Armstrong announces Centennial Cushiontone

...three ceilings that introduce colorful new designs, and soak up noise, too.

AUTUMN LEAVES—a leaf pattern in warm fall colors. Brings quiet and beauty to a living room or bedroom.

TAHITI—a flower design in soft pastels... a lovely and unusual ceiling for family room or dining room.

Look at the ceiling above. It's called "Rhapsody." Its cool pastels and delicate pattern actually become part of the room's decorative scheme.

Now at last, with "Rhapsody," "Autumn Leaves," or "Tahiti," you can install ceilings with colorful designs, that soak up noise, too. Ceilings especially created to complement today's smartest new colors and fabrics. Ceilings used by professional decorators in all types of rooms with exciting results.

Like all Armstrong acoustical ceilings, Centennial Cushiontone makes your home quieter, more comfortable. Yet an 11'x14' ceiling, (all materials), costs only about $52. And it's easier than ever to install with Armstrong's new Brush On Ceiling Cement.

All three Centennial ceilings are now at your lumber dealer's. Go see him tomorrow. For a free ceiling booklet, write Armstrong, 6010 Clark Street, Lancaster, Pa.; in Canada, Dept. 100-2, Box 919, Montreal, P. Q.

"Beautiflor" and "Johnson's" are registered trademarks of S. C. Johnson & Son.

With Beautiflor the shine keeps coming back just with buffing or mopping—without rewaxing

That's because Johnson's Beautiflor has reserve shining power. Unlike most liquid waxes that just harden on the top of the floor, Beautiflor penetrates the surface. It stores up future shines that come back with only a light re-buffing (by hand or electric polisher) . . . even with your daily dust mopping!

You can even "touch up" areas that get most wear, and Beautiflor blends right in. No streaks! It's a long, long time between waxing jobs when you give your floors the shine with nine lives. (P.S. Did you know Beautiflor never keeps you waiting for it to dry? Just apply, buff, and you can walk on your floors the minute you finish!)

Mr. John M. Carter, Editor
The American Home
New York, New York

Dear Mr. Carter:

Don't know if I've been asleep and haven't noticed if you've had a gradual or abrupt change of format—whatever, this July '60 American Home was a wonderful surprise to me. Slim as the '60 fashions—but no slim pickin's in this book—it's the best issue of any home magazine I've seen in years. Really strong articles on decoration, gardening, plans, meals, and building—certainly a full and terrific issue.

Had to write and tell you—and I'm never one to sit down and write anybody lately.

Yours,

Mrs. Betty Francke
McHenry, Illinois

See explanation below

We devote all our pages to these subjects, every month

In the Gourmet Cook-out section

—clever way to adapt a good idea!

P.S. Took my dinner from your lobster cookery and am going to do my living room with some of your lovely purples, so I thought I'd cheer you with praise for your issue, as it excited me. May even add end wall of glass, as per ski lodge, in our 2-story living room that needs more light.

Dear Mrs. Francke (and our 12 million other readers):

Yes, The American Home has changed, but only as a good friend changes to become a better one. We have changed only in ways that make us still more helpful to you in enjoying a life brimming with pride and pleasure in your home and family.

We think readers are the nicest thing that happens to editors. You flatter us each month with the highest compliment a family has to offer—you invite us into your home. Respectful of this privilege, we do not try to shock you in the pages of The American Home, or play on your fears, or resort to bad taste to get your attention. Instead, we write about the wholesome and handsome rewards of family life.

We invite you to return our visits by your own letters whenever you have a question or a comment. Every letter is read and appreciated. Every one of your suggestions is considered.

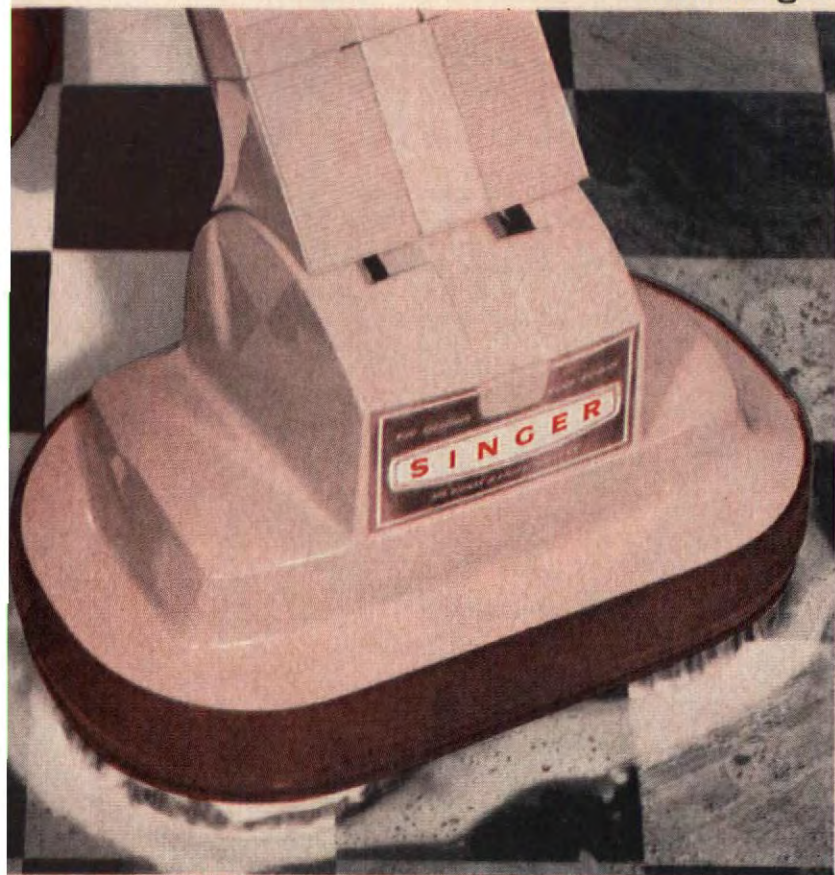

Sincerely,

John M. Carter

NEW SINGER Rug Cleaner-Floor Polishers

with fingertip control

SCRUB LINOLEUM, remove old wax the easy electric way. Built-in storage tank on handle releases soapy water or wax remover through the brushes. De luxe model, shown here, comes with extra set of brushes for scrubbing and steel wool pads for heavy work.

APPLY WAX, paste or liquid, with electric power! Liquid polishing wax can be released from the storage tank through the brushes as you go. Built-in squeegee spreader sponge on de luxe model assures uniform distribution. For paste wax, handy snap-on pads are supplied.

POLISH FLOORS with electricity—brighter than you ever could by hand. Just glide the machine, its weight on the spinning pads makes floors gleam. Lamb's wool pads are standard equipment on de luxe model. (Economy model comes with felt pads.)

SHAMPOO RUGS, electrically! SINGER* polishers are designed—not just adapted—for double duty! For carpets, dolly snaps in place, allows only the weight of the brushes to rest on the rug, guards against excessive nap wear. Shampoo releases from storage tank.

THE BIGGEST HOME IMPROVEMENT RACKETS

ARTHUR M. WATKINS

Home-improvement abuses rank among the nation's major rackets. The annual take by those who prey on homeowners amounts to an estimated $500,000,000. This includes fraud and deception by chiselers, many with police records, and also shady practices by fast-talking home-repair dealers. The latter stay just inside the law, ostensibly operating legitimate businesses, sometimes even maintaining fancy showrooms.

Hugh R. Jackson, president of the New York Better Business Bureau, said, “These widespread abuses not only inflict serious financial injury on the consuming public, but also constitute a grave threat to the future of the home-improvement industry.” Jackson's words were prompted by a sharp 30 per cent rise in home-improvement complaints which has sparked a special campaign in New York to combat abuses.

There are, for example, the big newspaper ads that offer a complete new stone front for a 30-foot-wide house for only $79—quite a bargain, or so it seems. The charming little house pictured in the ad has one of the new stone fronts. Answer the ad (as we did for this story) and you will find that what you actually get for $79 is a composition asphalt material that is nailed on. The genuine stone pictured in the ad would cost you at least $550 to $600, and often more.

Or finished basements are offered for only $2.50 a week! Check it and you will find that this much money will get you a little 12x12' cubicle that is far from finished for the advertised price.

“It'll never happen to me,” you may say. “I'm too smart to fall for a phony scheme, particularly when it comes to my own home.” Well, don't be sure. Even experienced people fall for the old schemes; raw deals are usually presented in fancy new dress. What's more, you may already have been taken and not know it. (Note, for example, how the paint-bargain scheme works. See page 74.)

You cannot let your guard down even if your job is financed by an old established bank, or by a Federal Housing Administration home-improvement loan. For one thing, the bank itself may be fooled. It doesn't know if the dealer is a chiseler. For another, banks rarely make an inspection of the work done, and nothing but the most routine check of the dealer whose time-payment papers they handle.

You get a little more protection (at a lower interest rate) with an FHA home-improvement loan, compared with a conventional loan. But it is far from complete protection. For unlike new-house mortgages, an FHA home-improvement loan requires no final inspection of the work for

A Point of View

A high-powered advertising agency executive recently took us to task on these monthly little rectangles. "Look," he said, "the copy is too long. No one is going to wade through all those words to find out what you're selling. You've got to glamorize your wallpaper. Use illustrations. Tell the story fast. Hit 'em hard... use a gimmick!"

"Now take that E-Z-DU wallpaper you make. It's ready-pasted, isn't it? Cut it, wet it, hang it... right? Okay. Now put some zip in it. Tell the consumer that E-Z-DU contains the magic ingredient 'Eulg' in the paste."

"Has what in the paste?"

"Eulg... you know—glue spelled backwards! Doesn't make any difference what you call it. The big idea is to get a trick word so they will remember your product."

"Won't that confuse..."

"No, it won't confuse them at all. Anyway, you want to sell your wallpaper, don't you?"

"Yes of course but..."

"No buts now...beef up the copy. Make it sing so they can almost see the beauty and perfection of your designs and colors. Don't just say the prices are modest. Tell them the prices are rock-bottom at every Imperial dealer."

"Well, that's exaggeration—"

"Only in a slight way. That's your trouble... your copy is too soft. Remember nice guys don't win ball games. Got it now? Think it over. Well, have to run along...nice talking with you about the wallpaper business. Let's have lunch some day soon."

Ever since this conversational bit, we've been wondering which one of us is right. Perhaps you have a point of view that you would like to pass along about these monthly rectangles. We would be pleased to hear from you. It could help settle the controversy.

the loan to be okayed. Because of a swelling number of complaints, a few years ago FHA did tighten up its rules somewhat. It compiled a national blacklist of gyp firms and chiseling home-improvement dealers whose work is barred from FHA financing. New names are added every week, and the list has grown to nearly 7000 names. But the blacklist is not complete protection since many dishonest operators, once blacklisted, merely change their names, move to another town, and start afresh to fleece the unwary.

Experts say you should also watch for crooked finance companies. They work hand-in-hand with dishonest dealers. No one knows how many exist. And, it is particularly hard for a layman to spot them, since their finance papers look just like those of the most respectable loan company. This means that you must also check on the reputation and integrity of the finance company.

The top men in the home-improvement industry state that swindlers account for only a small percentage of all home-improvement dealers. The overwhelming number of dealers in the 10- to 12-billion-dollar-a-year home-improvement business, they affirm, are honest and competent. The best way to protect yourself from being cheated is to familiarize yourself with the most common rackets listed below, and to follow through on the eight-point precautionary check list on page 76.

COMBINATION-STORM-WINDOW SWITCH

A newspaper advertisement offers combination storm windows at an unbelievably low price, from $5.88 to $9.69. This is strictly a bait ad. When you answer the ad a salesman confidentially tells you the windows are so poorly made that you really don't want them, he doesn't have the nerve to sell them. After a convincing spiel, he artfully switches you to much more expensive windows selling for an inflated $40 to $50 apiece, whatever the operator thinks he can get.

If you insist on the low-priced windows he will try anything not to sell them. He makes no commission on them, but gets 50 per cent of everything above a base price for the high-priced windows. A New Jersey husband and wife actually signed up for the cheap windows. Then the salesman said, "Of course, you'll have to rub them down once a week with steel wool, you know. They still may pit and corrode." The couple was alarmed. The salesman went on, "But you'll never need to wipe these really good windows. They never pit, never discolor. The screen and glass are better made. The frames are guaranteed for a lifetime." The salesman poured it on, and an hour later he sold the husband and wife up from an original sale of $84.62 to over-priced windows for $379.50.

Moral: Beware of advertisements—and this includes TV commercials—for low-priced combination storm-screen windows. The cheapest combination windows on the market today contain about 10 pounds of raw aluminum at 50¢ a pound. Put together at the factory they cost around $10 to $12. Figure in freight, dealer overhead, sales and advertising costs, plus delivery and installation and you can see why quality windows must sell for $25 to $30, give or take a few dollars.

MODEL-HOUSE SCHEME

A slick salesman knocks on the door and says his firm is introducing a new product, a new aluminum siding let's say, that will never crack, corrode, or need paint. There is a big advertising budget, but they're not going to spend it on newspaper or TV promotion. Instead, they're going to install it in selected homes at a special low price.

"And believe it or not, madam, your home has been selected for one of these model installations. You qualify for the special $1750 job." (Or $2250, or whatever the gyp thinks the owner will pay.) When the owner hesitates the salesman comes down another $500 "because we really need your house." They are so eager to use your house, in fact, they will give you $50 for every prospect drawn by the finished job. Surely the owner knows at least 10 different people who need new siding. That's $500 right there.

The owner, of course, will never see a nickel of it. The salesman farms out the job to a cheap local contractor for half the price, pockets a 100 per cent profit, and is never seen again.

FURNACE-DISMANTLING RACKET

Posing as a city official or fire inspector, a gyp talks a homeowner into letting him inspect the furnace. An hour later the owner finds the furnace totally dismantled, parts strewn over the cellar floor.

"I had to do it, to protect your family," the phony inspector says.

On a Simmons Hide-a-Bed upholstered with Cumuloft* nylon

Simmons Hide-a-Beds now feature upholstery fabrics made with new Cumuloft nylon. The advantages are spectacular. This new nylon yarn (developed by Chemstrand) makes possible the rich textures and vivid colors of traditional fabrics. But Cumuloft nylon is virtually indestructible. Years of use won't dim its beauty. It resists fading, fraying, shedding, pilling. If it gets dirty, don't worry. Most surface stains come off with detergent and water! When you get furniture that's in use constantly as a Simmons Hide-a-Bed, it makes good sense to specify upholstery fabrics made with Cumuloft nylon. See your Simmons dealer.

The Ladds' home, in the Holmby Hills section of Beverly Hills, California, has a steeply pitched roof of cedar shakes. It gives the house the provincial look that Alan and Sue wanted when they helped design it.

Flanders" and "Raymie" is a high-school freshman who does most of his movie work during vacation.

David closed his book and approached his mother.

"Could I have a couple of the fellows over Friday night, Mom? They'll bring their sleeping bags and sleep on the floor in my room. They like it that way."

"It's all right with me," said Sue, "but have they asked their parents yet?"

"Nope."

"Have them ask their parents."

"Yes, Mom. Good night. Good night, Dad. Good night, Sir," he said crossing over to shake hands.

"We're pretty strict," said Sue when David had left the room. "Alan won't tolerate any arguing or nagging from the children. It's either yes or no. He backs me up and I do the same for him."

"I'm going to bring coffee and dessert in here while you tour the house," said Sue.

"When we planned this house," began Ladd, "we had four children. We still have, for that matter. Even though Laddie and Carolle (the Ladds' older son and daughter) are married we like to have them bring the kids and stay with us. We don't seem to have too much room when everybody's home. The only room that seems too big is the living room. We get lost in it. It's wonderful when we have a party—or a wedding—but that isn't often."

The Ladds favor the more intimate living area that was added by enclosing a section of the patio that faces the pool. Sue furnished it with twin sofas and coffee tables flanked by twin love seats.

"You can talk here without shouting," said Alan. "Most of the time we're either in here or the office."

Ladd calls the large provincial family room the "office" because at one end of it is an L-shaped desk from which he operates Ladd Enterprises when he works at home. Ladd Enterprises include Jaguar Productions, his independent movie production company; Ladd's Hardware, a de luxe retail hardware and gift store in Palm Springs; his 65-acre ranch near Santa Barbara; his various real estate and oil properties.

In the family room is a large cooking hearth the Ladds use for frequent barbecues. The exposed have determined how much money will be needed, you can apply for the loan in two ways: either directly to a lending institution which makes FHA-insured property improvement loans, or through your contractor or materials dealer. Most FHA property improvement loans are made directly through dealers or contractors who have working arrangements with lending institutions. However, one approach is not recommended over the other. Both work when your credit is good and the project is eligible for a loan.

We're getting married next month and we've just about decided on the house we're going to buy. But we also need furniture and appliances. Can our FHA loan cover these items, too?

Partly, at best. An FHA-insured mortgage on your home may include items which are usually considered in your locality to be part of the real estate. There is variation from section to section of the country as to what this includes. The best general statement we can make is that items must be installed with a degree of permanence—so that to remove them would injure the property or leave it incomplete. Built-in bookshelves, cabinets, and drawers could be included; movable furniture, rugs, and carpeting could not.

Your mortgage can usually cover such items as refrigerators, built-in washers, dryers, dishwashers, and garbage disposal equipment; it can't cover portable equipment such as irons, fans, air conditioners.

Consult your mortgage lender or the FHA office which has jurisdiction in your area concerning any particular item you're not sure about.

We'd like to buy a vacation house, but we're a little short of cash. Can we get an FHA loan?

Yes, it is possible to get an FHA loan on a vacation house suitable for year-round living. But there are requirements which must be met. The property must come up to FHA's minimum standards of design, construction, and location. These minimum property standards have been developed by FHA over the years to make sure the home buyer gets a livable home and an acceptable location. In short, FHA wants to be certain that the purchaser of a home we insure is able to accumulate equity in a good piece of property.

A vacation house which meets the FHA minimum standards may be purchased with FHA insuring the mortgage even if you already have an FHA-insured mortgage on your permanent home. The big question to be answered here is whether the buyer is able to make payments on both loans.

We might suggest that you talk to your mortgage lender about problems of this nature because he will be able to give you information and advice on your specific situation.

I want to buy a house with an FHA-insured loan, but my builder tells me that there is no FHA money available and so I must use a conventional mortgage at a higher interest rate than FHA. Do I have any alternative?

Make sure of the situation. Get in touch with the nearest FHA office and ask for the names of lenders that are making FHA-insured home mortgage loans in your neighborhood.

If there are no local lenders in the market for these loans, ask the FHA director about the Voluntary Home Mortgage Credit Program. This is a program sponsored by lending institutions to help people in small communities (and members of minority groups in any community regardless of size) to get FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed home loans. The FHA director can tell you whether or not the program is operating in your locality and how to apply.

I hasten to add that conventional mortgages can be an excellent means of homeownership. Most homes are financed by conventional loans.

FHA takes great pride, however, in having brought into acceptance and use the present system of long-term mortgages with relatively small down-payment requirements and retirement of the mortgage by monthly payments. Before FHA, it was far more difficult to buy a home with reasonable assurance that the mortgage could be met.

Does an FHA-insured mortgage apply to the land and the house?

A mortgage insured by FHA covers a specified percentage of the value of the property, including the value of both house and lot if the property is owned outright, or the value of the house and the leasehold if the land is held under a long-term lease. The house and land cannot be mortgaged separately, since the mortgage must be the only lien outstanding against the property.

THE FHA ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS

The American Home is again pleased to have FHA Commissioner Julian H. Zimmerman answer your questions on FHA. If you have a question for this column, please address Commissioner Zimmerman, c/o The American Home, 300 Park Ave., New York 22, N.Y.

We're buying a $31,000 home, but we understand that the top FHA mortgage is only $22,500. Can we finance this house through FHA?

Although the largest FHA mortgage you can get on a single-family home is $22,500, it is entirely possible to finance a $31,000 home—or a home at any price, for that matter—with an FHA-insured mortgage. But, to be perfectly frank, if you're limited as to the amount of down payment you can make, you should check into conventional financing, too.

At the price level of $31,000, a down payment of $8,500 plus closing costs would be required for FHA-insured financing. Chances are that a conventional loan might be processed with a smaller cash outlay.

As further illustration, at the price level of $40,000, a cash outlay of $17,500 plus closing costs would be required for FHA financing. A conventional loan would no doubt be available for less initial payment. FHA really shines when the valuation of the home is in the upper 20's or less.

We have a large garage and we'd like to build a rental unit over it. Can FHA help us with the financing?

FHA can help you, but in this case a bit of explanation is in order.

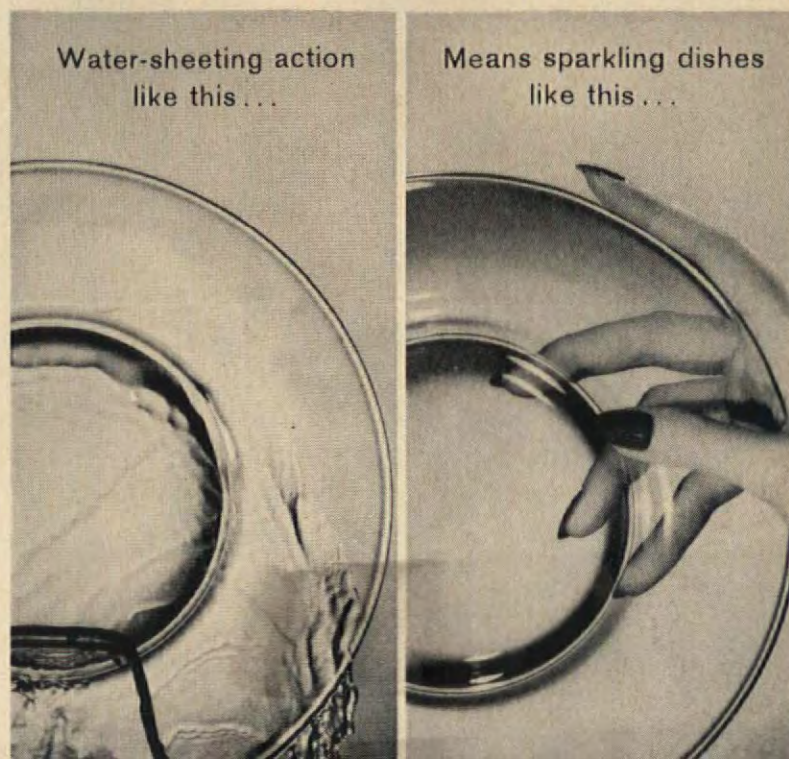

FHA insures two kinds of loans: long-term mortgage loans, and short-term property improvement loans. The long-term mortgage loan would not be available in this instance because FHA requires that property secured by a long-term loan should be devoted to residential use—it should not be primarily income producing.

For FHA-insured financing in this case, the short-term property improvement loan is the answer. Such loans are made by FHA-approved lending institutions in amounts up to $3,500. They may be repaid in monthly installments over as long a period as five years. One of the progressive financing features of the short-term property improvement loan is that collateral is not usually required.

To take it a step further, the first thing you should do is to get an estimate from a reliable contractor as to what the work will cost. It's a good idea to get two or three estimates for comparison. When you (continued)

Royal Barry
Wills, F.A.I.A.*

This classic example of a New England two-story house has a floor plan that utilizes two massive chimneys rather than a single one. It is located in Needham, Massachusetts.

An architect at home. Mr. Wills's old walled rose garden—originally a part of a near-by estate—is the perfect setting for his traditional home. Arbors of old cypress have stood for years.

"We keep building traditional New England houses because people like them so much. And, if they're kept simple the way they were intended to be, they're almost as modern as Modern."

Royal Barry Wills is the foremost designer of New England traditional houses. Scattered across the U.S.A. are some 2500 houses bearing the unique stamp of this acknowledged master.

On these pages, we present a portfolio of homes designed by Wills and his associates. You will also read what Mr. Wills himself had to say to Building Editor Hubbard Cobb about original traditional design and what you should look for if you are in the market for this style of house.

Actually, New England traditional architecture, or New England colonial, as it is often called, is almost as old as our nation itself. In its simplest form, it was merely one room deep (either one-and-one-half or two-stories high) and was built by early settlers to satisfy their immediate shelter needs.

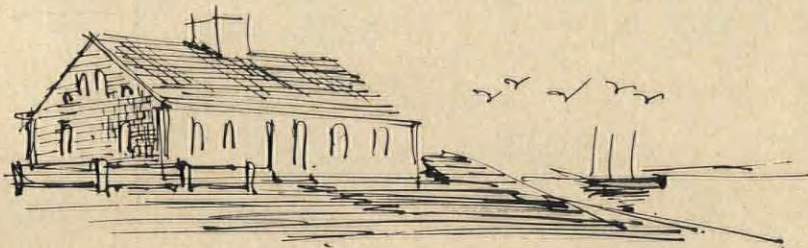

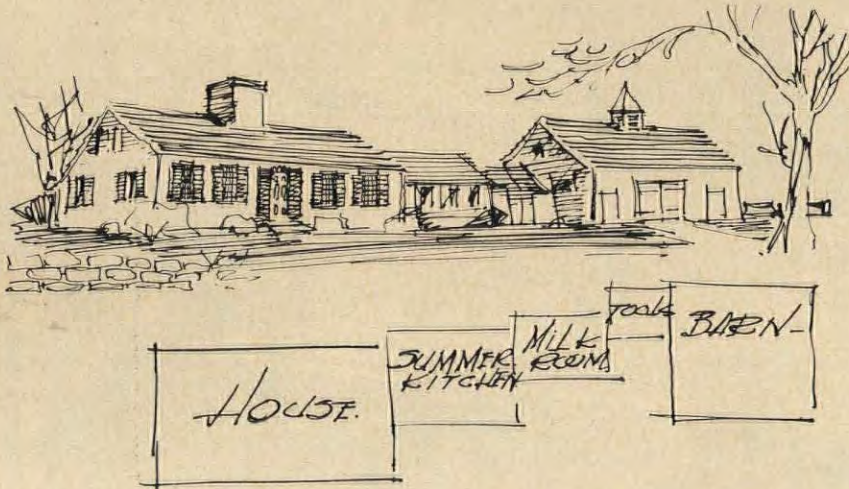

"Their habit of placing the entry door at one end of the front wall led to these homes being known as 'half-houses.' (Later, when additions were made, they usually were placed on the other side of the door.) (continued)

This is a living room in the true sense of the word. Here is where the Willses pursue their hobbies—water colors for the architect; rugmaking for Mrs. Wills. The 12-foot braided rug is her work.

Architect's own home, unlike the others we show, was built mostly of old wood. Note how clapboards have weathered to a velvety tone. Massive chimney is almost a trade-mark of Mr. Wills's. His five-year-old home is located in Winchester, Mass.

"A subtly unsymmetrical facade makes for the interesting and unusual in what otherwise might be nothing but four walls and a roof."

*Colonial Houses had many dependencies - at least the farm houses did.
Cape Cod houses were often Captains houses & so did not have as many sheds as, say, New Hampshire Houses -*

"Directly opposite the entry was a steep, narrow staircase which hugged a massive chimney stack. This stairway was enclosed and its handrail was often nothing more than a knotted rope. One room—called the hall or keeping room—made up the entry floor. It was living room, dining room, and kitchen—all rolled into one. Upstairs, the family slept in a single garret room.

"From this basic shelter there developed the larger and more complicated designs which were the forerunners of traditional New England architecture as we know it today. Of course, the problem here is that many of these new homes are falsely labeled 'traditional.'

"So, let's take a look at the four most popular types and see what goes into making a really good New England traditional home.

"First you have the Cape Cod . . .

This is probably the most familiar of all traditional styles. In fact, this name often is misused to describe any New England house. But a true Cape Cod is the original half-house grown up. Its entry is at the center or the end of the front wall. Windows have small panes. It has a big chimney. The average roof has an 8" rise for every 12" of run—or approximately a 45-degree angle. Clapboards are lapped 4½" or less to the weather. It is one-and-one-half or two-stories high." (Typical Cape Cods appear on pages 28 and 36.)

"Then there's the garrison . . .

Origin of the overhanging second story of the garrison-type home is obscure. However, this unique feature makes it easily distinguishable from other traditional New England architecture. This style differs mainly in its method of framing. Separate corner posts are used on each floor which means that shorter and therefore stronger posts are possible. One of the most familiar features of these houses is the decorative pendants or drops which project from the lower edge of the overhang. These are merely the bottoms of corner posts carved in an attractive manner.

"Like the Cape Cod and all other New England traditional styles, garrison houses should have small-paned windows and narrow clapboard siding.

"One major difference lies in its steeply pitched roof." (A typical garrison home appears on page 36.)

"Gambrel roofs are easy to spot . . .

Identified by the broken roof line, they were introduced into traditional architecture as an economy measure as well as a break from the steeply pitched Gothic gable roofs. They require a shorter rafter length, and provide more head room for the garret story. Gambrel roofs are also found in Dutch colonial architecture in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania." (Typical gambrel houses appear on pages 30 and 32.)

"The salt-box shape is familiar . . .

Like the Cape Cod, it's a direct offshoot of the basic half-house. Its easily recognized roof line evolved from one-story additions which early settlers placed at the rear of their houses. Rafters were leaned from one-story eaves at the rear to the top of the wall of the (continued)

Another view of the two-story home shown on page 22. On careful examination, you'll see that the two chimneys are not quite evenly spaced and one is slightly larger than the other. Note that the front entry is enclosed for all-weather protection.

"The charm of a Cape Cod is that additions can be made without detracting from its beauty."

main house. This led to a lean-to effect.

"In contemporary salt-box design, the rear roof pitch is a continuous slope from ridge to eaves." (A typical salt box, our cover house, appears on page 34.)

"That's a very brief run down on the origin and development of New England architecture. Now let's see how it gets along in this day and age.

"New England traditional homes have remained popular for over 200 years for many reasons. I guess the primary one is that they fill a sentimental and emotional need. They are the sort of houses that spell 'home' to the average person. And this style of architecture also produces an extremely livable and comfortable house.

"Modernists may laugh at boxy rooms found in a traditional home but people do want some kind of compartmented living. They want to use their rooms for the different functions that they are intended for, rather than having an open space with a theoretical dividing line for partitions. Good division of rooms is especially important when there are small children in the family.

Cape Cod with wings (built as a unit) is an excellent example of how a symmetrical center core could be expanded with wings and dependencies in many directions. An interesting feature is the salt-box roof on the garage. The small photo shows the shed-type dormer at rear. The house, which is about three years old, is located in Weston, Mass.

WARREN J. ROHTER, A.I.A.
RICHARD WILLS, A.I.A.

This four-year-old home in Cape Elizabeth, Maine, has white clapboard siding on front of the main section, unprinted shingles at the ends, vertical siding on the wing. Note details of gutters and doorway.

*"...an appearance of being wedded to the site, distinguished chimneys, a rather personal and domestic scale—these are the things that make
New England houses so appealing to the eye."*

Gambrel roof on this story-and-a-half house is not as steep as those found in Connecticut nor does it have the overhang at the eaves of a Dutch gambrel. This Lynnfield, Massachusetts, house is four years old.

"A properly done gambrel roof is a thing of beauty and a delight to anyone with a discerning eye. Here, excellent roof lines, the mammoth chimney, and small-scaled windows are a happy combination."

*"This keeping room

character of the early hearthside."*

"A good floor plan is all-important. It's a crying shame if you don't get an attractive exterior to go with it. People are beginning to look for a functional floor plan. But they should look for a good package around the plan just as they look for a good package around the car, the soap, or most any other item they buy. I know that if we make a good thoughtful plan and keep it flexible we can get a good exterior. It's a necessity to have it.

"Open planning can be employed in a traditional home to some extent. The living room and study can become one big room with sliding doors or sliding partitions. But they can still be divided for their individual uses.

"Traditional can be combined with contemporary: I don't know if we've ever had a perfect example of this sort

Classic salt box (our beautiful cover house) is two stories high in front, one story at the rear. Exterior is of stained clapboards; roof is wood shingles. of thing and perhaps we never will but it does work. It's almost impossible for the contemporary fellows to combine the two styles without getting into trouble because they have never studied any traditional; whereas, for a period of years, we concentrated on modern design and learned quite a lot about it. If you are careful and use restraint, you can make a pretty good combination of traditional and contemporary.

"Traditional homes are not more expensive to build than contemporary or modern. They may appear more costly, but actually you can build a larger house, a better-planned house in a traditional style. There is no reason why you can't use new building materials and new construction techniques that will cut down the cost. In a traditional house you can use stock items like windows, doors, trim, and millwork that must often be custom-made for a modern house.

"You get more for your money, of course, in a two-story house than a one-story. In an analysis we made some years ago we found that equivalent areas in a two-story house were actually eight per cent cheaper than the one-story house. At the present time, if we figure a one-story house with basement as costing $18 a square foot on the first floor, we can figure a two-story as costing $18 a square foot on the first floor but only $9 a square foot on the second.

"Outdoor living can be achieved in a traditional home simply by opening the rear with sliding glass doors. We've done it and it works; when the house can be opened onto a terrace or something of that sort, it's fine, especially in certain areas. Around here, in Boston, it's different. It seems to me we have an inordinate number of drizzly, foggy days and it just isn't a pleasure to look outdoors or be outdoors. But if you want outdoor living there is no reason why you can't have it with a traditional house.

"New England traditional houses are suited for most parts of the country. Of course, to

HOW MOMMY KEEPS HOUSE

On this page, we proclaim "Salute-to-Mommy Month." To celebrate the occasion, we invited a group of second graders from Topeka, Kansas, to show, in water colors, what keeps their mothers busy all day.

Although the children may not yet be masters of their craft and have taken artistic liberties with the size and shape of the home appliances, we see sunshine in their eyes and love in their hearts. Our artists worked under the direction of their classroom teachers, and we publish here only a cross-section of the paintings in this bold and exuberant collection.

Here you see yourself as your offspring see you. You are a cook, maid, housekeeper, party giver, laundress, dishwasher, and gardener.

But underneath those wide strokes of the brush, we detect something more. You are also the person who's always there to take care of the important things. You are a dryer of tears, a pill pusher, thermometer reader, Little League booster, doll dressmaker, shirt tucker-inner, and dog putter-outer.

Congratulations to you, Mom! And a hug and a squeeze for our artists!

"Mother getting breakfast. I am helping her." The artist captures the cheerfulness of this time of day. There's plenty of milk and a tablecloth that's covered with hearts. Marilyn Dahlstrom

"Dinner's not quite ready." Mommy's worried because Daddy is due in exactly five minutes! Karen Steele

"Using the sweeper." Cleaning schedules are part of the daily routine at home. A vacuum cleaner (note it's an interesting canister-type) is one of Mother's faithful assistants. Attachments and small fry are a big help too! Peggy Ann Lewis

"I have a birthday party!" The kids line up for the big blowout. They know that Mother will bake a cake, buy favors, and plan the games (and clean up the mess afterwards). Rebecca Ford

"Weeding in the garden." It's fun—especially if you're built like a croquet wicket and can tell a petunia from crab grass. And what a literal mind this young artist has. He even shows us how the roots grow underneath the ground! Mike Deaton

"Hanging up the family washing." When the clothes hang high, the kites will fly! Blue jeans and sheets catch the full wind and Mommy keeps saying, "Don't get tangled in the line." Ella Inez Forbush

"Bringing in the groceries." Mother keeps smiling at this never-ending chore because she has all those storage cabinets. Anything new, Mommy, in the way of box tops today? Toni Gail Groggs

"Mother makes the windows shine." This big, expansive picture window can be cleaned in no time. Mommy has a window cleaner that goes p-s-s-t from a bottle. Stephen Brumme

"First wash, then iron." Notice this mother has an automatic washer-dryer, an adjustable ironing board, and the newest in detergent packages! Vivica Synpe

*P*lant bulbs this month or next and, come April and May, you'll have all the glory of springtime right at your doorstep. It's the surest, easiest way of getting the full impact of that most wonderful time of year! ♡ You don't need a big garden, and you don't need large quantities of bulbs. But to really say springtime with bulbs you do need to group them in solid masses. Don't string them out like Indians on a warpath, and don't spot them here and there like lonesome, isolated scouts. Mass them together for their fullest strength!

♡ Plant solid, one-variety drifts of daffodils, tulips, or hyacinths, and contrast the colors with grape hyacinths or Siberian squills. You'll see what we mean in the photograph at right and in those on the following pages. We took them in Holland last spring at the famous Keukenhof Garden, where the display plantings are designed specifically to show visitors how to use bulbs in their own gardens. ♡ You'll see it takes several dozen daffodils, hyacinths, or tulips, planted fairly closely, to make a really dramatic showing; perhaps a hundred or so grape hyacinths or squills. But at $8 or $10 a hundred for tulips, $15 or $20 a hundred for daffs and hyacinths, and about $5 a hundred for grape hyacinths and squills, you won't need to spend a fortune for a knockout effect. ♡ Your smallest plantings of bulbs should be clumps of 12 to 15 or 20 to 25, depending on the size of your garden. Clumps should be placed (continued)

Hyacinths will glorify your garden with beautiful colors and with delicious fragrance too. Try a planting in your own lawn something like this—an irregular drift, solidly filled with one variety, skillfully placed among the birches, and near the path to invite extra-close smelling! The light lavender variety is 'Sapphire'; the darker one in the planting at left, 'General Eisenhower.'

Tulips are your best bet if you want a spectacular array of color—from white to near-black purple, and through countless shades of every color except blue! The brilliant yellow (top) in the naturalistic planting at the edge of a wooded area is the triumph variety 'Korango.' The red in the irregular drift, interplanted with Siberian squills, is the fosteriana 'Princeps.' How about trying a planting like either of these at just the right spot in your own garden?

A NEW TWIST WITH LEMONS

The time has come to do something with lemons other than slice them or cut them in wedges, and from our gay lemon tree hangs a fruitful crop of new lemon fashions. Squeeze our lemon basket or ingenious bow tie on sizzling fish fillets. Garnish a shrimp or lobster salad with a lemon rose. Cartwheels and wedges, dotted with pimiento, paprika, parsley, and black olives, will add dash to lamb, sweetbreads, vegetables, and tossed green salads. A slice of lemon pierced with a clove makes a cup of tea all the more bracing. Our lemons are bound to make any table look prettier and to get your dinner party off to a lively start. The designs are easy to make — all you need is a sharp knife or a pair of scissors, plus the directions on page 72.

The first inkling your guests have that something delicious is in the offing is the moment they cast their eyes on your table setting. Be it the most casual of potluck suppers or an elegant formal affair, the turn of a napkin, an intriguing centerpiece, your choice of silverware and china—all will work to get the evening off to a gala start.

Here we show you three versions of table settings that can be adapted for your own entertaining. At the upper left is a "serve-yourself-and-sit" meal that features woven trays in brilliant turquoise. At lower left, high-backed chairs surround a small table set in provincial style. Directly below, a traditional setting for four at a large table.

SOUPER MEAT LOAF. Combine 1 can Campbell's Tomato Soup, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup packaged corn flake crumbs (or 2 cups corn flakes, crushed into crumbs), 2 lb. ground beef, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onion, 2 tbsp. chopped parsley, 1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce, 1 egg (slightly beaten), 1 tsp. salt, dash pepper; mix thoroughly. Shape firmly into a loaf; place in shallow baking pan. (Thorough mixing and firm shaping will result in a moist, easy-to-slice loaf.) Bake at 350°F. about 1½ hr. For sauce, combine $\frac{1}{4}$ cup drippings with additional can of Tomato Soup; heat and serve over loaf. 8 servings. Good 'n nourishing! Good 'n thrifty!

BARBECUED STEAK. Pound 2 tbsp. seasoned flour into 2-lb. round steak ($\frac{3}{4}$ " thick); brown in 2 tbsp. shortening. Blend 1 can Tomato Soup; $\frac{1}{2}$ cup each chopped onion, celery; 1 clove garlic (minced); 2 tbsp. each brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice; 2 tsp. prepared mustard; 4 drops Tabasco. Pour over steak. Cover; cook over low heat about 1½ hr. Baste now and then. 6 to 8 servings.

BEEF STEW. Roll 1 lb. beef cubes in 2 tbsp. seasoned flour. Brown in 2 tbsp. shortening in heavy pan. Add 1 can Campbell's Tomato Soup, 1 soup can water. Cover; simmer 1½ hr.; stir now and then. Add 6 onions, 6 carrots (cut in half), 3 potatoes (quartered), $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. whole thyme (if desired). Cover; cook 1 hr. or till vegetables are tender. To thicken, cook uncovered for last 10 min. 4 to 6 servings.

TOMATO BURGERS. For quick indoor barbecues! In skillet, melt 1 tbsp. shortening; add 1 lb. ground beef, 1 cup each chopped onion and celery, 1 tsp. chili powder, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt, dash pepper. Cook until meat is browned; stir to separate meat particles. Add 1 can Campbell's Tomato Soup; simmer a few min. Serve on 6 toasted split buns. Add a mixed green salad, for a supper the whole family will love!

HOW TO MAKE APPLE STRUDEL

Prepare dough per recipe. Roll out, thin as possible, on floured cloth to large rectangle.

Lift dough on back of hands. Let hang. This helps start stretching of dough.

Stretch dough in all directions with backs of fists, using a gentle hand-over-hand motion.

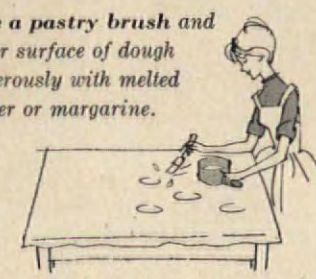

Stretch dough until it covers table top. It will be very thin and semi-transparent.

Cut off overhanging heavier edges, as neatly as possible, on all sides, using regular kitchen scissors.

Use a pastry brush and cover surface of dough generously with melted butter or margarine.

Grasp cloth and dough at right side in both hands and carefully lift up from table.

Flip right half of dough quickly over side with filling.

Lift cloth carefully from dough back onto table. Tuck in edges of dough on all sides.

Lift cloth at filling end. Continue to lift making dough roll over and over itself.

Roll dough until end is underneath, then slide directly onto baking sheet.

Place dough diagonally across baking sheet or bend into a horseshoe shape to make it fit. Brush entire strudel surface with melted butter or margarine.

Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils 1 minute. Add chicken and vegetables; turn into 2½-quart casserole. Prepare corn bread mix according to package directions. Make a groove around edge of chicken mixture with back of spoon, pushing chicken to center of casserole; spoon corn bread mixture carefully into groove. (If your casserole is not large enough to take all the corn bread mixture, bake any remaining as muffins.) Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 25 to 30 minutes, or until corn bread is golden brown and chicken mixture is bubbly.

• APPLE TOPSY-TURVY CAKE

Preparation time: 25 min.
Baking time: 45-50 min.

- 3 tbs. butter or margarine
- $\frac{3}{4}$ c. apricot preserves
- 3-4 medium-sized apples, pared and cored
- $\frac{1}{4}$ c. seedless raisins
- $1\frac{3}{4}$ c. sifted cake flour
- 1 c. sugar
- $2\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. baking powder
- $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. cloves
- $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. nutmeg
- $\frac{1}{3}$ c. soft shortening
- $\frac{3}{4}$ c. milk
- 1 egg

● Combine butter or margarine and apricot preserves in small saucepan; stir over low heat until butter is melted and mixture is bubbly; pour into 9x9x2-inch pan. Cut apples into $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick rings; chop end slices finely (there should be 1 cup); reserve. Place 1 apple ring in center of pan; cut remaining rings in half; arrange around center ring; press raisins in centers of apple rings. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, cinnamon, cloves, and nutmeg into mixing bowl. Add shortening and milk; blend; beat 2 minutes at medium speed on mixer (or 300 strokes by hand); scrape bowl frequently. Add egg; beat an additional 2 minutes; fold in reserved 1 cup chopped apples. Spoon batter carefully over apple rings in pan, so design is not disturbed. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 45 to 50 minutes. Loosen sides of cake with spatula; invert cake on plate; leave pan over cake for 5 minutes so topping will run down over cake; remove pan. Serve warm.

Preparation time: 40 min.

- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 6 medium-sized apples, washed and dried

- 1 c. sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ c. white corn syrup
- 1 can (15 oz.) sweetened condensed milk

● Combine sugar, corn syrup, milk, and vanilla in medium-sized heavy saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until candy thermometer registers 230°F., or until a little of the hot mixture dropped in cold water forms a very stiff ball. Set pan in bowl of hot water to keep mixture spreadable. Spear stem end of apple with a 2-tined kitchen fork; spin quickly in thick caramel, using a small spatula to cover all areas if necessary. Scrape bottom of apple across rim of saucepan to remove as much excess caramel as possible. (Roll in coarsely chopped nuts, if desired.) Caramel will be enough for 6 apples, but it may be necessary to spread the coating over the last two with the aid of a spatula. Place coated apples on buttered platter or cookie sheet; insert wooden skewer in stem end. Let stand about 1 hour, or until firm.

Cream of Potato Soup

There are only 3 ways to get this great family favorite at its best:

1. Fly to France and dine out.
2. Take half a day and make it yourself.
3. Buy Campbell's Frozen.

This is the kind of soup that few women have the time to make as often as their men and kids would like to have it.

Born in the country kitchens of France, cream of potato soup has long been a favorite over here. And now, thanks to Campbell's freezing, you can serve it to your family as often as you like.

Campbell's makes it the real country-kitchen way. Choice white potatoes, young onions, fresh milk, cream, butter, and special seasonings . . . simmered slowly until the wonderful aroma tells our chefs this is the moment they've worked toward. Then it's quick-frozen because that's the only way to save the fresh delicate flavor.

Enjoy Delicious Campbell's Frozen Cream of Potato Soup soon.

Breakfast room is provincial in mood. Ceramic cabbage accents color scheme of white, yellow, green.

There's also a "Hollywood Mother of the Year" citation from the City of Hope honoring Sue as a "devoted wife, mother, and humanitarian."

We returned to the family room and Sue brought in a tray of cheese and crackers and coffee.

"We have a cook who's much better than I," said Sue, "but I do all the cooking when we're at the ranch. Up there, the family seems to be hungry all the time. I like to make things Alan likes such as my German pancakes for Sunday brunch. And we often have them for a midnight snack."

heavily greased frying pan or griddle. Fry till crisp and brown on underside. Turn; brown second side.

The Ladds entertain often but informally.

"We like to have eight guests for a buffet dinner," said Sue. "We've found that's about ideal. We've had some big parties because this house can handle a large crowd nicely. But we like to visit with people, not just shake hands."

"When I'm working on a picture," said Ladd, "I work. I have to be up at 5:30 in the morning so I can be over at the studio, made up, and ready for the cameras by seven or eight. We knock off about five or six and then sit and watch the rushes. So I don't get home until about 7:30. If it has been a hard day, I'm ready for bed by ten."

"When I'm not working on a picture, I spend a lot of time reading scripts, trying to find a good story to produce. And, of course, there are months of talk and preliminary work before you start shooting a picture."

Recent addition and the most frequently used room is the area gained by enclosing part of the patio.

"Whenever I can, I like to go out to the ranch and get into blue jeans and an old shirt and get on the tractor. I guess I'm most relaxed when I'm on that tractor or building a barn or shingling a roof. That doesn't mean I'm a handy guy with tools. I can't make furniture, for example."

"The nicest thing that's happened as a result of success? I was going to say Sue, but that isn't right because it was her management that made me a success."

"Well, I guess it's this home and my wonderful kids. You know, my folks never owned property. I used to try to talk them into buying a place but never got very far. I can still remember how wonderful it felt to pay for a little home for them. And it was great to plan and build this place and know it was all paid for. Now it's headquarters for the kids. They're always dropping in. We like that. That's the way home should be." THE EN

Enclose a breezeway

Here it becomes a family room

"We wish we had done it five years sooner," say Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Cedarquist of Lake Forest, Ill. Architect Henry Tideman's plan converted the old breezeway into a family room. The existing heating plant had sufficient capacity to take care of the expansion. Vinyl tile flooring was installed in the remodeled area.

At the same time, the Cedarquists changed the old kitchen and too-tiny dining room into a well-organized kitchen with a large dining area where the whole family can eat comfortably.

A natural framework for the much-needed family room was provided by the old breezeway. To get more space in the family room, the framing was extended toward the front of the house.

HERRLIN STUDIO

New family room fits neatly into the space between the house and the garage. Note how well the new room blends with the original house. New doors, windows, shutters, and clapboard siding exactly match those of the house itself. All exterior walls are painted an appealing blue-gray; the trim is pure white.

be perfectly practical there must be some places where it doesn't fit. But actually with air conditioning, this style of architecture is well suited to the warm areas. For goodness' sake, we've done it in California, in Michigan, and in the state of Washington.

We've done a house in England and one in the Virgin Islands and even one in Australia. We have designed houses for National Homes and I know that they are being built in most parts of the country.

"Most builders are qualified to do a good job with a traditional house. Around here, of course, we have certain contractors that we know and work with a good deal. When we do a house for someone outside this area we ask local architects to recommend competent contractors. Usually we can supervise the work but if the distance is so great as to make it impractical, and there is no other architect involved, we find that the owners themselves will ride herd on the builder and make sure he's following the plans to the letter. We've found when someone in, say, Michigan or Illinois wants a true traditional house he will have done some boning up on the subject and is often very well qualified to supervise the details involved in the construction of his home. As a matter of fact, we've found that when someone starts checking traditional architecture, he often becomes a real authority on the subject. That is because he finds so many interesting historical facts. Let me tell you a few.

"Windows account for several minor discrepancies in contemporary versions of the earlier colonial-style homes.

"Bow windows, for example, had their origin in commercial rather than domestic architecture. Shopkeepers installed them to provide larger display space.

"Dormer windows are anachronisms when they appear on a 17th-century-style house. But we do use them today and they do work in quite well. The first dormers did not appear until the middle-to-late 18th century. Garret rooms of the earlier homes depended entirely on gable-end windows for light.

"Double-hung windows—although very popular in modern versions of New England traditional architecture—did not make an appearance until the Georgian or later New England colonial period.

"Siding on good modern versions of traditional homes is, as in the days of original New England architecture, mainly clapboards. Wood shingles sometimes were used for exterior walls (as well as for roofing) but clapboard still won out as the favorite.

"Stone houses were rare even though stone was plentiful. This was probably because of the scarcity of lime and the settlers' unfamiliarity with stone construction. However, the beautiful stone walls we find in New England are eloquent proof that the later inhabitants developed masonry skills to a high degree.

"Overhangs on the garrison-type home, as I've noted before, are cloaked in a bit of mystery. No one is quite sure of their origin, but there are several interesting theories.

"Some historians say it was a device used for protection against the Indians. But opponents of this theory point out that the overhang never projected out on all four sides, which would make this reasoning improbable.

"There's another school of thought that says the overhang was a carry-over from medieval England where it provided extra, much-needed living space on the second floor since houses were built so close to the narrow streets of the town. If this were the case, however, why were the projections used in so many colonial country homes which were far from the nearest road?

"Another reason often given is that in colonial towns, shops often occupied the street floor of a house.

"The owners' living quarters were at the rear and above. The jetty may have been used to protect the open shops from inclement weather. Those who argue against this ask, 'Why did the jetties often appear at the gable ends and on houses never occupied by shops?'

"Perhaps the simplest explanation is that the overhanging upper story—a familiar detail of the homes the settlers had abandoned—had an esthetic and nostalgic appeal for them.

"Despite how much is known about authentic colonial architecture, it's amazing how often the same mistakes turn up in contemporary versions. You'll find these in every section of the country.

- "Too steeply pitched roofs. A 12" rise for a 12" run is much too steep for a Cape Cod. The ideal is an 8" rise and 12" run. But a 14" rise and 12" run is fine for a gambrel roof.

- "A too-high story. A mistake like this leaves big gaps over the windows. Windows and everything else are thrown way out of scale.

- "Over-wide windows. All early houses had graceful windows with small panes. Too-fat or short windows, odd-shaped panes other than diamond for garrison houses, windows connected by mullions and out-of-scale picture windows—all do not fit in with traditional New England architecture.

- "Skimpy, badly located chimneys. Lean chimneys don't work well with these homes. Massive chimneys—4x4' or even 5x5'—are the answer. And they should rise about 6' above the ridge line. The chimney should be dead center, not just anywhere.

- "Fancy entrance doors. Most of the earliest homes had plain doors. Overly decorated doors are out of character. Cape Cods should also have simple pilastered entrances.

- "Wide siding upsets proportions. The best bet is 4" clapboards or 6" shingles. Or, for a rougher exterior, long, hand-split shingles should do the job to best effect.

- "Too-low roofs will throw these homes out of proportion.

- "Trick shutters are in bad taste. (As a rule, Mr. Wills uses shutters only on painted, not stained, houses.)

"As to the future, well, you've got to look forward to improvements. You can't stand still. But, as I've said before, the thing that worries me is that we don't use all the things that we could use from the past in planning a contemporary house. I think that at some time in the future we'll take the benefits of both and put them together to have an extremely livable house. When we do, we'll have some sort of pleasant marriage of the two that could go on from there."

A New Twist With Lemons

1. Score $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch strip around top of half a lemon. Free strip from membrane leaving 1 inch connected to fruit on opposite sides. Snip and curl as shown.

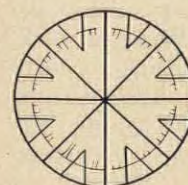

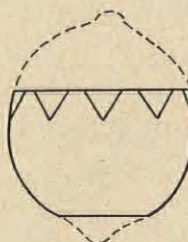

2. Cut wedges from two sides of lemon slice. Garnish, truffle pieces and parsley.

3. Follow instructions for number one (above) for scoring and freeing strip from lemon half. Then pull the freed rind to the center to form design.

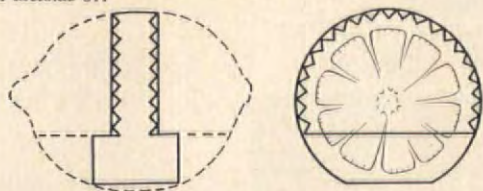

4. Cut and reserve a slice from center of lemon for decoration. Carve saw-toothed design on edge of remaining sections. Remove rind from slice, divide, insert loop-fashion into center of pieces.

5. Cut lemon in half. Make 8 evenly spaced notches around top as in diagram at left. Remove wedges of pulp as indicated in the second drawing. Sprinkle paprika across cuts for color.

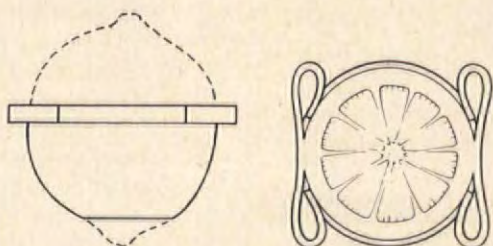

SKETCHES BY RICHARD OTT

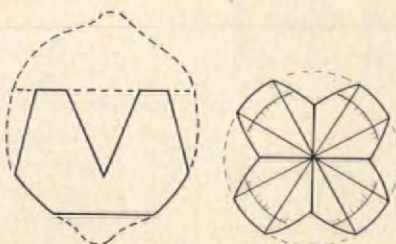

6. Cut slices from center of lemon as indicated by solid lines in first illustration. Notch edges for added interest. Garnish with parsley along straight line of number two drawing.

7. Cut lemon into slices. Notch rind of each slice into sawtoothed design. Cut in half. Insert whole clove at center.

8. Score $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch strip around half a lemon. Free strip from membrane leaving 1 inch connected to fruit on opposite sides. Snip strips at center. Fold free ends under as illustrated.

9. Cut lemon in half. Make 4 deep notched cuts evenly spaced. Remove pulp from cuts. Sprinkle edges and center with paprika.

10. Starting with a sharp knife at the stem end of the lemon, cut rind from fruit in a spiral fashion. When rind has been completely removed, using stem end as base, curl rind together.

11. Cut lemon into quarters. Dip the rind edges into paprika.

12. Cut 4 wedges from $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick lemon slice. Garnish rind edges with paprika; add parsley.

10 Home Improvement Rackets

He paints a grave picture of defective operation, deadly fumes given off. (Some even toss a smoke bomb into the furnace to make it really look bad.) But lucky for you, he knows just the right person to come immediately and put in a brand new dependable furnace. This, of course, sets up his partner who is waiting down the street with a truck and a cheap replacement. The homeowner ends up paying twice as much for a new furnace that wasn't needed in the first place.

So don't let anyone in without iron-clad credentials. Genuine inspectors rarely go around checking furnaces.

CHIMNEY-REPAIR RACKET

One of the worst recent examples was that of a 75-year-old Bowling Green, Kentucky, woman who was told that her chimney would topple in the first windstorm unless it was fixed at once. She was frightened into signing for a $3600 repair job on the spot. Four men, posing as experts, worked on her chimney for a few hours, dabbed new cement on a few cracks and vanished, she tearfully told police.

This kind of swindler often claims he just happened to be fixing a chimney down the street and noticed that your chimney really looks bad. It might collapse any time. But he can fix it cheaply now, since his crew is near by. Warned up, he tells terrible stories of damage caused by collapsed chimneys. The owner is frightened into signing for a $400 or $500 repair job. A crew pokes around the chimney for a few hours, disappears, and is never seen again.

FAKE TERMITES

A gyp salesman examines a house and comes out holding a piece of wood riddled with termites. (They are from a bottle carried in his kit.) The owner is told that the house will collapse unless remedial work is done immediately. Pressure is put on him to sign before a check can be made on the salesman, and before a legitimate exterminator can be consulted.

What they don't tell you is that even in the worst cases there's generally time to call for other estimates. So don't panic if termites are found in your house. Call in other experts and find out how bad the termites really are. Then pick the best contractor to do the work for you.

TWO-FOR-ONE PAINT BARGAINS

You are offered "best quality paint, $8.98 a gallon, every second gallon free." It's done today in stores all over the country. Or a second gallon is sold for 1c. This widespread offer is actually the old two-for-one gimmick, two cans of cheap $4.50 paint masquerading as top quality.

Some of it is even worse than nothing. A federal paint standard calls for paint to stand up under 500 cycles of a special testing brush (one cycle equals two brush strokes). One paint, actually sold at $8.98, began to disintegrate after only 25 brush cycles and was completely worn away at the end of 50 cycles. Two ordinary low-priced paints tested the same way showed no visible effects after the 50 cycles. You get what you pay for, especially with paint. Don't expect a second gallon free any more than you would expect to be given a second $3000 car free with the one you buy.

THE DEBT-CONSOLIDATION SCHEME

A gyp salesman, trying to sell a $1000 fix-up job, hears that the homeowner is already loaded with debt. "Why not take out a $2500 loan," the salesman says. "You can pay off all your debts at one crack. Then you'll only have to make one payment a month. Of course, I'm sticking my neck out to do this for you, so I'll need $500 to put it through." The salesman adds this kickback to the loan, making it an even $3000. The original $1000 figure was already $200 higher than it should have been, giving him that much more of a take.

A few days later the owner discovers he has to pay as much as $200 penalty-charge for the short-term cancellation of one or more of his loans. Total carrying charges on the new loan can reach as high as 40 per cent, according to the Detroit Better Business Bureau, which recently reported a rash of rigged debt-consolidation schemes. It charged that homeowners "were led to believe that smaller monthly payments are an unbelievable dream come true. The dream turns into a nightmare because the cost of switching can run into many hundreds of dollars, depending on the amounts involved, and length of time the new loan is stretched."

In New York, a ring of home-repair chiselers was rounded up and jailed for mulcting owners of as much as $1000 each on debt-consolidation schemes.

AUTOMATIC-FIRE-ALARM SCHEME

A man rings the doorbell and says he is from the "fire safety council" (a nonexistent organization). He is giving "fire prevention demonstrations." Once inside, he exhibits news clippings and horror pictures of house fires to scare the family into buying a $500 to $1000 alarm system. After the order is signed, a couple of men arrive, string a few wires around and disappear.

COMPLETION PAPERS SIGNED IN ADVANCE OF WORK DONE

Here the salesman persuades a customer to sign some blank forms, saying it will save time later.

When the job is not properly done, the customer complains but to no avail. A payment book arrives from the finance company, and he must pay since his signature is on the "completion certificate."

One suburban family near Chicago got a time-payment book that called for a total repayment of $2852.53, yet the work done cost less than $900. When the husband complained he was shown his signature on the actual contract. Then he remembered that the salesman showed him all the figures in pen and ink on a sample contract. They came to $852.53. He was assured that back in the office all this would be typed on the blank form he had just signed.

It was, after the gyp doctoring it by $2000. There was nothing the owner could do. He had to pay.

Never sign a completion certificate until all work is properly finished. Never, never sign blank papers, regardless of how harmless they may seem. If any salesman insists, throw him out.

"LOW-BALLING"

This scheme has flourished for years in the sales of expensive remodelings such as finishing an attic or basement, and more recently, with swimming pools. A homeowner is offered a price so low he can't resist. In St. Louis, for example, a man and his wife signed up for a $1500 attic-remodeling job, although two legitimate contractors had said the same work would cost over $2500. After the order was signed, the couple was told about the extras: finished flooring, wallboard, finished ceiling, painting, insulation, and other items which brought the job to over $3000.

Called "low-balling" in the trade, this practice is aimed mainly at elbowing legitimate contractors out of the way by underpricing them. Once signed up, the customer is hooked. He usually ends up paying for a much overpriced job.

Deceptively low prices quoted for swimming pools, for example, do not include piping, pumps, filters, water-cleaning equipment, and often even the water-line hookup is "extra." Certain communities have stiff ordinances that require continuous water changes and these call for prohibitively expensive equipment; if you live in such a community, you must either buy the equipment or not use the pool. HOME-IMPROVEMENT CHECK LIST

Here is a home-improvement check list of eight precautions to follow, based on interviews with Better Business Bureau officials and home-improvement experts:

1. The most important question: is the dealer reputable? Ask your Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce. Get the names of people he has worked for and find out how they fared. If possible, visit the dealer's office, to make sure, for example, he doesn't operate from a telephone booth.
2. If you finance the work, check the finance company the same way you check the dealer.
3. Don't be pressured into signing a contract. Be wary of salesmen who try to frighten you into immediate action.
4. Get at least two or three bids from dealers before you buy. They should be based on identical, written specifications.
5. Demand absolute identification before letting any person into your home who claims to be a city, or utility company inspector.
6. Don't fall for special offers, the "amazing bargain," the long-term guarantee, the offer to use your house to demonstrate a product. Be a realist; nobody gives away something for nothing. There is always a catch.
7. Thoroughly read all papers you sign, particularly the fine print. Be sure everything is filled out properly. Never sign a blank form. Don't sign a completion certificate until work is satisfactorily done.
8. Does the contractor have both liability and workman's compensation insurance? These two requirements should be mandatory. They are needed to protect you and your family in case of damage to your house or injury to any person (including installation men) during job progress.

Plant Your Springtime

get sunshine at least half the day and where the soil is well drained. Dense, continuous shade and waterlogged soil are about the only common conditions that spring bulbs can't stand.

In open lawn areas, or in combination with trees, shrubs, or other flowers, you'll get your most beautiful effects from curved, irregularly shaped plantings that have a naturalistic appearance. Usually it's only where the closeness of a wall, a terrace, or a straight path requires it that a rectangular planting is likely to be more effective. A circular planting is usually desirable only in a geometrically designed formal planting.

The appropriate size of a feature planting will depend on the size of the garden area in which it'll be located. Figure on a minimum length of 5 feet and a minimum width of 3 feet at the widest point of an irregularly shaped drift.

When you plan the placement of a clump or drift, you'll want to consider the major characteristics of the different bulbs. The size, color and flowering time are as follows:

Hyacinths generally grow about 12" high, are intensely fragrant, and include white, cream, and soft tones of red, pink, blue, lavender, and purple.

Daffodils range between 12" and 20" high, are mildly fragrant, and include white, many tones of yellow, and a host of two-color combinations in which white, yellow, orange, or orange-red dominates.

Early-flowering tulips range from 8" to 18", the later ones from 20" to 30", they're slightly fragrant, and include white and both soft and intense shades of all colors except true blue.

You'll find large selections of varieties to choose from in all the fall bulb catalogues or at any well-stocked garden center.

Hyacinths usually flower around the middle of April; daffodils have a longer flowering range, from middle to late April; and tulips span a still longer period, from mid-April to mid-May. Siberian squills (Scilla sibirica) and grape hyacinths (Muscari armeniacum and M. botryoides), in blue and white and about 6" high, flower with the hyacinths, daffodils, and early tulips. Spanish squills or bluebells (Scilla hispanica), in white, blue, and pink and 12" to 15" high, flower with the late tulips.

Use the greater planting depth if your soil is sandy, the lesser depth if it's clayey.

To plant a clump of a dozen or so bulbs, dig a large enough hole with a shovel or spade, about 3" deeper than the planting depth. Loosen the bottom soil, mix a couple of handfuls of complete plant food with the loose soil, firm it slightly, cover with unfertilized soil to the proper planting depth. Set the bulbs evenly, and cover with soil to a little above the ground level to allow for settling.

To plant a larger bed or drift, the best way is to work the same as for a clump—that is, dig out all the soil a little deeper than the planting depth, prepare the bottom soil as described above, and set the bulbs evenly as regards both depth and spacing. An easier way is simply to spread plant food on the soil, turn it to the full depth of the fork or spade, and rake the surface smooth. Then plant the bulbs individually with a bulb planter or trowel. This way, however, you probably won't get the bulbs at exactly equal depths or quite so evenly spaced, and so the flowers may not be so uniform.

Feed your bulb plantings generously at least once a year—in the fall—or better still, in the early fall and again in the very early spring. Remove the flowers as soon as they fade to prevent seed formation, but don't remove the leaves until completely withered.

By the time the leaves start to yellow, but before they should be removed, you can overplant your bulb plantings with annuals (petunias, marigolds, zinnias, etc.) so as to have continuous bloom from midsummer till frost. For this second flowering period you can choose the same colors as you had in the bulbs, or you can choose completely different colors. Since tulips prefer to be dry during summer, it'll be best to overplant these with zinnias, annual phlox, or portulaca, which need the least watering. You probably won't have to dig up and replant the bulbs for five years or more—when they may become overcrowded and stop flowering.

WAYS TO IMPROVE YOUR HOME

Decorating ideas may come from a wife's pretty head but usually it takes a husband's helping hand to carry them out! Certainly this is true of the 16 smart ideas shown on these pages. Study them carefully and see how they will give you more storage, make your home more comfortable, or add a spot of beauty. If these specific ideas aren't the answer to your problem, an adaptation may suit your needs. For example, the hallway-lighting idea, above, used in a bathroom, will give the effect of filtered sunlight; the built-in TV, with hide-away doors (next page) would be ideal for a bedroom too; use the upholstered headboard over a backless couch in your living room!

3. TV set is recessed in coat closet. Panels in closet door (behind TV) were replaced with metal mesh for ventilation. Folding doors are made of $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch plywood, trimmed with molding. Hi-fi doors are of caning. Decorator, Jane L. Geraghty, A.I.D.

4. Door-bumping problem is solved by dividing a solid door and fitting it with hinges. Before, it conflicted with door opening into closet on the right wall. Home of Susan Jones Medlock.

6. Window niche fitted on both sides with bookshelves is pleasant corner for reading or sewing. Note Scandinavian folding rocker. Decorator, Jeanne Ludwig, A.I.D.

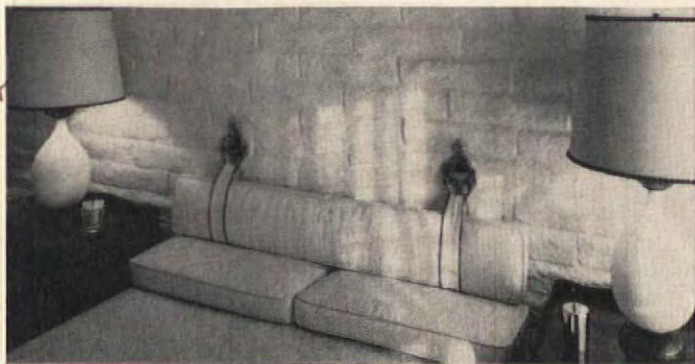

7. No room for a desk? Of course there is if you use this idea. Section of this built-in bookcase drops down to become a hard-surfaced desk and work area. Drawers, pigeonholes, and shelves are built in behind. Legs become frame on wall panel when it is closed. Home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hensel.

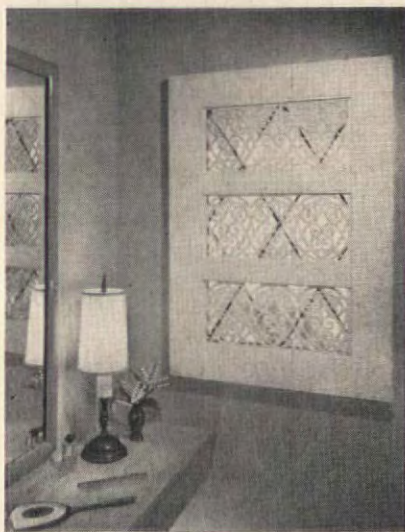

5. Bottoms-up window shade can be set in any of five positions on its way to the top. Tension-type roller is attached at the baseboard level for maximum privacy and light control. Decorator, Jeanne Ludwig, A.I.D.

8. Good spacemaker in a small dining room is this glass shelf over balustrade wallpaper. Supported by brass brackets, it can be used for serving or to hold a floral arrangement. You could use wrought-iron supports or wooden brackets with shelving. Decorator, Jane L. Geraghty, A.I.D.

9. Brass door knockers hold fabric loops which, in turn, hold a long, comfortable bolster. This "headboard" and the flat pillow cushions create a tailored effect. Decorator, Victor Burch, Jr., A.I.D.

10. Lacy grille adds grace to powder-room window. Made of bits of grillwork framed in three panels and hinged to wall, it offers privacy and subdued light. Home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Winter. Decorator, Larry Schwartz.

14. Mattressticking (plastic lined) makes a handsome shower curtain and valance. Valance is hung from brass rod fastened at ceiling height.

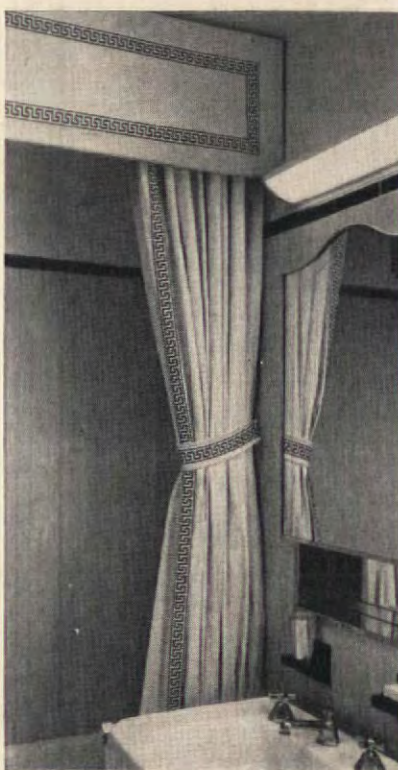

11. Corner your beds to give more space for activities of growing boys. Easy-to-make night table accommodates reading lamp and provides pillow support for both beds. Home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pharr.

12. Awning over curtains and planter sets a gay mood in a nursery. Striped yellow and white chintz is trimmed with white surrey fringe. Awning rests on wooden dowel frame attached to the wall with ordinary shelf brackets. Home of Eliot Jordan.

13. Beauty secret in this bathroom is the plywood shutters covered with a robin's egg blue chintz. The pattern is centered on each panel. Embroidered café curtains hang from the halfway mark inside the shutters. Decorator, Jane L. Geraghty, A.I.D.

15. Old chest between bedroom and bath has marbled wallpaper; shelves above hold pretty bottles. Decorator, Jeanne Ludwig, A.I.D.

16. Snackspot in kitchen is still possible where floor space is limited if you copy this kitchen idea. Counter over cabinet takes a free-form swing at the window end to accommodate two coffee drinkers. Wall cabinet displays glassware behind sliding glass doors. Home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald T. Shawl.

"WE WERE ALWAYS LOOKING FOR PLACES TO PUT THINGS."

This family needed storage space—but ended up with a 5-room wing!

"Our teen-age daughters hit the ceiling when we suggested moving," says Mrs. William Dean. "Frankly we couldn't blame them. We'd fallen in love with our community too. So we decided to add onto our old house to get the space we needed for our active family."

The Deans extended their house at the rear and here is what they gained: a spacious family room, a new kitchen (the old one was converted into a utility room with washer and dryer), an additional bath, a huge master bedroom, and a guest room or studio.

As for storage, there's a large entry closet; floor-to-ceiling closets in the bath, master bedroom, and studio; compartmented storage in the family room; cabinets and drawers in the kitchen and utility room. Additional storage was created at the rear of the garage.

In the plan below notice how well the old (heavy outline) and new wings work together and how the front entry channels the traffic into either area.

Connecting link between small original home and five-room addition is this spacious family room where a hide-away storage wall shields a major portion of the kitchen work area from view. Remodeling added 1200 sq. ft. of living space.

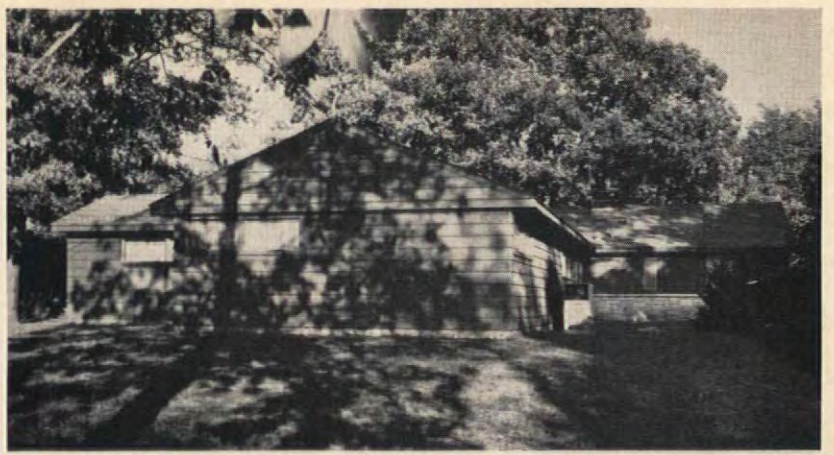

Beautiful kitchen has a wide sliding window that overlooks the pleasant side yard. Mahogany paneling (same as used in the family room) serves as a rich background for the light birch cabinets and gray counter tops.

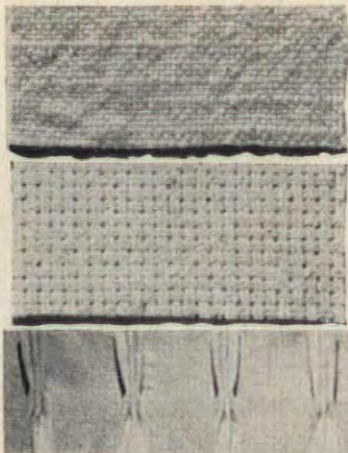

Old and new blend beautifully as you can see in the front elevation of the Dean home. At the right, past the front door, is the new family-room wall. Stone wall marks the beginning of the new guest room or studio.

Major part of addition is at the rear and covers half of the old back wall. The same materials used on the original house—redwood siding and stone—were used on the addition. Original wing is at right of the photo.

ALWAYS IN SEASON, Currier & Ives "Four Seasons" prints are handsomely framed in maple to set off their delicate hues. In a picture grouping or flanking a hutch, they lift a room's spirits as well as your own. Charming reminders that if winter comes spring can't be far behind, each is 7 1/2 x 6 1/8" over-all. Set of 2, $3.95; all 4, $7.50. Taylor Gifts, Dept. AH, Wayne 6, Pa.

LOOKS LEICA camera on one side, and the reverse of this gold-plated brass camera tag is engraved with a name and address, to make sure it comes home. A boon to any shutterbug who'd be lost if his camera were. It's a good insurance policy to label cases too, so 1 1/2" tags give high coverage at a low premium—$1.50 ea. Lillian Vernon, 276-AH East 3rd St., Mt. Vernon, N.Y.

STRETCHING A POINT for comfort, Stretch-Button adds a half-size to the shirt collar that's too tight or too stiff. To keep a man from getting all choked up, it fits in the buttonhole while the spring loop goes around the button for extra ease. The tie hides it completely, so it's a rhodium-plated blessing in disguise. $1. Zenith Gifts, 5346 P.O. Bldg., Brighton 35, Mass.

THERE'S NO SPICE IN THE LIFE of this "spice chest," but the lady who gets it won't mind the lack. It's really a cigarette dispenser, disguised with white knobs that hint at drawers, in warm pine to suit the mood of her early American kitchen. Ten regular or king-size packs slip out from the bottom. 15 1/4 x 5 x 3 1/2". $3.95. Medford Products, Box 39-AH, Bethpage, N. Y.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS, all the family's toothbrushes stay dust-free and clean as a bristle. In a white cabinet for five brushes, individual compartments with swinging doors say "keep out" to dust and to anyone whose name isn't on the door. Clear lucite doors show five names, or reserve one for "Guest." (Specify.) $1.50 from Crown Craft, 3-A Mt. Hope Pl., New York 53, N. Y.

Your friends will marvel!

This is a fabulous book. Overnight it will teach you how to achieve fascinating room decor with curtains and draperies: how to use color to make a room seem larger or smaller—how to get a cool effect, or a warm one—how to treat "difficult" windows. In quick, easy steps it will lead you to results that you would hardly dare believe possible. Be sure to get a copy. Your windows can be beautiful.

ALBUM OF READERS' HOMES

We would like to share with you some of the snapshots that come to us in the daily mail. We are as proud of these homes as the owners are!

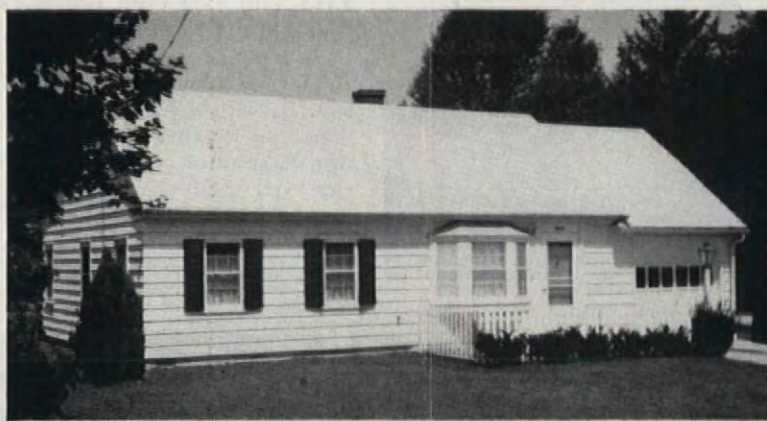

Mrs. William Randall Noble, North Scituate, R. I.

“Our home, dating back to 1741, is a restoration. We’re still replacing windows, always hunting for 12 over 12. We’ve preserved the original lines and kept it a true country home by whitewashing interior walls and using primitive furnishings.”

“My husband insists I tell you about the miracle we worked on our house. Originally it was small and the grounds scraggly. After nine years, it’s almost finished and we have twice as much house. My kitchen will be a southpaw’s delight.”

Mrs. Henry M. Hermanns, Ardsley, Pa.

“We lived happily in a development home for years but decided our next home had to have some extras. We designed this house ourselves. Many of the ideas came from The American Home.”

Robert L. Batchelder, Wilbraham, Mass.

“Our mountain home, with its open rafters, is such a place as Henry David Thoreau described in ‘Walden’—but with city comforts. Over the door we have: ‘Time for Three R’s—Reading, Resting, Recreation.’ As a teacher, I enjoy these three R’s most.”

Walter P. Busch, La Mesa, Calif.

“My wife and I drew up the plans for our house and she supervised the building. It’s concrete block, stuccoed on the outside. The large front windows were taken from an old church.”

H. D. Manly, Statesboro, Ga.
