Inspiration: a villa in Tangier Floor: Montina Vinyl Corlon

The exciting appeal of Moroccan design lies in its intriguing detail, graceful patterns, and rich textures—decorative traits shared by Montina Corlon, an equally exciting new vinyl floor by Armstrong.

Montina is made of stone-like chips of vinyl veined with color. They are set in deep, translucent vinyl to create intriguing, pebbly texture.

This textured surface has a practical advantage, too. It helps hide scuffs and heel marks.

Because Montina Vinyl Corlon comes in long, wide rolls, there's scarcely a seam, wall to wall.

And Montina can be used anywhere in the home—even in most downstairs playrooms, directly over the concrete.

IDEA BOOKLET! "The Armstrong World of Interior Design"—24 color pages of internationally inspired rooms full of decorating ideas you can use in your home. Send 25¢ to Armstrong, 6508 Pine St., Lancaster, Pa.

In Canada, send 25¢ to Armstrong, Dept. 85-B, Box 919, Montreal, P.Q. Floor shown: style 86703. Montina® and Corlon® are trademarks of Armstrong Cork Co. Floor design copyrighted by Armstrong.

AMERICAN HERITAGE

The Magazine of History

THE AMERICAN HERITAGE BOOK OF GREAT HISTORIC PLACES provides your family with a grand tour through 300 years of American history via today's historic sites and buildings. More than 2,700 historic locations are noted. You visit the most memorable of these through the editors' eyes, through fine contem through the editors' eyes, through fine contemporary photographs, through historical prints and pictures: the New England colonies, whaling ports, Ben Franklin's Philadelphia, the land of Lincoln, ghost towns of Arizona, Spanish "cities of gold," battlefields, Brigham Young's desert metropolis . . . The book is a fine armchair or car companion for every family that likes to explore its heritage. Here's history in terms of where history was made.

ground of American Heritage, an extraordinary

To introduce you to AMERICAN HERITAGE, just now we can make a trial subscription doubly attractive by giving you a handsome book which is really a splendid guide to historic America — an armchair tour of all the exciting places where our history happened.

This unique, illustrated guidebook-to-the-past (a $12.50 book) is called Great Historic Places. And the coupon on this page will bring it to you as a gift with your American Heritage subscription.

Rediscover the lure of history

The smoke of battle, the close reporting of great events, the sense of great men and women passing before your eyes — all this, of course, is part of AMERICAN HERITAGE. But there is so much more — loud explosions and quiet inventions, misty nostalgia, bright ideas, historic parallels . . . the past, which creates the present.

AMERICAN HERITAGE is a magazine, published six times a year. There are a dozen or more lively articles in every issue, plus a sizeable extract from some new book of history. It's big — 8¾ x 11¼ inches, 112 pages. It's handsome — a hundred pictures or more in every copy, thirty or so in superb full color.

Every AMERICAN HERITAGE is bound like a fine book in white, hard covers. There is no advertising.

The gaudiest, saddest, most misinterpreted period in modern American history, the Twenties was a time when everything was changing with the speed of a Pierce Arrow. America nursed a hangover brought on by bathtub gin, the jangle of jazz, or the memory of a war nobody won. The brand-new radios in living rooms across the country blared of boxers, gangsters, bizarre murders, barefaced government corruption, and a clean-cut young man who soared above it all in his Spirit of St. Louis. Then the Charleston ended with a Great Crash, and millions of Americans went to bed, like bad boys, without supper. The special Twenties issue of AMERICAN HERITAGE brings you "The Overloved One" (Valentino); "John Held and His Girls"; "The Klan in Indiana"; "Moriarty's Wonderful Saloon"; "Teapot Dome and Other Scandals"; "The Florida Land Boom"; "The Early Days of Radio"; "Great Photographs of the Decade"; "As We Wished We Were"; "A 1920's Reader," which mirrors some sharp reflections of bright literary lights of that day; and 4 other articles. More than 100 illustrations, a third in color.

MODEL WCIRK

Here's How Perfect It Washes: The new type Frigidaire Deep Action Agitator you see in the washer above is as advanced in its washing as in its new jet age look. Jet currents give all your clothes Deep Action cleaning. A new jet away rinse actually "jets" lint and scum out of the tub. There's a new jet spin that cuts drying time. The Jet Action Washer reduces tangling and wrinkles. Clothes come out so loose and easy even apron strings seldom snarl. Its giant size tub washes really big family loads, yet handles small fine fabric loads beautifully. And most models automatically dispense the laundry aids you use most-detergent, bleach and dye.

Here's How Simple It Works: The patented mechanism that runs the new Frigidaire Jet Action Washer is simplicity itself. No drive gears to wear out, no pulleys to jam, not even a belt to break or adjust. It has many less parts—fewer moving parts. Think what this will mean to you in dependability for years to come!

5-Year Protection Plan At No Extra Charge: The Jet Action Washer warranty is a great bonus in security for years to come. You get a one-year warranty for repair of any defect without charge, plus a four-year protection plan for furnishing replacement for any defective part in the transmission, drive motor and large capacity water pump.

DEAR READER

Back in the days when Camelot was the place to be, local citizens used to sit around worrying about what the local dragon was up to. Today, without Camelot and without the dragon, suburbanites are still worrying about its 20th-century counterpart—the bulldozer. As a matter of fact, at this writing, some 300 suburban housewives in New York State are valiantly fighting to save a group of lovely trees from imminent annihilation by a herd of fire-breathing, ear-shattering bulldozers.

Now just as there was nothing basically wrong with dragons, there is nothing basically wrong with bulldozers. The great trouble with a bulldozer is that nobody can find out who is in charge of it. Let the average bulldozer show up in a grove of trees at eight o'clock in the morning and, before you have been able to find out what it is supposed to be doing, the trees are no longer standing. Allow a bulldozer to meander past an historic landmark and count the minutes it takes to transform it into a parking lot.

Our whole trouble with bulldozers is that our local governments have not been properly constituted to deal with this situation any more than the good people of Camelot were in a position to deal with the dragon. Call up Town Hall one morning and ask what a particular bulldozer is up to and you will be transferred all around Robin Hood's barn. Meanwhile the bulldozer is happily churning and chewing up our heritage.

What we need today is a local government official directly responsible for bulldozers. This Constable of Bulldozers, for that is the title we suggest, would be held responsible for all bulldozer activity within the community. He should know what each bulldozer is up to every minute of the day, and he should have complete authority to stop any bulldozer in its tracks any time. Obviously, this official should be fairly well paid because it is doubtful he will serve more than one term. He must be strong and he must be a diplomat, for it will be his function to explain to groups of intelligent citizens why certain actions on the part of bulldozers are necessary. He must explain intelligently to highway engineers, contractors, and others why certain bulldozers must not be allowed to go on a rampage.

We are much in favor of progress, and progress sometimes requires drastic changes. But we also believe that citizens in a community are the deciding factor as to whether progress warrants the destruction of things they may hold near and dear to them. In any event, they should be given the time to voice their objections and be able to deal directly with the officials responsible for what occurs and what does not occur.

THE AMERICAN HOME, SUMMER, 1965

* @ 1960 by Dr. Seuss

"OUR FAMILY ROOM is a wonderful place to relax—especially with electric heating and cooling to keep it comfortable," says Jim Alexander. "And my wife likes the way all of her curtains stay so clean and fresh-looking."

"All eight of us Alexanders really enjoy the comfort and cleanliness of our total electric home"

Throughout America, families like the James Alexanders of Georgiana, Alabama, report their enthusiasm for life in a modern Gold Medallion Home. Here flameless electricity does everything, including heating, and cooling, cooking, providing the hot water and drying the clothes.

As Jim Alexander sees it, the enjoyment of total electric living is truly a family affair.

He tells you, "It's wonderful to know, for example, that with electric heating and cooling each room is always at the right temperature, day or night, all year 'round.

"It's a pleasure, too, to live in a house that stays so clean. And my wife, of course, likes having so many modern electric appliances to help her with the housework.

"By the way, this is the third Gold Medallion Home in a row that we've owned—which is a pretty good indication of how thoroughly sold we are on total electric living!"

From coast to coast, more and more families like the Alexanders are enjoying the extra benefits of living in a modern total electric home. If you're planning to build, buy or modernize, think about the advantages of a Gold Medallion Home for your own family. Your local electric utility company will help you get all the information you need to start on your way to the joy of total electric living.

DAY BY DAY, THIS GOLD MEDALLION appears on more and more homes throughout America. It identifies a total electric home fully equipped with flameless electric home heating and appliances, Full Housepower Wiring and Light for Living. These Gold Medallion Homes will be as modern tomorrow as they are today.

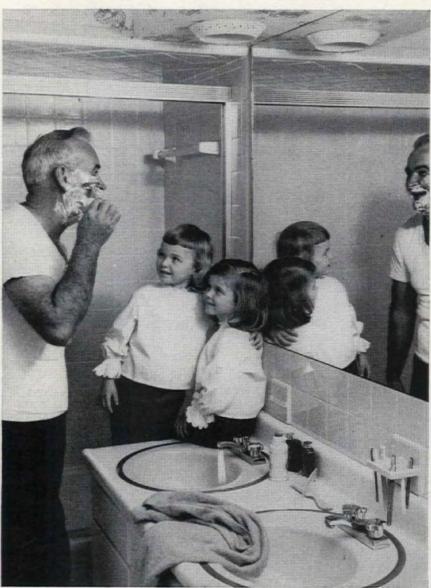

"EVEN SOILED FISHING CLOTHES are no problem with an electric washer and dryer. And with a family as large as ours, both are tremendous work and time savers for my wife," Jim Alexander points out on his return from a successful fishing expedition.

"ANOTHER MODERN APPLIANCE that certainly gets a steady workout in our home is our flameless electric range," reports Mildred Alexander as she prepares part of the morning's catch. "It's always fast and easy to operate. And it's wonderful the way it helps to keep my kitchen so clean and cool."

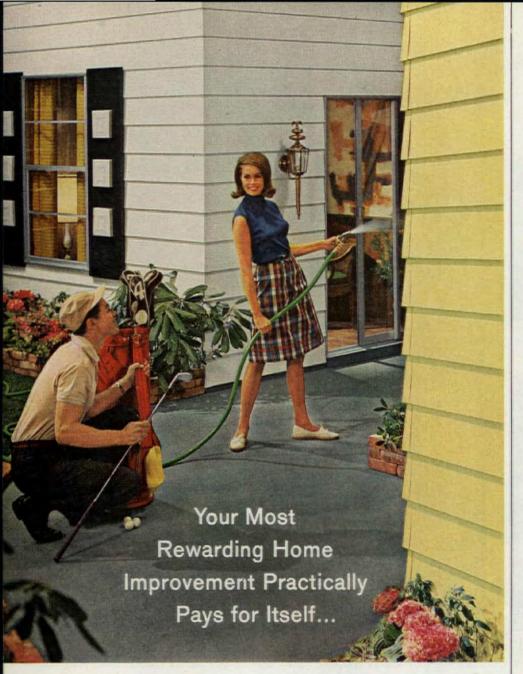

"PLENTY OF HOT WATER is something we can count on with our electric water heater," says Jim Alexander as daughters Martha and Maria watch him get ready for company. "Even after my wife and six children have used all they want, there's always plenty left for me."

FULL HOUSEPOWER WIRING provides all the outlets and circuits the Alexanders need, now or in the future. "We can use all of the appliances we need to at one time," says Mildred Alexander as Jim gestures to his brother and sister-in-law about the one that got away.

Closed...it looks like any other refrigerator

(but wait'til you look inside!)

We don't envy you people who have to buy a refrigerator this year. Outside, they all look pretty much alike. They all come in the same shape. They all have doors and handles. (Of course, our designers insist that RCA WHIRLPOOL refrigerators are better looking.)

But let's take a closer look at the inside story of this particular new RCA WHIRLPOOL:

There's no easier way of making and using ice cubes than with an IceMagic® automatic icemaker. It has no trays at all. So there's nothing to wrestle with, fill or spill. Our IceMagic fills itself, makes cubes, then stores them in a bin for you.

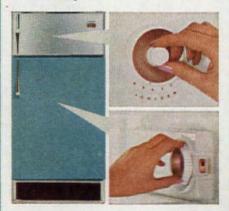

You just reach in, take out two, twenty or even a hundred — and the IceMagic automatically starts making more.

Another thing: until recently, you've always had to reach through or around food to get something from the back of a shelf. Not with an RCA WHIRLPOOL.

Our Carousel® Shelves rotate in a full circle turning the back of the shelf into the front. We like to call them "backless shelves." Now you can reach the pudding without knocking over the pickles.

Frost has always been one of your pet peeves. Defrosting just isn't fun. Relax. You'll never see any objectionable frost in this new RCA WHIRLPOOL. It just can't form. And you won't find any dripping, space wasting plates or coils either. Our No Frost system, developed after years of exacting research, is an "inside job."

Look carefully. You'll notice that there are two cold control dials. One in the freezer, one in the refrigerator. You can set the temperatures in each section to best suit your needs. Hardly any other refrigerators give you this kind of luxury.

Small thought: our crispers are celery stalk long, head lettuce high —and hold a lot of things.

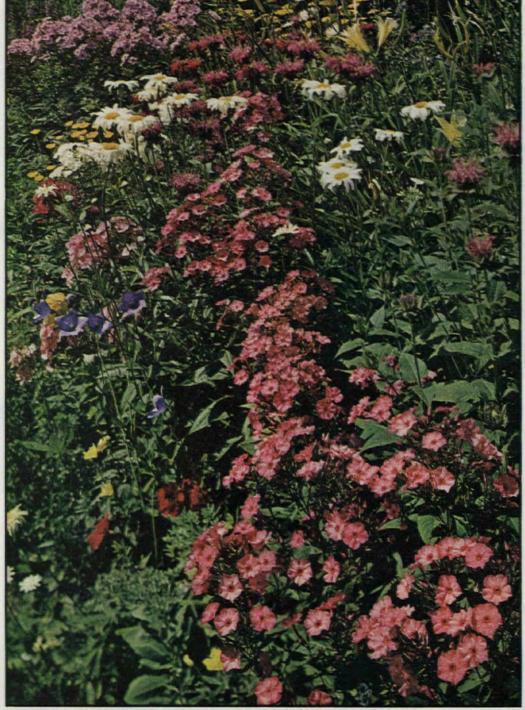

So, march to your dealer! Ask—no, demand to see a RCA WHIRLPOOL. He'll admire your good taste.

ERENNIAL COLOR IN A MIDSUMMER GARDEN

Summer always seems to plod in on camelback, leaving big blank footprints in everyone's flower beds. If it weren't for petunias and zinnias your garden would suddenly be a wasteland that would make the Gobi Desert seem lush by comparison. Annuals do help somewhat but their impermanence is frustrating-like a now-you-see-it, now-you-don't water hole. For lasting beauty try the perennials that bloom in July and August. Some will continue to provide you with flowers until frost. But the best thing about them is that with just a little care they'll be around for years. Buy some in full bloom from your nurseryman now, and plan to plant others in the fall in mild climates, next spring up north. To make things easy, we've arranged them in a chart which you can have by sending a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Perennials, Reader Service, The American Home, 641 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10022.

AN INFORMAL perennial border is a gay and unrestrained thing that you can achieve by the uninhibited use of color. This mixed planting burgeons with 'Thor' phlox, daisies, yellow marguerites, lilies, Canterbury bells, yarrow.

ALTHOUGH DELPHINIUMS are relatively short-lived by perennial standards, their stately grace in a more formal bed is irresistible. Combined with red and pink roses, the planting breathes cool serenity in the midst of the summer.

PONDEROSA PINE WOODWORK

Box AHB • 39 South LaSalle Street • Chicago, Illinois 60603

By Vera D. Hahn

We like. After a visit to the new Boar's Head Inn outside of Charlottesville, Virginia, we're all for windows treated like this: Sills painted to look like slate; painted wood-grained Venetian blinds; and painted, shaped-wood valances. Equally impressive are the colonial colors—mellow mustard or blue, muted red or olive sharpened with lots of black; the red-and-green plaid carpet; the weathered barn siding on the walls; the English antiques in the hall. Above all, the dazzling, new-all-over-again pure, pristine whiteness of the bathrooms with chrome the only "color" note.

And yet. We're also mad for those new Kohler Accent Color lavatories. There's citron—a sharp, sulfury yellow; blueberry—it's almost navy; jade—a deep, deep green; and espresso—a marvelous, after-dinner-coffee color. Although they're coordinated with Kohler's pastels, they're the perfect pick-me-up for any bathroom.

We hear. The research people up at The Birge Company have invented a new acrylic adhesive. It's so powerful, they say, that it'll even stick to vinyl surfaces. They're using it on a new collection of do-it-yourself Presto washable wallpapers. To be your own paper-hanger (seems the supply of professional ones is growing scarce) all you do is dip a strip of Presto in water, slap on wall, smooth down, and trim off excess at ceiling and baseboard. Apparently the new adhesive is quick-setting, nonstaining, and has enough "slip" so that it's easy to get each panel bubble-free. Our pet pattern is "Spice of Life."

At last. Fiber-glass draperies with color-matched fiber-glass linings! They are made by Cameo Curtains, Inc., and are called "Lucerne." These homespunweave draperies come in white, sand, melon, gold, and olive (so do the linings) and in quite a range of widths and lengths. A pair, 136" wide by 90" long, will cost about $39. Naturally, they're washable.

Very clever. There's a new collection of good-looking upholstered chairs in Spanish and contemporary shapes at Burton-Dixie that will do MORE than seat your guests—they'll sleep your guests. Burton-Dixie's Slumberfoam chairs unfold into beds that are 27" wide by 75" long. Closed, they look like tiny love seats or the so-called "chair and a half." Retail price is under $160.

The complete spaghetti dinner with the hand-stirred, slow-simmered Italian sauce.

As distinctive as the Colosseum...Chef Boy-Ar-Dee Dinners are the ones with authentic sauce, made from an old Italian recipe by a real Italian chef.

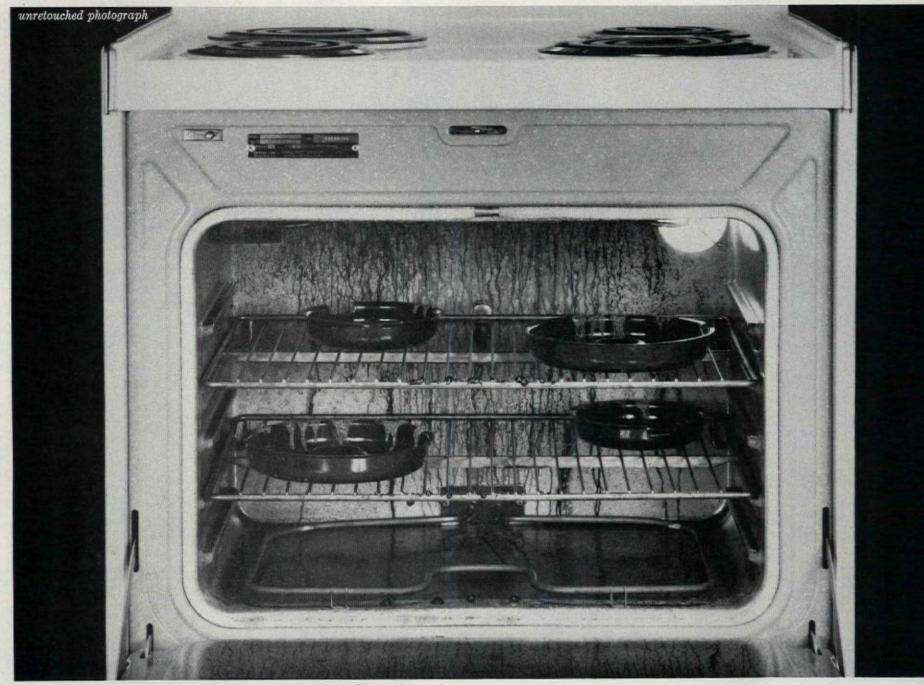

You can cook up a dinner as authentically Italian as any you'd eat in Rome. And because the home-style Italian meat sauce is all made, you can have a piping hot Italian dinner on the table in twelve minutes.

See how fast all my Italian dinners cook up. Try the Meat Ball Dinner: over a pound of sauce and 8 big beef meat balls. Try the Mushroom Dinner, too. They're thriftier than you could make

And as you listen to compliments on your Italian cooking, let it be our secret that you did it the convenient Chef Boy-Ar-Dee way.

The oven in this Frigidaire Range is one miserable looking mess...but a mess you never touch! No more backbreaking scrubbing, no more nail-splitting scouring to get rid of even extra heavy soil like this. (We actually used a variety of meat fats, cherry pie filling and starch, baked on at 450° for 2 hours.)

from dirty...

The Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven cleans itself...yet this range costs only about $340!

Q. What happens to the dirt?

A. The Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven heats up to about 900°. At this temperature burned-on grease, baked-on pie spill-overs and other oven soil are turned into loose ash and vapor. The vapor is vented through a special air purifier.

Q. How can it clean the racks and drip bowls?

A. Frigidaire uses a special heatresistant porcelain enamel for both the oven liner and cooking unit drip bowls. Consequently, all can be cleaned electrically, automatically and more thoroughly than with hours of normal scrubbing.

Further, Frigidaire has even designed oven racks that get cleaned right along with the rest of the oven. No more gouging at baked-on grease trapped in rack corners; no more soaking and scrubbing racks in the sink!

Q. Is there any hand-cleaning left to do?

A. Possibly none at all...possibly two small jobs requiring only a minute or so. First, this process can only clean what's subjected to high heat inside the oven. So, if the facings outside the oven are soiled, wipe them off beforehand. Second, whisk out the small amount of loose ash that may remain after cleaning.

The time-consuming, tedious cleaning has all been done for you. You've no need for chemical oven cleaners, to clean, automatically

This oven was cleaned—just as you see it—in one normal cycle. All that remains of the soil is a slight trace of ash, barely visible in the photo above. This ash will whisk away. Not only does this Frigidaire Range clean the oven electrically, but also the oven racks and cooking unit drip bowls. What a blessing!

ammonia, steel wool, rubber gloves or a double-jointed backbone.

Q. Do you need an engineering degree to work this oven?

A. Certainly not! All you do is set the "clean" lever, then turn the "start" knob. Both are safely and conveniently located on the back panel of your new Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven Range.

Three hours later the cleaning cycle is complete. (After two hours of heat, the oven shuts off automatically and cools down for an hour.)

Q. What about safety features?

A.As soon as the temperature rises above broiling heat, the new Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven double-locks itself. It cannot be reopened until the temperature returns to conventional oven heat.

What's more, Frigidaire uses extra insulation. This amazing range can be installed flush with wood cabinets with no danger.

The electrical system and high heat process of this range meets the safety requirements of Underwriters Laboratories. Each Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven Range carries the UL insignia.

Q. How expensive is it to operate?

A. This full sized oven cleans itself for about the price of a cup of coffee. And, what a truly welcome relief from hours of drudgery this "small change" buys!

Q. Is the rest of the range easy to clean?

A.Yes! Control panel knobs pull off for one-swish cleaning. Recessed top and raised edges around cooking units catch spills. And, the storage drawer pulls all the way out so you can sweep under the range.

Q. The price ... only about $340.

A. Exact price is determined by the dealer. See your Frigidaire dealer for his price and terms.

Refurbish—to brighten, to freshen, says Webster. To us it means giving your home a more sparkling look. There are many services you can call upon to help you with your fall refurbishing. Start planning now.

Reupholstering. There are two reasons for reupholstering your living room furniture. You may want a change, or the original fabric is worn and the furniture itself is in bad condition—hence no longer comfortable. Before you consider reupholstering be sure you like the shape of your furniture. Since labor costs are high and do not vary in relation to the price of the fabric, select competent workmen.

Standard procedure with most professional reupholsterers is to first strip the fabric and stuffing. If the stuffing is to be reused, it must be sterilized. The wood frame is checked and reglued if necessary. Worn springs are replaced and retied. Rewebbing may be necessary. (Webbing is the interwoven jute stripping which supports the springs.) Padding of hair, rubberized hair or rubber, and cotton felt is added to fill out the contour of the piece. Cushions are renewed by adding down, feathers, rubber, or hair. Muslin and the new fabric are fitted to the frame. Exposed wood frames are checked; minor spots and scratches are touched up.

Cleaning upholstery. Special care has to be given to difficult stains and fine fabrics. This is where a professional comes in. The professional upholstery cleaner precleans or spot cleans, and then gives the whole piece a thorough cleaning with cleaning fluid. All this is done by hand.

Cleaning draperies. There are various ways. 1) In coin-operated cleaning machines you can do your own drapery cleaning-the cheapest way of cleaning draperies. 2) Your local cleaner will charge about $4 a pair (a pair is two widths of fabric-one width is the area from seam to seam). He will spot clean your draperies, put them through his dry cleaning machine, re-examine them for hard-toremove stains, try to remove them, and press them. 3) The professional plant cleaner's price averages $8 a pair. In estimating price, he considers the construction (lined or unlined), the color, the fabric, and the trim of the draperies. Here's how a professional plant handles your draperies. They are measured, then checked to see if the colors and the material can withstand dry cleaning. If the fabric is weak, the draperies are cleaned by hand and gently brushed with a sponge and solvent. In most cases the hems, headings, and edges are hand-brushed to remove excess soil. After the draperies are dry cleaned in a machine, they are rechecked for stains. Needed repairs are done. To complete the process, your draperies are stretched, blocked, and hand pressed. Professional cleaners recommend cleaning your draperies about once a year.

Carpet cleaning. When there is a color difference between the area under and near a chair, you know it is time for a cleaning. Professionals will either clean your carpet at home or take it to their plant. The dry method of using a detergent-saturated powder which absorbs soil is best for "onlocation" jobs. When the carpet is removed to the plant, a wet method or shampoo is usually used. The athome method costs approximately ten cents a square foot; the outside cleaning runs approximately 11 cents a square foot, plus additional charges for removal and relaying.

Carpet repairs. If you have a deep burn on your carpet or if chemicals have failed on a bad stain, the area can be retufted (new threads are inserted and cut to the height of the surrounding area).

Oriental rugs can undergo the same type of repair as carpets. But if the rug is completely worn it cannot be rewoven (renapped). Carpets can be redyed and Oriental rugs stripped (color removed). Cutting, reshaping, dividing, and binding of a carpet can also be done.

Floor cleaning. If your wood floors look dull and lifeless, a professional floor refinisher can make them sparkle like new. He scrapes your floor, stains, and refinishes. The price depends on the original condition of your floor.

The professional floor waxer will also help revive vinyl, linoleum, and cork floors. The floor is "stripped" of all wax accumulations, washed, lightly waxed, and then vigorously buffed. The last process gives your floors color and life. The fee is based either on the square footage or charged "by the hour."

Furniture refinishing. If your furniture has chips, nicks, or has warped, there are home services that will fix these minor problems. Craftsmen come to your home, fill in the chips, touch up (stain), and finish by polishing the whole piece to make it look as if it were brand new.

A professional refinisher can also do almost anything to a piece of furniture. If you have a painted piece, he can give it a wood finish, and vice versa. Or maybe you would prefer a marbleized or tortoise-shell look or simply a new stain. All is possible but it is expensive. The price varies with what you want.

Venetian blind cleaning. If your Venetian blinds are dusted and cared-for frequently, they rarely need professional attention. But there are commercial services for cleaning and repairing. Tapes and cords can be replaced or changed to go with a new color scheme. Blinds can be cut to fit other windows.

Shades. They can be made smaller. Rollers and pulls can be replaced. If your particular shade is not washable have a professional clean it.

Mattress repair. The cost for rebuilding is high, but if you intend to rebuild your mattress do not wait too long. Do it before it becomes a hammock. With inner spring, cotton felt, hair mattresses, or a combination of the three, the contents can be replaced (not latex or foam rubber). A new unit (inner spring) and new stuffing can be added.

Marble polishing. With use, marble loses some of its luster. Moisture rings and stains are prevalent. The marble expert will remove a sheet of the surface with an abrasive grit. Then the surface is restored to its original luster by persistent buffing.

Silver repairs. Professional silversmiths should do all repairs and can restore silver pieces to their original condition and color. If sterling silver is badly stained and has deep scratches they can be burnished out. Dents are removed. Do leave the light scratches; they give sterling that desirable well-used look. In silverplate, after removing dents, stains, and scratches, the piece has to be replated.

General cleaning. For a thorough fall house cleaning there's nothing like a house-cleaning service. They have special machines and more strength than you to perform the most strenuous chores. They wash walls, wax and scrub floors, do heavy-duty vacuuming, high dusting, silver polishing, fixture and chandelier cleaning. The fee is about $4 an hour per man. Check your classified telephone directory for these and other services you are interested in. Most department stores have some of the services we have discussed. It is advisable to compare prices because they vary greatly.

When you decide to refurbish your home, we suggest that you do all you can and when you can do no more, call in a professional.

WALL STREET COMES TO YOUR LIVING ROOM

By Arturo and Gloria Gonzalez

Once a month, in Wichita, Kansas, ladies' cars begin pulling up in front of a neighbor's house. In the living room, hats are taken off, tea and luncheon sandwiches consumed, small talk exchanged about the PTA, the next "do" at the country club.

Then, suddenly, the small talk fades away. One of the ladies calls for attention and begins, "The Pyramid Club will now come to order." For the next several hours the air is filled with lively discussion about recent articles in The Wall Street Journal, price-earnings ratios, and what Washington's tight money policy could do to the price of Ampex.

Finally, the money talk stops—but not before the Pyramid Investment Club has invested as much as several thousand dollars in American free enterprise, and the members have heard a report that their sizable portfolio has increased another notch or two.

If you'll multiply this one meeting by the gatherings of approximately 40,000 other associations, you have some idea of the national dimensions of the investment-club boom currently under way in the U.S.A.

Through these investment clubs, happy members are discovering for themselves that clubbing is an interesting way to have a lot of fun, earn dividends, buy into American industry, and get an education in investment. Say the enthusiastic Detroit women who belong to the Par Ten Club, "We've been learning while we've been earning."

The National Association of Investment Clubs, which claims to be the granddaddy organization for this burgeoning investment trend, estimates there are now approximately 700,000 members in the United States. They're worth in total some $610 million.

Significantly, women are increasingly spearheading this trend toward investment clubs. During 1964, the famous Standard and Poor's Corporation, perhaps the best-known investment advisory group, informed Mrs. Howard Hilles of Plymouth, Indiana, that her investment club, the Baby Blue Chips, had won the firm's annual award for the best-managed stock portfolio in the country. Mrs. Hilles has been meeting since 1960 with 10 other ladies, gathering once a month to invest $10 apiece in common stocks. Their portfolio has grown by roughly nine percent over the past three years.

Defined basically, an investment club is the social way to learn about the stock market. The club is a group of congenial people meeting usually once a month to discuss the stock market and invest in securities of a mutual choice.

All one needs for joining an investment club is an interest in owning stock, a slight surplus of monthly cash, and a willingness to participate in stock purchases on a majority-vote basis. Smart club members use club investments as a form of savings, not taking out dividends nor profits, but reinvesting them for long-range gains.

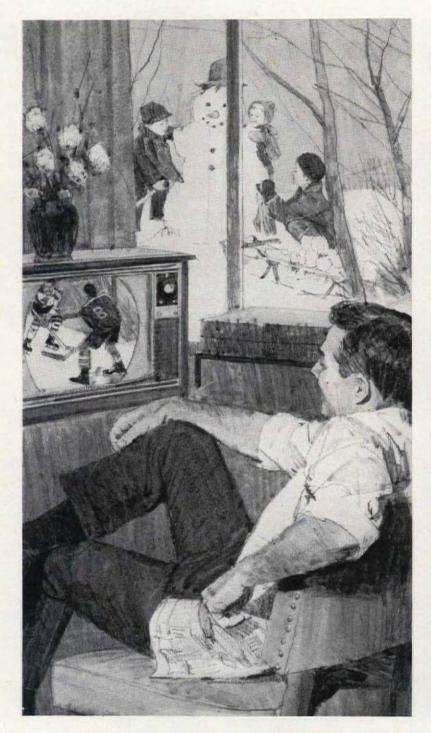

A club is also educational. Club members often take the trouble to inspect companies whose stocks they expect to buy. Few individual stock buyers bother to prepare detailed analyses of the companies whose stocks they're investigating, yet many clubs demand this from their members before purchasing shares.

If you decide you'd like to participate or help to form an investment club, you'll get plenty of help. Many local brokers consider that an important part of their business is helping investment clubs to organize and get started on regular investments. Says Ed Ward, an institutional trading specialist, "I handle more than 20 clubs, attend as many meetings as I possibly can, and would like to see a lot more groups formed. It's educational for the buyer and a good way of bringing new investors to the market."

G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, has this to say: "These clubs are effectively putting ownership within the reach of many Americans and they are doing it in a way that is practical as well as educational. As such, they are especially important to the apprentice investor . . . a laboratory in investment economics."

NINE TIPS ON STARTING A CLUB

1. Before beginning, check local and state laws for applicability to the club you plan; local regulations may help you (continued on page 90)

BUILD A SHADY OASIS IN NOTHING FLAT

There's nothing like a tree for shade. But what to do while you're waiting for those little sticks you put in the ground to grow into tall, leafy bowers? Before you crawl under the geraniums, look at 'the sketches and working plans of our easy-to-build arbor. Enhanced by container-grown plants, it's an almost instant outdoor living area with near woodslike shade.

The arbor is adaptable to other uses too. It can be a lathhouse or potting shed, a shelter for children's play equipment, a poolside cabana.

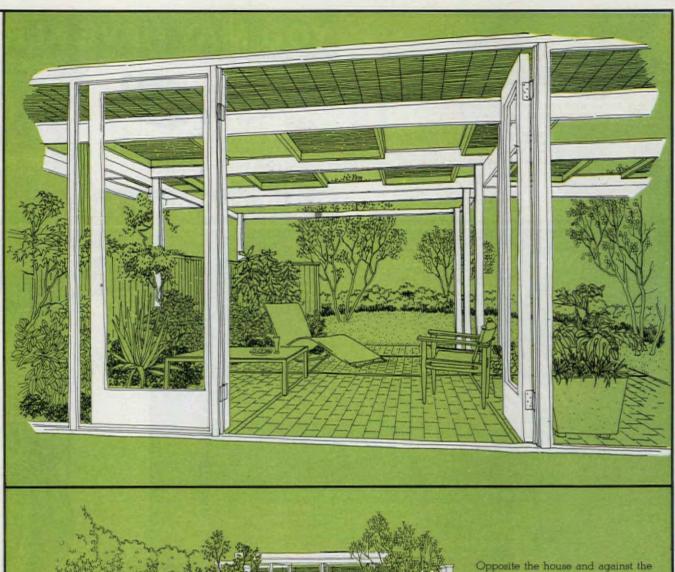

Your arbor can be simple and rustic or quite sophisticated. Roofing materials can be as inexpensive as reeds wired together in bundles, snow fencing with wood slats, canvas in frames, or you can construct a solid built-up roof pierced with plastic dome skylights. The walls can be split stakes of any dimension, thin wood lath strips, reed fencing, canvas panels, pierced materials, or sheeting to match your house.

For paving you can use inexpensive base rock with a coating of fine gravel. And one advantage of base-rock paving is that it will stay in place and you can eventually lay permanent paving (exposed aggregate concrete, bricks, concrete tiles) right over it.

If you prefer, pave your arbor area with "soft" materials such as tanbark, rice-seed hulls, pine needles, leafy compost, or wood shavings—whatever's readily available and inexpensive in your area.

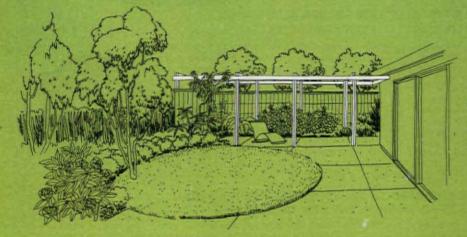

Don't forget that by installing indirect waterproof lights you can use your arbor at night too.

Before you rush to order your supplies, check about a building permit and inquire about the local building code. A chat with a local designer or contractor now will be invaluable in the long run.

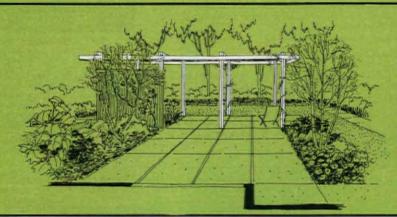

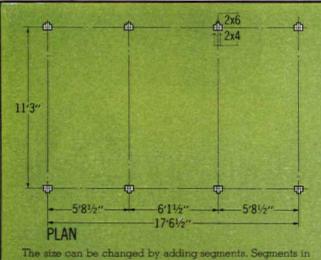

Opposite the house and against the fence enclosing the service area is a comfortable outdoor sitting room. Portable wooden tubs can be filled with geraniums, petunias, or daisies.

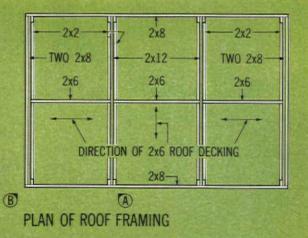

For maximum privacy, wind and sun protection, this modification of the arbor is set at right angles to the house. It will be even cooler and shadier when trees have matured.

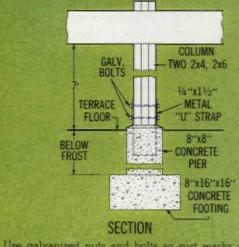

A simplified version of the arbor is this structure standing free of the house and forming a focal point of interest. Open on two sides, it has a lathhouse wing partly hidden by the planting. The lathhouse is constructed so that it will reduce excessive sunlight without cutting off cool breezes.

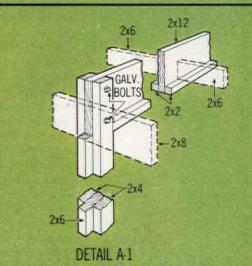

The size can be changed by adding segments. Segments in the center are larger so roof-decking span is equalized.

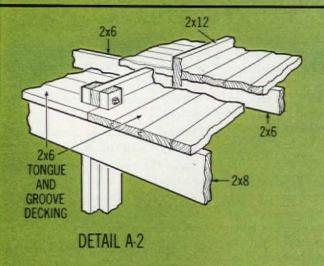

Use 2x2"s, 2x6"s, 2x8"s, and 2x12"s as shown. Roof decking alternates direction. Details at points A and B are below.

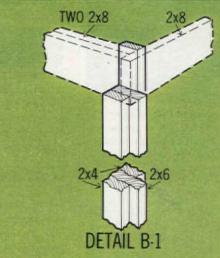

Use galvanized nuts and bolts so rust marks won't stain wood. Concrete pier should be carried beneath frost line.

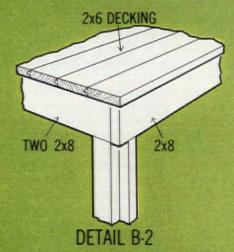

This shows a typical detail along the side of the arbor.

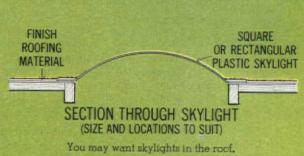

Another typical detail at the side showing roof construction.

A detail of the corner. A roofing contractor can advise you whether to use a metal edge cap at the perimeter of the roof.

They are available in various sizes and types. Your lumber dealer can advise you on any special installation techniques and on how to weatherproof the joint at the connection to the roof decking.

Don't paint it... Mira-Plate it!

Rustproof, waterproof, miracle epoxy coating lasts 5 times longer than paint!

If you can paint it-you can Mira-Plate it and get a surface that far outlasts any conventional finish. Rustproofs metal toys, tools, lawn furniture. Renews appliances, boats, pools, Beautifies cement, plaster, wood . . . with non-porous, tile-like finish. Goes on like paint with brush, spray, roller. Polyamide epoxy is non-toxic and fireresistant. Wide range of colors.

"It took just $850 and two days to air condition my entire home."

Mr. Clarence Tresler of Houston, Texas tells how easy and economical it is to enjoy the benefits of General Electric Central Air Conditioning. "Many folks think that air conditioning a house takes lots of money and means your home is all torn up," says Mr. Tresler. "Actually, installing our G-E air conditioning system was simple and inexpensive. It's very reasonable to run, too." The Treslers' home has 1,450 sq. ft. of living area.

"My drapes and everything else stay cleaner," notes Mrs. Tresler. "I only have to have the drapes cleaned maybe once a year. And I only have to do a thorough house cleaning every two weeks, at the most."

"I practically never used to bake in summer," Mrs. Tresler adds, in her attractive paneled kitchen, "until we got our G-E air conditioning. Now, I think nothing of it—even when it's hot and humid outside."

If you have forced-air heat—as the Treslers do—you can enjoy General Electric Central Air Conditioning, too, at a very modest price. Call your G-E dealer for a free survey and installation estimate. Ask him, too, about his easy financing terms. He's listed in the Yellow Pages under "Air Conditioning Equipment."

By William J. Toth Professor, Center for Safety Education, New York University

If you are an average American, you will be using your car to take your vacation this summer. Contrary to what advertising by the airlines, railroads, bus lines, and car-renting companies may lead you to believe, over 80 percent of all Americans use their own automobiles when vacation time comes around.

Consequently, it is extremely important that your car be in tip-top condition so that it can take and return you and your family as comfortably, as efficiently, and as safely as possible. It is also important that you plan your trip with utmost care down to the last detail so that your limited vacation time can be spent as enjoyably as you would like.

You can ill afford to spend even a small part of your vacation waiting along some highway for road service or in some remote town while repairs are being made on your automobile. Nor can you really enjoy your trip scurrying around at midnight from motel to motel looking for lodging. Preventive maintenance for your car and planning for your trip can minimize the possibility of these things happening to you.

RESERVATION FOR YOUR AUTO CHECKUP

One of the major problems many car dealers face today is not being able to handle auto-repair requests immediately. In many cases appointments must be made weeks in advance even for the ordinary checkup. Seldom will a dealer take you in off the street without an appointment, and only then in a real emergency.

As soon as you have confirmed your vacation dates, call up your dealer or serviceman and make an appointment to have your car serviced. If at all possible, have this work completed a week or at least a few days prior to your leaving. This will give you an opportunity for a "shake-down cruise" to check whether all repairs and adjustments are working satisfactorily. Picking up a repaired car one evening and leaving early the next morning could mean a delay if everything is not working properly. Remember to fill up with gasoline the night before an early departure . . . many service stations are not open before 7 a.m.

YOUR MECHANICAL CHECK LIST

- The battery should be clean, filled with water and checked for strength.
- Have the brakes in top condition.
- Have the tires rotated if necessary. Be sure they will last the trip.
- · Carry an inflated spare tire.
- Have all the lights working. Carry extra fuses and bulbs.
- · Be sure there isn't too much play in the steering wheel.
- · Check exhaust for leakage, noise.
- Be sure all windows are working.
 Replace any cracked glass.
- Mirrors should be clean, adjusted.
 A side mirror is a must.
- Be sure the rubber blades of wipers work efficiently.
- Washer should be filled, working, and properly aimed.
- Have seat belts installed—front and back.
- Have the luggage rack securely mounted. Have canvas covering and cord available.
- Check transmission, crankcase, and differential.
- Follow schedule in your owner's manual for lubrication.
- Have the radiator cleaned, filled, connections tightened.
- Carry any tools you may need jack, handle, wrenches, hammer, screwdriver, pliers.

Although all of the above items are important, experience shows that the leading causes of road breakdowns are battery, tire, and ignition failures. Be especially careful when your serviceman is checking these.

SPECIAL ITEMS TO MAKE YOUR TRIP MORE ENJOYABLE

Here is a list of articles that have proved valuable over the years: a pair of coveralls for a tire change or road repairs; rubber cords with hooks to eliminate tying your luggage with rope; pillows and blankets for sleepy passengers; flares for an emergency night breakdown; a flashlight with fresh batteries; old newspapers for wrapping, covering, or window cleaning; moisture pads in individual envelopes for washing without soap or water; a wet cloth in a plastic bag for sticky fingers; clean ones for wiping; an extra set of keys for another member of the family; an extra set of keys hidden outside your car; a thermos jug for drinking water; nonspillable plastic-covered cups for children; maps of the states in which you will travel; confirmations of reservations for motels; stamps for mailing letters and cards; ball-point pens to avoid ink leakage; an insurance company folder with contact listings nationally; owner's manual and car warranty; sunglasses; seat pads; a first-aid kit; and games for the children.

INSURANCE CHECKUP

Make sure your insurance coverage is adequate and is in effect. Remember your policy is probably not valid in a foreign country . . . and Canada and Mexico are foreign countries. A phone call to your company can arrange additional coverage if you plan to do any traveling outside the United States.

If, as you are traveling, you suddenly decide to cross our border, your company's nearest office can help you. Perhaps the most important thing your insurance company can furnish you is a complete listing of all of their contact offices and how you can get immediate service for an emergency.

YOUR RESERVATIONS

Nothing can be more frustrating than trying to find rooms late at night when all the signs say "NO VACAN-CIES." The seasoned traveler travels worry-free because he has the good sense to reserve ahead.

Within ten years reservations will have to be made at least a year in advance for campers to visit our national parks. More and more travelers are planning ahead and if you don't, you'll probably spend many nights sleeping in second-class rooms or even in your automobile.

Study a map of the states in which you will be traveling. Using the safe and enjoyable day trip of three hundred miles, you can predict where you will be each night and can wire, write, or phone for accommodations. It is safer to have a written confirmation. If you are really sure of your schedule, advance payment of your room will hold it for your arrival at any hour.

State Chambers of Commerce and Highway Departments can furnish you with excellent up-to-date literature on places to stay, things to see, and what roads are open to traffic. These agencies are located in the state capital and welcome your inquiries and requests for information.

THE NATIONAL DISTRESS SIGNAL

If you have a breakdown follow these rules:

- Get your car off the pavement even if it's necessary for you to physically push it off.
- 2. If you need service, raise your hood and attach a white handkerchief to either your door handle or aerial.

- 3. If your passengers get out, make them stand behind the guard rail.
- 4. If it is dark, place a light immediately behind your car and one about 100 feet up the road.
- 5. If you have emergency blinking lights, put them on and also turn on the inside dome light.
- 6. Do not permit anyone to stand behind the car blocking the taillights.
- 7. Do not risk sending anyone up the road to wave a white handkerchief or a hard-to-see flashlight.
- 8. If a motorist stops, have him send assistance from the next service station. Don't rely on one alone, tell two or three.

9. Stay with your car and family to protect them.

Police patrols usually come by about every half hour or so. They will stop and help you.

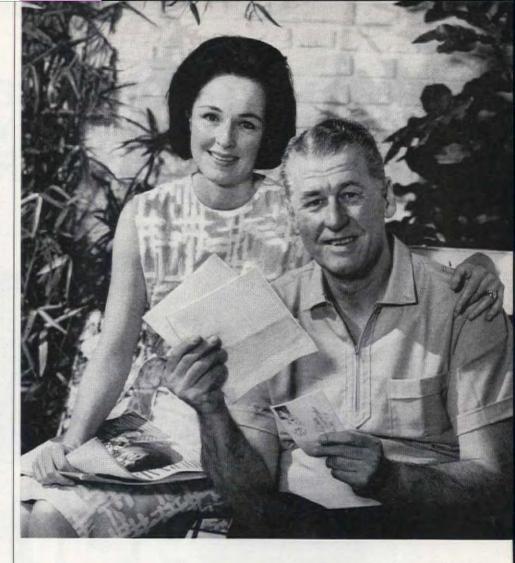

THAT MAJOR BREAKDOWN

Many times through no fault of your own your automobile becomes involved in an accident or suffers a breakdown stranding you in a strange locality. Are you prepared for this? Can you pay the tow and repair charges out of your pocket? The following information can help you plan for this:

- 1. You can continue your trip in a rented car or on public transportation if necessary.
- 2. In some cases you might even sell or trade your car.
- 3. You might send your family ahead and meet them later after the car has been repaired.
- 4. Insurance companies may solve your problem if you are covered by a policy.
- 5. Membership in a motor club pays off in this situation. Besides covering much of the towing expenses, they can give you sound advice and welcome assistance concerning your predicament.
- Credit cards can be a real lifesaver at a time like this. Make sure they are currently valid.
- 7. Personal checks with proper identification are usually acceptable.
- 8. Traveler's checks are excellent and safe to carry.

FOR THOSE BACK HOME

Leave word with your neighbors and relatives where you are going and the routes you expect to take . . in emergencies it will help them locate you. Leave the names and addresses of any motels with which you have made reservations. Also stop home deliveries, have a neighbor pick up your mail, leave a key with a trustworthy friend, notify your police department that you will be away. You are now ready to relax and enjoy the vacation you have planned carefully. Oh yes, be sure to take along your car registration and your driver's license . . . after all, these are what permit you to legally enjoy miles and miles of happy vacation travel in your car. THE END

"How we retired in 15 years with $300 a month"

"A letter this morning from my twin brother set me to thinking—and counting my blessings.

"Being a twin and keeping so close, I find it strange that Harry is still battling his way through the rush-hour crush to his job, day in and day out, while Alice and I are living here in Florida, retired and free to enjoy winters in the sun. "Harry and I both had good jobs

"Harry and I both had good jobs through the years. We kept in touch, even though our homes were almost three hundred miles apart. My Alice and Harry's wife, Helen, corresponded regularly, kept track of all the children's birthdays (we have two boys and a girl, and so do they) and planned reunions at Christmas time or family visits during summer vacations.

"Back in 1949, when we both hit that 40th birthday, there was the usual long-distance call; Harry and I kidded each other about becoming 'old men,' and Alice and Helen, on the extension phones, kept interrupting with 'No such thing' and 'Don't you believe it!' Afterward I noticed Alice rummaging through our stack of magazines.

"Finally, she found what she was looking for. 'Here,' she said, 'read this, young man!' She handed me Life magazine opened at an advertisement on Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plans. It now was possible, the ad said, for a man of 40 (my new age!) with good earning power to retire in just 15 years with a guaranteed income of $300 or more for the rest of his life. It seemed too good to be true, but to make Alice happy, I tore off the coupon and filled it in. Later, when we took our boxer for his nightly walk, I noticed Alice dropped an envelope in the mailbox at the corner.

"The booklet arrived, and we soon started our own Phoenix Mutual Plan. It was the wisest move we ever made. I don't know where the time went, but those fifteen years flew by, and our first check came last year. We sold our house in Scarsdale at a profit, and moved into a new house here in Florida.

"As my brother says in his letter, 'You lucky dog—that check in the mail every month gives you a security lots of rich men would envy!"

YOU'LL GET THE SURPRISE OF YOUR YOUNG LIFE WHEN YOU LOOK INTO THE NEW PHILCO WASHER

Here's the most effective action ever put into an automatic washer. Read how the new Philco uses "blades" of water to get clothes cleaner, handle bigger loads, wash anything from a rug to delicate nylons.

Look into an ordinary washer and you'll see an agitator with blades of rigid metal or plastic. Until now there was no other practical way to swish suds around in a washer. But, no matter how you arrange them, blades or paddles can be hard on clothes. They tend to beat fabrics, can tangle wash into hard knots, put wrinkles in wash-and-wear fabrics.

How Philco washes with "blades" of water

If a new and really better washer was to be made, there wasn't much that could overcome the basic disadvantages of the old beat-and-thrash agitator. So Philco engineers threw out all the old ideas and started from scratch. They found a way to get more dirt out and leave more wear in —by making the water itself do the work.

At the bottom of the washer tub is a smooth, flexible water-impeller. Except for the post that holds the detergent and bleach dispensers, the entire tub is left free for clothes. The water-impeller makes 575 strokes a minute — about ten times faster than it is practical to flap rigid blades back and forth.

And a washing miracle happens.

Powerful waves of water are sent through and through the wash. These are the "blades" of the new Philco action. They have tremendous dirt-removing power. Yet, unlike rigid blades, they don't beat clothes. You don't find mounds of lint that was once good cloth.

This new and entirely different way to wash is called "Blades of Water" action. And the new Philco Washer is the only one that has it. In time, others may try to copy it. But right now, remember, only Philco washes with "blades" of water.

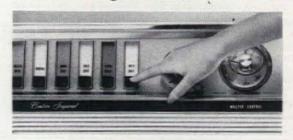

Washes everything better

You can put a tremendous load into the new Philco Washer and it will come out sparkling clean. It will take heavy shag rugs without slowing down — and remove all the ground-in dirt. Yet "Blades of Water" action is so gentle that the new Philco Washer will pamper the most delicate job — even sheer nylons.

New high in dependability

Service calls will be few and far between with a Philco "Blades of Water" Washer. Because another advantage of "Blades of Water" action is its simplicity. There are far fewer moving parts. We've actually run as many as 5,000 test loads — equal to ten years' normal use — without a single breakdown.

New convenience, new savings

So many features make the Philco "Blades of Water" Washer the one you want to own. There's an extra-wide contoured top for easier loading.

Super-efficient bleach and detergent dispensers and a Variable Water Saver—all designed to save you money. Philco's patented Ball Point Balance ends the problem of off-balance loads.

Bright new styling, too.

You can choose a Philco Washer with as many cycles and special features as you want — or as few. The important thing is that, whichever model you choose, you'll get new "Blades of Water" action — the most effective washing action you've ever used.

See for yourself

Visit a Philco dealer this week and ask him to show you the new Philco "Blades of Water" Washer. It's like nothing you've ever seen. And so is the washing job it can do for you.

For the name of your nearest Philco Dealer, call Western Union by number and ask for Operator 25.

Viewed from the farthest shore of winter, summer looks like an island—of time, of self-renewal, of the good life. Good-bye to car pools, PTA, den-motherhood. Farewell to the frantic if pleasurable holiday bustle. Let us shed our winter skins under summer's benevolent sun. Everything is possible in summer. We feel like human beings again. Here's the yearly chance to catch up, to lie fallow, to find out where we are going and who we are.

Why, then, are we so often left at summer's end with the disquieting feeling that we have failed somehow to use that golden stretch of time?

Summer used to be a time to get away from it all. Summer was a backyard hammock, a raft, a tree house, a cool cave, a shack on the beach. No longer. Today summer is people-the splash of a chlorine-scented crowd, the gregarious clink of horseshoe or martini glass, the tinkle of the ice cream man, the blare of TV from a million family rooms. In other days children departed happily for the old swimming hole, leaving behind an island of peace and quiet. Today, the island has turned into a Lilliputian country club with mother doing double duty as lifeguard beside the plastic pool and manager of the snack bar, providing tuna fish and pep-ade. Not only must she run a day camp for the locals, she must provide resort facilities for those who are citybound the rest of the year. Anyone with a house outside town knows that summer brings drop-in guests along with mosquitoes.

an we make summer an island-U separate from the mainland of other seasons-without severing social connections entirely? We can if we are a bit ruthless and remote. We will have to say "No" to the casual visitor, the same old invitations, the neighborhood get-togethers. We can do it if we are clearly occupied with some private interest-be it a garden, a hobby, a project, a painting, or a family pursuit. Significantly, island dwellers seldom attract droppersinners. And not just because they are physically remote. They seem too selfsufficient. Nobody wants to intrude.

This is not to say that a hermit's life is ideal or recommended. But, inevitably, the more your backyard fills itself up with strangers the more you will attract.

Even happy families cannot spend every waking moment together. We all need get-away spots. Establish some in your own backyard. Grandmother's gazebo is available in workfree aluminum or you can build your own with scrap lumber and screens. This movable oasis of quiet shade is insurance against too much togetherness. Let the children put up a tent or build a tree house. Scour the grounds for a corner, hedged or fenced, where a hammock might be strung. The idea is to get close to nature as well as away from crowds.

Tell your family that mother is off limits from 11 to one or two or four or whatever hours are best. That hour or two of unbroken time is the leisure that renews. Stretch out with a book, a cold drink, or simply loaf. You deserve it.

"But what about the children?" you ask. "They won't let me alone." Then you must teach them the virtues of island living. All winter their lives are beautifully mapped and bounded by sports, school, scouts, dancing, and music lessons. When summer comes they are lost.

"Can't we ever go anywhere?" has become the cry. So you load up the station wagon and search for a childdrop, a park, camp, or beach. Wouldn't it be easier all round if the young just got on their bikes and rode in search of adventure?

esist the temptation to structure summer. Instead, let it unfold naturally. Suburbia may be more limited than Crusoe's Island but there are still brooks to wade in, fish to hook, trees to climb, flowers to pick, hamsters to coddle. Give the children Huckleberry Finn, Tom Sawyer, Swiss Family Robinson to read, and then hope they will translate these adventures into summer fun. No child, even one devoted to television and pizza, could fail to appreciate this testimonial of Huck and Tom on the good life: "It seemed glorious sport to be feasting in that wild, free way in the virgin forest of an unexplored and uninhabited island, far from the haunts of man, and they said they would never return to civilization.'

Return, of course, they did, because you can't live on turtle eggs forever. But they brought with them that expansive sense of being alive which islands encourage. Give your children the supreme gift of summer on their own. Help them find their own island. They will be infinitely richer and so will you.

If you want oohs and ahs over your furniture, you don't need a Realtor.

If you want to sell your house, you do.

"Never mind the furnace
—where'd you get those marvelous curtains?"

If you've ever tried selling a house on your own, you know the story. People come breezing in to admire your taste, make notes of your decorating ideas, and then dawdle off to bother somebody else. They make a career of "just looking."

How to avoid them: see a Realtor.

A Realtor is a professional in the real estate business. He services the kind of people who are seriously interested in buying a home. He will not show your house to amateur interior decorators, only to genuine prospects. People who want to see your house because it fits their needs.

Your Realtor is a dedicated career man who has qualified for membership in his local real estate board and in the National Association of Real Estate Boards. He upholds a strict Code of Ethics and high standards of performance.

Is it hard to find a Realtor? Not at all. He'll give you a warm welcome wherever you see this seal. Gentle reminder: he can spot people who are "just looking" right away.

AND AWAY
WE GO
I THINK
By Jeanne Lamb O'Neill

I'm sure most families know if, when, and where they're going on vacation months ahead of time. They have their reservations in by the last killing frost, if not the last howling blizzard. They spend weeks and weeks planning what clothes to take, what route to travel, and whom to leave the goldfish with.

But suppose you can't plan your vacation? Suppose your husband never knows till the last week in July that he's taking the first two weeks in August? Suppose you never find out till Wednesday that you're leaving on Friday—unless something comes up on Thursday? What then?

Well, then you can go all to sloppy pieces. Or you can sell your suitcases and join a country club (I notice that people who pay club dues never take vacations). Or you can go off without Daddy and sit in the sand with the kids all week wishing it were Friday.

Or you can take a mad, impetuous, potluck vacation. I love potluck vacations. They're much more fun than planned vacations. And, believe it or not, they're more relaxing.

For one thing, if you don't know where you're going, the children can't keep asking "How much longer till we get there?". If you don't know where you're going, you can't tell them at the office. And if you don't know where you're going, you can't be disappointed when your "vacation paradise" falls flat on its fat brochure.

Not knowing when you're going has its advantages too. The trouble with planned vacations is that you have to work so hard getting ready for them. If Mom doesn't need a vacation to begin with, she does by the time the family starts out.

But how long does it really take to write notes to the milkman, mailman, and paper boy? How long does it really take to turn off the water, lock the windows, and load the car? You can do it all in an hour—the same eleventh hour most worriers-and-planners do it in anyway.

How about packing? Packing in itself never was a problem—the problem is having tons of clean, ironed clothes to pack. Well, every family knows they have to dress in rags the week before they go away. You just keep everybody dressed in rags longer—week after relaxing week.

Some people spend hours deciding which clothes to take. That's a waste of time. Take everything you own—what's a car trunk for? If your husband bellows, next time pack so efficiently that he has to buy bathing suits for every body in the family when you get there.

The problem of "eating down" the refrigerator is easily solved. Just keep the shelves Mother Hubbard bare. Eat out. Go on a diet. Surprise your relatives. You can use the extra money, and you know you always eat too much and get fat on vacation.

See what I mean? When you don't know when and where you're going, you can't be responsible for anything. When the big day comes, instead of crawling out to the car on your hands and knees, you're fresh and bouncy and raring to go.

And don't let the real estate and resort people scare you. You'll find someplace to go. The fact is you'll probably do much better potlucking in July than you ever did signing up in January. What do you bet you end up with the best house on the beach—because the owner couldn't get his price and suddenly panics? Or the best room in the hotel thanks to a last-minute cancellation. Or an enchanting hideaway on the bay that just happens to be "For Rent" when you drive by.

When we zoom gaily out of the garage tomorrow or next week or the next, we won't know where we're going to hang our toothbrushes. We won't know what color the walls will be or where they hide the can opener. True, we won't know the peculiar pleasure of returning to dear, familiar summer things. But think of the high Goldilocksian adventure of sitting on strange chairs, sleeping in strange beds, and eating from strange porridge dishes. And think of the Balboan fun of exploring uncharted bookcases and exotic china closets. Think of the James Bondian suspense of not knowing whether we will all land in clover or-and there's always a first time-on our ear.

Things may not always be this way. We may grow old and stuffy. We may build ourselves the vacation house on page 51. Or John may spoil everything and schedule his vacation next year.

But while our potluck lasts, I'm going to relax and enjoy it. THE END

A place for quiet. Does your garden have a someplace to go and a someplace to be, when you want to sit quietly and listen to the trees growing? This elegantly simple garden pavilion is the essence of serenity. Its raised deck has a floating look. The Aframe roof, built inexpensively of redwood siding with the rough side out, gives a sense of shelter to the open-walled little house. Pebbles, rocks, and greenery make upkeep easy. Sit back and enjoy it.

Deck the roofs. With the new Travelon weather deck system from Armstrong, spaces you never thought of using can be utilized for summer living. Installed as shown in the sketch above, it allows you to make full use of any flat-roofed area—the top of the garage, over porches, on balconies. One of the problems has always been to get a waterproof surface that can take foot traffic. Before, canvas decking (which had to be replaced frequently) and wood duckboards (awkward to walk on) were used. With Travelon, you can have an easy-to-maintain penthouse garden.

FUN IN SUMMER

Swinging idea. There's more than one way to shade a garden or patio from the sun. Here it's done with shade panels that can be pivoted to keep pace with the sun as it moves across the sky. They will also deflect the wind or let mild breezes through. And they provide privacy. Built of cement asbestos board, panels could be adapted any place where you need a flexible solution for climate control.

Guy Burges

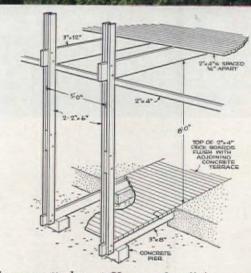

Get into a tight spot. Imagination can make up for a lack of space. This useless remnant of land (white area in upper photo) was tiny, barren, and open to the street. But when Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Schmitz renovated this house in the German Village section of Columbus, Ohio, they made it into a miniature pleasure garden, with head-high walls for privacy, plants, a tree, even a small fountain.

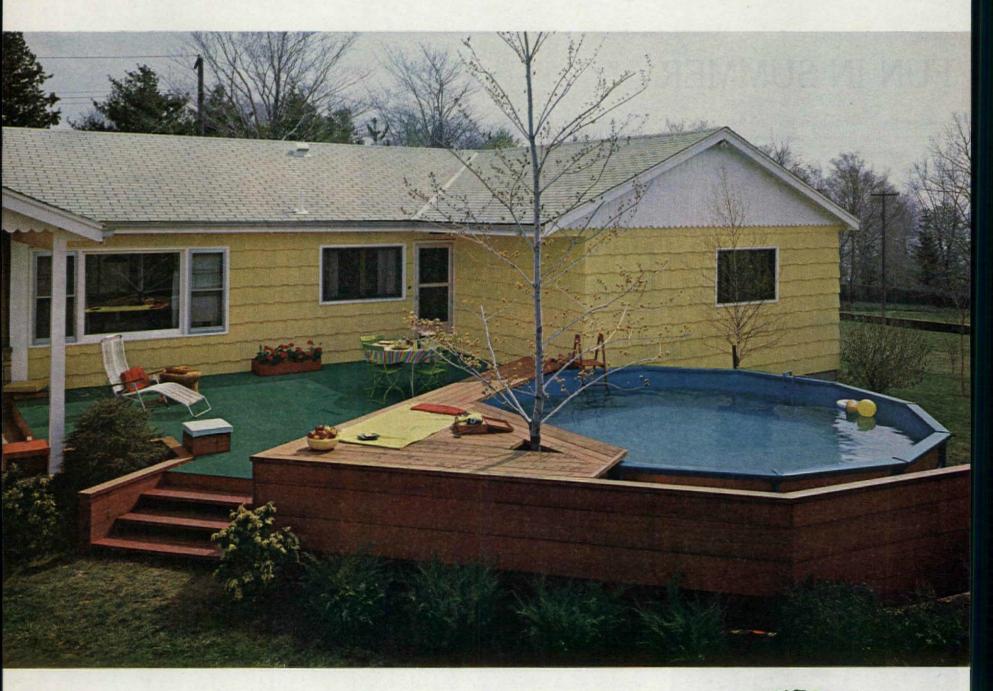

Beneath it all. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth T. Byers of Carmichael, California, built this on-ground platform of redwood planks and surrounded it with white gravel. A walnut tree shades the platform.

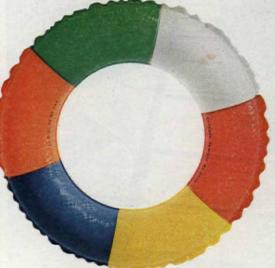

Form an attachment. Your outdoor living area can be attached to your house, as it is in the top photograph, for the most convenient place to get sun, or sit in shade. The roof framing was extended and half of the deck area put under the roof. The sketch shows how it can be built. Another garden structure you can build is shown on page 30, along with construction drawings. Either could become a modern version of the old-fashioned garden arbor.

ABOVE-GROUND POOL GETS BEAUTY TREATMENT

Is the summer heat getting the best of you and your family? Tired of being trapped in bumper-to-bumper traffic every weekend trying to get to some equally crowded public beach? Or lugging your supplies to the family outboard? Then build a low-cost pool as Marty and Rochelle Molloy did and step out your door to summertime fun. Study carefully what the Molloys did to their backyard and to their whole way of summer living. These ideas can easily be adapted to almost. any backyard situation. Not only are the pool and deck a handsome addition, they are economical, can be built quickly, and will increase the value of your home while providing you with a recreation and outdoor center for family living. Best of all, you can actually be enjoying the pool while you are building the remaining parts. In fact, you can be swimming the second day after starting the project since the pool must be installed first. For that matter, if you feel you haven't the capital to swing the whole arrangement this year, you could start with the pool and then build the deck, fencing, benches, and planters at a later date. The deck is normal frame construction of 2x8" joists on a 16" center spacing, covered with outdoor-grade Douglas fir plywood sheathing and a vinyl material called Neo Turf that simulates grass. Outdoor vinyl carpeting would work equally well or, to keep the cost even lower, you could use an open-type decking like that shown on page 43. If you use vinyl, and live in an area with severe winters, be sure to check with the manufacturer to see if it's approved for cold areas. Bench, deck, fencing, planter boxes are redwood. Pool is by Muskin of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania.

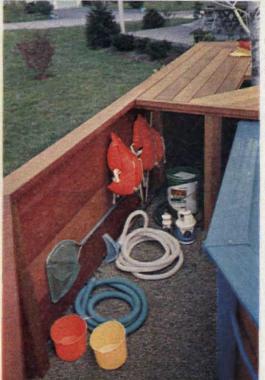

Before. This is what the Molloy backyard looked like before the project was begun. Door from the kitchen led to nowhere and the kitchen and dining room windows looked out on a rather ordinary lawn. Opposite page shows the completed project.

What a difference a deck makes to pull an above-ground pool down to earth. Next summer the Molloys plan to shield this view from their neighbors with additional landscaping.

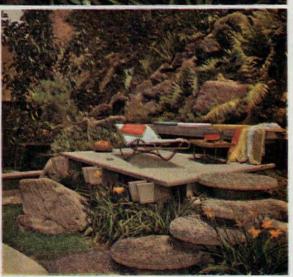

Redwood bench does triple duty. It is wide enough to serve as a sunning deck, overhangs pool to serve as platform for jumping into pool, and is raised above the deck high enough to keep children from running into the pool. A cover can be stretched over pool for further protection.

Storage spot. Area where fencing and deck meet is a good place to stash away all the needed equipment—chemicals, skimmers, life preservers, and cleaning tools. The Molloy children, Lynn and Michelle also found an added bonus—they have a new clubhouse under the redwood bench.

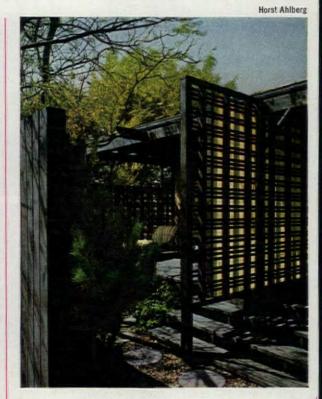

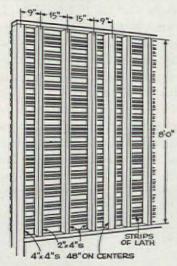

Steps to be taken. Landscape architect and photographer Paul J. Peart, of Monterey Park, California, designed his garden to be lived in, not just to be seen. The transition between indoors and outdoors was kept unobtrusive so the spaces blend and seem larger. Emphasis was put on the use of interesting forms and textures. This corner of the garden delights the senses by the sheer joy of movement and repose, the progression up the shallow four-inch steps to the sunning deck above, where the whole garden can be viewed. The steps are precast 30-inch concrete rounds with exposed aggregate, anchored to hidden concrete foundations. The retaining wall under the deck has been painted an inconspicuous charcoal. Planting hides most of the structural works. Alongside the deck is a hillside fountain flowing over flagstones to the basin below.

Divided attention. What shape your outdoor living space takes depends mostly on what you do with it. Here, we show the results of remodeling a typical tract house—keeping leisure use in mind. One large deck is made to do double duty by dividing it with a roof-high screen. Each section of the deck is half roofed, half exposed to sun. On one side of the screen is a private garden outside a bedroom. On the other side is the main garden opening from the living room. The idea of dividing your garden is worth considering if you would enjoy the two smaller spaces twice as much or as often as the one large one. The diagram shows you how to build a screen like this. You may also use a translucent backing.

Ernest Braun

How to camouflage. If your garden scheme involves mechanical equipment or other forms of tools and whatnots, you might as well make a comfortable asset of it. Here, a swimming-pool filter was housed and disguised in this hexagonal redwood structure which is a poolside seat and lounge. The top is hinged and holds pool toys and other equipment.

Enter in style. Your entryway doesn't have to be a boring concrete strip from the sidewalk or driveway to the door. This one, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rubinstein of Tucson, Arizona, has a walk of unevenly sized concrete slabs beside a stand of luxuriant foliage. Making an entrance here is an event to be remembered from visit to visit.

Take cover. If you're lucky enough to have a pool, this portable dressing room can ease the traffic through the house and also be a poolside addition.

Take wing. This is one way to be sure of getting a spot of shade when you start out on a picnic. The detachable batwing for the car is held onto the roof with suction cups, and can be packed into the trunk when it's time for you to move to greener fields. Good, too, on station wagons for tailgate picnics.

Take a break. This special-occasion tent could make its home in your backyard all summer long. It could be a poolside refreshment pavilion, a party setting, a play tent, a knight's jousting tent, you name it. It's easily set up, dismantles quickly if it's to be used occasionally. Why go away for picnics?

It's a rainy summer afternoon and your house is bulging with restless children. Throw an impromptu party, paper-style. Fill shiny paper bags full of various papers and run a cutting-out contest... first prize for most creative effort. Scissors should be blunt; ours are plastic. The table decorations: a paper village, folded paper trees on chopstick trunks in paper cups filled with sand, stylized houses, and enamel funnel trumpets.

Dine on paper - and serve breakfast, brunch, and buffets on it too. But don't do it tentatively or timidly. Pick positive patterns-courageous colors. Not ones that pretend to be something they're not, namely china or pottery. Notice how we combine plain plates (in the boldest colors we could find) with striking patterns in napkins and mats. And how we play pattern against pattern in other settings. Of course, there's a time and a place even for paper. It's appropriate for informal meals, informal occasions, informal settings. And this new flair for paper is designed to free you for summer's more important pursuits.

For hurry-up-and-let's-go-to-the-beach breakfasts, paper is bright as a summer morning and twice as practical. There's a striped runner, or if you prefer a whole cloth, all you do is unfold it, plus flowered mats and coasters for under the orange juice glasses. All in the sunniest, cheeriest colors. For fun, pile tissue-paper eggs in a basket.

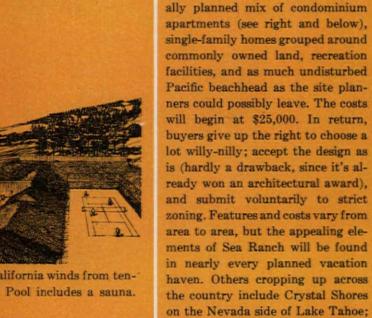

THE NEW LOOK IN VACATION, LIVING

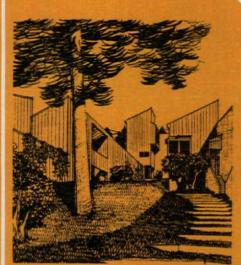

Right now and in the future, you will be hearing words like planned community, cluster, common land, condominium, quadruplex and duplex, applied to vacation living. These are the brightest new concepts blooming for U.S. vacationers. One lively example of what's being built appears in the sketches on this page. They are views of Sea Ranch, north of San Francisco, a profession-

The two-story vacation house

The new thing is the two-story vacation house. The essence of this one on Fire Island, New York, is air, light, space to move around in, and an awareness of the pleasures of sun, sand, water, and plants. The 17-foottall living room, above, allows the variety of moving from lofty areas to low ones; from high perches to low, wide decks. Even the furniture enjoys the freedom of not being backed against walls. Spaces are (continued)

(continued) meant to be moved around in, not stared at from edges of room. It was designed for fashion designer Rex Madsen, of New York, who knew what he wanted but didn't impose too many restrictions on the architect, Harry Bates, A.I.A. The solution, quickly reached, was so successful that as much time as possible is spent there from March to the end of November. Heat is provided by a furnace under the inconspicuous trapdoor in the living room floor. Interior walls are rough-sawn wood, like the outside. The furniture is a mixture of the old and the new.

A good second home gives its owner a latitude of choice, and a contrast from his year-round pace. There's an untrammeled openness, so different from the clutter and comfortable, but often confining, routine of day-to-day life. Simplicity is the mode of existence, to be elaborated at will. And for apartment dwellers, it often is the only opportunity to furnish a house as a whole. This one shows it can the bay, can be seen, along with reflections of the house in the cattail marsh. The lighting shows the organization of the house: small rooms at one side, the house-wide, house-high living room at the other.

The clean, dramatic design of the double freestanding stairway suggests the soaring, swooping motion of sea gulls over the beach. The treads, four feet wide, are cantilevered from the wall. The supporting spine rests on the narrow balconies above living room.

An economy of means devotes most of space to living room. Other rooms are roomy, but not oversized. Area: about 1400 square feet. Study doubles as guest room.

The unequivocal shape of the house gives it a presence and a command of the site. It's set 30 feet back from the water to have a foreground view of the marsh and to break up glare of water on the all-glass north exposure. The siding is unfinished rough-sawn red cypress. The board-on-board pattern gives shadow lines and dimension to the high expanse of solid wall.

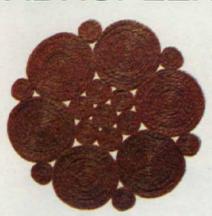

Bright colors accent the wood tones. Door frames are designed without moldings to save money. Compartmented bath on both sides of hall separates bedrooms, each with its own deck, a direct stairway, and a balcony.

No telltale door reveals the location of the storage room that holds all seldom-used clutter. It is reached only through closet in guest room.

QUADRUPLEX and with a high standard of design. The community is a fishing-boating-swimming haven surrounded by salt water and inland Summer is the time for adventure, for seeing NEW TREND Summer is the time for adventure, for seeing new places, trying new ways of living. And even for trying new ways of vacation living. IN TEXAS: even for trying new ways of vacation living.

This quadruplex in Bryan Beach, near Freeport. Texas, offers one of the newest ideas port, Texas, offers one of the newest ideas THE we've seen—the carefully planned vacation community with built-in recreation facilities and with a high standard of design. The haven surrounded by salt water and inland fishing areas. Canals run right through town for easy access from house to boat. For swimming, there is a pool in each quadruplex group that is just outside each door. The quad is made up of four complete one-family vacation homes that face onto the jointly owned pool and patio area. Each group of four is comprised of one duplex house and two single houses, as shown on the plan. The jointly owned pool and patio area is maintained by the management company for a modest fee. Designed by Clovis B. Heimsath, A.I.A., of Houston, each unit sells for about $16,500. The selling price includes a heat pump air-conditioning system which heats or cools the air as required, range, oven, refrigerator, and a dishwasher.

The living room of each house has a view of the patio area and the shared swimming pool. Yet each house is separated enough so there is no crowded feeling. The kitchen is just off living room for easy serving.

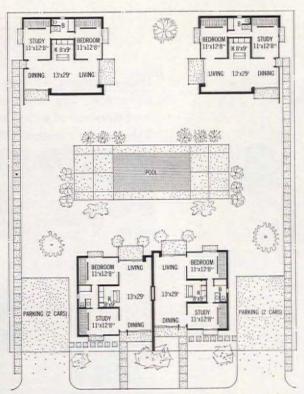

View from other side of living room is of the canal connecting the town to the salt-water lake.

Distinctive roof is wood shingled. Houses are steel-reinforced concrete on concrete slabs. The vacation community is located on an island.

The quadruplex is made up of four units forming a square around the jointly owned pool and patio. Two connected units could become one large house.

DECORATE FOR FUN AND FUNCTION

How to furnish one of the brightest, zingiest houses we've seen in many a summer? With a headful of ideas, an eyeful of imagination. Instead of a pocketful of money, a sense of fun and adventure.

Idea-man here is Roland Crump who decorated this California house for an incredible $500 plus labor. Shopping trips were really tours of local junkyards and housewreckers, yet this home does not have the usual depressing "summer house" air of having been furnished with cast-offs.

Too many second homes we have seen are furnished with leftovers and discards, with things their owners no longer want in their first homes. If a piece of furniture or a pair of draperies is worn out, then replace them, we say, but don't reuse them in the country. After all, your sense of what's pretty and appropriate functions wherever you are. If you don't enjoy drinking out of jam jars in town, you're not going to like it in the country.

Your vacation house should add to the enjoyment of your leisure time and it should be just as comfortable and just as attractive as your permanent one. Naturally, you'll want it to look different, change being such an important part of every vacation. Let your second home express a different "you," the holiday "you," if possible. But let it also be as practical as you can make it so that you can cut your housekeeping to a minimum. That these two ideas are not mutually exclusive is proved by the house shown here. Though it is bursting with copyable ideas, it's also functional, contagiously uninhibited, free of clichés.

Our two vacation homes (here and on the following pages) make yet another important point. Namely, that you should always keep locale in mind when furnishing your vacation house. A beach house, a desert house, and a ski (mountain) house should look different, inside and out. Let them be regional if you wish, for regional design has its roots in regional geography and regional climate.

Ideas for a hearth. This one was built for $5 of bricks set, not mortared, right on the floor. Low table was also homemade, cost—under $10. Two by fours were doweled and pegged together. Tinted sealer serves as protective finish. The legs are wrapped with colorful sky blue and black Mexican twine.

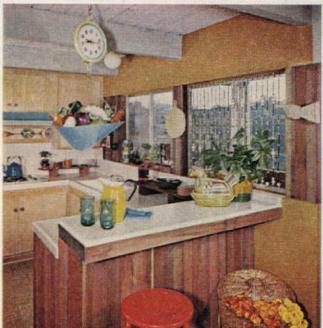

Ideas for outdoor living. Deck was enclosed with redwood siding. Furniture consists of soy kegs from the grocery store (these were $2.50 each) topped with latex foam rubber rounds done up in bandana kerchiefs found at any variety store. The table base is a nail keg, the top a plywood round. Raised plant beds of brick are merely laid in place, the same technique used for the hearth. Woven grass rugs cost only $7 each, and add to furnished look.

Ideas for a living room. Notice the casual grouping of low table, movie director chairs, and black canvas cot. Bright area rug keeps arrangement from falling apart. (Cot, from army surplus store cost $5; canvas top, $9.) Coffee table was made from plywood door, painted black, cost $3. These folding chairs were $25.95. Cedar display wall was $60, including the built-in fluorescent-light bank.

Ideas for a kitchen. Scale, bought at a scavenger's paradise for $7 is gaily painted; contents change with the seasons. At the window, bead curtains soften aluminum frames. Lots of brilliant (and inexpensive) Japanese enamel and Mexican glass add color. Next to window at rear, redwood display board holds utensil collection.

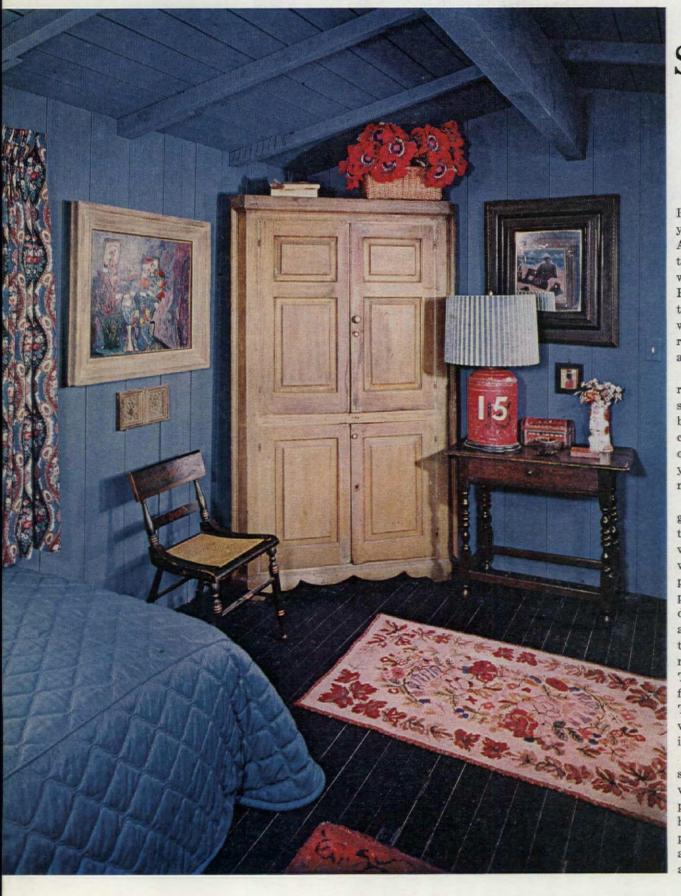

Ideas for a bathroom. For towel storage this bar cabinet was enameled bright sulfur yellow with red interior. And once again, color is used brightly for inexpensive decorating with zest.

Max Eckert

Ideas for a project room. Plywood door placed on two saw-horses provides plenty of room for a hobby. This room could also serve as an extra bedroom, has its own private deck.

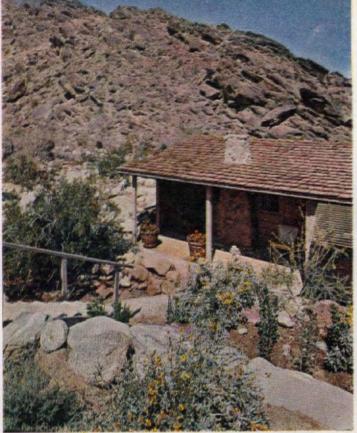

YOUR SECOND HOME-MAKE IT PERSONAL

Part of the fun of owning a second home is that you're free to decorate it exactly as you wish. And that's what happened with this cottage in the desert near Palm Springs, California. It's welcoming and cozy—a far cry from the Greco-Roman palaces, the Petit Trianons, the luautorched trailers of that famous resort. Colors were chosen that would be pleasant with the surrounding desert; cool in the daytime but warm at night, when warmth is needed in the desert.

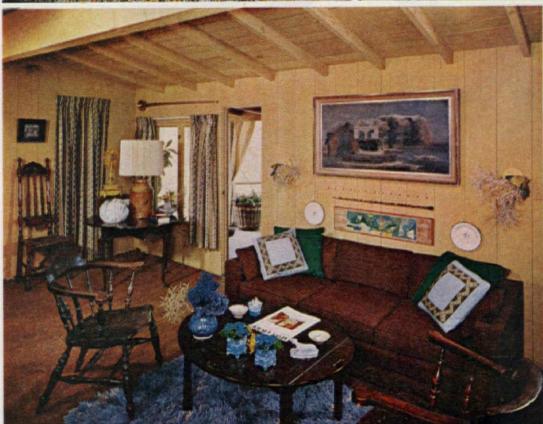

From the outside, the house seems a part of the rugged, rocky terrain. The entrance patio (opposite page, top left) is spiked by colorful desert-blooming plants and greenery. At the rear, a covered terrace with smart, crisp, iron furniture overlooks a small pool and the mountains beyond. Draw curtains protect against the hot noonday sun as well as the cool breezes at night.

The cottage itself is small—one living-diningguest room plus a master bedroom. To enlarge the interior, walls and ceilings of rough-sawn redwood are painted a mustard color to harmonize with the deeper-toned wall-to-wall Haitian carpeting. Bright area rugs add spark. Only one print is used on furniture, dining table, and windows. Another good stratagem for gaining space and a feeling of airiness is the way the dining table and chairs are squared away under the corner windows. (You might substitute benches.) The upholstered daybed in the alcove near the fireplace is great for sitting or sleeping guests. The master bedroom has deep royal blue walls, a wonderful desert color, says the owner. Beds stand in corners to gain space.

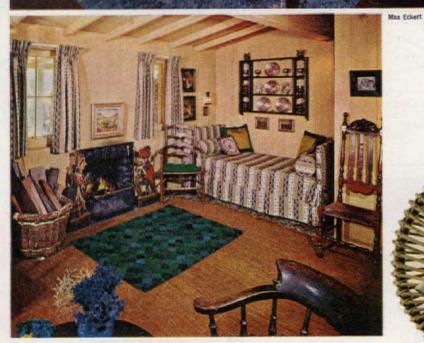

If your second home is on a mountain or by the sea, try to think in terms of colors that go equally well with your beach life or mountain atmosphere. This house owes much of its charm to a highly personal mixture of English antiques with punchy modern area rugs and a wide choice of accessories. It is restful and cool, yet pleasantly alive with its holiday mood.

Take a Carton of Cottage Cheese

Call it ricotta in Italy, bonnyclabber in Scotland, or smearcase in Pennsylvania-Dutch country, we know it as cottage cheese. When it was first made is unknown and how it came to be called "cottage" is a mystery, but its popularity is unquestioned.

Cottage cheese is available as:

Creamed cottage cheese, the drained, washed, salted curd of defatted milk with sweet cream added. It is sold in both large and small curds.

Uncreamed or dry cottage cheese, the drained curd without added cream. It is sometimes called pot cheese.

Bakers' cheese, the curd, drained of whey, without cooking or washing. It may be salted or Cottage cheese is an easily digested, nutritious food good for everyone no matter what his age. The creamed and uncreamed have about the same protein and calorie count. The differences are really too small to matter unless a doctor has prescribed a fat-free diet. A half cup of creamed cottage cheese contains 120 calories, uncreamed, 108 calories.

Keep cottage cheese in the refrigerator and keep it covered. This way it will stay at the peak of its flavor and texture about one week.

Have cottage cheese at breakfast on pancakes or waffles, at lunch in salads or sandwiches, at dinner in main dishes or desserts.

Vary it and add new flavor with caraway or poppy seeds, a pinch of curry, rosemary, or Serve it with fresh, dried, canned, or frozen fruit, or with crisp, tangy vegetables.

MUSHROOM CHEESE PIE

1½ lbs. mushrooms, cleaned and sliced; 1 c. thinly sliced onions; 4 tbs. butter or margarine; 1/3 c. flour; 1 carton (8 oz.) small curd creamstyle cottage cheese; 1/4 c. chopped parlsey; 1/4 c. dry sherry, 1 tsp. salt; 1/8 tsp. black pepper; 2 c. all-purpose sifted flour; 1 tsp. salt; 3/3 c. shortening; 4 to 5 tbs. ice water.

Sauté mushrooms and onions in butter or margarine about 10 minutes or until tender. Add 1/3 cup flour; mix well. Add cottage cheese, parsley, sherry, 1 teaspoon salt, and pepper; mix thoroughly; set aside. Heat oven to 425° F. Sift 2 cups flour and 1 teaspoon salt together. Cut in shortening until size of peas. Add ice water gradually, stirring with a fork until dough clings together. Roll out half the dough on lightly floured board to a 12-inch circle. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry, allowing 1-inch overhang. Roll out remaining dough; cut into 1/2-inch strips. Pour filling into pastry-lined pie plate. Arrange pastry strips in lattice pattern on top of filling. Trim ends even with edge. Moisten and fold overhang over ends. Flute edge. Bake on bottom rack of oven 40 to 45 minutes or until browned. Cover edge of pie with strip of foil after 20 minutes to prevent over-browning. Cool 5 minutes. Makes 6 servings as a luncheon entrée or 8 servings as accompaniment with meat.

Cinnamon Apple Chalet

There's nothing more sociable than apple pie—unless it's warm Banquet Apple Pie, fresh from the oven, under cool, white clouds of Vanilla Ice Cream. Then add a sprinkling of cinnamon for just the right flavor accent.

Let your dairy make the ice cream. Let Banquet make the pie. Then you come along and create a confection that's near perfection! You're a lady of many modes...with all those plump, luscious Banquet pies (the kind that always take first prize)!

Your choice of apple, cherry, peach, blueberry, boysenberry, coconut custard, old-fashioned custard, pumpkin and mince!

Tips for the Summer Chef

- Sautéed hamburgers will turn into company fare when you add a little sherry or sweet vermouth to the pan drippings to make a clear, superb, tasty sauce.
- Orange juice, cinnamon, and sherry are flavor allies. Blend them for a sauce to use with veal, pork, or chicken, or heat the mixture until the cinnamon dissolves, pour it over fruit, and chill until dessert time.
- Cottage-fried potatoes take on palatial airs. Sauté a handful of slivered almonds with the sliced onion and raw potato. Cover pan and cook over low heat so potatoes steam rather than "fry." Turn once or twice to keep them from sticking. Add a sprinkle of paprika and serve.
- Here's a low-calorie appetizer—refreshing too! Sprinkle cucumber cubes with salt and monosodium glutamate (you can buy it flavored now), brush with oil and vinegar dressing, and roll in chopped parsley. Serve on wooden picks.
- Do this to make the meat of frozen lobster tails easy to remove. Cut away the soft undershell; hold the tails under running, hot water, and gently pull the meat partially away from the hard shell. To prevent curling, put tails, flesh side down, on board and cut hard shell from top to bottom with a small, sharp knife.
- Add that soupçon of garlic to a salad any one of these ways:

Mash a clove of garlic in a salad bowl with the back of a wooden spoon. Discard the few shreds that are left.

Rub a cube of stale bread with a cut clove of garlic and add to your salad greens.

Chop garlic and put into a mortar. Sprinkle with salt and mash with a pestle. Add to the salad dressing.

Make your own garlic salt. Mix a mashed clove of garlic and as much salt as it will absorb. Keep it covered in the refrigerator.

- Sauté chops without added fat. Sprinkle salt over hot skillet and add the meat. Keep moving the meat around until some fat has been drawn out. Of course, if you have a Teflon skillet, sautéing without fat or salt is a cinch.
- For a spectacular dessert line a bowl with heavy aluminum foil and spoon in two or more flavors of softened ice cream. Swirl into a marbleized pattern. Be sure the bowl is filled to the top. Freeze firm, unmold, and peel off foil.
- Stewing beef is the answer for quick, inexpensive kabobs for family meals. Sprinkle cubes of meat, preferably chuck, with meat tenderizer and a favorite seasoning and let stand. Spear on skewers and cook quickly over a hot fire two to three inches from heat. The secret is to serve it rare—longer cooking will toughen it.
- Cut the tag end of a leftover roast into thin slivers and add to a salad. Roast beef in potato salad is superb he-man eating.

- For a delicious treat, try Mediterranean beans. Cook green beans in oil with chopped tomatoes, onion, garlic, and salt to taste—no water. Simmer until tender, cool to room temperature, and serve.
- A perfect sauce can be ruined by too much fat. Avoid it by setting the sauce in the freezer for 15 to 20 minutes. Just skim off the fat that has risen to the top and reheat the sauce.
- Let a roast "rest" 10 to 15 minutes after it comes from the oven and it will be easier to carve thin and even slices.
- Okra, fresh or frozen, takes on new glory when cooked in seasoned tomato juice with a little instant minced onion and some minced parsley. When okra is fork tender, remove the cover and reduce the sauce by quick boiling over high heat. Delicious with roast chicken or baked ham. (To reduce the sticky "slime" in okra, dry it in a 250° F. oven for one hour before cooking.)
- Cooked macaroni is a versatile summer supper standby. It's a casserole ready to pop into the oven when you add tomato sauce, chopped cooked meat or chicken, cooked vegetables, minced parsley, and cheese. Or it can become a hearty salad. Toss the cold, cooked macaroni with tuna, cooked seafood, or bits of chicken, green pepper, a bit of onion, and some mayonnaise or salad dressing.
- Do you know the delicate sweet fragrance cumin adds to sole, red snapper, or halibut? Mix it with crushed oregano, blend with melted butter or margarine, and brush over the fish.
- Cantaloupe float makes a light, refreshing meal-ender. Arrange cantaloupe and watermelon balls and a pint of blueberries in a glass bowl. Pour over a half cup orange juice, a half cup pineapple juice or white wine, and one cup ginger ale. Chill. Serve topped with scoops of lemon or lime sherbet.
- Quick tricks with salad dressing:

Add a pinch of curry powder to an oil and vinegar dressing.

Marinate salad vegetables in French- or Italianstyle dressing to which you've added a few slices of onion. Serve with the onion or not.

A dressing of a half cup salad oil, a quarter cup each orange juice and vinegar, salt, pepper, and onion slices makes a simple lettuce and tomato salad something special and extra.

- To bake fish easily, wrap it in aluminum foil with its seasonings, moistened with white wine or sherry. To brown it, open the foil during last 10 minutes and brush fish with melted butter.
- A wonderful marinade—low calorie too—is made with equal parts of soy sauce and sherry, salt, pepper, a bit of ginger, and a few shreds of oregano. Good with London broil, chicken, duck, or cubes of pork, veal, or ham.
- Serve a wine float for dessert. Fill a tall glass about one fourth full with sherry. Add a scoop of orange sherbet, pour in club soda, and stir briskly. Try one made with white wine, pineapple sherbet, and ginger ale. (continued)

- French potato salad is simple to make and so good. Toss sliced, cooked potatoes with olive oil and salt and pepper to taste. Sprinkle lightly with vinegar. Serve at room temperature, not chilled. For variation, add minced parsley or some capers.
- Fresh dill is an herb that freezes beautifully. Place a bunch in a plastic bag, fasten top, and drop in the freezer. Chop off what you need from the "weed" end, return the rest to the freezer.
- Fruit meringues are pretty and impressive desserts. Buy the shells or make them, fill with sugared berries or cut-up sugared fruits, and top with scoops of ice cream or sherbet.
- A trick with broiled filets: Halfway through the broiling, spoon over sour cream seasoned with a pinch of curry powder.
- Try ham kabobs for a change. Marinate cubes of cooked ham in a French or Italian dressing. Especially good with wedges of green pepper and pineapple chunks.
- A French knife chops vegetables and fresh herbs with the least effort. Put a small amount at a time on the cutting board, hold the knife handle in your right hand, with the fingers of the left hand hold the point of the knife down on the board. Use the point as a pivot and move blade up and down, back and forth.
- A carton of sour cream can be your best bet when you need a quick dip for an appetizer. To it add two teaspoons grated onion, two teaspoons lemon juice, and salt and pepper to taste. Serve it this way, or for variation add one of the following: a quarter cup crumbled blue cheese; one cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese; a dash of cayenne pepper; a quarter cup drained chutney, chopped.
- Souffléed fish filets are superb and easy. The secret? It's the batter. Beat egg whites separately and combine with egg yolks thickened with flour (one tablespoon flour, a half teaspoon salt for each yolk). Dip filets in batter, fry in hot oil until golden and serve at once.
- Veal steaks and chops can be broiled if marinated ahead in garlic-flavored French dressing. Cook four or five inches from the heat, brushing with marinade occasionally.
- Cook frozen artichoke hearts in olive oil instead of water. For one package, use a quarter cup oil, a quarter teaspoon salt, and a clove of garlic; cover tightly and cook over low heat until tender. Discard the garlic and add a dash of vinegar. Good hot or cold!
- Is there anything more calamitous than sour cream curdling when added to a sauce? It's shock that causes it—the cold cream is broken up by the sudden contact with the hot sauce. Remove the dish from the heat before adding the cream, or stir a small amount of sauce into the cream, and blend this mixture back into the sauce, stirring constantly. Once the cream is incorporated, keep the heat so low the sauce doesn't even bubble. Or put the dish in a 275°-300° F. oven to hold it.

- Count on your blender for a quick dessert. Puree four large, peeled bananas; two table-spoons milk or light rum; and one tablespoon sugar in a blender. Fold puree into two cups whipped cream. Chill until serving time. Serve sprinkled with shredded coconut.
- For a flitting touch of garlic in sauce, use a chef's trick of sautéing a whole or slit clove of garlic in the fat or oil just until it is golden, then remove and discard it. For a slightly more pronounced flavor, crush the cooked garlic with herbs and return to the sauce with the liquid. Cooking it first takes away any bitterness, retains only the elusive fragrance of the garlic.
- Fruited milk shakes are a perfect mid-afternoon snack for children. To make one, put a quarter cup canned crushed pineapple or frozen raspberries with syrup or canned peaches with syrup in a blender. Whirl at low speed to puree the fruit, then add a cup of milk and a scoop of ice cream. Increase the speed and bring milk shake to a froth. Serve in a tall glass.
- It's easy to separate the leaves of a head of lettuce. Remove the core of the heart with a paring knife, then hold the lettuce under the tap and let cold water run into the opening.
- Children's party coming up? Serve ice cream clowns. Put a scoop of ice cream on a large sugar cooky, make faces with chocolate pieces, and top with an inverted ice cream cone.
- Cook onions in fat or oil over very low heat, so they simmer rather than sauté, until they are soft and golden yellow but not the least bit browned. The aroma as they cook is irresistible and the onions are more digestible.
- Know how to tell whether an egg is hard-cooked when you take it from the water? Note how quickly the shell dries. The harder the egg inside the shell the quicker the water on the outside evaporates.
- Pretty up a cake with tinted coconut. Half fill a screw-top jar with coconut, add a few drops of diluted food coloring, cover jar and shake until coconut is evenly tinted.
- For an appetizer have spicy meatballs. Add a quarter teaspoon ground ginger to a pound of ground beef with the pepper and salt. Shape into bite-size meatballs, broil or sauté, and serve hot.
- Cupcakes for a picnic are easier to pack and less messy to eat if you split the cupcake and put the frosting between the two halves.
- To help a pastry shell keep its shape while baking, fit a piece of wax paper into the shell, fill with raw rice or dried beans. Bake 5 minutes until shell sets, remove rice or beans and paper, then finish baking.
- Spur-of-the-moment picnics are no problem if you keep sandwich buns or French bread in the freezer and relishes, bottled sauces, and "nibble" food on the pantry shelf. With just a stop for a quick pickup of cold cuts to complete the makings, you're ready to go. (continued)

- When barbecued chicken appears to be burning before it is cooked, chances are the barbecue sauce is too thick. Thin it with chicken broth, tomato juice, or water to help reduce the burning and prevent undercooking of the chicken.
- Take a tip from a chef and sauté foods in equal parts of butter and olive oil. It imparts all the wonderful flavor of the butter to the food and eliminates the danger of having the butter burn.
- Prefer your tomatoes peeled? Hold the tomato over flame or heat for one minute, or put them in boiling water for one minute then plunge into cold water. The skin will slip off easily.
- Enjoy cantaloupe for breakfast or dessert, but dress it up with a pretty edge. Trace a zigzag line around the middle of the melon, then cut this way and that with a deep thrust of the knife.
- Hot days call for salad suppers. Try this: Toss three cups hot, cooked, diced potatoes and a quarter cup minced onion in a quarter cup garlic-flavored salad dressing (from a mix). Add one cup cooked green peas, one teaspoon capers, and a 7-ounce can of well-drained shrimp. Toss again. Serve garnished with green pepper rings and cherry tomatoes. Perfect after a swim.
- Having a crowd for Sunday breakfast? Cook the bacon in the oven. Separate the slices and put them on a rack in a shallow baking pan; bake 10 minutes at 400° F. No turning, no draining.
- Cut the time needed to bake potatoes by first boiling them in salted water for 10 minutes.
- If you're in the habit of grating bread for stuffing or crumbs, freeze it first. It's easier to grate.
- Sliced hard-cooked egg as a salad garnish is prettiest when the yolk is centered in the ring of white. It can be achieved if you stir the eggs constantly as they cook. Tedious but worth the time and effort.
- Ice cream in the freezer and a jar of marshmallow cream on hand add up to instant sundaes. Dip a spoon in hot water and let it stay a minute or two before dipping up the marshmallow cream. It will slip off the spoon in a wink.
- When you know a hungry horde of teen-agers will descend upon you, make a batch of franksin-a-blanket. Prepare packaged pie-crust mix, roll it out, cut it into squares, and wrap each frank. Bake them ahead and reheat them on the grill.
- Melon adds up to good eating whether served simply as an appetizer or elegantly as a party dessert. For an appetizer, cut melon in slices, remove the rind, and serve with wedges of lime. To make a special dessert, cut a cone-shaped plug from a honeydew, cantaloupe, or Persian melon. It should be large enough to allow you to insert a spoon to remove the seeds. Fill the melon with cut-up fresh fruits, pour in some kirsch or Cointreau, and replace the cut-out plug. Seal the cut with a little melted butter. Chill until serving time. Cut in wedges to serve.

- · A picnic or beach lunch isn't complete without hard-cooked eggs. For a change, peel the eggs while slightly warm and roll them in seasoned salt on a piece of wax paper. Cool them thoroughly and wrap in aluminum foil, wax paper, or plastic wrap or bags.
- A cold soup will refresh everyone on a sweltering day. For a particularly good one, try this Summer Garden Soup Salad. Combine the following in a large bowl: four ripe tomatoes, cut in chunks; a half cup thinly sliced cucumber; a half cup chopped green pepper; a half cup thinly sliced celery; a quarter cup minced onion; one and a half cups tomato juice; one can (101/2 ounces) bouillon; two tablespoons pure vegetable oil; two tablespoons wine vinegar; one teaspoon salt; one eighth teaspoon each garlic salt, chili pepper, and black pepper; and a few sprigs of parsley. Cover and chill several hours, stirring once or twice. Serve in well-chilled bowls with a temon or lime wedge and a dollop of sour cream.
- For a cool, cool dessert, thaw two cans frozen pineapple chunks just until you can separate the contents. Put them in the blender with a quarter cup green crème de menthe and blend until frothy and light. Turn into a pan or ice cube tray and freeze until just mushy. Spoon into sherbet glasses and serve with plain wafers.
- Keep cut bananas and avocados from turning dark by brushing or sprinkling the surfaces with orange, lemon, or pineapple juice.
- Fluted cucumber slices are an easy way to dress up a salad. Pare them or not as you wish, then pull a fork firmly down the length of the cucumber. Repeat all the way around. Cut in crosswise slices.
- Cranberries aren't just for holidays. Here's a sauce that you can take to the backyard to go with the grilled hamburgers and frankfurters. Beat a one-pound can of jellied cranberry sauce until smooth. Stir in a quarter cup bottled thick meat sauce, one tablespoon pure vegetable oil, one tablespoon brown sugar, one tablespoon mustard, and two to three tablespoons chopped onion.
- A leftover egg white? Turn it into a topping for desserts. Peel and slice a ripe banana into a bowl. Add one egg white, a dash of salt, a third cup sugar, and a half teaspoon vanilla. Beat until smooth, fluffy, and light. Chill, if desired.
- Summer's fruits combine to make delectable salads. Serve them with this dressing. Beat a half cup light corn syrup and a half cup pure vegetable oil with rotary beater. Beat in two thirds cup lemon juice, a half teaspoon salt, a quarter teaspoon pepper, and a quarter teaspoon celery seed. Chill.
- · Like hot fudge sundaes? Then here's an easyto-make sauce. Combine two thirds cup (half a can) sweetened condensed milk, a half cup water, a quarter cup sugar, and a pinch of salt in the top of a double boiler. Add one and a half squares unsweetened chocolate. Cook over rapidly boiling water, stirring often, about 25 minutes, or until thick and smooth. Spoon hot over your favorite flavor of ice cream. Extra good when topped with pecans.

- ROASTING
- BROILING

· Check timetable below, or directions on wrapper, and compute the roasting time needed for the ready-to-cook weight of your chicken. Plan for chicken to be done 20 to 30 minutes before serving time. This gives time to make gravy and remove any skewers or trussing cords. And this "rest" makes the bird easier to carve.

Rinse chicken in cold water, drain, and pat dry. Rub cavity lightly with salt and pepper.

Chicken may be roasted stuffed or unstuffed. When stuffing, spoon favorite stuffing lightly into cavities just before roasting, not ahead of time.

 Truss chicken with clean white cord. Or, pull neck skin to back and fasten with skewers; bring wing tips onto back to shape wings akimbo; tie legs to tail or push under band of skin if there is one. Brush skin with soft butter or margarine or with oil.

Place bird, breast side up, on rack if desired, or in a shallow open roasting pan. Do not cover or add water. Brush chicken occasionally with pan drippings during roasting.

FUN AND GAMES IN YOUR OWN BACKYARD

Of course it's possible now to exercise by lying in bed, making faces. But even isometrics are more enjoyable outdoors, and any active family will find a lot of added fun this year with the new games and gadgets.

Size of your yard no longer matters. With a patio the width and length of a polo field, it's true that more people may take part. But a front or back lawn, or even a driveway or carport, can become an archery range and batter's box—if you don't have nervous neighbors.

Indoor/outdoor games come first. They are the compact kind you could have practiced in a game room during the winter. Today's low-impact balls to bat, to throw, to hit with a golf club, or slug with a paddle or fist, are being softened and housebroken. The Wiffle Ball Company of Shelton, Connecticut, for instance, supplies sport and game stores with baseballs, basketballs, and golf balls of perforated plastic that can be bounced around a sturdy family room, but are even better for belting around out back. With these short-range safety missiles, a line drive into left, or a sand wedge shot that hooks, isn't out pieces of Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap about 4" x 8". Cover foil with thin layer of meat. Sprinkle with shredded Cheddar. Add pimiento slices. • Now fold over, foil and all, leaving edges open. Grill 3 to 5 minutes per side over very hot fire. (P.S. Hoot up your hootenanny with other fillings: sliced cheese, onion, likely to break windows next door or a windshield at home. Yet each allows a healthy swing, and will show the direction a real ball would have gone. A Wiffle Ball-O-Matic pedal will flip the ball up to batting height for knocking out flies.

Regent Sports, New York City, has wrapped golf balls with Velcro—that fuzzy fabric that sticks like a burr. Packed with a Velcro target green and five balls in a $10-kit called Magic Golfer, the game can be used to practice chip shots, or scored by the numbers on the three-foot-square backstop. Each ball sticks on the target right where it's been hit. Another Regent variation provides Velcro baseballs and a batter's box target for would-be pitchers.

Six sports—basketball, volleyball, badminton, paddle tennis, hurdle and high jumping, and tetherball—can be played between two or around one of the adjustable 10-foot steel poles from Jayfro Athletic Supplies in New London, Connecticut. The standards have heavy bases, no need to drive them into the ground. Jayfro is also introducing several new designs in backstops so that real golf balls, baseballs, or hockey pucks can be batted around in home practice.

Another target game, this for youngsters, puts a catcher's mitt on the front of a three-foot inflated punching toy. (A pocket behind the mitt holds the balls that hit the target.) One of a line of stand-up plastic balloon figures called Roly Polys by Hampshire Manufacturing Corporation of Nashua, New Hampshire, this latest model is named Smilin' Sam the Catcher, and should help develop young pitching eyes.

Some games combine nicely. Quoits and horseshoes, badminton and volleyball, are now packaged in sets by General Sportcraft. They also add deck tennis and a kind of jai alai to combination kits providing four or five assorted backyard games, enough to keep a neighborhood of visitors busy choosing sides. And even polo hasn't been forgotten, though the horses have been. It's now a running game; the mallets are flexible cane with soft rubber heads to hit a rubber ball; the scoring is the same.

The small set can start out camping without leaving home. Playhouses, command posts, and log cabins of plastic sheeting, approximately five by five feet with headroom for a three-footer, come in brightly colored vinyl from Hampshire. A smaller model uses a bridge table as a frame for tiny tykes getting away from it all.

For the physical culture families that get their fun from exercise, a number of improvements are also available. For a flight through the air with the greatest of ease (and some help from an assistant on the end of a long rope-and-pulley hoist), the Pond twisting and tumbling belt by American Athletic Equipment in Jefferson, Iowa, allows a gymnast to practice acrobatics in midair-Peter Pan style. American Athletic also makes juniorsize gym equipment. J. Roberts, Pro Barbell, and Battle Creek Health Equipment all turn out conventional exercise and physical fitness gear. J. Roberts, in their Kingston, Pennsylvania plant are producing a compact gadget called the Multi-Lift that adjusts to simulate a weight of 25 to 600 pounds for muscular types who prefer planned exercise to cutting grass.

Battle Creek has a machine, the Trimcycle, that is claimed to replace bicycles, horses, rowing, and swimming as far as a workout is concerned. And you can move it around into that spot of sun if a terrace or deck is doing duty as a playground.

Finally, for the outdoor types who get enough exercise indoors around the house or at work, there are magnetic playing cards that a breeze won't blow off a table in the shade, glass holders to keep drinks from spilling on the grass, and this year's Scrabble letters that fit firmly into square holes on the playing board.

With old or new games or players, there seem to be activities for everyone out back.

Bright, bold, and beautiful (from the inside out), today's refrigerators and freezers are more than new-they're a result of all the wonderful advances that have been made in refrigeration since that happy day the icebox became an antique. The most obvious advances are in the styling-the clean-cut lines that give a built-in look, attractive colors, and personalized design; and in the variety of models. You can now choose exactly what you need! Take your pick of combination refrigerator-freezers with freezer section at the top, bottom, or on the side; refrigerators, which are standard, compact, or "all-refrigerator"; upright or chest-style freezers; refrigerators and freezers that are freestanding or built-in, matchmates too. And for party-givers, the automatic ice makers are the ultimate in convenience.

But handsome is as handsome does, and luckily the beauty of the new refrigerators and freezers is not just skin deep. It goes all the way to the heart of these appliances. We think you'll find the advances inside the refrigerator just as exciting as the ones outside, especially if you're now plagued with some of the more common inconveniences. Take a look at them and then decide which of the new features are for you.

Do you have to rearrange the contents of your refrigerator in order to fit in anything larger than a jar of olives? Do you lose leftovers in a forgotten, out-of-the-way corner of your refrigerator or freezer?

Then you'll like the new flexible shelves that are easily moved up and down: that are split (or half-width); that swing out, slide out, glide out, or rotate.

Do you wish for an easy way to keep greens crisp and fresh? That you could safely keep fresh chicken or hamburger in the refrigerator for more than a few days?

Then you'll like the special storage areas for foods that need special care—such as extracold meat keepers that keep fresh meat up to seven days, crisper drawers for delicate greens and fresh vegetables, baskets that safely hold roly-poly fruits and allow for air circulation too, a quick-chill shelf that is great for salads and desserts.

Do you wish you could stretch your refrigerator walls just a few inches, especially when you're stowing a mammoth, weekly grocery load?

Then you'll like thin-wall insulation that gives you more space inside and same-size refrigerator and freezer dimensions outside. Do you (or your family) open your refrigerator door at least 101 times a day?

Then you'll like cold air circulation that helps keep a uniform cold throughout.

Do you hate to defrost? (Who doesn't?)

Then you'll like the new refrigerators and freezers that never form frost. You may find that they do cost a fraction more to operate, but worth it they are.

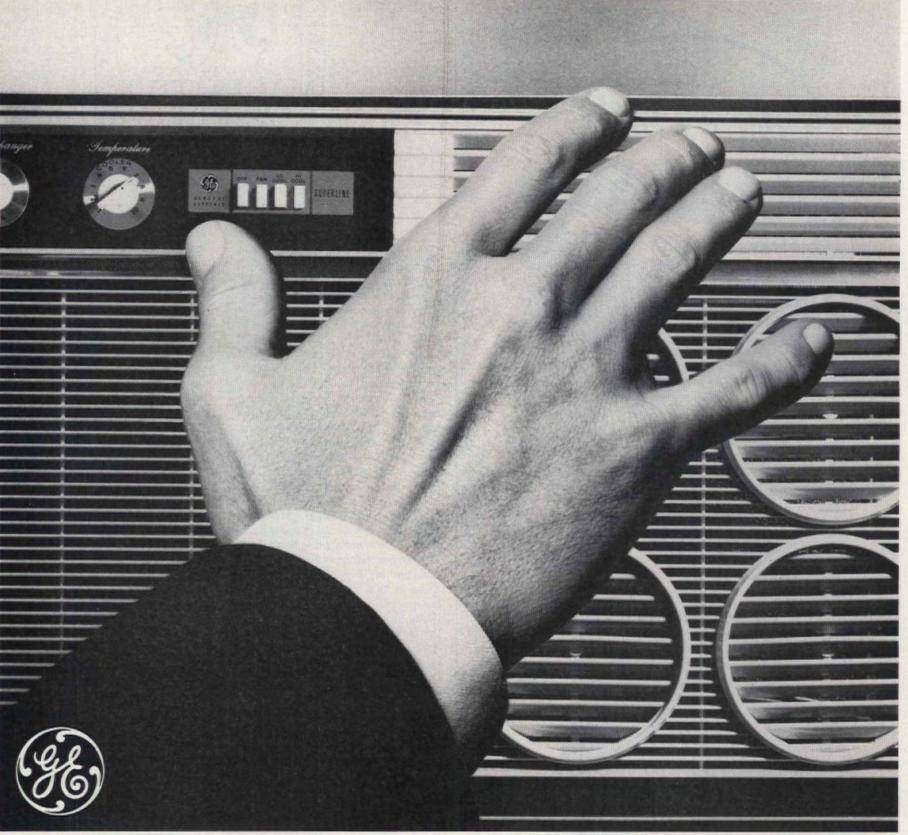

Do you want more freezer space? Refrigerator space? Both?

Then you'll like the tremendous variety of refrigerator and freezer capacities available so that you can get the refrigeration and freezing proportion that's just right for you. Do you always run out of ice at crucial times? Ever have difficulty in removing ice cubes from the tray?

Then you'll like the ice-cube storage bins; the ice-cube trays that easily eject the cubes into storage bins; self-filling ice trays; automatic ice makers.

Do you want the luxury of a second refrigerator in your family room or patio? Then you'll like the compact refrigerators, small in size but mighty in convenience, for ice cubes, fresh fruits, soft drinks, beer, and other within-reach tidbits.

All this, and more, in the 1965 refrigerators and freezers! And all this is the reason we think you should take a look at these new appliances. Before you do, send for The American Home Buyers' Guide to Refrigerators, Freezers, and Ice Makers. Summertime gifts have a special quality, whether you are welcomed in an air-conditioned city apartment or on a country patio. They can be cool and intriguing—for lazy weekends and long evenings.

For a first visit, when you don't know the personal tastes of your hostess or the decor of her home, it's best to play it safe.

A patio candle holder or a hurricane lamp will fit almost any situation. A safe color and shape, when the surroundings are yet unknown, is any one of the graceful green vases fitted with a candle holder. These have the advantage of being open enough so a fresh candle may be placed without a struggle. More elaborate ones have a base of metal leaves and a flower-shaped glass shade. Others are lantern shaped or have plain globes; they all shield the candle flame in an attractive manner. They have a place in summer apartment living, for evenings when brighter lights seem hot, as well as on the outdoor table. And they may be found in wide variety anywhere from the pool-and-patio shop to the hardware store personalized suggestion is for A personalized Susset Mothers who have a few spare moments to make things. The long narrow runners for a buffet table setting are effective and they can be very quickly made. Needed: a length of material; a long pin; a little time to pick out thread-by-thread a narrow fringe on each side. If you have never done this, you might test how fast you can fringe a scrap of material you have at hand or you may want to buy loosely woven material for a quick job. Of course a little more time provides napkins. When you see how fast this goes, you might do a set of cocktail napkins, using a different small-patterned material for each. Then you would have a gift in reserve for some visit at a later date.

You can also play safe and be as individual as you wish by taking a glass bird or animal that can give an ice-clear gleam of coolness on a hot day—whether it catches light on a windowsill or takes the center among floating flowers in a low bowl on the dining table. A shallow glass bowl could be included for flower arrangements.

Small Japanese oiled-paper umbrellas with wooden handles make an inexpensive gift—and what a help for sun-shy guests at pool or beach.

A roll of disposable mitts for the lady who has no dishwasher will please her and helping-hand visitors. In fact, there are so many disposable gifts that are thoughtful and unusual we can list only a few . . . shoe-shine pads for the guest room, tiny soaps for overnight guests, paper towels, coasters, and the blessed little packets of "travels" that cleanse quickly—like Wash 'n Dry or Roger & Gallet's scented ones so handy out in the patio or garden.

On a hot day when you want something for a slight gesture, take a box of thin white mints that you have kept in the refrigerator till the last moment. They will stay cool if they are wrapped in foil and then put in a paper bag, both of which can be discarded just before arrival.

If you left the whole thing to the last day, a quick solution is a set of lightweight trays in a summer color. These could be in several sizes, all matching.

While custom calls for a gift to the hostess, it is sometimes nice to include something for the man of the family. Does he have an ice crusher, a small flattened ball with a whip-action handle, that you aim at an ice cube with splintering results?

If there are children in the family the gift might be for them. You could consider the boxes of small-size continental chocolate bars, individually wrapped . . or a box of candied fruit. A set of glass sippers, with a small bright decoration that will show at the bottom of the drinking glass, also will be a hit.

Of course, when you plan to visit a friend or relative, you have the advantage of knowing her special interest or special skill. If you have already covered this territory on former visits, use your knowledge of her favorite color combinations. Exactly matching two colors of a room means a pleased hostess, and no more trouble than adding an appliquéd initial to a scarf or abstract design to a table cover.

You can add to this list, of course; but, how about beginning today to get a few gifts on hand? THE END

Why do Taylor wines lend magic to cookouts fun-loving guests rave about?

The flavor has a wizardry all its own, sip after sip.

By itself. On the rocks. Or in a tall "cooler".

And comes through temptingly in your own special brand of over-the-flame saucery.

Haven't you been looking for magic like this?

Taylor found it long ago.

In flavor you get only when you create a red, white or pink wine slowly, naturally.

Only when we're sure ours have reached their peak of natural flavor and care can do no more, do we bottle them.

To wake up your appetite.

And bewitch your guests.

If it's a Taylor wine, you'll love it.

Built-in vacuuming!

The work-savingest convenience since central heating . . . that's the word for the new Black & Decker Central Cleaning System! Forget, forever, toting tanks, trailing cords, allergy-carrying dusty exhaust. All the dust and dirt whisks through lifetime vinyl tubing in the walls to the oversize, extra-powerful vacuum unit. You can put the modern-styled vacuum tank in your basement, utility room, or garage. Just plug the hose into a decorator-styled inlet and clean as many as 3 or 4 rooms from the one location. An average size home needs only 3 to 5 inlets. And Central Cleaning does the job twice as clean as portable vacuums without the noise; freshens your home; cuts dusting down to almost nothing. Installation usually takes less than a day in any kind of home—new or old—without marring floors or walls. Budget terms, of course. Get the facts about this exciting new answer to your housecleaning problems. Mail the coupon.

DELIGHTFUL, NOT DEMANDING

We suggest several recordings for refreshing summer listening

Recently we had the interior of our house repapered and painted. You know the routine—if utter chaos can be called routine. Empty the medicine chests, the kitchen cabinets, the closets, the book and record shelves. And since this is an ideal time to weed out, throw away, rearrange, we decided to catalog our records by category instead of composer.

It began simply enough—chamber music, opera, symphonies, vocal solos, semi-classical, musical comedy, spoken, popular. That last category was where we stumbled. Did we mean just the Andy Williams, Ethel Ennis, Larry Elgart kind of pops? Or should we include a whole range of exceptionally easy-to-listen-to music that might be technically labeled classical or be performed by "classical" artists? We came up with a new division-D.N.D.-Delightful, Not Demanding. It's music that has more substance and durability than the fleeting pop ballads and ten top tunes. It's music you and any group of friends can enjoy without sitting in concert-hall silence.

Probably heading the D.N.D. list is ballet music—from Chopin and Tchaikovsky, to Debussy's exquisite Afternoon of a Fawn or Leonard Bernstein's Fancy Free. The latter is a particular pleasure on a recent Columbia release that also includes the overture from Candide and three dances from the almost perennial musical On the Town. Since the orchestra is the New York Philharmonic, Bernstein conducting, the performance is enormously vital and exciting . . . and just right for listening on a warm summer evening.

Two and three centuries earlier, four Italians were composing for the then most popular instrument—the flute. Since that time it's been neglected by almost every composer. But you'll wonder why when you listen to Jean-Pierre Rampal solo in "Four Italian Flute Concertos" (Epic) with the Saar Radio Chamber Orchestra. And if the composers' names—Vivaldi, Pergolesi, Tartini, and Sammartini are unfamiliar we promise you that their music is delicious fare for any season of the year, enchanting as it drifts through the summer air.

RCA Victor obviously recognizes our D.N.D. category with two recent releases. The first is labeled "Great Music for Relaxation" and includes several orchestras with several conductors. It opens with Bach's Sheep May Safely Graze, music of majesty and serenity, performed on this record by Stokowski conducting the New Symphony of London and the Norman Luboff Choir. Then comes Brahms's lilting Waltz in A Flat with Morton Gould and his orchestra, Tchaikovsky's Andante Cantabile, the "Humming Chorus" from Madame Butterfly performed by the Boston Pops under Arthur Fiedler, three other selections, closing with Deep River again played by Morton Gould and his orchestra.

The second album is "One Night of Love" with famous (and young and slim and pretty) opera star Anna Moffo soloing, and the RCA Victor Orchestra, conducted by Skitch Henderson. Described correctly as "the magnificent voice of Anna Moffo, the repertoire of two eras and the best technical facilities known to this modern age of recording," this is a heart warmer. The lead song is, of course, "One Night of Love," made famous by Grace Moore; then comes "Lover" (Rodgers and Hart), "If I Loved You" (Rodgers and Hammerstein), "Falling in Love With Love" (Rodgers, Hart), "Strange Music," Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet" and six other ballads that speak to several generations of listeners, recalling memories to some and at the same time sounding brand new to others.

aunting, poignant, full of life and H aunting, polymans, the zest—we use these words about our own folk music. They apply equally to these Songs of the Auvergne by Canteloube and Bachinas Brasileiras by Villa-Lobos. Again it's the voice of Anna Moffo but she sounds a whole civilization away from those ballads on "One Night of Love." Says Leopold Stokowski, who conducts the American Symphony Orchestra for this RCA Victor recording, "The Songs of the Auvergne soar from the hearts of simple, passionate people and seem to emerge from the very soil of Auvergne. Here lying between the Loire and the Dordogne rivers live a poetic people who have their own language, a blend of the Latin of the Roman invasion and an early form of Celtic origin . . . Miss Moffo sings these unique songs in this language . . . and Canteloube has orchestrated them in masterly fashion." The Villa-Lobos pieces are equally indigenous to the folklore of Brazil. Play these and you'll find your friends asking the name of this record. You'll be hearing it at their homes! THE END

ARE YOU GETTING THE MOST OUT OF YOUR

What's happened to you and your freezer? You used to be partners in creating delectable meals, devising home-style convenience foods, and hoarding garden-fresh fruits and vegetables. Did your ingenuity turn elsewhere once the novelty of your freezer wore off? We hope not. Great as it may be for storing leftovers (or planned-overs as we like to call them) and the wonderful, prepared convenience foods from the supermarket freezer case, we hope you haven't relegated your freezer to being a storage area only. It has hidden creative talents, you know. How about reviving the art of freezing? Let's get that partnership working again.

INSTANT EXTRAS

A good start is to stock your freezer with bread crumbs or toasted croutons made from stale or almost-stale bread. Make a healthy batch of these, pop them into a moisture-proof bag or freezer container, then use as needed for meat loaves, salads, casserole toppings, and garnishes.

Freeze basic ingredients such as meat broth or lemon juice in ice-cube trays, then package the cubes in convenient containers. One cube is equal to about two tablespoons, just about the amount that's often needed for added flavor spark.

Keep an inventory of instant garnishes such as nuts, grated fresh coconut, grated hard-cooked egg yolks, and individual whipped cream rosettes in your freezer too.

Freeze extra egg whites or egg yolks separately. Be sure to add one teaspoon of salt or sugar as a preservative (depending on how you may want to use them later) to each cup of volks to be frozen.

Marshmallows freeze well-with an additional bonus too. They're easier to cut while still partially frozennot so sticky.

Freeze fruit juice in cubes for rereshing summer drinks. Put a sprig of mint, a twist of orange peel, or a maraschino cherry in each cube.

Grate and freeze fresh Parmesan cheese—then use directly from freezer when sprinkling over soups, pasta, salads, and casseroles.

Freeze summer's bounty. Wash, oat dry, and chop fresh herbs such as parsley and chives. Then freeze in small plastic bags.

MEALS FROM THE FREEZER

Invest in cookware that goes from oven to freezer. Then when you're making your favorite casserole, make wo. Just partially cook the second, chill quickly, cover tightly, and freeze. t'll finish cooking when it's reheated. If you're using a casserole dish which can't take quick temperature changes, try this. Line the dish with foil, add the food, and freeze. Lift the foil and the frozen food from the dish: wrap well; then return to freezer for storing. To reheat, just peel off foil, place block of food back in dish (you'll find the solid block of food will just fit the dish), heat, and serve.

Pastry dough's easy to freeze. Make enough dough for several pies. Roll out individual portions in a circle, just as you would if you were going to put it in a pie plate, but this time leave it flat. Layer several circles with wax paper between each; then wrap and freeze.

Keep a supply of hot dogs, hamburger patties, and buns on hand for those spur-of-the-moment barbecues. You might include a container of your favorite barbecue sauce also.

Freeze sandwiches and cookies for lunch toters. Pack them in lunch pails while still frozen. (If you like, this is the time to add the trimmings to the sandwiches.) They'll thaw during the morning and be just right by lunch.

Ice cream can be the start of a fabulous frozen dessert. Simply stir fresh chopped fruit or nuts, or icecream topping into softened ice cream; then freeze firm. (Freeze in paper soufflé cups for handy individual servings-but be sure to cover each cup first.)

IDEAS FOR THE PARTY

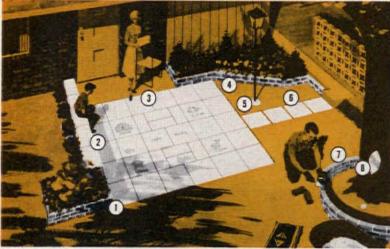

Use your freezer when you entertain. You'll have time to arrange that special centerpiece and table setting. have a few minutes to yourself, and enjoy your guests. (By shopping in advance you can spread the cost of the party over more than one week.)

Fancy extras can be made, frozen, and out of the way the week before the party, so prepare your butter balls, canapés, special garnishes, and delicate pastries ahead of time.

Some gourmet main dishes for your freezer are Lobster Newburg or Thermidor, Chicken Paprika, Curry, Beef Stroganoff, Beef Bourguignonne. (But remember, if the recipe calls for herbs or sour cream, flavor's best if you wait till you reheat to add these.) Here again, we're sure you can add your own favorites to this list.

Festive centerpieces can be made from fruited ice molds. Half-fill a ring mold or cake pan with water, tint with food coloring if you like, and arrange a colorful assortment of fruits and fruit peels in the pan. Freeze firm. Add enough tinted water to fill the mold or pan and return to freezer.

Or prepare our favorite centerpiece. Freeze grapes (we like those big purple ones, but any will do) and arrange them attractively (continued)

BASIC TIPS

Freezing retains good flavor, but can't improve it-so buy only topquality, fresh, fresh foods for your freezer. And if the food is cooked or blanched first, be sure to cool it quickly-then freeze immediately.

Packaging is important! The air in your freezer is cold and dry. If it penetrates to the food, it will rob it of moisture, color, and flavor. Use materials and containers that are moisture-vapor-proof.

Use freezer tape to seal your packages. Mark each package with the name of the food, the weight or number of servings, and the date frozen.

Organize the contents of your freezer. Put similar foods together, such as meats, vegetables, and baked products. Place the foods you use most frequently in spaces that are easily accessible. Put the foods that have been stored the longest in front so that you use these first.

Specific instructions for freezing fresh fruits and vegetables, as well as casseroles, baked products, sandwiches, and many specialty items can be found in your freezer instruction book. Follow these carefully and make your freezer a friend again. THE END determine whether your group should be a corporation, joint venture, or partnership. Having a member whose husband is a lawyer could be very helpful.

2. Pick all your potential members with care. If you're not superstitious, 13 is the average club membership (try to keep the total an odd number to prevent voting ties). By all means, don't pressure anyone to come into the club, and make sure that all your members have similar interests, goals, and ability to participate financially. 3. One broker should be designated to handle the group. At the first meeting he can explain the services he will be able to provide.

4. Don't begin investing with the first meeting. At this initial gathering, concentrate on agreeing when you'll meet, where, how much each member plans to pay per month and how one withdraws from the organization if that becomes necessary.

5. An agreement embodying all the rules and regulations of the club should be drawn up and signed by all members as well as the broker.

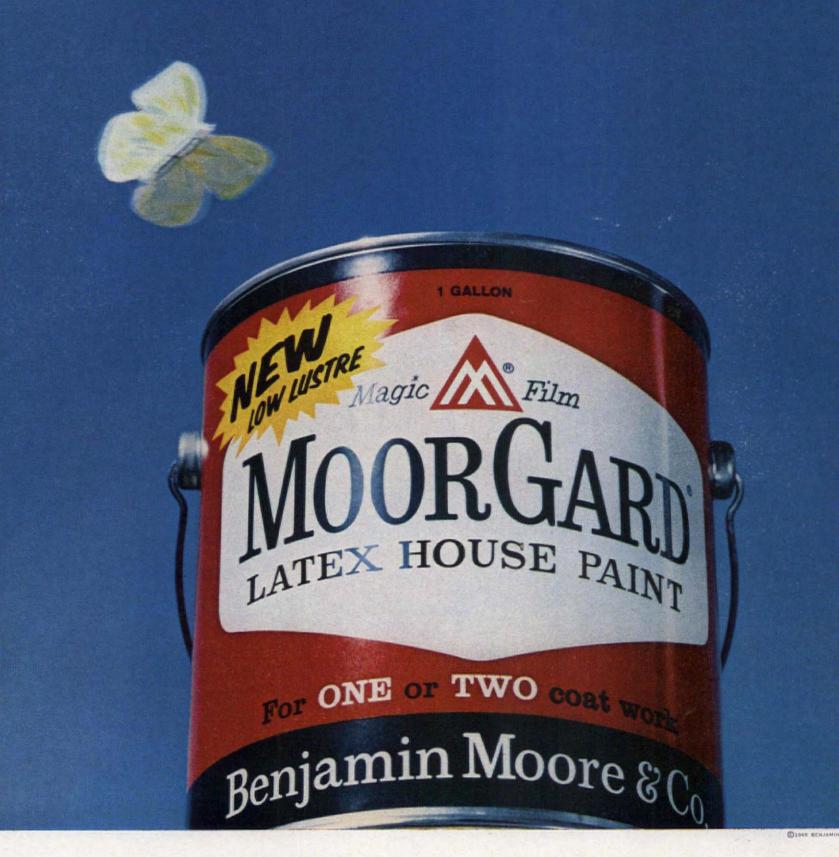

6. By the time you begin talking about stocks you would like to buy, the club should have a full staff of officers: president, secretary, and treasurer. One of these individuals, or possibly two, should be empowered to deal directly with the bank and the broker on club matters. Dates should be set for when the club will report on its financial holdings to members.

7. At each meeting a member, or a committee of members, should be assigned to study specific industries and stocks. They then report on these to the full club membership at the next meeting. Voting on whether or not to sell or buy the stocks is then based upon the reports of these members plus additional information which other members may volunteer.

8. Don't expect to get rich overnight, and remember there is always some element of risk with investments. Invest in growth stocks, reinvest dividends, and plan for the long run. The National Association of Investment Clubs reports that its groups are earning an average of 5.9 percent a year on their investments after three years, and for those clubs that have been at it for nine years, the average has jumped up to 10.3 percent annually. Investment clubs are exciting because they educate a stockholder, not because clubs automatically make every member a millionaire.

9. Most important, enjoy yourself. Investment clubs are the social way to learn about the stock market, so enjoy your meetings while you're THE END learning and earning.

The National Association of Investment Clubs, 13th Floor, Washington Boulevard Building, Detroit, Michigan 48231, has a lot of investment club information available for a moderate fee.

HOW TO TENT-BAKE BARBECUED CHICKEN

By Carl and Lydia Nickel

How would you like to treat your guests to the tenderest, tastiest baked barbecued chicken done by the outdoor tent-baking technique? We'll also show you how to serve your guests hot rolls, biscuits, and apple turnovers, all tent-baked on your grill while they watch. This technique gives variety to outdoor cooking. It provides a new application of heat and allows you to bake on an outdoor grill just as in your indoor oven. It's all done with aluminum foil—one piece for the "pan," another for the "tent." You'll notice our pan holds four pieces of chicken, so you'll need enough tents and pans to accommodate the amount of chicken you wish to serve. Using two grills is also a good idea.

It's hard to believe what this little trick does for cooking. The tent traps the rising heat and rotates it so foods bake on all sides at once, preventing drying out and dissipation of flavor. Once you get the idea, you'll find it fun adapting other indoor recipes to your outdoor grill.

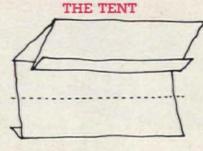

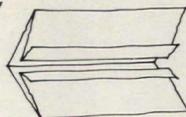

Use heavy-duty foil. For 7x14" pan (for chicken) cut 11x18" piece. Fold over 1" on all sides (9x16"). For side walls, turn up 1" to get 7x14" pan.

At each corner, pinch the excess of foil together. Fold excess against the outside wall.

When you have completed folding and pressing you have an aluminum-foil baking pan. Season chicken as directed in recipe. Place just as you would in any other baking pan. Slide filled pans onto the grill surface from a rigid tray such as a cooky sheet. Cover with tent. (For other size pans always cut the foil 4" wider and 4" longer than you want the finished pan to be.)

Begin with an 18" square of heavy-duty foil. With shiny side up, fold 1" border on all 4 sides (now 16x16"). With shiny side up, fold in half from the top toward you (8x16" folded). Dull side is now outside. Turn back 1" front and back, turning toward outside (7x16"). Dull side is still outside. Open foil and fold top and bottom to within 1" of main center crease. (These folds will help support tent.) Open up to form tent, dull side up, as shown, on grill. The 1" edging helps support tent.

BAKED BARBECUED CHICKEN

You need 3 broiler-fryers (1½ to 2 lbs.) cut in quarters (dry with paper towel); jar of ¼ cup melted butter or margarine mixed with ¼ cup oil; your favorite barbecue sauce; saucepan for barbecue sauce to go on grill; sauce brush; fork; 3 foil pans; 3 tents; your favorite barbecue mitts; cooky sheet; extra foil to wrap chicken for serving.

Brush each piece of chicken with oil and butter mixture, place 4 pieces on each pan. Fit pieces together but do not have them touching each other. No turning needed. Place 16" length of tent wall parallel to 14" length of pan, leaving 1" space between tent walls and pan walls and 1" front and back. Cooking time: about 40 minutes over a fresh fire, a little over an hour for slower fire or larger chicken. Over hot fire, chicken should make cooking noises almost at once and give off aroma in first 10 to 15 minutes. Browning occurs in last 5 or 10 (continued) minutes. When nearly done, lift tent and brush on barbecue sauce. Let bake few minutes; brush again; bake few minutes more, each time restoring tent. To test for doneness, grasp end of drumstick with barbecue mitts; if it moves up and down easily, chicken is done. Serve two pieces per person, kept hot in foil wrapper. Place foil package on paper plate.

Heating and timing note: Before you light fire, line grill with foil. In the standard shallow-type brazier, use one layer of briquettes (adjust number of layers for deeper-bowled braziers). You'll soon learn the exact number of briquettes needed.

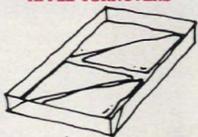

Start fire far enough ahead for coals to be burned a gray color with a ruddy glow to give even, constant heat. Tent roof can be pushed down closer to food for more intense heat or pushed higher for slower baking. Or you can raise or lower your grill.

BISCUITS

Make pan as for chicken but do not turn up side walls. This will be like standard cooky sheet. Size of tray should be 1" wider than space the biscuits will occupy. Use 1 package of refrigerated biscuits; open and separate. Place biscuits on tray. They should touch each other. Cover with tent, bake till fully risen over medium-hot fire (usually requires 15 minutes).

APPLE TURNOVERS

Make foil pan 6x12". Place 4 thawed turnovers as shown, cover with tent (same as for chicken). They will rise, brown, and bake fully in 20 to 30 minutes over medium-hot fire.

VARIATION: CHICKEN TARRAGON

Make trays and tents as for barbecued chicken. Follow the same directions for cooking, but substitute tarragon sauce for the barbecue sauce. Tarragon sauce: Combine 6 mushrooms, sliced or minced (fresh or canned); 2 tbs. parsley, chopped; 4 tsp. tarragon; 11/4 cup oil mixed with 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine; salt and pepper. Brush chicken pieces with sauce. Place fairly close together in trays. Spoon remainder of sauce over pieces, letting mushrooms rest atop the chicken. Cook 30 to 40 minutes. With this sauce the chicken requires no turning THE END or basting, though you may baste if you wish.

There's a private world in your yard. Capture it with a fence of Western Wood.

Your fence is usually the last addition to your home, but the first thing noticed. It is an expression of your character and should speak well of you. No other fencing material lets you express yourself as well as Western Wood. It can be a smooth talker or rugged; say something sophisticated or home-spun. You can prompt it by painting it, staining it, or just letting nature do her beauty work.

A fence of Western Wood will enclose, protect, keep in, shut out, backdrop or just decorate. You can make it turn a corner, come to a point, or climb a hill. It can transform a small city plot into a private Shangri La or bring order and definition to a rugged countryside. The natural beauty of Western Wood never dominates, it always compliments.

Whatever you want your fence to say, whatever you want it to do, Western Wood lets you say and do it better. Enrich your surroundings as you enclose them . . . with imagination, flair and Western Wood.

YOUR

U.S. home owners are getting smarter every year about air conditioning. In fact, it's a good bet you are among the record-breaking 600,000 families who will decide to add a central unit this year to your home or buy a new home with cooling installed. (Buried in that figure is the eye-opening statistic that one out of every four new homes built during 1965 will be centrally air conditioned.)

Not only that, apartment dwellers, mobile-home owners, and anyone seeking localized relief from heat are grabbing up room-sized air conditioners as if they were TV sets in the early days of that industry. This year, over 2,000,000 room units will be sold for noncommercial use.

You're probably aware of the fact that summer air conditioning means a lot more than a respite from hot weather (to name a few advantages: less dirt and dust, relief from allergies, no bugs, better appetites, more quiet, smoother family relations, increased house value, etc., etc., etc.).

The question that's probably foremost in your mind this year is not why air conditioning is right for you, but how you can go about getting it. Here is the most up-to-date information available anywhere. It's divided into one big chunk and one little chunk: what you can do this summer and what you can plan now to do next summer.

What you can do right now about air conditioning your home. Understand, first, that you can air condition your house, no matter what its size, shape, ge, style, or existing heating system. The present owner of a bulging, wood and stone home in t. Louis shook his head "no" each time his wife aggested they put in air conditioning. "In this 390, steam-heated monstrosity, it'll cost us a rtune," he moaned. But she finally won him ver, and to his disbelief, the contractor's bill ame to a relatively modest $1100. (By comprosing a little they saved money and are more an adequately comfortable. The contractor stalled a "package" conditioner on the third por, ducted it to high-wall registers on the second floor, and then let the cool air drop to the rest floor.)

Second, start thinking about who's going to the work. This will be the most important nk between your wanting central air conditiong and getting it. Manufacturers' equipment provided it's a recognizable brand-name unit) more dependable today than it's ever been. pproved methods for figuring the cooling load your home are slightly different in detail, but l can produce accurate results. These are sysms approved by the Air-Conditioning and efrigeration Institute (ARI); the National arm Air Heating and Air-Conditioning Assoation; and the Institute of Boiler and Radiator anufacturers (IBR). All are approved by FHA. he variable in this equation is the contractor. good one will provide you with the maximum summer comfort. An inept contractor can otch the job enough to make you comfortable nly part of the time and run up your bills for aintenance and operation.

So, choose your air-conditioning contractor ith the same care you would employ to find an rehitect, builder, or lawyer. Ask your friends and neighbors for suggestions. Dig into the comany's background and reputation. Learn how any the firm has been handling air-conditioning ork. Find out how local lending institutions ate the company. And if you think it's necestry, call your local Better Business Bureau apter to see if any complaints have been dged against the contractor.

Good sleuthing on your part is especially important if you don't happen to be an airporditioning engineer, or know a great deal bout the fundamentals of residential cooling. I's true that there are some things every home where can learn about conditioning; these points ill be covered here. But essentially, it's a amplicated business—far more involved than estiding or reroofing, for example. Once you've elected a contractor, you're going to have to just him.

As you would for any major work on your ome, get at least two competitive bids—preferbly, three. Estimates will have to be based on a inspection of your home, since factors affecting heat gain are never the same for any two ouses, even though the homes may have been uilt from the same plan. Ask each contractor of come separately and note what he does.

A thorough investigation will include computations on total square footage, figured room by com; orientation of the house; exterior colors particularly the roof); amount of insulation; rading (particularly on the west and south des); window area; materials in the structure; and to a certain extent, the way you live. For cample, if you entertain and give large parties equently, it may mean you'll need stepped-up boling in the living areas of your house.

Ask for a written estimate from each contractor. So that you have a basis on which to compare bids, specify that he note down the cooling load for your home. It should be expressed in BTU/hour. (The old term was "ton," and one ton equals 12,000 BTU/hour. The BTU/hour expression is much more accurate.) Then get the BTU/hour capacity of the equipment each contractor recommends. Be sure the equipment has an ARI seal of certification. This seal can be carried only on units produced by manufacturers that have agreed to participate in a rigid industry performance standards program. You'd also do well getting a breakdown of the major components needed, a summary of the work, an itemized list of installation charges, and the contractor's estimate of operating costs.

When you have the bids, here are a few tips on assessing them. First, the cooling load computations should be practically identical. To illustrate: The cooling load for a three-bedroom house of 1014 square feet was 27,868 BTU/hour. If three bids had come in at 27,850, 27,870, and 24,500 BTU/hour, the owner would have every right to be suspicious of the third figure. Any time you doubt a cooling load calculation, invite a representative of your local utility to check it out. Often, he will do so free of charge.

Second, the cooling capacity of the equipment should never be less than the calculated load. It should also not be much more than the load. In the case above, a unit rated at 33,000 BTU/hour might prove inefficient. This may sound strange, but the fact is that a conditioner too big for the job will lower room temperatures too fast, shut off, then flip on again. As a result, you may be subjected to a roller coaster of temperature variations. In contrast, the unit sized correctly for the job—say, within one or two thousand BTU/hour of the load—works steadily and smoothly to keep the temperature at a level that is even and comfortable.

Next, compare the specifications for installing the equipment. If all three bids show the same layout, you can be fairly certain it's the best way to do the job (and, of course, it makes comparing bids much easier). But this isn't always the case, though.

One contractor may strongly suggest installing the condenser and compressor outside the house, while another has it planned for a spot alongside or above the furnace. From an operational standpoint, there's no difference. But the compressor and condenser are noisy things (less so than in years past, but still noisy). Therefore, when placing it consider such points as: how close will it be to a patio, is it going to disturb your neighbors, is it too near a basement playroom, etc.

One bid may diagram the use of existing ductwork, while another may recommend enlarging the ducts. Normally, cool-air ducts need to be larger than warm-air piping. But the first bid would get around this by boosting the blower capacity and forcing more cool air, at a faster rate, through the smaller ducts. This means less expense, but more noise. Enlarging the ducts can be costly, but there's less noise, and quite often the system operates more efficiently.

When you finally select one of the three contractors, make sure you get a written contract you understand, plus a warranty on the man's work. The average time period on a workmanship warranty is one year. It should give you the assurance that the contractor will make free calls to balance the system properly and correct any defective work or replace inoperative parts. Also get it in writing that local codes have been met.

There's something you can do first this summer. Cut down the heat gain inside your home. The cost will prove an investment, because you may shave the price of the unit needed to cool your house and reduce operating expenses after it's installed. Cutting heat gain means adding insulation where it's necessary. To beat back the heat, it's needed most in the attic, but it won't hurt to fill the sidewalls at the same time. Or, if your house has a dark roof in need of repairs, consider reroofing now with white or light-colored shingles. Light colors help reflect the radiant heat of the sun. Finally, wherever the sun's heat flows through windows, add shading devices—awnings, patio covers, plantings.

Paying for air conditioning may be less of a knotty problem than you imagine. Central cooling is eligible under the Title I home improvement program insured by FHA. You can often get a direct loan from your bank at favorable rates. Some contractors have financing plans of their own, but take a close look at the real interest rates. They are inclined to be high.

The cost for central air conditioning can't be pegged exactly, since every job is, in fact, a custom job. However, there are guidelines. Adding air conditioning to an average-sized, threebedroom home that already has adequate warm-air ducts will normally cost from $850 to about $1250. Installing a cooling system in a home without ducted heating (e.g. a home with hot-water, steam, or electric heat) can cost anywhere from $350 to $800 more than the figures above, since new ductwork must be installed. Though you pay more, you may get more. The perfectly balanced system for year-round comfort permits cool air to fall from high-wall or ceiling registers and heat to rise from baseboard or floor registers (or coils).

The exact price for your home will hinge on its required cooling capacity, local labor charges, and competition among contractors. Competition can be a strong force in the pricing picture. In a few areas, contractors have installed central air conditioning in a hot-water-heated home for the same price as in an equivalently sized, forced-warm-air-heated house.

Operating costs will vary with local weather, the size of the house, and the current cost of electricity or gas. Assuming a cooling capacity of 30,000 BTU/hour with electricity at 2c per kilowatt hour, operating costs may be as low as $40 for the cooling season in Maine; $60 to $80 in the middle Atlantic states; $100to $120 down as far as the Jacksonville, Florida, area; and as high as $180 each season in the Southwest and southern Florida. However, this operating cost is offset by real savings on cleaning and replacement of draperies, curtains, rugs, and furniture fabrics. It is also reduced by lower (or no) cost for screens, since you'll keep the windows closed.

You may believe that you're faced with a difficult decision between various types of central air conditioning. You're right about the number of types. There are quite a few. But you're wrong about facing a big choice. It's going to be much simpler than you think.

For example, you may wonder whether it's better for you to buy an electrically powered conditioner or one that operates (continued)

(continued) on the gas-absorption principle. Compared on the basis of performance, both systems are excellent. A gas-powered cooling unit will cost more initially, but in any area where gas rates are below the cost for electricity, it may pay you in the long run to install a gas unit. Ask the utilities for rates and an estimate of yearly operating costs based on the size unit (in BTU/hour) that's been recommended for the size of your home.

You might be concerned about air-cooled versus water-cooled units. In most cases, the decision is going to be made for you, since the overwhelming majority of residential central air conditioning is air cooled. The reason is pretty basic. Water-cooled units need a continual flow of water over the coils, and not many regions in the United States are water-rich enough to afford it. If you do live in an area where water is plentiful and low cost, it may pay you to put a water-cooled unit into your home. Under similar conditions, the water-cooled conditioner operates at less cost. You can generally depend on the contractor to steer you to the best unit.

You may also have heard about water chillers. This is the hydronic-(hot water) heating industry's answer to air conditioning with existing equipment. It's a good answer. Pipes that carry hot water in winter pump cold water in summer. At the radiator locations, a fan blows across the piping coils and sends cool air into the room. The system operates effectively in commercial structures and very large homes. For the average subburban residence, it's too costly for the present time.

Last, how about a heat pump? Fine, if you intend to replace your present heating system as well as add cooling. As you may know, the heat pump is a compact, electrically driven unit that can either heat or cool by simply reversing the cycle of air through the unit. In summer, it takes heated indoor air and dumps it outside. In winter, it extracts heat from outside air and delivers it indoors. (Surprisingly enough it does this when the outside temperature is as low as 0° F.) However, the cycle operates at peak efficiency in summer, and in very cold weather the unit requires a boost from auxiliary heat to produce the necessary BTU/hour. This is generally built into present-day units, but it will mean higher electric bills. As a result, the pump still finds its best market in the Southern states.

Room air conditioners. The discussion thus far has been about central air conditioning—and there's a reason. For a single-family home, a central unit is more practical. It cools, filters, and dehumidifies air throughout the entire house far more effectively than room units. And in the long run, it's more economical.

Yet room air conditioners have a definite place in the picture: for apartments and mobile homes, for vacation cabins and cabanas, for guest cottages and maids' quarters, and as a booster for cooling wherever it's needed (in a basement workshop, for example). What's been happening to room air conditioners lately?

Today you can buy a window unit for $100 that's capable of cooling the average den. Costs go up steadily to about $500 (and beyond) for bigger units with more features.

The variety of room air conditioners is astonishing. (If you would like more information, send for The American Home's 1965 Buyers' Guide to Room Air Conditioners, Fans, and Evaporative Coolers. Send 15c, no stamps please, to The American Home, Reader Service, Dept. BG-4, 641 Lexington Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022.) Generally, units are thinner, more compact, and quieter, since many feature baffles or mufflers to dampen the noise of high fan speeds. They can be installed through a window or wall. A new respect for aesthetics is found in leatherette, baked enamel, metal, and wood finishes on many of the cabinets.

One model switches from electric cooling to electric heating for spot warmth on cold days. Another has a special thermostat that maintains room temperature without overcooling. And many 1965 units have multi-directional grilles that sweep up, down, back and forth, or spray air in five directions simultaneously.

Basically, selecting the right conditioner means choosing the one with power enough to cool the space you want cooled. Make a careful notation of the room size (cubic feet, as well as square feet), the number and size of windows, and the direction they face. When you turn this information over to a dealer, you should get an accurate estimate of your cooling requirements. (Manufacturers generally give their dealers a precomputed slide rule for figuring heat gain.)

Normally, 115-volt units are classified as "bedroom coolers", while the 230-volt conditioners are termed "living area" units. The 230-volt boxes have heavier capacities, and can cool larger spaces. It's quite likely the dealer will recommend that an electrician run a separate circuit through the house for the room unit. The $50 you may spend to have the wiring installed will pay off if the amperage load is already high in the room you want to cool. Some city codes require a separate circuit for any 115-volt air-conditioning unit.

How you can plan now for air conditioning next summer. The American Home would be among the first to admit that not everyone is ready this year for air conditioning. By January, 1966, about 3,100,000 of the 45,000-000 U.S. homes will be centrally air conditioned. That does leave a sizable number of homes yet to be cooled. Yet, there are steps you can take now to make air conditioning easier next spring. For one thing, you could:

Save money. Not easy, we know. But look at it this way. Imagine you've already bought the unit, and have to put away, say, $20 a week. But instead of paying the bank interest on a loan, you get interest, and by next summer, you'll have over $1000. That may well cover a complete job of central air conditioning for you.

Lower the heat load in your home. The ways to do it are no different from those mentioned above. You'll do well to beef up the attic insulation especially. This is something you can do easily on your own. And any windows that get a direct blast from the sun each day should be shaded. As a matter of fact, good shading will keep your home a few degrees cooler right now. Then, either a light-colored roof, or an attic exhaust fan, or both, will keep down the daily heat build-up underneath the roof. You and the airconditioning equipment will benefit. Buy a room unit. Try out an inexpensive model in a small room, say, the laundry. Learn how cool, conditioned air can make you more comfortable. Or, if you'd rather not buy, try renting one for a time.

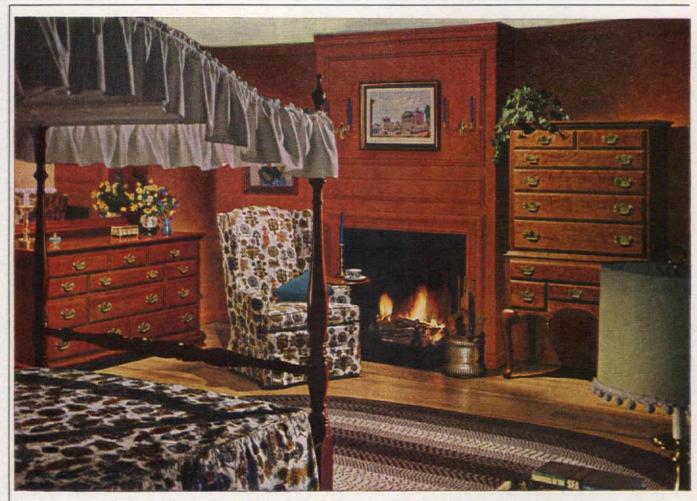

Get more details. Dig out your scissors and clip the air conditioning ads. Send for the brochures. Visit local showrooms to see and learn about the equipment. The more you can bone up on the subject, the better off you'll be when you buy. THE END

19TH CENTURY

Much of the new furniture you'll be seeing in the stores this fall will be labeled "19th century." This means pieces that are elegant, formal, classic; finishes that are more highly polished than you have been used to.

This so-called 19th century is actually a composite of four early 19th century neo-Classic styles: Empire (French), Regency (English), Federal (American), and Biedermeier (Austrian, German). Examples of each are sketched below.

It was the discovery of Pompeii in 1748 that started the great classic revival. It lasted all through the second half of the 18th and well into the first quarter of the 19th century. Pompeii had been buried by an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in A.D. 79 but lava and ashes preserved it for posterity. When it was unearthed, architects, designers, and painters became completely fascinated with the ancient Roman style of architecture and design. The straight, massive, masculine, severe lines of Pompeian buildings must have come as a relief after decades of rococo curlicues.

The interest in antiquity finally became all pervasive sively. Characteristic upholstery colors that dominated were green, gold, and red.

REGENCY

Regency was named after the prince regent (later George IV) who took over the government of England from his father George III—who lost the American Colonies. The Regency style was in fashion from about 1810–1820. Regency furniture is more fanciful and lighter than Empire furniture. At its best, it is at once comfortable and elegant. While Regency design owes much to Roman models, it was also inspired by Greek prototypes and even by Chinese. The prince regent's own "Pavilion" at Brighton can only be described as exotic. Mahogany was used extensively, so was rosewood. Painted black and gold finishes were also characteristic as were lion-head drawer pulls. Upholstery fabrics were often striped.

FEDERAL.

The Greek Revival in American architecture was paralleled by a classical revival in American furniture so that toward the end of the French Revolution (1789–1799) even the system of government was redesigned to resemble that of the old Roman republic. So enamored of anything Roman were the people of that time that it became fashionable to wet down women's dresses so that they would cling to the body and make their wearers look like statues of Roman matrons. Oddly enough, anything Roman was called "Greek."

EMPIRE

The Empire style was designed to enhance Napoleon's prestige and express his dynastic an bitions. Furniture was impressive, extremely heavy—above all, it was architectural. Pieces had large expanses of polished mahogany, without paneling. The glory of the style is the finely wrought bronze d'oré (gilded bronze) hardware. Although motifs were usually taken from classical antiquity (egg and dart, anthemion crest, honeysuckle), Egyptian symbols came into fashion after Napoleon's expedition to Egypt (1798–1799). The bee, the emperor's personal emblem, was also used extenstyle that lasted from about 1800 to 1850. American designers were influenced by those of England, mainly Sheraton and Hepplewhite, later by French Empire furniture. The best-known cabinetmaker of the period was a New Yorker, Duncan Phyfe. Typical of the Federal style is the prevalence of the eagle motif, of lyre splats on chairs, of curved-saber legs. Mahogany was the most-often used wood but some rosewood and even curly maple were also in fashion.

BIEDERMEIER

Papa Biedermeier was a German cartoon figure, unheroic and provincial, who summed up the reaction against Napoleon. Biedermeier furniture is the antithesis of Empire furniture even though it has classical antecedents. Its own peculiar charm comes from its Gemütlich air, its coziness. Essentially it is not a graceful style, though there are some very pretty pieces, especially small tables. Biedermeier furniture is characterized by light woods (cherry, bird's-eye maple), often with dark, black, or gold trim.

A WIDE-DECKED SUMMER HOUSE WITH STUDY PLAN YOU CAN ORDER

High ceilings, lots of glass, give it a vacation outlook

A summer house should have a feeling of openness, plenty of space to give a vacation feeling, and a sense of ease and relaxation. This one wins on all counts. There's space here for six people, with room for extra cots on the balcony. The high, cathedral ceiling in the living room and the wide-angled glass wall in front open up the inside to the view. The log-burning fireplace in the living room has a barbecue for outdoor use. The outdoor dining area is roofed and screened with a wood grille for privacy. There are 962 square feet on the first floor, not including the deck. The second floor has 294 square feet. The overall dimensions of the house, including the deck, are 38 feet by 48.

If you want to make this a year-round vacation house, or if you plan to use it as a retirement home, you could convert the crawl space foundation to a full basement with room for a furnace and storage space. Use form below to order the Study Plan for this vacation house.

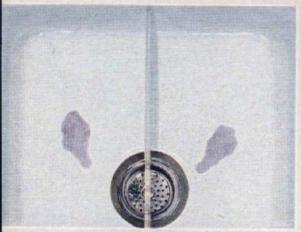

Josephine, TV's lady plumber, says:

"New extra strength Comet gets out stains far better than any other leading cleanser

... even through a barrier of stain-making coffee!"

'This test shows New Comet has much more power than other cleansers and cleans far better. Here are two equal food stains, separated by a divider, on a wet sink. But I'll make one stain much tougher...

I'll cover it with black coffee! And give Comet the tougher job. Comet must go through the coffee then clean the stain! I let another cleanser (blue, white—any one) try the easier job. After half a minute...

I remove the divider, drain and rinse. See! The other cleanser left some stain, but Comet cleaned even through coffee! Comet disinfects better, too! For lots more power get New Extra Strength Comet!"

NEWS NOTES

By Virginia T. Habeeb

We've had a newsy month around our Test Kitchens. From Corning Ware... Menu-ettes! New cook-serve dishes with an integral handle... a new size and shape. Made of Corning's Pyroceram (glass ceramic), they will withstand all temperature extremes. The new dishes will be helpful in preparing sauces, gravies, garnishes, baby foods and small portions of food. Available in a set of three, with covers—a one-pint and a one-and-a-half-pint sauce-pan, and a six-and-a-half-inch skillet. $12.95. Also available individually.

A new cosmetic for floors! Bruce's Cold Water Cleaner—a clean-up for waxed floors that does not disturb the wax finish. The concentrated liquid cleaner dissolves instantly in cool or cold water and will remove spots and soil but not the wax coating. In food, hardware, and department stores, a 24-ounce bottle sells for 89c.

Four more Swanson Frozen "TV" Dinners are displaying tasty additions . . . home-style touches in fourth compartments. They are Loin of Pork with Peas in Butter Sauce, Ham with a Corn Muffin, Filet of Haddock with a Biscuit, and Fish 'N' French Fries with Tartar Sauce. Tasty morsels from the freezer sections!

Need extra ice for a party? You won't have to buy it or bother the neighbors if you have an Ice Kit from Homemakers, Inc., Louisville, Ky. The kit will make 196 cubes of ice, consists of four flexible trays which stack in an aluminum carrier, and takes less than a half cubic foot of your freezer space. In Housewares Department. About $5.

Convenience can cost less. Convenience foods aren't always as costly as you might think. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, for each $100 spent for food in a grocery store, about $12.55 goes for convenience foods. This same amount of food in its natural form would cost you $12.82. What makes the difference? Packaging at the point of production is one factor. It cuts transportation costs, reduces waste, and brings you a product packed at the peak of perfection.

Presto's famous electric pressure cookers now boast an additional bonus of a Teflon-coated cooking surface. Choose the new no-stick, no-scour pressure cooker in a 4- or 6-quart size.

Good hunch for lunch—Next time you bake, broil, or fry chicken, prepare extra lunchbox portions. Wrap individual pieces in aluminum foil and store in freezer. Pack the frozen chicken in the morning; by noon the chicken will be thawed.

When making draperies, take advantage of work-saving, automatic pleating tapes which will make it possible to wash and press the draperies flat.

Serve your favorite summer beverages in frosted glasses. Dip the rims of the glasses in fruit juice or slightly beaten egg whites, then in granulated sugar. Freeze for about one hour. (Then we like to top summer drinks with a garnish of fresh mint leaves.)

That famous finish is here! We were pleased to note the debut, from the 3M Co., of Scotchgard fabric finish in spray-on, do-it-yourself cans. It will protect all fabrics from rain and stain if you just follow the easy directions on the can. Use the bright red can for drycleanable fabrics such as upholstery, suits, and ties; the blue can for washable fabrics such as children's clothes, tablecloths, and slacks. About $2.95 for one 20-ounce can.

The latest in lighting . . . kerosene lamps from Prescolite. This whimsical lamp of pure brass makes an illuminating conversation piece or a delightful addition to alfresco dining. The glass shade is handmade and blown of lead crystal—in smoke blue, amber, or cracked crystal. Virtually smoke-free, odorless, the lamp will burn for many hours on a single fueling. $39.95.

Instant meat marinade from Adolf's takes the time out of marinating fresh meat; yet retains the succulent flavor and tenderness of marinated meats. One foil envelope (29c) will marinate about four pounds of meat. Follow simple package directions, or use as a base for your own marinade recipe using your favorite seasonings.

Introducing—a new name of major appliances (refrigerators, freezers, automatic washers, and dryers) from the Fedders Corporation, well known in heating and cooling equipment.

Now there's Instant Breakfast and it comes to us from Carnation. Made with milk, it fills the need for quickly prepared, balanced meals... just the ticket for the many of us who are habitual offenders when it comes to breakfast skipping! It is a dry powder that comes premeasured in envelopes, packed six to a compact box; flavors are chocolate, chocolate flavor with malt, coffee, eggnog, and plain. One serving, including the cost of the eight ounces of milk you add to one packet, comes to about 19c.

We're delighted to welcome another electric range with an oven that needs no cleaning! Electri-clean oven by Frigidaire has a cleaning cycle which will clean not only messy oven walls and door, but also oven racks and surface-unit drip bowls. Just place the drip bowls (made of the same heatresistant porcelain enamel as the oven lining) on the racks in the oven before cleaning; then follow the simple cleaning directions. The Electri-clean oven is available in both top-of-the-line and medium-priced ranges in the 30-inch models. Also new from Frigidaire-an automatic ice maker in their latest line of combination refrigerator-freezers.

Another delectable food we'd like to keep in our pantry for emergencies or special occasions—Grapes Jubilee! Thompson seedless grapes with a "cherry jubilee" flavor and an endless variety of ways to serve—both simple and gourmet. One-pound can from Cock o' the Walk holds about two cups of grapes.

There's news in the refrigerator case of your supermarket. New Mazola margarine won't burn, darken, or smoke at normal panfrying temperatures. It remains clear and clean even when heated as high as 400° F. In the familiar box of four quarter-pound foil-wrapped sticks.

More to come. We're busy now testing more exciting new products we'll tell you about next month. Wouldn't you like to have a toilet that flushes in a whisper and never needs handle jiggling and ventilates itself (yes, ventilates itself) every time you use it?

American-Standard has one now. Spanking new.

Handsome, isn't it.

A quick look will tell you this American-Standard Luxor*is totally new. The tank is tucked down low, almost out of sight. Flush the new Luxor and you can hardly believe your ears, it's so quiet. Bowl and tank are one piece of fine vitreous china. That's why it's so easy to clean. But this American-Standard toilet promises more. It promises to ventilate itself. And it does. Vent-Away, a new American-Standard air-siphoning device, is built right into the Luxor. At a touch of the button, Vent-Away† whisks toilet odors down the drain before they become bathroom odors. The air suction is fast, thorough and quiet. See this new American-Standard toilet before you settle on plans for your bathrooms.

For more information see your American-Standard plumbing contractor, listed in the Yellow Pages under "Plumbing Fixtures" or "Plumbing Supplies," or mail coupon.

Send for the free brochure "Kitchen Cutlerythat Really Cuts"

Think they don't make sharp knives any more? Comus PRO knives are different — they really cut! And you can try these professional quality knives for 30 days without risking a penny.

The Secret is the Steel

The remarkable Comus PRO knives are not made of stainless steel. The blades are not scalloped or saw-toothed. Instead, they are razor-keen, high-carbon, cutlery steel — forged, ground and oil-tempered to hold their edge. This is the steel used for professional cutlery . . . These are the knives used by professional chefs.

Still Sharp in 1974?

Yes! Carbon steel does make an astonishing difference. Comus PRO knives are so sharp you can thin-slice tomatoes and fresh bread — carve rare chuck as if it were finest tenderloin — chop and mince vegetables like lightning. And a few occasional swipes on steel or stone keeps your Comus PRO knives factory-sharp for ten, twenty years, or even more!

Send for Free Brochure

Comus PRO knives are not sold in any store, so send today for our free brochure. By return mail, we'll send you pictures, prices and facts on the new Comus PRO knives. Then you decide whether you want to try them for 30 days at our risk. Write today to:
