Distinctive new General Electric Refrigerator-Freezer

New "Straight-Line" Design!

OUTSIDE. Refrigerator fits flat against wall or square into corner—no coils protrude in back. "Straight-Line" Design brings a new beauty to your kitchen.

New "Touch-Action" Features!

INSIDE. "Touch-Action" puts all foods at your fingertips in the 10-cubic-foot refrigerator section at top, the 5-cubic-foot freezer at bottom.

EVERY LINE is smooth and straight in this smart, new General Electric Refrigerator-Freezer!

Not a hinge or handle protrudes to mar its beautiful, trim new look. Sides, top and back are all flat and straight. That's why you can set it flush against the wall in line with your other appliances or square into a corner. You can make it a "built-in" simply by hanging wall cabinets around it.

Inside, just a touch puts all foods at your fingertips with General Electric's Revolving Shelves, Revolving Vegetable Bins and Roll-Out Freezer.

A touch of your toe opens the Magnetic Safety Door on the refrigerator. Since it has no latch, it helps protect children from the danger of being locked inside.

So dependable! More than 3,500,000 General Electric Refrigerators have been in use 10 years or longer. Ask your General Electric dealer about his easy terms and generous trade-in allowance. Household Refrigerator Department, General Electric Company, Appliance Park, Louisville 1, Kentucky.

NOW, EVERYTHING AT YOUR TOUCH!

TOUCH . . . and the shelves revolve, putting all the food you want within easy reach!

TOUCH . . . and the freezer rolls out. You see and choose what you want at a glance!

TOUCH . . . and the Magnetic Safety Door opens to the big automatic-defrost refrigerator.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

Our cover focuses on Los Angeles, Cal., and the Jaques family who, in creating a larger home, included a pool and a room where the children could entertain. ## DEAR GUEST,

MARIANA B. DAVENPORT

I want to thank you, my recent house guest, for staying with us. And I want to do it quickly, before you write to me. You couldn't be more enthusiastic than I am. And since I am really grateful for your visit, why shouldn't you have it in writing?

You have gone home after a week's visit—and how you brightened the corners where you were! You left behind a whole collection of shining memories—but absolutely nothing in the second bureau drawer to be mailed back. Nothing. You came when you said you would, and so departed—had a way with hot muffins and a strong arm with my vacuum-cleaner—and an uncanny way of seeing some little job that needed doing, and doing it.

You disappeared for stretches in the afternoon when nothing was planned. You learned the family routine and fitted into it. You were good company at all times and content and happy if alone.

In brief, you were a joy to have around; a perfect guest. So now, this beautiful morning, I want to tell you so.

And thinking of you, I am emboldened to draw up a little list of Do's and Don'ts so that other guests might follow your splendid example:

1. Don't leave yellow sweater, leather belt, bedroom slippers or camera behind. Your hostess will say "That's all right, I had to go to the post office anyway." Maybe she did, but spare her the job of wrapping, the fussing with paper, twine and scissors, and the usual hunt for a box the right size.
2. If the family is allergic to chocolates, or if there is one plump member fighting the unremitting, exacting battle of the waistline, don't bring too enormous a box of candy. Such sweet dynamite is shattering to will power and it will be much easier for one's conscience to accept a little box.
3. Don't wander in late for meals or keep the family waiting.
4. Don't get in the way wanting to help with jobs, or let your hostess make work for you. If there are real chores needing to be

DINNER BY MALE

*Walter Slezak, star of Broadway's
"The First Gentleman," can cook, too!*

• Someone's in the kitchen today, and it's not the woman of the house. We'd like to present a superb male cook—Walter Slezak—who has cooked up one of the most tantalizing new-fangled ham recipes you'd ever want to taste. Taking a spare hour in the kitchen, actor Slezak can parlay it into a gourmet dish. He bastes ham with a special sour-cherry sauce, one that has a brandy flavor. The result of this mating of ham and sauce is a savory main dish treat that calls for several repeat performances. If you are tempted to try Mr. Slezak's secret recipe, let us know. We will be glad to send it to you.

Our debonair cook presides over the range in style, for he wears an apron that almost steals the scene from the cherry ham. With fabric remnants, we whipped up an apron that would make any country squire green with envy. And as a special added attraction, we gave Mr. Slezak a "watch" that's actually a pot-holder.

For sure, "dinner by male" can be a gala event if the man of the house latches onto this recipe and you provide him with the apron.

NOW U.S. SAVINGS BONDS PAY YOU HIGHER INTEREST FASTER!

If you've always bought U.S. Savings Bonds for their rock-ribbed safety, their guaranteed return, the way they make saving easier—you've got one more reason now!

Every Series E United States Savings Bond you've bought since February 1, 1957 pays you a new, higher interest—3¼% when held to maturity! It reaches maturity faster—in only 8 years and 11 months. And redemption values are higher, too, especially in the earlier years.

About your older Bonds? Easy. Just hold onto them. As you know, the rate of interest a Savings Bond pays increases with each year you own it, until maturity. Therefore, the best idea is to buy the new—and hold the old!

The main thing about E Bonds, of course, is their complete safety. Principal and interest are fully guaranteed. They are loss-proof, fire-proof, theft-proof—because the Treasury will replace them without charge in case of mishap. Your Savings Bonds are as solid as a rock—backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

Maybe you already know about Savings Bonds—as one of the 40 million Americans who own them today, or as one of the other millions who have used Bond savings to help pay for new homes, cars, or college educations, or to make retirement financially easier. If so, this is familiar territory to you—you know there's no better way to save.

But if you're new to the game, find out about Savings Bonds and what they can do for your future. Ask your banker, or check with your employer about the automatic Payroll Savings Plan that makes saving painless and easy.

PART OF EVERY AMERICAN'S SAVINGS
BELONGS IN U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

The U. S. Government does not pay for this advertisement. It is donated by this publication in cooperation with the Advertising Council and the Magazine Publishers of America.

New! Improved! Dissolves completely in dishwashers

New-formula Cascade eliminates drops that spot!

Only improved Cascade contains Chlorosheen to change drops of water into cleansing, clear-rinsing "sheets"—stops spotting as no other dishwasher detergent can!

Compare two glasses fresh from the dishwasher rinse. Water drops clinging to the glass washed in another detergent can dry into ugly spots. But not a drop remains to spot the Cascade-washed glass. That's the magic of Cascade's exclusive new Chlorosheen. Chlorosheen changes drops of water into free-flowing "sheets" . . . leaves everything so slippery-clean, rinse water slides right off. Result: no water drops, no more water spots! And new, improved Cascade dissolves completely in your dishwasher spray . . . leaves no dried-on specks for you to wipe off. It gets glasses clearer, silver and china cleaner than any other dishwasher detergent.

What's more, Cascade is safer for delicate china patterns than any other detergent. Switch to new, improved Cascade now sealed in protective foil.

"Flashlight Test" proves it!

"Light up" a glass and see. Cascade-washed glasses dry close-up clean—no spots, no specks. Proof that new-formula Cascade eliminates drops that spot.

• The conjugal-looking couple on the next page are none other than Mr. and Mrs. Western Meadowlark. Actually, Mr. Meadowlark's song is far sweeter and softer than the way he looks here, standing protectively over his mate. The pair have a rather large number of relatives, and the ones in the Eastern branch of the family are a bit larger. The colorful couple you see here are the seventh in our series of ready-to-frame Bird Prints reproduced from beautifully detailed original paintings by Arthur Singer. Also shown here are the official Flowers of states adopting the Western Meadowlark: Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oregon and Wyoming.

• Copies of previously published Bird Prints in this series are still available at 50¢ each. They are: #1) Cardinal; #2) Eastern Bluebird and Mountain Bluebird; #3) Ruffed Grouse, Ring-Necked Pheasant, and California Quail; #4) Mockingbird; #5) Robin; #6) Willow Goldfinch. ## After-dark Magic

Nothing's more wonderful than balmy summer evenings—especially by candlelight. On the terrace, in the garden—even indoors, candles imaginatively used for outside lighting can make a radiant evening for dining, relaxing or entertaining. For example, you might play up a piece of sculpture or create a party circle with candles. Or make an after-dark picture of a window wall. Frame it with some hurricane candles set in wrought iron ground stickers, arranged outside to play up interesting silhouettes and textures. You will find the trick will add a sense of spaciousness to your living room.

Food-warmer candles in votive light tumblers are also good. Use in colors keyed to your table accessories. Try suspending them from a brass candeltee, trimmed with fruit or flowers, for a spectacular centerpiece. Run them in cordon fashion along a stone wall or use them along the curve of a garden pool.

And no matter how curvy the road may be, a light touch keeps Chevrolet right on course. You'll like the solid way it stays put on sharp turns.

A car has to have a special kind of build and balance to handle and ride and run like a Chevy. It has to have Chevrolet's low, wide stance, its outrigger type rear springs, its carefully engineered weight distribution with the pounds in the right places! # Mike's Undaunted Spirit Paid Off

THELMA S. DOUGLAS

That August, when I returned from two weeks in the East, our young son, Bob, greeted me with, "Hi, Mom, we're going to have a carnival in our front yard and give the money to polio." "That's fine," I said, happy to see him again. It didn't take long to piece together the history of the project: when the polio epidemic reached nearby localities, neighbor Mike's father told him to stay out of the public pool. Ordinarily, Mike is one big grin, but this order upset him. "Polio's real serious," his friends advised.

Mike plans the carnival.

Just a few days later, when a high school football player, who was a friend of Mike's teen-age sitter, contracted polio, Mike decided his dad and the boys had been right. This thing was serious. So they'd stage a carnival and give the proceeds to the polio fund.

Mike first enlisted Walter, who likes to build. Then he sought Jerry, who has a wonderful imagination, and our Bob, who has a gift of persuasion. But little Mike with the big smile, the youngest of the four boys, was the generalissimo—every step of the way. To do the thing right, he said, they needed some money to buy nails and other supplies. First they collected newspapers from every house around, but the huge load brought only $2.28. Instead of giving up, they contracted for lawn-mowing jobs and added these quarters and half-dollars to the treasury. A store donated large packing crates that the boys built into booths and counters.

Under Mike's direction, work progressed rapidly—building by day, and "pokey" typing of handbills in the evenings.

Only twice was adult advice offered. We remarked that it wasn't too good an idea to ask people to spend money and give them nothing in return, so the boys dipped into their money and bought candy.

Another time, when plans included a shooting gallery to be set up in our ravine at carnival time, using Walter's BB gun, we reminded the boys that there was a law against the use of BB guns within city limits. The next thing we knew the four boys, with the gun, had paid a visit to the police station. They returned with the permission of the police department to use the gun.

The boys called at the newspaper office, and the next day the front page carried an article about the proposed carnival.

They tacked large signs to our trees near the street. With red paint they had printed, in 10" letters, "CARNIVAL HERE—SUNDAY 3-5."

Controlled Oil Penetration Makes SUN-PROOF Look Better Longer!

Much of the oil in ordinary paint soaks into the surface being painted. This leaves the paint coat starved and brittle—ready to crack and peel with severe weather changes.

SUN-PROOF's Vitolized Oil is treated to control penetration. Only enough oil goes into the wood to insure a firm bond. The rest stays in the paint film to resist weather.

How we retired in 15 years with $300 a month

We're having a wonderful time, Betty and I. We're doing all the things we've always dreamed of doing. We enjoy our home. Summers, we pack the car and take trips. And it's all thanks to a check for $300 that comes by mail, regular as clockwork, every month!

The neighbors think we're rich. Hardly any of them guess the truth. Actually, almost anyone can provide the regular income we have—if he starts young enough.

Luckily for me, I was about forty when Betty began to worry about our future. "You're going to want to slow up in a few years," she'd say. And I'd laugh. Because I felt fine. "But you won't always want to work," she'd say. "Well, I still have fifteen good earning years ahead of me," I'd answer.

But one day she stopped me. She asked me how much I'd earn in the next fifteen years—not counting raises. I did some quick arithmetic, multiplying my salary by fifteen. It ran up into six figures! I gave her the answer, and grinned.

Betty wasn't impressed. "How much of that do you think we'll save?" she asked. I had to be honest. We were always paying off on a new car or a radio, or going places. "A thousand or two," I admitted.

"That's just our trouble," she said. "We can't seem to save. You ought to take out one of those retirement income plans right now."

I could see that Betty was right. Most of the money I'd make in the next fifteen years would go—as it always did—unless I made some systematic plan for our future then and there. So I looked into the subject and discovered the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan.

It was a way I could make part of my salary now buy me a retirement income later. All I needed was to start in time.

With a Phoenix Mutual Plan, I could get a check for $300 a month for life, starting in fifteen years, when I reached fifty-five.

Betty and I were both mighty happy the day I applied and qualified for my Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan. Right away it gave us a wonderful feeling of security. But the big day came fifteen years later, when our first Phoenix Mutual monthly check for $300 arrived in the mail. I retired. And Betty and I are having the time of our lives—with no money worries.

YOUR SAFETY is up to you...

RICHARD HARTT

You never expect to be frightened by prowlers, or to witness an automobile accident, or to have your valuable possessions stolen. Nobody does. But it can happen to you. And if it does, it pays to be prepared. You can do more to protect your own safety at times like this than anyone else can do for you. As a matter of fact, you may have to act alone—there may be no one else around.

It takes time for the police to arrive at the scene of a crime, and there is helpful information you may be able to collect for them in the meantime. In addition, your precautions can keep some crimes from ever happening. You can discourage burglars, for example, from ever attempting to enter your home—or to steal your car or packages in it.

Here are some ways you can help prevent crime. Keep them in mind! FOR MORE PICTURES, PLEASE TURN THE PAGE

AN ORIGINAL PAINTING FOR FRISKIES BY DOUGLASS CROCKWELL

Puppies "dig in" when dinner is Friskies

—the balanced diet meat-loving dogs love!

IT'S A JOY to watch how Friskies clean, meaty taste satisfies eager appetites... to know that your dog is getting the well-balanced nourishment he must have for growth and vigor.

DOGS CRAVE MEAT. The principal ingredient in Friskies is lean red horse meat—including choice steaks, chops, roasts. Here's the rich source of Friskies body-building protein, as well as the meaty flavor your dog craves. From other carefully balanced food essentials come the vitamins and minerals so necessary for sound teeth, bone and superb condition.

EXTRA NOURISHING. While some dog foods simply fill, Friskies fully nourishes... provides up to twice the nourishment of dog foods selling for only pennies less. Feed Friskies regularly—made to the high quality standards of the Carnation Company.

For Variety—Friskies Meal
Easiest of all to mix. Quickest, too—mixes instantly. A complete diet containing all the food values of choice steaks, chops, roasts.

ALBERS MILLING CO., DIV. OF CARNATION COMPANY, LOS ANGELES 36, CALIFORNIA

Lock all packages in the trunk of your car when you finish shopping and have decided to leave the vehicle for any length of time. And don't forget to take your car keys with you, for keys left in car are an invitation to thieves. Keep copies of your license number in your purse and safely at home.

WHEN YOU HAVE A PARTY, don't put guests' valuables in a back bedroom where a window-opening thief can work quietly unobserved.

Remember that the effectiveness of any Police Department depends upon public cooperation. Many crimes can be prevented when you, the public, are alert and eager to cooperate with your local Police Department. One way you can always help is to be wary of any individuals who solicit by mail, phone or in person, or who represent themselves as sponsors of a charitable organization, unless they fully identify themselves and present their credentials. If you are in any doubt, check on them through your Police Department.

DON'T DO IT!
Don't forget to have an electrical contractor expand your wiring to fit the needs of your new remodeling.

New Maytag COLD WATER WASH delights "Good Housekeeping" editors

Cold-water Washed
in a Maytag

ONCE TWIN CASHMERES! Left, hand-laundried 12 times: slight fading and matting. Right, cold-water washed in a Maytag 12 times: color, size, softness just like new.

In Background: new MAYTAG All-Fabric Washer and matching No-Vent Dryer in Pasteltone Pink. (Also in Green, Yellow, White.) As little as $3.50 a week.

"Even kinder to wool, cashmere, 'Orlon' and the like than tenderest hand squeezing," says magazine

You may have read of this new Maytag feature in "Good Housekeeping." After weeks of testing, they report that cold-water washing is the thing for all those "wash and wear" type garments—lets you wash them automatically without losing their no-iron feature.

What's more, new high-style deep-toned towels, scatter rugs, bedspreads, sport shirts, etc., stay fresh and bright. Washing this way reduces shrinkage, saves wear on fabric and finish, cuts ironing, too.

Naturally, you've hot or warm water, too, to get regular wash Maytag-clean.

Pushbutton cold-water washing is just one of the features that make the new Maytag the most modern and complete automatic washer you can buy. The Maytag Co., Newton, Iowa.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS HOUSE PAINT

Too Little Time?

What is this generation coming to?

Should it be outlawed, pitied or unsentimentally scorned as silly, tiresome disturbers of our peace?

In answer to that familiar current quip, "What is the young generation coming to?" we are happy to present this success story. It may not be the answer to your problem, but maybe it's time for a check-up. You get check-ups on everything else—your health, your investments, your car. Why not on your home? After all, times change and so do you and your family's needs and objectives as your children grow and mature. The house you bought six or seven years ago may have been just fine for your purpose then—but what about now? Maybe you need more bedrooms—more entertainment area. Perhaps another house would offer far better opportunities for a fuller family life than you have now.

We cannot answer for you, but we do propose publishing some solutions to a vexing problem that cannot be ignored, must be solved—if we are to enjoy our children as long as we can before they fly the nest. There's too little time to waste it in helpless exasperation, without pampering or spoiling them there has to be a solution—and there is.

Last month we published a story of the Charles J. Paines in Dallas, Texas—parents who amiably kept moving from room to room to provide home living space for their teenagers. And a very interesting story it was. This month, our story comes from Cheviot Hills, a suburb of Los Angeles. It's a warm, fine story and you'll enjoy it as a success story even though teenagers are not your immediate problem. Or you have had the problem and solved it, perhaps? If so, we'd like mightily to hear about it!

PARENT-TEENAGER
SUCCESS STORIES

Difficult to accept a swimming pool as a practical issue in a middle-cost-bracket home project? The Jaques swimming pool was not planned as a luxury to pamper their teenagers.

It's an energy builder, one of the staples of family fun. The swimming pool did not come, however, just because the youngsters naturally wanted it. As Mr. Jaques explained, pools don't come with box tops. Was a pool worth working for? If they wanted the pool, Mr. and Mrs. Jaques would finance building it, if the youngsters would take over the maintenance. The bargain was made—and has been kept. No, the Jaques' swimming pool did not just fall in the backyard's lap as a big beautiful gift. It's there, sparkling with light and laughter, by family cooperation.

In focusing on the all-satisfying family life of the Eber Jaques, it is not that Mr. and Mrs. Jaques know all the answers about teenagers—they don't. Nor that their way is the only way to knit tight family ties. It isn't. But it would be difficult to find people who do a better job of providing a more healthy home environment for normal development and inspired well-being. It's a real cool set-up—done on a real family co-op plan . . . a project the youngsters went into half-heartedly . . . then, their opinions considered and often accepted, interest mounted and the whole thing became a smashing success.

Mr. and Mrs. Eber Jaques of Los Angeles had recognized for some time that they should do something about a larger house. They have a teenage daughter and a teenage son. The present is a kind of Golden Age. Every second is precious. College, and even longer separations are just ahead. Time cannot be lost. The time for them to have a family house was now, if they hoped to keep abreast of their youngsters' fun, dreams, and plans, and that was, to the letter, their fond hope. They wanted a bigger house, a family house, where they could keep their youngsters at home—where the young folk could dance, and swim, and entertain their friends, and where their friends would enjoy coming. They, themselves, wanted to know Carol and Eber's friends better. It was an important matter to them.

Several of Mr. and Mrs. Jaques' friends, who had teenage children, took a rather dim view of the idea that there could be any great amount of spontaneous fraternizing between parents and teenagers. They were all conscientious parents who had done their galvanic best to get next to their own teen problem and frankly admitted they were stymied, thwarted, and downright discouraged.

The Jaques' youngsters were just like all the others—ardent devotees of copy-cat dress, spoke a jumbo-mumbo language of their own that changed before you could say Jack Sprat from "dig it," "cool it," "chics," and "what a salad" to something else equally meaningless. "Yes" they were a bit irritating at times in their know-it-all, sorry-for-you attitude, but Mr. and Mrs. Jaques looked upon it all as a passing phase, marked by skin-deep complexities. As for their aspiration of companionship with the nonchalant young set, they could recall some very fine times during high-level get-togethers which had strengthened their theory that parents and children (regardless of latter's age) had gone together since long before the combination of bacon and eggs. They believed that instead of just supplying an attractive home background that would be used more or less as a dock where people tie-up between goings and comings, they should make the new house a lasting pleasure that would mean more than a temporary flash of ecstatic enthusiasm that soon dies down to "so-what." If they were going to break their backs to supply a delightful family home, they wanted some old-fashioned pride and appreciation in it from all who were to profit by the effort. They were not asleep at the switch, however, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Jaques. They know that young people will not conform willingly to a code laid down by their elders (you can't talk or tell home pride into them) unless in turn, they are recognized as persons with inalienable rights and enough maturity to have a certain amount of say in a plan. Here was, the parents decided, an opportunity to prove a point and at the same time, to initiate their youngsters into the rudiments of home financing. "You are," they told Carol and Eber, "to have a definite part in our prospective new home project; from start to finish, from choosing and buying a house, to the day we move into it, you are to have your say, with all four of us sharing an equal opportunity to voice approval or disapproval of problems, large or small. There will be regular family meetings. We will start with so much money to spend on the project and put our heads together in an earnest effort to spread the money out to cover the entire undertaking."

Mr. and Mrs. Jaques made no practice flights in contradiction to facts. They were agreed, all families must cope with the fact that two generations have two different conceptions of the good life. Parents require a certain amount of relative peace and quiet, while teenage youngsters are dedicated to noise and action. To buy a standing house and remodel it—better than building a new house? For the Jaques, there was a good basis for remodeling. There was not only the time element but too, they wanted the spaciousness of an old house—plenty of bedrooms, and an all-satisfying entertainment arrangement for the children and their friends, and also, for themselves. Room for both points of view—gregarious noisy action and their own need for privacy and quiet. Remodeling was, then, the best as well as the quickest way to achieve the best in living for all.

After considerable looking, they found this two-story house, and without too extensive remodeling have made a lanai by enclosing a rear U-shaped patio, turned a downstairs bedroom into a sewing room, with space left over for needed rear hallways which allow for greater flexibility for in-and-outdoor dining.

It is not what you call an elegant house, not at all, but a gracious background for family living and social activities. Upstairs, there is liberal bedroom space for everyone, including overnight guests. Downstairs, the house impartially takes care of the parents and their social life, as well as the youngsters' fun. Although there is no set rule that the living room is solely for Mother and Dad, it and the dining room have been furnished with adults in mind. The den, which adjoins both the living room and lanai, becomes, because of the television, a game of who-gets-there-first. The lanai, the new room, is primarily the indoor retreat for the teens although the family seniors, juniors, and guests of all seem at times to float amiably in and out of the lanai to the pool. Not much wonder that the lanai is a busy center. Its broad outside wall of glass gives it an openness and informal air that offers a whole new way of enjoying, and being a part of the outdoor fun. Here Carol and young Eber cook for their ever-starving young friends—and don't fool yourselves about the youngsters preparing the meal themselves. Eber is a chip off the block—a good host by nature, and Carol is all of that, and a really efficient cook, an accomplishment which she learned, and seriously assumed when her mother took over making the curtains, bedspreads, and lamps.

The lanai, as you see from the before shot on the preceding spread, was formerly a U-shaped rear patio. The floor was covered, at the suggestion of Mrs. Ross, with cork so that the room could be used for dancing. Mr. Jaques was a Gunnery Officer in World War II, and the ship models, which Mrs. Ross has sprayed black and used on the pine-paneled wall above the buffet table, were the models with which he used to instruct the gunnery crews, and then was allowed to keep.

And then, since the house is planned above everything else as a background to promote "home" a social center for their two teenagers and their friends, they used the back yard area for a swimming pool—the outdoor lure that in the language CONTINUED ON PAGE 82

The Co-op Plan and how it worked!

Here was, the parents decided, an opportunity to prove a point and at the same time to initiate their youngsters into the rudiments of home financing. They told Carol and Eber:

1. "You are to have a definite part in our prospective new home project; from start to finish, from choosing and buying a house, to the day we move into it.
2. You are to have your say, with all four of us sharing an equal opportunity to voice approval or disapproval of problems.
3. There will be regular family meetings.
4. We will start with so much money to spend on the project and put our heads together in an effort to spread the money out to cover the entire undertaking."

Mr. Jaques, as chairman, explained how much money was available for the desired new home, the probable cost of buying the house, then remodeling it. His theory in initiating the family into the rudiments of finance was, "You can't live with your head in a paper sack, and now is your chance to prove that point." The idea had a certain amount of appeal, and as time and the family conclaves went on and the parents proved their sincerity and trust in the youngsters' judgment, their confidence and interest, as well as ego, increased.

Careful apportioning of funds became a challenging game. "Good chess moves," Mr. Jaques called certain teen suggestions which were promptly snapped up. By the time this house was purchased and the remodeling estimates were in, Eber and Carol had their heads so far out of the paper sack that they were charting odd jobs that they, as well as their parents, could take over to pare down costs here and there. Youngsters and parents were in business together! They were building a house, actively working on their own home—doing this and that with their own hands—"anything to save a buck."

Susan Ross was the interior decorator Mrs. Jaques employed. But instead of having their curtains, bedspreads and lampshades made for them, they had Mrs. Ross plan each one and supply the fabric, while Mrs. Jaques did the actual work herself. Carol, to stem the pressure, became her mother's other arm in the kitchen. Not to be outdone, when Mr. Jaques received the landscape plan from their designer, Eber came forth with three spades—one for his father, one for his uncle, and one for himself. The three of them did all the planting, put in the grapestake fence and also installed the outdoor lighting. Mr. Jaques takes full care of the garden.

MARY E. MONZE

Though a family of three only needs a small house, it's not unusual for them to demand such big-house comfort as a 20-foot living room, and a kitchen with as much cabinet space as most large houses. Mr. and Mrs. William Caveny of Northport, Long Island, N. Y., wanted such features in a home when they saw just what they were looking for in one of our summer issues—an advertisement featuring a house decorated by Armstrong's Hazel Dell Brown. Sketch plans and sources, even to the furnishings, were offered in booklet form for only 10 cents.

The Cavenys sent for the booklet and Mr. Caveny drew the plans himself from the drawings, then hired a carpenter.

"We Knew It Was Just the Plan

We'd Been Looking For When ...

We Saw It

The two of them built the house, completing it that same autumn. In fact, the Cavenys moved into their home in time to enjoy Thanksgiving dinner there.

The 13x23' living room (views far right) features a large fireplace, and built-in bookcases and sofa. Wood-paneled walls are painted white—ceiling between beams, a sky blue. The French windows at the dining end are hung with sheer curtains. Draw draperies in a floral print echo sofa and chair pattern.

The kitchen, with walls of Linowall and floors of linoleum, can be cleaned in a breeze. The master bedroom and bath, not shown, can be reached through the door at left of fireplace. Neola, the Cavenys' little daughter, has in her room the gay plaid wallpaper and sheer curtains used in the original plan.

in The American Home

Aw, come on, Mamma, let's help Papa. Let's help him save money. If we were a little more cooperative, he might more easily be induced to make our "bargains" into real treasures. Good new furniture is expensive, so we often have to wait a long time to make our purchases. But a little ingenuity plus Papa's elbow-grease can turn an old, somewhat beat-up piece like this "secretary" desk into useful, good-looking furniture such as the desk, hanging cabinet and coffee table we made from the old desk.

Pieces like this are easy to find in second-hand furniture stores. You may not find a desk exactly like this one, but you will find a similar one—or a different piece of furniture you can separate into several good units.

At left below is the secretary "as it was," and then as we cut it apart. The finish was dark and gummy and the desk lid was split, but the joints were firm. We turned this into 3 pieces—a desk, hanging cabinet and coffee table.

Top of desk unscrewed as a complete unit, but you may have to add a bottom piece to your find. Lid needed glue, and new legs were necessary.

Mama finds the "Bargain"

But Papa, let's takes on from

We removed the old cracked finish from the top section of the desk, then applied shellac to seal the wood. We painted this piece powder blue. We masked off the stripes on the sides, glass in the doors, and the top molding strip with masking tape, and painted the stripes a deeper shade of the same blue. When paint was dry we carefully peeled off the tape. After sizing the inside of the cabinet, we papered it with old-fashioned calico paper. Filled with special treasures, it is a wonderful hanging cabinet.

To refinish, clean off all old finish with paint remover, following the manufacturer's directions. Don't scratch or gouge wood as you scrape off old finish. Sand wood smooth.

We decided our desk would look better with a frame between legs. Mortise ends to fit into top of legs that you have cut to fit. Attach legs to the top with dowels and glue.

Mix 1 part shellac with 5 parts alcohol and apply to the wood. Brush on quickly; let dry 24 hours. Rub lightly with steel wool. Stain if desired. Repeat shellac application 5 times.

Hitchcock version of chair has natural cane seat. Early American and Hitchcock flower design decorates front and back of chair. Wood section of the chair is painted black.

When you see six matching chairs outside an antique shop going for a song, it's such a temptation to buy them now and decide what to do with them later. How long will they sit around before that happens? A little teamwork between Momma and Poppa can polish it off in short order. Poppa can remove the old surface, glue weak joints and sand to a smooth natural finish. Then they're ready for Momma to take over on the artistic part of the operation. Whether the chairs are simply sprayed with color from a can, or dressed up with a skirt and seat pad—both Momma and Poppa can be proud of their efforts.

Chair is given a complete, covering coat of shiny black lacquer: then "dolloed up" with seat and back pads made of tufted chintz.

Chair is painted a bright color to match the seat pad and skirt. For extra dash—just add gold braid swags with tassels as decoration.

Sanded down to its original natural wood finish, chair back is supported with wire mesh; covered, back and seat, with tufted green corduroy.

Paint the chair a glossy olive green color, then finish with a scalloped slipcover for back and pad that ties to seat.

Chair is painted black, then decorated with seat pad (we used bright yellow), small scalloped skirt, and a matching fabric tacked to back of chair.

Daily Through Gate 5

JOHN LIPPERT

The time is 5:39, the scene is the harried confusion of Pennsylvania Station at the rush hour. Here, at Gate 5, almost every evening we find our principals, Ray and Bryn Solowinski, waiting to escape from the spirited world of high fashion to their house in Fords, New Jersey. Most people think that a fashion model leads an exciting movie-star life. Bryn and Ray are among the many examples of people in their profession who somehow manage to lead the same, simple quiet lives as families with children lead anywhere. Blonde and beautiful Bryn has been 12 times a cover girl, and Ray, her talented photographer husband, has a high score of covers with national magazines—30 at last count.

Yet, both of them have kept their liking for the simple life. When quitting time rolls around each day, they've had enough of slick, fast-paced New York. The most important thought in their minds is to "get away from it all." Getting away from it all involves much more than a walk down the block or a quick cab home. It means a mad 15-minute dash to Penn Station to make a train, then a 35-minute trip to leave the city behind, and finally a ten-minute drive to their own quiet retreat—a 150-year-old farmhouse on a shady spot of green land—the house with the pink roof.

Like many other working couples, both Ray and Bryn love their work enough to put up with the inconvenience of its big-city location. Yet the peace of the country was important to them. As a result, they feel that the time spent in fixing up their old house was worth every bit of the effort they've put in. We think you'll agree when you see the results on the following pages.

go photographer Ray and his cover-girl wife, Bryn, to their farmhouse with the pink roof

These young marrieds have recast a dismal 150-year-old farmhouse by adding pink shutters and a coat of white paint

Although they both have busy, full-time schedules in New York and commute daily, Ray and Bryn manage to spend as much time as possible during each day with their 5-year-old son John.

When we first saw the "before" pictures of Ray and Bryn Solowinski's home, we were sure they had acquired a haunted house. We were convinced that any couple needed a great deal of old-fashioned pioneer spirit to attempt to refurbish this dismal affair—especially when two busy people worked a full schedule every day in New York City along with daily commuting. However, first things first. So, unconcerned by how long it would take them, Ray and Bryn tackled the job of rehabilitating the outside of their farmhouse. It took approximately 12 months and $2,000 dollars to put the exterior in its present bandbox condition. By really knuckling down to work on evenings and weekends and doing all the work themselves, Ray and Bryn managed to complete the job in what we think is record time. And by work we don't mean they did piddly little jobs, but major changes, such as a two-car garage and studio with a darkroom which took an $800 cut out of the $2,000. Not only did the major repairs include new pink roofing and bright pink shutters, but also landscaping and a stone retaining wall. The two-car garage and studio and darkroom were musts and among the first projects, since Ray does a lot of his fashion photography right in his home. Polishing off the exterior was the first task of their ten-room farmhouse for Ray and Bryn. Now, with the same gusto, they're updating the interiors with paint and small ingenious uses of their furniture.

Before and after—the same house minus an old Victorian porch and sporting a new studio-garage wing, a pink roof and shutters.

Since it was first built, 150 years ago, this 10-room farmhouse has undergone 3 major architectural "face-liftings." In the first remodeling, the austere structure acquired a Victorian style. Now, more effectively and honestly, it reflects the crisp taste of its new young owners.

In the recent transition the Victorian porch was removed and a Greek revival-type entrance was added. Minus the old porch, the house leaves room for growth of the large maples, planted when the house was built originally. No thought was given then to the fact that they'd grow so large.

When the garage was added, little John's footprints were imbedded in the cement.

Wild Life Beauty

FOR YOUR TABLE

Clip three big dark red Dracaena leaves along the center and side-veined sections to form about nine or ten additional small leaves which you will use as background.

Use the burl as a "lake" for the duck figurine and establish dimensions by height and width of the design by putting leaves and Pitcher Plant blooms in oval cup pin-holder.

Begin to fill in spaces in the design by adding the Dracaena leaves and "blossoms," turning tall elements in to repeat rhythm and movement of the wild duck's flight.

Continue to add leaves and blooms, with a final bit of wild raspberries (black caps) picked fresh from the vine. Any wild fruit will do instead of the variety you see here.

This wild life group would seem to be transported directly from its natural habitat if it weren't for the artfulness of the design. Serving as a foil for the ceramic figurine, the deceptive "flower" is the common Pitcher Plant, which isn't really a flower as it seems to be, but a very elegant seed pod. The name, Pitcher Plant, comes from the leaves (not used here), which are shaped like curving pitchers with a pouring lip. The plant is cunningly designed to attract and trap insects, which eventually perish by falling into a watery grave at the bottom of the pitcher.

Originally a wild plant, and on the conservation lists of many states, the Pitcher Plant can now be found at many florist shops. The berries in the setting are wild raspberries, picked just as they grow on the bush, with ripe and unripe fruits in the same cluster. Other wild fruit or any large ceramic figurine can be substituted for what we show here.

This Change Outside

Designer: WILLARD B. SMITH, JR.

A house almost 75 years old can offer, with a little remodeling, a big, bright living room as nice as any new home can boast. That's what Mr. and Mrs. Lester A. Serling of Syracuse, New York, discovered when they added a big picture window to their home. The only other change they made to the outside was new shingling. But the expanded window, plus a window-seat ledge inside, adds a fine view. And it adds sitting space that takes up a minimum of room. Now Lester and Jeanne Serling have a living room as big, modern and bright as anyone could ask for. Once again, a "small" remodeling has paid off.

THE ANSWER WAS IN THE

Trees, a large lot, and a house they liked in a good residential neighborhood made Dr. and Mrs. Roy Gessner of Hopkins, Minnesota, decide to remodel when their teen-age boys needed bigger bedrooms. The upstairs rooms were small, and the boys had no place to study or to entertain their friends.

So the Gessners converted their garage into a double bedroom-rumpus room. Then they added the space of a small downstairs bedroom to the kitchen and enlarged a half-bath to a full-sized one.

"We all like the open feeling of the boys' new bedroom-living room, but the amazing thing," the Gessners say, "is that the boys are better friends since they share the same room. And their school grades have improved. They enjoy this room, where they can have their friends, listen to their records, and be by themselves. It has given them a chance to know each other better."

Mrs. Gessner adds, "It has taken the wear and tear from the rest of the house, too. We have an amusement room in the basement, but the boys felt it was downstairs, closed in and away from everything. Now with their own room on the main floor their things are all in one place."

The Gessners also added a double garage at the side of their lot. It makes better use of the space—gives more living area. The remodeling has added a pleasant outdoor living court with southern exposure, and a redwood fence now gives privacy from the street. The living area, just outside the boys' room, is in constant use.

By remodeling, the Gessners have made their own home serve their increasing needs—with dividends.

feature week-end meals

Whether you spend your weekend quietly with your family or entertaining guests, there's no fun in it if you agonize in the kitchen over meals. Yet what meal can be prepared without some downright hard work? Our idea is to plan far ahead on shopping and cooking so that come Saturday and Sunday, the long-drawn-out culinary workout will be well in the background. That gives you, the hostess, a chance to be as gay and carefree as your family and guests. The main consideration for this "off the set" production should be the main course—meat. Concentrate on the right selection for this one spectacular, and it will carry you right through the weekend without a trace of a leftover! For example, start off with turkey as an entrée. After you roast it, serve it hot or cold—depending upon your mood or the weather.

"Ready" it on Friday (your guests may come for the long weekend). After the roasted feast, you can serve sliced turkey with cold cuts, CREAMED TURKEY on shortcake, turkey salad, croquettes, turkey pancakes, and on ad infinitum! Get the idea? When turkey is your main meat selection, think about an accompaniment of PEAR WALDORF SALAD, some HOT SAVORY TOAST, and LEMON TEA TARTS you make up far in advance and store in your freezer. Happy weekend!

Izaak Walton's Pack for a Cookout

It's probably a question in anybody's mind which a fisherman loves most—the anticipation of catching the fish or talking of them. For whatever reason men enjoy this outdoor pursuit, we do want to steer them straight on those occasions when they leave the little woman at home and go tooting off in the car to play hookey with a fishing rod. If you're planning an "on-shore cookout" of your catch, for goodness sake don't ask the "little lady" to pack some food. You've probably seen enough shades of disapproval already, and this would be heaping more coals on the fire. Take the check list we made out (see below), go out into the kitchen and start packing a lunch yourself. If you do go fishing at all regularly, it will pay you to blow yourself to a few pieces of equipment—one of those picnic hampers for instance—all outfitted with knives and forks, plates and containers that fit together like parts of a watch. You might also put admirable use to one of those soft-sided insulated bags that takes well to hot and cold foods at the same time. And as romantic as a bonfire may be, one of those standing charcoal grills is better for cooking. It won't smoke so much, and you can get within five feet of it without an asbestos suit. Wait and see, the smell of fish broiled over charcoal will fetch every farmer's cat within five miles (good judgment on the part of the cat). A vacuum jug or two would come

The flavor of any fish, small perch or magnificent lake trout, will be enhanced if you will cut a few gashes in the side and insert a slice or two of onion and fresh tomato. It will need only eight to ten minutes of broiling. Serve this white flaked fish with bread and butter sandwiches and roasted potatoes.

FOR YOUR SHORE "COOKOUT"

- *salt and pepper
- *spatula for turning fish
- *bread-and-butter sandwiches in handy too (one for hot beverages, the other for cold). You'll also want something to munch on while fishing. Pack a few sandwiches, pickles, fruit and coffee, as we have in the kit at the top of page 52. This may sound like enough food for a regiment, but the very thought of eating in the open makes men hungry. Let the station wagon tailgate serve as a convenient table for such a feed as this!

Most fishermen have justifiable affection for the old-fashioned method of boiling coffee. Before you leave home, tie the coffee up in a piece of cheesecloth. Allow a heaping tablespoon per cup and an extra to grow on. To boil, put the pail over the fire and simmer five to eight minutes.

All kinds of refinements can be added to outdoor cooking gear. An ice bucket is one good example.

Potatoes roasted in the open provide the finest kind of outdoor eating. For this procedure you'll want good baking potatoes. When your fire cooks down to a steady glow, bury the potatoes in the hot ashes. Some outdoor cooks prefer enveloping them in a foil blanket although we still prefer digging them into coals à la natural. They'll look like lumps of coal when you take them out, being a quarter of an inch thick with ash. But the blackened skin only makes the appearance of the snow-white fluffy interior all the more dramatic. However, if you really prefer baking them at home, and you happen to have an insulated container, wrap them in foil and do a fast reheat job over the charcoal.

Bread and butter sandwiches are the only needed addition (not counting dessert).

Now you may prefer making your coffee in a percolator. If so, use the same proportions as if you were making boiled coffee—a heaping tablespoon per cup with an extra for the pot. But this time be sure it's percolator grind.

If you haven't a large size brazier, try a small portable bucket type; for coffee by the potful—a giant-size, complete with cups.

How to make a SOUPER BARBECUE SAUCE

It's a humdinger of a barbecue sauce for any meat — smooth and tart and ready in a fraction of cookbook time. And soup's practically all there is to it. Just add the chef-tested extras in our recipe — or your own favorite herbs and spices. It's a simple get to the outdoor (or indoor) cook's success!

CAMPBELL'S SOUPER BARBECUE SAUCE

1 tablespoon brown sugar	1 can Campbell's Tomato Soup
1 tablespoon vinegar	¼ cup sweet-pickle relish
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce	¼ cup chopped onion

Combine all ingredients in a skillet or saucepan. Simmer until onions are done and tender, and the spicy-sweet aroma tells you all the flavors are blended thoroughly. Makes 1½ cups.

Good cooks cook with Campbell's Soups

Ordinarily I vastly prefer to cook the Victuals myself and then, at great length, tell you how utterly divine they are. But not so this month! For in Minneapolis I had the pleasure of spending a day with two people who love to cook, cook exceeding well, have a delightfully original philosophy of cooking and are extremely articulate about it, what's more. So that you may share in full the circumstances that brought me to the Edmonds, I shall not use one more line of space but launch forthwith into the correspondence I had with the gentleman G.V. chef of the month, the letters in which he set forth their philosophy of food and the history of their culinary adventures. I quote Pete . . .

I am ready to go to work cooking any time you say. As I told you, I claim only to be the second best cook in Minnesota . . . I married the best one. I guess our personal interest in gourmet cooking for entertaining was probably fanned into life by interest in the wonderful restaurant food in New York City which we were exposed to when we lived there briefly just before and after World War II.

My activity in the kitchen took a pattern which must be familiar to you. I started cooking a few dishes, as an addition to my duties at the charcoal broiler and in the drink department. I was then informed (and still am) that I was a 100% menace in the kitchen . . . loudly demanding this and that . . . holding up my Liz's essential progress, throwing off the timing, leaving a mess which somehow always seemed to rank in magnitude well above any mess she made.

What kind of unusual dishes do we serve?

We've found, first of all, that an infinite variety isn't necessary. At charcoaling, for instance, we don't often get away from steak. In season, roast corn is a great favorite, and only occasionally will I do

Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Edmonds enjoy the finished product shown in preparation on opposite page—Pete's delicious Shrimp Fines Herbes.

"Liz has a wide array of criminally rich desserts. Because of our love of our own cooking has brought us both to a degree of corpulence that has drilled a little discretion into us, we scarcely touch them ourselves. But boy how our guests love 'em." Here are 2 of them — Strawberry Angel Pie, Chocolate Mousse Marquise, you can see what Pete means on both scores.

Wild Rice with Mushrooms and Almonds

• shrimp fines herbes

Melt ½ stick butter in chafing dish and add a pinch each of:

Tarragon, celery salt, chervil, pepper, salt
Spanish saffron, optional (take it easy!)

• Have at hand a bowl of chopped parsley, and when above ingredients are blended throw in a handful of the parsley. When butter has melted, add the cooked deveined shrimp, mixing gently so that shrimp will be coated with butter and herbs. Add 1 jigger sherry. Put cover on and let simmer until shrimp are warmed through and aromatic. Sprinkle over more chopped parsley just before serving.

Cornstarch may be added to thicken sauce.
Serve with toothpicks, directly from chafing dish.

• Cut 2 lbs. bottom round or chuck in 1½" pieces; flour and brown in butter. Add salt and pepper and 1½ cups red wine. Add enough water to level with the meat and bouquet garni of parsley, thyme, bay leaf and some mushroom peelings. Cover and cook in a slow oven for 2 hours. Transfer meat to a casserole. Surround with 1 lb. mushrooms cut in quarters and sautéed in butter, ½ lb. small onions or shallots. Strain liquid over meat and add 1 small glass of brandy. Complete cooking for another hour.

chicken (little broilers are hard to buy out here) or chops. In other words, no fancy barbecues or basting of roasts. For some reason I'll never understand, enough other people cremate their meats when they cook over charcoal so that my steaks can be called unusual. And so simple a thing as Bearnaise sauce can contribute to the psychology . . . even if the guests prefer the steak without sauce (and they usually do).

We like to serve a hot canape. I do a shrimp fines herbes in a chafing dish (which I'll do for Good Victuals), and Liz makes excellent hot mushroom sandwiches and a variety of hot cheese canapes.

In our entertaining, Liz and I kept adding dishes that might be considered a little out of the usual in the servantless world in which we live. One of the big criterions has had to be—keep it simple! We generally try out a dish on ourselves in order to correct the recipe as needed before serving it to guests; and if preparation gets too complicated we never try it again. For instance, I put up a perfectly wonderful Sauerbraten from the recipe in Luchow's delightful cook book . . . but the marinating and all was so tedious that no guest at the Edmonds' will ever taste it. From other favorite cookbooks we use only two or three recipes. Why? Because the rest are too complicated . . . take too long to prepare . . . require in-redients not available at the neighborhood supermarket.

I consider this simplicity an important part of the story for you . . . nothing we do is too complicated for any of your readers who have the basic instinct of a good cook.

About 1948 I was lucky enough to become a member of the Twin City Chapter of Les Amis D'Escofier. The activities of this society are limited to one tremendous classical French dinner per year, and except for a handful of us nonprofessional gourmets, its membership is entirely of professional restaurant, hotel and food men. Quite rapidly my admiration for professional cookery grew, and with it, some knowledge of the elements of fine cookery and good wines. But I don't believe that people who entertain without help can possibly expect to achieve professional results. We don't have the time, or the skill, or the

½ c. slivered almonds

2 tbs. chopped chive, green onions or

½ lb. sliced mushrooms
3 cups chicken broth

• Put all ingredients except broth in heavy frying pan and cook until rice turns yellow, stirring more or less constantly. Put into a casserole with broth, cover tightly and put in oven (325°) for about an hour. Does no harm if it stands a while, which makes it a perfect "party" dish.

• charcoal broiled lobster tail hors d'oeuvres

• Put 2 (11 oz.) packages frozen lobster tails in salted boiling water with a bay leaf. Bring to a boil and cook 5 min. Cool in cold water. Slice each lobster tail down back and cut to make 4 pieces from each tail. Take meat out of shell, cut into about 1½" pieces. Cut pieces of bacon into about 4 pieces and wrap around the lobster pieces. Secure with toothpicks. Thread on thin skewers and broil over charcoal. These have a very delicious charcoal flavor. Serve 2 or 3 on a plate with hot hollandaise sauce and a thin lettuce (or cucumber) sandwich.

▲ CUCUMBER SOUP is tantalizing any day, made with finely-shredded cucumbers and onion steeped in beef bouillon or chicken broth. It's a soup to make even a gourmet admit the French idea—soup always simmering on the back of the stove as a catch-all for every meat trimming and vegetable leaf—is no longer necessary. Not when you can turn out a soup like this so quickly. Serve it with our layered sandwich, and you're serving a nourishing meal that everyone will pronounce one of the most delightful they've tasted in a long, long time.

CHEESE SOUP may be a new one to you. But don't pass it up as strange. Because this soup, accompanied by a tomato-and-watercress sandwich, means mighty good summer eating. This is the easy sort of a meal you should serve to snare wary appetites when the heat makes everyone feel eating is only a chore. Cheese soup proves this need never be the case!

FISH CHOWDER (right) always reminds us of New England. It combines the flavors of seafaring, solid comfort, honesty—and a lot of hard work. But get out your can-opener and banish the hard-work angle while you turn out a soup just as special as any the early New Englanders served up.

Don't hesitate, either, to double our recipe, for second helpings are sure to be requested. To bring out all the best flavor of this chowder, serve it with our tasty open-faced cheese-puff sandwiches.

JELLIED CHICKEN GUMBO is designed to please any man who says cold jellied soups just aren't robust enough for him. This recipe is a cool cousin of the minestrone that most men are so fond of. You make it with a can of chicken gumbo and a can of chicken broth. To duplicate our appetite-appealing setting, to win even more approval from the men in your family, serve this gumbo with our special version of ham-on-a-roll. Man, oh man, what a meal this combination makes!

EGG DROP SOUP is another delicacy that proves you needn't "start from scratch," making soup stock laboriously from meat and bones. For, with a can of chicken broth or beef bouillon, you can produce the delicate and mysterious broth that Orientals serve in covered bowls. With a club sandwich, that all-time favorite, this soup makes a dandy meal that's also one sure to stick to the ribs.

STRAWBERRY OR SOUR CHERRY PRESERVES

• Yumm! Don't you love those whole strawberries and cherries in a good preserve? But it's no fun to spend several days making it! All that's changed now. We've discovered that making strawberry and cherry preserves (or whole-fruit jam if you'd rather call it that) is a relatively quick job these days. It's all done in a couple of minutes' cooking time. And with the new method the color stays brighter and the flavor is better. Add the recipe below to the other jam and jelly recipes we've given you. There was spiced grape jelly in September 1955 and jams without cooking in November 1955.

Make some of each this year, why don't you?

Preparation time: 15 min.
Cooking time: 3-4 min.
Standing time: 4-5 hrs.

• strawberry or sour cherry preserve

5 cups fruit (about 2½ lbs. ripe sour cherries, pitted, or 1½ qts. ripe strawberries)
5½ cups (2 lbs. 6 oz.) sugar
1 box (2½-oz.) powdered fruit pectin
Water (¾ cup for cherries, 1 cup for strawberries)

• Measure 5 cups fruit (firmly packed without crushing) into a large saucepan. Add sugar. Bring to a boil, stirring carefully. Remove from heat and let stand at room temperature 4 to 5 hours. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 2 minutes, stirring carefully. Remove from heat. Mix powdered fruit pectin and water in small saucepan and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add to hot fruit and mix well. Skim off foam. Stir and skim by turns for 10 min. to prevent floating. Ladle into glasses. Cover at once with paraffin.

equipment, or the facilities to serve professionally. We do lay claim to being able to correct a recipe with a certain amount of imagination, and I suppose this and our great enjoyment of cooking are the two things that separate the results we get from the results of people who can't cook.

Where do we get our recipes?

To my knowledge we don't claim origination of a single recipe. We draw them from the usual wide variety of clippings, friends, cookbooks, etc. Occasionally we run into a restaurant dish that's obvious. That's the case with that lobster tail and bacon appetizer you and I will be doing. This I ran into at the Beau Nash Club in the Ambassador West in Chicago. Only there it was fresh crabmeat and cost $5 per serving. They serve it with cucumber sandwiches as a foil. We use lettuce sandwiches made with our homemade bread. (They make a batch of bread every weekend.—Ed.) Along the same line I love the Swiss Chalet in the Hotel Bismarck in Chicago, where there is a policy of giving customers the recipe for any of their specialties.

To make a marine lamp base, use glass candy jar. Arrange shells, sand, greens, fill with water. Chlorine bleach (½ c.) keeps water from clouding.

We pay a lot of attention to attractive vegetable dishes. We often feel, for instance, that the great bother of French frying onions is worth the price because of the tremendous impact it has. I make a variety of salads as required. I also make omelets of a dozen varieties for midnight snacks. (Surprisingly simple . . . but if the guests think the results are some sort of deep magic why disabuse them?) Liz does all baking, except bread, which seems to require my stronger arms and shoulders for kneading.

As you can see, Liz is the real cook in the family. I get into the act with a small stable of specialties. We joke about the fanny bumping that sometimes results in our tiny kitchen, but on the whole, I guess it does make for a division of labor and pretty good results in the food we serve.

I don't know when it happened, but a couple of years ago it became apparent that we were in the happy position as hosts of having our guests arrive completely convinced in advance that this was to be one of the finer meals they had ever tasted. I'm sure that this happy reputation must have grown basically from tasty food. I'm also sure that there is more to the story. I'd say that we have managed to achieve a favorable total psychology of entertaining. I've mentioned having unusual dishes. I think serving a suitable wine . . . a somewhat uncommon practice up here . . . helped. I'm sure that attention to serving food hot . . . the use of reasonable care in making the food look attractive . . . and a good show of confidence on our part also are part of the picture.

This was brought home to me not so long ago when we served a roast capon, which we consider to be the prince among all fowl. The combination of a scrawny bird, too little stuffing, a late guest and a consequent vigorous and prolonged cocktail hour resulted in a bird that sort of fell to pieces as it was being lifted onto the platter. Fortunately the fragments tasted pretty good, but at a minimum the visual effect of carving a good bird was destroyed. I was feeling bad about it until I realized that it didn't make a particle of difference to the guests . . . they thought it was the most wonderful ever. The total psychology (perhaps aided by the cocktails) had carried us through.

I think Liz and I have demonstrated that simple dishes with a built-in flair, that a bit of simple showmanship, that reasonable facsimiles of the genuine dish can successfully create the illusion of professional cookery . . . especially if you have the power of the right psychology on your side. And this kind of cookery should lie within the scope of anybody who can follow . . . and perhaps adjust . . . a recipe. The satisfactions are considerable, both for the hosts and the guests . . . and there, I believe, is your Good Victuals story in the Edmonds' approach to cooking.

Well, perhaps that will give you a little more to plan your story from. Liz and I will be glad to do anything you tell us, and it will be a pleasure to let you taste the results of our work.

Regards
Pete

The pleasure was mine! With this country overrun with pompous, self-styled gourmet cooks, I agree so heartily with the Edmonds' approach to good cooking—and how succinctly Pete has summed it up. It was a good day for me at the Edmonds—and a profitable day for Good Victuals.

Did you have three fair-sized scoops of ice cream during the past week? That's about the average consumption of the dairy industry's glamour dish, which got its start this way: A Baltimore dairyman always had an excess of milk on hand in the summer, when his customers were away on vacations, because cows gave the most milk then. He had several gallons of milk flavored, frozen, and delivered to friends and customers. Backed up by some newspaper advertising, this brought in so many orders that the dairy end of the business was soon abandoned and the original ice cream industry was established.

The commercial success of ice cream began in 1874, when ice cream first met soda water at a Philadelphia fair. Soda water, the most popular soft drink of that era, was composed of cream, syrup, and carbonated water. When a dispenser of soft drinks ran out of cream, he sent an order to a nearby confectioner for ice cream. And then, because the customers kept rushing him, he figured that he couldn't wait for the stuff to melt. So he put it in "whole," and ice cream sodas became the sensation of the fair.

The sundae was a product of our Sabbath Day "blue laws." When the city fathers of Evanston, Illinois, turned their attention to the soda fountain, a new ice cream delicacy was improvised for Sunday consumption. Many of the customers preferred their ice cream and syrup minus the carbonated water, and the demand for sundaes grew.

Since the ice cream cone and 1904 World's Fair, many ice-cream novelties for the soda fountain, street hawking, and home have appeared. They account for about half the ice cream sold.

Kitchens and Our Changing Lives—1957 Style

EDITH RAMSAY

Wall refrigerator adds floor space, leaves room for desk for doing market ordering.

Once home from work, preparing dinner's a breeze. Foods from the freezer are faster and easier to fix, especially with today's fast cooking equipment like pressure cookers, or with thermostatic controls.

And may we offer a prologue to this issue of "changing lives," for it is really a family issue, and a very dramatic one. The fact concerns Mothers and Fathers alike, for it's helping to create a changing family personality affecting every family member. Today there are over 11 million working wives in the United States alone.* A staggering figure, and one which will mean drastic changes for the ever lovin' group—the American family. The kitchen will play a big role in this transition. A big responsibility, too, on Mr. Kitchen Manufacturer, for he has to meet these changing times. Here is proof that he has done just that (and below, that he is continuing). We proudly present this sleek, small kitchen perfectly designed for THE WORKING WIFE—full of ideas adaptable for this changing family personality: IT HAS THESE VIRTUES:

- Compact Arrangement—large enough for plenty of equipment; small enough for efficiency. At right, our own American HOME-wife can stand at the range and reach the dishwasher.
- Cheerful color—in equipment making more sense than ever.
- Flexible dishwasher—will hold day's load, to wash later.
- Wall refrigerator—has freezer-full of ready-to-cook foods.
- Easy-to-clean surfaces—counter top, wall, equipment, floor.
- Thermostatic controls, pressure cookers—boon to working gals.—AND SEE WHAT'S COMING!

* It is predicted by 1975 that there will be approximately 17 million working wives in the United States.

In 197X They Are "Imagineered"

Push a few buttons...

RELAX!!!

For Even Less Work

Ever wish you could push a button and have your meal completely cooked? It's coming! Called XPC-1, it's designed for any wife—the "stay-at-home" kind or the working gal. Combination freezer and electronic oven, at the touch of a few buttons it sends foods from freezer to oven to table. At present, XPC-1 is only a prototype! It is not for sale, and there are no plans to market it. It'll be here, though, within 15 to 20 years. Right now, it's an experimental cooker, unveiled only a few weeks ago here in New York City by General Electric. We've eagerly awaited our first glimpse, knowing what it will mean to your life and ours. HOW? Well, any kind of machine that mechanically maneuvers at the touch of a button and in 30-35 minutes sends a completely cooked meal to the table will have a big effect on all of us. We display it on these pages.

See "Where Credit Is Due," page 91

Ideal Dishwashing Team:

Calgonite® and General Electric

Put new, non-spotting Calgonite in your electric dishwasher . . . and out come dishes that glisten without spots or streaks . . . glassware, silverware, pots and pans that sparkle with super-cleanliness. No chlorine odor, no film. Calgonite keeps your dishwasher fresh and clean. Leading dishwasher manufacturers place Calgonite in their machines. Try the NEW Calgonite.

General Electric's new Portable and undercounter dishwashers feature the famous "Flushaway Drain" that ends hand dish rinsing for good! Also have big capacity and easy-to-use cushioned racks.

Calgon Company
Pittsburgh, Pa.

All these pushbuttons, and food too? You'll ask this and lots of other questions, we're sure—some in jest, some not. Will XPC-1 replace the housewife? Of course not! It will not take the place of a good cook. No amount of engineering will replace that essential human element in the art of being a good cook—creative ability and imagination. XPC-1's purpose will take drudgery out of the kitchen but certainly won't detract from your role as a creative homemaker, wife and mother! It will simply make it possible for you to prepare meals in advance and have a complete dinner cooked without your supervision. Yes, there will still be some work you'll have to do around the kitchen—if only to prepare meals and put them in the freezer. However, it will change your life to the extent that instead of cooking three times a day as you usually do now, you'll plan by the week, having a COOK DAY just like you have a WASH DAY.

About its looks—well, it's pretty elegant looking now. By the time it gets in your home, though, it may not look exactly as it does here. At present it stands 5' 4" high, 6' 4" long and 46" wide. One side is the "kitchen side," the other the "dining-room side." You need 220 volts to operate it, same as you need for an electric range. When all the food is cooked, a chime rings and the complete meal comes sliding to you on a veritable "magic" platter!

HERE WE PHOTOGRAPH IT:

After the press unveiling we decided you should see it too. So we went to work—and WORK it was to get XPC-1 installed for photography at The American HOME. First of all we had to get a lot of people into the act to get it here without a mishap. Completing an early morning TV show, it was moved with tender care into a special truck and brought to 300 Park Avenue. Here it was met by Editor Jean Austin and, standing by, models, photographers and engineers . . . ready to "shoot the story." It was taken literally, "on the spot," for it traveled no further than our downstairs lobby . . . it was too large for the elevator. On seeing the reactions of passers-by we were convinced then and there that you'd be interested in XPC-1, too, for we were asked questions faster than we could answer them. Bet you will, too! Here's hoping we'll answer all your questions about it.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

You can store 42 foods in the 5 cu. ft. freezer, 3 of each of 14 types. Any six can be selected as a meal for 4 people. Put prepared foods in covered pyrex containers before freezing (see left). Slide them into freezing racks where they will stay until the push of a button sends them into the oven. Fourteen color-keyed food selectors match the positions of stored foods.

At the end of each button pictured at right is an adjustable selector which sets the time the food goes into the oven. If you select six different foods for one meal, the timing selector, set when you put the foods into the freezer, causes these foods to go into the oven at preordained times, so that the whole meal will come out together. You might want to prepare a roast beef dinner, for example. If meat takes 35 minutes to cook and mashed potatoes 10 to heat, the potatoes slide in 25 minutes after the meat! So you see, you still must do some thinking. YOU select cooking time.

The sketch above tells a graphic story, for there you can see exactly what happens when you PUSH THE BUTTONS to bring that magic meal to the table in a matter of minutes. The containers of frozen foods "rise and slide" on a small conveyor belt to the oven, and fit themselves snugly into a special rack where they will cook. How does the food cook? Electronically, of course. In a simple explanation: microwaves spin around in the oven and do the job of quickly thawing and cooking the meal. Food cooks in  $\frac{1}{8}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  the time it takes you to cook them in your regular oven. The same kind of high-frequency waves that operate your TV will also cook your food.

In the photograph below the sketch, both freezer and oven door are open to give you a full view of the kitchen or cooking side. Note the column of extra buttons on the left side available for a wider choice of foods for you to place in the freezer. Turn back to page 75 and see again the handsome dining side, which has its own dropdown eating area along with a special section for the electric percolator. A terrific room divider between kitchen and dining room—and a cinch for small areas! Keep looking for it. It will come just like TV and the Electronic Range.

You use your electric griddle for pancakes, bacon, sausages, sandwiches, BUT have you tried it for:

Hot-Food Server—To keep vegetables hot, or soup, creamed chicken or stew, use a metal container—stainless steel or cast aluminum—and place on the griddle at warming. Foods will stay serving-hot at outdoor parties or porch buffets. We bet you'll find even additional unique uses!

You use your electric cooker or Dutch oven for stews and pot roasts, BUT have you tried it for:

• Bun-Warmer — Heats rolls and breads of all sorts. Set heat at 250°, and put buns in cooker and cover. Heat until warmed through. If buns are dry, sprinkle with ½ tsp. water. Pop the packaged varieties in aluminum foil in cooker, package and all! Be sure to open package first. Rolls heat in jig time.

Steaming Vegetables—Use electric griddle for such vegetables as green beans, asparagus, and broccoli. Dip only fresh ones in boiling water 3 min.; put on 200° heated griddle. Add butter and cover; steam to taste. Griddle has no cover, so wrap with aluminum foil. Plug opening with cork.

• Sterilizing Baby Bottles—Using bottle brush wash bottles and nipples with mild soap or detergent. Rinse. Place bottles on sides; caps, nipples, etc. around edge of cooker. Cover with water; set at 375°; cover. Bring to boil reducing heat after 10 or 15 min. to rolling boil. Remove bottles and fill.

Garlic, Herb, Cheese or Butter Bread—It's easy to prepare. Follow your favorite recipe, be it sesame or poppy seed, eggplant, chives or East of the Sea spices. Wrap in aluminum foil and put bread on the griddle. Cover, heat at 200°. Try rolls or French bread, too, with spaghetti.

• Steaming Puddings and Brown Breads—Use mold or can for batter. Cover with waxed paper layers (well tied), saran film, aluminum foil if mold has no cover. Place flat cover or grid in cooker, add 1 qt. water. Put can in cooker, cover, bring to boil at 425°; reduce to 212°; steam to directions.

How to select a paintbrush

A good brush performs better... wears longer... saves you money

In selecting a good paintbrush, the first thing to look for is a full head of bristles in a firm setting.

Then, look closely at several individual bristles. They should be finely tapered with slightly curled tips. Make sure a generous portion of the bristles have tips that are split or "flagged."

Finally, look for a brush that has bristles varying in length. A brush with these qualities will give you excellent performance. It has a greater working and paint-holding capacity—eliminates excessive dipping. The brush will release a finish smoothly and evenly on any surface. You save time, paint with ease, do a professional-looking job.

Now, better performance with improved TYNEX® nylon bristles

When buying a paintbrush, look for the trademark TYNEX on the handle. Quality paintbrushes made with bristles of TYNEX nylon give you better performance. They pick up a full load of paint at every dip and lay on a smooth, streak-free coat. And brushes with TYNEX have durable bristles that clean easily . . . rinse thoroughly . . . dry quickly—are always ready for re-use.

N.Y. suburb

Have you ever seen a house that looked as if it wasn't friends with its own property? A house whose foundation walls jutted up above the level of the land, where the living areas inside the house had no continuity with the grounds outside? If you have, and if you've thought about it, you'll appreciate how beautifully this house is wedded to its site. The art in architecture has made this home more than a shelter from the weather, more than a shingled appliance-paradise where rooms are plaster cells and windows are holes punched in the walls. Good design doesn't always cost more, and there are many ideas from this house of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer A. Selinger, Mamaroneck, N. Y., you can apply to the home you're planning.

Notice how the living, sleeping and work areas are zoned for privacy and convenience. The entry hall located at the axis of these zones makes it possible to leave and enter directly—without disturbing people in the other parts of the house. Sliding-glass window walls in the living, dining and bedrooms make a scenic wall in each room and provide easy access to the outside. The house is placed to provide complete privacy in the yard.

THE JAQUES DO'S & DON'TS

We bid you welcome to our home. In order for you—our neighbors—and our family to enjoy your presence and our hospitality to the fullest extent, the following suggestions are offered as recommendations for your guidance.

Do park cars on our side of the street.

Don't park in front of neighbors' houses or driveways.

Do ask to swim—it is a privilege—not a right.

Don't swim unless:

Eber is home—if you are his guest; Carol is home—if you are her guest.

Do use gate for entrance & exit.

Don't come through the house.

Do bring your own suit & towel.

Don't rely on us to furnish swimming equipment.

Do change in dressing areas provided. Girls in filter house.

Boys in garage.

Don't plan on changing in house.

Do be thoroughly dry before entering house.

Don't roam around the house in swimming suit—wet or dry.

Don't wear metal objects or jewelry in the pool.

Don't wear bobby pins in the water—metal rusts the floor of the pool.

Do wear proper swimming equipment at all times.

Don't wear blue jeans or non-swimming clothes.

Do be careful of slippery concrete.

Don't run or roughhouse—it is dangerous.

Do not swear—always be gentlemen.

Don't subject our ladies and neighbors to embarrassment.

Do play records—but remember our neighbors.

Don't force loud music on them—they may not like your choice of records.

Do have fun—but not too loud.

Don't try to make the fellow hear with bananas in his ears.

Do stop all outside noise at 10:00 p.m. during the week, &

11:00 p.m. on Friday & Saturday.

Don't make it necessary for the neighbors to complain.

Do put furniture back if you move it.

Do sweep & pick up leaves—a pool takes a lot of work.

Do take suits & towels with you or hang in drying area.

Don't burden us to pick up after you.

Do ask all "first time" guests to read these suggestions.

Don't make it necessary for us to show them.

Finally—Have Lots of Fun!!!

But When In Doubt—ASK!

The lanai, new room near the pool on the rear patio, has rotisserie, serving equipment for teen-prepared meals, cork floor for dancing.

This is what you've been waiting for

of youth is the thing people think of first and enjoy most. Popularity with friends, and friends' friends, steps up overnight when you build a pool. No, you can't always protect pools from people, but as the Jaques say, "Pools protect people from a lot of things, and isn't it lucky they are so much fun?" Typical of their tact in dealing with teenagers, they post the do's and don'ts of good poolside behavior where they are certain to be seen. No scolding nor nagging over broken rules—the suggestions (page 82) work! Now you will remember that when the pool was built a bargain was struck. Perhaps the pool idea came partially as a reward for teen achievement and effort. That point was never disclosed. What was made clear was, the question of building the pool was again settled by family vote. The cost of building it would be shouldered by the parents IF Carol and Eber would take over the maintenance. Maintenance of a pool is not an easy job, the youngsters were warned. Eber had carried lumber and been handy man during the remodeling and handled a man's-sized share in the landscape planting. Carol had finished and painted indoor shutters, helped sewing and doubled for her mother in the kitchen. But maintenance of a pool was something else because it goes on and on, months on end. Weekly Carol scrubs the tile that outlines the upper walls of the pool, while Eber cleans the lower walls and the bottom. Added to that is the daily skimming of the top for leaves and trapped insects, the surrounding platforms to keep picked up and clean. No, the Jaques' swimming pool did not just fall in the backyard's lap as a big beautiful gift. It's there, sparkling with light and laughter, by family cooperation.

There's not much concern anymore in Mr. and Mrs. Jaques' minds about Carol, Eber, and their friends enjoying home as a social background. In winter, parties, because of school, are pretty much limited to weekends, but come vacations, short or long, and the clan's gather. Generally, activities seem to center outdoors on the back veranda and around the pool. From noon on there may be outdoor greetings, followed soon by a splash as Eber or Carol and the first guests dive into their own reflection, or the ping of a ball as they settle into a ping pong bout. The sun goes over and falls on a passing parade of the fun-lovers. Some come for only a quick dip and are gone, others linger. On the porch, competition is stiff between the High Hats and The Derbys, but more especially when it is an all-male contest, between Eber and his friends. The hour-glass is reversed. The moon comes up, peers over the wall on new faces, young and old. There's room for all. Mr. and Mrs. Jaques and their friends join in the fun, then sit apart as a ribbon of music and laughter floats out from the other side of the pool. It's all in a day, almost any day. A real cool set-up! Carol and Eber happy to stay at home, their parents enjoying every precious minute of the time left for family living, before the young ones leave the family nest.

Little Pennsylvania Garden

If you have a small yard in a built-up neighborhood, having your privacy easy-to-care-for garden with talents to spare (many you can adopt)

Flagstone walks along each side of garden connect house terrace and this one at far end of yard. Stones are simple to lay on mixture of sand and soil over crushed-stone foundation. Brick also can be used for terracing.

Stairway (right) adds old-world charm, connects second-story balcony with the yard. Staggered half-steps save space. A climbing rose and potted plants—pansies for early color, and petunias for summer—brighten railing.

High redwood fence (left) is fronted with a group of evergreens and backed by deciduous trees for all the privacy you could desire. Canterbury bells give a spot of color, but other kinds of flowers can be substituted.

achieves privacy

can be a problem. Here's a simple and for putting the most seclusion into small space.

KATHERINE M-P. CLOUD

No matter how lovely your garden is, you aren't enjoying it to the fullest unless it's private, planned for easy upkeep and livable. This garden is all that. Its quiet, restful air is as friendly as a welcome mat, inviting you in to seek a corner or a cool spot where you can catch up on your reading or just relax.

Miss Gertrude Ely of Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania, planned her garden with simplicity in mind. Evergreen plantings are confined to the boundaries, so the center of the yard, free of cluttered plantings, looks quite spacious.

In a suburban neighborhood, privacy is a must. To get it, Miss Ely chose a 7' redwood fence because it is durable, always looks good, and eliminates tedious hedge-trimming. Evergreens planted along the boundaries soften the fence, keep the garden attractive all year 'round. Outside the fence, deciduous trees give additional protection plus a contrast in line and texture with the evergreens.

Close to the living-room windows is a grape-vine, espaliered against the wall of the house. It forms a lovely tracery in winter, is truly beautiful in the summer, and grows on a light, inconspicuous bamboo support. It's the finishing touch to a perfect little yard.

Need an inexpensive trellis for a small climbing houseplant, like philodendron? Stick a dowel into soil near the plant; then along sides of dowel, you snap clothespins (plastic ones are colorful).

THE TIE THAT BINDS

HELEN HOUSTON BOILEAU

• Many plants fare better if they're staked and tied. Outdoors, tied plants are in less danger from wind damage—and from breakage from their own weight, if you consider such plants as tomatoes. Indoors or out, many plants look more attractive if they are tied and trained correctly. And, as these photographs show, there are materials besides string which serve this purpose well.

Plants like lantana need soft-but-strong supports. Here's where you can put old nylon hose to work: Cut hose in strips, cutting across to form rings, stretch the rings and tie around the plant.

materials can contribute to your plants' support

Many big garden plants take well to ties made of spiral strips cut from old cotton socks or T-shirts. Another idea—cut up old plastic clothesline and replace nylon core with pliable wire.

Smaller plants, like this coleus, are easily tied to stakes with twisted pipe-cleaners. The pipe-cleaners make soft ties, yet stay very secure. Another tie-up idea: Use old shoe-laces. THE END done that will relieve her, look for them. Don't talk about going to do a job—just go ahead quietly and do it.

Now for the Do's:

FIRST. After your invitation to visit has been received and the date set by your hostess, try your best to come on the agreed date and leave accordingly. This leaves the calendar clear for all parties concerned, and all are concerned.

SECOND. If you have to iron out wrinkles in your new dress, see what pressing you can do for your hostess.

THIRD. If you're in the village getting postcards to send back home, see if you can't pick up your hostess's suit at the drycleaner's, her shoes at the cobbler's, or another loaf of bread at the grocery store. There are always such errands to be done.

FOURTH. And listen, listen. A good listener is more precious than uranium. If you are not one by nature, work to develop the art—it is one that will serve you well always. Let your hostess tell you about her grandchildren. Let her show you their snapshots.

FIFTH. And last, but not least, disappear. Go for a walk alone, take your book out under a tree. Take a nap, read the paper . . . anything, just so you leave your hostess alone for a little while. She's probably dying to do one or all of these things herself.

Maybe the requirements of this list sound difficult to meet—as if some idealistic creature of the imagination could fulfill them all. My friend, you not only met them, you made them, never dreaming that I would use you as an example of how to behave. Now that you've gone, you must be told at once of pleasure given and received. I want to get my "thank you" in your mailbox first.

And maybe after a visit I might make someday, who knows? If I try hard enough, I might even get a bread-and-butter letter in return from my hostess! THE END packaged and sold for a profit.

Jerry sold cookies and cold drinks, kept his eye on the penny-toss game, and helped sack the popcorn. Bob sold fudge and the used comic books.

But it was Mike who had the concession in the front corner of the yard nearest the drive, where he could smilingly greet all comers and entice them to try his candle game. Customers paid him five cents for the use of a loaded water pistol to shoot out the light of four candles floating in a tub of water. If they did, they won a used two- or three-dollar game.

Even before the official opening time, children began coming. We expected four sets of parents and a few of the neighbors to patronize the carnival, but people came from all over town. And motorists stopped and left donations.

When it was all over, four weary boys started counting pennies and nickels. They checked and rechecked. Instead of the anticipated 12 or 15 dollars, there was $42.16!

The next day the four boys paid a visit to the local chairman of the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and joyfully handed her the money. Mike thought they ought to go on to the newspaper office to report their success, and that brought a second write-up.

The story should end here, but it doesn't. Mike moved to the other side of town and we didn't see much of him after that. Before we knew it, the next summer had come—and with it, polio. And who should have it but Mike!

He might as well have had chicken-pox for Identifying keys in the dark can be as hard as finding a needle in a haystack. Nicks filed on one side of the top will tell you the right key and the right side up to fit the lock. Use a simple coding system, such as one notch for the front door, two for the back, etc.

Mike and Polio

(Begins on page 18)

There was enough hubbub in the yard to attract anyone's attention. Walter had rigged up an electric switch 40' from the porch, and popcorn was popped in the center of the lawn, its fragrant aroma speaking louder than words. Mike's sister sold the corn.

Big sisters and mothers sent cookies, candy, and jugs of fruit punch. The boys had bought several pounds of hard candy, which they reall the concern the other three boys showed. Why worry? Hadn't they given the money to the polio fund to take care of kids like Mike? Mike, himself, was just as sure everything would turn out all right. And it did.

We didn't see Mike for months and months, but soon after the good news of the success of Salk polio vaccine, our doorbell rang. And there on the porch stood Mike, still grinning. Dr. Salk may have developed the vaccine, but you'd never make Mike believe it wasn't financed with $42.16!

Long-armed sink faucets can chip and crack your dishes and glassware as they're lifted from the water for rinsing. You can stop this breakage by slipping a slim collar "bumper" of scrap hose over tip of the faucet.

After your next gardening job, quickly clean and rust-proof hoes, trowels and rakes by working them in a pail of dry sand mixed with a little lubricating oil.

The engaging Calico Cat and Gingham Dog can be yours for the making with a few patches of fabric and embroidered details. They're a funny old-fashioned pair, just the fillip for a blank wall. Also bound to bring appreciative chuckles, the plaid dog is a sophisticated commentary on a "stylish" poodle. Here's the easy how-to: pencil outlines of figures you wish reproduced on fabric. Cut out  $\frac{1}{4}$ " outside pencil line, turning  $\frac{1}{4}$ " in and basting to back of pattern. Press and slipstitch in place. Add embroidered details.

prove pleasant, perfect projects for people pursuing practical pastimes*

Bake up a batch of plates! Serve them to your friends as special gifts. You'll need a set of thermo-setting paints, plates, and a brush or two... then you're off to a start!

Bake them in your gas or electric oven and they'll be fired up to a "pretty turn"! Follow directions enclosed in your paint set. Try recipes, familiar quotes, designs.

Smarten up cups and saucers

Even "Plain Jane" cups and saucers can be impressive with a little china painting. You may create your own patterns or copy our ideas here. A word of caution: make sure china is clean and dry before decorating. Design is made permanent by putting china in cool oven, slowly raising temperature to 300° for 30 min., then cooling.

Can You Write An Ad?

In this magazine there are many advertisements for all types of products used in the home. Some ads are large, some small, and some in color. And when you read them you enter a wonderland of extravagance. You find words like "amazing", "better", "cleaner", "easier", "faster", etc. According to advertising copy research experts, these competitive words and others like them, will cause you to put down this magazine and rush out to buy the product.

Most of us are reasonable people. Logical claims, factually worded, can win our interest. But the trend towards bigger and better similar comparatives for similar products can only be numbing in its impact.

Now, as makers of numerous wallpaper products, we are parentally proud of our offspring. Especially, our E-Z-DU ready-pasted wallpaper. Objective research shows that E-Z-DU is really easy to do compared with other kinds of wallpaper and certain other wall decoration, our own included. You just cut E-Z-DU to length, wet and sponge smooth on the wall. The results are attractive.

What stumps us is how should we advertise these proven virtues? We are against unbelievable superlatives. We think what people want to know is how easy is E-Z-DU? Can I really hang it myself without mess? And a lot of other questions. Perhaps the best ad could be written by a satisfied user. Therefore, we make this offer. Write an ad for E-Z-DU. Send it to Department AD, address below. For every ad published in this space, we will send free of charge, enough E-Z-DU wallpaper of your choice, to paper a 12' x 16' room! Of course it isn't necessary to have an extra door, for this bar is completely mobile on easy-rolling casters and can be used anywhere. Popular shutter panels give a new look and earn their way by not taking up too much room, for they fold back on themselves when opened. Copper pan at top holds lots of ice and bottles, or use for plants. Our home workshop pattern gives the full details and a complete list of required materials.

USED LUMBER, HOME LABOR, POLE FRAMING AND $500 BUILT THIS GARAGE

The neighbors thought I was crazy! The reason was the big pile of used lumber that had been dumped in our driveway. Full of nails, too. But we needed a garage and figured to get it without ruining our budget. We'd found three ways to save money: 1) do-it-yourself with 2) used materials and 3) "pole construction," an economical type of pole framing used on farm buildings. If it worked for a barn, why not a garage, was our theory.

To begin, poles were sunk four ft. in the ground and tamped solid. (It is important they be pressure-treated with wood preservative) The horizontal framing was nailed to the poles and the rafters and ridge pole were put in place. Once this job was done, I applied roofing and siding, working alone, using ordinary tools—hammer, saw, level, square and 6' rule. I used a post-hole auger for the holes, and I found that a portable power saw proved to be a great time-saver

Cut-away view of garage shows simplicity of pole construction. Poles sunk in ground provide support for structure making concrete foundation unnecessary. Asphalt and gravel on concrete floor can be added if desired. Tops of poles are sawed off down to height of plate as soon as the framing and rafters are nailed in place. Door opening of 22x20' garage can be made wider to accommodate two cars.

"Western-style" fences add glamour to any house

It's easy to give your house and yard the glamour of a "Western-style" fence. Choose one of many designs. (See free offer below.) Use any kind of wood. Then, brush on two coats of color-toned REZ—a unique wood finish that lets the grain show through for a rustic "Western" look.

Not a paint
Not a stain

Easier upkeep, too. You never have to scrape or sand fences, outdoor furniture or wood siding finished with REZ, because REZ won't peel or blister. The secret: REZ is not a paint or stain. Its special resin-base formula carries color deep into the wood, seals the pores; even protects against warping and sun-staining.

REZ gives any wood any color effect—without masking the soft, "woody" look you like. Example: Cedar REZ, on pine fence above, "extends" natural Cedar house (which has also been protected and beautified with Cedar REZ).

See how all 13 REZ color tones give exterior and interior wood surfaces a distinctive "natural-wood" look. Send for free color card and 6 "Western-style" fence designs to REZ, P. O. Drawer 3, Dept. J, St. Louis, Mo., or see your local REZ dealer's display of REZ colors on wood.

One Big Top sandwich
as much protein, fats, carbohydrates, food energy as this meal of frankfurbacon, corn, tomato salad.

Of course we're not suggesting that substitute a sandwich for a hot meal. But lunch or snack time, it's wonderful to know
Big Top is naturally fortified—a powerhouse of nourishment. 1½ ounces of Big Top between two slices of bread has as much b-food value as the meal above, with none portions shown. All this plus impor-vitamins and minerals.

No other peanut butter packs this essennourishment with Big Top's extra gold good flavor. So serve sandwiches of creaeasy-spreading Big Top with milk and fr-fruit—a perfect snack!

Comes in exclusive goblets and sherbets in "Early American" design. Also in the handy refrigerator jar.
