest version had neither. The only change in floor plan you'd have to make is to put the heater in the space now occupied by the staircase to the basement. Then, too, in many parts of the country you could use a carport instead of a garage.

If stout but less expensive materials were substituted for some of the practical but costlier ones used here, the house could come within the budget of even more people. But don't tamper with the good basic plan, for it is that, after all, which made this house a multiple prize winner.

Government Issue

The United States Government prints not only money, but pamphlets on almost every imaginable subject. Too little is known about the fact that these helpful booklets are available to the public at very low cost. Below are described only a few of the thousands of instructive booklets from which you can learn, profit, and find enjoyment.

These booklets may be obtained by writing the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

A new edition of the Government's best seller, Infant Care, has recently been published, and includes a section entitled "You and Your Baby Sitter." This invaluable chapter offers suggestions for making certain the sitter is reliable, giving her the proper information before leaving, and the etiquette of baby sitting—from both the sitter's and the parents' points of view. The entire booklet has been completely rewritten by Children's Bureau specialists and provides a specific, reliable guide for the rearing of infants up to one year. 20¢

Hobby books, as such, are not issued by the Federal Government, but many bulletins printed in conjunction with various Government programs are of interest to hobbyists. Here are listed only a few of the many booklets available:

Photography (2 vols.) Volume 1 is a 478-page manual of basic photographic principles and practices. Volume 2 discusses the more specialized fields. Each volume, $1.25.

Postage Stamps of the United States, 1847-1950. A complete, authentic review of United States postage stamps, fully and accurately described. 60¢

House Plants. Includes descriptions of many kinds of house plants, proper soil conditions, how to plant and care for them. 10¢

Attracting Birds. How to attract, feed, water, and protect birds. 10¢

Fundamentals of Electricity. Originally written as a Navy training manual, this explains in detail the basic principles of electricity as applied to everyday uses such as ignition systems, batteries, generators. 75¢

Operation of Small Boats and Harbor Craft. Another Armed Forces manual, this is intended to acquaint the beginner with the theories of boat handling, emergency measures, and other information. 30¢

Make It of Leather. How to make more than 15 different leather articles, with simple instruction and illustrations. 15¢

It's the tile that's right in 9 cases out of 10!

Flexible! Gold Seal Linoleum Tile can take the up-and-down movement of the average wood floor without cracking—without even a strain! Brittle tile may crack and shatter over wood floors.

Grease-resistant! Even the hottest spatters won't soften Gold Seal Linoleum Tile or fade its colors. (Grease pits the surface of some tiles—even disintegrates them! Think of that in your kitchen!)

Easy to install! Gold Seal Linoleum Tiles are precision-cut, almost fit themselves into place. And to fit them around thresholds you merely cut them with a knife.

Quiet, restful! Linoleum is blissfully quiet—not clattery as brittle tile is. It's comfortable underfoot—not hard and tiring.

Beautiful! Shiny, brittle tile has the hard cold look of an office or a factory . . . but the deep-glowing satiny texture and the rich soft colors of Gold Seal Linoleum Tile have the warm, inviting, welcoming look of home!

There's a Headboard in that Old Sofa!

SUSANNE MARTIN

Remember that Victorian sofa, the one on which Pop proposed to Mom? It's none too good for sitting upon these days, but see what an impressive headboard it can make for a Hollywood type of bed. It would never know itself in this newfangled, stylish guise! Such a headboard might cost a small fortune made to order. But if you have Grandma's old sofa (or can buy one in a secondhand store) the whole transformation can be completed for \$10-\$20 if you do most of the work yourself. First, take sofa apart. Save back, curved wooden pieces from front of arms, and long board attached to front of seat. Fasten this board (No. 3) to sofa back. Attach curved wooden arm pieces (No. 2). Make two legs from 1 x 7 lumber (No. 5). Height of legs depends upon style of bed and type of sofa. With 7 x 7 wood block (No. 4), attach legs to back of piece No. 3, one at each end. To steady headboard, use ready-made, 6-in. wood legs (No. 7). Screw them into wooden brace (No. 6) which you have cut to measure $10\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{1}{2} \times 2$. Nail brace, with leg attached, onto No. 5. Now unscrew stuffed sofa back and remove old covering and padding. Tack unbleached muslin across back. Turn over to front, and fill hollow with cotton batting. Tack unbleached muslin to hold it in place. Cover with quilted pintz or any fabric suitable for your bedroom. Then screw the newly upholstered section back into the frame.

AUTOMATIC WATER HEATERS

They Planned this Remodeling before they Bought it

Outbuildings and incongruous little entry porch marred the house directly above. New personality came from brown insulated shingle installed right over original asbestos shingle, from knotty pine trim, and neat, inviting fence. New entry is on another side of house

The beauty treatment above—transforming this house from nondescript to spruce contemporary—was remarkable enough. But it isn't the half of this remodeling project (for details of the inside story, see plans on page 97). All of these wonders were wrought mostly with their own hands, by the N. G. Bittermans of Carterville, Ill., who first saw the house, surrounded by cornfield instead of garden, in the spring of 1949.

It didn't look good to them, even though their entire five years of married life had been spent in converted Army barracks. For one thing, it had only one piece of plumbing—a leaky faucet in the kitchen. But its roof was good, its large basement was dry and its possibilities hopeful. So they sketched out their remodeling plans, found them feasible—and bought the house.

Since Capt. Bitterman not only had an engineer's degree, but also knew his way around a carpenter's shop, they decided to use

Here are the important changes. Whopping new living room stretches across entire rear of house, its roof extended to shelter entry. House got its first bath, a real entry hall, an extra bedroom, a centrally located kitchen. Rear porch may become a room some day their own labor, calling in professionals only when it seemed wise to have such skill—as for foundation work and the installation of a complete water and plumbing system. It took a couple of years' worth of evenings and week ends, but the work discouraged them so little, and the results encouraged them so much, that they stuck it out to the end.

The major improvement in plan was the new living-room wing. You can see some of its merits on the plan: its big-family size, its convenience to the kitchen, its isolation from children's bedrooms, its three exposures, its terrace, and the porch which may some day become a den. But it has others, just as important, copied from some of the most advanced of modern houses.

For example, its longest wall was faced to the south so that it could take in the best view, and the view over which the Bittermans had the most control since their land reached farthest

MODELS APPROVED BY AMERICAN GAS ASSOCIATION

This Remodeling

Because they could control rear view, they faced new living room that way, and planted young pines at the end of the land. Rear garden is private; play area is convenient to house. Note U-shaped driveway for good off-street parking in that direction. But facing it south, meant that they could also have a true solar room. By checking up on the exact latitude of their house and the way the sun's rays hit it, they were able to arrange matters so that the south-facing windows let in no sun during the hot months (March 20-Sept. 20), but let the sun stream in during the cold weather. It was all done by the exact calculation of the height of the windows, and the height and amount of overhang of the roof. And it means that they need no awnings in summer, and do not heat the living room on sunny winter days!

The roof of the new wing is flat (but completely insulated) for several good reasons: the construction was inexpensive, adapts itself to additions, and permits this part of the house to be water-cooled in summer.

Birth Certificates for Houses

FRED DICKENSON

Babies have books crammed with astounding data concerning the fresh arrival, dogs and horses have their vital statistics duly jotted down—but not so with houses.

All too often, innocent houses are treated like something abandoned on the doorstep of a foundling home. From the moment that the painter closes the door, the idea seems to be to obscure as quickly as possible everything that future owners may ever want to know about the place. But there are good reasons why every house should have a birth certificate.

There are sentimental reasons, for example. Let us say you fall in love with a shy little bungalow of uncertain age, and decide to take her for your own. Feeling like a cad for not trusting her at sight, you hire a lawyer who delves into musty records in a basement somewhere and finally merges to say (for a fee, of course) that the title search is okay.

So you buy the house and move in, and your love deepens with every splinter in your thumb and every callosity on your knee. Gentle snows and warming suns soften you up by turns until the time comes when sentiment overwhelms you and you wish you knew who first thought of building here, who planned the rooms, and who turned the first shovelful of earth. How long did it take to build, and was there a rooftop party where the first owners, shivery with pride and anticipation, plied the workmen with foaming drinks in the hope that they would spur them to greater efforts? What day did they move in and launch the home that is now yours on its shining career of sheltering the passing wanderer? You wish you knew, just for the fun of it if nothing else. And the chances are that you will never find out.

You can't count on the neighbors helping you because many of them came to the neighborhood after your house was built. Anyone who was there first is apt to take on a glassy stare and say, "Sure, the Egmonts built that house in 1928, or was it the Fitzmattresses in 1931? I think it was the Klamfoozels in 1935 because that was the year my tomatoes came down with bubonic plague."

It might be that your desire for intimate knowledge about your house is based, not on sentiment or nostalgia, but on more practical considerations. This is because the average dwelling has a number of pipes and drains which go looping out through the basement walls into the inscrutable beyond. They seemingly have

"It took 2 Houses to teach us
the Value of Plywood Subflooring"

"Everyone profits by experience. That certainly was true when Chris and I built our first house. We helped plan it. Even helped select the materials.

"Some things worked out fine. Some didn't. We splurged on floor coverings—bought the best. But we economized—or thought we did—on things like subflooring. Mistake! After we moved in, we found our floors began to develop little humps and hollows. And they squeaked like a haunted house.

"It's going to be different in our new house. Our architect told us about plywood. It's far and away the best for subfloors, he said. Makes floors look better, last longer. The big panels lay flat and stay flat. That's because plywood won't cup, shrink, swell, warp or squeak. It keeps out drafts. Makes floors warmer, too.

"Our builder agreed—said you can't beat plywood subfloors for strength and firmness. It even means extra protection against wind-storm and earthquake. And happy news! We found when you add up all the costs, plywood is as economical as it is practical. Our plywood subfloor was laid in less than half the time needed for other materials."

Ask your lumber dealer about plywood's advantages for every building or remodeling job. For more information about plywood subfloors mail coupon below.

Quality

THAT ASSURES BEAUTY FOREVER

You can expect Eljer's Fine Plumbing Fixtures to stay beautiful and new-looking for a lifetime, with ordinary care. Whether you choose a lovely pastel color or Eljer's snow white, the finish cannot fade. Bathtubs and Kitchen Sinks have an extra-thick coating of glass-like enamel . . . fused to a rugged, rigid, cast-iron base. Vitreous China Lavatories and Closet Combinations resist stains and are impervious to all ordinary acids . . . because they are real china. Eljer Fixtures wipe sparkling clean with a damp cloth. For free booklet, write Eljer Co., Box 192, Ford City, Pennsylvania.

HEART OF YOUR PLUMBING SYSTEM
Pipes bring in fresh water and carry the waste away, but for satisfactory service, you want faucets that work smoothly and efficiently . . . without dripping. So, in kitchen, bathroom or laundry, specify Eljer Fittings, quality-built for long, trouble-free service. All wearing parts are easily renewable.

Birth Certificates

been there, performing some noble function, for years, and you realize instinctively that it is the better part of wisdom to let sleeping pipes lie.

This is not always feasible, however. A neighbor who had been in his 10-year-old house for just one year took a decidedly detached attitude when I asked him about the drain in his cellar floor. He informed me that the water went down it, and that's all he cared about. I was interested because I had no nice drain—just a sump pump which had been installed at extra cost because there was no regular sewer system. Apparently some smart builder had provided him with a dry well or had hooked him into the storm drain which ran along under the curb.

The situation changed abruptly at the time of a big rain, and the hip-boot definitely was on the other foot. My neighbor's nice drain, into which water formerly ran, suddenly took on the awesome aspects of Old Faithful. When last I saw him, the flood had subsided and he was kneeling on a rubber pad, peering thoughtfully into the inky depths of this traitorous drain.

Our house is not going to finish its days as an enigmatic orphan, baffling a succession of worried but affectionate owners, for I have a plan.

One set of blueprints of our house I have marked for posterity. As they stand, they tell everything anyone can reasonably want to know about the interior of the house. They also include a plot plan accurately locating the dwelling on the property, and it is on this sheet that I am doing my duty by future generations.

The course of each pipe, wire, drain, or whatnot that lurks beneath that innocent terrain is being charted in imperishable ink while the whole thing is still fresh in my memory. Sometimes the responsibility staggers me. Already, since various additions were made by different contractors, I am the only person in the world who knows where everything is. If I do not get it down on paper before some mischance prevents completion, the nation's roster of mystery dwellings will have added a dilly. By really great perseverance, I have acquired that rare commodity—a fuse list—and it has been typed out and pasted inside the box.

On the back of one of the blueprints I have noted the salient facts of our home's brief history—the conferences with the architect and contractor; the date when the bulldozer first bit into the earth; and that lovely rainy day when all five of us trooped through the mud and came home for the first time.

That birth certificate is being put away carefully, and it's going to be as much a part of the house as the front door and the chimney.

Color and Design for Every Garden by H. Stuart Ortloff and Henry B. Raymore. (Barrows) Price
$3.50. . . The authors are landscape architects who know the problems and needs of small-home owners.
Though they call the book a sequel to their Garden Planning and Building, it can stand on its own feet. For it introduces the reader to the subject of garden planning which, as it insists, should always precede the actual making and planting. It provides both basic principles and detailed practical advice, including many excellent planting lists and diagrams.

Flowers from 'Old Gardens selected and edited by Hal W. Trovillion (Trovillion Private Press, Herrin, Ill.) Price $3.00. . . A "library in miniature of some of the lovable old treatises touching on gardening," this collection of quotations from the literature of many lands and ages is a lovely bit of book-making; a most appropriate gift for a garden-minded friend, host, or relative.

The whole family appreciates growing things.

Family Gardening made and issued by Impco, Inc., New Milford, N. J. Price $30. . . Don't let the price scare you. This is not a book, but a set of six filmstrips (326 captioned pictures) dealing with Soil Preparation, Planting and Growing, Harvesting and Using,
Preserving and Storing, Some Special Garden Problems, and What is Family Gardening? Prepared with the help of the U. S. Extension Service, it carries a jolly hypothetical family through the whole productive seasonal cycle in a colorful but practical way.

State Flowers and State Birds
by Robert Sparks Walker. (The Sunshine Press) Price $3.00. . . By making the official state flowers and birds the subjects of these pleasant little poems, Tennessee's famous naturalist, philosopher, and author has made it easier for us to know and remember them. Handsomely printed and bound in a limited edition.

Don't Waste Those Wood Ashes!

NEXT SUMMER

HERMAN GANTNER

Wood ashes are valuable. Not to make soap with, as our ancestors did; nor for scattering on icy walks (sand or coal cinders are better). But worked into the garden soil next spring, either broadcast after spading, or around individual plants, they supply the essential food element, potassium (potash), which helps make crops vigorous, sturdy, floriferous. In his new lily book, Jan de Graaff says, "A tablespoonful [of wood ashes] for every lily clump is just about right." And that goes for practically anything.

As you collect them from your fireplaces (always leaving a few behind), don't dump ashes outdoors or on the frozen soil where rain and snow will leach their goodness away. Store them under cover, or in tight cans, tubs, etc., until soil-fitting time rolls around. Then use them freely.

"Burning Bush"

JAY VAUGHN

If your garden needs a spectacular splash of spring color; if you have a place for boundary shrubs that will give privacy to a portion of your lawn; if you like the idea of a two-in-one bush that is both beautiful and useful—then consider the crimson-salmon Japanese- or Flowering-quince, also called "burning-bush" because of its profuse and flamboyant bloom. It was formerly classified as a species of true quince, listed as Cydonia japonica, and therefore occasionally called "japonica"; those names are still used in some catalogues and by old-time gardeners, although the accepted botanical name is now Chaenomeles lagenaria.

By the first of May, in Vermont, and earlier as you go South, this shrub is bursting with bright buds, as vivid as a gay geranium. Crowded along every branch, they mingle with the graceful, glossy, olive-green and red-tinged leaves. Within a fortnight or so, the delicate apple-blossom-like flowers are open. Still earlier, for those who do not mind judicious cutting of their plants, blossom sprays taken indoors even before the buds show color will open and provide a delightful preview of spring; at any time they combine well with their own leaves or with other spring flowers in arrangements or corsages.

But in addition to being one of the earliest—and therefore one of the most welcome—examples of spring blossom beauty, the Japanese-quince is, later on, generous in another way. As summer passes, hard, greenish yellow, highly fragrant fruits succeed the flowers. They can be left until all the other preserving is done and then made into a clear amber jelly that is deliciously tart to go with cold meat. Or they can be stuck full of cloves and made into old-fashioned pomanders to give perfumed pleasure throughout the year. And often they are merely placed in bureau drawers and closets to scent handkerchiefs, linen, and bedding as they gradually dry and shrivel.

The plants are perfectly hardy, and almost any kind of soil and situation, sunny or partially shady, suits them. In a rich, well-drained soil, they attain 5 to 6 feet or more, but are easily controlled by pruning, to be done after the flowers fall. Most nurseries carry them and some offer several varieties, ranging from white through blush and pink to crimson and salmon. They can be planted in either early spring or late fall. All are good-natured and effective, but none is more spectacular than the long-popular "burning bush."

How to get paints to match any color in this magazine

Right away—at Budget Prices

1. A remarkable new development in paint now makes it possible for you to have any color scheme in this magazine—in fact, any color scheme you see pictured anywhere. Just take your favorite room picture to your Colorizer Paint dealer. There, you'll see the amazing Colorizer Album of 1,322 actual paint samples, perfectly arranged to make it easy for you to select the same paint colors in your picture—or colors to match and harmonize with your draperies, floor coverings, wallpaper, or furniture. These 1,322 actual paint samples show exactly how your paint will appear when dry.

2. Whether you're painting walls, floors, ceilings, woodwork, or the exterior of your house, you can get any of 1,322 Colorizer Paint colors in any paint finish—flat, semi-gloss, enamel, floor enamel, or outside house paint.

3. You'll get any of 1,322 Colorizer Paint colors immediately, without ordering or waiting for a special mix. You'll get the very color you selected from the Colorizer Album, and a record of its identification number, so you can re-match that color any time—even months later.

4. You will find Colorizer Paints cost no more than ordinary paints—although they offer you the same beautiful tints and shades used by famous decorators. This means that now—for the first time—decorator-preferred paint colors, formerly so expensive, are yours for home decorating on a budget.*

5. You will find Colorizer interior finishes durable and washable. Colorizer exterior finishes are super-tough, self-cleaning, giving maximum protection in your own local climate. Interior or exterior, they're real oil paints, made to the highest standards of paint quality. Before you paint, see your Colorizer dealer—headquarters for 1,322 paint colors.

Only Colorizer Paints in 1,322 colors can make this remarkable offer...because only Colorizer Paints offer all these exclusive advantages.

My husband and I pay particular attention to (1) preparation of tubers for planting; (2) preparation of the soil in both pots and outdoor bed; (3) staking, and (4) watering. Our method involves three steps, but we find it simple, not time-consuming, and definitely interesting. In early April we spread the tubers with the hollow side up (that is, where the previous year's stem broke off) on trays covered with a thin layer of peat moss or vermiculite; place them in any convenient room in a light situation (not in direct sunlight), and sprinkle them daily.

Step two (taken when the tubers sprout) consists of moving them to 4-in. pots (or milk cartons cut down to 4 in. high) that have been filled with a mixture of half good loam and half leaf mold or peat moss. We set them $\frac{1}{2}$ in. below the surface. We first used the cartons when we ran short of pots; now we prefer them because, set edge to edge on a tray, they take less room, are as easy to handle as flats, and involve no danger of disturbing the tubers when transplanting them to the outdoors. At that time, we merely tear away the cardboard box and set the tuber with its now well-developed roots in a hole prepared for it. Meanwhile, we keep the pots or cartons in an east or west window, the soil moist, though never to the point of soggy. (To start with, we had punched a small hole in the bottom of each carton and covered it with pieces of broken pot or gravel for drainage.)

When the plants are 3 to 4 in. high (about eight weeks after placing the tubers on the tray), and when danger of a killing frost is past, we take step three and set the plants out, where the bed has been well prepared. It must be well drained. Having a sandy subsoil, we have to prepare the soil only 6 or 8 in. deep. As begonias like a loose woodland type of soil that provides a cool, moist root run, we prepare ours by mixing $\frac{1}{3}$ leaf mold or peat moss with $\frac{2}{3}$ sandy loam, adding a tablespoonful of bone meal per plant. If rotted cow manure can be had, we use $\frac{1}{3}$ of that and of each of the other two materials.

After setting the plants 2 in. deep and about 12 in. apart (being careful to have the leaves pointing toward us so the flowers, when they appear, will not be hidden), we sprinkle a peat moss mulch around them. As the stems are brittle, staking is very important. When the plants are about 10 in. tall, we give each one a bamboo stake, tying raffia first around it and then around the plant. We spray leaves and flowers gently once a day (or oftener on typical Midwest or Eastern seaboard "scorchers"), but are careful never to flood the bed.

Begonias

As to location, although we are definitely amateurs, our experience leads us to believe that too much emphasis has been put on shade as a necessary factor. Our finest plants have had several hours of sun—sometimes until 11:30 A.M. and as early as 3:30 P.M. However, we recommend the north side of a house or hedge where there is only early morning and late afternoon sun. We consider sky light important, for plants grown where trees block it out have not done well. Nor is planting among evergreens satisfactory. A spot with some protection from wind is desirable, but begonias without the free circulation of air they need often develop stem rot. As we eat on the north side of our screened-in porch, we enjoy the magnificent flower display at every meal as well as when relaxing on the porch. And magnificent it is, for plants bear from six to a dozen or more blooms at a time, some of them up to 6 in. across. Last year, an 8-in.-deep window box on the north side of our white garage containing begonias set 9 or 10 in. apart was highly effective. The plants, although staked, tended to develop a graceful, trailing habit.

Formerly, bone meal and rotted cow manure (when we had it) were the only fertilizers we used. Last year we applied a cow manure solution about the color of weak tea every ten days or so just before the daily spraying, but we do not know whether that or the cool summer was the reason for our extra-fine specimens. Moreover, we have obtained beautiful flowers without such applications.

If you are a procrastinator, or find it more convenient, you can omit the first step, or the first and second steps, of our method. If you plant the tubers directly outdoors, the plants, when they flower, will be just as lovely, but the blooming season will start later and be shorter. If the plants develop so the leaves grow in the wrong direction, they can be lifted (carefully so as not to disturb the soil around the roots) and turned around; do this on a cloudy day to lessen the shock of the operation.

And finally, about storing the tubers. In the fall, before the first killing frost occurs, dig the plants, bring them indoors, and shake off the loose soil. Leave them in the basement, but not too close to the heating equipment, until the stems have dried and fallen off. Then put the tubers away for the winter in a cool but frost-free place, covering them with peat moss or vermiculite, just as you would handle dahlia tubers.

You see, there isn't anything especially difficult about it. And I am sure that if you try these adaptable, truly eye-catching flowers this year, you will share our enthusiasm.

A GUIDE TO THE SELECTION OF FRUITS

(Get advice about varieties, spray schedules, from County Agricultural Agent,

FRUIT	WHERE SUITABLE — USES — VALUES
Apple	Everywhere but deep south. Plant for ornament, shade; fruit used raw (long season), cooked, etc.
Apricot	Widely. Tree hardier, longer-lived than peach; ornamental all seasons. Fruit earlier, distinctive
Avocado	Frost-free areas to limits of citrus culture. Use oily fruits raw, as salads, sandwich spread
Blackberry	Wherever peaches thrive. Best when garden-grown. Pick fully ripe for use fresh, frozen, canned
Blueberry	In cool, humid regions, like all heath-family plants. Improved named varieties available
Cherry	Sour kinds in cold sections; sweet ones only in peach zones. Both useful raw, cooked, preserved
Citrus	Regions of no or rare frosts. Citron most tender, then lime, lemon, grapefruit, orange. Ornamental
Currant	Fully hardy; prefers northern locations. Easy to grow, propagate. For jelly, drinks, dessert uses
Fig	Throughout mild regions; with protection to N. Y. and Mich. Use sweet garden type fresh or canned
Gooseberry	Same range as currant. Rewards good site and care with large, delicious fruit used cooked or raw
Grape	Varieties for all sections, conditions. Sturdy, long-lived, ornamental vines. Versatile fruits
Mango	For frost-free, humid regions only. Big tree if unpruned, but can be kept to apple-size
Mulberry	Anywhere. Handsome, long-lived tree; fruit messy on path or lawn. Attracts birds from other fruits
Nectarine	Little grown outside Calif. but could be. Fruit a delicious, smooth-skinned, high quality peach
Nuts	Handsome, long-lived shade trees; various forms, sizes for many places. Crops delicious, nutritious
Peach	Some grow in every state, but medium temperature range best. Superior as a home-garden fruit
Pear	Wherever apples thrive except far north and south. Tree handsome in bloom; good fruit a luscious treat
Persimmon	Handsome, heavy bearing, easily grown tree. Native type Cann. to Gulf; Japanese species more tender
Plum	Apple range for Damsons; pear range for Europeans; peach range for Japanese. Let fruit ripen fully
Quince	Wherever pears, apples grow. A deserving, handsome small tree. Fruit fine preserved, alone or mixed
Raspberry	Red ones hardy as apple, less happy south; blacks suit peach belt. Luscious summer-to-frost crop
Strawberry	Possible anywhere; prefers cool season, moist soil. Needs little space, yields generously

Perhaps there's no need to urge you to include fruit in your gardening. A recent AMERICAN HOME Consumer Panel Survey shows that of the homeowners queried who had bought nursery stock last year, more than half had bought trees; and of them, 61 per cent had bought fruit trees! But if you haven't, we don't want you to overlook an opportunity. Besides, way back in 1941, the National Nutrition Conference urged Americans to eat more fruit because "the consumption of home-grown kind plus the purchase of those that cannot be grown successfully means improved diet and general health." Also, as shown farther on, by growing fruit you gain not only at the kitchen end and in your budget, but also in all-season landscape effects.

Right now is the time to make plans. That means, first, select

CHARACTERISTICS — CULTURAL NOTES — PLANTING DISTANCES, ETC.

Hardy; need 2 or more to pollinate; must be sprayed. Adaptable most soil, sites. Space standard trees 30-40 ft., shorter-lived dwarfs 10-15 ft.

Give north or west exposure to delay blossoming, lessen chance of frost injury. Prefers deep, rich soil, well drained. Give 16-25 ft. of space

Handle like citrus. Mex. type nearly hardy as orange; S. American, tender as lemon. Give deep, well-drained soil rich in humus. Space 25-40 ft.

Hardy, dislikes exposure to drying wind. Prefers deep soil with humus, good drainage. Set 4 x 7 ft. or more. Pull suckers to prevent spreading Needs sandy, acid soil; humus; root-fungus association; moisture, especially at fruiting time; interplanting for pollination. Space 4 x 4 to 8 x 8 ft.

Our type more resistant, easier to grow than sweet. Deep loam to sandy loam best. Protect from birds. Set sour 16 to 22 ft., sweets 25 to 30 ft.

Evergreen trees; long ripening period. Vary widely in soil preferences, pollination requirements, and spacing—20 to 40 ft. depending on kind

Fully hardy; where climate is right, has wide soil tolerance but prefers strong, heavy loam. Space at least 4 x 6 ft.; cultivate shallow, or mulch

Prefers heavy soil, moisture; will resent or succumb to drought conditions. Prune to bush form. Space 10 ft. (south, north) to 25 ft. (California)

Hardy as currant. Protect from hot sun; deep, strong, heavy soil; mulch or water to insure moisture. Space 4 x 6 ft. Leave 5-8 upright stems

Needs deep soil, not too light; air circulation; long, sunny, somewhat dry summer for ripening. Space 6-9 ft. in rows, on fence or trellis. Spray well

Handle like orange. Plant in any not-too-rich soil in spring; 35 ft. apart. Trees bear in 2-4 years. Crops, season, quality of fruit very variable

Plant in any soil (preferably light); needs little or no attention. Original Russian type (black, white) much inferior to modern varieties

Practically a peach in character, requirements, but tree more fussy, susceptible to insects. Handle like peach; guard especially against curculio

Include almond, cashew, coconut, pecan, Persian walnut for southern conditions; Chinese chestnut, filbert, hickory, black walnut for north

Bears fairly sturdy, adaptable; like light, warm soil; summer cultivation, then winter cover crop. Space 16-20 ft. Watch for peach borers

Prefers cool, temperate climate; moist, cloudy weather; deep, heavy soil. Space dwarfs 10-15 ft., standards 15-30 ft. Watch out for fire blight

Trees range from 6 to 30 ft. tall, space 16 to 24 ft. or more. Prefers rather heavy, moderately rich soil. Ripen fruit fully; handle carefully

Bears long-lived, compact. Like strong, well-drained soil, heavier than for apple, peach. Space 16-22 ft. Garden sanitation helps control enemies

Set soil well-drained, fairly heavy loam. Space about 15 ft.; cultivate shallow; pruning to bush form aids detection and fighting of fire blight

Prefers site with some wind protection, air drainage; deep, well-drained, fertile loam. Set 5 x 5 or 3 x 8 ft. Cut canes after they fruit; mulch

Easily grown under varied conditions. Mix varieties for pollination and long bearing season. Remake bed every few years. Mulch. Keep birds off

"What Should I Look for in a Power Mower?"
"LOOK FOR A PENNSYLVANIA"

"I say this because you'll get more for your money in a Pennsylvania—the finest grass cutting machine on the market and the one that's easiest to take care of. On top of these two big advantages, you'll get the power mower that's built to last for many years."

PENNSYLVANIAS have many important points of superiority including (1) easy Push-Pull finger-tip control of throttle and clutch, (2) full-tempered, double ground hi-carbon blades, (3) designed for ease of maintenance,

(4) easy adjustment for height of cut, (5) Briggs & Stratton motors, and of course (6) Triple-A ball bearings. All this value costs you no more.

In hand mowers, too, Pennsylvanias are made intentionally better. In fact, they've been the choice of professional gardeners since 1877.

Fruit Garden (Begins on page 106)

Fruit Testing Cooperative Association (Geneva, N. Y., $1.00 a year). Then, before long—as soon as your ground can be dug—you can start setting up trellises, posts, and other supports for the bush and vine fruits, and digging holes in readiness for the stock that will be sent at the proper time for planting in your locality. Or, if you want to lay an extra-firm foundation for success, you can take all next summer for developing your plans and improving your soil, and have the plants delivered for fall planting.

If you could follow an apple, pear, or other tree on its nursery course from seed to grafted seedling, to transplanted 2- or 3-year-old specimen, you would have a new appreciation of the thought, effort, and care that go into the production of good plants; and why it pays to buy only that kind, whether you order by mail or from a traveling agent, or buy from a nursery that will deliver (and even plant if you wish) or from a local cash-and-carry source. This whole story is admirably told in Circular 188 of the State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, N. Y., entitled, "Selection, Care and Planting of Nursery-grown Fruit Trees."

It stresses, for instance, the wisdom of avoiding "so-called 'bargain' stores"—trees which, discarded by reliability or poor growth, are picked up by fly-by-night operators and offered and sold at reduced prices."

The climate of your locality and the location, soil, exposure, and topography of your property are vital factors in your choice of fruits and varieties. So are the tastes, preferences, and capacities of your family, the space available in your garden, the time and labor that can be devoted to the plants; and the extent to which any surplus fresh fruit can be canned or frozen so as to avoid waste. Remember that, although fruit plants are no harder to grow than manyamentals, you are asking more of them than just attractive form, fragrance, and flowers. The production of a crop of clean, perfect fruit is an advanced phase of gardening and demands for more than average sunlight, quality, and protection against pests, diseases, and other hazards.

But the game is well worth the candle, and worthwhile objectives are attainable. As witness the success of one Denver couple's experience told by Mrs. May F. McElravy: When we built our present house [she says] our children were in college and soon to have houses of their own, we carried out ideas that come with maturity. We knew we must gear both house and garden to the tempo of our years. Our site was a 75 by 150 ft. after commanding an uninterrupted view of the Rockies.

While I concentrated on the indoors, Henry took over the yard. Because he likes to watch fruit grow, he decided to landscape with fruit trees. He studied his project as he would a lifetime investment. The beauty which would develop over the years to pay dividends, give shade, be easy to maintain; in time it must afford privacy for our outdoor living space. Not only did he get advice from our County Extension Agent and the N. Y. Fruit Testing Association, but, concluding that, as we had blueprints for the house, so he would get them for the landscaping, he called the horticulturist at the State College to recommend someone who could make them and supervise the selection and planting of the trees. Ten years have proved the wisdom of that decision. We have effective windings, privacy, shade, ever-changing beauty and abundant harvests. In front, on public area, are red and yellow Delicious apples, an early yellow, a red plum, and an Italian plum. But our prize orchard is in the rear where we have two El-berta peaches, two Polly peaches, an apricot, and a most satisfactory nectarine. And this is mile-high Denver!

In addition, we have three kinds of grapes on our side picket fence, ever-bearing red raspberries that hide the wire fence that separates drive from rear garden, and boysenberries in a corner of the vegetable patch.

No greater joy does Henry know than picking tree-ripened fruit in the morning coolness. The trees take some care, of course: regular spraying; cultivation when the soil crusts over; methodical pruning and treatment of any wounds that occur; and feeding with compost and plant food put into holes punched 18 to 24 in. deep in concentric circles around each tree out to the edge of the branch spread, then soaked with water.

Our fruit garden is a profitable investment aesthetically as well as economically. Instead of doilies, I use grape leaves under dessert plates or glasses. And my fruit plate wins general acclaim from guests. Listen: On a chilled green glass plate I put a large grape leaf and on it half a large peach, cavity up. At one side go several small watermelon balls; on the other side, some larger cantaloupe balls. Then half a nectarine, here and there wedges of blue or red plum, and over all a sprinkling of raspberries and boysenberries, the whole topped with lime ice. When all have been served, I pour sauterne over the concoction. Will you have some?

Acanthus—a Plant of the Ages

The Acanthus plant, whose leaf is immortalized in the Corinthian column of ancient—and modern—sculpture, is a handsome, effective subject for gardens within certain climatic limits

Courtesy, Lending Collections, Metropolitan Museum of Art

Centuries ago, Greek artists, seeking motifs for their creative skill, seized upon the big, deeply cut, graceful leaf of their native Acanthus and adapted it, but slightly stylized, in designing the Corinthian column. It also forms part of more modern friezes and has a permanent place in architectural tradition. But why isn't it found more often in gardens? Though known in England before 1600, it is hardly common there, and in this country, outside of California, it is rarely seen. Yet it is easy to grow and, according to one source, withstand a 20-degree temperature. It needs, says Bailey, a "rich, light, well-drained soil and much sunshine"; also "it must be deeply mulched north in winter," with long litter and evergreen boughs. But that is little enough to pay for the big clumps of rich, bronzy green foliage topped by strong spikes of white-to-reddish flowers somewhat like turtle-heads (Chelone). The common name, bear's-breech, refers, presumably, to the rough, hairy nature of the leaves; names of the species are also descriptive—A. mollis ("soft") for the best known, the leaved kind; A. spinosus for the sharply spiny leaved type; A. spinosissimus, for a much-cut, exceptionally prickly form. Having seen it used most effectively beside a doorway; in a big mixed border in combination with red Nicotiana; and between sidewalk and curb at an Oakland street (in each case in California), I can visualize it in many other places, both outdoors and, where necessary, inside. Anyway, I have a plant shipped to me across the country and am going to experiment. More news later, perhaps.—E. L. D. SEYMOUR, NEW YORK.

Wooden yardstick makes a good guide for cutting glass. Wipe one side of yardstick with wet cloth—the damp wood surface sticks to the glass

How to Cut Glass

ROBERT M.

Put your yardstick, wet side down, on the glass. Using one edge of yardstick as cutting guide, run glass cutter close along that edge. This will make a cutting line, but will not cut through glass

To finish cutting operation, put glass cutter under the glass, directly beneath the cutting line. Using both hands, apply slight pressure to top of glass, on cutting line and on either side. Glass will break sharply along line

After cutting, smooth off sharp edges of the glass. For this purpose, use emery cloth or a piece of "wet and dry" sandpaper. Wrap the cloth or paper around a block of wood, and use it as shown here not all of them are completely utilitarian. But there were enough good buys in necessary furniture to prove that collecting and living with antiques is not necessarily a mink-lined hobby if you follow the country auctions, as big-city dealers do, if you buy things which are not in perfect condition, and if you're willing to invest in good restoration. You're sure to win if you never pay so much for a single item that you can't afford to have it turn out to be less than

PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 118

Cannon-ball beds, matching chest started this collection. Now valuable, they were bargains at a country auction. Bowl and pitcher are Royal Doulton. Clock was a gift from brother who got collectoritis from Inez

There's nothing sissy about living with antiques—John (6) and Chuck (5) will be the first to tell you that. Within the walls of their pine-paneled bedroom, the past lives perfectly happily with the present and the future. Aged school desk is ideal for homework and play

Several different collections grow here side by side. Among scenic and commemorative plates are a number of rare. Dresser itself, a well-proportioned one, was rescued from a broken-down state of disuse under six coats of peeling paint

A man...a hammer...and Plankweld®

The Plankweld panels being installed in this dining room are made of beautiful Philippine Mahogany.

Ingenious concealed metal clips like this hold Plankweld firmly to the wall and make it easy to put up.

Presto!—a Wonderful Room

How fast can a dream come true?

How quickly can that Weldwood paneled room be yours?

Like magic... with Plankweld!

Do it yourself! Over a weekend... for under your budget limits.

Yes, even if this is your first role as a carpenter... if you can handle a hammer, you can install Plankweld easily, economically and permanently.

You can put Plankweld panels right over your old walls... over shabby wallpaper or cracked plaster. No furring or framing needed, either.

And you'll have a luxuriously beautiful room that will be a source of life-long enjoyment to your family... of admiration from your friends.

Plankweld is genuine, pre-finished Weldwood paneling, available in a variety of beautiful woods such as oak, birch, Philippine Mahogany, knotty pine.

It comes in easy-to-handle panels 1/4" thick, 16 1/4" wide and 6', 7' and 8' long. The panels are edge-grooved to provide a neat lap joint—designed with a simple, concealed metal clip that holds Plankweld firmly to the wall. Nailing through the wood is therefore eliminated.

Once the panels are up, sit back and enjoy their distinctive beauty. There is nothing more for you to do. They need no paint, no stain, no re-decorating... ever. The factory-applied finish will retain all its rich, original lustre for years... with only occasional waxing.

And like all interior Weldwood Plywood, Plankweld is guaranteed for the life of your home!

So, see Plankweld today at your lumber dealer's. And mail the coupon for the free folder that tells you how you can use Plankweld to panel your own room. Easily... inexpensively!

you hoped for: if an old chair looks as if it can give you $15 worth of service, pay $15 for it—you'll be in luck if it just happens to be worth $150, but you won't be in a jam if it doesn't.

Milton MacWhinnie joins in the treasure hunting these days, and even comes home with contributions of his own. But he didn't always approve. When that Welsh dresser, dreary and peeling, appeared on their front lawn one fine morning, he thought Inez was plain crazy. Then his boss came avisiting. Mrs. Boss must have trained him well, for he immediately saw the merits of that Pennsylvania dough box (it does have an unusually handsome apron) and said so. The beaming Mr. MacW. promptly recited its history and pointed to the accomplishments of some of his other possessions (Inez had thought he wasn't listening when she first listed them to him). From that day on, antiques were "in."

But for Inez, a delight in the old is nothing new. It dates back to her childhood in Maine where she fell in love with her grandmother's spinning wheel—it now stands in her own bedroom. Her mother's cradle (handmade by Grandpa) is a fabulous magazine rack nowadays, proudly nestled by the big chair in the living room. And her mother's hooked and braided rugs are the good foundations of the color schemes in the house.

But this collection didn't begin with family pieces and go on smoothly from there. There were several starts in other directions. Victorian came first, then reproductions of Early American antiques, before Inez realized that with time, a sharp eye, and a sixth sense at smelling out "finds," she could have the real thing.

She has great faith in her hunches, and not without justification. There was the time that she picked up a blue plate at a family auction just because she liked its design and the color of its glaze—later she discovered that it is a rare example of early 19th-century Staffordshire, a museum piece worth a small mint.

Then there was that impulsive stop last summer at a barren-looking junk yard. Nothing there. But as they were about to leave, the junk man casually mentioned some old chests which had just arrived. One of them, solid cherry and in almost perfect condition despite its advanced age, now stands in the MacWhinnie's bedroom. But it may not stay there. Inez thinks its manners too citified for her other things and, since a high value has been placed upon it, she may sell it—and invest the profits, of course, in a new something old for the house.

Disappearing Acts

Mahogany table above is traditional in design, but that's all! As the three 14-in. leaves are removed, you'll see it dwindle as if by magic from 38 by 72 in. (which seats 8 comfortably) to 38 by 20½ in. Rolled into position around credenza drawers, act is completed when flaps are closed. About $379

All the props for dining in the modern manner add up to a mighty pretty setting. Seconds after the last sip of coffee, the scene's completely changed. Chest ($80) now holds linens, leaf on table ($95) conceals legs, dishes have vanished into cabinet ($73). All pieces maple, 18 x 32 x 30 in. high

Now you see it...

Yours to create— a lifetime of matchless music

ABOVE: Home Model Hammond Organ, enjoyed in more homes than any other organ. Hammond Organ prices start at $1285* for the Spinet Model (not illustrated above).

FEW THINGS WILL GIVE YOU more pleasure than the music you make on the Hammond Organ.

For each time you play you explore the range, the color, the magic of music as only the Hammond Organ makes it possible. And as you play, the worries of your private world fade into insignificance.

You play the first month

Here's the wonder of the Hammond Organ: it responds magnificently to the touch of the master musician, yet you, without any previous musical training, can play simple but satisfying music the very first month. Thousands have already done it.

A rewarding hobby, or career

A Hammond Organ in your home can give music a new meaning for you. It can be the beginning of a career for your children. So versatile, so expressive is this instrument that your entire family will want to play.

Fits in any home

The Hammond Organ takes up no more space than a spinet piano. It can be played at whisper volume for late hour enjoyment. Installation is easy. You plug the organ in and play. And since it never needs tuning†, upkeep is little or nothing.

Lasts a lifetime

A lifetime of beautiful music on the Hammond Organ can easily be yours. Convenient budget terms divide the purchase price of $1285* into modest payments.

See your Hammond Organ dealer for a complete demonstration. Meanwhile, mail the coupon below for further information.

A boy is known by the room he keeps

FREDERICA THIGPEN

You open the door of your teen-age son's room and shudder. You stand in the middle of that strange conglomeration of oddities and equipment dear to the heart of a boy, and tear your hair. Or, as I have lately discovered, you roll with the punch and enjoy this room as an expression of his inner self and his growth toward maturity.

Does that sound impossible? Take a grip on yourself if you are the one who tries to bring order out of chaos in the welter of his possessions. With a more objective slant, you can find this task informative and entertaining. For here even a stranger can see reflected the personality, interests, and tastes of a growing man-to-be.

I took a mental inventory recently to break the monotony of the weekly bout with my 15-year-old son Jerry's room, and thereby gained a new awareness of him as an individual.

Skis and poles, golf clubs and balls, fishing net and rods, baseball mitt and bat, football helmet and shoulder pads, tennis shoes and racket filled most of a huge closet. This is a normal assortment for a boy of his age, though it might sound incredible to the mothers of daughters. It clearly indicates a love of sports and outdoor exercise that is evidence of healthy physical growth.

Old work clothes and boots, receipt books, route books, and rubber bands everywhere point to a paper route. This means to me a capacity for hard work if the reward justifies it.

Scattered throughout the room are record player and records, ukulele, trumpet, and radio. This points up his interest in music, both his own and that of others. His books and magazines tell a story in themselves. There are the adventure stories, there are the westerns, mysteries, and the one under the mattress with cover more lurid than story. (He should know by now I turn the mattress every week!) And then there are manuals on how to build a boat, how to repair a car, and other mechanical subjects. This may even forecast his vocation, for he is a boy interested in things mechanical.

It's his room, and he loves it the way it is. I no longer try to put his things out of sight. Instead I pick up, carefully dust, and replace the treasured article. And I walk away from a clean, if not orderly, room with a better understanding of this boy.

This Tree— Wasn't Moved

Data from Ethel McCall Head

Sometimes it takes real talent and training to find the straight line which is the shortest distance between two points. Given the problem of turning the prim Cape-Cod above into the leisurely modern home at your right, few people would have thought of the simple solution of adding a new modern living room right smack onto the front of the house—that just isn't where wings usually grow! In this case, however, the owner happened to be a Hollywood art director, Walter Holscher, whose experience had taught him that the conventional solution isn't always the best one. Here, the unusual, but logical, approach resulted in a house which not only performs as the owners want it to perform, but looks as if it had been planned that way from the start. Unlike most modern wings added to traditional houses, this one doesn't look like an afterthought.

Here's the story: During the housing shortage, the modern-minded Holschers bought their house and planned its future. Its living room was too small and its provisions for outdoor living were nil, but it was well built, it nestled on a fine corner lot among beautiful old shade trees, and designer Holscher could see its possibilities for expansion. Three steps did it. First, the new living room, designed to embrace part of the old one, was added to the front, which faced south. It has modern windows, but for the sake of harmony with the rest of the house, it was sided with clapboard. Second, the main entry was shifted from the south to the east, and an entry hall, divided from the living room by a splendid storage wall, was created at one end of the old living room. The doorway is modern, and a modern overhang shelters it, but it's all simple enough to be in keeping with the original architecture. Finally, a terrace and a trellis, built to the west and opening from the new living room, provides a wealth of private, secluded, outdoor living and dining space.

THE AMERICAN HOME, MARCH

Plan shows how to turn a small Cape-Cod (gray lines) into a big modern house by adding a wing (black lines) to the front which faced south. Gray arrow indicates old front door. Enormous new living room embraces most of the old one as well. Entry was switched to the east. On the west side, pergola provides a sheltered outdoor living room where wasted lawn used to be

A corner of old living room became an entry graced by efficient, handsome storage wall. Closets are on hall side; bookcases and cabinets on living-room side; drawers at end. Note how well a modern front door can be made to fit a traditional exterior

"Modernfold" doors by New Castle Products, Furnishings—L. S. Ayres and Company, Indianapolis, Indiana

Just Close the "Modernfold" door

See how simple it is to make your dining room double as a den . . . TV room . . . or study? You just close the "Modernfold" door—and get complete privacy without inconveniencing the rest of the family.

And when you want more room in every room—use small "Modernfold" doors instead of swinging doors. That way you get more room to place furniture where you want it . . . because a "Modernfold" door saves 8 square feet of space a swinging door wastes.

Can I afford them? Judge for yourself. Large "Modernfold" doors cost no more than permanent partitions. And small "Modernfold" doors cost no more than conventional doors. That's because these folding doors come complete—ready to install—no need to pay for trimming, fitting, painting or hardware.

Solder and Save

HELEN M. KLEMM

Have you, like most people, a collection of unrepaid electric wires, handleless pots, and broken costume jewelry sitting around, useless? With a soldering iron and a few inexpensive materials you can repair such broken metal articles yourself. It's as easy as spreading butter with a knife, and it isn't only a man's job.

Equip yourself with an 80-100 watt soldering iron (about $2), some acid-core and rosin-core solder (10¢ each), and either steel wool, sandpaper, or a wire brush. A pair of tin snips and a roll of friction tape are optional.

Before you can use the iron, the copper tip must be "tinned." Plug in the iron, and while it warms up, clean the flat sides of the tip with steel wool until they shine. Then touch the tip to a piece of rosin-core solder, and if the iron is hot enough, the solder will melt and cover one side of the tip. When all four sides are completely covered with a dull, silvery sheen, wipe off any excess solder.

The two kinds of solder suggested in the list of materials above look exactly alike; the difference lies in their cores. Acid-core solder is corrosive but easier to handle than rosin-core solder, which is non-corrosive. All jewelry work and all actual electric-wire soldering should be done with rosin-core solder since the small trace of acid left by acid-core

MOONBEAM ELECTRIC ALARM

Are you the early-morning hard-hearing type? Or just one more poor sleepyhead, resigned to being roused, but wishing it could be done ever-so-gently? Then harken to the wondrous workings of the Moonbeam! For it is completely different kind of electric "alarm"—exclusive with Westclox—calls you silently. Yes, Moonbeam's first call is silent—blinking light that will not disturb the rest of the family (not even the baby). But if you ignore the light and do not shut it off within a few minutes, Moonbeam adds to the light a cheerful, audible alarm. Now, what could be more considerate than that? And at only $9.95. solder may corrode wiring to the danger point. Any article soldered with acid-core solder should always be washed afterward.

In preparing any metal for soldering, the thin oxide layer which covers all metal must first be removed with sandpaper or steel wool. The acid and rosin in the two kinds of solder are what prevent this coating from reforming when the metal is heated; otherwise the solder would not adhere.

Any soldering job must be prefaced by the same preparations. The parts to be soldered must be cleaned to remove the oxide coating. The iron must be well tinned. Solder will not flow unless the sections to be joined are hot enough; this is done by holding the face of the iron against the work a minute or two before you begin to solder (Fig. 1). Never move the soldered article until the solder has set, usually a matter of one or two minutes.

Now let's take that dustpan with the broken handle which has been cluttering up the broom closet. Clean the adjoining metal parts, and remove the paint with sandpaper. The best way to solder two parts together is to tin them first (use acid-core solder here) exactly as you tinned your iron tip when you first bought it. Fit the two parts together and brace them, then bend a piece of solder around the seam and apply the iron (Fig. 2). Be sure to let the joint set, and remember before you repaint to wash off any excess.

Solder is perhaps most useful in the joining of electric wires—in splicing, connecting doorbells, radio aeri-als, and ground wires. To join two electric cords, carefully cut away ½ in. of the covering on each. Join the exposed wires by twisting them together, one from each cord at a time. (Fig. 3, circle inset.) Use rosin-core solder, and make sure the solder penetrates all spaces between the wires. Keep the iron in place for a ½ minute or so after the solder has flowed in so that the remaining rosin will vaporize and not block the current. When cool, tape the joint with electrician's tape.

You probably have a broken umbrella in a corner of the hall closet, and you can use your soldering iron to repair it, too. For a broken or weakened rib, you'll need a reinforcement, and an extra-heavy darning needle is just the thing (Fig. 4). Bind the needle in place with clean copper wire and apply the iron and acid-core solder until the needle is completely covered. Test the joint for strength after it has cooled.

If your favorite piece of costume jewelry is missing its pin, you can make it wearable once more with your soldering iron. Examine it to see whether it is made of solid metal or whether its parts have been soldered together. If so, you must be careful when you solder so the pieces will not come apart. Lay the jewelry on a wad of wet cotton. If the pin itself is undamaged and has merely come off, you can solder it in place. Or, replace the old pin with a new one from an art-craft shop. Tin the back of the jewelry and the pin and solder them together. Rosin-core solder is best for this job.

When patching holes, remember to patch with a piece of tin, since solder alone is not strong enough. It's easy to solder the steel, iron, copper, brass, zinc, silver, tin, and pewter, of countless household articles. Leaky watering cans, damaged pails, and lampshade frames can all be restored with a little time and solder. It's not only money-saving, but it's fun to be your own repairman, too!

How-To Tricks

(Begins on page 129)

Try sliding a sheet of cardboard or metal behind the rainspout if you are painting it a different color from the rest of the house. This paint-guard will help you do a clean, quick job

For "skid-proof" cellar or outdoor stairs, sprinkle with clean, fine sand while the paint is still wet and tacky. Sweep away excess when dry

You can keep putty soft if you store it in a covered glass jar filled with water

FIRESAFETY IN THE HOME BEGINS WITH Concrete - IT CAN'T BURN!

During a 6-month period in 1947, several houses near Knoxville, Iowa, went up in flames. One of the houses that burned was the 7-room home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Johnson. Spurred by their loss of costly property and treasured possessions—and the losses of other families in the community—the Johnsons decided to rebuild and to make their new house as firesafe as possible.

They built the attractive and comfortable house shown in the views above. It features firesafe concrete construction—a concrete foundation with concrete footings, concrete masonry walls, concrete subfloors on precast concrete joists and an asbestos cement shingle roof. A basement provides space for a recreation room for the children as well as a work room, sewing room and storage room. The Johnsons not only have stopped worrying about fires—they find that they live better the year around in a concrete house.

Firesafety is only one reason why concrete is today's best construction value for homes of any style, size or floor plan. Concrete also offers maximum protection against storms, decay, termites and vermin. It is moderate in first cost, requires much less repair and maintenance and serves for a lifetime. The net result is true low-annual-cost shelter.

HOW TO GET A FIRESAFE CONCRETE HOUSE ...and what will it cost?

Phone a local concrete masonry manufacturer for names of architects and builders experienced in concrete house design and construction. Have the architect of your choice show you how any style or size house can be built economically with concrete walls, concrete subfloors and a firesafe roof.

Modernize old table lamps this easy, low-cost way!

You'd never think you could make an up-to-date lamp like the one above out of an old table lamp! But you can—in only a matter of minutes and for under $3!

It takes a handy Monowatt 'Improv-a-lite' lamp wiring unit and General Electric's new R-40 bulb. The new G-E bulb gives pleasing balance of up and down light, and your choice of 150, 100, or 60-watts at the flick of the switch.

Doing the job is easy. Remove old socket and wire, pull new wire through lamp, screw on 3-lite socket, then slide wire into plug, press lever, and it's ready for use.

Get a free booklet? "How to Modernize Lamps" gives tips on bringing old lamps up to date. For booklet, or to learn where to buy "Improv-a-lite" if not yet available where you live, write Monowatt Dept. of General Electric, Dept. AH-3, 100 Hathaway St., Providence, R. I.

What's the best way to heat a home with windows like this?

Hydro-Flo

Heating of course,
with modern baseboard panels

Naturally, you're planning a beautiful home... but plan, too, for comfort! Remember that the areas around large low windows must be adequately heated—and that a B & G Hydro-Flo Forced Hot Water System with baseboard heating panels is the ideal way to do it.

Baseboard panels replace the usual wooden baseboards and are just as inconspicuous. They fit neatly under low windows... raise a blanket of warmth against incoming cold.

Heated water is circulated through the baseboards by a B & G Hydro-Flo Booster Pump—automatically controlled so that the heat supply is always matched to the weather! No wasteful overheating—even in spring and fall, when only a little heat is needed.

Plenty of hot water, too, for washers, baths and showers. The Water Heater of a B & G Hydro-Flo System provides all you can use—winter and summer. And not least, you'll be amazed at how little it costs for both heat and hot water!

Ask your architect or heating contractor about B & G Hydro-Flo Heating.

It's your daughter's right to know and your duty to tell her

So easy to hand her
this FREE book (see below) which explains in detail.

Gown by Kiviette

Before entering marriage, every young woman should be fully instructed on the practice of internal feminine cleanliness. And it's of vital importance that her information should be based on modern scientific knowledge—not outdated, handed-down advice. Thanks to the great ZONITE principle—developed by a world-famous surgeon and scientist—you can now instruct your daughter with assurance.

First, you'll impress on her how important frequent douching is for her health, married happiness, after her periods and especially as a precaution against offensive odor. Then assure her that no other type liquid antisepticgermicide of all those tested for the douche is SO POWERFUL yet SAFE to tissues as ZONITE. It's positively non-poisonous, non-irritating!

One of the Greatest Advancements in Hygiene

For years many women were forced to rely on harmful poisons.
Then many foolishly went to the other extreme and used weak, ineffective homemade solutions

—which couldn't possibly offer them the powerful germicidal and deodorizing properties of ZONITE.
The advent of ZONITE put an end to all this confusion and has furnished women a dainty yet powerfully effective and safe-to-use antiseptic-germicide for important intimate feminine cleanliness.

What ZONITE does...

ZONITE removes odor-causing waste substances. It helps guard against infection and kills every germ it touches. As you know, it's not always possible to contact all the germs in the tract, but ZONITE does kill every reachable germ and leaves one with such a refreshed dainty feeling.

WHY NOT SWITCH TO TAMPAX NOW?

Every woman should investigate Tampax and make up her own mind about this modern internal form of monthly protection. Investigate it right away! Tampax is important for you. Here are the reasons—because this Tampax is dainty, hygienic, comfortable. Invented by a physician, it requires no belts, pins or external pads. Worn internally, it causes no odor or chafing. Wearer cannot feel its presence!

because you can be socially at ease with Tampax. No bulge or ridge-line can betray you, even in close-fitting formals or a "brief" swim suit. And no embarrassing disposal problems. (It's really small!)

because Tampax is made of pure surgical cotton contained in slender white disposable applicators. It's easy to insert, quick to change. Your hands needn't touch the Tampax. Average month's supply goes into purse. Buy Tampax at drug or notion counters. Choice of 3 absorbency-sizes: Regular, Super, Junior. . . . Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

Too Bad Dad—

Mother is right again and here goes your last excuse for not planning a Formica Vanitory* (combination vanity-lavatory) for the bathroom.

YOU DON'T NEED A BIG BATHROOM . . . Yes, even the smallest bathroom can have the beauty, color, long life of Formica and the convenience and utility of counter space around the wash bowl. Such built-in features as towel storage, medicine chests, and laundry hampers are practical and often utilize wasted space. So don't die hard, Dad. The very first time you experience the luxury of a shave in front of your new Vanitory you'll be happy about the whole thing.

Look in your classified 'phone directory under "Plastics" for the name of a local Formica fabricator who can make a Vanitory just for your bathroom.
