HOW THE MARTINS FIXED UP THEIR ATTIC FOR ROY AND BILL
they did it themselves with low-cost Armstrong Parquet Linoleum Tile

The Martins thought all floor tiles were square, until they found Armstrong Parquet Linoleum Tile. They learned how its exclusive 6" x 12" shape can be used in many smart new floor designs. And enough "Parquet" for a 9' x 12' room costs only about $25!

Only Armstrong Parquet Linoleum Tile comes in this exclusive 6" x 12" style which adapts to so many smart custom designs. Choose from six lovely wood tones (Styles 1841 and 1843 shown here).

They decided on a plank design, in two of the rich wood tones—and Roy and Bill helped their father put the tiles down. They followed the simple instructions that came with the tile—and were surprised how easy it was to do an expert job. The whole area was finished in a week end!

SEND 10¢ FOR NEW 20-PAGE BOOK, "Extra Living Space." Sketch plan of this Boys' Attic, list of furnishings, do-it-yourself instructions available free. Write Armstrong Cork Co., 5809 Pine Street, Lancaster, Pa. In Canada, Dept. 98-B, Box 919, Montreal, P. Q.

The boys really enjoy their new room. And the floor can take all the rough wear they'll give it. Spilled cola—or train oil—wipes up without a trace. The whole house seems much more tidy now that the boys are spending most of their time upstairs.

THE MODERN FASHION IN FLOORS

ALBERT DORNE — probably the greatest money-maker in the history of commercial art. At the height of his career, he began a full-time search for people who like to draw.

He's Looking for People Who Like to Draw

by Rex Taylor

TODAY thousands of people who never thought they could be artists are working happily at easels and drawing boards, making pictures — and getting paid for them. Clerks, secretaries, mechanics, housewives, salesmen, policemen, people in every walk of life are being helped to success and happiness in art — and the one who is least surprised is Albert Dorne — the man most responsible for their success.

Who are some of the people Dorne has helped to succeed?

Don Smith lives in New Orleans. Three years ago Don knew nothing about art — even doubted he had talent. Today he is an illustrator with the largest advertising agency in the South!

John Busketta was a pipefitter's helper in a gas company. He still works for the same company but now he's an artist in the advertising department at a big increase in pay.

Elizabeth Merriss, busy New York mother, now adds to her family's income by designing greeting cards and illustrating children's books.

A great-grandmother in Newark, Ohio, recently had her first local "one-man" show — where she sold thirty-two water colors and five oil paintings.

John Whitaker of Memphis was an airline clerk two years ago. Recently he won a national cartooning contest prize, now does a comic strip for a group of newspapers.

Each of these people — and thousands of others — have been helped to success in art through a bold program which Albert Dorne proposed almost ten years ago.

New Kind of Art School

From the day Albert Dorne first became a celebrated illustrator — men and women who wanted to be artists flocked to him for help and guidance.

"They all had one thing in common," Dorne says, "they liked to draw. What most of them needed was a little more confidence in themselves and some practical training in professional art techniques."

Dorne was eager to help these people, but realized he couldn't do it alone. So he called together a group who, with himself, comprised America's 12 Most Famous Artists.

"All over the country," Dorne told them, "there are men and women who like to draw and who could be successful artists. Why can't we give these people the one thing they can't get elsewhere — the trade secrets and techniques we learned only through years of successful experience. I'm suggesting an entirely new kind of home-study art school . . . one that will give talented people everywhere an opportunity to get top-drawer professional art training without leaving their homes or giving up their jobs."

The idea met with great enthusiasm. Taking time off from their busy careers — the famous artists perfected a revolutionary new way to teach drawing and painting. They made over 5,000 special illustrations for their course, each man contributing his own special "hallmark of greatness." For example, Norman Rockwell devised a simple way to explain how to create his famous heart-warming characters. Jon Whitcomb explained how to draw the stunning "glamour girls" that have brought him world-wide fame. Al Dorne showed step-by-step ways to achieve action and humor.

Then came their most challenging problem . . . how would they correct the drawings that students living hundreds of miles away mailed to the School? The famous artists dug deep into their own rich experiences. The system they finally developed is the most personal, most effective method of criticism the field of art has ever known.

The course was planned so that people with no previous art training could start right from scratch. Yet it has proved so complete and practical that thousands of professional artists have also enrolled to further improve their earning power.

This original course in Commercial Art and Illustration was so successful that two other equally outstanding courses have since been added . . . one in Fine Arts Painting, the other in Professional Cartooning. The Famous Artists Schools, still owned and run by the famous artists who started it, now has active students in every state and in over 40 foreign countries.

Albert Dorne, President of the School, is not surprised at all by the success of his students. "Opportunities open to trained artists today are enormous. We continually get calls and letters from art buyers all over the U. S. They ask us for practical, well-trained students — not geniuses — who can fill full-time or part-time jobs."

Revealing Art Talent Test

Today, instead of interviewing people, Dorne and his fellow artists have created a much more revealing method for discovering and measuring art talent . . . their own 12-page Famous Artists Talent Test. Originally there was a $1 charge for this test. Today, their School offers it free and grades it free. Men and women who reveal natural talent through the test are eligible for training by the School . . . right in their own homes and in their spare time.

Find out if your art talent is worth training. Simply return the coupon. The Famous Artists Talent Test will be mailed to you without cost or obligation. This might well be your first step to an exciting new life in the wonderful world of art.

FRANCIS H. UNDERWOOD DESIGNS OUR BLUEPRINT HOUSE

When Francis Underwood was a boy he was sent from his native Midwest to attend school in the East. It was then that he fell in love with the beautiful old houses in New England. His knowledge of Colonial architecture mounted over the years, but it wasn't until 30 years later that he decided to turn his hobby into a full-time job: designing and building good Colonial houses that retain the character and feeling of their Early American counterparts.

"I feel like a Queen with my bedroom extension phone"

"This house and the children keep me pretty busy, and that's good, but I like a little luxury sometimes—especially if it doesn't cost much.

"When you're tucked away snug in bed and the extension phone rings, it's a heavenly feeling to be able to stretch out your arm and answer it without having to go to a phone in some other part of the house. It saves me steps by the thousand—and I feel more secure at night when Tom isn't here. . . . I love it!"

How we retired in 15 years with $300 a month

"Strange, I remember it so clearly—and more than 15 years seems just a short while ago. For it's only thanks to what happened Christmas 1942 that we're living in Florida today, with our income guaranteed for life.

"That holiday afternoon we'd invited some people in, and as we waited for them to arrive, Dot and I sat by the living-room fire reading. Christmas always made me kind of stop and take stock, I guess. And this year I was turning forty. I'm not getting any younger, I thought, as I leafed through a recent copy of Life magazine.

"For years we'd cherished a favorite dream, Dot and I. Someday I was going to retire. We'd sell the house and move to Florida. Get just a little place where we'd be out in the sun all year. We'd get off the treadmill and have time for living.

"But we'd stopped talking about it lately. For we hadn't banked much money. At almost forty, nearly half my working life was behind me. So I began to wonder that afternoon ... Must I just live and work and die ... doing the same thing every day?

"It was what I was thinking, I suppose, that made me notice the page that said, 'You don't have to be rich to retire on an income.' I read it through. There was, it said, a way for an ordinary salaried man to get a lifetime income and retire. The Plan was called the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan. With it, I could get a guaranteed income of $300 a month beginning when I reached 55. To do it, I needed only one thing—fifteen or twenty good earning years ahead. Well, I'll certainly look into this, I decided, cutting out the coupon.

"Soon my mail brought a booklet telling about Phoenix Mutual Plans. Yes, one was just right for me.

"Looking back, 1942 seems like yesterday. We saw the war come and go with all its worries. Again and again I was thankful we had started our Phoenix Mutual Plan.

"Well, Christmas 1957 rolled around—and we had a big party, for I was almost 55 and set to retire. Soon after, my first Phoenix Mutual check for $300 arrived. We got a good price for our house, packed the car and drove to Florida.

"We found just the little house we had dreamed of. And month after month the postman hands us our pay check. We're financially independent, and will be, for life."

READERS' EXCHANGE

LET'S TALK IT OVER

One of our readers sends us a picture of her delightful front porch and another forwards her favorite recipe. Still another reader asks for advice about her plants, and a young mother writes us about the home she and her husband are planning for their growing brood. All these letters and many more find their way to our desks each morning, starting off our days with the feeling that we're privileged to share the home life of our readers. Do keep those letters coming our way! We'd love to hear your reaction to our features. Tell us about plans for the new house or the dinner you cooked for old friends. You may not write poetry, as two of our readers did this month, but whenever you feel like talking things over, we'll always be here to "lend an ear!"

CASTLES AND MILKSHAKES

Dear Editors,

After hearing so many women very meekly answer "housewife" when asked their occupation on radio and TV programs, I wrote my own answer to that $64,000 question:

If ever I am called upon to state my occupation, I'll waste no time... I'll show no hesitation

I'll proudly claim a titled state though I don't sit on a throne For I am Keeper of a Castle Gate with a Kingdom all my own!

—CLARA SMITH REBER

Dear Editors:

We (by that I mean all eight of us) were delighted at all the features in your monthly home encyclopedia! The various recipes proved "good lookin'" as well as "good cookin'." I have come to this conclusion: A castle with no dome A milkshake with no foam A brush set with no comb A new car with no chrome That's us without The American HOME!

How to select a paintbrush

wears longer... saves you money*

Check these points when buying your next paintbrush. First, look for a full stock of bristles in a firm, strong setting (1). Avoid brushes with loose bristles.

Then inspect the individual bristles closely (2). They should be finely tapered, with slightly curled tips.

Look again and be certain a generous portion (at least 10 to 20 per cent) of the bristles have tips which are split or "flagged" (3). Your final assurance of a brush which will give the best painting performance is bristles of varying lengths (4), but with a high proportion of longer lengths.

If the brush you look at passes all these tests, it will have a greater working and paint-holding capacity and eliminate excessive dipping. It will (5) release any type finish smoothly and evenly on any surface. The result will be a professional-looking paint job.

One short cut to selecting a good brush is to look for the black and yellow tag, signifying a brush with TYNEX nylon bristles (6). Properly made paintbrushes with tapered bristles of improved Du Pont TYNEX nylon give you better painting performance. They pick up a full paint load at every dip and give velvet-smooth paint-out. With proper care, brushes with durable bristles of TYNEX clean easily... rinse thoroughly... are quickly ready for another job.

FREE—An illustrated booklet prepared by Du Pont painting experts on "How to Choose and Use a Paintbrush." Tells how to paint walls, ceilings, trim, furniture, radiators and do other special jobs. Gives tips on the correct painting stroke, how to hold a paintbrush, how master painters dip their brushes, how they clean them. Gives five helpful pointers on common mistakes in painting. Tells what kind of paintbrush to use for each painting job. To get this valuable booklet, just send your name and address to E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. Harriet Gormley of Westinghouse and Editor Thabet discuss pros and cons of table setting with Mrs. Cronkite.

The Cronkite Kitchen is a Family Show

VIRGINIA E. THABET

When you first walk into the home of the Walter Cronkites you immediately sense that Walter Cronkite is more a person than a "personality." The Saturday afternoon we arrived to photograph—bag, baggage, cameras, editors and all—the welcome mat was out, even though it was the Cronkites' wedding anniversary. Crack CBS reporter, globe trotter and TV star that he is, you'd never guess it once inside the Cronkites' apartment. And though his job demands he be within cab-reach of the studio, it does not preclude his having a home full of warmth and charm. For more about this wonderful family and a peek into the Cronkite kitchen, just turn the page . . .

ON A SATURDAY AFTERNOON together, the family spends the time in the kitchen, baking cookies. Because it's well planned, there is room for the whole family. Take special note too . . . Walter likes his little girls to wear frilly, feminine dresses, look like little girls!

A former "career girl," Betsy Cronkite is now a full-time homemaker. She was formerly Women's Editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post. And from what we note, she's practicing what she preached. Also, both she and Walter have benefited from their experiences in moving, apartment-switching and remodeling.

In completely rebuilding their brownstone, they have learned all the tricks of the trade: plumbing, heating, wiring, structural changes. And they have run into the usual delays, disappointments and that great big horror of horrors . . . finding that it costs more than they bargained for. But what we want to talk about here is one of the greatest rewards of this remodeling: the kitchen . . . for it is the setting for this family show!

Planned with much forethought, it is a shining example of the latest in automation—a real success because it helps keep this busy family on schedule. They live—literally—on a timetable, what with Walter's 22 radio and television shows a week, including the daily "Walter Cronkite with the News," the "Sunday News Special," and "Twentieth Century." Not to mention the frequent trips he makes across the country. But the vast array of automatic equipment in this kitchen gives Betsy the time to spend with Walter and the children. And much of it is spent in the kitchen, for cook-fests and eat-fests alike.

Betsy loves the arrangement of work areas, for it helps her do the family chores neatly and efficiently. Having lived and worked in European kitchens during a stint of service overseas, Betsy appreciates real American know-how. A typical day at home with the Cronkites is what really shows off this kitchen to greatest advantage. The family eats continuously. Says Betsy Cronkite, "Chip eats first, then he eats again with me, then he eats with Daddy and then he has his lunch. Thank goodness for the dishwasher—for the dishes from each eating spree find themselves disposed of immediately!" Then, of course, there are the electronic range for fast-meal preparation (a real conversation piece for family and guests), a standard range for regular meals and a built-in surface cooking top. All are located near the dining room and are accessible for step-saving serving. Built-under-the-counter washer and dryer are close at hand for constant use.

In the what-you-can't-see department there's a portable TV so the family can watch Walter's frequent telecasts; Kathy and Nancy are his severest critics, we hear. Last, but not least, is the built-in refrigerator and freezer that provides a veritable grocery store at the family's fingertips. Philosophizing on her kitchen, Betsy mused, "if we'd known it was going to work out so well as a family room, we might have saved a lot of money and not built the other rooms. We actually live here—that is, when we're not in the den." The den is a favorite spot of the girls, who gather 'round the phonograph to indulge in their very favorite pastime, listening to music.

Walter Cronkite, too, enjoys leisure hours here, for the den is where he finds expression for his hobby, sports cars. Shelves are lined with books and miniature models of the sports cars he likes so well.

WALTER CRONKITE illustrates his favorite hobby to his girls. A miniature track-and-sports-car set provides the family with many hours of pleasure as they indulge in the sport.

Walter is the proud owner of an ivory-colored Austin Healey and part owner of another, a Lotus. He is frequently found running his Austin Healey in rallies, and the Lotus in races throughout the East.

Just before we left, the Cronkites were summing up their experiences in remodeling the house and discussing the confusion that goes along with remodeling and with moving into a new house. Walter Cronkite commented, "I think the day after we moved in with all the muss and fuss around us, the whole thing suddenly made very good sense when Nancy's little friend who lives on the next block yanked open the front door 'C'mon Nancy, we'll be late for school,' she yelled up the stairs. Here we were, living in the very heart of Manhattan, but you'd never know it. We have our own house, neighborhood kids yelling up the stairs to our kids, all the warmth and hominess anybody could ask for in big-city living!"

Light, lively Miracle Whip is America's favorite salad dressing!

Fluffy Toppers. Peel tomatoes, cut into thick slices and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Beat 2 egg whites; fold in 1 cup Miracle Whip. On each of 6 slices of toast place a slice of Kraft American, then a slice of tomato. Cover with the Miracle Whip mixture. Bake in a slow oven, 350°, until puffy and brown. Remember, it's Miracle Whip's flavor that makes them taste so good. You won't find that flavor in any other dressing.

2. Quick-Time Party Dip. Simply combine 1 cup of Miracle Whip Salad Dressing with 1 teaspoon of chopped chives. That easy, and come-again delicious, thanks to Miracle Whip. In dips, in sandwiches, in salads, no other dressing can give you such happy certainty of pleasing your guests, your family and yourself as the one and only Miracle Whip. It's fabulously popular.

3. Simple salad with flair. Just orange sections (canned mandarins, or fresh) and pineapple slices make a wonderful salad when the salad dressing is Miracle Whip. With Miracle Whip, you don't have to fuss with adding things for flavor. The flavor's already there. It's a bright, delightful, can't-be-copied flavor that just suits modern tastes.

The much-maligned feline...

JOHN AND ELIZABETH ROSENBERG

Although it is true that cats purred in Egyptian temples and strolled through the villas of Rome, they have also been persecuted down through the ages. The idea of the cat as the familiar spirit of witches and the devil has long been with us. In medieval times, religious authorities carried out official persecutions of cats. The dog, on the other hand, has been man's companions from earliest times.

All this has gone into the "racial memory" of the cat. Like all insecure or persecuted beings, cats love a certain amount of order, of knowing what is going to happen next, in their lives. They do not like their daily household routine upset. They feel threatened by change. Our own cat dislikes the idea of friends dropping by to see us. He shows his displeasure by going to sit in another room and taking no notice until they leave. But then, as they are leaving, he reappears in the front hall, seemingly friendly, but really just anxious to see the guests safely off the premises. Then, wild with joy, he chases up and down (continued) the passages of the apartment. His routine has been restored, he is alone once more, with those he loves.

The devotion of a cat to those he loves is equal to the dog's. When we went away one week-end recently, we learned our cat had spent the entire two days sitting on the chair by the front door waiting for our return! Cats, too, have been known to die of grief on their masters' graves. They have, if given away by their owners, traveled miles over unknown country back to their homes.

The cat's perceptions are astonishingly subtle and sensitive. Their sense of smell is not as keen as that of the dog, but other senses are keener. Especially important to them are the whiskers and eyebrows. These act as a kind of radar to pick up vibrations. Without them the cat would be helpless. Their hearing is extremely acute. If one of us is in the kitchen preparing some meat for our table or putting it on plates, our cat Jeremy, an extremely handsome tabby, will not bother to come and investigate. But if we make exactly the same noises, only with his food and his dish, he comes running, even if he is sleeping three or four rooms away! Some sense enables him, from all that distance, to distinguish the special sound of his plate and food. Cats have their own way of knowing when it is time for some item of their routine. After breakfast Jeremy waits patiently in the bathroom knowing it is time for his daily grooming with brush and comb.

Cats are the most highly individual of animals. They each have distinct personalities of their own. When our little niece lost her young tabby a year ago, she was inconsolable. The child spent hours writing notes, with particulars of the missing cat, which she dropped through the letter-boxes of all the houses in the neighborhood. A nearby family offered to give Miriam another kitten, but this only upset her more. "I want my cat!" she said. "Another one won't be the same!" P.S. The missing cat wanted his mistress, too, and returned to little Miriam late that evening.

Fascinating to observe, cats have a strangeness, an inscrutability about them. The cat, like oneself, will have moods of wanting to be by himself or of feeling weary or unresponsive. Above all, he won't be taken for granted, and to prove this, he will hop off your lap or the bed if you put him there, but will return of his own free-will when he's ready to! The cat earns your respect as well as your love. One's relationship with a cat is a rich one, indeed, for the cat responds to a mature, give-and-take friendship, not a master-and-slave arrangement. And in return, one finds there is never any doubt about who are "his people." The single-mindedness of a cat's devotion is a rich reward, indeed!

THE END

"I only wish he could get along half as well with people."

By doing

it themselves the William McGraws could put nearly an extra thousand into their new home

Saved $986¹⁷—

MARY E. MONZE

The William McGraws of Matawan, New Jersey, are typical of thousands of American couples. They simply have more taste than money. When they decided to go ahead with their new home, they had already found the perfect lot. The price was right, the neighborhood pleasant. And it was near enough for the children to walk or bike to school. But then came the rub. To get what they really wanted in their new home, they had to make changes in the architect's plans. Anyone who has ever tinkered with an architect's plan knows that it can add up to only one thing: MONEY! But the McGraws refused to be fazed by the financial squeeze. They went right ahead and did the painting and papering themselves. The original estimate for the job was listed at $1,200. The total cost of

It took the McGraws two and a half years to do the eight rooms, two baths and the halls. They found it more convenient to do most of the work during spring and summer. Although they missed spending sunny days in the leisurely manner, out of doors with their youngsters, they both agreed that the time they put in on the house was well worth the sacrifice and the effort.

All the nail holes were covered and sanded before the painting was started. Mrs. McGraw seemed to catch the knack of paper-hanging fairly easily, and this job turned out to be her special project. They both shared the painting, although Mr. McGraw was responsible for all the window frames. Altogether, the work they did adds up to an extremely professional-looking job. The wallpapers and paints they selected are not only attractive by themselves, but in excellent taste, beautifully suited to every room.

The McGraws have four children—Jane 13, Kathy 10, Jerry 5 and Tommy, a 3-year-old. Each girl has her own room and the boys share a room. The master bedroom makes the fourth bedroom on the second floor.

The first floor consists of a living room, dining room, den, bathroom and a large kitchen with a cozy breakfast corner. There are ample hallways on both floors, convenient and spacious.

The living room is furnished with lovely, old Victorian furniture that had originally belonged to Mrs. McGraw's family. The soft green paint chosen for the living room is a perfect background choice for the fine, old, traditional furniture they have accumulated over the years.

In the dining room and the girls' bedrooms, the pretty wallpaper is dramatized by draperies and curtains in a matching pattern. Mrs. McGraw made all the curtains and draperies as well as the slipcovers. In addition, she is also responsible for much of the family wardrobe. A former teacher of home economics,

Mrs. McGraw was a home-making expert long before she ever started housekeeping. There is a very well planned little nook for the sewing machine, so frequently in use, right under one of the dormer windows. When the machine is not in use, the floor-to-ceiling draperies conceal this working unit, a tidy and convenient arrangement.

Two of the kitchen walls are papered in a warm and cheerful provincial pattern. The other two, the dado, woodwork and ceiling are all painted in a sunny yellow for bright contrast.

The den, which also serves as a spare bedroom, is attractively done with knotty-pine wood paneling. Mr. McGraw did all the sanding on this and then used satin varnish, shellac and wax to make it rich and mellow. The basement, the family's present project, is being converted into a family room.

Mr. McGraw was formerly a teacher, too, but is now in the research department of the DuPont Company. Still interested in education, he is at present president of the school board.

THE END

SOLOS OR DUETS, Jane and Kathy love to play in favorite corner of living room. Draperies were made by Mrs. McGraw.

THE MCGRAW FAMILY dines in cheerful breakfast nook. McGraws chose warm, provincial patterned wallpaper as fitting background for colonial-style open cupboard, table.

JANE IS PROUD of the Early American look in her room. Fabric in curtains and valance match the quaint provincial wallpaper.

"MIND YOUR MANNERS," a gay patterned wallpaper, makes interesting background for antique rope bed in Kathy's room, but would have been overpowering on all four walls. Other three walls are in matching ground design.

CORNER OF DINING ROOM showing Kathy with collection of pitchers inherited from her grandmother. There are about 300 of them. Floor-length draperies match wallpaper. Both are Mrs. McGraw's handiwork. Painted dado and woodwork was done by Mr. McGraw.

If for some time you have been thinking you'd like to have a swimming pool but just didn't see where the money was coming from, the idea here is not to say that doubtless it would accrue once you made up your mind to go ahead. As yet, pools like this one of the Louis deHaven Shaws of Palos Verdes, California don't come for green stamps. On the other hand, no longer does owning a swimming pool and maintaining it impose impossible costs. The Shaw back lawn was landscaped by architect John Eyerman to accommodate the exact shape and size of a future swimming pool. The pipe lines for the water and the electric conduit for the light were installed in the planning stage. Eight feet of the rear fence was built so that it could be taken out when a bulldozer was brought in to excavate for the pool. Thanks to this advance planning, the pool was built with a minimum of disruption to the landscaping. The Shaws keep their pool from 85 degrees to near 90 in the three months of winter . . . much lower, of course, the rest of the year. To maintain a warm pool in winter isn't as hard as it sounds. The trick is to keep the heater on the two or three days it takes to reach the desired temperature level; then maintaining the temperature is neither difficult nor costly. Louis and Grace have plenty of fun in their pool—the year 'round.

Looking through the sliding glass doors of the Shaw house you can see how their back lawn was originally laid out for the future pool. Careful pre-planning kept their pool costs low.

AFTER

From the exact same spot our camera records the back lawn with the pool now installed. It is minimum size, 15x30, kidney-shaped and placed diagonally across the lot. Because the pool is small, it is easier to heat.

BELOW

The pool is perfectly integrated with the grounds and architecture of the house. It is only a ten-foot walk from the downstairs bath-dressing room to the edge of the pool.

This is the ugly basement
that went away

HUBBARD COBB

Many drab and dreary basements have been tucked under homes in the United States in the last fifteen years, just like this one in Short Hills, New Jersey . . . little more than a place to put the furnace and serve as a catch-all for the miscellaneous objects a family can't use upstairs. But note the wonderful transformation that was made here . . . turning this ugly duckling into a handsome recreation room. But there's more to the story than just this!

Too many families, we think, tend to go overboard when it comes to a "rec" room. A Cowboy-and-Indian motif may be wonderful when the kids are young. But what happens when they reach the teen ages and the lure of the Old West has lost its charm? Do we start from scratch again? This "rec" room is gay and bright, attractive to all ages—and that includes grown-ups.

And it's not without its practical advantages. The room is built around a soda bar made of corrugated translucent plastic. This material can be bent to any shape desired. It is used again in the window panes behind the bar (designed to hide the wash tubs) and also as a cover for the music cabinet. This material can be easily secured by nails or bolts.

The walls behind the soda bar and the music corner are insulating acoustical tiles that absorb about 30% of the sound. The kids can whoop it up or turn on the record player full blast without the grown-ups upstairs thinking the world has come to an end.

The rest of the wall space is insulating tile, the flooring is vinyl tile, the bar stools are wrought iron with plastic cushions. All are ample proof that this room was designed for wear, tear and hard knocks.

So ends the tale of the ugly basement that went away. We'd say the new one is here to stay.

SHAKESPEARE

Can you tell the cephalotaxus from the chamaecyparis?

A humorous guide for lovers of cone-bearing trees.

The forest's prime evil

MARJORIE WIHTOL

After years of comfortable fuzziness as to the identity of various conifers in gardens, woods and fields of the northeast, I settled down one afternoon to learn to "tell" them. I found myself in front of the fire surrounded by tree-books, nursery catalogues, tip-cuttings, cones and squashed yew-berries. I shall never regret it!

Don't go now. It can't get any worse. While pitching cuttings into the fire (they smelled so good!), I consulted the writings of experts.

Dr. Bailey, top American horticulturist, divided the conifers, which is a term for cone-bearing trees, into eight families. Other authors have given or taken a few, moved them around some, and claimed more or fewer families. I find that when the confusion and frustration engendered by this kind of thing hurt too much, it was Dr. Bailey's book that made it well again. The first family is the araucaria family. The "monkey puzzle" tree is its most rugged member and is capable of puzzling monkeys and related species as far north as Virginia. The Norfolk Island pine, which of course is no pine at all, is often seen as a pot-plant. The next family, named for its only representative, cephalotaxus, alias the plum yew, as you may have guessed, is not a yew at all! This Asian tree comes in several models.

Group number three is the cupressus family, which really does mean cypress. Most of the members of this family have the scale-like, usually flattened leaves which make identification so difficult. Then, arbitrarily some of them, such as Juniperus rigida, turn up with needles! Chamaecyparis, "false cypress," has woody cones, so you can tell it's not a juniper . . . that is, if you can find the cones. There is one other hardy relative, Libocedrus decurrens, alias, heaven help us, "the incense cedar!"

The next family is the pines, and these are a little easier to get straight, at least dictionary-wise. The firs (abies) are called fir, but there is a small possibility of confusion, and we must have at least several such possibilities, in the fact that in the Adirondacks, Abies balsamea, is called balsam instead of balsam fir.

The genus cedrus is composed of the four true cedars which started all this. Thuja (arborvitae) is a rascal because it has scaly leaves which make it look like a juniper or a chamaecyparis. The cedars, firs and arborvitae all stand their cones on end, and that's a bit of a help. Larix is the larch, with its needles in tufts, and the American one is called tamarack. Picea is the spruce genus, and these trees are usually easy to recognize because their branches are more horizontal than those of other large conifers . . . in fact, they are often downright droopy.

Tsuga is hemlock, a handsome, tall forest tree and also a successful hedge shrub. To the hemlock has been attached the biggest "booboo" of arboriculture, for it was not from this tall citizen of the forest that the noble Socrates sipped his death, but from Conium maculatum, an herb of the parsley and carrot family, called poison hemlock. In order to determine the true pine, one starts by adjusting one's bi-focals and counting the number of needles to a cluster. The last two hardy genera of this family are "pseudos": pseudolarix and pseudotsuga. This last word comes off the tongue in a fine hiss; try it three times out loud, with crackers. Pseudotsuga taxifolia is mis-called Douglas fir.

Sixth is the podocarpus family of the southern hemisphere, which includes the pretty-leaved macrophylla, darling of the dime stores. The taxus family has beautiful pulpy berries just a shade darker than Schiaparelli's favorite pink. Last come the taxodiums, which include the Florida cypresses, usually found growing among beautiful girls on water skis. The dawn redwood, so called because it is believed to have existed at the "dawn of time," is growing at the New York Botanical Garden; it is Metasequoia glyptostroboides to folks who enjoy syllables. The famous cypress "knees" are roots which climb out of the water to get a little air.

So that's it, and I'm sure you're as relieved as I am, at this point. But if some day you find yourself standing with a friend admiring the fan-shaped foliage of a ginkgo, and your friend says, "Jeepers, what a beautiful pine!", don't argue, for she is close to right. That was the fourth family, and I left it out just to see if you'd notice!

According to statistics, 40 million people move each year . . . and chances are that you may be one of them. Here is furniture designed for folks on the move! Fit-anywhere, change-about stacking stools to be used in any number of ways. Let's say you have a problem that only a room-divider may solve in one home.

Then when you move you no longer need the divider, but you could use some end-tables. That's where these stacking stools become quick-change artists! For you can sit on them, serve on them, or stack them high to form a bookcase. Use them together to create a coffee table or individually, as end tables.

Whether you plan to move or are a stay-at-home, you'll find these stacking stools useful and attractive wherever you are or wherever you move. Easy-as-pie to create, you can make the set of six stacking stools for only $12!

A good shopper CAN go wrong

ROBERT W. HOUSEMAN

Many a good shopper walks into a store with a vague idea of what she wants in the way of fabrics. But then what happens? She finds herself in a veritable sea of fabrics, the place flooded with damasks, silks and cottons, with bright colors and subdued tones, with patterns, stripes and solids. No wonder she gets carried away and ends up with exactly the wrong thing! Now a good shopper needn't go wrong. Not if she follows our American HOME Basic Buying Tips, and the sound professional advice of a trained decorating consultant. We herewith introduce Mrs. Jean Kellogg of W. & J. Sloane. Mrs. Kellogg's job is similar to the work of the many decorating consultants in stores throughout the country, a job that consists of helping the bewildered shopper-in-a-quandary.

WRONG

"Here, a handsome floral pattern is wasted on this tufted-back chair."

RIGHT

"Small scale matelasse fabric gives the same tufted-back chair more formal feeling."

"The plain, textured fabric here is an excellent choice for use in informal decor."

One rarely finds a fabric in the stores today that is not well-designed, long-wearing, color-fast and possessing other quality characteristics. Yet how very often we find these same good fabrics misused or inappropriately used, totally devaluating the fabric itself, as well as the furniture it covers. Our American HOME Basic Buying Tips that follow will help you avoid such pitfalls.

1. PLAN FIRST AND SHOP LATER. The upholstered furniture you buy in muslin requires "your choice of fabrics." The fabric choice is also up to you when you reupholster furniture or make slipcovers. When you purchase fabric in quantity for these purposes, remember that the right choice will save headaches and money. Therefore, it is important to think and plan before you buy!

2. CONSIDER COLOR. When you shop, take along a room description and list of colors in the room where the fabric will be used. Take color samples, if you have them. When re-covering anything as large as a sofa or chair, the color of walls, carpeting and furnishings becomes very important. The wrong color-choice can throw the entire room off-key, and you'll have to live with a discordant result.

3. SELECT BY WEIGHT. For upholstering, choose a heavier fabric than you would use for slipcovering. Slipcovers can be laundered more easily and more frequently than upholstering can be dry-cleaned. Lighter-weight fabrics designed for use as draperies or slipcovers make a poor choice for permanent upholstering.

4. DESIGN CHOICE. Beginning with our picture sequence at the top of this page, we have a good example of upholstering in the all-over patterned damask on the traditional wing chair. Over this, Mrs. Kellogg demonstrates a horizontal stripe that is, in itself, perfectly handsome, but not on this style chair. The horizontal lines of the fabric reduce the beautiful back panel and will certainly enlarge the piece visually in the wrong places. Used vertically, stripes have a tendency to veer off in the wrong direction on curved upholstered pieces. Our choice of the large-scale floral centered in the back panel of the wing chair will fit well, since it includes the entire design in the panel.

The next three pictures (opposite page) show a button and tufted-back tub chair, one of the most comfortable, but one which needs consideration in upholstering. This type of chair does not slipcover well, since the modeled back is lost under the fabric. The first picture shows how a patterned fabric is wasted on the chair back when it is tucked and buttoned as upholstering. In the center picture, the small scale matelasse is very good, gives the chair a more formal feeling and a third dimensional effect with its rich surface sheen. The chair as upholstered, in a plain textured fabric, is completely suited to a less formal decor.

In the three pictures (this page, center) we have taken a typical Lawson sofa and chair.

Mrs. Kellogg likes to call these "Mr. and Mrs. America pieces," so popular and practical they are. She shows one poor fabric for upholstering these pieces and two excellent fabrics. In the first picture, the pattern is too large, and would need unfortunate cutting to fit it to back or seat. The center picture shows a good provincial print in medium scale which would work out nicely on either sofa or chair. The floral pattern that we show on the chair in the third picture is a medium scale that will center nicely in the back panel and on the chair seat.

In the two pictures at the bottom of this page, we show a pillow-back chair, another popular style. On a chair of this type, the back is rather low, a fact to take into consideration when choosing a fabric. The floral pattern shown is a poor choice due to the need for cropping into the design when cutting the material. The printed damask pattern in smaller scale is much better for use here and will work out well on all surfaces of the chair. While good, plain fabrics in the right color are usually safe for upholstering or slipcovers, printed or woven patterns might add a little more dash to your decorating scheme.

THE END

"Large central design of fabric can't be seen in its entirety on Lawson sofa."

"The medium scale provincial print here is much better suited for Lawson-type sofa."

RIGHT

"This medium scale floral pattern is a good choice for chair with low back."

"Floral design would be cut up if used on short back panel at left. Damask in small print is recommended instead."

The colonial tradition in American home building seems to be as strong as ever. Small wonder, when a house as fine as our Blueprint No. 61 is available to carry on this heritage. It's a two-story house with three bedrooms and two baths on the second floor and a living room, dining room, kitchen, study, bedroom, bath and center entry hall on the main floor. A breezeway connects the two-car garage with the kitchen. The overall dimensions of the house are 85x34½'. There are 2,620 sq. ft. of living area plus a garage, breezeway and basement. The continuing need for colonial design speaks well for the craftsmanship and architectural know-how of our forefathers. For they created an architectural style that has proved itself through hundreds of years of social and scientific change.

The warm and gracious simplicity of the house and the efficiency of its floor plan account in large measure for its popularity. In these crowded and hectic days, the ordered and peaceful appearance of the colonial house provides a sort of architectural tranquilizer for the home buyer who wants a shelter or haven from his work-a-day worries. You can count on it: The familiar sight of gables, clapboards and shutters of our American colonial will be around a long time on almost every Main Street, U. S. A.!

This fall some tens of thousands of married couples will be sitting in real estate brokers' offices, their fountain pens poised, and the brokers will say rather expectantly, "You wish this to go in your joint names?"—and there will be murmured duets of assent. Thus, casually, legal relationships of far-reaching consequences may be born.

For in due course a deed will be drawn, signed and delivered, conveying the dreamhouse in Upper Suburbia to—we shall say, "Harvey Allen and Joyce Allen, his wife, as joint tenants with right of survivorship." Or words to that effect.

A mental roadblock already may have been erected by use of the word "tenants." Harvey and Joyce haven't leased the place, they have bought it. They own it, subject to the inevitable mortgage. "Tenancy" is a lawyer's word; it relates to form of ownership.

A Quartet of Definitions

Tenancy for years—that would be a typical lease. Tenancy in common signifies that two or more people own fractional interests in a parcel of property, but there are no lines of division. Each has a piece of it somewhere, but he can't point a possessive finger and say, "This is it." He can sell his common interest or devise it by will; if he dies without a will it passes to his heirs. But joint tenancy is what we are talking about, and it's quite a whacky concept, if you think about it. Under the laws in most states are needed. The effect is practically the same as joint tenancy, except that the interests can't be separately conveyed. Besides, entireties apply generally only to real estate.

These "tenancies" came out of the misty feudal origin of the English common law. All but about twenty states have abolished entireties, as such; in all but a handful, however, joint tenancies are recognized. In the interest of simplicity (and plainer English) the phrase "joint ownership" hereafter will be used to include both of these relationships.

A Lusty Mythology

Joint ownership probably has given rise to more popular misunderstandings than any concept in our system of law. Commonest is the assumption that if property is held in joint ownership there doesn't need to be a will.

Let's look at this. Harvey and Joyce Allen put the home in their joint names; and with more than normal consistency they maintain their bank accounts in joint names—with "right of survivorship" carefully spelled out, and the stocks they buy are similarly registered. They have young children. Suppose now they are involved in an accident. Harvey dies first; Joyce becomes sole owner; an instant later, she dies. They have no will, but under the law the children take as heirs.

This is as it should be—"except." Since the children are under twenty-one, a guardian of their property will be appointed by the court. This

"arm of the court" will be under bond and subject to restrictions designed for the protection of the children, but who will be the guardian is something Harvey and Joyce, as of now, can only guess at. Normally he or she will be some relative who volunteers and is found acceptable by the court. If Harvey and Joyce wish to control the appointment, they must have wills. Both of them—for it is the will of the survivor that will speak, and their horoscopes guarantee no certainty on this point.

Moreover, if their jointly-owned assets are quite substantial, Harvey and Joyce may not wish their children to come suddenly into riches at the comparative immaturity of twenty-one. They may wish a trustee's management until the children have reached some financially more sophisticated age. This can be accomplished, (continued on page 94)

a joint tenant can sell or give away his interest—which by some alchemy thereby becomes a tenancy in common; but if he dies, his interest ceases—the survivor owns the entire property.

One more definition needs to be disposed of: tenancy by the entirety. This was really the original husband-wife deal. Any two or more people can be joint tenants with right of survivorship if the deed running to them specifically says so. But only a husband and wife can be tenants by the entirety; the deed simply has to run to "Harvey Allen and Joyce Allen, his wife" and the relationship is automatically created—no further words

THE WAVRA COTTAGE "...all pink and lovely" is shown above. With its beautiful plantings, its pink and glowing air of the well-cared-for home, it bears little resemblance to the drab house at right.

THE WAVRAS

pull a Pink cloud to earth

GEORG NILSEN

The year 1946 arrived in Silverton, Oregon, and was much like any other year to all except one young, energetic couple who had a dream. In this little farming town, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wavra had been working, planning and saving for several years. At last they acquired enough money to buy a particular little house on which their hearts had been set for what seemed to them a very long time. To many, it would not have been much to look at, just an average cottage, but to young, creative hearts, it stood already transformed—"All pink and lovely."

Mrs. Wavra was employed in the office of the famous Cooley Iris Gardens at Silverton. In fact, the Cooleys happened to own this little cottage she wanted so badly and had promised her that she and her husband might buy it whenever it was feasible.

A few years before this time, the Wavras' little girl Marcella was born. When Marcella was older, Mrs. Wavra went back to work again, and their savings for the little dream house began to mount. The year of 1946 was doubly eventful to Mrs. Wavra for not only were they able to buy the cottage, but it was possible for her to quit her job. Now she had more time to spend with her daughter, and to start remodeling their new home! Dreams of how to turn this drab, little house into a thing of beauty and charm, surrounded by a rich green lawn with generous beds of beautiful flowers, kept racing through Mrs. Wavra's mind. With the deed of their new home "in hand," the first thing the Wavras did was to have the property surveyed for its exact boundary lines.

To their joy they discovered that they were entitled to additional land in front of the house toward the street. This, of course, meant new sidewalks, lawn and plantings. They decided to save money by renting an old truck to haul in the fourteen huge loads of silt, required for the grounds. They did all the loading and unloading by themselves, saving tremendously on labor costs. With the preparation of a good seedbed, planting time arrived. It was at this time, that Mrs. Wavra's "green thumb" began to show itself. The grass and flowers flourished.

All of this work consumed a good deal of time, but up till now the cost of the early phase of improvements had been negligible, mostly entailing labor. Now, the Wavras, being a practical, level-headed young couple, resolved regardless of how many years it would take them to accomplish their dream, never to make a single improvement that couldn't be paid for on the spot. Mrs. Wavra again took a job, this time on a part-time basis so that she might spend as much time as possible working on the house and being with her family.

Some time passed before they undertook the really major alterations of the house. And these were necessitated by the arrival of another daughter, Louise.

The old garage on the north side of the house was taken over and converted into a bedroom. By putting a generous bay window where the garage doors had been and adding closet space on the opposite side, a very attractive room evolved. A carport with sun deck was extended to the side of the bedroom.

With the increase in the family, the demands on the kitchen grew. They decided to remodel the kitchen in slow stages, but before they knew it, a complete remodeling was under way! They installed new kitchen cabinets, drainboards, a double steel sink, a large thermopane window looking out over the backyard and patio, a built-in electric stove and oven and a folding louvered gate for the back entry. These and other additions increased both the attractiveness and the efficiency of the kitchen.

Little by little, the pink house came to resemble the cottage of their dreams. They added fences, a greenhouse, a patio, additional plantings and a myriad of other attractive features. Mrs. Wavra never regretted "pitching in" by not only working on the actual remodeling, but also taking outside jobs when savings ran low and house-repair costs ran high. Their children have a beautiful home with lovely grounds. The parents have all this and a wonderful sense of fulfillment. Their house is an inspiring example of what a young couple can accomplish when they hitch their hearts to a dream.

TAKE of String Beans

A well-stocked shelf of canned foods is typically American. The canning industry has made a wonderful contribution, supplying us with quality canned foods in great quantity. Yet how often have you refrained from doing "something more interesting" to canned products—something like. . .

STIRRING GREEN BEANS AND HAM CUBES into a cheese sauce and serving on pattie shells as an entree (shown above) or fashioning a CASSEROLE DISH from a can of string beans (whole, cut or French style) and using French fried onions as a unique topping shown below) . . . different and delicious!

ADD EXCITEMENT to everyday stringbeans with your favorite spice and seasonings and a small quantity of lemon juice. Then top them with peanuts that have been sautéed to a golden brown. See this tasty dish above.

A CAN of Peaches

JUNE M. TOWNE

Whether you use canned peaches as a major ingredient in a recipe or serve them straight from the can, you'll find they're always a treat. Think of peach salads, open-faced peach pies, peach gelatins, peach tarts, custards and frozen peach desserts!

PEACH TEA-RING (above) is another peachy idea. The golden sliced peaches, butter-and-brown-sugar topping give it a luscious, butterscotch flavor while PEACH GINGER ALE SALAD (below) can be served either as a luncheon salad or with the meat course.

A PEACH DUMPLING recipe with a hearty, old-fashioned flavor! Its bubbly currant-jelly sauce will remind you of grandmother's desserts. That new flavor twist is marshmallow, not visible in the photo (above) because it's the surprise under the peaches!

BEFORE REMODELING, there was a lot of wasted space in this small kitchen that didn't have an inch to spare. See waste area over range and note partially blocked drawer space on far side of the range. Shelves to the right were too high and deep to be used conveniently.

This kitchen works for a working wife

AFTER REMODELING, the range is surrounded by convenient counter and cabinet space. Previously wasted wall space over range is now filled with useful cabinets. Mrs. Alfred Zuckerman added a ventilating hood over range to carry off cooking odors—most important in a small kitchen! All cooking utensils are now within reach of range.

Frankfurter Corn Bake comes out perfect with Del Monte, the never-fail cream style corn

You don't need anybody to tell you why DEL MONTE is the most popular cream style corn in these United States!

You can open DEL MONTE Cream Style Corn and see how rich and smooth it is — how it's crowded with bright kernels, too. And you can certainly taste that special sweetness and tenderness — even without knowing that DEL MONTE corn is raised from exclusive seed for high natural sugar content and very thin-skinned kernels.

And you'll find this cream style corn never lets you down. Just what you want for hearty eating plain — or for good things like corn pudding, powder or casseroles. That's DEL MONTE Cream Style Corn — for sure.

FRANKFURTER CORN BAKE

- | | |
|---|--|
| 3 eggs, slightly beaten | 1 teaspoon dry mustard |
| 2 cans (17-oz. size) DEL MONTE
Brand Golden Cream Style Corn | 1 teaspoon salt |
| 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs | 6 to 8 frankfurters, cut in 1/2-inch slices |
| 1/4 cup finely chopped onions | DEL MONTE Catsup for garnish |

Beat eggs slightly in large bowl. Add remaining ingredients except catsup, saving out enough frankfurter slices to garnish top. Pour into well-greased shallow 1 1/2 or 2 quart baking dish; arrange frankfurter garnish on top. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) 30 minutes or until set in center. Garnish with catsup, as shown, if desired. Serves 6.

THE U-SHAPE of the kitchen helps speed hurried breakfasts of two working people. Pull-down snack bar at end of kitchen also eases breakfast-making job. Dishes are stored in dishwasher when meal is over, then washed with dinner dishes at night. Sink and window remain in same place, but new, well-designed cabinets give extra storage space.

Doris Zuckerman is one of over 11 million working wives with jobs outside the home—that's why she needs a kitchen to work for her. When she and her husband bought a 21-year-old house in Ardsley, New York, everything suited them but the old and inefficient kitchen. As an investment, they decided to remodel it and try to put some of the wasted space back into use.

This is how the problem was solved: They kept the original range and refrigerator, replaced the old, too-deep cabinets and added a dishwasher and disposer along with new countertops and linoleum. They installed another addition of importance, an effective, new lighting system!

Doris Zuckerman wanted a cheerful kitchen, but not one that would be tiresome. She chose pumpkin-colored countertops and grey-white cabinets with yellow, chrome or black accessories. The result: a kitchen that is bright on the gloomiest of days! And, another bonus: when entertaining, Doris has enough room in the kitchen for friends to come in and chat while she is preparing dinner.

OLD-FASHIONED RICE PUDDING

—the quicker Minute Rice way

$\frac{2}{3}$ cup Minute Rice • $2\frac{3}{4}$ cups milk • $\frac{1}{3}$ cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter • $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt • $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon nutmeg • Cinnamon • Sugar

Combine Minute Rice, milk, sugar, butter, salt, vanilla and nutmeg in a greased 1-quart baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour, stirring after 15 minutes, and again when pudding is done. Then sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Place under broiler a few minutes to brown. Serve warm, or chilled.

Pudding thickens as it stands, because Minute Rice continues to absorb the milk and flavors as pudding cools. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Remove from heat, let stand 5 minutes. Add marshmallows, cherries, pineapple and nuts. Cool to room temperature. Fold in whipped cream and chill 1 hour. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

$\frac{2}{3}$ cup Minute Rice • $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups milk • $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon gelatin • 1 slightly beaten egg • $\frac{1}{3}$ cup sugar
 $\frac{2}{3}$ cup milk • 1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup whipped cream • $\frac{1}{3}$ cup chopped candied fruit

Combine Minute Rice, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups milk and the salt in large, heavy saucepan. Mix to moisten all rice. Boil gently, loosely covered, 10 minutes, or until milk is absorbed. Fluff occasionally with fork. Remove from heat. Meanwhile, soften gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water. Add egg, sugar, and $\frac{2}{3}$ cup milk to gelatin. Slowly add to rice, mixing well. Cook slowly and stir until mixture coats a dry metal spoon.

PSSST!
Mommy's
cooking!

It's hot outside but the kitchen's
cool,
cool!

Mommy, it's hot outside, but there's still a way to serve your family a hot meal while keeping cool yourself. Just follow the example of Doris Simpson, keeper of a cool kitchen. Cool because she uses only the oven for her complete meal; cool because, for Doris, summertime is oven-time.

Doris gets the most out of today's wonderful equipment — the clock-controlled range with the effectively insulated oven and the home-freezer. Freezers provide a perfect storehouse for imaginative, exciting meals scheduled for future enjoyment.

Healthy bodies need their quota of hot, substantial meals, especially during the months of summer-salads-and-cold-cuts. And today it's so easy for you to prepare the hot, nourishing meals your family requires, because you can keep cool while fixing the delicious oven fare that the Simpsons share.

Doris Simpson is a former working wife and knows the value of time. She was a home economics advisor for Public Service Electric and Gas Company of New Jersey. Doris says feeding her family has never been a problem for her because of the training she had in her job, and besides, she loves to cook!

The Edward R. Simpsons live in Clark, New Jersey, with their three children, Mark — 2½, Robin — 5, and Neil — 14 months. Doris keeps house, looks after her lively children but doesn't forget herself. She feels, as many women do, that it is wise to have interesting outside activities. Doris works with a regional adult school as well as doing committee work for her community. A good homemaker, Doris organizes her time well and uses her appliances to best advantage. On the next page we show you how Doris prepares oven meals that are real time- and energy-savers.

Complete meal

leaves freezer 5:00

Meal in oven 5:15

The three pictures on these pages tell Doris Simpson's wonderful home-management story. At 5 o'clock, Doris takes Barbecued Chicken, Frenched green beans and Deep-dish Apple Pie from the freezer. At 5:15, these dishes go into the oven with baked potatoes in foil. The oven clock is set, the last 20 minutes a loaf of Garlic French Bread is popped into the oven and at 6:30, the oven shuts off and all is ready for the table! A tossed salad is the finishing touch to a good hot meal prepared with a minimum of effort.

• HOW TO MANAGE AN OVEN MEAL

The menus to the left are some of our suggestions for oven meals. The same time and temperature settings are used for all foods. If you leaf through your recipes, you will be able to put together your own oven-meal menus. These hot meals from cool kitchens have many advantages. You can prepare most dishes ahead of time, freeze them, then cook them at your convenience.

To bake, take out before dinner time, put in cold oven, set clock control to start one hour (or whatever time your menu calls for) before you want to serve the meal. By the time the oven comes on, the frozen foods will be thawed and ready to cook. If possible, put all foods in the oven at the same time. This will save you time and effort . . . and keep you cool. Of course, these meals provide a perfect opportunity for you to show off your stove-to-table cookware! Cook in them, serve in them, they will save dishwashing and pretty up your table, too.

Caution: Should you store in this cookware, too, remember, not all cookware goes from the freezer directly into hot oven—read your product instruction booklet first.

Startling claim—that a Lennox Comfort Craftsman can perform heating magic like this! But there are plenty of well documented cases to back it up.

Once properly adjusted, however, such a furnace will not only heat your home more evenly, but also can cut your fuel bill by as much as 20%. In a multi-story house, such as a split-level, proper adjustment is essential for draft-free comfort on all levels. In any house, it will make every room more comfortable.

The adjustment is simple. Part of it is application of the principle of CAC—Continuous Air Circulation. But it does take a trained Comfort Craftsman to accomplish it.

Your Lennox Comfort Craftsman is the best-trained heating and air conditioning man in town. He is prepared to inspect your heating installation, regardless of make, and perform such adjustments as the installation permits. If adjustment is all that's necessary his charges will be a pleasant surprise. SHINGLING A LOW-PITCHED ROOF

For many years asphalt shingles haven't been used on roofs with a rise of less than 4 inches to the foot. However, the recently developed method described here can be used on roofs with a pitch as low as 2 inches per foot. Even though no one step of this new application technique is complicated or difficult, one thing the do-it-yourself homeowner should keep firmly in mind is the fact that working on a roof is always dangerous, especially for an amateur. So remember to take the proper safety precautions and do the job slowly and carefully. Also, be sure you follow each step of the technique exactly as specified in order to get full, long-term service from your roofing.

Here is a general list of the materials you'll need to do the job: a metal drip for all edges of the roof, enough 15-lb. felt roofing to cover the whole roof with two thicknesses, flashing and nails for the flashing, roofing cement, shingle tab cement, square-butt, strip asphalt shingles and nails and flashing compound.

Before you start laying asphalt shingles be sure your roof deck is sound. The boards should be well-seasoned, without loose knots and nailed tightly to each rafter. The first step is to put the drip (continued)

FOR EFFICIENT SHEDDING of water at the roof's edges, install a metal drip edge along the eaves and along rakes. The metal sheeting should be resistant to corrosion and extend 3" back from edge of roof. Bend down over roof edge.

DECK IS THEN COVERED with two layers of 15-lb. asphalt felt, beginning at the eaves with a 19-in. starter course nailed to the deck, followed by a 36-in. wide sheet laid even with the eaves, completely covering the starter course.

AFTER FIRST TWO LAYERS of asphalt felt are in place along eaves edge, 36"-wide sheets are nailed or stapled to roof deck. Each 36"-wide sheet overlaps the preceding course by 19".

edge along the eave edge of the roof deck. This metal sheeting should be corrosion-resistant, extend 3" back from the roof edges, and be bent down over the edges to carry the water clear of the roof. Nail the sheeting with nails of the same metal spaced 8 to 10 inches apart. The deck is then covered with two layers of 15-pound asphalt saturated felt, beginning at the eaves with a 19-inch starter course nailed to the deck, followed by a 36-inch wide sheet laid even with the eaves and completely covering the starter course. After this is done, continue laying 36-inch sheets with each sheet overlapping the preceding course by 19 inches and exposing 17 inches of the underlying sheet.

You will find white lines on the felt, one of which is 19 inches from the top edge. Overlap sheets down to this line. The felt is secured to the roof deck with nails or staples, using only enough fasteners to hold it in place until the shingles are applied. (In areas where the January daily average temperature is 25 degrees or less, or where there is a possibility of ice forming along the eaves and causing a back-up of water, cement the two felt layers together from the eave up the roof to overlie a point 24" inside the wall line of the building.)

THE FIRST COURSE. The actual laying of the asphalt strip shingles begins with the "starter course" which lies under the first regular course and fills in the spaces between the tabs. The starter course is laid along the eaves and flush with the eave edges with tabs facing up the roof. Using square butt shingles, cut about 3" off the first starter course shingle to insure that all cut-outs will be covered. Nail in place with one nail at each cut-out and one 1" from each end. Then nail on first course right side out, with tabs facing down the roof, with four nails per shingle and starting with a full shingle. Align each shingle carefully. Start nailing from the end nearest the shingle just laid, and proceed across. This will prevent buckling. Drive nails straight so that the edge of the nail head will not cut into the shingle. Nail heads should be driven flush, not sunk into the surface. At the rake eaves each shingle should always be well cemented to the metal drip (continued)

FIRST COURSE OF SHINGLE installed at the edge of the roof is turned to face up the roof edge and shingle below it. CEMENTING SHINGLE TABS. To make your roof resistant to the wind, you must cement down the shingle tabs. Lift each tab on the shingle strip and place a spot of quick-setting asphalt cement about the size of a half dollar on the shingle underneath. Lift the shingle just far enough so that you can apply the cement with a putty knife or calking gun. Press the tab down against the cement making sure none of the cement oozes out under the shingle.

AT THE RAKE EAVES, cement each shingle with asphalt cement to the metal drip edge and to the shingle below it.

NEW SHINGLE. An automatic sealing shingle has pre-applied tab cement. Once installed, the sun's heat melts the cement securing the tabs to the underlying shingle.

TIPS ON ROOF CARE

TAKE CARE OF YOUR ROOF. Don't walk on it unless you use a ladder or walk board.

KEEP GUTTERS, DOWNSPOUTS and roof surface clear of debris so that water will not back up under shingles.

NEVER LET WATER FROM A DOWNSPOUT pour directly onto a roof surface below it. Connect downspout from upper roof to the gutter draining the lower roof.

WHEN REMOVING ICE OR SNOW from the roof be careful not to damage the roof with your tools. TRIM TREES NEAR YOUR ROOF to prevent scratching by branches or damage by falling limbs. Keep climbing vines trimmed back, too.

MONKEY
WRENCH
IN THE PLUMBING

JOSEPH P. BLANK

Your water faucet can pour out illness for your family. Your hot water heater or clothes dryer can blast apart your home. Your furnace can start a fire. The lawn on which your children play can bear the seeds of disease. Does this sound dreadful and impossible? All this can happen — has happened — from faulty plumbing installed by incompetents.

"Bootleg" plumbing, done by unlicensed persons without a plumbing permit for the job, causes hundreds of easily avoidable accidents and fatalities each year. The case histories of disaster prove that an unqualified man with a wrench is no less dangerous to safety than a demented person with a gun.

In Oklahoma there was the case of "the friend who did a favor" by installing an over-sized hot water heater in the basement of a family's house. In his haste and negligence he plugged up the pressure relief valve. A few evenings later, the heater exploded, bombing out the basement, smashing windows and tearing a hole through the first floor. By the merest good luck the family escaped injury; they had been visiting neighbors at the time of the explosion.

Another close call occurred in Akron, Ohio, where an ignorant handyman ran the flue pipe from a hot water heater into a coal bin, still filled with coal stored for a replaced furnace. According to the plumbing code the flue pipe should have been run into the chimney or out a window into the open air. Gas from the heater, mixing with coal dust, could have produced an explosion or caused death from carbon monoxide poisoning. Fortunately the home owner smelled fumes and acted wisely by hurriedly calling a qualified plumber who corrected the system.

The dangers from incompetent work are endless. In remodeling her home one housewife hired a friendly local handyman to do the plumbing. During the spring and summer no defects were noticed. In the fall, however, when the furnace was turned on, 20-foot flames leaped from the chimney and brought several fire trucks to the house. What happened? The handyman had run a vent stack from one of the bathrooms into the furnace. The escaping sewer gas, which should have been vented up through the roof into the open air, was ignited by the heat from the furnace.

In San Diego, Cal. an entire apartment house was stricken by illness after a housewife threw the clothing of a jaundice patient into her washing machine. She had filled the machine through a hose connected to the kitchen sink faucet. This type of connection is standard in hundreds of thousands of apartments. While the washer was being filled, tenants in the apartments below suddenly in-

Fair of 1933 when amoebic dysentery killed 98 persons and caused serious illness to 1,400 others. Source of the epidemic was traced to two large hotels where unqualified handymen were responsible for cross-connections that permitted waste to back into the drinking water lines. This tragedy hurried officials into enacting model ordinances and creased their use of water. An air pocket, or vacuum, formed in the water supply lines and water in the washer was sucked into the faucets of the other apartments. Thirty people came down with jaundice. Such back-siphonage could have been avoided by properly installed plumbing.

The worst single plumbing disaster of recent times broke out during the Chicago World's licensing laws to protect the city.

The do-it-yourself rage has turned many home-owners into would-be plumbers with unhappy, sometimes catastrophic results. Near Des Moines, Iowa, a man rebelled at the $700 bids received from contractors for modernizing his heating system. He did the job himself, thereby saving several hundred dollars. The explosion that later followed demolished his home, injuring him and his mother.

In Dayton, Ohio, one expert estimates that residents are losing $30,000 a year on boot-leg, including do-it-yourself plumbing. Since 90% of plumbing is hidden, the resident can't tell the quality of a job until it's too late. Not until his property is damaged by back-ups, fire or an explosion, does he register a complaint. Invariably the defective plumbing has to be torn out and properly reinstalled, with the result that the home-owner pays twice for the job.

Under the laws of most communities the home-owner who "does it himself" or has the job done under illegal circumstance is liable to arrest and fine. Some counties are throwing the book at such property owners. In Venice, Fla., for instance, a man was served with a criminal warrant for allowing plumbing to be installed without a permit. In addition he was forced to rip out considerable plaster work so the inspector could examine the plumbing.

TO DRY SWEATERS, place in dryer with 4 towels as fluff-ers. Keep 6 min. on low heat.

Two simple precautions can protect you and your family against defective, dangerous plumbing:

1. Ask to see the plumber's license. Master plumbers are issued licenses after passing a state, county or city examination designed to test his competency in every phase of plumbing. In most classified telephone books both licensed and unlicensed contractors are listed under "Plumbers." The National Association of Plumbing Contractors is trying to get telephone companies to restrict listing to licensed contractors only.

2. Ask to see the permit for the specific job issued by the plumbing inspector's office. The permit means that the plumber has submitted plans for the job to the inspector. The plans are approved only if they conform to the plumbing code, which is a manual of good installation practices. The permit also alerts the inspector to check the work after completion.

When the plumber finishes the job, notify the inspector. Don't take the plumber's word that he "knows his business." Such a man assured a home owner that his work would be inspected. An accomplice, acting as an inspector, checked the job and lavishly complimented the handyman in the presence of the homeowner. Later both men were hailed into court and fined.

The only way to know that the best job is being done is by the license and the permit.

How to "Break In" a New House

KEN YARBER

There stood our new home, a magnificent castle to us, so trim and still faintly aromatic with fresh paint and sawed pine, beckoning to be lived in. The sparkle of new construction continued to give us a comfortable feeling when we moved in, but a year or so later strange things began to happen.

Floors creaked, woodwork separated and a minor canyon opened around the bathtub. Asphalt tile curled, basement walls leaked, spider-web cracks broke out in a rash over plastered surfaces. Windows stuck when we wanted them open and cold air whistled around them when we needed warmth. We complained to our builder, and he was the man who set us to rights about new homes.

"There are more than 30,000 component parts in a new home," he said, "and like a new car, it requires meticulous 'breaking in.' Here's what we learned about the process of 'breaking in' a new home.

First of all, if there are any repairs needed due to defective workmanship or materials, a reputable builder will correct this situation during the first months of occupancy. However, the best insurance is to have a clause in the building contract which states that the builder will make corrections for a certain period of time.

Don't be surprised by cracks forming in concrete foundations or basement walls. This is caused by summer and winter expansions and contraction, but the cracks will not affect the strength of walls. Fill cracking of concrete in walks, driveways, steps and basement floors with cement and sand mixtures or with other pliable compounds.

Shrinkage in all wood is inevitable. It can cause woodwork joints to open, doors to warp and mouldings to work out of their original positions. Help this situation by installing storm doors to protect outside doors against extreme winter temperature, and avoid overheating in a new house.

Two weeks must pass before asphalt tile floors are thoroughly "seated" and the adhesive has set. Don't use excessive amounts of water or wax during this time, and be sure to use a water-base wax.

Condensation and moisture can be disturbing factors in a house. See that it is well ventilated. Basement windows should be closed during damp, muggy weather and kept open during dry, clear days.

Every new homeowner needs a basic home tool kit and supplies for everyday use to keep the house in tip-top shape. A basic set includes: a size-16 utility wrench, cards of faucet washers, hand pliers, screwdrivers, claw hammer, putty knife, square, saw, level, key-hole saw, boxes of nails and brads, penknife, friction tape and fuses. Many new homeowners are not skilled enough to repair or adjust mechanical installations such as plumbing, heating and electricity. Unless you are fully trained in this sort of work, leave it to the service companies; it's cheaper in the long run. If you want to make some major alterations, improvements or additions, they must be approved by your mortgage lender and building inspector.

A good house deserves to be broken in properly to assure many years of comfortable living all through the years to come. Your own house may undergo the changes mentioned in this story. Should this happen, remember that these are completely natural changes. And when nature has finished, your home will be mature, satisfying, sturdily equipped to meet any wear and tear that day-to-day living may bring.

Longer, lower, and wider." That's the big news that comes forth from Detroit each year about this time. But what happens when these shining new beauties squeeze into the garage for the night? For years, a single garage has measured 18' long and 9 to 10' wide—a double garage 18x18'. Lucky you are to have an inch to spare on either side. Lucky you are if that chrome-y derriere doesn't protrude right out into the elements!

If this be your problem, here are some suggestions to preserve your temper and the paint job:

1. Clear the clutter inside with built-in or overhead storage. This way, you gain width.
2. Let out the garage at the seams. If it's extra length you need, build out the back with a small lean-to addition that will cover only the low front end. 3. Or extend the full garage at the door end—or even build out the width if it is side space you need. Whether you build onto the end or side of the garage will depend on its layout, available space and the relationship of house to garage. Remember, foundations should extend below frost line to prevent settling or frost heaving.

REAR END of garage was extended to gain needed length. New door lets you get at tools and storage area without moving the car.

DESIGNS AND DRAWINGS BY DAVE SWARTWOUT ASSOCIATES

FRONT END of garage was lengthened here because of property line behind garage. Notice how well roof of addition blends in with roof material and lines of the original.

IF YOU EXTEND the rear of your garage, you don't have to move the door. Frame the walls with 2x3 or 2x4 studs; double 2x4 headers over doors. 2x4's can also be used for short rafters.

THERE'S PLENTY OF ROOM for storage over your car. Nail up a plywood and 2x4 platform that extends over the car hood. Over the car roof, install two 4'-deep plywood cabinets with hinged doors on both sides. Store your garden tools by hanging them on 1/4" perforated hardboard screwed to sidewall studs.

CUTAWAY SKETCH shows 2x4 framing erected around garage door to gain length. Addition is secured to garage by 1/2" bolts as shown in section A-A. Don't attach framework to slab, since expansion and contraction may pull the boards away from the building.

So you don't trust me! (continued from page 42) in the case we have imagined, only through a trust under the surviving joint owner's will. Guardianship must terminate at twenty-one; a trust can last the children's lifetimes if their parents so desire.

Even where people have everything in joint names, they should agree as to how the jointly-owned assets should be disposed of when the survivor dies; and each then should sign a will giving effect to the agreed-on disposition. A cautionary note, however: These should not be contract wills, unless the circumstances are most urgent. The survivor—if survivorship should be of long duration—ought to be free to change his or her mind.

Tax Aspects of Joint Ownership

Another myth that adheres to joint ownership is that it is "sure death" to taxes—estate taxes, that is. True, there are some states where special tax privileges are extended to this form of ownership, but the federal tax (which in good-sized estates is far larger than any that the states impose) presumptively applies to all property jointly owned on the death of the first joint owner to die. It is up to his executor to establish that the survivor—the wife, let's say—contributed to the acquisition of the property; and it's not enough to claim that by prudent management of the household she helped her husband meet the mortgage payments. In the average case, where the husband was the provider, it is virtually certain that his estate will be taxed on the entire value of the property. And to reverse the plot line: if the wife should die first, there is now a presumption of taxability to her estate, which the husband may be put to some pains and expense to disprove.

Further, here is something few married people think of: when a man takes his own money and buys a home in the joint names of himself and his wife (or vice versa) he is making a gift that may be subject to federal gift tax. He can declare the gift now, and pay any tax that may be due; or he can wait until the property is sold. If it is sold and if the wife receives a portion of the proceeds, then he will report the gift and pay the tax. Most men defer. It is certainly the easiest way. However if one were dead sure that values would increase he might choose the immediate and presumably lesser tax.

Summation by the Defense

All is not dangerous or wrong about joint ownership, however. It is a convenient way of passing property on death. In many cases it can avoid the costs and delays incidental to the probate of wills, or to the "intestacy" proceedings that may be involved where no will has been made. There is no method freer of red tape.

Sentiment validly plays an important part in the joint ownership concept as between husband and wife—particularly where the family home is concerned. It is the traditional way—or so it has become—for the family home to be owned. A wife may justifiably nurse a sense of hurt if her husband "meanly" takes title in his sole name. "So you don't trust me?" How often has this been said!

If the assets of a married couple are of modest worth, so that tax consequences cannot be of very great importance, not only may there be no harm in joint ownership—it may be the most desirable arrangement... not only as to the home, but as to bank accounts, other assets.

But always with this proviso: that they know what they are doing. That the pitfalls as well as the advantages are understood by them.

But this they will not do: they will not blithely and without forethought, when the broker says, "You wish this to go in your joint names?" murmur a meekly acquiescent "Yes."

Lovely to look at, delightful to own. YOU can have these items that are guaranteed not to break the budget . . . because you make them yourself! Yes, you can—we make it our business to design decorative accessories for your home that are not only handsome but also within your capabilities. Our patterns lead you by the hand and show you how to achieve professional results. No careless, amateur look here, but possessions to be proud of.

The beautiful fruit motif of the hooked rug at right is the finest design of its kind we have ever seen; such lushness, such color! It's a good size— $32\frac{1}{2} \times 43\frac{1}{2}$ "—so it can be used almost anywhere, and by adding more border you can make it much larger. Think of it as a best-foot-forward in your hall or in front of a fireplace. This rug should be hooked with very fine loops so the fruit can be properly shaded. You can use the unworn sections of discarded thin woolen clothing. Transfer pattern #1752, price \$1.00, makes it easy for you to stamp on bur-lap, monk's cloth, or very heavy linen, which wears so well. The exquisitely pink "frosting" of the tablecloth above is like our "sugar and spice and everything nice" model. Beautiful, beautiful Car-rickmacross lace, so delicate yet so sturdy AND, most important of all, so easy to do. Pattern #1750, price 75¢. The amusing little street scene on the little oval lingerie tub is a wonderful old Swedish design which we first displayed on an antique waste-basket, later on a Country Hitch-cock chair back. We liked it so well—as did our readers—that we wanted to present it in a new light for those of you who haven't seen it. This little lingerie tub would make a fine wastebasket, or you could use it to hold ice to chill canned or bottled beverages. Pattern #1026, price 25¢. Last but not least, pattern #1751, priced at 25¢. This is a peasant design, a floral panel which we have used on our very popular small TV cabinet. You can also build the cabinet from our home workshop pattern #2109, price \$1.00. Try the floral motif on kitchen cabinets, too. The cabinet is a week-end project you are sure to enjoy—your friends will surely admire!

EACH STOOL has a $\frac{3}{4}$ " fir plywood top. Cut just under 16" square, so that six tops will come out of a piece 32x48". If you don't have a power saw, have your lumber dealer cut them for you. Hand tools do rest of job.

SMOOTH EDGES of tops with a regular plane or a new type of multi-cutter forming tool that is excellent for work on plywood. Remove no more wood than necessary to clean off saw marks. Finish with sandpaper. Fill small dents or splits in plywood edges with wood putty. Let putty mound up slightly over dents or splits. When hardened, smooth it level.

USE A $15/16$ " BIT to drill snug holes for 1" dowel legs. To drill true, make jig of 2 pieces of scrap wood, square-cut at ends, nailed together to form V against which bit can rest. Drill holes $\frac{1}{2}$ " in from edges.

CUT 1" DOWELS into 16" lengths for legs. Before you drive legs in holes, make a saw-cut 1" long in top of each leg. Spread glue on legs, push into position through holes in tops. Be sure saw-cut is diagonal to corners of tops. When leg is flush with top, drive wedge into each saw-cut to prevent its slipping out.

IF THE STOOLS are to be used outdoors, use exterior plywood tops and make them weatherproof by soaking the ends in wood preservative such as pentachlorophenol, for about an hour in an empty coffee can.

SINCE $\frac{3}{4}$ " PLYWOOD looks so thin, add a $\frac{1}{4} \times \frac{1}{2}$ " wood strip to bottom of top pieces with glue and brads. Make sure strip is flush with edges of top. Sand smooth. The stools can be stained or painted any color suitable.

E-Z-DU Launches a Career!

In this space some months back, we published a fan letter from one of our regular readers, Mrs. Doris Dellinger of Oklahoma City. The letter, in delightful fashion, explained how her small son, David, helped pick our E-Z-DU wallpaper for a kitchen face-lifting project.

In a recent note, Mrs. Dellinger informed us that a world of wonderful events has happened to her since we published her letter. It seems that David now trots instead of toddles so his mother "easy-did" the nursery with E-Z-DU* to turn it into a pleasant den.

While this was going on, Oklahoma's largest newspaper saw the piece we had printed and invited Mrs. Dellinger to write a weekly column about David's diaper days. A book publisher read the same piece and it now looks like David's mother will soon be on the best seller lists along with E-Z-DU!

We congratulate Mrs. Dellinger on her good fortune. We are also bewildered. All we have ever said about E-Z-DU is that it comes pre-pasted. It is easy to hang as you need only cut, wet and sponge smooth on the wall. And it will add inviting friendliness to any room. Never have we said one word about E-Z-DU launching career opportunities. But then, as Mrs. Dellinger points out, "who knows what wonderful things will happen once your walls are dressed up in E-Z-DU!"

SEA-GRAPE BRANCH provides wonderfully artistic support for floral grouping, but it must be securely attached in this manner. First, branch is taped to a wood support inserted in a pin holder which has been cut in half. This holder is then secured to the bottom of the vase with florists clay.

EUPHORBIA is placed in position, carefully following line of the branch. The length is then graduated. The height and mass must be a good balance for the vase. Large philodendron leaves are inserted in the lower area and then gracefully arranged. THE END

BARE SPOTS and areas of dead grass should be loosened up and reseeded in late summer or early fall—and next year, feed and water more, and use a lawn spray! First job in renovation is to remove all dead grass.

LOOSEN SOIL to about 1" deep with a cultivator or special lawn reseeding device as used here. Device works by simply punching holes in soil.

SOW SEED lightly—use only good quality lawn seed—and also sprinkle on a little standard lawn or plant food. Fertilizer will not injure seed, but will insure strong growth throughout fall. Don't cover the seed; just stir it into upper $\frac{1}{8}$ " with a cultivator.

TAMP seeded areas gently with a brick, back of spade, or the roller on reseeding device. If soil is dry, water with light spray; keep the soil moist if the rainfall is at all limited.

GARDEN IRIS need digging, dividing and replanting every few years to keep them at their best. Lift the roots with digging fork, clean off soil, and break apart at the joints. Trim leaves to about 8" and dip broken ends of roots in an all-purpose pest-control dust. Discard roots that have no leaves.

PREPARE SOIL for new clump of iris by digging hole about 12" across, 4" deep, loosening it up at the bottom and spreading on a handful of complete plant food. Cover this with inch or more of soil to keep roots from fertilizer.

PLANT NEW CLUMP by arranging roots—5" or 6" apart and laid horizontally—in a circle around edge of hole. Tops of roots should be only 1/2" to 1" below surface; so if hole is too deep, add to soil at bottom before setting roots. Water well after planting. Plant one variety to a clump and, if other iris are to be planted nearby, group them for attractive color contrasts or blends.

Where Our Money Went

BLANCHE H. CRAWFORD

Eleven-year-old Tommy banged the kitchen door behind him and started shouting, "Hey, Mom! Did you know the Hortons have bought a new house? When are we ever going to move out of this rundown old neighborhood?"

When were we going to move, indeed. We wanted to move to a newer and larger house, but there never seemed to be enough money to go around. At dinnertime thirteen-year-old Mary took up where Tommy had left off. She complained about having to share what she called "her room" with ten-year-old Sally and seven-year-old Linda. And, as she pointed out, Tommy was sleeping in the garage and it was still a garage even though it had been fixed up into a pretty nice room.

When I finished the dishes that night I sank down into a comfortable chair and began thinking about the eternal question—where does our money go? How can neighbors in our same income bracket manage to move on to bigger and better homes, when we can't afford it? I began to feel that I had failed my family as home manager.

I decided that keeping track of every penny spent during the next month would give me the answer. And it did, indeed! From the amount spent on cokes and cookies and sandwich materials you would have thought I was running a summer resort. And, of course, Fred didn't have to belong to all those clubs and lodges. As for me, why did I have to be a member in every community organization that came along? Dues, club expenses, extra clothes for all the social events that went with membership, friends of our children always dropping by, all these things added up to the fact that we were entertainment-happy! A pleasant way to live, but what it did to our budget!

Did my family want the new home badly enough to co-operate in making the necessary changes in our way of living? Not only were they willing, but they set to work immediately to map out a new way of living. Mary decided to pay for her tennis club by taking over Louise Horton's baby-sitting job. Tommy agreed that his model-airplane group could still meet at our house but the gang had to furnish their own eats. As for Mother and Dad, we cut down on our club memberships, limiting ourselves to fewer outside activities.

Shortly after we started our new life, Fred made a payment on the lot for our new home and now spends his spare time landscaping it and preparing it for building. It is amazing how happy we are in working toward a definite goal. How little we miss the activities we once thought so necessary! As for the children, it is so good for them to share in this family project, to learn early how to make choices in life.

So, if you are having money problems, don't fret. Find out where your money is going by keeping a strict account of money paid out. Then talk it over with your family—you're sure to find a solution this way. It worked for us, and I know it will work for you!

Here are the instructions given to Landscape Architect John Eyerman by Louis deHaven Shaw when he set out to design the Shaw garden in Palos Verdes, California. "Right now we'd like a swimming pool in the central area. When we make the transition, we want a minimum of expense and disruption."

Mr. Eyerman's solution to the problem is illustrated in the ground plan below. How it actually looked in the original "garden" stage is shown in the photograph you see here.

DICHONDRA LAWN was planted in the exact size and shape of the future kidney-shaped pool. Note concrete paving at the edge.

Where the pool would eventually be, Mr. Eyerman planted a dichondra lawn of the exact size and shape of a standard 15x30' kidney-shaped pool. He surrounded it with concrete paving, except at the end, where it would someday be necessary for a bulldozer to start the excavation. Here he planted carpet-bugle (Ajuga reptans), which would serve as an attractive temporary groundcover. (Later, this too would be paved.) To facilitate bulldozing, Mr. Eyerman used easily-moved plants in a raised bed against a removable section of fence.

As you see on pages 30-31, everything worked out beautifully—and according to plan.

NEW INFORMATION

you should have about boilers and hot water heat before you buy, build or remodel

Many people simply take their heating systems for granted. Yet there is hardly another facility in a home so important to family health and comfort.

If your present system is drafty, noisy, expensive to maintain—or if you're buying a home—it will pay you to look into a Hydronic System. (The science of heating and cooling with water.) Example: Crane's famous Sunnyday Boilers and Sunnybase Radiation.

Clean, comfortable radiant heat.

Sunnybase radiation provides heat just like sunshine. Trim baseboard panels are installed on outside walls where the cold is, radiate warmth to every corner of every room. No hot blasts, no chilly drafts. And Sunnybase never switches on and off like a fan—you enjoy a steady, even flow of heat.

Sunnybase panels take the place of registers, grilles, and radiators. They can be painted the same color as the wall, give complete freedom in placing rugs and furniture. And the heat is so quiet, you don't even know it's on.

Crane Sunnyday Boilers are the most modern and efficient ever designed. Compact size and uncluttered jackets make them a handsome addition to a finished basement or utility room.

Among other savings, Sunnyday boilers eliminate the need for a separate water heater. A small heater which can be installed in the boiler sections furnishes hot water all year.

Sunnyday residential hot water boilers give you long-term protection, too—a written 20-year guarantee against failure of the boiler sections!

What about air conditioning?

How much do you know about internal cleanliness?

Day before yesterday, many women hesitated to talk about the douche even to their best friends, let alone to a doctor or druggist.

Today, thank goodness, women are beginning to discuss these things freely and openly. But—even now—many women don't realize what is involved in treating "the delicate zone."

They don't ask. Nobody tells them. So they use homemade solutions which may not be completely effective, or kitchen-type antiseptics which may be harsh or inflammatory.

It's time to talk frankly about internal cleanliness. Using anything that comes to hand... "working in the dark"... is practically a crime against yourself, in this modern day and age.

Here are the facts: tissues in "the delicate zone" are very tender. Odors are very persistent. Your comfort and well-being demand a special preparation for the douche. Today there is such a preparation.

This preparation is far more effective in antiseptic and germicidal action than old-fashioned homemade solutions. It is far safer to delicate tissues than other liquid antiseptics for the douche. It cleanses, freshens, eliminates odor, guards against chafing, relaxes, promotes confidence as nothing else can.

This is modern woman's way to internal cleanliness. It is the personal antiseptic for women, made specifically for "the delicate zone." It is called Zonite®. Complete instructions for use come in every package. In cases of persistent discharge, women are advised to see their doctors.

Millions of women already consider Zonite as important a part of their grooming as their bath. You owe it to yourself to try Zonite soon.

Pattern Order Form

Please allow 3 weeks for handling and mailing

These patterns are shown on page 96.

- 1750—75¢. Pattern for the loveliest tablecloth, beautiful design that looks expensive and intricate is actually simple to do (although it does require patience) and costs very little to make. Use sheer organdy and bobbinet.
- 1751—25¢. Full size transfer pattern for floral panel to paint on cupboards, cabinets and furniture. It can be used vertically or horizontally. Size is 12x17".
- 1752—$1.00. Full size transfer for hooked rug. Beautiful fruit motifs. You can add to or subtract from size by making border wider, narrower.
- 1026—25¢. Swedish street scene design to paint on wastebaskets, chairs and lampshades. Use as a cornice too.

The following patterns are not shown in this issue.

- 1605—$1.00. If you found an old second hand chest this summer, or have one that needs a new "face," use this lovely painting pattern of floral motifs and scrolls.
- 1608—50¢. If you like to sew a little here's a nice "Farmer's Sampler" transfer pattern. Just press on linen, work with simple cross-stitch.
- 1622—75¢. Full size transfer pattern for an amusing cross-stitch rug with a big bold lion motif. The lion has a thick wooly ruff, which is tufted and knotted with a mechanical needle.
- 1632—50¢. If you have a fall bride coming up, think of embroidering some lovely linens for her gift. This pattern is a complete set of exquisite floral initials.
- 1641—50¢. For a blank wall space this pattern for a "Mosaic" rooster is perfect. The rooster is painted and the colors applied in tiny squares, very easy to follow. Most effective for halls, kitchens, playrooms and children's rooms.
- 1644—$1.00. Refurbishing a bedroom? This pattern has full size tissues for cutting out delightful café curtains with circular cut flounces. Includes matching dressing table skirt with deep circular flounce.
- 1660—25¢. Everyone loves braided rugs. It's not too early to think of one for a welcome Christmas gift. This pattern gives directions for "Three Ovals" design.
- 1668—50¢. You never have enough lamps. Here is a pattern for a simple hexagonal-shaped wood base that could be used in almost any room.
- 1673—85¢. Keeping Christmas in mind, why not consider making a "Mother Kangaroo" wood valet to help some child keep neat. The figure holds a laundry bag, has a mirror with shelf for brush and comb and a place to put shoes.
- 1677—50¢. For Mom, the best gift of all. Make her a sewing table that has drop leaves for a good-sized work surface; 3 drawers for spools, buttons and findings and a pull-out wicker mending basket.
- 2109—$1. Home workshop pattern for a small TV cabinet that is easy to build. It is Early American in character but can be made Modern with straight legs.
