Beautiflor is particularly recommended for modern inlaid linoleum.

"Beautiflor" and "Johnson's" are registered trademarks of S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc.

With Beautiflor the shine keeps coming back just with buffing or mopping—without rewaxing

That's because Johnson's Beautiflor has reserve shining power. Unlike most liquid waxes that just harden on the top of the floor, Beautiflor penetrates the surface. It stores up future shines that come back with only a light re-buffing (by hand or electric polisher) . . . even with your daily dust mopping! You can even "touch up" areas that get most wear, and Beautiflor blends right in. No streaks! It's a long, long time between waxing jobs when you give your floors the shine with nine lives. (P. S. Soap and water scrubbing may harm inlaid linoleum and other porous surfaces. Regular use of Beautiflor dry-cleans your floors . . . makes scrubbing unnecessary.)

MEMORIES ARE MADE OF THIS

... the year we bought a live blue spruce in a tub and let the children help string lights on it at our front door. Weeks later, when Joe planted it in the yard, eager faces watched from the warmth of the house as he labored over a hole big enough for the transferral. Now the tree is taller than Pete, who is six feet—and each year, as lights are strung on it, somebody always recalls the little tree we had for Christmas the first year we moved into our new house.

... the year Tracy was getting a farmyard—complete with metal barn, cows, horses, sheep, and chickens to be fastened to platforms, and hundreds (it seemed) of pieces of fence to be fitted together. At 4 A.M., the lights in the basement still burned, as Santa's weary helpers tiptoed around, striving desperately to finish the job before the first eager peeper sneaked down.

... the year Stevie had been an especially naughty boy and Santa filled his stocking with switches. He sobbed so hard that it has never been repeated. Wrong time, wrong place.

... the year they were all getting sleds and, miraculously, snow fell—and stayed—on Christmas Eve.

... the year any baby reaches out to touch his first Christmas tree.

Our neighbors sent over a box of Oregon holly—lustrous dark green with brilliant clusters of red. A far cry from the pale branches we used to hunt in the Maryland woods, only occasionally able to shout, "Come quick. This one has berries." Same genus Ilex, though. Same spiny-edged leaves that are just as prickly. What is Oregon's secret? I'd love to go holly-hunting out there.

Outside of Minnesota and Wisconsin, and the dear old New England states, I wonder how many children these days have a chance to ride in a one-horse open sleigh. When I was a child we had one—actually built by my grandfather. The slightest snowfall was excuse enough for my father to hurry home from work, hitch up Fanny, and take us all for a ride. Especially memorable was a moonlight night as we laughed and sang over miles of country road and watched the horse's breath make "steam." Then, in summer, barefoot and hot, we used to climb on the dusty sleigh where it rested in the tobacco shed and inhale the fragrant leaves hanging from the rafters overhead. Our children are practically strangers in that wonderful world of barns and haylofts and horses. I wonder if there's just as big a thrill for them in a station wagon with the tail-gate open.

When we were married, I told Joe I couldn't live in a house without a piano. So the first Christmas he gave me one—a beat-up baroque-ish monster, costing quite a lot because it was wartime. I've a better-looking one now, but it doesn't seem to sound as sweet.

It's Christmas pageant time again. Every year I wish there were a costume rental place I could dash into for items like: a Santa Claus suit, size 10; elf gear ("teacher said long-sleeved brown pajamas"); or a purple velvet cape for a king, size 8. However, the balloon cloth, Irish lace-trimmed gowns Kim and Tracy are wearing (left) were really worth the frantic hours spent on them. The girls have used them for years in pageants, and have even slept in them. In a way it wouldn't seem like Christmas if we didn't get out the old sheets for draped costumes, towels for Wise Men's turbans, and have that last-minute rush for some extra tinsel for halos.

At last, the family gathers for Christmas. Despite the best-laid plans of the hostess to have the children play outside, or in one of the rooms stocked with toys—they're still racing in among the adults, munching candy and strewing tangerine peels, shooting at each other and having "a wild of a time" with their cousins—doesn't it take you back?

Now it is Christmas Eve. The air is filled with secrets, the heart with song. Oh, to capture it. Box it. Wrap it. But you cannot. Gather round, then, for one more telling of The Story. See in each child The Child.

Christmas night. A lovely mellowness, induced by tiredness—but mostly well-being, because you have worked hard. And you enjoy everything so much more when you have made great effort.

They're snug in their beds, with a favorite toy, after the Longest Day in the World.

Joe and I sip coffee at the sturdy kitchen table.

PROMISE A Princess!

What's more, the dial glows softly in the dark and lights brightly when you lift the receiver, for easy dialing.

So light up the holiday season by ordering a Princess phone for someone special. You can include prepaid service for any period of time you wish.

THE FHA ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS

Information from Office of the Commissioner, Federal Housing Administration

If you have a question for this column, please address FHA Commissioner, % The American Home, 300 Park Ave., New York 22, New York

I have just finished reading your article in the September issue of The American Home. You wrote that FHA does "not allow the buyer to pay a discount" on FHA-insured loans. I bought a home last year and paid the local bank two points, which I felt to be quite unjustified. I would appreciate your comments on this matter.

Every family buying a home on which FHA insures the mortgage is certainly entitled to know exactly what he is being charged for.

It is true that FHA does not allow the home buyer to pay a discount to obtain an FHA-insured mortgage. But the regulations do allow the buyer to pay an initial service charge if the lender requires it. This charge cannot be more than one per cent of the original mortgage amount on a house already built. It is often referred to as a "point," and is sometimes confused with a discount charge.

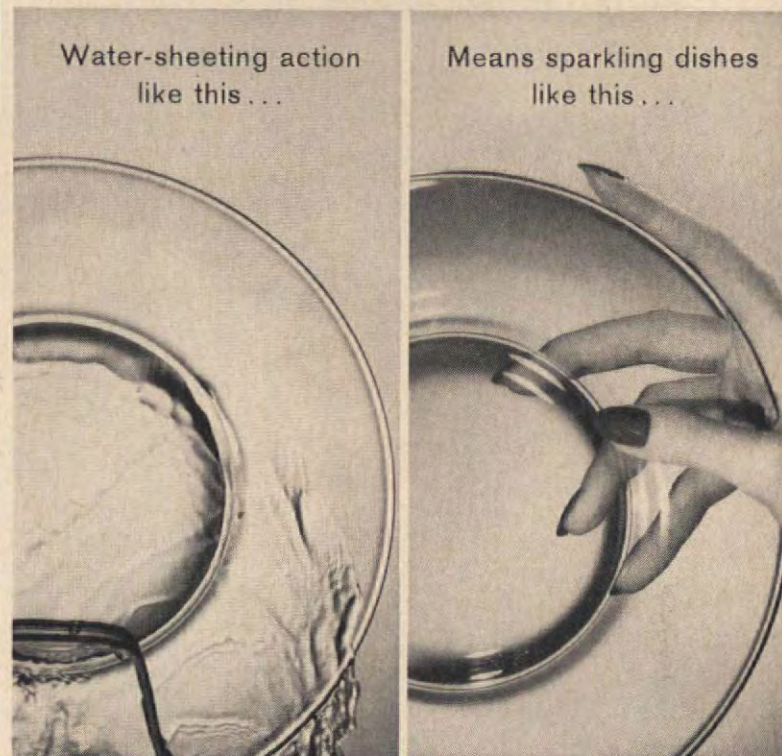

The initial service charge may be as much as two and one half per cent if you move into a new home on which the lender has made partial disbursements and property inspections during construction. This might be the case if you had the house built and arranged the financing before or during construction.

So, the initial service charge may account for one of the two "points" you paid; or if you had the home built, the charge could have been as much as two and one half per cent, or "points," as it is sometimes erroneously called. I suggest that you check with the mortgage officer of the bank that made you the loan. Ask him just what the charge covered. If the bank is not able to give you a satisfactory explanation, contact the director of the FHA office that insured your mortgage and ask him to clear up the question for you.

A couple of years ago we were all set to buy a new home, using the equity in our old home as a down payment toward the new house. The builder was going to try to sell our old house for us by the time he completed the new one. In fact, we made the deal contingent on this. He wasn't able to sell our old home in time, and the deal fell through. We've been reading about FHA's new trade-in financing regulations. Does this mean we'd have a better chance now to dispose of our old home?

Since you last tried to use your home as a trade-in on a new one, FHA has made the procedure easier.

Trade-ins are most important in today's home financing transactions. Last year FHA took steps which will measurably help a family trade its home for another one. They resulted in the builder or real estate firm being able to work this kind of transaction with less tie-up of capital and with about half the former closing costs.

One of the advantages of this new plan is that the builder or real estate man is now able to take your old house off your hands quickly. He can almost immediately advise you as to how much equity you have and how much additional money will be needed for your new home. Many builders and real estate men across the country now specialize in this type of transaction.

Why don't you try again? With the additional equity you've built up in your present home, you should be able to get the desired results without too much difficulty.

My family is really enthusiastic about modern architecture and we've decided to buy a contemporary home. But we've read a lot about traditional homes being the best buy. What's FHA policy on this? Do you discourage the building of modern houses?

We do not discourage the building of modern houses. There are good and bad contemporary houses, just as there are good and bad traditional houses.

In fact, far from discouraging the building of modern homes, FHA urges builders to make use of every new advance in building techniques. Our goal in this activity is to produce a more livable home with longer-lasting value.

For the potential home buyer there is a common-sense course; buy the home that will give your family the most comfort and satisfaction for a price you can afford to pay.

I plan to buy a shell home and finish it myself. Does FHA insure mortgages on this kind of deal?

FHA's mortgage program cannot directly benefit you in the purchase of a shell home as it stands.

A shell home is, of course, just what the name implies—the foundation and the walls, the basic equipment, with almost all of the finishing to be done by the buyer.

This shell does not qualify for an FHA-insured mortgage because FHA requires that a house must be completed in such a way as to comply with FHA minimum property standards. These standards, developed by FHA over the years, must be met to make sure the buyer gets a livable home and an acceptable location. Obviously, a home with unfinished walls and without flooring, with merely the basic equipment, does not meet finished standards.

There is a way that FHA can come into play on a shell home. You could apply to a mortgage lending institution that is making FHA-insured loans, and perhaps the FHA insuring office would issue a commitment to your lender that when the house is completed (finished inside and out), FHA will insure the mortgage. The application for an FHA commitment to insure would have to be accompanied by completed plans and specifications.

If the FHA office were to issue such a commitment, the lender could make a construction loan to you—a separate transaction at a "going" or conventional rate of interest for such loans. FHA wouldn't have anything to do with or say about the construction loan.

Keep in mind that the FHA insurance would not be on the shell but on the finished product—the livable home.

Gifts Unlimited

There seems to be a growing demand in the market place for unusual, even bizarre gift ideas, judging by the number of fascinating ads we have been observing. There are offerings of "shrunken pygmy head ash trays," imported Haitian Voodoo drums, monogrammed tooth picks "for those who have everything," and an oddment of other equally off-beat gifts for the idea-weary shopper. We know a chap who received a Philippine bolo knife that is just dandy for cutting jungle brush...if he ever visits a jungle!

The problem with most of these splendid ideas is their relatively limited use. The ideal "unusual" gift should combine cautiousness with daring. It should have an aura of dashing practicality. Certainly, above all else, it should be useful. With these requirements in mind, we have come up with what may prove to be the gift idea of the year! Regular readers of this rectangle, by now, will have given a knowing nod. For the uninitiated, we will end the suspense here and blurt it out...E-Z-DU® Wallpaper.

Before you recover from stunned surprise, we will go on to say that in E-Z-DU's fabulous collection of pre-pasted wallpaper, you can find modest yet winsome weaves and textures; or you can let yourself really go and select bizarre scenics in bold colors. The range seems limitless and has a decorative gift idea for every home the country over.

On the practical side, E-Z-DU is really easy to do...just cut, wet and hang. Best of all, E-Z-DU is a wonderful way to say "Merry Christmas" all year long! Visit your Imperial dealer and judge for yourself.

AT HOME WITH LAWRENCE WELK

JIM LISTON

Lawrence Welk sat at the organ in his paneled study and let his fingers wander over the keys.

"It's a nice way to relax," he said. He drifted into "White Christmas."

"'White Christmas.' That's something you had plenty of in North Dakota. What are your Christmases like in California?"

"A lot warmer!" he laughed, switching off the organ.

"One of the nice things about my life here is that I have more time with my family. Nearly every Christmas in the old days, the band would have an engagement away from home and I couldn't be with the family. Now we're all together. We start the day by going to church and then we have Jerry Burke, our organist, over for dinner because he's a bachelor and doesn't have any relatives out here. And if there are any new band members who aren't married and are away from home, we ask them to join us because Christmas is a family celebration. My daughter Shirley and her husband bring their children and the Lennon family drops in. We really have a lively time of it, singing, dancing, and talking."

"What was Christmas like in North Dakota?"

"Well, it can get pretty cold there—30 and 40 below. We never had to worry about a white Christmas—snow drifted above the windows. We heated the house with coal and wood stoves, but we were snug and warm.

"The real celebration of Christmas was at church. We often had to shovel a path from the house to the barn to get the horses hitched. It was three miles to Strasburg, so we'd heat rocks on the stove and put them in the sleigh to keep our feet warm. It wasn't easy getting through the drifts and sometimes it snowed so hard we could hardly see. But we went every Sunday—my folks never thought weather was an excuse for missing Mass.

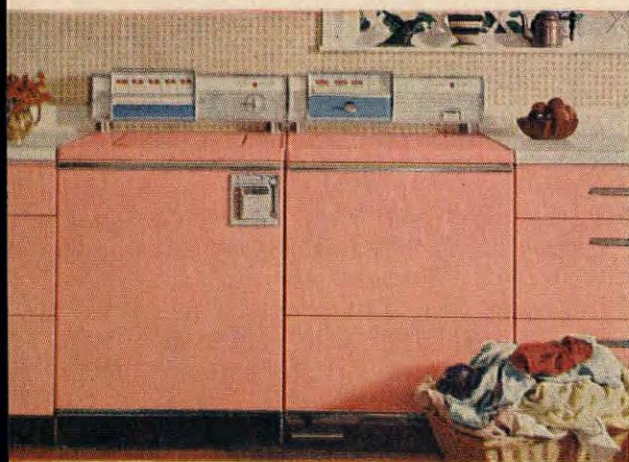

"There were all kinds of cakes and cookies at Christmas. There were get-togethers with other families in the neighborhood. My father would play his accordion and everybody danced and sang. I guess that's why I love music; I really like to see people having a good time.

When the Welks moved to California in 1951, they chose a modest home in Brentwood because they weren't interested in "keeping up with the Joneses." The Welks bought it "because it was a good substantial house that could be remodeled."

Home life is Welk's most cherished reward after years of travel with the band. "Fern made a wonderful home for the children all the years I was on the road," he says. "We used to dream of the day when we could settle down in a town and a home of our own."

for Christmas because there were eight of us and my father was just a wheat farmer who made a little extra money shoeing horses. But stockings stuffed full of candies, nuts, and oranges were our big surprise and we were just as happy as kids are today. You know, people nowadays want to give their kids all kinds of advantages—the kind you buy with money. We didn't have such things, but we were taught that there was an Almighty God we could count on for strength—whether the bank failed or the crop was ruined. That's the best kind of security."

Lawrence Welk's home is a 28-year-old, three-bedroom house real estate men used to call "Spanish bungalow." Welk bought it in 1951 only after he was convinced that his engagement at the Aragon Ballroom in Ocean Park would be a fairly permanent one.

"On weekends I would drive around looking for the kind of neighborhood that seemed right," he said. "I liked Brentwood (in West Los Angeles) but I didn't want to try to keep up with the Joneses. One day I saw a sign in front of this place and the real estate man showed me through. Fern and I liked it because we saw that it was a good solid house we could remodel. I made an offer that was way below the asking price and they turned it down. After three months of haggling, the real estate man called and told me I could have it for what I had originally offered. As you can see, I got a very good buy."

Before the Welks moved in, they installed picture windows in most rooms, redecorated and carpeted the house, remodeled the kitchen, and added a family room with an adjoining lanai. The terrazzo floor of the family room extends beyond sliding glass doors to the lanai.

"All we do is open the doors," said Welk, "and we have a large indoor-outdoor room for entertaining and dancing."

Because the land drops off sharply behind the house, the lanai resembles a large balcony porch. It is roofed with translucent, fiber glass panels supported on redwood beams. The upper branches of a tall sycamore are so close that Welk says, "It's something like being in a tree house."

*THE GLORIOUS TRADITIONS OF CHRISTMAS
HOME*

nd it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

II (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

III And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

IV And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:)

V To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

VI And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

VII And she brought forth her first-born son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

VIII And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

IX And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

X And the angel said unto them,
Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

XI For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

XII And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

XIII And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

XIV Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

CHRISTMAS BEGINS AT YOUR DOORSTEP!

Is there a warmer way of saying "Merry Christmas" and "Please come in!" than a front door that's bedecked with greens and trimmings?

At the left, oval hemlock wreaths are hung on the side lights. They're sprinkled with nuts and fruits and accented with red ribbon bows. Another garland of hemlock is draped over the railings. The shrubbery is dotted with twinkling Christmas tree lights!

The doorway at the right has a swag of bright green holly entwined with red velvet ribbon. The red and green streamers are tipped with Christmas balls. In the center, the half-bucket is filled with greens and bright red winter berries.

PHOTOGRAPHED AT BEAUFORT BY LISANTI

Decorate your door on the inside as well as out! The sunburst is made of fan-pleated metallic paper with leaves of palm (see page 66). The newel posts are hung with streamers of ribbon and have Christmas-ball collars.

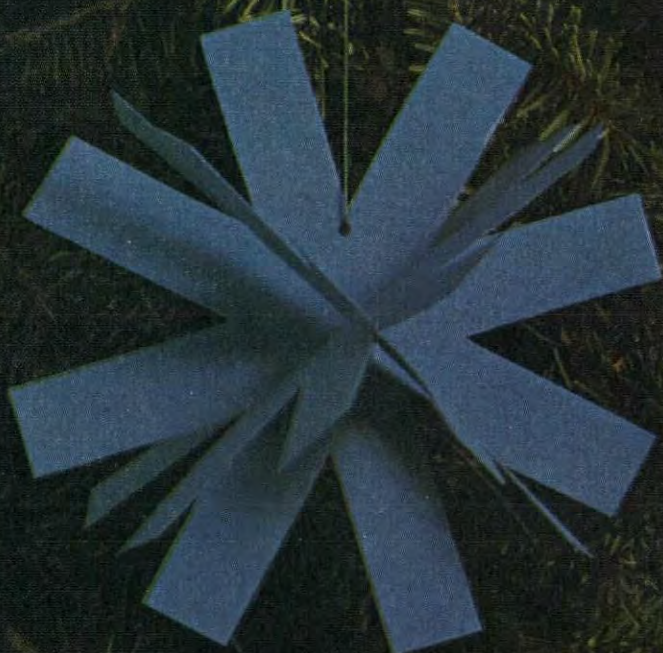

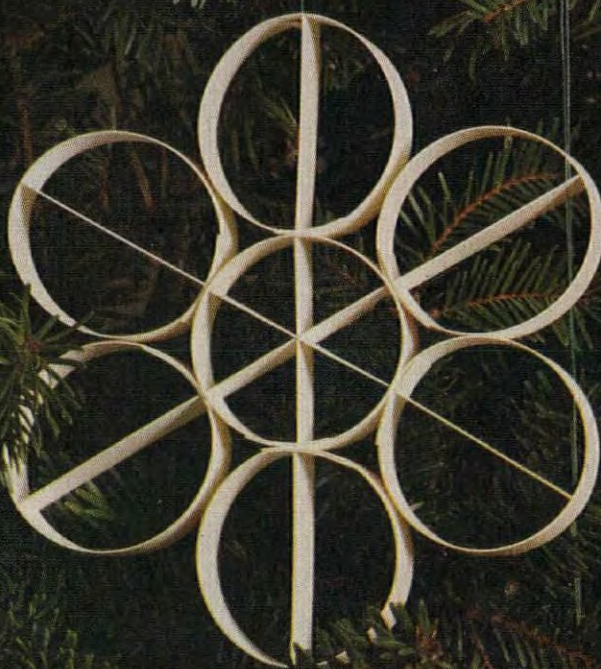

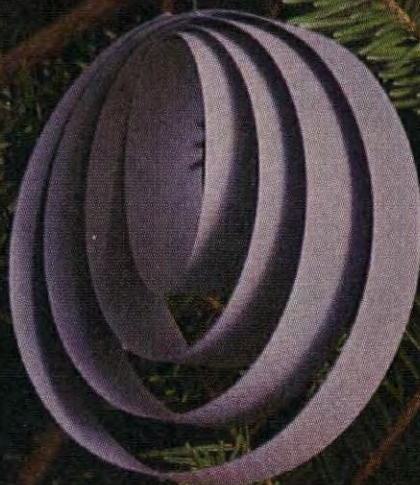

Expecting the carolers to sing at your door? Have a warming treat all ready! Here, surprises in gaily colored folded bags are hung from the ceiling. Each child picks a golden number and opens his treasure over a gingerbread man and hot chocolate!

Kissing rings are a delightful Christmas custom. These are embroidery hoops covered with red ribbon and sprigged with holly and mistletoe. Lucky the one caught beneath! Ribbon can be glued to or wound around the rings.

The Christmas rose is a tradition that goes back to the Nativity itself—a symbol of love and beauty. Here, pink and red artificial roses are wired to a small live table tree. The container is covered with decorative paper.

SO PRETTY, SUCH FUN TO DO!

One of the nicest Christmas customs we know is having both young and old make ornaments for the tree! These are paper—so simple and imaginative you'll want to pack them away for many Christmases to come. They're all here: angels, snowflakes, birds, and Santas! For how-to's, see page 62.

*SET A TABLE WITH THE
CHRISTMAS SPIRIT!*

Of all the seasons of the year, Christmas is the busiest for entertaining—a time for feasting and hospitality. And a rich, abundant table is a tradition in itself. So set a festive board! One that is as bright and gay as the holiday. On these pages, we show you three seasoned settings—two are eye-catching buffets, spiced with colorful accessories, and the third, a gala Christmas breakfast at the fireside.

The Three Kings, candles aglow, set the mood for the buffet below. A carnation pink felt cover is a handsome field for the golden serving pieces, the gleaming brass chafing dish and coffee urn, and the cobalt blue demitasse cups, compote, and napkins. Note the efficient organization for easy self-serving—all done beforehand to allow you to enjoy the party. (How-to's for the Three Kings on page 66)

A Christmas star with tiny twinkling lights shines over this buffet setting. Mexican in feeling, the striped tablecloth is a South-of-the-Border red; napkins in a fish, tin tree, and two heavenly angels are bright touches.

A cheery coverlet, white ironstone, ruby goblets, and an epergne laden with goodies brighten our Christmas breakfast table. Sheaf of wheat with wide red ribbon hangs from the mantel. How-to's for trees on page 65.

CHRISTMAS

A delectable baked ham on an attractively garnished platter is elegant fare for a traditional Christmas dinner. Wonderful, too, to have on hand—to serve cold when friends and relatives drop by. Its tempting flavor is perfect for any meal the whole holiday through!

Ham bakes so easily—there's little watching or basting necessary. A half hour before it's done it should be dressed for the occasion—scored and glazed with a brushing of light corn syrup and studded with bright red cherries that are held in place with pungent cloves. Back into the oven it goes until it glistens like a Christmas tree. For a final touch: a frill of paper on the shank and bright green ribbon!

Fruit is always a perfect accompaniment for ham. Here we serve a honeydew cornucopia and it overflows with grapes, strawberries, melon balls, orange and grapefruit sections.

And don't forget, if you are planning on only a half ham for Christmas, you can garnish it as beautifully as a whole one. Information on buying and baking, page 53.

SANTA'S ELVES

are sprightly additions to the Christmas scene and make gay little decorations for your gift packages. Each little elf starts off with a body of pipe cleaners and a plastic foam ball head. The red and green felt clothes, boots, and gloves are cut from the patterns below. Sew the clothes and dress the figures. Pull a small piece of cotton and glue it in place for a beard. Cut out and glue tiny black triangle eyes and a red felt nose. Boots and gloves (double thickness) are glued to the pipe cleaners. Of course, no true Santa's helper would be happy without work to do. So we have supplied ours with a string of stars (gold paper gummed stars glued to gold cord), miniature bells on a red ribbon, a tiny gift-wrapped package, and elf-sized Christmas balls for the tree!

BUYING HAM

There are two kinds of ham generally available in stores. You'll find them labeled as FULLY-COOKED, or as COOK-BEFORE-EATING ham.

Fully-Cooked hams may be served cold without any further cooking, or, if you prefer, may be reheated following the chart below. Canned hams belong in this group, as they are fully cooked. They too may be served cold or reheated according to preference.

Cook-Before-Eating hams will need some cooking before being served. Directions are included in the chart for baking.

You may also find the so-called "Country Style" ham, although it is not readily available in all localities. These are heavily cured hams which usually require soaking and simmering in water before baking.

Hams may be bought in the following styles: bone in; skinless, shankless (only the shank removed and meat skinned and trimmed of excess fat); semi-boneless; boneless; boneless skinless (shaped into rolls); and canned hams, which are also boneless and skinless.

STORING HAM

All hams should be refrigerated and are best when used promptly. Freezing is not recommended for ham, as it tends to reduce its flavor. Canned hams three pounds or larger should be refrigerated but not frozen. Canned hams less than three pounds should be stored according to label directions.

SCORING HAM

Cut away any rind on ham. With sharp knife make diagonal cuts across entire fat surface of ham approximately $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch deep and 1 inch apart. Repeat at an angle if squares or diamonds are desired.

COOKING HAM

Place ham, fat side up, on a rack in shallow baking pan. Do not add water or cover. Insert meat thermometer into thickest part of meat.

He wandered into the kitchen and opened the refrigerator.

"Just where I expected to find you," said Mrs. Welk, coming in and taking him by surprise.

"Oh, there you are," laughed Welk. "This is Fern," he said, slipping his arm around her and giving her a quick hug. "Fern can hear the refrigerator door from the other side of the house."

As we sat in the breakfast room and Welk talked, Fern quickly produced a farm-style breakfast of bacon and eggs, hot rolls, and coffee—for this was a morning visit.

"We're plain folks," smiled Welk. "Where we come from you never let your guests go hungry."

Lawrence Welk was born in a sod farmhouse near Strasburg 57 years ago, the next to the youngest of four boys in a family of eight children. He learned how to finger an ancient accordion his parents brought with them when they immigrated to North Dakota from Alsace-Lorraine.

"When the chores were done, music was our only recreation. My father would play the accordion, my brother John would play the violin, and I'd play chords on our old-fashioned pump organ. This was the best part of the day."

By trapping small game and selling the pelts, Lawrence saved enough to buy a $15 mail-order accordion. At 13, he was entertaining at school and church socials and local dances. He wore out the cheap accordion and talked his father into buying him a $400 instrument by promising to stay on the farm until he was 21 and turn over all the money he earned from playing at weddings and dances. He repaid more than twice the price of the accordion and left Strasburg to begin his career, playing one-night stands with the "Peerless Entertainers" and "The Biggest Little Band in America." In 25 years of traveling he evolved the bouncy, danceable style that has made him famous.

In the early days when we were on the road all the time with the band, staying in a different town every night, Fern and I would envy people who were settled in a nice home on a quiet street. We used to drive through neighborhoods sizing up the town and wondering if it would be a good place to settle down some day. I don't care where it is, there's nothing like a town and a home to call your own."

"I love my home and I like to cook," said Fern. "This has been my life all these years." A recent improvement had necessitated new counter tops in the kitchen and she is delighted with the sunny yellow surfaces that surround her.

"After we were in California for a while," said Welk, "I told Fern I could afford to build her a new house with a big kitchen, but she said she was happy where we are."

"Well, I am," said Fern with conviction. "What more could I ask for in a home?"

"Let me show you the rest of the house," said Welk, striding through the dining room, which is gold and white and furnished with traditional mahogany.

Halfway across the living room he paused, clasped his hands in front of him as he does on television before introducing a new number, and gravely announced, "This is our living room. It is rather formal. We don't use it as much as our family room."

The living room, separated from the family room by a provincial fireplace and shutter doors, is decorated in a delicate shade of green called "seaweed." At first glance this appears white, but a subtle touch of green gives it character. Carpeting and traditional upholstered pieces in tones of green blend smoothly.

"A family room is a wonderful idea," he said, entering it. "All the time Shirley and Donna were in school they brought their friends here and served refreshments after a dance or a show. We didn't have to urge them to do that, either, because they knew they'd have a better time here than anywhere else."

Welk's home has a 100-foot frontage on Tiger Tail Road (the children urged him to buy it, if only to live on a street with that name); the lot extends to the next block.

"There's room for another house here," said Welk, leaning on the railing that surrounds the lanai and pointing out the property below.

"I thought it would be good to have if the children wanted to build a house after they were married."

Shirley is the wife of Dr. Robert Frederick of Los Angeles, and the Fredericks are now planning the home they'll build within hailing distance of the Welk lanai.

"We'll be able to see our grandchildren down there when they're playing in the back yard."

Welk's younger daughter, Donna, recently married Jim Mack, a medical student at St. Louis University. Donna is an elementary-school teacher.

"Our boy Larry is a senior at Loyola University, Los Angeles, and he's majoring in industrial relations," said Welk. "I'm proud of him. He has paid all of his college expenses by working during the summer. Last summer he earned $75 a week by traveling around the country doing promotional work for a recording company and they told me he did a fine job."

"No musicians in the family?"

"No. I always said Larry doesn't have an ear for music—but sometimes I wonder. After all, he discovered the Lennon Sisters. Larry asked Diane if he could take her to a high-school dance, but she turned him down because she and her sisters had promised to sing at a charity affair. He said he'd wait and hear them and then take her."

"When he came home and told me how good they were and that I ought to have them on the show, I told Fern that Larry was probably taken with the pretty girls. But a few weeks later he brought them to the house and made me listen. You know the rest. Diane, Cathy, Peggy, and Janet have been on our ABC-TV show ever since."

Welk lapsed into silence, then said hesitantly, "There's something I can tell you that would be good for a home magazine. I think a happy home life is important. I've seen so many show-business marriages break up because things weren't right at home."

"What does make things really right at home?"

"The thing you need in a home is a heart, and if the heart is right the home will be right. The heart of the home is the wife and mother. Fern is a wonderful mother and she has made a real home for me and for the children during all the years I was on the road."

"I'm completely relaxed from the time I walk in the door until I leave. There is peace and joy and contentment here. I can honestly say that we've gone years and years without a harsh word being spoken in this house. And if we've got kids who are a lot of fun and not a lot of problems, that's because Fern trained them right."

"Lots of times women get discouraged because, as they say, they're just housewives. It's the man's job to get out and support the family. But the mother has to make the home. That's the biggest, most important job in the world. When the kids get older, grow up to be good people, a mother sees what she has accomplished."

"I don't always express myself well," he said earnestly, "but that's what I think." THE END

Such Good Things From the Kitchen!

who live in Colorado Springs, we found just the warmth we were looking for to wish you a Merry Christmas. It is a handsome wood-paneled room that offers gracious sitting-room comfort with top-flight kitchen efficiency. The Churches travel a great deal, so you find this room filled with mementos and treasures collected from far and wide. With a background of mellow fruitwood paneling, it is decorated with old-world antiques and gleaming copper heirlooms, many of which are in daily use.

It is a small kitchen but a very "family" one. At one end, there's a sturdy hearth with a built-in fireplace and barbecue, and a television set. Mr. and Mrs. Church enjoy the warmth of this area whether they are alone, sitting on the comfortable chairs at the pink marble-topped table, or whether they are surrounded by their children and grandchildren.

The kitchen is efficiency itself—beautifully designed to allow the Churches to indulge in their favorite pastime of cooking. Basically U-shaped, it has a refrigerator, freezer, dishwasher, and sink, all within easy reach, and a peninsula that serves both as a cooking top and serving area. The sturdy steel cabinets are a pretty shell pink, with custom-designed provincial wood doors in a soft fruitwood finish. The multicolored leaded glass windows cast interesting shadows from outdoors and add character and charm to the inside.

The Churches are currently remodeling and decorating the pantry-utility room between the kitchen and dining room. During their Kitchen is basically U-shaped, the plan formed by a peninsula that divides the room. The sink is in the center with the cooking area and refrigerator on either side. It is a compact, turn-around kitchen. The peninsula serves a dual purpose, a place for the cooking top and a counter for food service. Copper hood doubles as a saucepan rack.

Wall opposite U-shaped area houses a second sink, near refrigerator and freezer. Handy for salad making, flower arranging, and other such jobs. Dishwasher to right of sink serves as clean-up area. Dutch door leads to the terrace, which is right next to the kitchen for handy indoor-outdoor cooking and eating. Even the work areas in this kitchen carry a decorative note with old-fashioned cooky board, copper molds, and apothecary jars.

We gather together... and in the very gathering, there is renewal and strength. There is remembering—and rejoicing. There is laughter, there is love. There is joy—and there is peace. The festive holiday dinner has been part of our American heritage for more than three centuries. And we growers who raise cranberries for Ocean Spray are immensely proud of having been a part of the American family feast for most of those years. To add zest, color and extra flavor to your holiday dinners, be sure to serve plenty of Ocean Spray Cranberries... thick, juicy slices of tangy jellied cranberry sauce; big “help-yourself-to-more” bowls of juicy, whole-cranberry sauce! It's a great tradition! Happy holidays to you—and those you hold dear. And may our land continue to be blessed—and to be strengthened—through its families—your family.

travels they collected menus, wine lists, maps, and snapshots. They plan to cover the pantry wall with these mementos, applying them with a heavy wallpaper paste, then lacquering for a permanent finish. A wonderful idea for anyone, to keep memories of happy vacations alive!

As you can see, this is a personality kitchen, one that is designed to reflect the tastes and interests of the Churches. Of course, any kitchen can bear the stamp of your own personality if you put the you in it. It's not necessary to own expensive antiques or paintings—use beautiful reproductions instead! Collect something you especially like—pottery or glassware—and let it set the color scheme for the kitchen. Decorate with your prettiest pots, utensils, molds, and trays. Frame pretty dish towels—they come in beautiful designs—and every shade you can think of. Whether you spend a maximum or minimum of money, you can add a special note to your kitchen. Adapt any one of these ideas from the Churches' kitchen or think up new ideas of your own. It can be lots of fun. Merry Christmas!

Kitchen floor plan provides roomy, traffic-free working areas. Food service flows easily to family area and dining room.

Circle snowflake. Make 1 piece of A, 2 of B, 1 of C, and 6 of D. Cut slots in all. Pierce thread hole in one piece of D. Insert two pieces of B into center slot of A (1st sketch). Space points equally. Curl C and insert (2nd sketch). Curl and insert D pieces on each of six points (3rd sketch).

Snowflake. Make 1 piece of A, 2 of B, 3 of C, 3 of D, 6 of E. Pierce hole in one of C pieces. Insert two pieces of B into A (1st sketch). Insert C pieces (2nd sketch). Insert D pieces with E pieces on each point. For variety, cut out pieces in two different colors.

Christmas star. Make two pieces of A. On one, cut red slot and hole for thread. On other, cut red and black slots. Join the two pieces. Make two pieces of B; cut slots. Interlock to complete star.

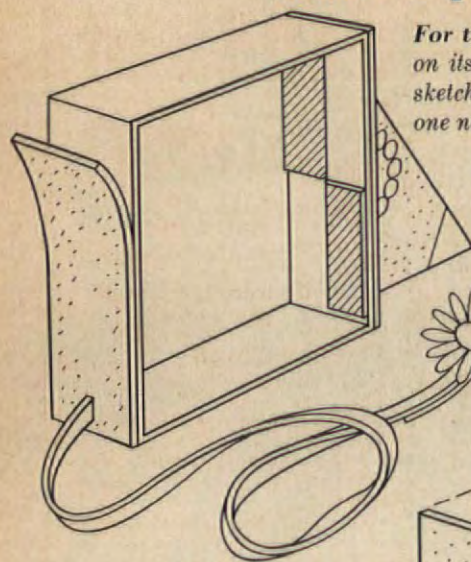

PAPERWORK HOW-TO'S

Paper ornaments can be made of lightweight Bristol board (available at art stores), lightweight cardboard, or colored paper. Do not cut pieces from magazine. Trace on thin paper and then transfer pattern to cardboard or paper. Width of slots depends on thickness of paper. Heavy lines indicate where double thickness of paper will be inserted. In making circular pieces, put curl in paper before interlocking. Be sure ends of paper are on inside of circle.

To make Santas on pages 26 and 27: For one, use a plain white paper cup. Simply cut slots for whiskers and paint or crayon the face. The other is cut from cardboard (see sketch), rolled and fastened with cellophane tape. Trim to your fancy.

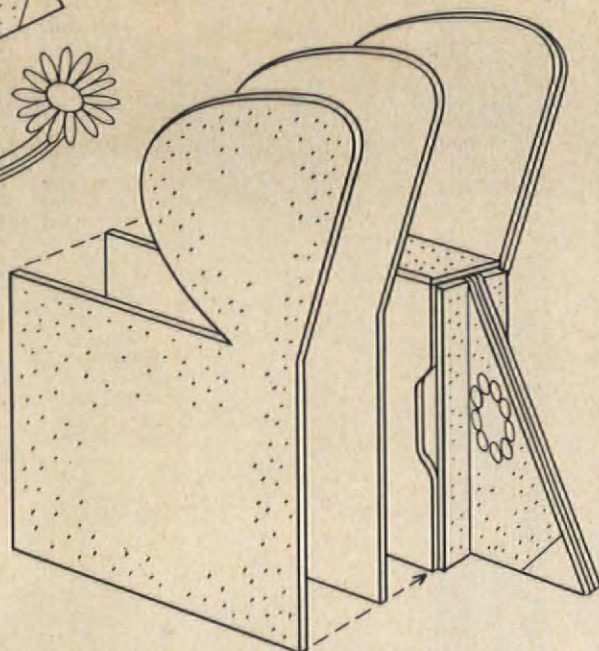

Make a pink housemouse

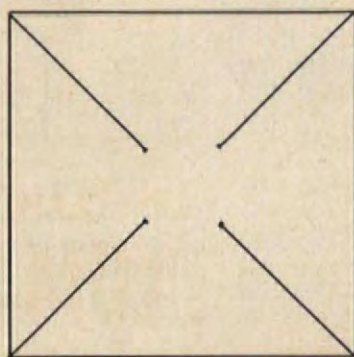

For the frame, turn a shallow square box on its side. Make a triangle of cardboard (see sketch) to simulate mouse's head. Cut a slit down one narrow side; insert triangle. Cut inserted end of triangle on inside of box (see shaded area in drawing); fold ends and glue to inside of box. Glue felt to head.

Cover narrow sides of box with felt; add tail. Cut two pieces of cardboard to cover wide side of box and ear all in one. Cut felt pieces to match, then glue felt to cardboard, cardboard to box. Trim insides of ears with gold paper; add seals, sequins, tape (for nose), and daisy.

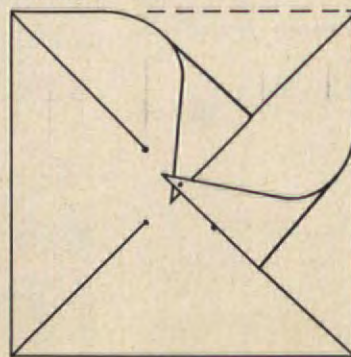

DESIGNS FOR PINWHEEL, TOPIARY TREE, FOLDED BAG; EAST HOUSE ENTERPRISES, INC.

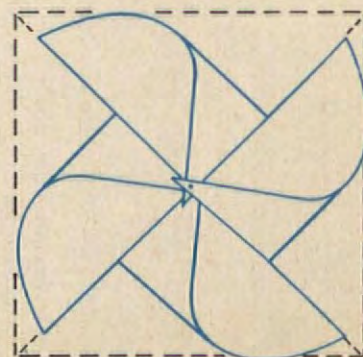

Pinwheels are simple to make

Paste together two sheets of coated paper in two different colors. Cut a 5½-inch square. Fold square from corner to corner; cut to within 1 inch of center.

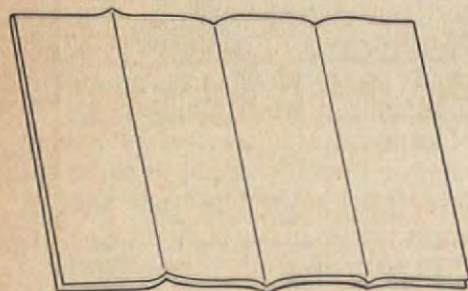

Bring points to the center, overlapping slightly. Hold in place with cellophane tape. Pin through four tips as shown; add seal for center decoration.

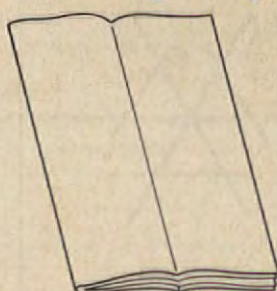

Round off points as in the diagram. For handle, roll a length of brown wrapping paper; cement the edge. Paste handle to package; pin on the pinwheel.

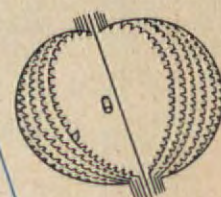

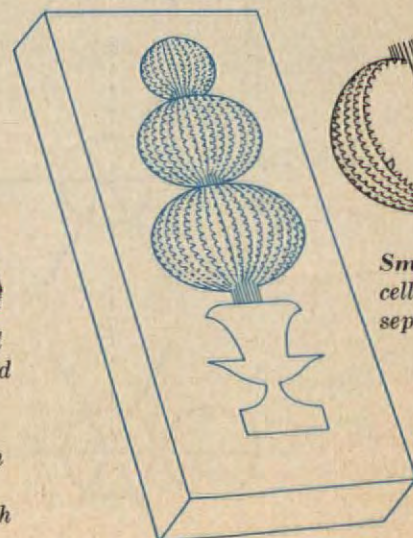

Here's how to cut a topiary tree

For each color, take a half sheet of tissue paper (15x20"). Fold in half, then in quarters and eighths, lengthwise, as shown above.

Stack tissue in color sequence, placing quarter-folded sheets on top of each other as in a tall narrow book. Fold over into eighths and hold "binding" with paper clips. Make a pattern of graduated hemispheres, as shown; clip pattern to tissues and cut. Remove pattern; reopen and staple along center fold. Cut jagged edge, or use pinking shears. Attach bottom tissue to package with rubber cement. Paste on urn design.

Small rolls of cellophane tape separate sheets.

Make Your Presents the Prettiest Packages Ever!

who loves to knit are attached to the package by means of double-coated tape.

The PINK MOUSE with a long felt tail is a felt-covered box (see instructions at left). The TRADITIONAL TREE is made by draping an artificial garland on a white felt backing, fixing it with clear glue. The tree is spiced with ornaments, then the whole panel is pinned to the box so it can be used later as a wall decoration. The KING-SIZE KEY bottle opener will make a hit with Dad on a box of ties.

Follow the instructions given below to make the coated-paper PINWHEEL (with gold seal center), and also the TOPIARY TREE, which "grows" from tissue in three shades of green.

MATCHBOXES taped on gold paper make an appropriate wrap for a gift pipe rack. A CIGAR BOX covered with pressure-sensitive paper and colored coated paper, with a legal seal on the binding, is a handsome letter box.

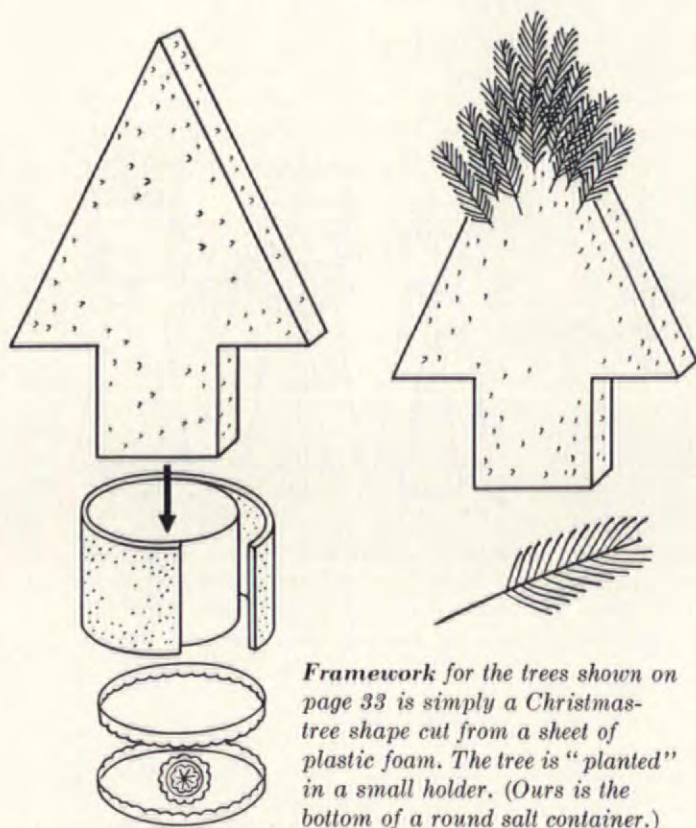

The FOLDED BAG with medallion fastener and ribbon flourish resembles a grocery bag, but contains two theater tickets. The STYLIZED SANTA is cut from craft paper, with a triangle as the basis for the design.

*Santa Claus
with pack
of toys,

The first step is to have our Santa photostated. To do this check the classified telephone directory under "photo prints." Specify the size you want (and number of copies); the cost should be reasonable. If you're artistic, copy him yourself on a dull-finish paper with black pencil or crayon. Or adapt the pack idea, using a Santa from a Christmas card. Then paste him on a box; "fill" his pack with toys from the 5 & 10.

Little mantel trees

Framework for the trees shown on page 33 is simply a Christmas-tree shape cut from a sheet of plastic foam. The tree is "planted" in a small holder. (Ours is the bottom of a round salt container.)

Thrust bits of evergreen twigs about 3" long into foam (with the aid of an ice pick). Be sure they extend outside the frame and that the "tree" is very full, completely hiding foam. Trim to shape if necessary. If for a mantel, just do one side. Decorate with tiny ornaments. Cover base with red felt and gold trim, or use wrapping paper.

An excellent plan for the small lot — tailored to fit an active family's needs —

Everyone's at home with this plan

Three-winged Blueprint House No. 66 offers living and recreational areas for both youngsters and grownups — indoors as well as out!

Blueprint order form on page 75

Architects: Bassetti and Morse, A. I. A. Builder: J. R. Wilkin Photographer: Julius Shulman

Here's a house where everybody in the family enjoys his freedom. No need for the children to get under the feet of parents. And vice versa! It's all accomplished, compactly and charmingly, on a relatively small (72x110') lot.

The secret's in the ingenious, three-wing floor plan (two living wings plus a carport) which zones both indoors and outdoors into distinct adult and children areas.

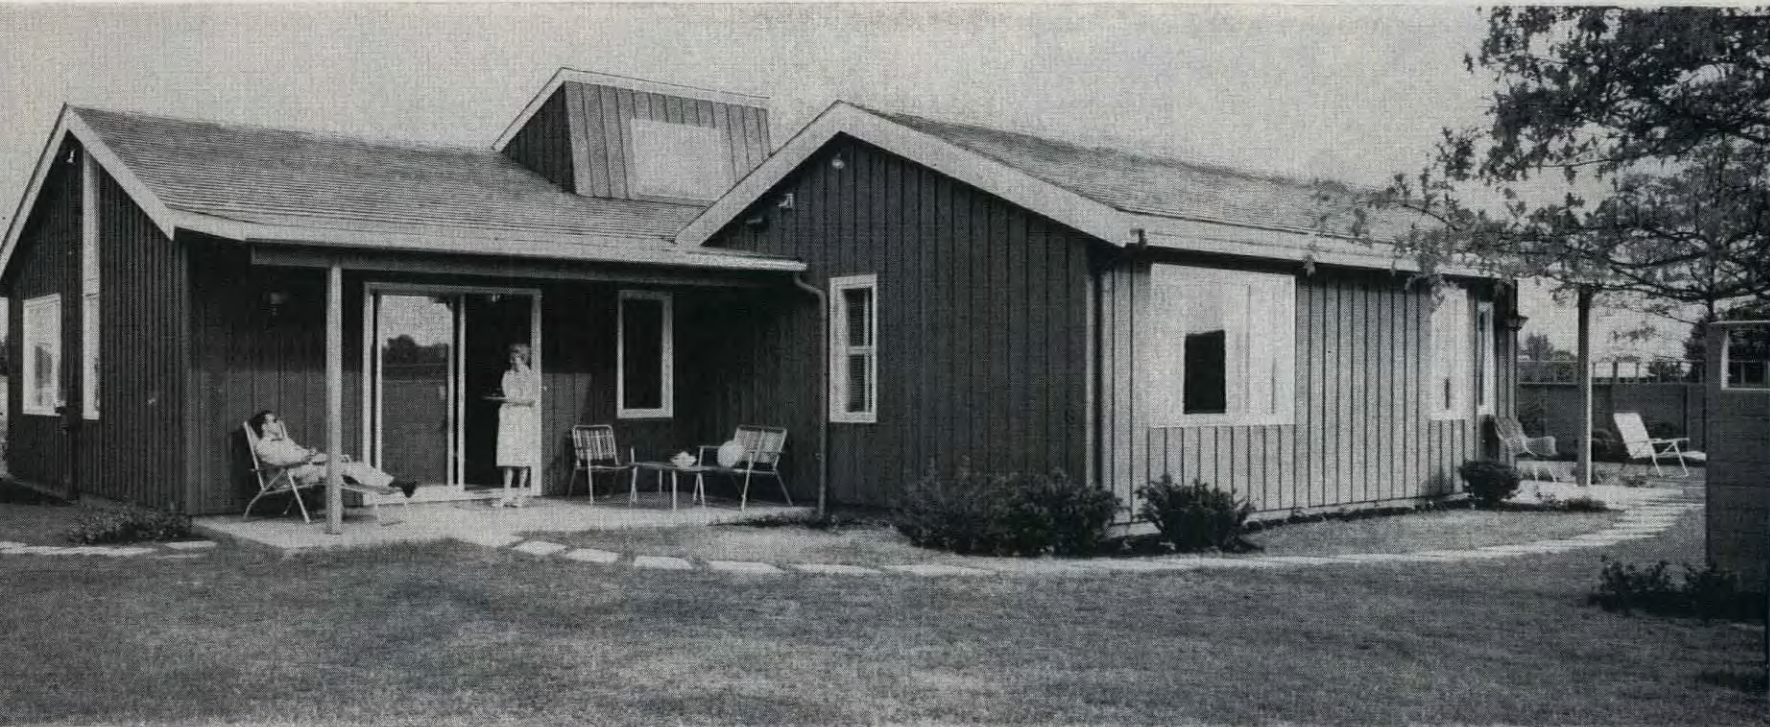

The children's bailiwick consists of two bedrooms (with a bath between), and a family room that opens onto a large porch. A great boon, we might add, when the family is entertaining in the parlor. But what makes the children's area so extra special is the crow's nest—an enchanting play area just a short flight of steps up over the laundry. No child could resist it, and it could serve in a pinch as an extra bedroom.

The adult area has a 15½x15½' parlor with its own covered porch, and a master bedroom with bath.

All happy under one roof, but never under one another's feet — that's the beauty of this Blueprint House

RELAXING IN THE SUN

Outdoor living is stressed as much as indoor comfort. Pictured above are two of the three outdoor areas—the large porch off the family room (left), another off the parlor (right). Note the crow's nest!

Sharing equal importance with the adult-children zoning is the central living area, made up of the kitchen, laundry, and dining room. Here's one more large patio! This area of the house can be reached easily from the other zones via the center hall. A conveniently located pass-through allows food to be served from the kitchen to the family room—an advantage for the busy housewife whose family does a lot of entertaining.

Another unusual feature is the inside barbecue. Here, too, the cook's burden is eased by having the unit face the dining room.

Some other top features: laundry with an automatic washer, dryer, tub, and cabinets.

Storage space: more than ample closets are supplemented by a large storage area in a two-car carport, and a large tool shed outside.

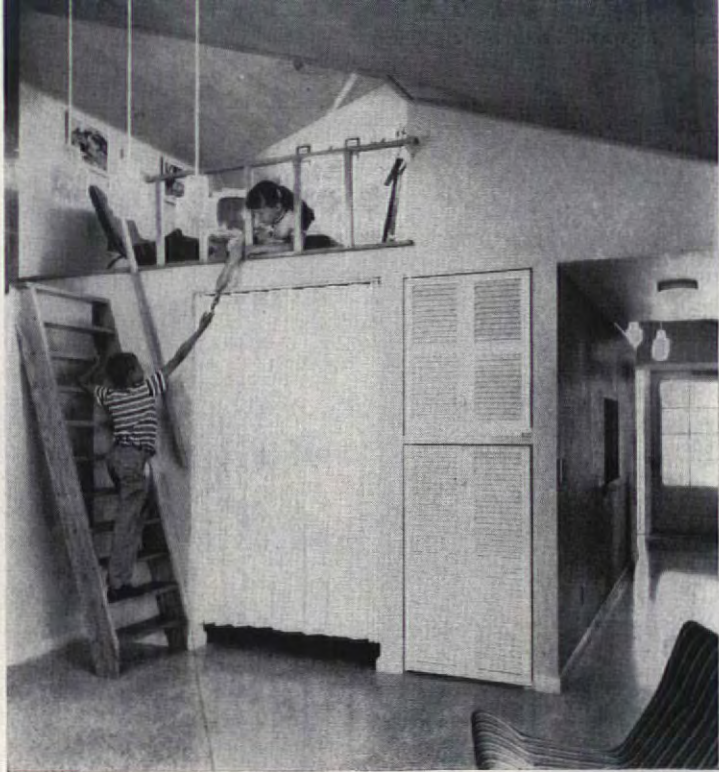

Since this Canton, Ohio, house is all electric, including the heat, it does not require a chimney.

Shopping Information, page 75

MODERN UP-TO-THE-MINUTE KITCHEN

Built-in appliances in the L-shaped kitchen are conveniently placed. An automatic appliance center allows as many as four portable appliances to be used at one time. The clean-up area, with its under-the-counter dishwasher, is located between the surface cooking top and the refrigerator.

SITTING ON TOP OF THE WORLD

Children's delight is the crow's nest opening onto the family room and built above the laundry (behind the accordion-style doors). Lowered doors conceal the television set and storage space. Note the pass-through in the hall which eases the job of serving food in the family room or parlor.

YOU SHALL HAVE MUSIC

Stereophonic radio-phonograph combination lines one wall in the parlor. L-shaped area at left, with built-in desk and work table, leads to master bedroom. If needed, this wing could be turned into a suite for grandparents.

MIRROR MAGIC

Highlights of the master bath: walls of laminated plastic with wood-grain finish, a wall-length mirror, sliding doors of perforated hardboard under the lavatory.

SMART COOKING IDEA

Electric barbecue unit is a clever way to divide the dining room and kitchen. Through the window you can see the sheltered outdoor living-dining area. Note how additional storage space is provided under the built-in seat.

"It was sound but oh so dated!"

Out here in California, we refer to the Spanish-style stucco houses that thrived in the twenties as 'dingbats,'" says Charles Pollock, A.I.D., of Los Angeles. "Mine was structurally sound and had a workable floor plan. But, besides being dated, it lacked privacy on its 40x90-foot lot and there was no outdoor living area. The interior was drab and broken up into small rooms."

Mr. Pollock changed all this by building a grooved plywood facade (called Texture 1-11) across the front. This converted the front porch into an entrance hall and formed two small gardens (continued)

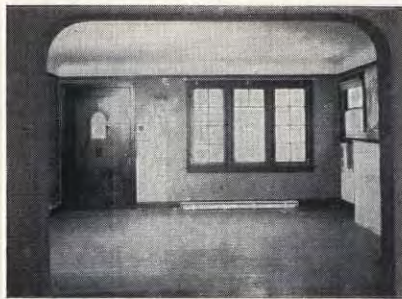

Before: Tiny front porch was useless.

After: new facade conceals bad architectural details, allows for new foyer and patio gardens.

Sliding glass doors give open, airy feeling in back bedroom (see floor plan on page 74). Handsome sundeck has striped canvas awning and draperies.

Before: dingy living-and-dining room.

After: spacious living room with arch partition removed. Glass doors to small garden have simple sheer draperies. Comfortable sofa takes place of old false fireplace.

Dining area of living room has folding screen instead of draperies.

New double door makes dignified entrance foyer from former front porch. Right wall in foyer has window opening to garden off living room.

Dining area by the window in kitchen was made possible when partition was removed; range and sink are on opposite wall.

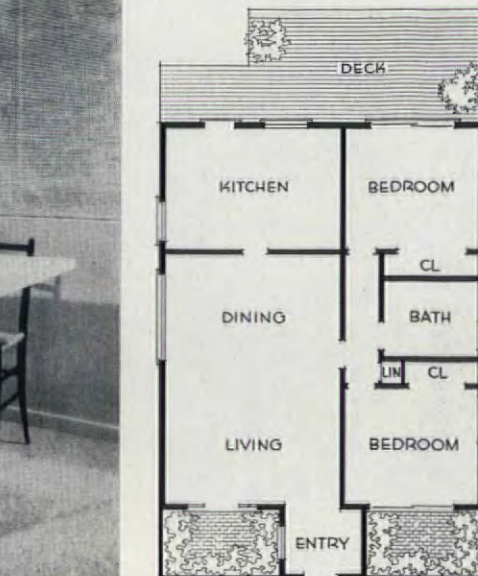

Dated bathroom (above) had old-fashioned lavatory, exposed plumbing, and small medicine cabinet. New built-in counter and basin (right) provides lots of storage. Molding strip was removed along with medicine cabinet. Handsome striped wallpaper covers wall except for tile behind tub. Shield-shaped mirror and simple light are decorative touches.

on either side with glass doors opening into the living room and front bedroom. These brick-floored patios are open to the sky and are filled with potted plants. Floodlights provide a garden view at night.

The living room was formerly separated from the dining room by an arched partition. This was removed to make one large living-dining room. A useless false fireplace was also taken out and the small windows sealed up. A big window was added in the dining area along the same wall.

The small windows in the rear bedroom were also removed. In their place, sliding glass doors now open onto a sundeck that extends across the rear of the house. The deck can also be reached from the kitchen.

Basic plan was simplified by removing unnecessary partitions. Front facade added foyer and two small gardens; sundeck was added to rear.

In the kitchen, a partition was knocked out, making room for a pleasant dining area at the window. Old-fashioned equipment was replaced with a new range and sink and placed along the opposite wall.

The bathroom between the front and rear bedrooms was brought up to date with a new lavatory counter with plenty of storage space. New draperies, wallpaper, and flooring were added and give a fresh new look.

Although the structural changes were few, this remodeling proves that a dingbat can be transformed into a humdinger! THE END

ALBUM OF READERS' HOMES

We would like to share with you some of the snapshots that come to us in the daily mail. We are as proud of these homes as the owners are!

Mrs. August Windau, Carey, Ohio

“When the day came that we were to build our first home, bungalows were the style. Ours is a house filled with treasures collected over the years, and furniture my husband has made. The Christmas lamp post is his work, too.”

“We recently bought this 150-year-old farmhouse in Maryland. It was in excellent condition in spite of its age, though it did, of course, need some remodeling—especially the kitchen. We love our home and would like to share it with other readers.”

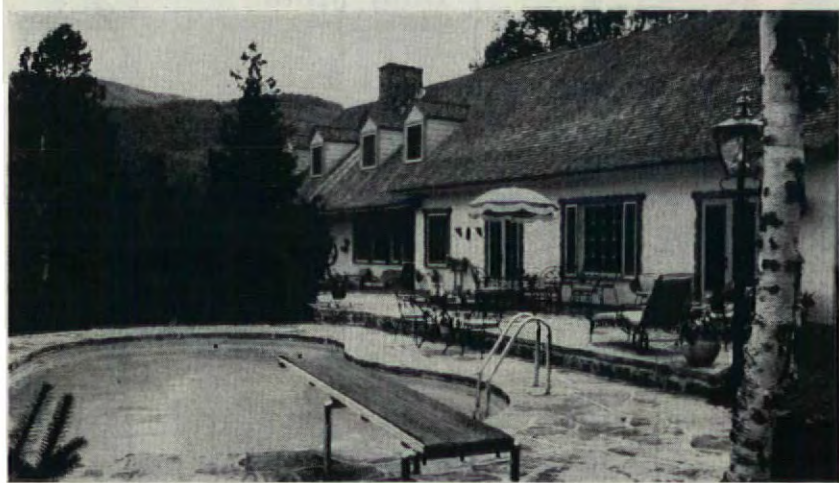

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Cunningham, Davidsonville, Maryland

Mr. Douglas E. Imbach, Martinsburg, West Virginia

“My family and I built this five-room brick cottage on a cliff overlooking the Potomac River. A path leads down to the dock for swimming, boating, and water skiing. Do you wonder we spend every available minute at our ‘River Retreat’?”

“Living here in the Province of Quebec, I have been especially interested in creating a truly French Provincial atmosphere in my home, ‘Bondurant.’ Articles in The American Home on French Provincial furniture have been a source of inspiration in the decorating. From this terrace, there’s a spectacular view of the Laurentian Mountains.”

Mary R. J. Ryan, Mont Tremblant, Quebec

“We began our building project with the purchase of a second-hand jeep and scoop, intending to excavate the basement ourselves. Living in New England, we should have known better—we’ve since named the place ‘Fieldstone’! Nine years later, here’s our lovely Y-shaped ranch house with stuccoed, half-timbered exterior.”

Mrs. Richard Thayer, Marlborough, Massachusetts
