A dramatic, new idea in vinyl floors: Montina Corlon, by Armstrong

Montina Corlon is unique. It's made of stone-like chips of vinyl set in a deep translucent vinyl base.

Each chip is veined with rich, natural colors.

Montina Corlon has unusual texture. It looks pebbly, feels nubbly. It makes an almost seamless floor (comes in long, wide rolls).

It can be used anywhere in the home—even in most downstairs playrooms, directly over concrete.

Send for a free sample of Montina and a folder of its colors.*

DEAR READER:

If you happen to visit the New York World's Fair this season, and a good many millions of people will be doing so, you'll not only see the result of some pretty good planning on the spot but also get a peek into the Bright New Era that our planners have in mind.

Far be it for us to drag our feet, but before we kick up our heels and while the Bright New Era is still in the scale-model stage, let us remind our planners that planning is for people—and that we, the people, are becoming quite weary of planning that destroys.

We are becoming weary of planning that topples our trees, ravishes our countryside, ruins our natural surroundings, and utilizes our streams and rivers as convenient drainage ditches. We are weary of planning that in the name of renewal—urban or otherwise—destroys entire neighborhoods, uproots families, and demolishes buildings of tradition and beauty.

We are weary of ribbons of highway, all entrance and no exit, that seem planned simply to create more traffic problems. And while we are at it, we might say we're weary of the place-for-everything-and-everything-in-its-place type of planning too. We view with a considerable amount of distaste being told that here is a place to work, this is the place to sleep, this is the place to put your older people, and this is the place to live when you are young.

We are weary of planned centers—be they for shopping, entertainment, or culture—that have been developed to please the planners and not for the convenience of the people.

In short, we are sick and tired of being ignored by the planners. We realize that in today's complex society careful planning is necessary to keep us from tripping over one another. But we want it clearly understood that the planners are there to serve us and that we are human beings with very definite needs and opinions, and not a group of statistics compiled by surveys to be used at the discretion of the planners.

BRING THE SPRINGTIME INDOORS

Spread the beauty of your springtime garden all over the house, advises Dick Schuyt, famous floral arranger from Holland. His designs, shown here, inspired these hints to help you create exciting arrangements of your own.

1. Use the slender leaves of daffodils for accents in a tall arrangement. Loop them for added interest at the base.

2. For a dramatic display, don't be stingy. Heap your largest urn with flowers and branches, keeping symmetry and lively, pleasing colors as a goal. Set urn on floor for best effect.

3. A colorful casserole or ceramic pot can hold a perky kitchen arrangement to dress up a window or counter top.

4. Don't forget the not-so-lowly bushes in your garden. Pussy willow branches and Japanese holly add texture and body to the delicate beauty of tulips.

5. Choose colors carefully. Flowers, container, and accessories should blend for a truly distinctive arrangement.

6. Remember, the simplest design can be the most beautiful. A few blossoms, foliage, and a dash of your imagination can result in a springtime display to give you pleasure for days and days.

Chevy II Nova Station Wagon with 76.2 cu. ft. of cargo space.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU PUT A V8 IN A CHEVY II?

YOU GUESSED IT!

Your pickup is picked up. Hills don't seem half so hilly. And even if you've got every nook and cranny of cargo space filled, still there's no holding you back.

The V8* that you can get in a Chevy II this year has 195 horsepower. One, nine, five.

Now, that's a lot of engine. But for its size, in case you're not aware, the Chevy II is a considerable amount of car.

The suspension's strong. The double-acting shock absorbers muffle road shocks. The unitized Body by Fisher is as solid as an anvil. The V8 adds oomph.

However, if in your travels you find you don't need that much engine, you can pick a Chevy II with a Hi-Thrift 120-hp six, a 155-hp six* or, in some models, even a Super-Thrift 90-hp four-cylinder engine.

Perhaps that's the nicest thing of all about buying a Chevy II. It's about the only car made that you can have equipped all out for fun, or as economical as all get out. . . . Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit, Michigan.

STAN DELAPLANE

We have been scouring our barbecue. It is one of the mystic, pagan rites of spring in these parts. When we move from the nice warm kitchen to the chill outdoor patio.

I am an outdoor barbecue man of long standing—you HAVE to stand while you are barbecuing and, believe me, it gets you in the legs.

However, in our outdoor set we must cook outside lest we be cut off at the country club. And the banker stiff us for the loan.

So our children can hold up their little heads among the other moppets. The cruelest thing a child can say to another these days is: "Yah! Yah! His mother cooks in the KITCHEN!"

We cook outside because it is a way of life. (It is also a good way to die. Early. But status runs on jet engines these speedy days.)

Immediately after we moved to Suburbia it was pretty obvious we needed one of these cookout rigs.

We had a $500 stove. Timers and all that. You could put a barbecue in that elegant stove and go away and leave it for hours. When you came home—roast beef.

The point of the barbecue is what it does to your social standing. My neighbor Scofflaw has BUILT a barbecue. It is made of brick. He stokes it with imported Mexican charcoal—"gives something extra to the flavor," says Scofflaw, the snob. "They make it outa mesquite or something."

His barbecue is hooked by a long cord to the kitchen plug. His spit turneth over by electricity.

He has secret sauces he puts on the meat with a paintbrush.

He has a long spatula and special tongs for turning the charcoal. He has a chef's apron with a pocket labeled "Crying Towel." He has a chef's hat with funny sayings.

When Scofflaw cooks, the meat sputters angrily, spattering grease—mainly on Scofflaw and the Scofflaw children. Good!

The meat's cooking on the outside. But he is cooking on the inside.

It is my social problem to cut Scofflaw off at the pots and pans.

After scouring the barbecue, I went down and bought a dollar's worth of gravel. Gravel is used for a bed for the charcoal. Makes it burn better—though, if you ask me, charcoal is the most fire-resistant stuff there is. I have seen four-alarm warehouse fires started with less trouble than I have getting charcoal going.

Many people don't know where to get gravel. But I do—having once owned a budgie. He was a talking budgie. But he never talked, the sullen bird.

Anyway, from having a budgie, I know you can buy gravel in a bird-seed store. I say: "Give me a dollar's worth of gravel for the budgie."

I take it home, distribute it over the bottom of the barbecue.

Now, how do you start your cookout fire? Many a social climber has slipped on this rung of the ladder.

I put some Sunday newspapers in the pan. On top of the gravel.

Then I put a few twigs on top. I add the charcoal briquets. Then I light it.

The Sunday papers make a blaze that would warm your heart—it warms my shirt at 20 paces. When it dies down, the twigs are flickering. Like a cigarette lighter running out of gas. I pick up one of the briquets. It's still black. Cold as an overdue mortgage payment.

At this point, you get out a can of fire starter. This explosive fluid is sold right where they sell the charcoal. I squirt a quart of the stuff on the charcoal. I hate to do this because it is like cheating a little bit. In my Boy Scout book they quoted a wise old Indian:

"Paleface build heap big fire, no can get close. Injun build little fire. Get close. Heap warm. Ugh!"

I spray on the fire starter. Stand back and throw a match at it. Ugh! What a heap big fire! I tell you it nearly takes the eyebrows off me. A little mushroom cloud rises over the barbecue. And the kids yell:

"Daddy blew himself up!"

Once the charcoal is going and the meat is on, you must be careful not to burn it. That is, the meat should look like a black Gladstone bag on the outside. Inside it is deliciously pink.

However, the grease from the steak does not know this. It burns gloriously, spattering fiery grease in every direction, giving the barbecue cook third-degree burns and sending a greasy ash into the air. (It drifts down and floats on the martinis.)

To stop this—well, to slow it down, then—you shoot the blaze with a water pistol. The cook is rodded up like a Western TV gunman. We whip out the old water pistol and—squirt!

This solves the social order in our neighborhood. The Scofflaws are put down a charcoal peg.

The neighbors wave. The banker smiles his golden smile.

The kids—God's chillun—got status.

And into the blue heaven rises the holy smoke.

THE END

"How we retired in 15 years with $300 a month"

"Here we are, living in Southern California. We've a little house just a few minutes' walk from the beach, with flowers and sunshine all year. For, you see, I've retired. We're getting a check for $300 a month that will keep us financially independent as long as we live.

"But if it weren't for that $300, we'd still be living in Forest Hills, and I'd still be plugging away at the same old job. Strangely, it's all thanks to something that happened, quite accidentally, in 1948. It was August 17, to be exact. I remember the date because it was my fortieth birthday.

"To celebrate, Peg and I were going out to the movies. While she went upstairs to dress, I picked up a magazine and leafed through it idly. Then somehow my eyes rested on an ad. It said, 'You don't have to be rich to retire.' Probably the reason I read it through was that just that evening Peg and I had been saying how hard it was for us to put anything aside for our future.

"Well, we'd certainly never be rich. We spent money as fast as it came in.

And here I was forty already. Over half my working years were gone. Someday I might not be able to go on working so hard. What then?

"Now this ad sounded as if it might have the answer. It told of a way that a man of 40—with no big bank account, but just fifteen or twenty good earning years ahead—could get an income of $300 a month, an income that would be guaranteed for life. It was called the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan.

"The ad offered more information. No harm in looking into it, I said to myself. When Peg came down, I was tearing a corner off the page. First coupon in my life I ever clipped. I mailed it on our way to the movies.

"Fifteen years slide by mighty fast. They were busy, unpredictable years. I couldn't see into the future. But my Phoenix Mutual Plan was one thing I never had to worry about! 1963 came... I received my first Phoenix Mutual check—and retired.

"We sold the house and drove west. We're living a new kind of life. Best of all, we've security a rich family might envy. Our $300 a month will keep coming as long as we live."

ALL THAT MULCH AND NO PETUNIAS

I'm sure most people with brown thumbs have enough sense, or pride, to come in out of the rosebushes. Instead of crying in their Crimson Glories they take up china painting or skin diving. But not me. No matter how hard Mother Nature laughs in my face, I simply can't throw in the trowel.

I don't understand it. I'd like to be an opera singer, too—but I don't get up and make a fool of myself at the Met season after season. Why do I make a fool of myself in the garden spring after spring?

Take the time I scooped out 100 little tulip holes, one by one and exactly six inches deep (I measured them) for 100 tulip bulbs. I could scarcely wait for spring and the breath-taking explosion of scarlet blooms it would bring. I thought tulip time would never come. It didn't. Presumably I buried them upside down.

Take my rock garden. You guessed it—all rock and no garden, before you could say sweet alyssum.

Of course, in the beginning I insisted upon starting from seed. It still doesn't seem quite Burbank to me to buy one's blossoms already halfway into their teens. Seeds are so much cheaper. But even good old zinnias (anyone can grow zinnias from seed) falter under my brown thumb. My double giant hybrids come up looking like dwarf marigolds. My marigolds you have to lie down on the ground to see. Not a one of them is worth the searing agonies I suffered trying to decide which baby seedlings to throw to the wolves.

I adore gardening, but don't ask me why. It's probably as heart-wrenching, back-breaking, time-consuming, nerve-racking, and budget-wrecking a recreation as one can choose. It annihilates your fingernails, corrugates your knees, and makes for a very uneven sun tan. I can see some excuse for a green thumb spending her life groveling around in the dirt. But with me, gardening is all work and no pay-off.

I will say I work a good garden. I'm the hardest-working gardener in the world. If there's a new bed to be dug, I can't wait for male assistance. I have at it with pitchfork and spade like a refugee from a chain gang. I stab it and pulverize it and sift it and rake it till even the princess with the pea could curl up in it and sleep for a week. I lift that bonemeal and tote that peatmoss. I water and spray and thin; I seed and weed and feed. If there's a water shortage, I'm up at daybreak and out till midnight tending my thirsty little babies. I build little awnings to shelter my tender new seedlings. If I thought it would help, I'd sit there holding up morning glories until their tendrils got a good grip. As a pansy picker and petunia pincher, I'm faithful as Penelope and patient as Griselda.

And I talk a good garden. Just like real green-thumb gardeners, I'd rather read the lush, heady, juicy prose in a seed catalogue than any best-seller. My iris talk is especially impressive . . . "note the extraordinary substance of the falls, the exquisite casualness of the elegant ruffle, the stardust sheen that warms to sunset glow near the golden bearded haft." My idea of a sparkling conversational gambit at cocktail parties is "How do you winter over your geraniums?"

But in spite of all perversity and adversity, I mulch on. Never for one moment do I doubt that this seed or this bulb or this seedling will come up just like the pretty pictures. Drunkenly, I go on dreaming and clipping and planting.

Someday, I know my green thumb will come in. The truth is, I know gardening is a very serious hobby—in fact, a life's work. It's not for people with children to take care of, beds to make, meals to cook, or bills to pay. It's like toe-dancing—dangerous if you start too young. Maybe someday when Sean and Cindy are married off, house work's just a pushbutton, dinner's just a jar of pills, and life is just a bowl of coupons to clip. . . .

But in the meantime, look, it's spring again! There's manure in the air! And I've got fifty fabulous Cloud Cap iris out there just waiting to burst into a breath-taking symphony of celestial pink—I think.

What you need to know when buying a record changer

Where you may have spent your time in the early thirties is your business; we hung around our favorite sweet-shop watching the juke box change records. This historical note is injected here just to keep the record straight; automated record players have been around for quite a time. And as the Age of Automation clanks, blips, and buzzes along, watch for spectacular forms of self-propelled hi-fi music systems.

There is already a tape cartridge system (about which more later) that'll provide 16 hours of continuous music without being attended. Stack the cartridges in the player at breakfast; you'll have music until bedtime. Who wants to program for late evening while breaking his fast with strong coffee or orange juice? Our primary concern here is with the disc changers and unattended music from after lunch till cocktails.

There was a time when hi-fi purists sneered at automation. A record changer with its linkages and changer drive-mechanisms, said they, couldn't deliver fi as hi as a turntable not so encumbered. They were right. The quality gap between changers and single-play turntables has narrowed with time's passing, however.

People frequently ask us to recommend a complete music system—and we always ask them, "Do you want a changer or single-play turntable?" Ninety per cent of the time they want a changer. What follows are some of the things to consider in buying one.

The word "changer," by the way, is out; "automatic turntable" is in. This semantic shuffle relates, of course, to the close-to-turntable quality attained today by most changers. In appearance, today's models are slick as a whistle. You'll have trouble making a choice. The agony of choosing can be reduced by rating models according to specific operating factors.

First, is the unit easy to operate? Second, is the operation completely noise free? Third, the unit should be capable of easy "reject."

Fourth, the tone arm should be free after it returns to rest. You should be able to pick it up and play any band of a record if you want to.

Fifth, adjustments should be easy to make. Adjustments are necessary for: tone-arm pressure, height of arm as it swings over the record, and another for setting the needle down on the lead-in groove.

Sixth, has the unit provision for adequate shock mounting? The manufacturer should provide some means of insulating the turntable from the many and varied shocks that a home with active children is heir to.

Seventh, can the unit be covered during operation? A cover keeps out dust and grit that increase the wear of your records.

Eighth, is the change cycle smooth and fast?

Ninth, will the unit track and trip at light tracking pressures? Lightweight tracking separates today's more sophisticated designs from older models and many cartridges are designed to track at lower than two grams. Why should you want a changer to track at two grams and less? Well, wear on diamond needle and record groove is practically nonexistent at such light forces.

What about the tape cartridge player that offers 16 hours of continuous play? If you can't conceive of anyone needing that much music at a single session, don't fret, neither can we. But that cartridge player (produced by the Revere-Wollensak division of the 3M Company) has other virtues. Two of the four models will record as well as play back—in stereo too. The tapes thread themselves, rewind themselves, and the cartridges slip around (with no outside help) from player platform to storage stack in an almost spooky fashion. Watching the unit work is almost as entertaining as listening to it.

Recorded material in cartridge form is limited since the system is relatively new. Still, the catalogue holds more than 100 items and is being beefed-up by items from Columbia, Command, Westminster, Kapp, and Reprise. The quality is good—without being quite the equal of discs played on a top-flight and top-priced turntable with a superior pickup.

The thing that will give pause to most people is the price of the tape system and the cartridges to play on it. Recorded tape cartridges cost an average of $7.50 for 48 minutes of music. Blank tape cartridges—for your own recording—cost $4.50. The players range from $399 (for a complete unit with speakers and all electronics included in one package) to $269 (for cartridge handler and some playback electronics). To use the latter, provide your own power amplifiers and speaker systems.

Despite its brilliant solution to the problem of how to program a 16-hour musical marathon, the tape cartridge player seems unlikely to provoke any undo concern to disc and disc-player manufacturers. Not this year, at any rate. But who can say what may happen to tape cartridge prices in the months ahead? And who knows?—we may even be able to program our evening's Khachaturian while sipping our morning coffee. THE END

Now Possible to Shrink and Heal Hemorrhoids Without Surgery

Only Preparation H Contains New Healing Substance That Can Shrink Hemorrhoids Without Surgery And At Same Time Relieve Itching and Pain.

A world-famous research institute has discovered a new substance which now makes it possible to shrink and heal hemorrhoids without surgery. It stops itching and relieves pain in minutes, then speeds up healing of the sore, injured tissues all while actual reduction (shrinking) takes place.

Tests conducted under a doctor's observations proved this so. And most amazing of all, this very striking improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough, sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem." Among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this was accomplished without the use of narcotics, astringents or anesthetics of any kind. The secret is the remarkable new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates regrowth of healthy tissue again. It is offered in ointment or suppository form called Preparation H®.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids. Just ask for Preparation H Ointment or Preparation H Suppositories (easier to use away from home). Any drug counter.

Captain Ahab wouldn't have liked it. Jack London would have scorned it. Hemingway's old man of the sea would have uttered profanity. But women, those born invaders of the cocktail lounge, the golf course, and the bowling alley, have now moved into man's last lonely refuge—the sea!

There was a time when any old salt who made the China run left his wife pacing around on a captain's walk in Salem or Marblehead. It isn't so today. The Loreleis have not only come aboard but, what's worse, they're lugging all their lovely feminine gear right along with them.

Did you know, for example, that you can now buy your motor cruiser in decorator colors? If the blue of the sea is just too, too much blue, you can order your boat in deep Burgundy red, or jet and gold two-tone. Desert tan is a nice dry, offbeat color too—sort of takes the dampness off a day at Laguna.

And if you think things have gone berserk topside, wait till you go below. The boat manufacturers no longer try to woo the skipper of the ship with talk of hull shapes and twin horsepower engines. It's his first mate they're after. The sales brochures hail the "decorator décor for milady afloat." Everything's just like home only more so.

What's more, several of the big boat manufacturers have gone out and secured the professional talents of interior decorators. The idea is not only to have the interiors seaworthy but chic and high style as well. The cabins are color keyed and luxuriously appointed right down to the seating, side panels, and dashboards. Anyone who is anyone on the bounding main wouldn't dream of an ordinary anchor or wheel motif for the draperies. That's gauche and old hat!

You have to have something with more warmth and charm for the good life aboard. It's enough to make Davy Jones turn over in his locker, but you can now have a curved sectional lounge for the pilot house and a fold-down king-sized bed for the cabin. Wall to wall carpeting? Of course! It's no longer the thing to bring a plain old mop to swab down the decks . . . you bring your vacuum cleaner. A stereo system? An absolute must. Who could enjoy "roughing it" on the high seas without the lilting strains of Debussy's "La Mer" to soothe the salty brow?

Now let's step into the head. It's still called the "head" even though it's now a lot closer to a powder room. Twin basins with plastic laminated tops yet. A "johnny" in soft pastel shades of pink, blue, or yellow. And of course there's the stall shower with just gallons and gallons of hot and cold running water.

The biggest invasion of all by the predatory female has taken place in the galley. Galley is a naughty word to a woman because galley reminds her of a slave. And this she is not—be she off Nantucket or Catalina. Her idea of what should be standard equipment aboard is enough to make an appliance salesman's eyes pop. A minimum of three burners on the range to begin with. An oven, of course. A rotisserie—well, she might be able to survive without one—but as long as they're available they really do make things pleasant and convenient when guests are aboard. The refrigerator—and this is what the little woman will pound her fists on the bulkhead for—must be a 10-cubic-foot job. It must have a freezer compartment too. There's absolutely no reason for cleaning and filleting a day's catch when you can buy those little pouches of baked fillet of sole in white wine and mushroom sauce and just pop them into boiling water. Being a sea-going gourmet is easier than you think! And with all those electric outlets at every turn, why not enjoy the coffee maker and all the other small appliances that you indulge in at home?

Then there is that last little item which the brochures say removes the "last obstacle to cruising fun"—the dishwasher. It's the newest status symbol for your status symbol afloat.

What does my wife think of all this? She thinks it's great. As a matter of fact we're planning to spend the summer on our 36-footer. We're not cruising anywhere, mind you. Thought we'd tie up at the new 240-acre marina at the World's Fair along with 800 assorted craft. That's the life for you. Festive evenings under the stars in an outdoor café . . . dining in a 300-seat restaurant . . . 24-hour vending machines dispensing everything from ice cubes to frozen dinners . . . a mail port . . . even a coin-operated laundry. If you're in the area why not pop into a boat taxi and come see our décor? Come formal, of course. The cocktail flag goes up at six.

Ohio family reports on flameless electric living

"No house we've ever owned could even begin to match the comfort and convenience of our total electric home"

Mr. and Mrs. George Wern of North Canton, Ohio, talk about the joy of total electric living in a modern Gold Medallion Home. Here flameless electricity does everything including heating the whole house, cooking the food, providing the hot water and drying the family clothes

According to George and Nancy Wern, moving into their new total electric Gold Medallion Home was "like waking up and finding a lifelong dream suddenly come true."

"We'd known about total electric living for quite a while through our friends," Mrs. Wern tells you. "But until we experienced it for ourselves, we just had no idea how wonderful it really is! Everything in our home stays so clean now, with hardly any work at all. And I really love having so many electric appliances to help me take better care of my family."

Mr. Wern says he likes the comfort and dependability of flameless electric home heating. "The first thing we noticed," he reports, "was how uniform the heating is throughout the entire house." And he adds, "What also pleases me is the reasonable cost of total electric living. No other home we've had has ever given us such value for our money."

Every day, all across America, more and more families like the Werns are experiencing the joy of total electric living. If you plan to build, buy or modernize, think about the advantages of a total electric Gold Medallion Home for your family. Your local electric utility company will help you get all the information you need to enjoy this truly modern way to live.

YOU LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY • Edison Electric Institute, 750 Third Avenue, New York 17, N.Y.

Follow the Tower of Light to the New York World's Fair

BECAUSE IT REQUIRES NO FLUE, the Werns were able to locate their flameless electric water heater where it could serve the kitchen, bathrooms and laundry most efficiently. Mrs. Wern reports, "It literally gives us an endless supply of hot water. Even with eight house guests over last Christmas, we never ran out."

"WITH FULL HOUSEPOWER WIRING, we have plenty of conveniently located outlets," reports George Wern as he heats coffee for guests in the family room. "And we can run as many appliances as we need to at the same time with no worry about overloading circuits."

"A FLAMELESS ELECTRIC CLOTHES DRYER is wonderfully gentle on all my clothes and a real blessing when you have children in the family," says Nancy Wern. "It was easy to install, too, since it didn't need a flue to carry off combustion fumes."

"THE EVEN, DRAFT-FREE WARMTH of flameless electric home heating is one of the benefits of total electric living our whole family can appreciate," says George Wern, shown in his Ohio living room with his wife, Nancy, and their children, Sally, 7, and Stephen, 9.

"FLAMELESS ELECTRIC COOKING is so fast and easy that it's a real pleasure to fix meals for the family," says Nancy Wern in her total electric kitchen. "And a flameless electric range definitely helps to keep my kitchen cleaner and cooler."

These little drawbars turn this Hammond Organ into an orchestra

They are Hammond's famous Harmonic Drawbars. And you'll find them on all Hammond Spinet and Console Organs. You pull them out or push them in . . . a little, half-way, all the way . . . in thousands of different combinations.

And each new combination gives your playing a different timbre, or sound.

A trumpet sound (one trumpet or a dozen), clarinets, oboes, violins . . . a whole string section . . . a whole orchestra.

All governed by the way you set the Harmonic Drawbars. Most other organs only have a dozen or so little flip tabs, and no matter how many you flip, you don't get enough tonal range to do all the things you should be able to do on an organ. This is why no other organ sounds as big and rich and interesting as a Hammond Organ.

. . . and why more people own and play Hammonds than any other kind.

THE ONE AND ONLY HAMMOND ORGAN

MUSIC'S MOST GLORIOUS VOICE

ONE OF THE WONDERS OF THE HAMMOND ORGAN

The Tone-Wheel System

The tone of all Hammond Spinet and Console Organs is produced a different way. By Hammond's Tone-Wheel System. This system produces a clearer, purer tone than any other system. Since the tone wheels turn at fixed speeds, the tones generated can't fluctuate, can't go sharp or flat, which is why a Hammond Spinet or Console Organ never needs tuning*. The system is so rugged that temperature or humidity changes don't affect it.

*The solo pedal unit on the RT3 Console and D-100 series Console uses vacuum tubes. As tubes age, pitch may be affected. The design, however, allows the organist to tune the unit to his own preference.

HERITAGE HOMES ARE WORTH SAVING

Shadows-on-the-Teche, New Iberia, Louisiana, was built by David Weeks between 1831-34 and bequeathed to the National Trust for Historic Preservation in 1958.

If you want your children to see the homes of their forefathers in the cities coast to coast where America was born, whistle them in from the playground. Hurry them into the car and drive—drive fast—to the cobbled streets lined with the homes of the makers of our history. But hurry—because soon, very soon, many of them will be gone.

From New York to New Orleans, Sacramento to Savannah, old and historic houses are crashing down before the forces of growth and neglect. In the rush to build sorely needed super-highways and new housing developments and to clear slums and blighted areas, we are too often leveling buildings which are the three-dimensional documents of our historic past.

"It is urgent," says Christopher Tunnard, professor of City Planning at Yale University, "that we begin to pay as much attention to what is coming down as to what is going up." Professor Tunnard was speaking at a seminar on Restoration and Preservation jointly sponsored by Colonial Williamsburg and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

From coast to coast those who are concerned with saving these heritage homes see one after another going—going—and gone.

Near Kinderhook, New York, the Van Allen house, said to be the greatest existing example of Dutch Colonial architecture in the United States, is about to fall because its owner can't afford to restore it.

Hope House near Windsor, North Carolina, was once the handsome plantation home of David Stone, governor of the state from 1808 to 1818. The show place of the county, it had a spacious ballroom, gambling rooms, and a secret stairway. Now it is kept scrupulously clean and neat but buckets stand under roof leaks on the second floor and a number of windows are boarded up since a hurricane blew out the panes several years ago. The magnificent wainscoting and ceiling moldings are peeling. Its porches have disappeared.

Not all distinguished houses endangered by the march of time date back to our Colonial history. In Los Angeles, the Walter Luther Dodge residence, a milestone in early modern architecture, may fall before the bulldozers soon. It was built at the turn of the century of reinforced concrete, which designer Irving Gill believed could easily attain the architectural importance of stone. The house embodied his revolutionary theory (for Victorian days) that ease of upkeep was an integral part of good design. Landscaping—the effect of sun-making shadow patterns on its white walls through vines and trees—was planned as carefully as its structure. Now its neighborhood has been rezoned for apartments and the Southern California chapter of the American Institute of Architects is battling to save it from destruction.

Recently, Frank Lloyd Wright's Robie house in Chicago, the "prairie house" believed by many to be the greatest of his early work, only escaped by a hair from being leveled to make way for a school dormitory, and its fate is still uncertain. When offered the house for a museum, the University of Chicago insisted that a $250,000 endowment be raised for restoration and maintenance. The fundraising drive still has a long way to go.

Courtesy of National Trust for Historic Preservation

Belle Grove, White Castle, Louisiana, built in 1857, was demolished by fire in 1952.

When we consider the expense of authentic restoration and sound preservation measures, we must ask ourselves which among all the tens of thousands of existing old houses are worth saving and to what use they can be put.

Any house which is a masterpiece of art or architecture should be spared, but beauty and age alone are not necessarily criteria. An old and ugly tenement, if it produced a poet or a president, or if it typifies an integral part of the growth of a city, might be as worthy a landmark as the most beautiful neo-classical building. A log cabin as well as a Georgian mansion speaks to us in ringingly realistic terms of our legacy from the past. We must not delude ourselves by sugar-coating history as we would like it to have been lived. If preservation is to be meaningful, it must first of all be honest.

How can we use these old houses and who will maintain them? Of course, if a house has truly historic value it should be accurately restored, furnished, and opened to the public as a museum. Such a house could be maintained by the local historical society. Homes which are good architectural examples of their period can be turned into clubhouses by various organizations. Sometimes these older homes can be used as professional offices but this is not always practical because of limited parking space. Unless a house has been properly maintained, it can be very costly for an individual family to put it in living condition. In some cases truly fine examples of historic homes are moved to a museum-village. This has happened in Sturbridge, Massachusetts, where many of the buildings were taken apart at their site and reassembled piece by piece in an appropriate setting in the village.

How can we save these buildings? Throughout the United States, over 500 separate local agencies have the right of eminent (continued)

(continued) domain for urban renewal projects. However, no national agency and no federal legislation (such as monument protection acts in France, Denmark, Italy, the Netherlands, and Sweden) has authority to forbid the destruction of historic buildings, even those of undisputed national significance, by any of these 500 local groups. In some far-sighted cities, a local board has such a right.

Those who argue against federal control in such matters consider it of purely local interest whether the home of a native son is preserved or is razed. This is not the case. A Monticello or a Casa Amesti is the heritage not only of the citizens of Charlottesville, Virginia, or Monterey, California, but of every man, woman and child in our 50 states.

Conrad L. Wirth, who recently retired as director of the National Park Service, is among those who fully realize the grave crisis faced by our historic buildings. The advice and assistance of the Park Service, within the limits of its budget and personnel, are always available to groups concerned with the preservation and administration of such houses.

Mr. Wirth advocates making the National Park Service the guardian of historic buildings endangered by other federal projects such as the highway program and urban renewal. He urges that the organization be made a required consultant—as the Fish and Game Department is for conservation of wildlife resources—while each new project is still in the planning stage.

Another possible solution was proposed at the Williamsburg seminar by Nathaniel Owings, a member of President Kennedy's Advisory Council for the Redesign of Pennsylvania Avenue. Owings urged creating a cabinet post for a secretary who would represent the taste and culture of our country with authority to act in its behalf. A vital tool of this department would be the Historic American Buildings Survey, a national program for listing and evaluating historic structures, which is jointly sponsored by the American Institute of Architects, the Library of Congress, the National Park Service, and the National Trust for Historic Preservation. This inventory, when expanded, should be the basis for determining what buildings could not be altered or destroyed without the consent of the guardian agency.

No matter how much may be accomplished, however, on the federal level, the preservation of historic homes is not and should never be the exclusive concern of government. It is rightfully the business of each one of us. A house, or even an entire block or neighborhood in our older cities, may have no national significance, but may add something precious and well worth saving to the local scene.

Stephen W. Jacobs, associate professor of architecture at Cornell University, outlines six steps for those interested in preserving a building:

- Be informed about it. Identify its values so you'll know exactly why it should be preserved.
- Organize a local group of interested people who will work enthusiastically to preserve the house or area.
- Work through your representative in the state government to pass whatever legislation will be necessary to authorize your group's activity and to make available to your local government the powers and resources from the state which will help your project.
- See that local ordinances are passed that will protect it.
- Encourage local agencies to apply for financial assistance from higher levels of government if your program requires more aid than will be available locally.
- Remain on the job! Preservationists must fill the roles of custodians, developers, and watchdogs to make sure that all resources are used to good advantage. It is never enough to get a program to save a building under way and then relax.

Valuable advice is available from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, 815 17th Street, N.W., Washington 6, D.C. In the last year, this organization, under its executive director, Robert R. Garvey, Jr., has advised groups from 50 different communities who have since been successful in getting historic areas protected in their own cities.

While urban renewal activities on a local level present one of the drastic threats to many historic city houses, the Urban Renewal Administration has been an enthusiastic, willing partner in restoration of these historic districts. Far from advocating the destruction of fine old buildings, this agency has worked tirelessly with local groups in many cities to plan the best means of restoring noteworthy buildings and to improve their settings, and has financed studies in these areas. Architect and landscaping plans have been provided for home owners in redevelopment areas. Federal funds can't be used for actual historic restoration, but special FHA mortgage insurance is now available to individuals for improving their own homes in historic neighborhoods.

Margaret Carroll, urban planner for the U.R.A., points out emphatically that the formulation of all urban renewal plans is local. Therefore, the responsibility for preserving our own well-loved historic landmarks is entirely ours as individuals.

The most important step we can take is to see that a careful survey is made in our own communities to catalogue those buildings which have a right to be preserved well in advance of any final plans for urban renewal, or highway expansion, or a new shopping center.

HOW TO JUDGE A SCHOOL SYSTEM

STANLEY SCHULER

About ten years ago when a brilliant engineer was transferred to his company's New York City headquarters, he wasted no time in deciding where to live. Because he and his wife wanted their children to have a first-class public school education, they headed straight for the suburban community of Scarsdale, which has long been famed for its excellent school system. It mattered not that my friend had several interests which might have been served better in another community. "We like that school system!" he said simply.

Today, as education becomes more important to all Americans, an increasing number of families that are in a position to choose where they will live, are picking communities on the same basis: "We think this is the best school system for our children."

Unfortunately, only a few can be sure they are right.

Assessing the quality of a school system is, in the words of the men responsible for New York State's searching six-year-old (School) Quality Measurement Project, an "extremely complex problem." No one—and this includes the experts—knows how to solve it completely.

One difficulty is that any school system's success in achieving its goals (whatever these may be) depends not only on the system itself, but also on the characteristics of the community served and the abilities and backgrounds of the children attending the schools. This makes it hard to tell whether a school system is good or bad, because it really is good or bad or because it is made to look that way by the people it serves.

Another difficulty is that everyone judges a school system from his own standpoint. This means that a system which delights me may appall you. It also means that if you are not sure what you want in a school system, you might settle in a community with a system that turns out to be quite unacceptable to you.

The final difficulty is that there is no known way of measuring the attitude and effectiveness of teachers; yet few things so inspire a child to learn as a wonderful Mr. Chips.

Despite these problems, more and more people are asking, "How good are this town's schools?"

The answer is not to be had by looking at school buildings, counting merit scholarships, and the number of students going on to college, assuming that the excellence of a famous high school automatically rubs off on the surrounding elementary schools, or talking to real estate brokers who have educational objectives different from your own.

On the contrary, the best way to assess the quality of a school system is to go directly to the school authorities. Ask the following test questions and measure the answers you get against standards set by outstanding American school systems and leading educators who have long been interested in what makes quality education.

In applying the test, however, remember three things:

1. The questions should be used only to judge school systems which aim at developing well-rounded boys and girls who can go on to college. In other words, the questions should not be applied to a system which is concerned primarily with turning out youngsters who are technically trained for a trade.

2. No values are assigned to the questions. This is because the educational world cannot say for sure to what extent various factors affect school quality.

3. Because of the problems previously mentioned, the questions will not yield a crystal-clear picture of school system quality. But they will come close.

What is the school system's educational program?

In elementary school, says the National Education Association's Educational Policies Commission, "the program should emphasize reading, writing, arithmetic, speaking, and listening. It should help pupils acquire ideas, information, understanding, and skills in social studies, science, music, and art. It should promote understanding of the importance of learning and of intellectual values. It should teach pupils that people live, think, and speak in various ways.

"The superior elementary school program seeks to develop initiative and to promote concern for accuracy, reasoning, progress, and beauty. It teaches the basics of safety and personal health and promotes physical coordination and skill. It helps the child learn to care for resources, both human and natural, to use simple tools, and to look after his possessions. By carefully organizing experiences in which children work together in groups, (it) fosters their ability to get along with others and thus helps lay the base for social responsibility."

"In high school," James Bryant Conant says in his trend-setting book The American High School Today, "the requirements for graduation for all students should be four years of English, three or four years of social studies—including two years of history (one of which should be American history), and a senior course in American problems or American government—one year of mathematics in the ninth grade (algebra or general mathematics), and at least one year of science in the ninth or tenth grade, which might well be biology or general physical science. . . . The other requirement for graduation should be successful completion of at least seven more courses, not including physical education."

How much does the school system spend per pupil?

Last year according to the magazine School Management, which makes an annual study of school costs, the average school district in the country spent $351.70 per pupil. But the average expenditure by the top 10 per cent of school districts was $508. (These figures represent the schools' net current expenditures, and do not include the cost of transportation and debt service or the financial outlay for new schools and equipment.)

The difference is important: All evidence points to the fact that the more a school system spends for current operation, the better job it does in educating children.

What is the ratio of professional staff to the student body?

One old but still popular rule of thumb holds that no schoolteacher should have more than 25 pupils. Today, because of many changes in the educational process, this rule has been supplanted by a new one: There should be a minimum of 50 professionals (teachers, supervisors, librarians, consultants, guidance counselors etc.) for every 1000 pupils.

In the country's leading school systems, the ratio ranges up to 70 per 1000 students.

What proportion of the teachers have master's degrees or better?

The Quality Measurement Project has found that "there is a positive relationship between the per cent of staff with five or more years of training and the likelihood that a system will exceed, achieve, or fail to achieve the level of pupil outcomes to be expected of the system. Community and pupil factors being equal, pupils in school systems with more highly trained teachers achieve better."

Other educators confirm this. Sam M. Lambert, research director of the National Education Association, says: "My daughter had a fourth-grade teacher in Washington who had an M.A. She had 35 children in her class, yet she was able to move them two grades in one year.

"Even if she's a married woman, a teacher with an M.A. is likely to put much greater emphasis on her teaching than people with B.A.'s."

Unfortunately, however, the number of teachers with master's and doctor's degrees is small—only 23.5 per cent of the United States total. But in some school systems the figure is much higher. For instance: Pittsburgh—about 40 per cent; Worcester, Massachusetts—51 per cent; San Jose, California—64 per cent. (continued)

What is the rate of teacher turnover?

A study of 121 large school systems made two years ago by the National Education Association disclosed that classroom teacher turnover ranged from a high of 27.1 per cent of the teaching staff in one school system to a low of 4.3 per cent in another. The median rate was 12.5 per cent.

Something is obviously wrong with a school system that loses too many teachers. As Richard I. Miller, associate director of NEA's Project on Instruction, points out, it means either that salaries are too low or that the conditions under which the teachers must work are not good. Sometimes it means both things. In any case, the students suffer.

Does the school system have a remedial reading program starting at the first grade and continuing through high school?

The need of a program to improve the reading ability of poor high-school readers has been generally accepted for some time. But the equally great need of a similar program in elementary school is not so widely recognized (except in the best school systems). It is pointed up, however, by a recent study that was made by Charles M. Armstrong of New York State's education department.

Comparing the achievement-test scores made by 1000 high-school students with their reading levels when they were in fifth grade, Armstrong found that the better a child learns to read in elementary school, the better are his chances of doing well in high school.

The study showed that only 16 per cent of fifth graders who read at fifth-grade level did good work in high school. But 38 per cent of fifth graders who read at sixth-grade level did well in high school; 61 per cent of those who read at seventh-grade level did well in high school; and 80 per cent of those who read at ninth-grade level did well in high school.

The results, Armstrong says, "raise a question as to the adequacy of grade norms. Some schools and some teachers seem to feel that if they can get a pupil to work at grade level, they have done a satisfactory job. Actually, if we want all pupils to finish high school, we should strive to get all pupils above grade level in reading in elementary school."

Do the schools have a guidance counseling system?

In this increasingly complex world, boys and girls need expert advice about the courses they should take in school, whether to aim for college, and which ones, etc., and vocational guidance on planning for a career. This is the job of the guidance counselor.

In The American High School Today Conant recommends: "Counseling should start in the elementary school. There should be one full-time counselor for every 250 to 300 pupils in the high school. The counselors should have had experience as teachers but should be devoting virtually full time to the counseling work."

Is the school system studying and experimenting with new ideas for instruction, curriculum, etc.?

If not, watch out. No one, including schools, makes progress by standing still. To do an ever-better job of educating children, a school system must spend some money (the NEA Project on Instruction recommends one per cent of the annual operating budget) and time for research, experimentation, and innovation.

What is the state of the school libraries?

Every school in a system should have a library, and every library should meet the following standards set by the American Library Association: Ten books per student. An annual expenditure for new books of $4 to $6 per student. One trained librarian for each 300 students.

What percentage of students in the high school graduating class achieve above-average grades on college entrance exams?

Secondary schoolmen maintain that college entrance examination scores do not accurately reflect the quality of a school. But college admissions officers who keep records of the relationship between high school grades, college entrance examination scores, and college freshman grades made by all their students are not in full agreement.

"A median College Board score of over 500 for all its college preparatory students is a significant indication of a high school's capacity to produce strong college prospects," says Arthur Howe, Jr., dean of Admissions at Yale.

America's "great" high schools have little trouble performing up to this standard. Consider the record of New Trier Township High School, Winnetka, Illinois. In 1963, 92 per cent of New Trier's 995 graduates went to college. Of approximately 850 who took the College Board's Scholastic Aptitude Test, 60 per cent scored 500 or above, and 74 per cent of the 400 taking the Achievement Tests scored above 500.

(Just as college entrance examination scores reflect high-school quality, so standard achievement test scores reflect the quality of elementary schools. All school heads should be able to tell you how the achievement test scores of their pupils compare with the national average.)

How large is the high school?

If a high school is too small, Conant says, it is "not in a position to provide a satisfactory education for any group of students." The curriculum is not thorough; the faculty is underused.

Minimum size of a four-year high school should be 500 pupils; of a three-year high school, 350.

Does the high school provide Advanced Placement courses (or the equivalent) for gifted pupils?

The fact that your children may not be eligible for such courses should not affect your attitude toward this requirement. Barnaby C. Keeney, president of Brown University, has called Advanced Placement—a program under (continued on page 107)

While we're not too sure just what the jet set thinks about indoor-outdoor living, we're all for it. While it might not come up to jetting to the Côte d'Azur for the season, it certainly makes living in Missoula or Milwaukee a lot more enjoyable. What's more, it can all be done for tourist-class prices—in fact, on the family plan. This inviting setting for outdoor living in Dayton, Ohio, is a good example for it was built for a little over $600 in material cost. The family plan entered on the labor front, with Mrs. Paul B. Willis being the instigator and motivating force and Mr. Willis and son on the actual labor force. Since this was to be strictly weekend and odd-hour work, the patio was designed so it could be done in small sections. The two amateur masons developed a working pattern that brought the job to completion in a little over a month. One big time-saving trick was the use of a dry, premixed combination of materials that requires only the addition of water to make concrete. This eliminated time-consuming measuring and mixing. 1x4" redwood lumber was used to divide the patio floor into 3'6" squares. The top of the lumber framework was set six inches above the leveled ground to provide a four-inch base of sand, capped by two inches of concrete mix. Perimeter boards were first set at the right height and leveled off. Then the intermediate boards were securely nailed in place and supported by metal stakes. Once the redwood frame was in place, the sand base was spread. A simple leveling device was used to spread the sand and still leave two inches below the top of the redwood form for the concrete surface. Preplanning simplified the mixing and pouring of the concrete. By calculation it was found that three sacks of the Sakrete Concrete mix finished one square of the floor without waste. A screed board (shown in the bottom photo) reaching from one redwood member to another, was used to level the concrete mix. (continued)

One of the favorite materials for patio and garden-walk construction is brick. Here the Willis family used a new technique that worked very well for them and produced a handsome walk with minimum effort. First they determined the width of the walk and defined this with bricks set on edge in a small footing of concrete. Using this as a screed they leveled off a two-inch base of sand and then put in a one-and-a-half-inch layer of dry cement mix as a setting bed for the brick. No mixing or wetting was necessary as the dry mix draws moisture and soon forms a strong foundation. The final step was to fill in between the brick with a wet mix of mortar, as seen in the bottom photo.

Looks like our designers have been consulting their wives again

You'd think a woman did it—the way this new Westinghouse refrigerator is designed. Outside we've given it the full beauty treatment with smart new decorator trim, handsome handles of chrome and imported wood. But there's more to it than beauty. Much more.

Look close. Very close. With that big 18-pound meat keeper you can whip out a meal in no time, because it keeps meat fresh 7 days without freezing. Those stacked porcelain-enamel vegetable crispers can really hold it, too ($\frac{3}{4}$ of a bushel to be exact).

Then there's that new ice cube server, lift-out egg and utility trays to name just a few. Of course, the spacious refrigerator, the 119-pound freezer . . . they're completely frost-free. And the exclusive Westinghouse Cold Injector pushes cold air throughout the refrigerator—does away with unsightly coils in the fresh food section.

Leave it to a woman to design the perfect refrigerator. Leave it to Westinghouse to make it (we'll leave it to you to see this new refrigerator at your Westinghouse dealer's soon).

SOPHISTICATED SIMPLICITY ON A HILLTOP

Commanding attention with the assurance of a well-situated castle staunchly holding its place above the world, this house in West Redding, Connecticut, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Otnes, achieves perhaps the ultimate of indoor-outdoor living. Nothing interferes with the view of the countryside beyond. From the outside, the windows on one side frame portions of the view that can be seen from windows on the other side. Glass walls provide a front-row seat for Nature's exhibit of days and seasons. Several large wooden decks make the outdoors easily accessible. Several steps below, the flagstone sun terrace is built into a natural formation of rock on the edge of a quarry which the owners hope soon to make into a swimming pool. The splendor of the setting on a hillside allows the building to be plain without seeming austere. The house, a post and beam structure, is anchored to the hill by pins driven into the rock beneath each post. The flat roof has a raised section over the living room to accommodate shallow clerestory windows for light from all directions. The airy decks are roofed with slats that keep the summer heat and sun out but let in the winter sun to help warm the house. Heating for house is provided by floor ducts beneath each window. For continuity, the deck is stained the same weathered gray as the floor, siding, and interior wood walls. Limited to such a few colors and textures, the house is not bland but a strong statement in contrasting dark and light woods. Its classic simplicity and restrained elegance are excellent foils for the color and roughness of the foliage and rock that surround the house.

A WALKING TOUR around the Otnes house begins with the unexpectedly flat approach (below) to the entry deck. A surprise is in store for those who don't notice the view through the living room to the gorge on the other side. Twin chimneys pierce the roof just outside the clerestory windows. TRIM CONTOUR of deck structure and the white-painted beams (upper right) is profiled above the rugged terrain and sun terrace. WRAP-AROUND DECK and glass walls (on plan) are a major factor in full appreciation of landscape and scenery. A small basement housed under the living room contains utilities and storage. SHALLOW STEPS TO ENTRY deck and hall (middle right) invite guests to enter the spacious living room beyond the dining room. LIVING ROOM (lower right) is a pleasant stop before continuing along deck and down to the sun terrace. Wilderness landscape permeates the glass-walled room. In return, the deck receives benefits of the civilized indoors. It's protected from a northwest wind by the house itself and from heat and sun by overhead slats that shade the house too.

THE INTERIOR is furnished tastefully with nothing distracting from the view. The simplicity of the architecture matches the handsome sparseness of the décor. Elements are simple: a few pieces of furniture, one or two bright colors, and the outdoors. SILHOUETTED in the airy light of the windows overlooking the valley (top) is an arrangement of favorite art pieces. FIREPLACE (middle) dominates this wall in the living room but the view is not shut out. Tops of trees and, in winter, falling snow are visible through the high windows to counterpoint the blaze. SHELTERED CORNER of living room (above) is a quiet place to watch fire and scene outside. Light from south emphasizes contrast of wood and plaster.

BEAUTIFUL WAYS TO EXTEND YOUR LIVING SPACE

Photographer: Maris/Ezra Stoller Assoc.

Small houses grow to expansive proportions through the wise use of the space that is immediately adjacent to the house. Physical walls need not fence in the enjoyment of a house with all the possibilities for expansion into patios, terraces, decks, and even additional rooms that blend with the outdoors. Look at these examples of houses which have gone beyond their interior limits to add space and bonus areas. Look at your own house with an eye toward adding to the original plan and increasing your own pleasure in attractive outdoor living areas.

Lanai in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Davies of Novato, California, opens out to a terrace and a beautiful view of the rugged ranch country. The lanai is a multi-purpose room used as workroom, informal dining, and extra bedroom. Large poppy design on quilted white chintz chair pads dramatizes neutral color tones of walls and furnishings.

All-glass dining room opens off paneled living room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Cotton, Decatur, Georgia. Sliding glass doors are backed with sliding screens. Solar heat and heated flagstone floor keep the room warm and cozy in winter. Sheltering trees make the room a beautiful indoor garden.

Garden patio in home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Conze, Palos Verdes, California, has lattices, fence, and slat benches stained a soft driftwood. Brick flooring is a continuation from the living room.

A back wall at the property line sets the boundary to this patio with its luxurious foliage. The patio of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Patton in South Miami, Florida, is the favorite entertaining spot for the Pattons and their two teen-age daughters. Lights strung in the satinwood tree and palms give a festive air at night.

When owner-designer Steve Steffen, A.I.D., of South Miami, Florida, wanted a second, larger patio (photographs below), he decided to break through the wall of the living room. With three large windows in the living room, it was decided to make the middle one the door to the patio. Measuring 27x44', the patio extends the full length of the house, gives privacy and much needed living space to an otherwise small ranch-style house. The wooden wall is stained a mushroom color. The gravel, stepping stones, and planking surface are quite easy to maintain.

Garden patio is partially protected by a terra-cotta awning in the home of designer Jack Cameron, A.I.D., of Coral Gables, Florida. Flooring under the awning is concrete, painted and scored to look like old tile. In the foreground, it's cement block. The lovely garden is Mr. Cameron's handiwork, and one of his favorite hobbies.

The home of architect-designer Kenneth Treister, A.I.A., Coconut Grove, Florida, has several patios. This one is a court-garden with a swimming pool at the open end. It is visible below from the outdoor dining area, which is covered with roofing and corrugated glass panels. The more open part of the court is enclosed with 12' high fiber-glass screening to make it usable all year round.

By adding a canvas ceiling over a rear patio, Mrs. Ruth Waxman of Los Angeles, California, can now enjoy this area almost the year round. Canvas provides privacy from neighboring hillside, has a plastic top for rain protection.

Cool pavilion below has pebbled walk with redwood platforms on different levels. Post and beam structural members support royal blue frame for canvas that's designed to control light. Unpainted redwood is treated with copper sulphate to turn it to a gray color.

Decorative lattice square (left) provides welcome shade for this family room patio. Surrounded by fully grown trees, there is no need for fencing. Groups of potted plants are rotated according to season. Concrete paving, level with interior floors, eases outdoor serving. Landscape: Sid Galper for Harlan Lee's Los Feliz Estates

Deck on opposite page in the home of Dr. Richard Koons, Laguna Beach, California, takes full advantage of the hillside view. Predominantly of redwood, deck has built-in benches and slat table. A potting garden is on the lower level.

HOW TO GET "CARRIED

If you have the urge to express yourself, to give vent to all the hidden talents inside you, we suggest you trim a tray. It's one of the most entertaining, creative outlets we know and one of the most inexpensive. The trays themselves come from the dime store. While you're out, pick up the necessary glue, varnish, spray, and fabric adhesive, and then let your imagination take over. We show you here some thought-starters to get you going. Starting at the top, left to right: "Down to the Sea" is made from a section of a ship blueprint, available in marine supply stores, and narrow white rope. "Spring Beauties" is a bold fabric pattern applied to the tray with fabric adhesive. "Newshound" has strips of newspaper headlines and logos you can cut from foreign newspapers. "Spring Bouquet" is an arrangement of simple flowers cut from bright tissue paper.

AWAY" IN GREAT STYLE

Artist: Elizabeth Grossman, age 6

"Cardsharp" is a brightly painted tray mounted with decorative Spanish playing cards. "Budding Artist" is probably the nicest one of all—a small child's drawing in colored chalk. Keep your child going and you could have a small art gallery!

Beginning to get the idea? Here are some more suggestions from the top of our head: cut up the blueprints of your new home in sections for a series of trays. Retrace your family's vacation by cutting up a road map and marking the route with a red marker. Cover a tray with a handsome wood-grain gift wrap or use easy to apply adhesive-backed paper. Save vintage bottle labels and overlap them in a crazy-quilt pattern. Cut out flowers from magazines and make a decoupage. Mount a coin collection on a black lacquer base. Ad infinitum! How-to's for trays shown, page 81.

These smartly tailored, snug-fitting slip covers are the best reason we know to hurl yourself into a fervor of springtime decorating. A far cry from the loose, ill-fitting dust throws of yesteryear, these were designed by a professional decorating team at Lord & Taylor, New York. The beautiful, easy-care fabrics are by Everfast. They're inexpensive, wear like iron, wash beautifully, and have a marvelous crease-resistant Everglaze finish. So start casting an eye at your own drab furniture. Visualize the freshness and style these sprightly patterns and colors will bring to any room in your home. Beg, borrow, or steal any of the ideas you see here with our compliments. In this case, it's legitimate larceny!

SPRUCE UP WITH SLIP COVERS

Shown opposite and above is one room with two sets of slip covers. Striped cotton satin at left is mitered. Pastoral toile above is used for sofa and draperies. Slip-cover transformation in each setting is completed with coordinated colors used for other chairs and accents.

This bridge table and chairs are polka-dot happy with scalloped satiny-looking slip covers. Hidden snaps hold the chair-back covers in place. Table and seat covers have a lining of buckram to keep them stiff. All are washable and guaranteed colorfast of course.

Ladylike setting below is dressed in pale green spun rayon crepe that has been quilted for chaise slip cover and drapery trim. Quilting adds richness to a room, seems to enlarge a small piece of furniture.

Day bed in the romantic niche below is slip covered in a snowflake pattern to match the draperies and walls of the room. Note that the mattress has a quilted "cap" cover which can be easily removed for sleeping.

Small foyer above is given importance with two French-styled chairs with back and seat pads in an exaggerated marbled pattern. They're held in place with fabric ties. The seat pads have foam rubber inside; and they can be easily washed.

Slip covers for a simple table and ordinary high-back chairs (opposite page) give this room a dramatic, Vermeer-like atmosphere. The tablecloth has sharply creased inverted corner pleats and the chair covers have handsome button backs.

We're all for shattering a myth—the myth that to grow orchids you have to seal them under glass like the Hope diamond as well as hire an old-world gardener to cater to their whims. In truth, beautiful, heavenly scented orchids are far from fragile. They're actually quite hardy and will thrive on the terrace in spring and summer and at your windows during cold weather. These are known as the botanical, or species gems. And what an infinite variety of shapes, forms, and colors they offer to the home gardener! Some have mammoth blooms while others have minute flowers visible only through a magnifying glass. Colors run the gamut from white, pink, lavender, purple, red, orange, yellow, green, brown, and blue, through almost all the shades in between. Flower shapes are frilly or simple, lacy or scalloped. Most botanical orchids are delightfully scented, and one plant will often perfume an entire area!

We picture just a few of the different types of botanical orchids. You can choose from: calanthes, cattleyas, coelogynes, dendrobiums, laelias, lycastes, oncidiums, phaius, and vandas. Don't let the names throw you—once they're yours you can call them anything you like. Plants and materials are available from nurseries all over the country.

Orchids will generally come to you potted in regular slotted clay containers, in osmunda or fir bark, and will not need repotting for two years. Whether you grow them indoors or on the patio, never set orchid plants directly on the floor or ground. They need bottom as well as top air circulation so set the pots on house bricks or on half-inch redwood slats.

The cattleya species, such as Cattleya aurantiaca (1), C. bowringiana, C. forbesi, and C. skinneri, are medium-size plants about 24 to 36 inches tall, with lavender, orange, or pink flowers. Indoors they require from three to four hours of sunshine at a south or east window. Water heavily and allow them to dry out before watering again. Outdoors, give them filtered sunlight—avoid direct sun—and a minimum night temperature of 56°. Flowers will appear during the spring and summer.

Most of the calanthe orchids available are varieties of Calanthe vestita (6), or C. rosea, with flowers (continued on page 96)

OUTDOOR LIFE

Entertaining should be as much fun for you as it is for your guests. But how can you enjoy it yourself if it becomes a laborious, time-consuming venture? How can you scintillate if you're the unpaid slave in the kitchen with no more time with your guests than a quick hello and a tired good-by? The secret is in a bit of preplanning not only in the kitchen but in the spot where you choose to entertain. Here we flash some sparkling plan-ahead ideas that make full use of your lovely crystal. They're pretty to look at and easy to do!

1. Nothing's easier than letting guests help themselves. Here a tasty Fondue Bourguignonne is served with a circle of goblets to hold the tempting sauces.
2. A center of attraction at a children's party not only confines activity to a limited area, but makes preparation and cleanup easy. The punch bowl, cookies, et al. can be wheeled anywhere for self-service.
3. Some guests like to get up early but can't wake up without juice or coffee. Until you rescue them with a full-fledged breakfast, put out thermoses of their favorite eye-openers.
4. A casual sit-down luncheon or supper becomes gay and festive when bright ribbons are tied lattice fashion to underside of a glass-topped table.
5. How romantic is the light of a kerosene lamp for patio dining. The pink color scheme is keyed to the graceful, tinted goblets.
6. Stacked trays in their own small cupboard is an idea we brazenly stole from the airlines. Let your husband make one of these from a wooden box, and then finish it off with bright, bright paint.
7. Crystal stemware can play a leading part in serving hors d'oeuvres. Think of all the ways to use your pretty goblets. Everyone will say, "What a marvelous idea!"

*GIVE A SHOWER OF
ROSES AND DAINY
TEA TREATS FOR YOUR FAVORITE BRIDE-TO-BE*

Keep everything in a delicate romantic mood for a tea-time shower. Even the menu. Daisy-shaped sandwiches made with cream cheese blended with fresh strawberries, gay pinwheels with spicy deviled ham and pimiento, thin triangles filled with finely chopped chicken, tasty caviar thimbles, crab meat tartlets with a whisper of curry, striped bread-ribbons with tangy Cheddar cheese, and cherry tomatoes with chopped eggs and anchovies. And for the gala ending! Pink and white rose cupcakes arranged just like a bride's bouquet on white paper lace doilies. You will find our recipes and tips for serving a tea on page 72.

Be original, creative! See how the tasty "go withs" you prepare in your kitchen help transform the highly seasoned barbecues you usually cook outside into a gourmet banquet. Along with your favorite grilled foods, serve delicately seasoned salads, vegetables, and breads. The beauty of it all is so many of these delectable dishes can be prepared ahead of time! The crispy cold creations can be kept in the refrigerator until serving time. The hot dishes you whisk to patio, terrace, or porch piping hot from the oven.

Next time you entertain, there's no need to repeat that old stand-by, the tossed green salad. For example, whip up exciting Tomato-Avocado Mousse. Subtle in flavor, but oh, so dramatic as you bring out a handsome trayful!

You can add a tasty continental touch with a baked

Zucchini Skillet Casserole. This fine Italian dish is seasoned with onion, green pepper, basil, and Parmesan. If you like applause (and who doesn't), show your finesse with an airy, fluffy, golden-crustied Corn Soufflé. Takes only 15 minutes to prepare, less than an hour to bake, and is guaranteed to make you look like a culinary genius.

For a festive bread, nothing but our Fiesta Bread will do. A French loaf is split lengthwise and spread with a tempting mixture of grated Cheddar, catsup, chopped olives, and onion. Wrap in foil and serve piping hot!

You'll find these and many more dishes on our recipe pages, including cool Jellied Vegetable Medley, a new version of Macaroni Salad, chilled Eggplant Sicilian, and a host of quickie breads. The recipes begin on page 66.

Magnificent touches to create new tastes and add more flavor to your next indoor-outdoor barbecue

Gone are the days when steaks, chickens, hamburgers, and frankfurters were tossed onto the grill in slapdash he-man fashion. Whether they cook inside or out, people are discovering exciting, new, exotic tastes in marinades and bastes.

Just what is a marinade or a baste? Actually, a marinade is a thin sauce, usually with a wine, vinegar, or lemon-juice base, seasoned with condiments and herbs, in which food is soaked before it's cooked. It penetrates the food to flavor and tenderize it. A baste is a sauce, sometimes thin, sometimes thick, brushed on the food to give it a special flavor on the outside and at the same time keep it moist. Both may be served as a sauce with the cooked foods.

Here and on our recipe pages we bring you some special treats using marinades or bastes in the cooking, plus some very special recipes for bastes and marinades alone. Try them all now that the charcoal grill is in full season.

SPICY CHICKEN BARBECUE

Preparation time: 20 min. / Marinating time: 2 hrs.
 ½ c. butter or margarine; 1 c. chicken broth; 2 tbs. lemon juice; ½ tsp. dry mustard; 1½ tsp. sugar; 1 tsp. salt; 1 tsp. chili powder; 1 tsp. paprika; dash of cayenne; 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce; ½ tsp. liquid hot-pepper sauce; ¼ tsp. black pepper; ¼ c. minced onion; 2 cloves of garlic, minced; 2 broiler-fryers, quartered.

Combine all ingredients except chicken in saucepan; simmer 30 minutes. Pour over chicken in shallow dish. Marinate 2 hours, turning occasionally. Broil chicken about 45 minutes, or until tender, turning halfway in cooking time. Baste with marinade as chicken cooks. Heat and serve remaining marinade with chicken. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

MEAT BALL SHISH KEBOBS

Preparation time: 20 min. / Cooking time: 25 min.

¾ c. finely chopped onion; ¼ c. pure vegetable oil; ¾ c. catsup; ¼ c. cider vinegar; ¾ c. water; 3 tbs. sugar; 2 tbs. Worcestershire sauce; 1 tbs. prepared mustard; 2 tsp. salt; ¼ tsp. pepper; 1½ lbs. ground beef; ½ tsp. salt; dash of pepper; 2 tomatoes, cut in wedges or 12 cherry tomatoes; 1 large green pepper, cut in large squares; 12 small onions, parboiled; oil.

Sauté onion in oil until tender; stir in catsup, vinegar, water, sugar, Worcestershire, mustard, 2 teaspoons salt, and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Simmer 15 minutes. Combine beef, ½ teaspoon salt, and pepper. Shape into 12 meat balls.

Arrange alternately on skewers 2 meat balls, 2 tomato wedges or 2 cherry tomatoes, 2 pieces green pepper, and 2 onions. Brush meat balls with sauce; brush vegetables with oil. Broil 10 minutes; baste with sauce as they cook; turn kebobs several times so they cook evenly. Makes 6 servings. (continued on page 64)

This, perhaps, is the most pleasure you can get for so little money. Incredible as it may seem, a serving of Campbell's Tomato Soup costs only 4¢. When you think how good it tastes, or how much it adds to the enjoyment of a meal, or how happily your family downs it . . . well, maybe that's why it's America's favorite soup.

Soup this good just has to be Campbell's

GLAZED HAM ON THE SPIT (SWEET AND TANGY BASTE)

Preparation time: 15 min. / Cooking time: 1½ hrs.

1 c. apricot jam; ½ c. orange or pineapple juice; 1½ tbs. prepared mustard; ¼ tsp. ground cloves; ¼ tsp. ground ginger; 6-8 lbs. boned and rolled ready-to-eat ham.

Combine apricot jam, fruit juice, mustard, cloves, and ginger in small saucepan; simmer 5 minutes. Place ham on spit; lock in place with locking tines; place in position on rotisserie over coals. Cook 1 hour; brush with jam mixture. Continue cooking 30 minutes longer, brushing with glaze several times. Thin remaining glaze with additional fruit juice and serve as a sauce with ham. Makes 12-16 servings.

BARBECUED STEAK (ZESTY BEEF MARINADE)

Preparation time: 10 min. / Marinating time: overnight.

¾ c. Burgundy or Bordeaux wine or ½ c. red wine vinegar; ¾ c. olive or pure vegetable oil; 1 clove of garlic, mashed; 1 tbs. grated onion; 1 tsp. salt; ¼ tsp. black pepper; ½ tsp. oregano; ½ tsp. basil; top round of beef 3 inches thick (approx. 7 lbs.).

Combine all ingredients except beef in flat glass or enamel pan; mix well. Add beef; cover; refrigerate overnight. When ready to cook, place beef on greased grill rack; baste with marinade. Grill 40 to 50 minutes for rare, longer for medium, turning meat often and basting frequently with marinade. Heat any remaining marinade and serve with beef. Makes 6-8 servings.

WESTERN MARINADE

Preparation time: 10 min. / Marinating time: 2 hrs.

¼ c. catsup; ¼ c. soy sauce; ¼ c. honey; 1 c. chicken broth; 2 cloves of garlic, crushed; 1 tsp. salt.

Combine all ingredients and pour over meat. Marinate at least 2 hours. This marinade is excellent with lamb and pork, particularly with spareribs. (When planning to use it with spareribs, roast the spareribs in a shallow pan in a very hot oven [450° F.] 30 minutes. Pour off the fat from the pan and pour in the marinade.) Grill meat on slow fire, basting occasionally with marinade. Serve any that remains as a sauce with the meat. Enough for 4-5 lbs. of meat.

TERIYAKI MARINADE

Preparation time: 10 min. / Marinating time: 1-3 hrs.

1 large clove of garlic, crushed; 2 tsp. ground ginger; 1 tbs. sugar; 1 tbs. vinegar; ½ c. soy sauce; ¼ c. dry white wine.

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Use to marinate 2 pounds of cubed beef, pork, or fish. Beef and pork should marinate 3 hours, fish 1 hour. Thread cubes on skewers and broil, turning to cook all sides. Makes 6 servings.

ZIPPY BEEF BASTING SAUCE

Preparation time: 10 min. / Cooking time: 15 min.

¼ lb. (1 stick) butter or margarine; ¾ c. vinegar; 1 tbs. prepared mustard; 2 tbs. Worcestershire sauce; ¼ c. chili sauce; 1 tbs. brown sugar; ½ tsp. crushed dried red peppers; 2 tbs. grated onion.

Combine all ingredients in saucepan; simmer 15 minutes. Brush frequently on meat as it cooks on grill. Enough for 5-lb. roast or steak.

QUICK-AND-EASY MARINADE

Marinate chicken, flank steak, beef or lamb cubes for shish kebabs in homemade or bottled French dressing or in bottled Italian-style dressing for at least 2 hours. Grill, brushing meat with marinade as it cooks.

LAMB BASTE

Preparation time: 10 min. / Standing time: several hrs.

¾ c. dry sherry; 1 tbs. chopped parsley; 2 tbs. lemon juice; 1 tbs. pure vegetable oil; 1 tsp. grated onion; 1 tsp. salt; ¼ tsp. pepper; ½ tsp. rosemary, crumbled; ½ tsp. oregano.

Combine all ingredients in bowl; let stand several hours to blend flavors. Brush frequently over meat as it grills. Enough for 5 lbs. of meat.

MARINADE FOR BEEF, LAMB, OR CHICKEN

Preparation time: 5 min. / Marinating time: 1-2 hrs.

1 tbs. salt; ¾ tsp. cinnamon; 2 tbs. sugar; 2 tbs. soy sauce; 2 tbs. dry sherry.

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Spread mixture on both sides of meat. Marinate 1 to 2 hours. Grill over coals until tender. This marinade is particularly good with flank steak. Enough for 2-3 lbs. of meat.

BARBECUE MARINADE FOR LAMB OR PORK

Preparation time: 15 min. / Marinating time: 2 hrs.

1 c. bouillon or 1 beef-bouillon cube dissolved in 1 c. water; 2 c. cider vinegar; 2 tbs. Worcestershire sauce; 1 tbs. bottled meat sauce; 1 tsp. salt; 1 tbs. sugar; 3 mint leaves, crushed, or ½ tsp. dried mint leaves; dash of liquid red-pepper seasoning; ¼ tsp. black pepper; 1 tbs. mixed whole pickling spices; 3 slices orange; 2 slices lemon; 1 tbs. catsup; ½ tsp. basil; ½ tsp. oregano.

Combine all ingredients; simmer 30 minutes; strain. Pour over meat in shallow glass or enamel pan. Marinate at least 2 hours, turning frequently. Baste meat often with marinade as it cooks. Sufficient for 5-7 lbs. of meat.

EXTRAS TO COOK ON THE GRILL

BAKED SLICED POTATOES: Pare and cut potatoes into thick slices (allow 1 potato per person). Put each potato on a large square of heavy foil. Add a tablespoon of butter or margarine to each and sprinkle with seasoned salt, pepper, and paprika. Bring edges of foil together; twist to close. Cook on grill 1 hour, or in hot oven (425° F.) 45 minutes.

GRILLED VEGETABLES: Marinate green pepper strips, whole mushrooms, and cherry tomatoes in bottled Italian-style dressing. Thread vegetables alternately on skewers. Broil until tender, brushing occasionally with dressing.

GLAZED CARROTS: Pare and parboil 24 tender, young carrots or drain 1 can (about 1 lb.) carrots. Place 4 carrots on each of 6 large squares heavy foil. Add 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and 1 tablespoon maple-blended syrup to each. Bring edges of foil together, twist to close tightly. Grill 15 to 20 minutes.

BAKED BANANAS: Peel bananas (allow 1 per person) and brush with butter or margarine. Spread with thin coating of orange marmalade and sprinkle with lemon juice. Wrap each in heavy foil. Cook on grill or in moderate oven (375° F.) 15 minutes.

SWEET, SWEET POTATOES: Drain 2 cans sweet potatoes and divide among 6 squares of heavy foil. Brush potatoes with apricot preserves or orange marmalade. Drain 1 can (13½ oz.) pineapple chunks; top potatoes with pineapple. Bring edges of foil together; twist to close. Cook on grill or in moderate oven (375° F.) 15 minutes.

CHEESE TOMATOES: Cut firm, ripe tomatoes in half. Season with salt and pepper. Mix chopped green pepper, grated Cheddar cheese, and minced onion. Sprinkle on one half of tomato; top with second half; wrap in foil. Cook on grill 15 to 20 minutes, turning once or twice as they cook.

QUICK GERMAN POTATO SALAD: Pare, dice, cook, and drain 2 pounds potatoes. Add ½ cup onion-flavored salad-dressing mix and ½ cup diced cooked bacon. Toss well. Wrap in foil. Heat on grill 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Barbecue Accompaniments (pictured in color on pages 60 and 61)

EGGPLANT SICILIAN

Preparation time: 20 min./Cooking time: 15 min.

2 medium eggplants, pared and cubed; ⅔ c. pure vegetable oil; 1 c. sliced onion; 1 clove of garlic, crushed; 3 medium firm, ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and chopped; 4 tbs. wine vinegar; ¼ c. chopped parsley; ½ tsp. oregano; 1 c. diced celery; 1 tsp. salt; ⅛ tsp. pepper; 1 tbs. sugar; ¼ c. diced pimiento.

Sauté eggplant, a small amount at a time, in oil until lightly browned; remove from skillet; drain on paper towels. Sauté onion and garlic in remaining oil in skillet. Add tomatoes; simmer 2 to 3 minutes. Mix in eggplant, vinegar, parsley, oregano, celery, salt, pepper, and sugar. Simmer 15 minutes. Cool. Stir in pimiento. Chill several hours or overnight. Makes 5½ cups.

ZUCCHINI SKILLET CASSEROLE

Preparation time: 25 min./Cooking time: 25 min.

1 c. green pepper strips; 1 c. sliced onion; 3 tbs. butter or margarine; 1½ lbs. zucchini, sliced; 3 medium-sized firm, ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped or 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) Italian plum tomatoes; ¾ tsp. basil; 1 tsp. salt; dash of pepper; 1 tbs. cornstarch; 1 tbs. water; ¼ c. grated Parmesan cheese.

Sauté green pepper and onion in butter or margarine until soft. Add zucchini, tomatoes, basil, salt, and pepper. Cover; simmer 15 minutes. Blend cornstarch and water to a smooth paste; stir into mixture in skillet. Cook until thickened. Sprinkle with cheese. Broil just until cheese melts. Makes 6 servings.

CORN SOUFFLE

Preparation time: 15 min./Baking time: 50-55 min.

2 tbs. butter or margarine; 3 tbs. flour; 1 c. milk; 1½ tsp. onion juice; ½ tsp. dry mustard; dash of pepper; ½ c. shredded Cheddar cheese; 1 c. canned or cooked whole-kernel corn; 4 egg whites; ¼ tsp. cream of tartar; ¾ tsp. salt; 4 egg yolks, beaten.

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan; blend in flour; stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is very thick. Remove from heat. Add onion juice, mustard, pepper, and cheese; stir until cheese is melted. Stir in corn. Beat egg whites, cream of tartar, and salt until frothy; continue beating until stiff but not dry. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; fold into corn mixture. Fold in beaten egg whites. Turn into greased 2-quart casserole; set in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 55 minutes or until soufflé is puffed and firm. Makes 6 servings.

CREOLE CASSEROLE

Preparation time: 20 min./Baking time: 20-30 min.

½ c. chopped green pepper; ½ c. chopped onion; 2 tbs. butter or margarine; 1 medium firm, ripe tomato, peeled and chopped or 1 can (10 oz.) tomatoes, drained; 3 tbs. chopped parsley; 1 bay leaf, crushed; 1 tsp. chili powder; 1½ tsp. salt; ⅛ tsp. pepper; 5 c. cooked rice; 2 medium tomatoes, sliced; ½ c. grated Cheddar cheese.

Sauté green pepper and onion in butter or margarine just until soft. Add chopped tomato, parsley, bay leaf, chili powder, salt, and pepper. Simmer 3 minutes; add rice. Turn into greased 1½-quart casserole. Top with sliced tomatoes; sprinkle with cheese. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 20 to 30 minutes or until cheese melts and browns. Makes 6 servings.

FRIED RICE

Preparation time: 15 min./Cooking time: 10 min.

6 tbs. oil; 3 eggs, beaten; dash of salt; ½ c. chopped onion; 1 can (5 oz.) bamboo shoots, drained and slivered; ¼ lb. mushrooms, sliced; 6 c. cold cooked rice; 1 tbs. soy sauce.

Heat 1 tablespoon oil in skillet. Add eggs and salt. Fry until eggs are firm; remove to plate; cut into strips and reserve. Heat remaining 5 tablespoons oil in skillet. Add onion, bamboo shoots, and mushrooms. Sauté just until tender and crisp. Add rice; cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until heated through. Stir in the soy sauce and eggs. Taste and add more soy sauce, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

This General Electric Spacemaker gives you almost twice the room inside...

...as an old G-E 10-cu.ft. refrigerator (1948-1952), yet requires no more kitchen space.

The Spacemaker is an 18.8-cubic-foot refrigerator.

That's big.

But you can have all of this extra room without crowding or altering your kitchen. Because Spacemaker is only 67" high, 33 $\frac{3}{4}$ " wide.

Where does the extra room come from, if the refrigerator takes up no more kitchen space?

From thinner refrigerator walls! G.E. uses a revolutionary new urethane foam insulation that's only half as thick because it's twice as efficient as ordinary insulation. It keeps temperatures just right and operating costs low. Some competitive refrigerators have pared down efficiency while thinning down their walls.

This Spacemaker is quite a refrigerator. So much more room for food. Plus G.E.'s exclusive Roll-Out Freezer to end awkward bending and groping. And the remarkable Self-Filling Ice Tray that refills itself automatically when you close the freezer drawer. And no defrosting anywhere. See Spacemaker in coppertone, white or Mix-or-Match colors, now at your G-E dealer's.

LEA & PERRINS

TOMATO-AVOCADO MOUSSE

Preparation time: 20 min./Chilling time: several hrs.

6 medium-sized firm, ripe tomatoes; salt; 1 envelope unflavored gelatin; ¼ c. cold water; ¾ c. hot water; ½ tsp. salt; dash of pepper; 2 tbs. lemon juice; 2 tsp. grated onion; 1 cup mashed avocado, (1 large); ½ c. dairy sour cream; ½ c. mayonnaise or salad dressing.

Cut tops from stem ends of tomatoes; scoop out pulp and seeds (they can be used in other recipes). Salt insides of tomato shells; invert on paper towels. Soak gelatin in cold water; dissolve in hot water; add ½ teaspoon salt and pepper. Chill just until mixture begins to thicken. Combine lemon juice, onion, mashed avocado, sour cream, and mayonnaise or salad dressing. Fold into thickened gelatin. Spoon into tomato shells. (If you wish, you can omit tomatoes and mold salad in individual molds.) Chill until avocado mixture is firm. Makes 6 servings.

GOURMET BEANS

Preparation time: 15 min./Cooking time: 20 min.

1½ lbs. fresh green beans, tipped and cut in pieces; 3 tbs. butter or margarine; 2 tbs. chopped chives; 1 c. dairy sour cream; 1 tsp. dill weed.

Cook green beans in boiling, salted water until tender crisp; drain. Melt butter or margarine in small saucepan; stir in chives, sour cream, and dill weed. Pour over hot green beans. Makes 6 servings.

SAUERKRAUT SLAW

Preparation time: 10 min./Chilling time: 2 hrs.

3 c. fresh sauerkraut; 2 cloves of garlic, mashed; 1 c. dairy sour cream.

Combine sauerkraut and garlic in large bowl. Chill at least 2 hours. Just before serving, stir in sour cream. For extra flavor, add 1 teaspoon caraway seeds if you wish. Makes 6 servings.

MOLDED PEPPER RELISH

Preparation time: 20 min./Chilling time: several hrs.

1 pkg. (3 oz.) lemon or lime flavored gelatin; 1 c. hot water; 1 c. minus 2 tbs. cold water; 2 tbs. vinegar; ¾ tsp. salt; dash of pepper; 2 tsp. grated onion; ¼ c. finely diced green pepper; 1 c. finely chopped cabbage; ½ c. diced celery; ¼ c. sliced radishes.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water; stir in cold water, vinegar, salt, and pepper. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in remaining ingredients. Turn into 4-cup mold. Chill several hours or until firm. Unmold. Makes 6 servings.

GOURMET SALAD

Preparation time: 15 min./Marinating time: overnight

2 pkgs. (9 oz. ea.) frozen artichoke hearts; ½ c. olive or pure vegetable oil; 3 tbs. lemon juice; ½ tsp. salt; dash of pepper; 1 clove of garlic, mashed; ½ tsp. oregano; 1 head romaine; 1 large French endive; 1 small head of cauliflower, cut into flowerets; 3 tomatoes, cut in wedges; pitted ripe olives.

Cook artichoke hearts according to package directions; drain and place in shallow dish. Combine oil, lemon juice, salt, pepper, garlic, and oregano; mix well. Pour over artichoke hearts; let stand several hours or overnight. To serve, arrange several leaves romaine and endive on each salad plate. Place artichoke hearts, cauliflowerets, tomato wedges, and olives on leaves. Drizzle with any remaining dressing. Makes 6 servings.

PARTY MACARONI SALAD

Preparation time: 20 min./Chilling time: several hrs.

½ c. Roquefort cheese; ½ c. olive or pure vegetable oil; 3 tbs. wine vinegar; ¼ tsp. salt; dash of pepper; 6 c. cooked elbow macaroni (6 oz. uncooked); ½ c. sliced green onions; ¾ c. diced celery; ¼ c. diced green pepper; 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced; 3 firm, ripe tomatoes, cut in wedges.

Cream Roquefort cheese in salad bowl. Stir in oil gradually, keeping mixture smooth. Add vinegar, salt, and pepper; mix well. Add macaroni, green onions, celery, and green pepper. Toss until well coated with dressing. Chill. When ready to serve, garnish with hard-cooked eggs and tomato wedges. Makes 8 servings.

CURRIED POTATO SALAD

Preparation time: 15 min./Chilling time: several hrs.

7 c. cubed, cooked potatoes; $\frac{1}{2}$ c. diced green peppers; 1 c. diced celery; 2 hard-cooked eggs, diced; 1 c. mayonnaise or salad dressing; 1- $\frac{1}{2}$ tbs. curry powder (depending on taste); 2 tbs. grated onion; 3 tbs. lemon juice; 1- $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt; $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. pepper.

Mix potatoes, green pepper, celery, and hard-cooked eggs in large bowl. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over potato mixture. Toss gently until potatoes are coated. Chill several hours. Makes 2 quarts.

GLAZED SESAME ROLLS

Preparation time: 10 min.

3 tbs. melted butter or margarine; 1 tbs. honey; 1 pkg. brown 'n' serve small dinner rolls; 1 tbs. toasted sesame seeds.

Combine butter or margarine and honey; brush on tops of rolls; sprinkle with sesame seeds. Bake according to package directions.

QUICK ONION ROLLS

Preparation time: 10 min.

1 $\frac{1}{2}$ tbs. instant minced onion; 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ tbs. water; 2 tbs. melted butter or margarine; 1 pkg. refrigerated Parker House rolls.

Combine onion and water; let stand for 5 minutes. Add melted butter or margarine; brush over tops of rolls. Bake according to package directions.

FIESTA BREAD

Preparation time: 15 min.

$\frac{1}{4}$ c. soft butter or margarine; 1 c. grated Cheddar cheese; $\frac{1}{2}$ c. catsup; $\frac{1}{3}$ c. chopped ripe olives; $\frac{1}{3}$ c. chopped green pepper; $\frac{1}{3}$ c. chopped onion; 1 large or 2 small loaves French bread.

Mix butter or margarine, cheese, catsup, olives, green pepper, and onion thoroughly. Split bread lengthwise in half. Spread each half with butter mixture. Wrap each half in foil and heat in oven or on grill. Or, put halves together and wrap in foil before heating. Cut in slices to serve.

HERBED CRESCENTS

Preparation time: 5 min.

2 tbs. melted butter or margarine; $\frac{3}{4}$ tsp. mixed salad herbs; 1 pkg. refrigerated crescent rolls.

Combine butter or margarine and herbs. Brush on rolls; Shape and bake according to package directions.

TANGY BREAD

1,386 salads from now you'll still be glad you bought a Philco "Instant Cold" Refrigerator ...that's Philco lasting value

Without really trying, your family could eat well over thirteen hundred salads during the next ten years. Will you still be happy with your new refrigerator on that day in 1974 when you open its door to pop in salad number 1,386?

If it's a Philco "Instant Cold" Refrigerator, we're quite sure you will. You see, Philco "Instant Cold" Refrigerators have more reserve power. That means they maintain refrigerator and freezer temperatures more easily — run so little, so quiet and free from care. They don't have to work so hard. They're under less strain. So you can expect them to last longer — rarely need servicing.

Philco refrigerators are made so carefully, too, with such painstaking attention to detail. You can see this in the lovely jewel-case exterior styling with the new ceramic-like highlights. And in the solid construction of the carefully planned, practical interior conveniences. Like all Philco products, Philco "Instant Cold" Refrigerators are built for lasting value. That's why you'll be as happy with any Philco product years from now as when it's spanking-new.

Bridal Shower (pictured in color on pages 58 and 59)

THE TEA TABLE

For a formal tea, buffet service is usually the most practical. Set the dining-room table with the prettiest cloth available—lace, embroidered linen, or pastel organdy—your most delicate china, and gleaming silver.

Serve both tea and coffee. Place the tea service at one end of the table, the coffee service at the opposite end. If you do not have two services, arrange to borrow one from a friend or obtain one from a catering or rental service. To leave yourself free to welcome and circulate among your guests, ask two, or better four, of your friends to do the honors of pouring. It is better to ask more than two so they can take turns at the table and have an opportunity themselves to enjoy the party. When to ask them? At the time you invite them to the party.

Grace the table with a floral centerpiece and, you might even do as we did, make a bouquet from the flowered cupcakes. We tell you how in the recipe. If your shower is late afternoon, have lighted candles on the table. Then arrange your table as you would for any buffet, making everything convenient and accessible to the guests. Have saucers, cups, spoons, and napkins at either end of the table with the tea and coffee services. Place trays or plates of food on the table as attractively as possible. During the party be sure you, or someone you've asked to help, see that the table is replenished from time to time so it always looks bountiful.

TEA SANDWICHES

In making sandwiches be sure to prepare all the fillings first. They can stand while you prepare the breads—the bread shouldn't be left to dry out.

Next, line a shallow pan with several thicknesses of damp paper towels. Cover with a sheet of wax paper. Cut the bread into the specified shape and put it into the pan. Cover with wax paper and a layer of damp paper towels.

Work with one kind of filling at a time. Spread the bread first with a thin coating of soft butter or margarine to prevent the fillings from soaking through. Spread the bread with filling and roll or stack as called for in the recipe. Place again in same lined pan. Cover with wax paper and more damp towels and refrigerate. Rolled and stacked sandwiches must be chilled before you slice them. If any sandwiches have a top décor they should be handled slightly differently. After putting them in the lined pan, cover the pan tautly with foil or plastic wrap, so nothing rests on the tops of the sandwiches. Then chill them.

CURRIED CRAB-MEAT TARTLETS

2 c. sifted all-purpose flour; $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. salt; $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. sugar; $\frac{1}{2}$ c. butter or margarine; $\frac{1}{4}$ c. vegetable shortening; $\frac{1}{4}$ c. cold water; 2 cans (7 oz. each) crab meat, boned and finely chopped; $1\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. grated onion; $1\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. curry powder; $\frac{1}{4}$ c. mayonnaise or salad dressing; paprika; 3 hard-cooked eggs.

Sift flour, salt, and sugar into bowl. Cut butter or margarine and shortening in small pieces. Blend lightly into flour with fingers. Add water slowly, blending until mixture just clings together. Chill about 1 hour. Roll out $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch thick. Cut rounds with cookie cutter a little larger than tartlet pans; fit pastry into pans. Fill shells with raw rice to aid shells in holding shape. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) 5 minutes. Remove from oven; cool slightly; carefully remove rice. Put shells back in oven to brown, about 5 minutes more. Remove from pans; cool thoroughly. (Shells can be made ahead and frozen. Thaw before filling with crab-meat mixture.) Combine crab meat, onion, curry powder, and mayonnaise or salad dressing. Spoon filling into shells shortly before serving; dust with paprika. Garnish with cutouts from hard-cooked eggs. Chill. Makes about 6 dozen $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch tartlets.

GAY STRIPED RIBBONS

1 jar (5 oz.) Cheddar cheese spread; $\frac{1}{2}$ c. soft butter or margarine; 1 loaf thin-sliced white bread; 1 loaf thin-sliced whole-wheat bread.

Blend cheese and butter or margarine together. Trim crusts from 6 slices white and 6 slices whole-wheat bread. For each sandwich "block" allow 2 slices of white and 2 slices of whole-wheat. Spread 3 slices with filling; stack alternate slices; use fourth slice for top, press firmly. Wrap in plastic wrap or foil; chill. Slice block in half vertically; slice each half into thin ribbons. Each block yields about 16 sandwiches. These can be made a day ahead and chilled.

CAVIAR THIMBLES

1 loaf unsliced white bread; $\frac{1}{2}$ c. melted butter or margarine; 1 pkg. (8 oz.) process Swiss cheese; 1 jar (6 oz.) red caviar; sprigs of parsley.

Trim all crusts from loaf of bread. Cut bread into 1-inch cubes. Hollow out center of cubes with small sharp knife. Brush or dip all surfaces in butter or margarine; fill cavity with tiny snips of cheese. Arrange on cookie sheet. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) until golden brown. Cool. If not using at once, wrap in foil or plastic wrap and keep at room temperature. Just before serving top each with tiny spoonful of caviar; add parsley sprig for garnish. Makes about 30.

STRAWBERRY DAISIES

Thin-sliced white bread; 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese; $\frac{1}{4}$ c. chopped strawberries.

With daisy-shaped cookie cutter (available at most large department stores), cut out 72 daisies from bread. Beat cream cheese until soft; add strawberries; beat until well blended. To spread sandwiches with ease: make cone with triangle of wax paper; fill with strawberry mixture; snip off end of cone; pipe mixture onto 36 of the daisies; cover with remaining daisies. Garnish with additional strawberry-cheese filling if desired. Cover carefully and chill. Makes 36 sandwiches.

DEVILISH GOOD PINWHEELS

1 loaf unsliced white bread; 1 can (4 $\frac{1}{2}$ oz.) deviled ham; 1 tbs. finely chopped pimiento; dill pickle spears; soft butter or margarine; 1 c. chopped parsley.

Trim crusts from bread; cut loaf lengthwise into $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch slices. Roll each length of bread with rolling pin to render more flexible. Combine ham and pimiento; spread on bread, all the way to edge. At one end of bread (short end) press thin spear of dill pickle into place. Roll sandwich firmly like a jelly roll, starting with pickle end. Brush entire outside of roll with softened butter or margarine; roll in parsley. Wrap tightly in transparent plastic wrap or foil; chill. Each roll will slice into about 16 pinwheels. Enough filling for 4 lengths of bread.

TOMATO TREATS

1 pt. cherry tomatoes; 4 hard-cooked eggs; 1 tsp. grated onion; $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. salt; 1 tsp. lemon juice; 2 tbs. mayonnaise or salad dressing; 2 cans rolled anchovy fillets; 1 jar cocktail onions.

Cut thin slice off top of tomato; scoop out; turn over to drain. Chop eggs finely; blend in onion, salt, lemon juice, and mayonnaise or salad dressing. Spoon mixture into tomato; top with anchovy fillet. Spear cocktail onions on wooden pick; press upright into filling. Chill.

CHICKEN-MIMOSA TRIANGLES

1 loaf thin-sliced whole-wheat bread; 1 can (6 oz.) chicken, ground; 2 tbs. minced celery; 1 tbs. minced chives; $\frac{1}{4}$ c. stuffed olives, minced; $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt; $\frac{1}{8}$ tsp. pepper; 3 tbs. mayonnaise or salad dressing; 6 hard-cooked egg yolks; $\frac{1}{2}$ c. soft butter or margarine; parsley.

Cut triangles from whole-wheat bread. Combine chicken, celery, chives, olives, salt, pepper, and mayonnaise or salad dressing. Spread mixture on half the triangles; top with remaining triangles. Sieve egg yolks; cream well with butter or margarine. Press egg-butter mixture through decorating tube with small round tip to form design. Press parsley sprigs into design. Makes about 20 sandwiches.

ROSE-BOUQUET CUPCAKES

Preparation time: 15 min./Baking time: 18-20 min.

3 c. sifted cake flour; $2\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. baking powder; $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt; 1 c. milk; $\frac{3}{4}$ c. soft butter or margarine; $1\frac{1}{2}$ c. sugar; 3 eggs; $1\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. vanilla.

Line 2-inch cupcake pans with fluted paper liners. Set oven at hot (400° F.). Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together; measure milk. Combine butter or margarine, sugar, eggs, and vanilla in mixing bowl; beat at high speed on electric mixer until light and fluffy (3 to 4 minutes). Add flour mixture and milk alternately, beginning and ending with flour. Beat until smooth after each addition at low speed on mixer, scraping bottom and sides of bowl frequently. Fill cupcake pans half full. Bake 18 to 20 minutes. Remove from pans at once; cool on wire racks. Makes 48 cupcakes. If you have only one or two cupcake pans, batter may be refrigerated while one batch bakes.

LEMON-BUTTER FROSTING

$\frac{1}{2}$ c. soft butter or margarine; 1 box (1 lb.) sifted confectioners' sugar; 1 tsp. grated lemon rind; 3 to 4 tbs. lemon juice; few drops red food coloring.

Blend butter or margarine, 2 cups confectioners' sugar, and lemon rind until smooth. Add remaining sugar slowly alternately with enough lemon juice to make smooth and spreadable. Tint one half pale pink, leave other half white. Frost 24 cupcakes pink, 24 white. Frost smoothly to provide base for flower.

ROYAL FROSTING (ORNAMENTAL FROSTING)

3 egg whites; $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. cream of tartar; 1 pkg. (1 lb.) sifted confectioners' sugar; red and green food coloring.

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy. Beat in confectioners' sugar slowly; beat at high speed until mixture will hold its shape and knife drawn through frosting will leave sharp clean path. Frosting will harden quickly, so keep it covered with damp towel to prevent drying out. Divide into thirds. Leave one third white, tint one pale pink and remainder pale green. If frosting loses stiffness, beat hard to restiffen.

DECORATING CAKES

PAPER CONE: For decorating, you may use a decorating set, but paper cones are easy to use and disposable. To make one, fold square of bond, parchment, or wax paper to make perfect triangle; cut on fold line; this will give you 2 triangles. Using center of broadest side of triangle for point of cone, bring two points up toward third point (opposite point of cone). Move these points around until cone shape forms. Fasten with tape.

ROSE: Cut tip of paper cone to hold a #103 decorating tip. (This is a narrow, straight, wedge-shaped tip.) Half fill cone with pink Royal Frosting. Hold wide end of wedge tip close to surface. Turn white-frosted cupcake slowly with left hand, squeeze frosting to form upright cone. Squeeze 3 short lengths around cone to form compact center petals. Continue forming petals in this manner, tipping wedge slightly outward to form petals of full-grown rose. Form white roses on pink-frosted cupcakes.

LEAVES: Cut tip off paper cone; notch end. Half fill cone with green Royal Frosting. Pipe leaves around roses.

TO MAKE BOUQUET (as pictured): You will need a two-tiered stand. Perhaps you can make one from two round trays or flat plates, but here is what we did. Mark out two circles on half-inch plywood. Cut with jigsaw. We used a 13-inch and a 9-inch circle fastened in the center with a three-inch piece of one-and-a-half-inch dowel. If your cupcakes differ in size from ours, arrange them in circles to determine what size plywood circles to cut. Spray them with two coats of flat white. Cover with lace paper doilies, having scallops extend beyond wood edges. Alternate pink and white cupcakes around larger circle. Alternate rings of pink and white cupcakes on smaller circle. Add a white-ribbon bow and streamers.

Only Mazola® corn oil gives you these 4 benefits

THAT MODERN HOMEMAKERS DEMAND

- 1 100% pure golden corn oil. Mazola is not a blend of oils; it contains no cottonseed oil, no soybean oil, no safflower oil. Every drop of Mazola is pure corn oil which needs no artificial preservatives to protect its golden lightness, its golden goodness.
- 2 Most effective of all leading brands in cutting down saturated fats. Mazola provides active polyunsaturates. This means you can cut down your family's saturated fat intake by using Mazola instead of the more saturated fats and oils.
- 3 Fries light . . . golden . . . delicious. Mazola enhances the good taste of the foods you fry. Chicken, sea food, French fries—all turn out golden crisp outside . . . tender and juicy inside . . . these are Mazola's wonderful qualities.
- 4 No greasy, heavy taste . . . so easy to digest. Modern cooks take pride in serving meals both delicious and digestible. They are the women who won't settle for less than pure golden-light Mazola Corn Oil . . . to them it's the most precious of vegetable oils.

BASIC FRENCH DRESSING

- | | |
|--------------------------|------------------------|
| 1 cup MAZOLA Corn Oil | ½ teaspoon paprika |
| *⅓ to ½ cup vinegar | ½ teaspoon dry mustard |
| 1 to 3 tablespoons sugar | 1 clove garlic |
| 1½ teaspoons salt | |

Measure all ingredients into a bottle or jar. Cover tightly and shake well. Chill several hours, then remove garlic. Shake thoroughly before serving. Makes 1⅓ to 1½ cups.

Zesty Dressing: Follow above recipe. Add 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

*Lemon juice may be used for all or part of the vinegar if desired.

BRINGS A NEW LOOK TO A WELL-PLANNED KITCHEN

Information: Ann Rutledge Keyes Photographer: Maris/Ezra Stoller Assoc. Shopping Information, page 107

When Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stein bought their home in North Miami, Florida, the kitchen, though adequate, lacked both character and personality. The cabinets were the usual white, the wall treatment plain and rather uninteresting.

Mr. Stein is in the food business so the family thought the kitchen should be unique and a showplace for friends and business associates.

Since the Steins are not do-it-yourselfers, they called in help to do the work. It was first decided that no structural changes were necessary. The kitchen has its three important work centers for refrigeration, cleanup, and cooking. Each area was surrounded by expansive, uncluttered counter tops and plenty of cabinet storage.

No new appliances were needed, as those left by the former owners were up-to-date and equipped with all the important convenience features.

There was nothing wrong with the location of the kitchen either. For outdoor entertaining sliding glass doors open onto the poolside patio. A handy pass-through shelf in the window is used as a convenient service buffet.

The job then was primarily a decorating and accessorizing one. To achieve the results you see here, the cabinets were sprayed in shades of blue and green—cost of paint and labor, $250. The Steins chose a custom-colored wallpaper priced at $150 for 12 rolls. The Victorian lighting fixture and the four Victorian styled side chairs were found in a second-hand shop—the cost $220. The chairs needed reupholstering, and for easy cleaning the Steins chose a blue leather fabric costing $40. The contemporary metal-based table (cost $40) is covered with bright vinyl fabric edged with tassels to complete the Victorian look. Beads, which the Steins had, were used to make a decorative curtain at the window.

Total cost for this vibrant, attractive new look — a low $700.

Buyer's Guide to OUTDOOR COOKING EQUIPMENT

What's America's truly favorite "outdoor sport?" Golf? Baseball? No, eating! Everybody's cooking, dining, grilling out in the open, on the patio, or in the shade of the old apple tree. It's a mass exodus to the open spaces!

If you could travel the 50 states up, down, and sideways—pop in unexpectedly for dinner with a different family every night—you'd find everybody and his brother smacking his lips over delicious alfresco feasts out under the stars. The dinner gong no longer calls famished folks to the dining room. It calls them to the terrace, back porch, barbecue pit—or wherever the family chef is holding forth with outdoor grill or spit. Not only in the spring, fall, and summer but, in our balmier states, all year round. In fact, with our modern ranges and culinary gadgets, when the weather's cold or rainy, cooks can have a barbecue ball right in the kitchen, turning out delicious, simulated outdoor barbecue feasts.

Whether you call it a picnic, luau, weenie roast, clambake, or barbecue, first and foremost you need the proper equipment. Here we give you a run-down of some of the available equipment for a small gathering. We've purposely omitted the built-in brick variety of grills or cement block outdoor kind. We've left out the where-withals for large gatherings, Maine clambakes or Texas steer roasts, because the staging of these requires the know-how of experts.

There are barbecue cookers which use electricity for fuel; others which are tied into your gas line; some that use bottled gas; camp stoves that use propane, alcohol, and solidified canned heat; still others which use the rays of the sun for fuel; and a model which uses rolled newspaper. The most popular fuel is charcoal and charcoal briquettes occasionally enhanced by wood chips for additional flavor.

You may find it's fun to have one of the smallest of the charcoal cookers—the habachi. The small habachi needs as few as four charcoal briquettes, is available in models of cast iron (some are porcelain coated) or stainless steel. Larger models will hold a steak or four to six hot dogs or hamburgers. The heatproof legs on most models make it possible to use them as an attractive centerpiece on the table. Guests can prepare their own before-dinner tidbits. The heavenly smell of outdoor barbecuing stimulates the appetite for the delicious main course you'll serve from the kitchen. Because of their size, habachis are also popular with inside fireplace cooks. They are easy to clean and require little storage space.

For the picnicker or the apartment-dwelling chef, with a small terrace or postage-stamp back yard, the portable charcoal grills are ideal. Styles available include bucket models, about the size of large pails, where fuel can be packed in them, ready to kindle at a moment's notice. Folding grills are round or rectangular fire boxes supported by folding legs and topped with a grill. Many have their own storage containers. They are lightweight and pack compactly for easy transportation and storage. Braziers are round, shallow fire bowls on legs and are often equipped with wheels for easy moving. There is a wide variety of braziers in varied colors with a choice of accessories. Choose a brazier with an adjustable grill that can be raised or lowered for controlling heat. Another great aid to heat control is a draft door in the bottom of the bowl. Many are equipped with collars or hoods to shield the fire from wind. As you become more adept at outdoor cooking, you may wish to purchase a rotisserie or warming oven attachment. The rotisserie has an electric motor-driven spit (one new model has a swing-out spit for easy seasoning) and optional accessories including hot-dog skewers and baskets for fish or small pieces of chicken. The warming oven on top of the windbreaker is excellent for keeping rolls or vegetables piping hot until the meat is ready to serve. Small detachable serving tables are often available for braziers.

One step beyond the brazier, for those of you who are willing to spend a little more for equipment, is the covered kettle. Resembling a Dutch oven on legs, the covered kettle is sturdier than the brazier, is made of a heavy-duty metal, and has dampers in both the bottom and the cover. You can cook chops, steaks, and other flat meats in the covered kettle over direct heat. By placing the charcoal on the sides of the grill, separated by a drip pan, whole meats, as roasts and chickens, can be cooked by indirect heat. The cover reflects the heat evenly to all sides, eliminating the need for turning meats.

The more expensive equipment offers more cooking features. Cooking tables and wagons in their simplest form, include a brazier with attached shelves and work tables. However, the more elaborate ones rival the well-equipped kitchen. The gourmet chef can use the cooking units for frying, smoking, broiling, baking, or as a rotisserie. They are equipped with self-starters, push-button controls, spits, cutting boards, towel racks, condiment shelves, (continued)

do you have to paint your walls before you switch to Oil heat?

Maybe you didn't know it before, but there's no cleaner way to heat your home than with Oil. And that means that you won't have to give your walls that extra coat of paint. Or even paint more often than you would ordinarily have to.

But cleanliness is only one reason for heating your home with Oil. There are plenty of others, too. Like economy. Or dependability. Or safety.

And if hot water is important to you, it might interest you to know that Oil heats water at least three times faster than any other fuel. And that's faster than your family can use it up.

Have we convinced you to switch to Oil heat yet? We hope so, but if you still want more information, your neighborhood Fuel Oil Dealer is the man to see.

He'll tell you exactly why an Oil heating system is best for your home. So see him soon. Before you have to paint your walls an extra time again.

HERE'S HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR PROBLEM

SOIL

When you start gardening in a new or recently developed community, you soon learn why anyone who has a good lawn, foundation planting, or flower bed is so proud of it. Success does not come easily! The ground is so hard it takes almost Herculean effort to plant anything, and nothing seems to grow the way it should anyway. The reason, you may or may not find out, is that present-day building methods play havoc with the composition and texture of the soil. Most of the topsoil is lost in the process of land clearing, excavating, and grading, and whatever kind of soil remains is compacted almost to the consistency of concrete by the tremendous weight of the earth-moving equipment. Plant growth is adversely affected in direct proportion to the resultant infertility and impenetrability of the soil—and so is the pleasure of gardening!

So much for the recognition and explanation of the problem. What you really want to know is how to go about correcting it.

If you're lucky enough to live in an area where good quality topsoil is plentiful and cheap, the solution to your problem is quite simple. Spread about six inches of topsoil over all the ground where you intend to have a lawn and provide a foot or more of topsoil in the spots where you'll have flower beds. Dig oversize planting holes and fill with topsoil whenever you set out trees or shrubs. Then with normal attention to fertilizing, watering, spraying, and pruning, you'll soon have a splendid garden with a minimum of trouble.

If you're a home owner of average luck, however, you'll find that in your area topsoil is either unobtainable or prohibitively expensive. So you'll still want to know how you can solve your soil problem!

Fortunately the solution is not quite as difficult as you might suppose. By adding large quantities of organic matter and moderate amounts of fertilizer to that problem soil of yours, you'll actually turn it into first-rate topsoil within a very short time—for all practical purposes, in fact, almost instantly. Lawn grass, perennials, roses, shrubs, trees—everything—will respond immediately and your soil problem per se will be over.

The kind of organic matter to use is the kind that's most plentiful and cheapest in your area. Satisfactory materials include peat, leafmold, compost, animal manures, sewage sludge, sawdust, wood chips, ground bark, ground corncobs, chopped straw or hay, sugar cane refuse, spent hops, collected leaves, or any other low-value plant by-product that is not injurious to growing plants.

Peat is the most generally available organic material and has excellent soil-conditioning qualities. It is often quite strongly acid, however, and so it's advisable to add agricultural lime to reduce the acidity when using peat in acid-soil areas. It's not necessary to do so, of course, in alkaline-soil areas or when preparing soil for rhododendrons, azaleas, and other acid-loving plants. About two inches of peat should be worked into the upper six inches of soil for lawn making and larger amounts should be used when preparing soil for perennials, roses, and shrubs. So in a good-size garden use of peat may prove to be rather expensive.

Sawdust is available in unlimited quantity in some localities—at sawmills, lumberyards, woodworking factories, etc.—and often can be had for the cost of transporting it. The same is true of wood chips, produced by chipping machines that are used by utility companies and highway or park departments to dispose of the branches and trees that result from tree-trimming and tree-removal operations. Both these materials are good soil builders, though you'll need to use extra amounts of high-nitrogen fertilizer with them to offset their nitrogen-depleting effect. The bacteria which break down wood obtain their nitrogen from the soil, since there's practically none in the wood. It's necessary then, to supply additional nitrogen during the decomposition period. Two to three inches of sawdust or wood chips should be spread on the surface and worked into the upper six inches of soil.

Processed sewage sludge (known as "digested" sludge) is obtainable free from the sewage disposal plants of many small cities and towns and is sufficiently sanitary to use. It is an excellent soil-conditioning material and contains about 2 per cent nitrogen which adds to its value. Two or three inches of it should be spread on the surface and worked into the upper six inches of soil. "Activated" sewage sludge is usually produced by large-city disposal plants and sold in bags as an organic fertilizer. It contains 5 to 6 per cent nitrogen and other plant nutrients and, though a first-rate plant food, is usually too expensive to use as a soil conditioner.

Leafmold and compost are ideal soil-building materials, but not often available in sufficient quantity and at low enough price for extensive lawn and garden-making operations. Their nitrogen and other plant nutrient content is low and they need to be used at about the same rate as peatmoss.

Animal and poultry manures, if available at reasonable cost, are splendid soil conditioners and also contain small amounts (usually $\frac{1}{4}$ to 2 per cent) of nitrogen plus other plant nutrients. They may contain quite a bit of weed seed too, but with modern weedkillers this needn't be too important. Spread poultry manure one to two inches deep on the surface, and horse, cow, or other animal manure two to three inches deep and work it into the upper six inches.

Most of the other organic materials mentioned will do their job if spread two or three inches deep and worked into the soil. Loose, lightweight materials like chopped hay or straw, and collected leaves (often available from local park or road departments) may have to be used at heavier rates—say four inches deep—to provide enough organic matter to be worth-while. Even so, if they're available free or very cheap, they'll be a thoroughly sound investment.

The best way to use any of these organic materials is to spread them as evenly as possible and then to spread an extra-heavy application of lawn fertilizer (about three times the normal lawn rate) on top of the organic material. Next rotary-till the ground to a depth of about six inches or as deep as necessary to mix the organic material with the soil.

If the ground is covered by a struggling lawn of ryegrass and weeds, it'll make the rotary-tilling job easier if the grass and weeds are mowed as short as possible before the organic material is spread. Even so, unless you really love hard work, you'll be smart to hire a man with a large commercial rotary tiller to handle the job efficiently. If the soil contains a large amount of clay and is compacted as hard as it usually is in new developments—not to mention the presence of rock, roots, and other debris!—a small garden tiller or even a medium-sized rented machine just won't do the job easily or efficiently.

In the preparation of flower beds or other small areas where a large tiller can't be used, the organic material can be worked into the soil by the old-fashioned technique of spading or digging. If the ground is so hard you can't use a spade or fork, you can loosen it, before working organic matter into it, with a tool called a hydra-spade. This is a simple device that attaches to a garden hose and penetrates the hardest soil with a strong jet of water. When planting trees and shrubs, dig extra-large holes—at least twice as large as the roots actually require—and add plenty of organic matter and fertilizer when you fill in.

When conditioning your soil with organic matter and fertilizer, it'll be well to have a few samples of it tested by your county agricultural agent, located at the county seat. His report will tell you whether your soil is acid or alkaline, if it's deficient in any of the major plant nutrients, and what chemicals to add for the plants you intend to grow.

Adding organic material to your soil is something you only have to do once—plant roots and soil organisms will maintain it from then on—but adding fertilizer is something you'll have to do regularly and always! Lawn grasses are the hungriest plants in the garden, and to keep a lawn in the best condition it should be fed at least three times a year. Almost everything else—annuals, perennials, roses, shrubs, trees—should be fed at least once and preferably twice a year in the cooler parts of the country and two or three times a year in the warmer, long-season areas.

PRESCRIPTIONS FOR PAINT PROBLEMS

Every year millions of home owners take brush in one hand, paint can in the other, and proceed to give the outside of their house a bright, new coat of paint—one which they expect will last four, five, or six years. Anywhere from one month to three years later many of these same home owners, disgruntled and disappointed, will be back at the job of painting again.

If you're among this unhappy group beset by peeling, blistering, fading, or any other paint problem, you might be asking yourself "Is it providence or the paint itself that shortens the life of a paint job?" Unless you've used a cheap, unknown brand of paint, the answer is neither. Any good brand will last four to six years if it's used correctly. In almost every case, premature paint failure is due to the omission of an important step in surface preparation, improper application of paint, use of the wrong type of paint, or the existence of a serious moisture condition.

Ten of the most common types of paint failure, together with their causes and cures, are listed below. Chances are you'll find your particular problem among them. By following the prescribed treatment you can add years to the life of the next coat of paint you apply.

Blistering. If you notice many bubbles on any outside painted surface of your house, you have a blistering condition. One way to confirm this is to take a razor blade and slit a few of the bubbles. If blistered, the area beneath will feel wet; you might even see water seeping out.

Blistering is caused by moisture accumulating behind the paint, breaking its bond, and shoving the film outward. If permitted to go unchecked, the blisters may eventually break and lead to other more serious problems such as peeling, cracking.

To solve the problem, first determine whether the moisture is coming from outside or inside the house.

If blisters are localized around windows, dormers, or gutters and downspouts, the condition is originating externally. Blisters around windows and dormers indicate that caulking has probably cracked and water is seeping beneath the paint. To correct this, do a thorough recalking job. Even when there is no sign of blistering, a home should be recalked before new paint is applied.

Blisters around gutters and downspouts generally indicate one of several problems: the gutters aren't properly pitched and water is overflowing during heavy rains; a gutter or downspout is damaged and leaking; or a damming condition (perhaps a downspout is clogged) is causing water to back up and overflow. A minor repair job will remedy these.

If the blistering is not localized but found on large areas of the house, the moisture is probably coming from inside the house.

The tremendous amount of moisture created by clothes dryers, dishwashers, washing machines, sinks, showers, and cooking must get outside the house one way or another. If a home isn't properly ventilated, this moisture will go through the walls of the house. When it hits a nonporous oil-base-paint film, blistering results.

There are several ways to combat internal moisture and prevent paint from blistering. One is to apply latex paint to the house. This "breathing" paint permits moisture to escape through the paint film. However, before you apply latex paint, all the old paint must be taken off. Ordinarily, latex paint can be applied right over an oil-base paint if an intermediate primer is used. However, if this is done when blistering has occurred, the oil-base paint will continue to prevent the moisture from getting through. If the old oil-base paint has been removed by burning or scraping, subsequent painting and repainting with latex paint, according to the manufacturer's directions, will help assure a blister-free surface.

A better way to combat a build-up of internal moisture is to ventilate your home properly. Moisture-producing appliances, such as clothes dryers, should be vented to the outside. There should be adequate louvers in the attic. One square foot of louver is recommended for every 300 square feet of attic space. If these things fail to relieve the moisture problem, then you should consider the installation of tiny vent louvers around your home. Placed into the outside walls just above the sill and below the eave, these louvers dissipate the excess moisture to the outside by ventilating the stud spaces.

In all of the above cases, before repainting, scrape and sand the blistered area smooth and let it dry out.

Chalking. Under most conditions, chalking is normal and the way paint ages. The paint film begins to disintegrate slowly and becomes powdery within a year or so after it has been applied. Normal chalking is often desirable since dirt and soot that settle on the house are washed off with the chalk when it rains.

However, there is such a thing as abnormal or excessive chalking. This is what happens when the paint begins to chalk too soon after it's applied or at a very rapid rate.

To avoid this type of paint failure, you should not try to make a can of paint go too far. Spread it on evenly and thick enough to cover the old surface. Never apply paint in rain, fog, or mist, or if there is dew on the house. This can cause excessive chalking.

Applying only one coat of paint over a surface that is too porous will also cause abnormal chalking. This results in a breakdown of the paint's binder and its ability to chalk properly is impaired. Suppose, for example, you decide to paint your house a charcoal gray. It's now covered with a white paint that's been on for several years.

Gray has good hiding powers when applied over the old white surface, and you may feel one coat is enough. But what happens?

The binder of the gray paint is rapidly absorbed by the porous surface beneath. Only a thin coat of gray is left on the surface and, soon after, it begins to chalk and wash away. When the white paint shows through the gray surface, blotches appear.

This is probably the best reason for always applying two coats of new paint.

Chalk-retardant paints are available and should be used where free chalking is not desirable. They last much longer, but, of course, they will not clean.

Chalk-retardant paint is particularly recommended for painting wood surfaces that are in contact with, or above, masonry. It prevents chalk run-off onto the masonry, which produces a stain. This product is also recommended if a home is in an area of heavy rainfall. Don't forget: the more it rains and the more a paint chinks, the more its life will be shortened.

Checking and Alligating. Tiny, interlaced cracks appearing over the paint surface indicate a checking condition. Alligating is an advanced stage of checking in which the paint surface becomes interlaced with cracked lines; it literally resembles an alligator's skin. If checking is noticed, it should be repaired before it reaches the alligating stage.

A major cause of checking is the use of a cheap paint with insufficient binder. Another cause is not allowing enough drying time between two coats of paint. If the first coat is not dry when the second coat is applied, it contracts and absorbs some of the binder of the second coat, causing checks to appear.

If you encounter checks or alligating on any part of the house, scrape and sand the area smooth before repainting.

Cracking. When this condition prevails, paint cracks all the way down to bare wood, causing the paint film to curl up at the cracked edges.

Cracking can be the result of several things. There may have been excessive moisture on the surface when the paint was applied which led to (continued)

(continued) blistering or peeling and to cracking. An inferior paint, lacking in elastic qualities, might have been used. The paint film must have sufficient elasticity to permit it to expand and contract along with the wood.

Cracking can also result if paint isn't properly mixed before its application or if it isn't brushed on evenly and smoothly. In these instances, oil and solid paint particles tend to clump together and can raise globules of paint in localized areas. When dry, the paint cracks and begins to curl back.

Where cracked paint is encountered, it should be removed down to bare wood before repainting. Never apply new paint on top of it, since the top coating will begin to crack again as the curled edges of the old paint start to push upward.

Crawling. When you begin to paint and you notice that the paint is drawing itself up into drops or globules soon after it's applied, you had better stop. This is called crawling and, should you continue, the globs will dry and begin to crack.

Consider these questions which will lead you to the cause of the crawling condition: Is the weather chilly or foggy? Am I using a rubber-base paint directly on top of an oil-base paint without a primer? Did I mix the paint thoroughly to distribute liquid and solid particles evenly throughout the paint? Did I use a paint remover on the surface prior to painting so that the surface was greasy or waxy?

To prevent crawling, paint on a clear, dry day with the temperature no lower than 50 degrees. Mix the paint properly. If you must paint over a greasy or waxy surface, rub that surface with turpentine and steel wool, and then apply a bonding primer before putting on the finish coat. Don't mix paint with different bases.

Fading. All colored paints eventually fade. However, there are certain factors which dictate whether some paints will do this faster than others.

The paint on homes near salt water, for example, will fade much faster since salt air affects paint adversely.

If one side of your house is subjected to heavy poundings of wind-driven rain and snow, and then bright sunlight, it will fade faster than the other sides. You don't have much control over weather conditions, but keep in mind that cheaper paints fade faster than the more expensive types because they contain less or cheaper color pigments.

Bleeding. This type of stain occurs most frequently on natural redwood or cedar siding and shingles. The soluble color, or sap of the wood begins to run (or bleed) and the siding or shingles are stained. Usually the trouble arises from inadequate sealing of the wood due to thin paint films be sanded or scraped clean, coated with a knot sealer, and top-coated with paint that matches the surrounding surface.

Wrinkling. If the paint assumes a rough crinkled texture, you have a condition known as wrinkling. The main cause of wrinkling is application of too thick a coat. Never try to make one coat of paint do the work of two, since the top surface will dry first and ceive sunlight. You can get rid of the fungus by scrubbing the affected area with a solution of trisodium phosphate (available in paint stores) mixed with household ammonia and water, followed by a thorough rinsing with water. Also, look over the area and determine if you can get some sunlight on it. Perhaps a rearrangement of shrubs or plantings will suffice.

Air-carried industrial chemicals are the leading cause of sulfide discoloration. This type of paint failure, however, is not necessarily confined to homes located in or near industrial sites. Sulfide discoloration can occur in any location where there is rotting vegetable or animal matter, as near a stagnant beach or swamp.

Sulfide stains can be removed by a hydrogen-peroxide solution but the results are rarely worth the effort. If the stain doesn't disappear by itself as a result of chalking, the best solution is repainting.

When mildew or sulfide discoloration are present, use a special fume- and mildew-resistant paint that will combat the condition. This type of paint will not discolor when exposed to hydrogen sulfide. It also has a fungicide such as a phenyl-mercuric compound added to it.

Peeling. There are two types of peeling paint. The peeling can take place between the top coat of paint and the paint surface directly underneath it or the entire paint film can peel, exposing the bare wood. Peeling between coats is usually caused by the application of paint to a greasy or oily surface. It can also be caused by painting over an area that is too smooth or glossy—as is often the case under eaves where old paint was protected from weather.

Before repainting, always roughen hard, glossy surfaces with sandpaper and remove loose flakes of old paint where peeling has occurred. Greasy or oily material should be removed by washing with a detergent, wiping with solvent, or by sanding.

If peeling occurs between the paint film and wood surface it is usually the result of a moisture problem. Often, paint blisters will break open, causing the paint film to curl back and flake off. The moisture problem should be cured before repainting.

Regardless of the type of paint failure you have, an important part of the remedy will always be the use of a well-known, reliable brand of paint when you repaint your house. THE END or an irregular application. This allows moisture to penetrate the wood and extract the dye.

To prevent this action, apply a coat of shake-shingle paint to the surface to help prevent water penetration. If the wood siding or shingles have a natural finish, a coat of spar varnish will help. Sometimes excessive moisture originating from inside the house is the source of the trouble. (See Blistering for remedies.)

If the bleeding is caused by knots in the wood, the stained areas should leave the bottom still soft. As the bottom surface attempts to dry, it could absorb the binder of the top paint and make that paint wrinkle.

Wrinkling can also occur if paint is applied to a cold surface. In this case, only the top surface dries while the colder bottom surface remains soft.

Mildew and Sulfide Discoloration. These take the form of rusty or sooty deposits on the paint surface.

Mildew occurs primarily in damp climates, but it can happen anywhere if a portion of the house doesn't re-

CLOSING IN PORCH OPENS UP OPPORTUNITIES

The Fred Pain family, of Cold Spring Harbor, New York, decided it was time to get a fresh start on a room to live in. The family room was crowded and the porch outside it was not as useful as extra space in the living room would be. So they decided to enclose the porch. By using lots of glass they could still enjoy the wooded scene outside. And they could step from the living room directly to the flagstone terrace. The main structural problem was to remove a bearing wall without installing an unsightly beam at this point. This was solved by using a steel beam and attaching 2x4s to it to hold up the roof. They closed off a window that opened onto the old porch and one by the fireplace, built a storage wall, paneled the room, and then sat back to enjoy the results.

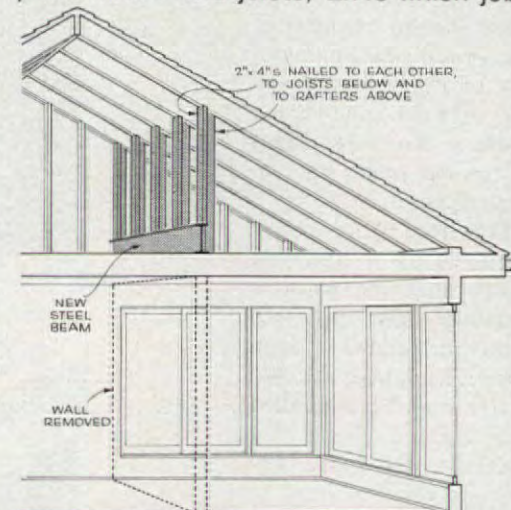

Small porch was enclosed to enlarge the living room without isolating house from the outdoors.

Darkened area was the porch. Plan shows space gained by enclosing it, and removing the two windows. The living room nearly doubles in size and usefulness.

Sketch shows how bearing wall was removed and steel beam installed to support rafters and joists; 2x4s finish job.

Andersen Narroline Window shown with removable grille.

This window will be just as easy for her grandchildren to open.

Because it's an Andersen Window. It will neither stick nor bind. Nor warp. Nor rot. Nor rust. Nor corrode.

It will last through many generations of active living. Probably last longer than the home you build or buy.

It's the way Andersen Windows are made. Select wood milled to extremely fine tolerances. Treated for lifetime protection from termites and decay. Hardware, even screws and nails specially designed for each window type. Each window carefully assembled by skilled hands dedicated to the job of building fine windows.

Each window is precision built to serve you for life with all the low maintenance comfort and operating ease it had the day you selected Andersen Windows for your home.

Of course, there are added values in owning Andersen Windows. Things like welded insulating glass that eliminates the need for storm windows . . . gives two fewer glass surfaces to keep clean.

Or removable grilles that pop in or out instantly for easier window cleaning.

Or perhaps most important, weathertight construction (up to 4 times tighter than ordinary windows) that means savings of 15% or more on fuel costs!

Maybe that's why our best salesmen are the folks who've lived with Andersen Windows. There are some in almost every neighborhood. Talk to a few before you build or buy.

Next best, visit your Andersen lumber dealer or distributor. Ask to see all 5 beautiful types (hundreds of sizes). Ask for a complete demonstration of the quality features that make Andersen Windows worth much more than the little extra you pay.

THE CENTURIES-OLD PLEASURE OF AUCTIONS

Saturday afternoons at our house used to be spent cleaning house.

Several months ago we staged a revolution. We decided that after a nine-to-five week, Saturday should be spent pampering the morale, not plumping pillows. Determined never again to let chores run our weekends, we set out, frantically fleeing table-top dust, in pursuit of pleasure. One of our most exciting forays led to the discovery of what is our now-favorite pastime—the Saturday auction.

Our first auction was an historic moment. Carried away by the feverishly competitive spirit, we lost track of our ordinarily money-minded nature. We bought an authentic bookcase (of what era we never did find out), which amounted to seven wobbly boards when the varnish and Pennsylvania Dutch hex signs were removed.

However, to our own amazement, we went back for more. Now that we've learned a few helpful auction hints and set limits to our budget, we've been more successful. For very little, we've enhanced our decorating scheme with a Limoges tea set, a Pennsylvania Dutch clock, a Swedish china candelabrum, a marble-top chest, a Boston rocker, and some leather-bound histories published in the 18th century.

On a recent trip to the land of red barn and rocking chair, we began to think about the possible origins of the auction. Our next visit to the library—the ultimate in antiquity—led not only to some of the answers but to an interesting path in history.

Perhaps even more amazing than the recent sale in New York of Rembrandt's "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer" was the auctioning of the entire Roman Empire in the 1st century, A.D. To the final bidder, Senator Didius Julianus, also went the emperor's crown—neither of which was taken too seriously from some accounts. Didius was soon overthrown, assassinated, and his bargain lost.

But bidding-fever spread and, as with the many plagues that stormed England, so it was with the auction.

The British adopted a bidding system popularly known as sale by candle or inch of candle. This method is fairly simple. The auctioneer was supplied with a number of small candles. When a bid was made he would light one of them. If the flame expired before an additional amount was offered, the sale was ended. If, however, an additional bid was made before the candle burned out, the auctioneer offer successively lower amounts until one was accepted.

Although not used exclusively, the Dutch auction was used often in selling girls for wives. The higher prices were accepted for more attractive women; the less-comely girls sold at bargain rates. When a bidding was completed, the buyer had to promise the auctioneer that he would marry his Dutch had bartered 80 guilders, bright cloth, trinkets, and the popularly referred-to beads for the green fields of Manhattan Island.

During the early colonization, the auction was found to be the most economical way to dispose of European merchandise. Boston, having one of the busiest ports of the 18th century, became known as the auction center for the colonies.

Auction merchandise was by no means limited to the northern colonies or to supplies from Europe. In the Southern communities the tobacco auction became the most successful way of reaping profits from the musty leaf.

Farm products are still sold by this time-tried method. But probably, the most popular auctions today involve collections, such as stamps and coins, great works of art, rare books, and the endless array of Early American and Victorian items sold at country auctions.

Having become enthusiastic members of the auction world jet set, we've encouraged friends and relatives to join the fun. It has become a weekend ritual to lead caravans of friends who follow us in half-empty cars, which they hope to fill by the late afternoon.

One of our friends has practically refurnished his home with auction treasures. His latest purchase was a Victorian couch which he gleaned for a mere $40. Thrilled about his bargain, he insisted we come to his house on the day of its delivery. The movers, upon arriving at the front door, found the couch too large to move in. Several hours later, sitting in the living room, we resolved how to replace the bowed window through which the $40 tufted beauty had made its awkward entrance.

But, where could you find so much Saturday entertainment for so little?

Discounting the occasional frustration of being outbid, wouldn't you enjoy bargain searching in Pennsylvania Dutchland, New England, Manhattan, or anywhere the auction sign swings invitingly?

Your local antique shop can tell you about publications listing auctions being held in your area. And your local newspaper will list them as well as the house and estate sales, which, though not really auctions, are the source of many inexpensive and decorative pieces which will be sure to add character and interest to your home.

would extinguish the flame and light another taper. This continued until one candle did completely burn down. This plan allowed buyers adequate time to decide on their next bids. In selling by candle, the auctioneer would sometimes time the bidding only one large candle.

The Dutch auction finds its origin, not in the Netherlands, but in the market places of the early empires. The auctioneer in this case would propose a certain high amount to the buyers. If the item or person was not bid for at that price, the auctioneer would purchase, and only after the ceremony would he get full possession of the girl.

Other techniques of selling have also been recorded, including that of using a sandglass to time the length of bidding and that of ending a sale when a running boy reached his goal. These, however, seem less fair to the buyer than that of sale by candle. Today, most auctioneers use a hammer fall to end a sale, although the tobacco auctioneer uses a hand clap.

The auction in America finds its first recorded appearance in 1662 in New Amsterdam, 36 years after the about an inch across in white, pink, or rose. The plants grow from large bulbs which you can pot in April in a terrestrial compost. Place them outside as soon as the weather permits (55° minimum at night), and water them heavily during the hot summer months. When growth has finished in October or earlier, allow them to dry out somewhat and bring them indoors. Flower spikes usually appear in November or December and you can resume watering then. At that time, the plants will probably lose their leaves. Calanthes bloom in midwinter and the flowers are extremely long lasting. After the plants have finished flowering, dry them out completely and store at 60° in a dark place until it's time to repot them the following spring.

The coelogyne family (13 on page 54) offers C. ochracea, with small white and orange flowers; C. massangeana, a larger plant; and C. dayana, a medium-size plant with ocher and creamy brown, almost coffee-colored flowers. During the autumn and winter months, keep plants moderately moist and place them in a west or north exposure. On the patio place them under large shrubs or small trees with dappled sunlight. C. massangeana and C. dayana with 20 or 30 flowers to a scape are dazzling in hanging baskets or placed on ledges. The coelogyne are among the loveliest of the summer bloomers.

The dendrobium orchids produce perhaps the most handsome flowers of the commonly cultivated varieties. They are delicate and beautiful. Dendrobium dalhousieanum, D. fimbriatum, D. moschatum (3), D. pierardi, thyrsoflorum, and wardianum are all worth-while plants that will respond wonderfully to outdoor growing in almost full sun with plenty of water. Some are deciduous and will lose their leaves while others keep their foliage. They bloom from new as well as old growths. Dry the plants out severely when growth stops in late September. You can leave them on the patio until the weather is in the forties but take them indoors around late November. Keep them at about 60° and resume watering when flower nodes appear. The abundance of flowers and variety of color—from orange and beige to golden yellow—will amaze you in early spring. For proper flowering, however, these dendrobiums must have a temperature change. In year-round warm climates, keep them as cool as possible in late fall and give them more heat later on.

Laelias are sun-loving orchids with two species—L. crispa and L. autumnalis—particularly good plants. They produce handsome, large rose or white flowers in summer or autumn. Keep them at a south or east window aromatica (11) and L. cruenta with two-inch yellow blooms, and L. deppei (8) and L. skinneri with large six-inch flowers make fine plants when grown outside during the summer months and moved indoors for winter flowering. When indoors, keep them rather dry for they are almost dormant during the cold months after blooming and will generally shed their foliage. In early spring, you can place them level on bricks or wood slats. They are superb wherever vertical accent is needed. The yellow color of the flowers, characteristic of oncidiums, is extremely vivid and cheerful outdoors, on the patio, or in the atrium.

Phaius orchids (maculatus, tankervilleae, or grandifolius) can be grown indoors, but will respond much better with some outdoor growing. P. tankervilleae is a large, graceful plant with especially handsome foliage. The tapered dark green leaves are about 48" long and extremely decorative on the terrace. P. maculatus is smaller, with dark green leaves spotted yellow. The blooms are large (three to four inches) and produced in spring. Grow phaius orchids in a good terrestrial compost, in rather large pots. Water heavily while they're growing outdoors. They are sometimes deciduous and will probably lose their leaves the second year.

The orchids in the vanda group have large flowers about three to four inches across, in pink, rose, lavender, or pale blue. Although not really suited for indoor growing, Vanda caerulea (15), V. suavis, and V. teres will survive the winter months provided they have a summer outdoors in full sunshine. Vandas are not particularly handsome as foliage plants and sometimes grow awkwardly large. But a healthy plant may produce one magnificent flower spike after another and thus bloom continuously for months. There are as many as 20 to 30 blooms to each spike! Water the vandas heavily while they're outside, and give them additional fertilizer (10-10-5). Flowering is variable, usually in summer and fall.

An orchid that is very easy to grow is Brassavola nodosa—known as "the lady of the night." It's a small plant with large, scalloped white flowers and a delightful fragrance that perfumes the entire growing area at night. Give it lots of water and sunshine and it will bloom prolifically—indoors or on the terrace.

Where temperate conditions prevail all year long, you can grow orchids from the arachnis, angraecum, brasilia, saccolabium, and tall-growing renanthera groups. They are mostly large plants, suitable for terraces, patios, and atriums, and richly rewarding, for they are very floriferous. Give them four hours of sunshine daily and warm temperatures. They'll be a constant source of delight. THE END with plenty of water when in growth. L. superbiens is an excellent patio or terrace plant. It's fairly large, from three to four feet tall, with five- to six-foot flower spikes crowned with large rose-purple blooms. This one is dramatic in a corner of the patio or atrium—wherever mass is needed. Take it inside when temperatures drop below 52° and dry it out somewhat to encourage the flower spike. It will bloom in winter.

Lycastes are excellent indoor plants that will need filtered sunlight. L.

outdoors and resume watering. They are medium-size plants that grow from 24 to 36 inches tall.

A step ahead

Westinghouse room air conditioner. The strong, silent type.

You have a great big hot place to cool? You've come to the right people. This Super High Capacity Westinghouse Room Air Conditioner (we call it the Southerner) puts out up to 23,500 btu's worth of cool air, and keeps awfully quiet about it. You'll feel the cool, filtered air, all right—in every corner of the room. This Westinghouse has an adjustable thermostat, too, to maintain the temperature you like automatically. When you're ready to cool just drop its handsome wood-front panel down and slide it to the side—and there are the controls. Now select the temperature you want...slide the front back into place...and forget it. (By the way, the front is reversible—walnut on one side, cherry on the other.) You'll like the Southerner by Westinghouse...a real super high capacity air conditioner.

You can be sure if it's Westinghouse

LAMPS IN THE BEST TRADITION

Unlike a modern lamp which is often a room's one dramatic accessory, a traditional lamp should have quiet good taste in keeping with the character of its setting.

Whatever style base you choose, vase shape, candlestick, oil lamp, figurine, or column, a simple shade is preferred. Examples here show the relative importance of style, height, and shape to the furniture it serves and to the over-all decoration.

Antique-finished lamp with parchment shade, lights and decorates a dark foyer. The lamp, harmonizing with the rich tones of a wood chest, nicely fills the space between wall cupboard and pictures.

A table would be in the way between door and fireplace, but this floor lamp fits in with ease. It has a fluted and tapered stand with triangular base. The simple off-white shade is just right for the room's classic details. Lamp is placed to throw light over the left shoulder for reading.

This smart little brass candleabra with black toile shade illuminates a writing area without overpowering the desk. The simple but graceful design adds a French touch to the dramatic pattern on the walls. A desk lamp does not have to be as tall as other types of lamps in the room.

Some common plant pests and how to control them

Despite the controversy that still simmers over pesticides, the fact remains that you're not likely to have healthy, robust plants without pest control. Although most pesticides can be harmful to humans and animals, they are relatively safe if used at the manufacturer's recommended rates of application and if the precautions printed on package labels are followed. This month we'll discuss the most common plant pests along with their suggested controls. Acquaint yourself with them so you will be able to use pesticides more intelligently.

You'll often find aphids—small, soft-bodied insects—attacking the tender growing stems and leaves of many ornamentals. You'll probably see them on roses, annuals, mums, crapemyrtles, gardenias, and other plants. Repeated applications of rotenone, lindane, or malathion are necessary for adequate control.

Ants frequently infest lawns and are commonly found on the sticky buds of peonies and other plants. Chlordane, dieldrin, or heptachlor will give control for several years.

Lacebugs are small insects that feed on the undersides of leaves. They have black bodies and colored or variegated wings. A common pest of azaleas and pyracanthas, they cause upper leaf surfaces to turn light green or yellow and eventually brown. The underside of the leaf will also show evidence of insect damage. Malathion or lindane will give good control. Make two applications seven to ten days apart on the under surfaces of the leaves. A new insecticide called Zectran will be available in several areas of the Southeast this season and has given control with one treatment.

Spider mites or red spider are very small pests also found on the underside of foliage. Heavy infestation of mites will result in discoloration of leaves. The pest is frequently found on roses, azaleas, and Japanese hollies, among others. Since mites have been noted to develop resistance to insecticides, alternate spraying with different materials. Malathion, kelthane, and trithion all give good control when applied to the underside of foliage. Generally, three applications five to seven days apart are necessary to eliminate mites.

Thrips are very small, pale-colored insects that are common on rose flowers, chrysanthemums, gladiolus, and other plants. Heavy infestations are difficult to control, but frequent dusting with malathion, DDT, or lindane is generally better than a spray. Start dusting roses in early spring before buds open.

Scale insects of various species attack a wide variety of ornamental plants, among them camellias and hollies. Scale is generally found on the undersides of leaves but may also be present on stems. Dormant oil sprays are the best control but should not be applied during summer. Use them only in the fall or late winter when temperatures are between 40° and 80°. Malathion applied frequently will control scale insects when they're in the "crawler" stage. For camellias and many other plants, a new systemic insecticide called Cygon can be applied as a spray or soil drench.

Chinch bug is a small, dark insect that attacks lawn grass—especially St. Augustine. The best controls are DDT, diazinon, trithion, and ethion. If you use any of them as a spray, irrigate the lawn well before applying the pesticide. If you apply the chemical in dust or granular form, wet the grass thoroughly after treatment.

White fly is a small white insect that may appear in large numbers on gardenias and other broadleaf evergreens. A black sooty fungus is usually associated with the presence of white fly. If you eliminate the insect, the fungus too will disappear. The immature forms of white fly, small scale-like insects, can be found on the undersides of leaves. Repeated applications—10 days apart—of DDT or malathion will keep them under control in your garden.

Mildew is a common fungus disease of roses, crapemyrtles, and many annuals, especially zinnias. It generally appears in the form of a grayish cast on the leaves in the early spring and late summer. Applications of Karathane or Mildex will eliminate it.

For most efficient control of insect pests, keep your sprayer and duster in good working condition and don't apply pesticides haphazardly. Learn to recognize pests and use the proper pesticides with caution.

RICE IS NICE

From Hong Kong to Houston, people the world over have one great love in common. Rice! Look at the countless ways we use rice every day! It may be served as a vegetable, main dish, or glamorous dessert. Here are some spanking new recipes to give you a change of pace. Try them next time you reach for the rice!

APRICOT-RICE MERINGUE

Cooking time: 30 min.

Baking time: 12-15 min.

- 1 c. long grain rice
- 1 qt. scalded milk
- ½ c. sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- ½ tsp. mace
- 1 tbs. butter or margarine
- 3 egg yolks
- 2 tbs. milk
- ½ c. toasted slivered almonds
- 1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) whole apricots, drained and pitted
- 3 egg whites
- ¼ tsp. cream of tartar
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 6 tbs. sugar

Cover rice with cold water; bring to boiling; let stand 5 minutes; drain. Combine rice, 1 quart milk, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, vanilla, mace, and butter or margarine. Cover; simmer 30 minutes. Combine egg yolks and 2 tablespoons milk; add to rice mixture stirring quickly. Add almonds. Pour pudding into buttered 2-quart casserole. Let stand 5 minutes. Arrange apricots over top. Beat egg whites, cream of tartar, and ¼ teaspoon salt until fluffy. Gradually add 6 tablespoons sugar; beat until stiff peaks form. Swirl meringue on top of pudding. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 12 to 15 minutes or until meringue is browned. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CURRIED CHICKEN SALAD

Preparation time: 20 min.

Chilling time: 2 hrs.

- 1¼ c. mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1½ tsp. curry powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. black pepper
- 1½ tbs. lemon juice
- 2 c. cooked rice
- 2 c. cooked, diced chicken
- 1 c. diced celery
- ½ c. sliced green onions
- 1½ c. cooked peas
- 2 tbs. diced pimiento

Combine mayonnaise or salad dressing, curry powder, salt, pepper, and lemon juice. Add rice, chicken, celery, green onions, peas, and pimiento; mix well. Chill. Makes 6 servings.

RICE AND PEAS ROMANO

Preparation time: 20 min.

Cooking time: 20 min.

- 3 slices bacon
- ½ c. finely chopped onion

- ¾ c. condensed consommé
- ¾ c. water
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen peas
- 2 tbs. chopped parsley
- ½ tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. black pepper
- ¼ tsp. thyme
- 1½ c. precooked packaged rice
- 3 tbs. grated Parmesan cheese

Cook bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. Sauté onion in bacon drippings. Add consommé, water, peas, parsley, salt, pepper, and thyme. Cover; simmer 3 minutes. Add rice; mix well; cover; set aside for 10 minutes. Add cheese and bacon; mix well. Makes 6 servings.

JAMBALAYA

Preparation time: 25 min.

Cooking time: 40 min.

- ½ c. chopped onion
- 1 clove of garlic, mashed
- ¼ c. diced green pepper
- 2 tbs. salad oil
- 3 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and chopped
- 2 c. chicken broth
- ¾ c. long grain rice
- 1 small bay leaf
- ½ tsp. chili powder
- ¼ tsp. cloves
- ¼ tsp. thyme
- 1 tsp. salt
- Dash of cayenne
- 1 lb. shrimp, shelled and deveined
- 1 c. diced cooked ham

Sauté onions, garlic, and green pepper in oil until tender. Add tomatoes, chicken broth, rice, bay leaf, chili powder, cloves, thyme, salt, and cayenne. Cover tightly; simmer 20 minutes. Add shrimp and ham; simmer 10 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

FRUITED RICE RING

Preparation time: 25 min.

Chilling time: several hrs.

- ¾ c. candied mixed fruit
- 2 tbs. brandy or 1 tsp. almond extract
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ c. cold water
- 2 c. scalded milk
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- ½ c. sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 2 c. cooked rice
- ½ c. heavy cream, whipped

Marinate fruit in brandy or almond extract. Soak gelatin in water. Add scalded milk to eggs, mixing quickly; add sugar. Cook over low heat stirring constantly until custard coats spoon. Remove from heat; add gelatin and vanilla, mixing well. Chill until custard sauce begins to thicken and jelly. Fold in candied fruit, rice, and whipped cream. Pour pudding into 8-inch (5-cup) buttered ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve with additional whipped cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

"It took just $850 and two days to air condition my entire home."

Mr. Clarence Tresler of Houston, Texas tells how easy and economical it is to enjoy the benefits of General Electric Central Air Conditioning.

"Many folks think that air conditioning a house takes lots of money and means your home is all torn up," says Mr. Tresler. "Actually, if you have forced-air heat like we do, the job can be simple and inexpensive." The Treslers' home, at 3707 Broch Street in Houston, has five rooms, with two bedrooms, and 1450 sq. ft. of living space.

"I'm in the refrigeration business," Mr. Tresler adds. "So when it came to central air conditioning, I chose General Electric, because it's reliable. In three years, our 2½-ton system hasn't needed one service call."

Mr. Tresler: "Two of the biggest things we've found about G.E. are even temperatures and operating economy. Our electric bills have averaged $25 a month. The air conditioning cost as low as $12 a month."

And from Mrs. Tresler, in her attractive paneled kitchen: "I practically never used to bake in the summer until we got G-E air conditioning. Now, I think nothing of it—even when it's hot and humid outside."

Mrs. Tresler: "My drapes and everything else stay cleaner. I only have to have the drapes cleaned maybe once a year. And I only have to do a thorough house cleaning every two weeks, at the most."

If you have forced-air heat, you, too, can enjoy G-E Central Air Conditioning at a very modest cost. Call your G-E dealer for a free survey and installation estimate, with no obligation. He'll also explain how you can finance the job on easy terms. He's listed in the Yellow Pages under "Air Conditioning Equipment."

OUR RECIPES ARE FULL OF

BEANS

Any pantry shelf that lacks a goodly supply of canned and dried beans is bare indeed. The lowly bean is really a nugget of good nutrition—a substantial source of energy, high in B vitamins, especially thiamine, and rich in iron, calcium, and protein.

Equally important, beans are the prime ingredient in more delicious recipes than you can think of. They can be used in the simplest or fanciest of dishes. Try them sweet or sour, hot or cold. Here are just a few suggestions for you to enjoy.

BEAN SUPPER SALAD

Preparation time: 20 min.
Chilling time: several hrs.

1 c. diced celery
½ c. sliced green onions
½ c. chopped green pepper
¼ c. pickle relish
½ c. cubed Cheddar or American cheese
1 can (12 oz.) luncheon meat, cubed
½ c. tart French dressing
1 can (1 lb.) beans in tomato sauce

Combine celery, onion, green pepper, pickle relish, cheese, luncheon meat, and French dressing. Add beans; mix well. Chill. Makes 6 servings.

BAKED PORK CHOPS AND BEANS

Preparation time: 20 min.
Baking time: 1 hr. 15 min.

6 pork chops
Salt
Pepper
2 cans (1 lb. ea.) pork and beans
2 tbs. brown sugar
2 tbs. prepared mustard
½ c. raisins
1 can (8¾ oz.) pineapple tidbits, drained

Brown chops; season with salt and pepper. Combine pork and beans, brown sugar, mustard, raisins, and pineapple. Pour bean mixture into 9-inch square pan or shallow 2-quart casserole; arrange pork chops on top of beans; cover. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour. Remove cover and bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

KIDNEY BEAN CASSEROLE

Preparation time: 20 min.
Baking time: 30 min.

1 c. thinly sliced onion
1 clove of garlic, crushed
½ c. chopped green pepper
3 tbs. butter or margarine
1½ lbs. ground beef
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste

1 c. red wine
1½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. black pepper
2 cans (1 lb., 4 oz.) kidney beans, drained
3 tbs. grated Parmesan cheese

Sauté onion, garlic, and green pepper in butter or margarine until tender; add beef; cook until lightly browned. Stir in tomato sauce, tomato paste, wine, salt, and pepper; simmer 15 minutes. Add kidney beans; pour into greased 2½-quart casserole; sprinkle with cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 30 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

GOURMET BLACK BEANS

Preparation time: 20 min.
Baking time: 1 hr. 15 min.

1 lb. dried black beans
5 bouillon cubes
2 qts. hot water
1 c. chopped onion
1 c. chopped celery and leaves
1 tbs. chopped parsley
4 tbs. butter or margarine
¼ c. dark rum
1 tsp. basil
¼ tsp. black pepper
Dairy sour cream

Wash beans well; soak overnight in water to cover; drain. Dissolve bouillon cubes in hot water, add beans; cover; simmer about 1 hour, or until tender. Drain, reserving 1½ cups bean broth. Sauté onion, celery, and parsley in butter or margarine 5 minutes. Add reserved 1½ cups bean broth, rum, basil, pepper, and black beans. Bake in greased, covered 2-quart casserole in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour. Remove cover; bake 15 minutes longer. Serve hot or cold with sour cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CARAMEL BAKED BEANS

Preparation time: 10 min.
Baking time: 2 hrs.

1 lb. dried lima beans
1 tsp. salt
1 c. brown sugar, firmly packed
¼ c. butter or margarine

Wash beans well; soak beans overnight in water to cover. Drain; add fresh water to cover; add salt. Cover; simmer about 1 hour, or until beans are tender. Drain, reserving 1 cup of bean broth. Combine 1 cup bean broth, brown sugar, and butter or margarine. Place beans in 2-quart casserole; pour sugar mixture over beans. Cover; bake in slow oven (325° F.) 2 hours. Uncover last 30 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

BUDGETING FOR UNEXPECTED NEW-HOME EXPENSES

There's excitement in the air when you move into your first home from an apartment. Even though moving day is exhausting, getting settled should be fun.

This is the time, too, when money should not be a problem. You've saved, figured, and worried long enough to enjoy a smooth start at your new address. But will you? If you've planned your budget to include more than the down payment, closing costs, and moving expenses, you will. Otherwise, you may be due for some rough sledding ahead.

For instance, have you planned for screens and storm windows, curtain and drapery hardware, garden tools, garbage cans, door mats, or a mailbox? These items could run as high as $2000 or as low as $500. Whatever the cost, the first few months in your new house will be a breeze if you set money aside for them now. According to a survey sponsored by The American Home of first-time home buyers, you'll need to budget:

1. Three per cent of your home's purchase price to cover minimum costs for equipment.
2. Five per cent of the purchase price to provide a comfortable margin.
3. Ten per cent of the house price to get the best of everything for your new home.

Below is a list of items you'll probably have to buy to put your house in working order. Since frequent variations occur around the country, range of costs is approximate, but accurate enough to help make a rough budget. And, take it from home owners who have already faced the problem—some budget (any budget) is better than none!

COUNTRY
'ESTATE'

It takes a discerning eye to see the possibilities in a situation. For years people had been driving past this Connecticut farm without giving it a second glance. But one couple stopped to investigate and today, with their two children, they live in what was once the dilapidated barn. The wife, a painter, was attracted by the grouping of five buildings around the U-shaped farmyard. The placement of large and small masses, the interesting roof lines, and the rough-hewn texture gave the courtyard the sheltered feeling of the old-world farms of France and Denmark. The family also liked the relative seclusion of the pleasant, rural setting within easy reach of the town. There was an ancient apple (continued)

HOW TO BEAT THE HEAT ONCE AND FOR ALL

There's a man close by who can do more to help you beat the heat than anyone else in town. He is your Carrier Air Conditioning Dealer and all you have to do is call him.

When you do, he will come over and survey your home carefully. Then he can tell you the best way to air condition your house—and the cost. Give him a go-ahead, and he will install the equipment expertly.

There are many reasons why your Carrier Dealer is the man to call. For one thing, Carrier started the air conditioning industry and over the years developed the most complete line of equipment available.

This equipment is lower in price today than ever before and is backed by fine service. For Carrier and its dealers maintain the most experienced service organization in the business. And the largest—more than 12,000 men strong.

There is more Carrier air conditioning serving more people in more places throughout the world than any other make.

Because of all this, your Carrier Dealer has great confidence in the job he will do for you. Enough confidence to certify in writing the temperature and humidity conditions that will prevail in your home.

To beat the heat once and for all, call your Carrier Dealer. He is listed in the Yellow Pages.

They avoided exceeding the estimated costs by deciding at the beginning what to do and not changing their minds. The basic structure was retained. A cantilevered deck was added outside the living room. The beams were raised to allow more headroom, which necessitated different length beams. The builder, who had worked on barns before, knew where to find additional beams to supplement those at hand and to replace damaged ones. The exterior siding was carefully removed and (continued)

Later it will be the guest house. The living room has a two-story ceiling with exposed framing. Open stairway of rough-hewn timbers leads to balcony hallway, visible from the main floor. There are four bedrooms, plenty of baths and closet space. The metal fireplace was custom-made. View above is looking from living room into dining area. Below left is a view from balcony near master bedroom. Notice, below right, the careful detailing in the walls. The old siding salvaged from the exterior is set in a frame, outlined with black background. The white door is treated the same way. Siding throughout the house is installed so it won't distract from wooden beams, but yet is not itself nondescript. The house is characterized by a very careful roughness of texture.

Why your dentist may recommend Crest at your next checkup

Your dentist would much rather prevent cavities than fill them. So, in addition to the care he gives your family at six-month checkups, he may give advice for daily care at home.

He may show you how to brush. He may say what you should—or shouldn't—eat for fewer cavities. And he may recommend Crest.

If your dentist does recommend Crest, consider it a tribute to your good sense. He realizes that you will use Crest as a part of a good dental program—not as a substitute for it.

As an expert on oral health—and a good friend besides—your dentist stands ready to help you make your dental-health program even better. For your family's sake, why not ask him about Crest at your next checkup?

"Crest has been shown to be an effective decay-preventive dentifrice that can be of significant value when used in a conscientiously applied program of oral hygiene and regular professional care."

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR NEW HOUSE

It's sobering to consider that many people buy their new house with less basic information about its construction and maintenance than they would find printed on the label of any ready-to-wear garment they buy off the rack in any department store.

The label clearly specifies the style, size, color, lot, stock number, fiber content, recommended care, and the manufacturer. What comes with a house is often hardly more than the deed and a mortgage, which is little enough considering the size of the investment and its importance.

Usually the buyer is anxious to move in and thinks the prebuying inspection is all the preparation that is necessary. Later, he may wish he had asked for more information as he discovers that a house is not as easily replaced or repaired as the garment that, for lack of information, was ruined by laundering instead of dry cleaning.

Buyers of custom houses are in a better position to get this information when they are watching the house being built and consulting on materials and colors to be used, or even in purchasing the house after it has been completed, but while the builder is still in the vicinity.

But the buyer of a new house will have less use for the information than the owner of a "used home" who is likely to get involved in major or minor changes, additions, alterations, and repairs to make the house suit his needs. As the home passes from owner to owner, the source of indispensable information for these home-improvement projects becomes more and more remote, until it's almost impossible to track it down.

Having this basic information at hand at the beginning of a project can save grief later on, when it is discovered that the kitchen wall where you planned to install a pass-through to the dining room is full of hidden pipes. You have a choice of replastering and trying to match the paint to hide your mistake or you can get involved in relocating the plumbing. An ounce of advance information is worth more than a pound of hindsight.

By using the convenient listing in this article, you can definitely save time—and probably save some money, too—when you set out on a project.

And the list will be useful to a new owner if sometime in the future you decide to sell. Aside from the obvious utility of having the list for his own improvement projects, it can also give him a certain confidence that he is not buying a pig in a poke.

Here, then, are the ten most useful areas for you to begin your investigation of the house you live in—or are planning to live in. If you assemble all this information, you can be fairly certain that you won't come up against hidden pitfalls later on.

1. Location of underground service pipes. The information can be indicated on a simple diagram showing location of pipes, catch basins, connections to municipal mains, sanitary sewers, and storm drains. This simple precaution will prevent having to dig up your carefully nurtured lawn if you ever need to install more catch basins and tie in additional drainage with the existing underground facilities.

2. Location of underground wiring service, if any. Information to be indicated on a simple plan showing the wiring for outdoor lighting, detached garage lighting, garden and pool lights, etc. If any changes are made in the driveway or landscaping, or if a new tree is planted, you want to avoid accidentally ripping up wiring and adding an unexpected electrical repair bill to the expenses you had planned on.

3. Plumbing diagram. Should show all pipe runs and connections concealed in walls and beneath floors. This will facilitate alterations and repairs and also avoid costly damage to hidden pipes. People have been known to drill into water pipes when adding shelves to the kitchen wall.

4. Name of kitchen-cabinet contractor or name of cabinet manufacturer; style number and finish of cabinets and counter surfaces. Will simplify matching old and new if you decide to add more cabinets at a later date. This is much easier than getting only a near-match and having to paint both old and new to avoid a patchy look.

5. Schedule of standard millwork items, listing catalogue style number, other identifying information for doors, windows, any prefinished paneling or molding used, and name of local supplier. In case you make any additions or changes, the old woodwork will match the new. Trying to match woods and then going through the same process of collecting samples and brochures to track down a match for the wood finish can be annoying and time-consuming.

6. Schedule of paints and stains, listing all ready-mixed commercial brands used. You never know when you will want to do a touch-up job. Since manufacturers occasionally discontinue some colors, it may be wise to purchase, in advance, any materials which require matching while they are still available. They may not be available by the time you get around to doing the job and then you'll be out of luck.

7. Schedule of bathroom finishes listing manufacturer, style number, and color of wall and floor tiling. Occasionally a tile loosens and falls off when a new house settles. You should, of course, know where to get a replacement.

8. Schedule of resilient floor coverings, listing manufacturer, style, and color number, and local distributor. Popular patterns can be easily replaced if damage occurs, but unusual styles or colors may require a lot of tracking down if you don't have the manufacturer's description at hand.

9. Schedule of special hardware and light fixtures, listing sources for replacing parts. If you don't know where to get a replacement, you may be forced to junk the "almost useful" item and replace the whole thing. Advance knowledge easily prevents this needless expense. Be especially wary if the operation of anything depends on small, easily broken parts, as sliding door rollers, ceiling light fixtures, recessed light lens, etc.

10. Name of manufacturer, model number, serial number, for every item of mechanical equipment furnished with the house or installed by the builder; all guarantee papers, operating and maintenance manuals provided by the manufacturer, and name of service agent for each. Include in the above the furnace, water heater, wall oven, range, exhaust fan, dishwasher, garbage disposal unit, etc. This is especially important for new owners who have previously lived in apartments where all utility service and repair was provided by the owner of the building.

Often a little neglect results in enormous repair bills that extend to other furnishings that are damaged. For instance, if furnace filters are not cleaned at frequent intervals, the fuel bills increase and a dark greasy deposit forms on walls, carpet, curtains, and furniture. Fuel bills go down when the filter is replaced, but the owner still has the cleaning and repainting to take care of. This shouldn't happen: all manufacturers include operating manuals with mechanical equipment. Carelessly discarding it can be maddening if you're on the wrong end of the repair bill. Unfortunately, this last bit of information may be more difficult to locate, since it could have been discarded anywhere along the line without your knowledge. The workmen who installed the equipment may not have bothered to keep all the pamphlets that were provided with it. Or the first owner may have discarded them as soon as he saw the equipment was working properly or as soon as the original guarantee expired. Make sure you keep all papers for any equipment you install.

We provide this list as a guide to good household management. By gathering the information, you can avoid the high cost of negligence and oversight. Collect it before you need it. If you wait till you need the information, it may be unavailable at a crucial time or turn up too late. Don't take chances with unnecessary bills.

Keeping a home healthy is an all-year-round job. For some home owners it's a snap, for others a difficult chore—the difference lies in know-how. If a simple home-maintenance or -repair job has you stumped, take advantage of our free advisory service. Address your question to: Home Maintenance Clinic, The American Home, 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10019, and enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. In reply (allow 3 to 4 weeks), you will get an expert's advice free-of-charge and your question may appear in this column.

Q—We've just added a new random-width pine floor in a hallway of our home. I'd like to know how to finish it so that it matches the dark brown stain color of the floors in the rest of the house.—Miss L.P., Wisconsin.

A—Whatever the color you desire, the method used to do this job isn't difficult although an exact duplication will be hard to obtain. The stain on the older floors of your home may be worn off to a degree, because of usage. However, I wouldn't be too concerned about this. You can get almost an exact match by being patient—and none but the most critical eye will notice the difference.

Buy a floor stain that you believe is close to the color of the existing stained floors. One way of determining this is to try the various stains out on a small piece of wood.

If you have a scrap piece of the pine used in your new floor, bring it with you to the store. If your dealer is like most other dealers—co-operative—he'll brush some of the stain you select onto the scrap wood. You can then take it home and compare it with the color of the floors. Don't do this with other than the same type of wood you intend to stain, since all woods absorb stain in a different manner giving different results.

If it isn't an exact match, buy a stain that's a trifle lighter. Don't buy one that's darker.

Before applying the stain, examine the floor carefully. Since it is new you probably won't have to undertake a sanding operation. If, however, you wanted to restrain an old floor or one that has nicks and rough spots in it, sanding the floor with a power sander would be necessary.

Apply one coat of the stain and let it dry overnight. Check its color with the floors in the rest of your home. If it's not dark enough apply another coat and let that dry overnight. Keep doing this until the color is as dark, or nearly as dark, as the color of the other floors.

After the final coat of stain has dried, you should scuff it up a bit by rubbing it with some steel wool. Stain has a way of "raising" the wood grain, making it stand out. This might be acceptable or objectionable, depending on individual taste. If objectionable, the steel wool application will subdue the grain so it isn't prominent. The final operation is to apply a finish coat to the floor. You can use a floor varnish with a high gloss or satin finish. Let this dry overnight and then apply a coating of paste or liquid floor wax.

Q—I just bought a home in which the bedrooms are finished with gypsum wallboard and wallpaper. I'd like to get rid of this paper and just repaint the wallboard. I've read many articles on how to do this job and all seem to suggest the same method, which sounds rather tedious. Is there an easy way?—J.S.B., Virginia.

A—The usual method of sponging and scraping wallpaper off is tedious and can also be harmful to the gypsum wallboard if you should happen to make a slip. Unfortunately, this is about the best method you can use unless you can rent a wallpaper steamer. Its steam softens the glue beneath the paper to a point where all you have to do is simply lift the paper off the wall. It eliminates the danger of nicking the wallboard with a scraping knife.

Wallpaper steamers can usually be rented from hardware or paint and wallpaper stores.

If you can't find one, you'll have to use the old method. Sponge the paper down with water to loosen the glue underneath. Be careful not to use too much water, otherwise it will penetrate the paper surface of the wallboard as well as the wallpaper. If this surface paper is soaked too much, it can begin to loosen and the wallboard finish will be damaged.

When the wallpaper glue has softened, scrape the paper off the wall carefully with a putty knife, doing one small section at a time. If the wallboard is gashed, you will have to spackle it to renew the finish. Only time, patience, and care will produce a satisfactory job.

Q—The floor just inside our front door is common brick—the kind with the rough surface. Although our contractor applied a coat of sealer when the floor was installed, dirt has been ground into its pores and the brick is beginning to look drab. How can I clean it and then renew its appearance?—N.M.B., Virginia.

A—If washing the brick with a strong detergent won't work, try cleaning it with the gritty hand-cleaning solvent used by automobile mechanics. This can be purchased in a local auto-parts supply store and in many gasoline stations. You also need a bucket of water and some steel wool.

Wet the steel wool, apply some solvent to it, and then rub the brick until the dirt and drabness disappear.

Once the brick is cleaned, its color can be restored by brushing on a coating of raw linseed oil. Let the oil dry and then apply a thin coat of liquid floor wax, dabbing up the excess that settles into the roughened surface. The wax tends to protect the brick, keeping it clean for a maximum length of time. However, no product yet developed will keep brick clean indefinitely, so this operation will have to be made a part of your household cleaning. Once the ground-in dirt has been removed, it will be an easier process to maintain the brick in proper condition. THE END which high schools provide college-level courses for their best students—"the most promising thing that has happened in American education in years." One reason for this accolade is that the program improves teaching and courses not only in high school but also in the lower grades.

For instance, at Brooklyn's Midwood High School when the AP course in English was started some years ago, 80 per cent of the class flunked the exam because of poor composition. The faculty was so shocked that it launched a program, not just in the senior class but in all three grades, to improve matters. Soon the junior high schools from which Midwood draws were being encouraged to do the same thing. In recent years, as a result, 90 per cent of Midwood's AP candidates have been passing the English finals.

Unfortunately, for one poor reason or another, many high schools still do not offer Advanced Placement or comparable honors courses. But most of the "great" schools do. For example last year 156 students in Evanston (Illinois) High School took AP examinations in 11 subjects. Ninety-eight students in Walnut Hills High School, Cincinnati, took exams in ten subjects. Sixty-five students in Newton High School, Newtonville, Massachusetts, took exams in six subjects.

There are other questions which you might ask about a school system:

Does it provide an individualized program for each student? All authorities agree that this is an extremely important question; but happily, most modern school systems can answer yes.

How extensive is the foreign language program? Language needn't be taught in grade school, but a high school student should be able to get three or four years of a language.

How much time is devoted to English composition? Conant believes that in the last four years of school, half the total time devoted to English should be taken up with composition.

Does the school system encourage and enable teachers to take summer refresher courses and year-long sabbaticals in order to broaden their knowledge of the subjects they teach? For instance, has any local high-school teacher even applied for a full-year John Hay Fellowship in the humanities? How many have participated in summer science workshops?

Questions such as these, however, help only to enlarge or sharpen the picture of a school system. If you have already received satisfactory answers to the questions previously posed, you can be sure that the school system under study can, and very probably will, do a first-class job of educating your children. THE END

THE TERRIBLE TERMITES

The mere mention of the word "termites" strikes terror in the hearts of many home owners. In fact, it is not unusual for real estate values to drop suddenly after a rumor that one house on the block is infested.

Although termite damage can be extensive and is widespread—it exists in every state of the union except Alaska—it is actually no cause for such alarm. Using modern methods and chemicals, combating termites is far easier than rumor would have it. Despite what you may have heard, termites can be controlled. Here's what you should know if you suspect a termite invasion of your home.

First of all, don't confuse the termite with the common winged ant. They seem similar at first glance but you can tell them apart. Ants have wings of unequal length, a pinched-in waistline and are usually brown, red, or yellow in body color. Termites have a dark brown or black straight body and wings of equal length.

The most obvious sign of termite infestation is the appearance, during the spring months, of a swarm of these insects near the house. These winged termites emerge every spring from existing colonies in the ground, or infested areas of the house, to search out new feeding grounds. Wherever they settle, they shed their wings and establish new colonies. Even if you should see these termites swarming about, don't panic. Serious termite damage, if you have it, takes years to develop, not weeks or months.

You can detect the presence of termites in two other ways. A close inspection of the foundation on the outside, or inside the crawl space or basement, may reveal pencil-shaped tunnels extending from the ground up to the sill or other wood parts. Subterranean termites require contact with damp soil in order to survive and build their nests. They use these tunnels as highways to their source of food which is wood. Once they get to the wood, they burrow inside it, gradually eating away the interior. The voids they leave weaken the lumber and, in advanced stages, the wood member may become a hollow shell.

The absence of tunnels is not always an indication of the absence of termites. Often, the termites gain access to the house by means of wood steps, wood posts, or other wood parts that are in direct contact with the ground. As a further check for termites, prod the sills and other wood members close to the ground with an ice pick or other pointed tool. If termites have done their work, the pick will reveal voids beneath the surface.

If you detect the presence of termites, call in several termite-control contractors for their opinions and estimates. Modern methods of control will prevent the return of termites to the ground and block further invasion from the ground for a period of three to six years. Repeated inspections and treatments, if necessary, are a part of the control program.

The proper treatment involves saturating the soil around the foundation, under floor slabs, and at every point where termites can enter, with chemicals that form a toxic barrier. Chlordane, Dieldrin, Lindane, and Aldrin, diluted in water or oil, are a few of the chemicals that are used. The water emulsion is not harmful to shrubs and plants but the oil is.

There are two methods of treating infested soil. The first is to dig a trench next to the foundation, all around the house, and saturate this trench with chemical. As the soil is replaced in the trench, it too should be saturated with the chemical. The second method involves the use of a long hollow probe and does not require trenching. The probe is inserted into the soil every six inches or so around the foundation and the chemical is injected under air pressure.

In severe cases it is necessary to get at the soil beneath concrete floors. Holes must be drilled through the slab so that the chemical can be injected into the soil. In addition, if the foundation wall is constructed of concrete block, holes are drilled into each line of blocks so that the chemical can be poured into the block cavities. Wood structural members, and occasionally sill and sole plates, are sometimes impregnated with the chemical. This is not a spray job. The chemical is injected under high pressure. The extent to which all of these precautions are taken will, of course, depend upon the degree of infestation. For this reason, it's a professional job and the selection of a reputable contractor to undertake the work is all-important.

Charges by termite-control firms vary with the size and style of house and with the degree of infestation. Reliable operators inspect a house and quote a price that allows them to do all the necessary work (which might include setting wood supports on concrete pads, breaking ground contact on door frames, and replacing damaged structural members) and to use enough chemicals.

Reputable termite operators often guarantee their work, but it may take several years to determine whether treatment has been successful. And since no operator can guarantee that treatment will prevent further damage by termites, find out if the guarantee offers reinspections and additional treatments.

The house should be re-inspected at regular intervals (usually a minimum of 12 months) so that soil can be re-treated where termites have successfully breached the chemical barrier. This is a simple process.

One large nationally advertised termite-control service offers a protection plan that calls for annual inspection of the house, and treatment if necessary. This service contract includes responsibility for repairs and/or replacement of any termite damage to the home or its contents up to $5000. Since no home can be made absolutely termiteproof, many home owners consider this a good buy.

Many used-home buyers now demand a termite-clearance certificate. Such certificates are issued by reputable termite-control firms after a thorough inspection of the building has found it free of termites. The inspection fee (about $15) may be paid either by the buyer or by the seller.

The Fake Exterminator. Unfortunately, many home owners are bilked out of substantial sums each year by fake exterminators who use a variety of schemes to gain business. One home owner was approached by a representative of a termite-control company, who offered to make a free inspection after pointing out that many nearby houses had been infested. The man went under the house, returned shortly with a boardful of insects, and said the house was near collapse. He recommended immediate treatment, with the price depending on "the number of gallons of spray I have to use." The home owner gave him the go-ahead, and was swindled out of $550. The spray was worthless. As noted above, ethical termite operators figure their charges on many factors. The least part of the charge is the cost of chemicals. Reputable operators also submit a written work proposal stating probable hidden damage, recommended structural alterations, and details of operations to be performed inside and outside the building.

You should also beware of the operator who promises to "exterminate" the termites. Reputable operators can control termites, that is, cut off their travel between soil and wood. Extermination is impossible. Termite nests are extensive and go deep into the soil. If the infested section is made uninhabitable to termites, they shift their attack to unprotected areas.

A note of caution: gyp operators often guarantee their work. So don't take this as a sure sign you are dealing with a reputable company.

Before signing anything, check on the firm's reputation by telephoning the local Better Business Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, or county agricultural agent. Get estimates from other termite-control companies. Fake operators, of course, object to your checking on them or getting other estimates, so they exaggerate the damage and may lead you to believe your house will collapse immediately.

Even if your home is severely infested, you still have time to investigate the man who's to do the work.

The main thing to remember is not to be panicked into a quick decision. A proper inspection and treatment program will probably keep damage to the home at a minimum. THE END

Never had a traverse rod snarl back at me before. Don't intend to have it happen again either.

So I'll just take this back and go on over to my Kirsch drapery hardware dealer's and get myself a rod that works. This monster? My son-in-law got it for me. Said he wanted to surprise me. Did, too.

"Why, Horace," I said, "this isn't a Kirsch rod." "Same thing," Horace said. Turned out the store he happened to be in doesn't carry Kirsch, and the clerk told him their line was just as good. Nobody but Horace would fall for a line like that. Heavens, there's always a Kirsch dealer nearby.

He learned his lesson, though. And I gave him my Kirsch "Guide to Window Beauty" to make sure he remembers. That's some book, that is. 96 pages of decorating ideas. Proves you can do anything with a window. Anything.

Sure you can get one. Just mail 25¢ and the coupon, and they'll send the book. After Kirsch drapery hardware, it's the year's best buy.

MEMENTO of 1964-1965, the World's Fair, could be a charm bracelet. From the silver-plated bracelet hang six charms of the same metal: the Heliport, General Motors Building, Unisphere, General Electric Building, and two New York City symbols, the Statue of Liberty and Empire State Building. $3 complete. Jamaica, AH5, 50 Delancey St., New York, N.Y.

BANISH DISORDER in bathroom, dressing room, and closet with the sturdy metal cherub hooks finished in bright gold. Each small cupid holds two hooks, which will prove wonderfully convenient for holding towels, robes, belts, and bags. These are charming appointments for the nursery too. $1 for one; $2.75 for three. Vernon, AH5, 30 Evans, New Rochelle, N.Y.

IN THE ROUND, the cigarette table adapted from a Chippendale favorite, is perfect to stand beside a comfortable chair. Made of fine mahogany finished in a natural light brown, it is ornamented with a pierced solid brass gallery which is practical as well as decorative. 16" in diameter, it is 22½" high. $37.50. Express collect. Newcomb Reproductions, Dept. AH5, Durham, N.C.

A GOOD GROUP to hang on the wall is the set of Early American military figures. Executed in gay colors on white ceramic tile, each is mounted on red burlap and framed in wide mellow pine. Dragoon and Colonel are 7 x 10". $5.45 for one picture. Three soldiers in historic uniforms measures 9" square. $7.45. From Medford Products, AH5, 752 Fulton St., Farmingdale, N.Y.

MATCH MAKING? If you're looking for accessory pieces to match your Blue Willow dinnerware, be sure to order the salt and pepper shakers (each 5" high). $2.20 the set. A graceful gravy boat with separate oval tray holds 5 ounces. Tray is 6½" long. $1.75. The four pieces are white china decorated in blue. Order from The Added Touch, Dept. AH5, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

DIFFERENT APPROACH. For a decorative effect, use the grandfather's clock thermometer in place of the unornamental weather thermometer. The precision mechanism is set into an attractive 9" case made of aluminum finished in wood color or in black lacquer. 2 1/2" wide, the weather instrument can be hung in almost any room. $1.98. Crescent Hse., AH5, Box 21, Plainview, N.Y.

PATRIOTIC NOTE. The spread eagle is a symbol of American liberty. It is an ideal decoration to use in rooms furnished in the Early American manner. 33" in width, it is molded of vacucl, a sturdy lightweight plastic. Finish is antique gold. Shield of state is in red, white, and blue. Impervious to weather. $4.98 plus 55c post. Hobi, Department AH5, Flushing 52, N.Y.

HANG THE LANTERN on patio or terrace or in an entrance hall. Copied from an antique Spanish fixture, it is made of metal and decorated with lacelike filigree. Glazed glass sides protect the candle flame. Lantern may be electrified if desired. 14" high by 8" wide, it is an easy lamp to install. Black or bronze finish. $6. Old Pueblo Traders, Dept. AH5, Tucson, Ariz.

THE WATER BROOM is the newest appliance for washing the siding on the house, sidewalk, driveway, patio, lawn, or fence. The lightweight metal handle is 37" long and is easy to attach to the garden hose. Special spray head gives a wide fan of water which quickly chases dirt, leaves, or grass. $2.98. Order from Walter Drake, Dept. AH5, Drake Building, Colorado Springs, Colo.

REFEREE SHIRT designed for the large man will make him look slick as a whistle and feel cucumber cool on the hottest day. King Size, Department AH5, 6164 Forest St., Brockton, Mass.

the postage is included in the price. Anything that is not personalized may be returned within seven days for a full refund.

If you can thread a needle

YOU CAN LEARN TO PAINT ROSES

in just eight, beautifully shaded, triple-tone strokes

Even If You Never Painted Before!

You'll be amazed at your own hidden abilities when you discover the patterns, short cuts, and techniques used by the experts. In just a few lessons you'll find that flowers and fruit, cupids and bows, birds and butterflies will come alive under your brush. You'll be able to turn shabby discards into lovely, useful gifts or decorative accessories. A coffee can becomes a conversation piece, a rusty antique becomes a work of art. It's easy...and it's fun!

Unique Teaching Method

No special skill or training in art is needed. Simple step-by-step instructions—easier than needlepoint or crewel—produce lovely and useful gift items. Even if you "can't draw a straight line" you can learn the time-saving methods used by professional gift decorators. To find out how you can build an independent income, have peace of mind, satisfaction, win praise and admiration from this most rewarding of arts, write for our free color illustrated brochure.

HOW'S THE WATER IN YOUR HOUSE?

Clean and Clear?

A boy gulping a quick, cool drink takes it pretty much for granted. Like most of us. Whether running a hot bath or doing the family wash, we seldom think much about water.

But A. O. Smith does.

At A. O. Smith, years of research and testing, plus careful quality control go into each product to assure you plenty of hot water, clean water, clear water, soft water. Even hot water heating that's always comfortable. The water in your house is the business of A. O. Smith Consumer Products, Kankakee, Illinois.

RIT's true color balance means you get the shade you want for all dyeable fabrics—cottons, linens, woolens and most synthetics. Prove it to yourself. Coordinate a costume in high fashion shades picked from a palette of 35 enchanting RIT colors—ranging from soft and serene to deep and vibrant.

RIT is quick dissolving. No boiling. No blotching. No streaking. You dye big bulky things in your washer, smaller ones in your basin. Today, do a little girl's blouse or jumper. Tomorrow, instead of paying dollars for a new outfit, dye last year's favorite for only dimes.

Dyeing with RIT® is fast, fun . . . almost foolproof!

PRESTO®

Does anyone on your street have the white one yet?

Pardon us, but we do make a perfectly wonderful coffee-maker. It's the one on the left . . . in stainless steel with rich, glossy black trim.

Fully automatic, it brews a cup a minute of marvelous coffee and keeps it hot. The open spout means easy pouring; easy cleaning, too, because it won't trap bitter oils and residues. And you can dunk the entire coffee-maker without a worry. Families who live with it every day just love it. Still, we've had a mild but steady clamor. It wasn't a complaint, but a question. People kept asking, "Why not make it white?"

"Most people like the black one," we said. "We might not have the volume in white for mass production," we said. "We might have to price it higher and then nobody would buy it."

So we made the white one anyway. It's the one on the right.

It makes wonderful coffee . . . the same as the black one. It does cost a few pennies more. But now you do have a choice.

We don't think you'll have trouble finding a black Presto on your street but, if you hurry, you still might be first with the white one. And that might be quite a kick!
