One of the active rooms.

The floors for the active rooms:
Armstrong vinyl floors.

Busy all day long, your front hall must make a good first impression—time after time. Armstrong vinyl floors belong in your front hall and in all the active rooms of your home. They add so much welcome, so little care.

Here's a new vinyl floor from Armstrong. It's Coronelle™ Vinyl Corlon®, 87052, with the natural look of real slate. It's textured, so it helps hide scuffs and heel marks. It comes in long, wide rolls, so there's scarcely a seam from wall to wall. It's one of the many modern vinyl floors by Armstrong.

See the Armstrong name printed on the roll; it's your assurance of quality. FREE 24-page full-color booklet of decorating ideas for the active rooms of your home. Write Armstrong, 6604 Pine St., Lancaster, Pa.

9 A.M. MOW LAWN

10 A.M. CLEAN GARAGE

10:30 A.M. SMOOTH DRIVEWAY

11 A.M. GO FISHING

This is the story of Sam, his Allis-Chalmers BIG-TEN tractor, and his two acres. Since they got together a while back, Sam's lawn mowing takes one hour instead of eight. And that driveway sure seems a lot shorter since Sam smooths it with a blade.

Sam and his sacroiliac gave up carrying, too. He rides around while the ½ ton cart does the hauling. Speaking of driveways and backs, Sam has a snow thrower for his BIG-TEN, too... threw away his shovel.

Sam spends more time on the lake now. This is about the only outdoor job where his BIG-TEN can't help. But some men we know would rather BIG-TEN than fish. Buy one on easy monthly terms*... like Sam did.

by James Beard

America's foremost cook-author

Coax along your creative flair and you'll never lack admirers. No matter how old you grow, I've seen lives transformed by learning what happens when you add subtle changes to everyday foods.

Want exquisite taste? Start with the freshest ingredients like fresh meat, full of natural flavor juices. Then guard those juices the best way — not just in the cooking but in the storing. For my money, you can't beat Baggies® plastic bags—the big Food Wrap Size — for holding in that fresh flavor. They're moisture-proof so flavor juices can't drain away (the way they can in aluminum foil, butcher or wax paper).

Today's term: au jus: That's French for pan juices only (no other sauces or gravy). And believe me, the best pan juices result from meats kept juicy from the start. Roast beef is best served this way. Let potatoes brown in the juice the last hour. Add glazed carrots and radish roses.

Some of the best things come in big boxes. Like the 20-inch Jumbo Baggies. Ever made up hors d'oeuvres ahead or a big bowl of crisp salad and keep them fresh this way?

Here's a zippy tip for that salad dressing. Add 2 tsp. of hot mustard to 1 cup of mayonnaise.

James Beard

BRUCE RANCH PLANK makes a beautiful setting for all furnishing styles and colors. 2¼" and 3¼" planks with inlaid walnut pegs. Medium or dark prefinish.

We visit a good many houses during the year and we've found there are two basic kinds: those with a very strong personality and those with little or none. We are not talking about architecture or the design of the house but the feeling we get once we step inside the living room. This is the room where you find the personality or you don't.

The living room, per se, does not have a personality of its own. But it does reflect the personality of the family who lives there. Sometimes this personality is so evident you seem to know the family whether you've met them or not—just by looking around you. There are others—often exquisitely decorated and furnished—that tell you nothing. You wonder who, if anyone, lives in that house.

There are probably several schools of thought about how to project one's personality and interests into a room. It could be the choice of furniture, color, fabrics. They all play an important role. But, the things that seem to give us the strongest feeling of personality are the books and accessories.

Books are an essential part of any living room. Their titles alone can tell you immediately what the interests of the family are as well as its personality. Perhaps there is a good reason for keeping books elsewhere about the house but to us they belong in the living room.

Accessories, too, are important—those little objects about the room that play no essential role yet are so meaningful. Are they simply objects selected from a gift shop or antique store because they fit in with the decor of the room? Or do they have some special meaning for the family? To us a pleasant reminder of a trip or vacation, the first creative attempt by one of the children in modeling or painting, are far more important than a framed reproduction of some masterpiece found in hundreds of other homes.

Books and accessories are something that have meaning to members of a household—something a family holds near and dear. Why not then show them off with pride to all who cross your threshold?

Lady, you'll just love flameless electric water heating (almost this much)

From the moment you install a flameless electric water heater you'll know why it's so much better than other types. Because it needs no cumbersome flue, it tucks away unobtrusively almost anywhere. It's utterly silent. And it supplies all the clean, even-temperated hot water your family needs. Talk with your husband soon about one—another electric appliance worth loving.

YOU LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

Edison Electric Institute, 750 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10017

YORK AIR DOES MORE

Keeps out noise. The sounds of summer include screeching brakes, children shouting, dogs barking. With York air conditioning, you close your doors and windows on outside noise!

Controls odors. An exclusive York feature is chemical control of odor... an amazing development that destroys odors—doesn't just mask them. Cooking odors, or odors from tobacco, for example, are not circulated from room to room, but are trapped and chemically destroyed.

Increases the value of your home. As more and more homes are being air conditioned each year, prospective buyers expect central cooling, as well as central heating. So York air conditioning is an investment that could help you sell your home, if you move. Cost of York air conditioning is surprisingly low, with convenient financing available.

CONDITIONING THAN COOL-LOTS MORE

Makes housekeeping easier. With York central air conditioning, dust and dirt are filtered out. Your windows stay closed. Result is a cleaner home. Rugs, draperies, upholstered pieces don't have to be cleaned nearly as often. Furniture needs far less dusting. Your whole house is cleaner, all year around!

If your home is really your castle, you probably don't need a professional's help to sell it.

On second thought,
maybe you do.

Be it ever so humble, there's no place
like home.

Even if you had a castle to sell, you wouldn't want a bunch of sightseers traipsing through the halls and secret passages, pretending to be interested buyers. They might fall into the moat and sue you.

And you couldn't sell the castle as smoothly and efficiently as a Realtor®. Because that's his job. And he has to be an expert; otherwise he couldn't be a Realtor.

You see, a Realtor is a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict Code of Ethics as a member of the local board and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

He's trained to evaluate your castle (or home) for what it's worth, to recommend the right price, and to make a skilled presentation of it to truly interested buyers, not bargain-hunters or time-killers. Years of experience help him smooth over the endless details, even help the buyer find financing.

So whether you're selling a three-room bungalow or a 90-room chateau, by all means see a Realtor. It's easy: just look for this seal, which only he can display.

THE SPECIAL JOYS OF WINDOW BOXES

Revel in spring—armfuls of it—at your windows this year! Now you can have tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, narcissus, azaleas, and other spring gems all in bloom in pots and ready to plant in window boxes. Why window boxes? Besides the fun of color, fragrance, and plant form at your fingertips, window boxes are handsome in themselves. Depending on their construction, color, and planting, they add dignity (black-painted containers overflowing with dark green ivy) . . . or gay charm (weathered redwood or white boxes jam-packed with pink and white geraniums) to a house not distinguished by its architecture.

You can buy window boxes in a variety of materials or you can make your own. They come in redwood, cypress, cedar, white pine, heavy-duty plastic, fiber glass.

If you decide to make your own window box, make sure to use boards that are at least one—preferably one-and-a-quarter inches—thick. Thinner wood will warp and allow the soil to overheat in summer. Reinforce corners with corner braces and use brass screws rather than nails, which will push out in time. Treat the container with a nontoxic wood preservative such as cuprinol or copper naphthenate. Creosote and pentachlorophenol are toxic to plants. After the preservative has dried, apply paint or stain.

Your window box should be from three to six feet long. A larger container would be hazardous; difficult to support on a ledge; and when filled with soil too heavy for two people to lift. The inside should measure eight to nine inches deep and ten to 12 inches wide at the top.

The first requirement for a good-working window box is good drainage. Whatever material it's made of, your window box must have drainage holes in the bottom so excess water won't drown plant roots. Make half-inch drainage holes six to eight inches apart and cover with a layer of broken crock or pebbles. Over the crock put a layer of moist sphagnum moss, a piece of wet burlap, or half-inch pieces of sifted cinders.

To hold your window box securely, fasten it to the ledge with bolts or lag screws. Leave about an inch of space under the box, and between the box and the house so water will run off and air can circulate.

Since plants will be confined to a relatively small area, the soil in your window box should be rich and fertile. A good, all-purpose soil mix consists of two parts loam, 1 part sand, 1 part humus (e.g., peatmoss or leafmold), and a five-inch pot of bone meal for each bushel of mix. Plants that like acid soil thrive in a mixture of two parts loam, two parts sand, two parts acid peat, one part leafmold, a third part well-rotted manure or a half part dehydrated manure. For succulent plants and cactus cut down on the humus, and plant them in a mix of equal parts loam and sand, a quarter part leafmold or peatmoss, adding a five-inch pot of bone meal and one of ground limestone per bushel.

Now you're ready to plant your window box. Don't use very tall growing plants, but choose from those that grow under a foot in height. They will look better from the outside, and you'll be able to see outdoors from within. Keep your planting simple but in the best of health for the most beautiful effects. Water frequently because the soil in window boxes dries out quickly.

Here are some combinations of gay spring flowers you might try. Hyacinths or tulips in a row, combined with small-leaved English ivy, look very elegant. Or plant a profusion of yellow daffodils, fragrant white narcissus, and blue grape hyacinths. Pansies are charming in combination with Dutch bulbs, as are violas and wallflowers. A good, early-to-bloom edging for the window box is arabis, white rock cress.

As the season wears on and the weather warms, spring flowers will fade and your window box should take on its summer aspect.

Geraniums for sunny spots, multiflora begonias and coleus for shade, petunias, dwarf marigolds, and zinnias, portulacas, primroses, fuchsias, even orchids can be grown at your windows. City dwellers with sunny window ledges will derive special joy from growing herbs. They are not only pretty but afford a satisfying sensation of having won out over unbeatable odds every time a sprig is snipped for an omelette, cool drink, or stew.

With the arrival of fall weather, fill your window boxes with chrysanthemums and ivy or pachysandra. In very cold climates it's best to empty, clean, and store window boxes. If you don't want to take them down, and evergreens won't survive, make them into bird feeders!

"PRIMITIVE" WOOD PLAQUES TO PAINT

By Dorothy Lambert Brightbill

Old American Primitives are almost impossible to find—even if you scour the antique shops and auctions. So why not paint your own? You don't have to be an artist to paint these handsome wood plaques. Designs are cleverly stamped on $\frac{3}{4}$ " pine and become the outlines and shadows when the painting is finished. The special paints can be wiped up with water and when dry are permanent. After you antique the plaques you'll be hard put to tell them from the real thing! Order a set of four or a pair.

Fill out coupon and enclose check or money order. New York City residents add 5% sales tax. All other New York State residents add 2% sales tax. Please allow 3 to 4 weeks for handling and mailing. Kits include stamped wood plaques (duck decoy is precut), brushes, paints, antique finish, rings for hanging, sandpaper, and instructions.

Random notes from our party-going—and giving—associate editor: At a party in a two-bathroom house the hostess designated one bathroom as a powder room, while the other was reserved for the men. "I enjoyed the luxury of hair spray, cologne, tissues, a clean comb, and clothes brush, all laid out for the guests by a thoughtful hostess." Another suggestion is: "Think about your hostess when buying flowers to bring along. Instead, have them sent in advance and spare her the bother of having to greet guests and arrange flowers at the same time. Also, keep her color scheme in mind while selecting the flowers." Planning a party? Stock up on shells for ashtrays. They're inexpensive, decorative, and functional. Pretty scallop shells sell for under a dollar apiece and stack neatly when not in use.

Couldn't be more timely—United Wallpaper Company's introduction of new designs in their Trimz line of prepasted vinyl-coated wall coverings. They have op art, pop art, and Mondrian-inspired patterns—all bold, all a most welcome change from dainty, conventional prints.

Ever heard of Stepons? Stepons are one of those "why didn't somebody think of this before?" ideas to protect vulnerable carpeted stair edges. They're developed from Surlyn, DuPont's newest plastic, and are marketed by Continental Chemical Corp. They may also be used to protect the edges of uncarpeted stairs. Each see-through plastic strip is 24 inches long and can easily be installed with five wire brads.

Small treasure of a cabinet by Syroco is designed to hold your own small treasures. It's country French in feeling with a little bonnet top, a carved basket, and appealingly curlicued little legs. Its single shelf can hold a collection of small figures or several poetry books. The uses are endless. It comes in distressed walnut or in antique green, can hang or stand.

A throw-away chair for a child, that's Mini Chair. It's manufactured by Trend Pacific Imports from what looks like corrugated cardboard to us—in two bright color combinations. Mini Chair comes in a small plastic envelope, weighs nothing, and can be assembled in nothing flat, without even the help of a screwdriver—all you have to use are your own two bare hands.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

STOPS ITCH — RELIEVES PAIN

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all — results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. Ask for it at all drug counters.

newspaper that costs me less than 11¢ a copy

"As far back as I can remember, I've felt a little inadequate in group conversation. My friends always seemed so much better informed about world events, the latest scientific discoveries, educational trends, fashions, books, and so on. My contributions were few and unimpressive.

"Several months ago, I subscribed to The National Observer, a new kind of national news weekly in newspaper form. I hoped it would add scope and depth to my knowledge.

"The results have far exceeded my original expectations.

"For the first time, my friends are not only listening attentively to what I say, but are actually seeking my contributions. One evening last week, for instance, I was able to tell our group...

- ... why the British Army recently recruited 35 apes
- ... why a commercially available arthritis treatment is causing concern among public health officials
- ... why swallows are defecting from Capistrano
- ... why a New Jersey five-and-dime store offered merchandise costing up to $150,000
- ... why Soviet sunbathers can get tanned through their shirts
- ... why Yale University exempts certain seniors from all their classes
- ... why the space race may be helping to keep peace between Russia and the United States
- ... why the British are playing radio soap operas for quarantined dogs

"There's a whole storehouse of important, useful, and entertaining information like this in every week's National Observer. That's why I read it from cover to cover. It makes me feel so much more alive and aware of the world we live in."

So many people are talking this way about The National Observer these days. Why not join them?

The National Observer is published by Dow Jones & Company, the same world-wide news-gathering organization that publishes The Wall Street Journal. For two successive years, The Observer has won top national awards for distinguished news reporting.

Because The Observer is printed on high-speed newspaper presses in its four modern printing plants across the country — and because newspapers can be "made up" and printed faster than magazines — last minute stories can be filed only hours before the paper comes off the press.

You get more news — and you get more out of it. In only 18 to 32 full-size newspaper pages (printed on our own special crisp, white newsprint) you often get more reading material than in other news weeklies. The newspaper format permits not just one major "cover story," but five or six. Inside pages are important, too — there's no "letdown." Well-written headlines let you learn a lot quickly, and invite easy browsing for the stories that interest you most. More than 50 excellent pictures open windows not only on people, places and events in the headlines, but also on such colorful sidelights as the Laguna Indians doing a traditional dance to celebrate their new electronics plant... or the spectacle of an elephant giving his autograph.

MANY ENJOYABLE SPECIAL FEATURES

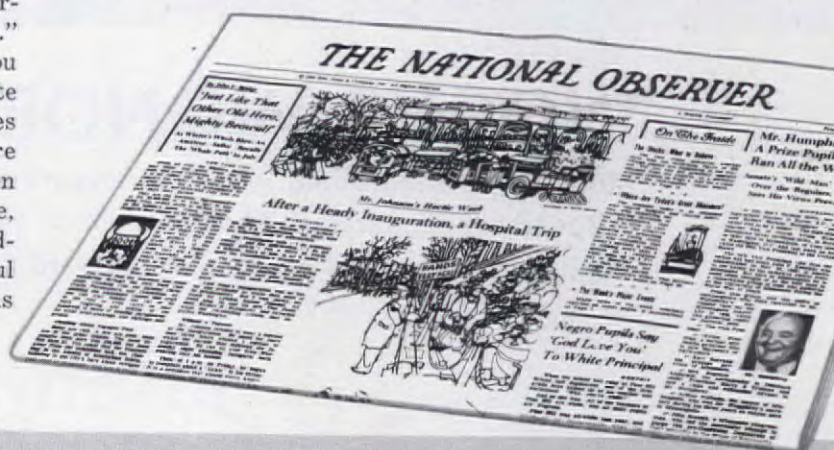

Each week, too, The National Observer brings you more than a dozen special features that add to your enjoyment or broaden your knowledge in important areas. "The Week in Washington," for example, can be read in a matter of minutes, yet brings you up to date on significant happenings in Congress, the White House, Government agencies, the courts and politics. Similarly, "How's Business?" fills you in quickly on important trends in industry, the performance of the stock market, economic indicators, and company and executive highlights.

For Bridge enthusiasts, there is "Better Bridge"; for crossword fans, a really challenging puzzle; for recipe collectors, a gem or two almost every week in "Food for Thought." And for both you and your youngsters, there's a weekly news quiz, plus "Current Events Classroom" — a column which brings you news background on such topics as the device being used to press legislation through the powerful House Rules Committee... the 400-year-old tradition of congressional immunity, and why it is in danger... the growing significance of a never-used method of amending the Constitution... why a country devalues its currency. "A Chat With the Doctor" brings you helpful medical hints on subjects ranging from indigestion to high blood pressure. On the lighter side, "Reflections" explores random aspects of life: the "good old days" when a pocket watch was a major status symbol... what it's like to be a female "handyman"... the different, distinct types of people found only in coin-operated laundries. And the whole family will enjoy the dry humor of "Grass Roots Philosophy," culled from the hometown press. ("Brush your teeth regularly with an electric toothbrush and see your electrician twice a year.")

NEW BOOKS OF HOME INTEREST

Our thoughts turn to gardening around this time of year, and we've noted a good crop of new garden books to help your thumb turn greener. One is AROUND THE GARDEN, WEEK BY WEEK by Joan Lee Faust. A personal reference book for the gardener, it has a calendar of weekly things to be done, and spaces for him to jot down his own schedule and reminders. It's a unique book for the gardener who already has a book of basic garden information. Very attractively illustrated. $3.95. (Appleton-Century)

THE GUIDE TO GARDEN SHRUBS AND TREES is a thorough book that describes and illustrates 500 species of trees and shrubs. Would you like to grow a pearl bush (Chinese shrub with white flowers)? It's extremely easy to grow in any ordinary garden soil, says author Norman Taylor. What about a European white birch? It can be grown in areas too hot for our native birch tree. $6.95. (Houghton Mifflin)

Helen Worth, director of a well-known cooking school, has written a cookbook of her teaching techniques. Called COOKING WITHOUT RECIPES, it follows this philosophy: If you learn all the hows and whys about cooking and look at it as an adventure, you can be a creative cook with or without recipes. She attempts to remove the "mystery" of cookery by giving more information about foods, fewer specific instructions. This is a good book for the cook who feels "bogged down" by complicated recipes and a lack of basic cooking knowledge. Recipes are a good selection for all courses and types of dishes. $5.95. (Harper & Row)

Betty Pepis has done a beautiful photographic dictionary entitled INTERIOR DECORATION A-Z. Everything is in alphabetical order by subject and it covers just about all aspects of design that the non-professional would need. All the room settings are tasteful, the photos, both in color and black and white, are excellent. Inexpensively priced, for a book of this kind, at $7.50. (Doubleday)

For those who love Early Americana and old houses, here is a fascinating story by Mary Earle Gould of THE EARLY AMERICAN HOUSE—its architecture, furnishings, equipment. We found especially interesting the evolution of the one-room house, antique kitchenware (with lots of illustrations), and the food and drink of the day. $8.95. (Charles E. Tuttle Co.)

These books may be ordered through your local bookstore.

"How we retired in 15 years with $300 a month"

"It's a young man's world," my father said back in the Fifties when Alice and I and the kids were spending Christmas with the folks at their home in Florida.

"And," Dad went on, "those gray hairs above your ears are telling you to plan for your retirement." I laughed. "Dad," I said, "I'm barely forty; I've got a boy and a girl to raise. Why I can't even think about retirement. Not for years!"

"I felt the same way at your age," my father said, and Mom nodded in agreement, "but your mother called the Phoenix Mutual man, and he fixed up a plan we could afford. We paid in something every month, and that's how we could afford to retire to this little gem of a house after you and Alice were married. Every month, regular as clockwork, we've been getting a check from Phoenix Mutual for the past 14 years, and this income is guaranteed for life!"

On the plane coming home Alice, reading a magazine, nudged me. "Look at this ad," she said, "'How we retired in fifteen years with $300 a month.' That's Phoenix Mutual, the company your Dad was talking about."

I read the ad. It said a man my age, with a steady job, could plan to retire in 15 years with a guaranteed income for life. "Let's send in the coupon!" Alice said, so I filled it out right there on the plane. When we got home, Alice mailed it, and soon a booklet came. We picked out the plan we liked and now, looking back, we wonder where those fifteen years went.

Our daughter's wedding picture, letters from young John working at Cape Kennedy and all my gray hairs are proof that we're all a little older.

But it is amazing how the years flew by and the payments seemed easier and easier to keep up. Last month I retired, and we moved into our house in the sun. Yesterday our first check arrived from Phoenix Mutual. "Dad was right," I said to Alice, "when he told us to plan for retirement 15 years ago."

"And he was right, too, when he said we're living in a young man's world," Alice said. "Let's go for a swim, young man!"

Send for free booklet

This story is typical. If you start early enough, you can plan to have an income of from $50 to $300 a month or more—starting at age 55, 60, 65 or older. Send the coupon and receive by mail, without charge or obligation, a booklet which tells about Phoenix Mutual Plans. Similar plans are available for women—and for Employee Pension Programs. Don't put it off. Send for your free copy today. Someday you'll be glad you did.

flowering trees

By Evanthia Kondonellis

Spring is a crocus breaking through the crust of winter, a salute of tulips and daffodils, tender ripening green. But in its most glorious manifestation, spring is a tree in bloom, transient in its beauty but full of promise. Rich, deep shade in summer, followed perhaps by fruit or brilliant foliage or both in fall—a life cycle that will repay your initial efforts more generously each year. What could be more evocative of the season of rebirth than a flowering tree? The prettiest spring-flowering trees for most small-to-average-size gardens can be had from among the crab apples, cherries, (continued)

Aunt Jemima
asked us to make a pancake turner.

It had to be a new kind. And it had to be good enough to be used as a special offer to Aunt Jemima's customers.

Coming from such a pancake expert as Aunt Jemima, that was no small order.

We made stacks of sketches. Till we came up with the perfect design.

It's round. (For years, people have tried to fit round pancakes onto square turners.) But it has a straight front end. For quick, easy pick-up.

Not only was it good enough for Aunt Jemima, it was good enough for us. We put a decorated handle on it and added it to our Flint collection of stainless steel Cook & Serve tools.

If you have a Cook & Serve set, you can get this matching turner for $1.95.

If you get the turner first, you can get a matching Cook & Serve set for as little as $12.95.

Either way, you'll flip.

(continued) dogwoods, and magnolias. There are narrow and spreading forms of most varieties, so that you can choose a tree to fit almost any situation in the landscape. You can select from trees that will not grow over ten feet tall to those that will go well over 30. Since you will want to have more than one tree for spring color in your plantings, pick trees that will bloom at different times to assure a sequence of flower color.

DOGWOODS (Cornus)

One of the earliest trees to bloom—in late March or early April—is the Japanese cornel, a dogwood (Cornus officinalis). It's a small, roundheaded tree that you can also grow as a tall shrub.

It has yellow flowers and attractive brown, peeling bark. The fruit makes good jam—pick it before the birds do.

The dogwoods are excellent choices for small gardens because in addition to spring bloom they provide light, dappled shade in summer, colorful fruit in fall, and finish with flaming foliage.

A new dogwood that may prove to be the best of the white-flowered forms is 'Eddie's White Wonder.' It combines the bloom of the gorgeous but tender Pacific coast dogwood with the hardiness of the eastern white variety, Cornus florida. 'Eddie's White Wonder' has survived mercury dips to 21° below zero with only slight damage to the branch tips.

It will need a little winter protection the first two years after transplanting. Give it a well-drained, fertile soil in sun, and water during summer droughts so the leaves won't turn brown around the edges. In addition to its main attraction of huge, pure white blooms, borne in abundance, it has wine-red fall color.

The Chinese dogwood (Cornus kousa chinensis) blooms in June, a month after the native American species have finished. Its blooms cover the tree like snow and unlike other dogwoods, the bracts are pointed and star-shaped in appearance.

'Milky Way' is a fine white kousa dogwood that grows 12 to 15 feet tall. The blooms are followed by strawberrylike fruit much liked by the birds. The kousa dogwood is hardier than native American species.

An intriguing dogwood called 'Coral Beauty' (Cornus alba atrosanguinea) will set your garden aflame with color in winter snow. The bark of its stems and branches is a brilliant coral red that will light up the most bleak winter landscape. It won't grow taller than four to five feet so you can plant it in the foundation or in view of a window where you can watch it glow all winter. The stems are green in summer. Flowers are followed by blue berries in autumn.

Other fine dogwoods are 'Cloud Nine,' white, a profuse bloomer with a spreading growth habit, light gray bark; 'Gigantea,' whose flower bracts are six inches long; and the white Cornus florida and pink C. florida rubra.

CRAB APPLES (Malus)

Crab apples bloom over a four-week period, beginning with the Manchurian crab (Malus baccata mandshurica) in mid to late April. This one blooms with the star magnolia. They're among the loveliest of spring-flowering trees, well-shaped, with delicately hued blossoms. Pick fruit in fall for making jams and jellies.

Culture is easy—any well-drained garden soil will do. Once they're well formed you don't have to worry about pruning them. Just remove Lees "Island Park" carpet wasn't made to take this kind of punishment. But it can.

We actually made "Island Park" into a trampoline and let six kids and one dog go to work on it.

Now, "Island Park" wasn't really made for this sort of thing. It was made to take only common everyday mayhem. And look great while doing it.

Which is why Lees made it of tough heavy filament nylon. Packed good and thick to give "Island Park" a deep dense pile.

We inspected it 27 times to make sure there were no skips, flaws, ravels or misweaves.

We even inspected our inspections.

When we were finished, "Island Park" was stain-resistant. Spill-resistant. Feet-resistant. Roller skate-resistant. Just about everything-resistant.

Including trampoline-resistant.

After hours of jumping and tumbling on our trampoline, the kids and the dog pooped out.

"Island Park" didn't. Even after this uncommon mayhem, it still looked great.

You'll probably never use "Island Park" on your trampoline.

But if you have one of those bouncy families, shouldn't you have it on your floor?

You can, for less than $9 a square yard.

suckers and thin out densely branched varieties.

One of the finest dwarf crab apples is the Sargent crab (Malus sargentii). It grows six to eight feet tall, but 12 or more feet across, so give it room. The leaves are dark green and turn yellow in the fall. The small, fragrant blooms open late and literally cover the tree. The buds are pink but the flowers are pure white when mature. There's a pink-flowered variety, M. sargentii rosea. The Sargent crabs bear small, dark red fruits in great abundance in the autumn. Several trees planted closely make a fine, low hedge.

If you want a taller tree, 15 to 20 feet, try 'Katherine,' white; 'Van Eseltine,' pink; or 'Crimson Brilliant,' red. 'Dorothea,' double pink and 'Pink Beauty' are slightly taller. Malus baccata and M. purpurea grow to 25 to 30 feet and more. The 'Hopa' crab is also in this category and is a breathtaking sight in spring. The flowers are pink, fragrant, and small red crab apples appear from midsummer till severe frost. It's perfectly hardy. In spring leaves are maroon.

For narrow, difficult-to-plant spots, try one of the columnar crab apples such as Malus baccata columnaris, M. robusta erecta, or the pyramidal crab 'Strathmore' with red foliage all year and pink blooms similar to the 'Hopa' crab.

Handsome pendulous forms are 'Excellenz Thiel,' 'Pink Weeper,' and 'Red Jade.' The last mentioned has white flowers in spring and spectacular red fruit in autumn.

CHERRIES (Prunus)

Ornamental cherries with their pastel mists of bloom are exquisite trees and proof that winter has finally quit the scene. They rarely grow over 25 feet tall, and from early to late May are loaded with single or double, pink or white flowers. One of the first to bloom is the rosebud or Higan cherry (Prunus subhirtella) with delicate pink blossoms. P. subhirtella autumnalis is a variety that often blooms twice—in fall as well as spring. Its flowers are pink; grow it as a tall shrub or tree to about 12 feet.

P. subhirtella can be purchased ready to bloom so you can pick the color you prefer. The pale pink form is elegant, erect, with drooping outer branches. The variety with darker pink flowers is a strong grower and will reach 25 feet. A double weeping form is 'Fukubana' or 'Yae-Shidare.' They are hardy.

The Sargent cherry (Prunus sargentii) is another early bloomer, and one of the taller species. It will reach 40 feet in height. It has bright pink blooms on reddish stalks and is an excellent choice for its fall foliage—brilliant orange-scarlet.

About a week after the Sargent cherry, the European bird cherry (P. padus) comes into flower, with clusters of white blossoms adorning the tree in full leaf. It bears fruit in mid-July.

'Kwanzan' is probably the most frequently planted cherry variety in America. The flower color is a rather overpowering purple-pink. The tree is hardy, long-lived for a cherry, and well adapted to garden culture.

'Mount Fuji' is a large tree and probably one of the best double whites. It is reported to produce single flowers in its youth, however.

accessories to brighten up that face you see in the mirror

You've seen a familiar room made "new," exciting, with no more than a change of draperies, a small accessory, or merely a better arrangement of its present contents. Now you can use the same kind of legerdemain to give your face a younger, prettier look. It's accomplished with a whole new array of cosmetics . . . to help minimize, cover up, or seem to change just about any small flaw. This whole "accessorizing" is an improvement on nature. Used as the directions indicate, it's never theatrical . . . makes you look and feel surer, more radiant.

It may have been Revlon who began this trend to more subtlety, more corrective benefits from makeup, with the first of the "blushers." Now they continue it with new Ultima-II Blushing Powder in beige to almost brown shades. By optical illusion and the use of light shades to reflect, dark to absorb light, this cake powder seems to correct, add to, or subtract from facial contours.

Now Max Factor has brought out a whole new line, Geminesse, twin-named because the treatments and the cosmetics are blended to assist each other to make you look your best. We found the Geminesse Contour Supreme, three chubby tubes of blendable makeup creams, and the Powder Extravaganza, a two-tiered box of five brush-on colors, particularly effective and fascinating. Again . . . follow the directions and you'll see these work!

Enticing Icing is Helena Rubinstein's name for a special lipstick to give added oomph to her pink lipstick shades for spring: Pink Icing, Peach Icing, Honey Icing. Wear Enticing Icing under the lipstick to shade or lighten, over it to add a gleam of silver. Estée Lauder has a little box of beauty spots that are called Jewelled Mouches; these add a flirtatious and gay look to a cheek, shoulder, or ear lobe. They're silver and black shaped spots, and to top them, add a "jool" from the tiny bottle that comes with this prettily packaged set.

Elizabeth Arden has an enchanting little paint box called Shado-Shade, a golden compact with a wardrobe of her cake eye shadows, a fine brush, tube for water, cake of Color Veil, sponge for you to repair your face as the evening (and you) wears on. For times when you don't use false lashes, try Yardley's London Lashes, a wand that is a mascara-plus-thickener, to use on upper and lower lashes; use English Eye-Lighter, skin-toned cream to camouflage shadows. Fabergé introduced Let's Make-Up—foundations, toners, "half-tones," Eye Make-Up, and a bevy of nail enamels, last fall. Use the booklet that comes with these; have fun learning, pleasure in using. Last, their Bedtime Beauty group, including eyelashes that look heavenly as you sleep, plus a Bedtime Beauty lipstick, that's pale but there and will not rub off or smear.

your valuable wood floors

What you don't know can hurt them.

Are kitchen waxes safe for wood floors?

The self-polishing waxes you use on your kitchen floor contain water. Even those that are said to be "for all floors" have water in them. If this water seeps down into your wood floors, the floorboards can warp, the grain can swell, and your valuable wood floors may need a costly refinishing.

Wax buildup on wood? Even if you have used a self-polishing wax on your wood floors with no apparent damage, additional coats of this wax can build up until the dingy old wax must be removed. And trying to get wax buildup off a wood floor can spell disaster.

Clean with care. Wood floors should be cleaned only with chemical solvents that are harmless to wood. You may get away with soap and water on wood for a while but, in the long run, watch out.

Is all that buffing necessary? Paste waxes have long been considered the ultimate for wax beauty and protection. They are, however, difficult to apply and need long and arduous buffing.

A safe, new way to clean, wax, and protect wood floors—with no buffing

Over the years, new products have made it a lot easier to take care of your kitchen floor. And, now, a new development from the people who make Armstrong Floors has brought that same modern convenience to the care of your wood floors. It's called Armstrong Wood Floor Care. It's in stores now.

Cleans safely. New Armstrong Wood Floor Care cleans as you put it on. Cleans with safe chemical solvents that easily get up the dirt and grease—even get old wax up off your floor.

Lasts as long as paste wax. Armstrong Wood Floor Care gives your floors the long-lasting protection and the deep, lustrous finish so desirable on wood floors—but without all the work of using paste wax.

No buffing or rubbing. It's the first no-buffing wax made especially for your wood floors. As simple and easy to use as the self-polishing wax you use in the kitchen.

New beauty for paneling, too. See the difference when you use Armstrong Wood Floor Care on your wood paneling, cabinets, and doors. It cleans, waxes, and protects—does all three quickly and economically.

THE DISORGANIZATION WOMAN

By Jeanne Lamb O'Neill

One thing I don't have to worry about is that spring will disrupt my housekeeping as it does many other housewives'. You know how it is when spring sings her soft, sweet, siren song—even the soberest housekeepers flip their mops. But in my case spring doesn't mean a thing. I'm as restless as a willow in a windstorm and as giddy as a puppet on a string the whole year round.

To me, that's the glorious advantage of being a housewife. There isn't a creature on earth that's wilder and freer. Certainly our husbands have no such luck. Men have to be solid, steady, punctual, unwavering.

And children, poor things, are tied hand and foot. Children have to be organized or bust or flunk or go without Batman for a week. It's time to get up, dear. It's time to go to school. It's time to practice your piano, set the table, do your arithmetic, go to bed, dear. More than ever these days, growing up isn't child's play. Between ambitious parents and eagle-eyed teacher, a child has as much chance to be disorganized as the president of IBM. Never mind lying in your tree house counting clouds, Johnny—better read another book, build another project, write another report like the live-wire Jones boy.

Of course, regimentation is good for children. It's character building. Much as I hated being shepherded through grade after grade, I always knew there was a good reason for it. Or is there? I can't help thinking it was a colossal swindle. I toed the line in grammar school because they told me I'd have to in high school. I toed the line in high school because they told me I'd have to in college. In college, they told me I'd never last in the work-a-day world unless I bowed down and worshipped the time clock. Fiddlededee. I don't say employers are out beating the bushes for employees who come in at ten and take three hours for lunch—but some bosses don't seem to mind.

Obviously some fields lend themselves to disorganization better than others. Obviously, I wasn't a salesgirl at Macy's. I could never be a nurse or an airline stewardess or a schoolteacher. I couldn't even be a farmer's wife. But never mind that. Now I'm a housewife, hallelujah, so don't anybody try to set their clock by me.

I refuse to wash on Monday, iron on Tuesday, mend on Wednesday, bake on Thursday. I'd rather starve than do my marketing like a well-oiled robot every Friday morning at 9 o'clock sharp. Just the thought of doing the bathrooms every Wednesday and my nails every Tuesday gives me galloping ennui. Maybe it's noble and virtuous to tackle your closets in clocklike rotation and keep a bedside chart of which way you turned the mattresses last, but isn't it dull, dull, dull?

Created by the maker of

FLOORS

I never do any special thing at any special time—except make the beds. Even I know you have to make the beds right after the second cup of coffee or you'll never get off the ground, much less to heaven.

But I don't make the beds (crack!), polish the furniture (crack!), vacuum the rugs (crack!). Why set up your own slave camp? Would a lion build his own cage? Would a bird clip his own wings? My laundry comes out just as white and sparkling on a Friday midnight. My vacuum works equally well before or after lunch. As far as the quantity of work that gets done, it wouldn't surprise me if the slaphappy housewife accomplishes even more than her sure-and-steady sisters. Tedium is a prickly problem in assembly plants, isn't it? They have to rotate crops, don't they? It's the regular drip-drip repetition of housework that tires women out.

Some women turn housework into a race with the clock. If everything doesn't gleam like glass by ten, they lose. Well, I can do that, too—if the minister is coming at one minute after or I'm flying the coop or it's a swell day for suntanning. But the idea of cleaning the house by ten every day of my life just to clean the house by ten every day of my life entralls me as much as a fried egg I started when the phone rang.

How do organized housekeepers cope with phone calls, anyway? It must drive them wild to be thrown off schedule. And do they allow x number of minutes for the morning paper, no matter how sticky the cryptogram or the situation in Rhodesia? Do they have a set time for looking to see if the tulips have sprouted, thinking of ways to redo the living room, and flirting with the mockingbird on the windowsill?

I'd hate to have a time-motion expert come in and analyze my day. I can spend an hour arranging one bowl of flowers. I may go downstairs to iron and end up doing a still life. I've even been known to turn on TV if I get hooked on a quiz show when somebody's home sick.

Being disorganized doesn't mean being lazy. It takes energy to be slipshod. Things don't get done automatically. You have to hustle, to think, make decisions, keep on your toes.

I'll say it before someone else does.

Right?

Wrong.

If you feel nobody can wash dishes as clean as you can—least of all a machine—we beg your indulgence. You happen to be wrong.

New RCA WHIRLPOOL dishwashers scrub up to 18 table settings at once—pots and pans included. A unique, new system cleans better than any other dishwasher, even you. 3 reasons: powerful jet-spray nozzles shoot out water to pry off foods... two full-size spray arms whirl water to reach every dish, everywhere... and filtered hot water is continuously circulated.

You get the same scrubbing action in all undercounter and portable models. So get rid of scouring pads, red hands and never-ending dirty dishes on countertops. Let us do your dishes. You'll love the results.

2 spray arms for total cleaning. Two full-size spray arms whirl water everywhere so dirt can't hide—no water-starved areas, and you can load dishes every-which-way.

For best performance in your new RCA WHIRLPOOL dishwasher, use a superior detergent like Cascade.

Lazy water sloshes... our water scrubs. We make water work by putting it under pressure, and aiming it with jet-spray nozzles. These jet-sprays work like a nozzle on a hose—shoot out water to pry off foods.

We keep filtered water moving. Hot, sudsy water is constantly circulated through our exclusive self-cleaning filter. No need to scrape or pre-rinse dishes. In a dishpan, hot and sudsy water is through long before you are.

Choice of 9 decorator colors.

I'm not a meticulous housekeeper. Worse, I never wish to be. Once an impeccable house becomes the most important thing in my life, my days of willy-nilly and roses are over. Not to mention my family's. The trouble with perfect housekeepers is that they make life perfect Hades for everyone else who has to live with them.

Humph, you may say—it's all very well for me to play my housework by ear, but what about the children? Do I want Cindy to be a sloppy slattern? Don't be silly. Cindy knows that disorganization is strictly a grownup's privilege—something to yearn and burn for like lipstick and strapless gowns. Cindy will be a good little organized girl and toe the line in school and college and maybe even career, and someday she'll be a housewife, too—hallelujah—and if she wants to wash clothes at midnight, flirt with mockingbirds on the windowsill, check on the tulips, no one will ever be the wiser. Unless she's a blabbermouth, like her mother. ■

Strong and Long by Helena Rubinstein

At last...a nail hardener for the entire nail.
Quickly absorbed.
Makes nails strong so they can grow long.

And no shields needed.

Nails breaking, peeling, splitting, chipping? Too frail to grow long? Now your nails can be strengthened to grow beautiful...with Helena Rubinstein's remarkable new Strong and Long.TM

It's different from anything you've tried before. Strong and Long is quickly absorbed; your nails actually gain added strength as you apply. And it works on the whole nail at once, not just the tips. Forget shields. There's no stinging. No unpleasant anything. Nothing to do but brush on.

The minute your nails are dry, they're ready for polish. That simple. So why buy trouble? Strengthen and condition your nails with Helena Rubinstein's Strong and Long nail hardener. Then, see how they grow.

HOW TO BUY WOOD FURNITURE

Some shoppers feel that wood furniture is easier to buy than upholstered furniture because there are fewer hidden assets. This is generally true but case goods (as wood furniture is called) have their own problems. To avoid them, one furniture manufacturer suggests the following six quality tests for wood furniture.

1. Rock a chest, dresser, or bookcase to see if it wobbles. If it does, it is flimsily made.
2. Slip out a drawer to see if it glides freely. If it binds, screeches, or grinds, it has been improperly installed. The four sides should be solidly joined and the glides (which now are made of metal or plastic, as well as wood) should work smoothly so that the drawer opens and closes smoothly and easily.
3. Swing out a door to see how it hangs. It will not drag on the bottom of a chest if it has been properly installed.
4. Feel between drawers for dust panelings. These panels seal the drawer compartments into individual storage sections.
5. Check on the joints in drawers to see if they are made with interlocking dovetailing. This makes for rigid construction.
6. Look carefully along tops of drawers and doors to make sure they are properly aligned and have no open gaps along the edges.

To these sound suggestions we would add some of our own quality checks. But remember, each manufacturer has his own method of producing furniture. Materials and technology are constantly changing. This is one more reason why it is important to buy from a reliable furniture store, where the store management itself will stand behind the construction of the furniture it sells.

Most of the structural details in furniture are hidden. Only in some of the most modern furniture designs do joints... and even nuts and bolts... become a part of the particular piece of furniture's exterior design. As a matter of fact, that is one characteristic of good modern design.

But there are some checks that you can make on more traditional furniture, where the construction is less obvious.

1. Chairs, tables, and chests should stand squarely on the floor. Because a crooked floor can work against this, some furniture has self-leveling glides to correct an uneven surface. When the furniture is put in place, the glides can be raised or lowered to make up for unevenness in the floor.
2. Drawers should be neither too tight nor too loose. If a drawer seems to stick, ask the furniture salesman to correct it before the unit is delivered. Any reputable furniture store will do this. (Remember, however, that you usually do not get the furniture sample that you see in the furniture store. For this reason, the same checks that you make when buying furniture should be made when it is delivered. Then any adjustments can be made that are necessary.)
3. The finish should be smooth to the touch and the stain or varnish should be even, without light or dark spots. (Remember that there are many variations in wood grain and color.) Do not assume that all furniture is finished on the back, often it is not. Nor are all tall pieces of furniture, such as china cabinets, finished on top.

In buying dining room furniture particularly, check the chairs, the tabletop, and the drawers of any storage pieces. The chairs must stand up under a great deal of daily wear. For this reason, good craftsmanship is particularly important in joining the chair's various parts.

Dowel joints are probably the most common method of joining and are quite strong. The dowel is a hardwood peg. This peg is then fitted into connecting holes in the pieces to be joined.

Some dowels are grooved to keep air pockets from forming in the glue and these are superior to smooth dowels. Additional reinforcements for points of greatest strain are corner blocks. These are often used to strengthen the corners of seat frames and tabletops.

Another type of joint used in dining room furniture... and this one for the tabletop... is the tongue-and-groove joint.

Very few tabletops are made from one piece of wood. For one thing, it would be difficult to find a piece of wood large and perfect enough to serve as a tabletop. Then too, such a large piece of wood would be likely to warp or split. This is why tabletops are generally made by joining several boards together by a simple tongue-and-groove. (A tongue-like projection is cut on one board to fit into a groove the same size on the board next to it.)

Tables also should be braced at points of stress. Corner braces give added strength, as do stretchers between the table legs. These stretchers are almost always up under the tabletop and make what is called the "apron" of the table. The apron should be as carefully finished as the rest of the table.

Are there extra leaves for the dining room table? Do they store within the table itself? How do they work? How does the table look with the leaves in? Are they finished in the same manner as the table itself? Do chair and table legs have sliding metal glides? Do large and heavy storage pieces come with casters for easier moving?

Another extra, growing in popularity and use, is the option of plastic tops for tables and chests. One reason for this is that plastics today can be made to look and feel so much like wood that it is almost impossible to tell the difference. If the furniture you buy is going to get hard wear, you might prefer a plastic top. These are often available to match the color and grain of the wood used in the table or chest you are buying. In many instances, the same furniture can be ordered with or without the plastic tops.

Most of the construction points that qualify dining room furniture as sound, also apply to bedroom furniture. Whether you are buying dining room or bedroom furniture, be sure that you carefully check on these details. ■

IT'S TIME TO RELAX

Reclining chairs have given that popular old pastime of "just sittin'" a new lease on life. Now you can sit straight up, recline with feet up, or even lie down for a quick catnap. Once relegated to the den as a "man's" chair, recliners are now being made girl-size and manufacturers have learned to hide the bulky mechanisms and trim down lines. They're upholstered in the newest materials and designed to go with specific styles of decoration (contemporary, Mediterranean, traditional, English, etc.). It's our guess that recliners will be warmly welcomed additions even in the best-dressed living rooms from now on.

this contemporary pop-up recliner offers you comfort by the cushionful. The simple-to-operate handle at its side allows you to adjust the reclining position and footrest without sacrificing a moment's ease. About $210. By James, Inc.

a Queen Anne style chair has the elegance of a traditional wing chair, the ease of a recliner. As shown, below, in both the upright and the reclining positions, it never loses its slim-lined look. May be used in an English as well as in a country French setting. About $149. By Burris Chair Company.

here's a recliner that guarantees relaxation during even the most tense TV thriller! It features an exposed-carved wooden frame with a grillwork design on its sides. About $152. From Berkline's Mediterranean Collection.

We invite you to rock or re'ax in the La-Z-Boy Chair—a tailored recliner with a soft, tufted back. It's equipped with a Comfort Selector (side lever) which permits you to position the chair level and footrest effortlessly. From La-Z-Boy's Charter Group. About $179.

the Patrician lounge has a carved walnut frame, with a cane back and reversible seat cushion. Danish in feeling, the chair is styled "off-the-floor." $239 and up. From BarcaLounge.

deep-tufted English wing-back styling and an extra wide loose-cushion seat are just two of the wonderful features of this Stratolounge recliner. Dressed in attractive vinyl, it has Magi-Control—a push-button approach to reclining. It even rocks! About $169.95. By Futorian.

Aren't you too young to feel so tired?

You notice it day in, day out...even the simplest chores seem to be just too much for you. You get up tired and you go to bed tired. And your mirror tells you that you look as tired as you feel.

Of course, there's no single reason for that tired look and feeling. But if you're one of the 40 million women between the ages of 15 and 45 who have a period every month, here is one of the most common reasons why you can have that needless tired feeling. Doctors have proved this beyond doubt: As a woman, you may lose much more blood-iron every month than you replace through the foods you eat. Thus, without being aware of it, you can lose energy-producing iron. It is this loss of precious blood-iron that can leave you always looking and feeling tired.

Medical Authorities Say: Women Need Twice As Much Iron

Yes, even if you're only 5 feet 2, you need twice as much iron every day in your diet as your 6-foot husband. It isn't likely that you eat as much iron-rich foods, so you may develop the kind of iron deficit that drains you of your energy and youth. Why risk having the kind of iron-poor blood that can make you very much less than the woman and wife you could be?

Erase That Tired Look From Your Face And Get Rid Of That Tired Feeling

Don't let the periodic drain of precious blood-iron rob you of a full measure of living, when it's so easy to replace any iron that is lost. Put extra iron in your blood by taking Geritol regularly to make up for your monthly losses. Remember, if you've been taking vitamins and still feel tired, vitamins alone can't restore blood-iron. But Geritol can. Just two Geritol tablets, or two tablespoons of Geritol liquid, contain twice the iron in a pound of calves' liver. In only one day Geritol iron is in your bloodstream carrying strength and energy to every part of your body.

Check with your doctor, and if iron-poor blood is your problem, take Geritol every day. Feel stronger fast...in seven days, or money back from the makers.

Pale, Iron-Poor Blood

Geritol Iron-Rich Blood
Geritol, with its important supply of iron can change iron-poor into good, rich, red blood.

IF YOU COULD ONLY

that was our vacation record allowance . .
and here's our list for great listening

You know that old game . . . what ten books would you take on a desert island? Suppose we change books to records and see how much variety, how much durable, listenable music one can cover on a budget of ten LPs. It's not an exercise; it's a sure way to become very thoughtful about the music that will mean the most to you for the longest time. You weigh the charming romanticism of Tchaikovsky against the romanticism and grandeur of Beethoven; the colorfulness of Debussy, Ravel, Strauss against the magic inventiveness of Mozart; the gaiety of show albums against the ever-new freshness of great concertos. It's like choosing friends for a camping trip. You realize that the person who is most amusing for an evening may be a disaster for two weeks!

Here are our ten recommendations for LPs to live with, a steady diet, varied, enriching . . . and compact enough to take along with you for a two-week holiday. You may not like all of them on first hearing; you may want to do some substituting. But if you'll live with them, listen to them frequently, you'll be happy with most of them.

1. Bach: Concerto for Two Violins, Nathan Milstein and Erica Morini. And on the reverse side, you'll get Vivaldi: Two Violin Concerti with the same artists. Angel.

2. Mozart: Concerto No. 20, Artur Rubinstein soloist, Wallenstein conducting the RCA Orchestra. And, Haydn: Variations, again with Rubinstein and the same orchestra. Lots of music! An RCA Victor recording.

3. Schubert: Symphony No. 5, Fritz Reiner conducting the Chicago Symphony. And on the reverse side, Schubert: Symphony No. 8, with the same artists. Two highly melodic and ever-fresh compositions. RCA Victor.

4. Beethoven: Symphony No. 5, Eugene Ormandy conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra. On the reverse, Mozart: Symphony No. 40 with the same group. Music you'll never tire of! A Columbia recording.

5. Chopin: Ballades 1, 2, 3, 4, Artur Rubinstein playing Chopin as only he can. RCA Victor.

6 and 7. Verdi: Requiem. Uses two of the ten but with the majestic music, the glorious voices of Leontyne Price, Jussi Bjoerling, Georgio Tozzi, and Rosalind Elias, it belongs on any list of music to live with. Fritz Reiner conducts the Vienna Philharmonic in this superb recording. RCA Victor.

8. Mahler: Symphony No. 5, Leonard Bernstein conducting the New York Philharmonic in a superb interpretation of this latter-day Romantic. Columbia recording.

9. Bartók: Miraculous Mandarin Suite, Ormandy conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra. Also, two other Bartók pieces, easy to listen to and like. Columbia.

10. Ives: Symphony No. 4, Leopold Stokowski conducting the American Symphony Orchestra in what is correctly described as a "World première of an American masterpiece." Parts of it will sound familiar, since Ives uses some of our folk music; parts will sound most unfamiliar, but you will be surprised how friendly it becomes after you've had several listenings! Columbia recording.

Want to push ironing out of your life?

Permanent Press keeps the creases in. RCA WHIRLPOOL washers and dryers have special cycles that take the wrinkles out!

Washing clothes in hot water removes the wrinkles as well as the dirt. But you can put new wrinkles in when heated clothes are spun. That is why our special settings for Permanent Press introduce the cold water gradually before the spinning cycle. This gives your Permanent Press clothes the care garment manufacturers recommend. They are never crushed or spun while hot. No one else makes washers that work this way. Just us.

RCA WHIRLPOOL dryers add the finishing touch, with a gentle tapering off of the heat until clothes are finally tumbled for 10 minutes in unheated air. So—nothing overheats, wrinkles can't be baked in. Result: you've let the dryer do the ironing. Happy thought?

More good things you get with RCA WHIRLPOOL

Super-Wash Cycle—Gets extra dirty clothes clean with a special prewash... then soak... followed by a regular washing... all automatically. You don't have to come back to the washer to reset dials or add detergent.

Nationwide Service—Whirlpool franchise TECH-CARE® service is available across the nation to protect the quality built into every RCA WHIRLPOOL appliance.

Magic Clean® Filter—The lint filter that cleans itself—automatically. And, it's tucked deep inside the machine, out of sight. Who wants to pick lint? It's so unladylike.

3 Separate Speeds—Flexibility to wash everything from sneakers to chiffon or washable wools. And, there's a separate water level control for small "hand wash" loads.

Moisture Minder—Makes doubly sure your clothes are dried just the way you like them. And, the dryer shuts off at the degree of dryness you select.

YOU AND YOUR AUTOMOBILE

By William J. Toth

In the year 205 B.C. an all-male Roman Senate passed a law prohibiting women from driving chariots. This recorded incident could very well have been the birth of the term "women drivers." And probably the reason for this prohibition was the lack of strength on the part of the women to handle the horses, a claim still made today, but for different reasons.

If there were not some serious aspects to the whole problem of driving, we could very easily accept the discussion as a humorous variation of the centuries-old battle of the sexes. Unfortunately the tragic losses we suffer from traffic accidents on our highways command serious attention.

WHY THE JOKES?

Psychologically there are perhaps numerous reasons why comedians, writers, cartoonists, and millions of other males feel it is open season on the female species. One of the more obvious reasons in drawing attention to others is to hide one's own deficiencies. Another is that the woman driver is easily identifiable and this tends to draw undue attention.

Of course, the effect of this has been so great that most women get behind the steering wheel feeling they are inferior before they ever move the car. It's probably even greater than the feeling the average male gets when he is faced with the complex task of running a home. Fortunately women have done remarkably well in a world they never made and in spite of severe criticism disguised many times as humor. Much of this male criticism creates more heat than light on the subject. Meanwhile the woman driver continues to enjoy a good driving record and a reduced insurance premium.

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

According to statistics available, women have a better driving record than men. However, the National Safety Council has sounded an alarm that the accident rate of women has been increasing at a surprising rate and in a few years may be the equal of the male rate. For the first time the insurance industry has asked for a premium rise for female drivers from 17 through 20 years of age, and in the same request asked that the male penalty be extended from 17 through 25 to 30 years.

Males make up 60 percent of our drivers and are involved in over 77 percent of the accidents, which leaves 23 percent of the accidents to the women who represent 40 percent of the driving population. As is pointed out rather strongly, it is believed that the greater exposure or miles driven by the male accounts for the difference. Unfortunately no valid studies have proved this. Few if any studies have been made to match men against women. However, during World War II a study was made comparing men and women who drove the same trucks, over the same roads, during the same periods for the same number of miles. This study did take into account the exposure of the two groups. The women had a significantly better accident record. No expansion was made of the study.

THE MISTAKE THE MALE MAKES

There is a distinct difference between being a good driver and possessing the mechanical knowledge to service and maintain an automobile. You do not have to be an expert in mechanics to drive well.

The modern-powered automobile has narrowed the difference between sexes as far as brute strength needed to crank, steer, shift, and brake. The differences now are intelligence, training, common sense, and courtesy. No one has ever been able to prove that the male species has the market cornered on all of these.

What does it mean? MODERN DESIGN

Modern design is an expression of the 20th century ... its materials, manufacturing techniques, and tempo of life. Modern furniture is made specifically for people who drive cars, watch television, travel in jets, live in sprawling ranch houses or small, boxy apartments, and lack servants.

Modern designs are made to function. In fact, functionalism is one of the key words of the modern designer who determines appearance primarily by the way in which an object works.

Modern designers delete superfluous ornamentation; instead they emphasize line, proportion, color, finish, texture. Only that which is essential in terms of convenience, comfort, durability, economy, and lightness of weight remains.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN DESIGN

The acceptance of the machine as a tool for creating aesthetically pleasing objects is the starting point of modern design. The Victorians viewed the machine as nothing more than a means of reproducing traditional gewgaws cheaply. Art Nouveau, with its characteristic whiplash curve, asymmetric free-form shapes, and emphasis on organic forms, was the first real protest at the turn of the century against the endless reproduction of historical styles.

Simultaneously, a new technique for making furniture was being developed in Austria enabling long pieces of wood to be steamed and bent. This bentwood furniture developed by Michael Thonet eliminated intricate hand-carved joints and contours and led to the first mass production of furniture.

The focal point in the integration of design with the machine age was the Bauhaus school (1919-1933), one of the most vital influences in 20th century design. The aim of the Bauhaus was to teach students to unite art and industry.

The Bauhaus approach to a chair, a teapot, or a carpet was functional, straightforward, simple. Straight lines and geometric forms (especially rectangles and circles) are Bauhaus earmarks. Bauhaus ideas that were revolutionary at the time were the use of chrome tubing for furniture designs, stacking furniture created for easy storage, and highly polished surfaces relieved by texture rather than ornament.

Much furniture that came out of the Bauhaus is considered classic today. Some pieces have been in production since the 1920s, others have been reintroduced because of renewed appreciation.

The two outstanding furniture pioneers of the Bauhaus were Marcel Breuer and Ludwig Mies van der Rohe. Breuer developed the cantilevered tubular steel chair which has been the model of thousands of variations throughout the world. The furniture of Mies van der Rohe has timeless elegance. He is perhaps best known for his Barcelona chair designed in 1929. Mies developed furniture in accordance with the inherent properties of metal and was the first to utilize the spring qualities of bent-steel legs.

During the 1920s the French architect-painter Le Corbusier was designing chrome-plated steel furniture, inspired by French cubism.

The need to stop copying earlier styles, while emphasizing fitness of purpose, was making itself manifest in Scandinavia in the 1930s. The Scandinavians have been among the most important contributors to the modern idiom. Two of the giants are Alvar Aalto, who translated the steel tubing of the functional style into Finnish pressed wood with a large degree of standardization, and the Dane, Hans Wegner, whose chairs are characterized by refinement of shape, sculptural details, and an understanding of the inherent qualities of the wood.

Since the turn of the century Americans also have been making enormous contributions to the concepts of modern design. Frank Lloyd Wright was developing the open plan and the horizontal massing of his Prairie House, simplifying ornament, and making a strong case for the use of natural materials.

In America in the 1940s Charles Eames and Eero Saarinen developed chairs that could be molded or stamped out of plastic in much the same way that an automobile is stamped out by a die press.

HOW TO CHOOSE A NEW DOCTOR

When a family has to establish a home in a new and unfamiliar place, it is faced with many problems, emotional and physical. Parents not only have to get the children relocated in school, but they must make new contacts of all kinds just in the course of everyday living to fulfill the family's needs. Since they are keepers of the family's health, one of the first important decisions is the selection of a physician.

Many people select a family doctor on the basis of personal acquaintance or knowledge of his reputation in the community. Others follow the recommendations of relatives or friends. This personal approach to picking a physician often works out well, as people who like each other frequently have the same taste when it comes to liking other people. A friend's recommendation, however, can sometimes backfire, for not every patient is knowledgeable about his doctor's training, qualifications, and upon occasion, integrity.

When you are looking for a new doctor, the local hospitals or county medical society can be of great assistance in guiding your selection. The administrative office of any hospital will be glad to give you the names of several internists or general practitioners on their staff. The hospital and county medical society are also good sources of information about medical group practice or any medical specialist you might need.

THE FIRST VISIT

Once you have selected your doctor, arrange to meet him. Whether you are well or ill, it is advisable to have a get-acquainted visit with him in his office—and perhaps even to have him give you a complete physical examination. Knowing what his patient is like in good health gives the physician a greater advantage in diagnosing and treating that person in times of illness.

Ask your new doctor how you can reach him whenever you might need him. Find out whether he has another doctor covering his practice when he is away. Have him advise you what to do in an emergency if he cannot be reached right away.

He will probably want to have your family's medical records transferred from your former doctor to him and will provide you with a form to sign for that purpose. In most cases, the transferral must be requested in writing over your signature for the protection of your privacy.

Try to discuss in advance of your initial office visit—with the doctor's nurse or secretary or the doctor himself—any questions you have about charges, method of payment, or insurance coverage. You can avoid embarrassment, knowing what to expect.

IN AN EMERGENCY

If an emergency arises before you have selected a doctor of your own, or if you do not know anyone who can give you his doctor's telephone number, don't panic—you can get help. Many communities throughout the United States have a telephone listing of physicians who will take emergency calls under "Doctor's Emergency Service." Frequently, the local county medical society will have a list of doctors who are available in emergencies. The Yellow Pages directory in most towns contains a complete listing of doctors' names under "Physicians & Surgeons (M.D.)."

If you are alone, you can always telephone the police or the nearest hospital for help. You can even tell the telephone operator what the trouble is, giving her your name, address, telephone number.

YOU MUST LIKE YOUR DOCTOR

A good doctor-patient relationship requires the same ingredients for success as a good marriage—trust, respect, honesty, patience, thoughtfulness, tolerance, understanding, and most importantly, a great liking. If you do not think your new doctor has this kind of "chemistry" for you, or if you are not satisfied with him after a short period under his care, don't be afraid to change.

A doctor should be, and usually is, mature enough to realize that some people, for various reasons, will be dissatisfied with him. Sometimes it is simply a mismatch of personalities. If something comes up that bothers you about your doctor, discuss it with him—do not keep quiet and smolder. A frank discussion may lead to a better mutual understanding, possibly avoiding an unnecessary, unwarranted, and unsettling change of doctors.

Knowing a doctor who will care for you and your family brings a real sense of security to your new life in your new town.

SPRING HAS SPRUNG

IN ALL DIRECTIONS

Wake up winter sleepyheads. It's spring! Time to pop up like a crocus—with fresh, bright-eyed ideas for your home. Your fancy turns to redecorating? Head straight inside and give your winter-weary house a larky new look. In the mood for remodeling? Push out. Sprout up. Go every which way. Want to tickle the earth? March outside with green-thumb ideas to make your garden verdant, bloomy, prettier than ever. It's spring!

An airy stairway, a splash of white—and suddenly it's fresh as all outdoors. Remodeling means many things—from a touch-up job involving only paint, wallpaper, fabrics, and a little construction work to an all-out gutting and rebuilding.

The real secret of successful remodeling lies not in how much you do but in knowing—before you start—exactly what you want to achieve. That's how interior designer Joan Neville, with a bright mental image of the kind of house she wanted, turned this dingy "little nothing" beach cottage on Balboa Island, California, into a sophisticated, cosmopolitan year-round house.

Step one consisted of removing the heavy wood stairs and neo-nautical nylon fencing and replacing them with an iron spiral staircase and rods. Next the small, too-quiet rooms were opened up with gallons of white paint covering the paneling turned dark by a quarter century of sea air. (Editor's note: not just any old white paint but white warmed with the addition of burnt umber, black, and blue.) Finally, the house was ready for Mrs. Neville's interesting collection of furniture and accessories.

INSIDE

Furniture is a mixture of French and Italian antiques, reproductions, and some modern pieces like the currently popular Parsons or T-square dining table. One part of the remodeling project was to slim down the heavy moldings that were around the corner cabinets in the dining area.

Luminous white walls, matching draperies that filter the strong California sunlight, wall-to-wall gold carpeting, and the elegant tracery of a black, iron staircase provide a more than adequate background for the blue-green print on the furniture, the colorful possessions and paintings.

Information: Barbara Lenox Photographer: Fritz Taggart Black-and-white photos by Studio One

Removing the staircase (left) opened up the window behind it, gained six feet of space. Here's where designer Joan Neville practiced so-called occult balance. Instead of flanking the fireplace with a pair of lounge chairs she placed a sofa, coffee table, and open-arm chairs to the left of it, then balanced this heavy grouping quite unexpectedly with the large peacock chair and screen. Furnishings are mostly "finds" from auctions, sales, vacation travels.

Almost unrecognizable is a small porch ("before" below, "after" at right) that was turned into a charming, worldly study. Draperies that match walls are always a good space maker. White in this case is used throughout the entire first floor. French Provincial armoire, an old one, was a rationalization according to Mrs. Neville. "I bought it because we needed additional closet space and it seemed cheaper and easier to buy an antique than build something new. That's quite logical, isn't it?"

Closet space for this room was borrowed from the adjacent garage. The wall was knocked out and the closet built into it. Now there's just enough closet space with enough garage space to accommodate a station wagon. Again, there's a fine sense of balance at work. Bed, windows, and a pair of pictures flanked by a pair of nightstands would be dull. Instead, Joan used a draped table and a fairly high-backed chair.

When it comes to remodeling, there are a number of directions you can go. Instead of abandoning the house you have for something larger, there are ways and means of enlarging what you have, namely, going out, going up, and going all around the house, looking for likely spots to add living space and years to the life expectancy of the house. Here are some of our favorite examples of house stretching.

OUT

Wing and deck meet spring halfway. The Seclow family of Westport, Connecticut, made the living room of their Techbuilt house a master bedroom and added a new living room in a separate wing. The new entry, living room with trussed roof, and deck disguise garage underneath.

New addition has wide roof overhang to shelter glass walls. Roof truss became dominant design element and was further emphasized by placing a clear skylight at the apex of the roof.

New deck over garage has sunken garden for plants and sculpture. The new work visually ties the old garage to the house.

Plan shows new room built out from original house.

SPRING HAS SPRUNG OUT

Go out, go out wherever you are! You don't have to go to the lengths shown in the house on the previous pages where the new addition is a satellite of the old house, attached by a long passage. Here, in the house owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Cardoza, of Westport, Connecticut, the addition was placed against the existing house. The same architect as in the other go-out house, Lawrence Michaels, came up with an entirely different solution to fit this family's requirements. The appearance of the front of the house was completely transformed by adding the extra rooms. In the rear of this new wing, a deck was built around a large tree. The changes were made at a much lower cost than building a new house or buying. One of the major assets of this house was its lovely setting, which would have been hard to equal anywhere else.

SPRING HAS SPRUNG

UP

Up you go into the wide blue yonder, especially if you don't have much land to expand on. This small house was enlarged by adding a second story. The exterior was then given a general overhauling to turn the original into the pleasant Colonial it now is.

A new entry hall was built across front of existing entry and leads to new living room. The change camouflages old house and adds style. House and new wing were painted matching putty to blend old section and the added modernization.

Before photo shows house as it was before new wing was added. It had the typical look of thousands of postwar ranch houses of the 1950s.

At rear of house new living room opens to large deck built around and shaded by large old tree. Large chimney belongs to dramatic fireplace built in living room, with glass window walls beside it to give view of deck, lawn, and pond.

Interior of new wing has access to the deck with wide glass doors. View of the grounds is seen beyond the deck and can be enjoyed from inside the house as well as out.

Plan, at left, shows how addition partially surrounds the old house. Existing den is now near new entry. Sewing room, family room, and kitchen, beyond the den, are not shown on the drawings here.

This house was enlarged by extending the first-story wing and adding a second floor over it, to provide a master bedroom suite for Dr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Hitzrot. The exterior was then redone in Colonial style with shutters. Patio, reached by glass doors, was added off the family and dining areas.

Second story, with master bedroom suite, dressing room, bath, and sewing room, was added to one-story house. First floor was extended to enlarge family room and dining room area, as well as entrance hall.

SPRING
SPRUNG

EVERY WHICH WAY

An almost unbelievable transformation was achieved in this little house by using the original as a basis for the overall changes.

An ugly duckling spreads its wings and becomes a beauty. Bought at a probate sale, this house now boasts a 22-foot-high living room with a fireplace and a pleasant redwood exterior that contrasts drastically with the plain little house it once was. The owners, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alcorn, of Novato, California, and the designer, Richard Clements Jr., worked from sketches rather than working drawings, so the house evolved step by step instead of being completely planned from the beginning. The owners did a lot of the carpentry and electrical work themselves. They couldn't contract the work because they only had the rough sketches to work from. The house was completely changed. A new living room, dining room, and kitchen were added. The old living room became a small den. Another old room became the master bedroom. The former (continued)

Fireplace wall, above, surrounded by glass looks out on patio and swimming pool, painted black to reflect house at night.

The impressive fireplace of pre-cast concrete is paneled with redwood. The expanse of glass is broken by metal stripping that repeats the framing lines of the wooden structural pieces.

Abrupt entryway of old house, top, was changed to inviting patio-deck area. Pool patio, at end of house, is exposed aggregate with wood divider strips. New redwood shake roof fits in with woodsy feeling of site. Redwood siding and old trees make house and its site congenial companions.

The dining room, raised on a platform and floored with quarry tile, is nicely set off, but not separated, from the living room. The kitchen at rear can be closed off with louvered screens, or "erased" by dousing lights. The lowered ceiling gives feeling of intimacy to this area.

Thoughtful, original detailing of both glass and wood members gives an air of distinction to the house structure.

basement and attic were incorporated into the new height of the living room. The high windows are shaded by an overhang and wooden shutters provide privacy. Massive 14-inch fir beams extend throughout the house. Mr. Alcorn rasped the edges to soften their lines. Mrs. Alcorn spent hours hand rubbing the stain on all the redwood paneling. Two pairs of fir beams in the living room extend beyond the room and are squared off beyond the roof line. The living room rafters drop between the kitchen rafters to form an intricate joint. The rafters are mitered to emphasize the roof peak. They also extend beyond the roof line. Outside, random redwood board-and-batten siding was used. Even the garden benches were designed to fit in with the structural details of the house and integrate the house with its setting. Grape-stake fence extends the rough, natural feeling of the house. All this from that plain little house, which proves that successful remodeling is a matter of adding the right thing, the right way.

The placement of wood column at foot of wide stairway from living room to entry is bizarre but agreeable. Bookshelves partially line stairs and one wall of living room. The light painted areas above shelves and on the ceiling between rafters brighten the entire room.

SPRING

AROUND

1. Typical older-house window has coordinated stripe and plaid for pleated shade and shirred curtain. Draped table to match is the finishing touch.

2. Door and window designed as one have a French air. We like the taut look of tied-back curtains at both.

Treatments could easily be reversed.

3. The so-called privacy window is always a problem. It's solved here with a short-skirted version of an Austrian shade in gingham check. Window frame and commode are "upholstered" to match.

4. Victorian goes avant-garde with a valance and jabot lined with a quaint flower-sprigged pattern. Shadowy stripe picks up the colors.

5. Picture window without a view is curtained simply with a printed houndstooth check.

Curved wood valance breaks up expanse of fabric.

6. Another picture-window idea has shelves in front of curtains to make an abstract Mondrian-like pattern. On them is a collection of fabric-covered file boxes.

Don't just buy furniture—collect it!

By Vera D. Hahn

Collected with a connoisseur's eye, the living room (right and above left) has a degree of English formality due to elaborately valanced windows; the elegant, symmetrical grouping of Queen Anne chairs (Henredon), table, and mirror; and the arrangement of gilded wall sconces over the fireplace. Color scheme is a variation of red-white-blue. Flamestitch fabric on camelback love seat by Pennsylvania House is also used as a table cover. The tea table is by Drexel, wing chair by Henredon, and piecrust table by Century.

Family room (lower left) is casually collected with a knowing mixture of Provincial and contemporary styles—of wood and painted finishes. Early American love seat and wing chair echo red of living room, are from Heywood-Wakefield. The contemporary brunch-height table and matching chairs from Thomasville are useful all through the day, not just at mealtime. The large stereo-TV cabinet is by Baumritter; its top works as a buffet while it serves as an entertainment center.

Much newer than trying to acquire a whole room full of matching pieces is to collect furniture piece by piece—exactly as you would antiques. This assembled look—this uncontrived mixture of styles, finishes, woods—makes for a room that looks lively and lived in. Too much matching (a three-piece upholstered suite with wood pieces of similar design and finish) may be a mistakeproof way of furnishing but it's hardly an exciting one. To prove our point we found a house (designed by William Thompson, A.I.A., for builder Joseph P. Lenny, Cherry Hill, N. J.) and then shopped the most recent furniture markets with interior designer Renny Saltzman, A.I.D. The house has the English look—the new look in furniture.

*T*he red-white-and-blue color scheme of the house is softened and varied to rose, gold, and blue in the master bedroom (below). In the sunny window overlooking the terrace is a velvet-covered chaise longue (Heritage). White table and chairs (from Gallo) on the terrace are perfect for breakfast à deux. The double dresser is from Henredon.

*U*pholstered headboard and a fanciful canopy (upper right) that follows the slant of the ceiling add variety to master bedroom. Tambour-front desk by Drexel placed near bed avoids monotony of nightstands. Amusing contrast to the predominantly English and American furniture is a Biedermeier desk chair (Vanleigh); chest by Henredon.

*D*aughter's room (lower right) is done in improbable colors: red, white, blue, plus kelly, pink, and yellow. Minus some of the more personal accessories this might make a good room for overnight guests. A pair of contemporary daybeds and chests (Founders) are mixed with a French Provincial table desk and ladder-back chair (Basic-Witz).

OLÉ

By VIRGINIA T. HABEEB

Our Spanish kitchen has the ingredients of a good kitchen: practical plan, work-saving appliances, easy-care materials, well-planned storage.

Keep these same ingredients in mind when you remodel or build. Here's how: Plan a compact work area—small in size, every inch of space utilized with equipment, counter area and storage. Splurge on appliance and cabinet features that will mean a lot to you in terms of efficiency and convenience. Add the decorating elements that make it yours personally. Taking our cue from the elegant Mediterranean tone of the cabinets, we added practical, solid vinyl flooring in an exquisite Renaissance tile design... a rustic "brick wall" of fiber-glass masonry panels... Mediterranean pottery, light fixture, and tablecloth. Olé!

This plan shows how compact kitchen area was planned for easy work flow.

Slotted, roll-out shelves are a great idea for storing your canned foods.

Ample counter space surrounding sink assures you plenty of spread-out room.

Here's an idea that makes sense. Trash bin conveniently slides out from directly beneath the cutting board.

Wood cutting surface—a kitchen must.

Fruit and vegetable bins belong near sink.

Practical and beautiful. Spanish mood was created by warm tones of cabinets, Mediterranean furnishings and accessories.

SO YOU'RE LEARNING TO COOK

be a lamb and bake a gay, coconut-covered lamb cake for Easter! All you need is cake mix, packaged frosting and a few goodies for trimmings. The trick is in the cutting and assembling and you may need an assist from mother.

- 1 package white or yellow cake mix
- 2 packages fluffy white frosting mix
- 1 raisin or currant
- Candied cherry
- 1 large marshmallow
- 1½ cups shredded coconut
- Tiny, colored gumdrops

1. Grease two 9-inch layer-cake pans. Dust with flour until well coated. Shake out excess flour.

2. Heat oven to 350° F.

3. Prepare cake mix, following directions on package. Pour batter into prepared pans, dividing it evenly.

4. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until top of cake springs back when lightly touched with fingertip. Remove from oven. Place on wire cake racks.

5. Let cakes stand in pans 10 minutes. To remove them from pans, shake pan gently, using pot holders to check that cake is loose in pan. Put an inverted wire cake rack or large dinner plate on the cake. Grasp cake pan and top rack or plate firmly with both hands. Turn upside down. Cake should drop out.

6. Lift the cake pan from the cake. Put cake rack back on cake and turn over again. Remove top cake rack or dinner plate. Cool cake completely.

7. While cake cools, prepare frosting mix according to package directions.

8. To make the body, cut one layer in half. Place one half, top down on platter. Spread thinly with frosting. Place second half, bottom side down on frosting.

9. To make head, cut second layer in half. Turn bottom up. Measure 4½ inches along cut edge. Cut in 1½ inches.

10. Make a 2-inch-long cut straight up from end of first cut.

11. From end of second cut, cut straight out to curve of cake.

12. Cut a second piece like this from other half of layer. Put 2 pieces together with frosting between.

13. Frost straight-cut edge (the neck) of lamb's head. Place close against left side of body.

14. From one of the remaining pieces of cake measure 1¾ inches from curved side. Cut straight across.

15. Frost one side and place at right of body. This is the lamb's folded leg. Make sure cut sides of all pieces are evenly lined up.

16. Frost entire cake generously, using a spatula to round out corners for the shape of the lamb.

17. Place raisin or currant for eye and a slice of cherry for mouth.

18. Flatten marshmallow with your hand or with a rolling pin. Shape it into oval for an ear. Insert a wooden pick in one end. Push other end of wooden pick into the back of the lamb's head.

19. Sprinkle entire lamb generously with coconut. Arrange gumdrops around neck to form a garland.

Now! Glori-Fried Chicken!

Soup's the seasoning and the smooth cream gravy

1. Brown chicken in skillet

2. Add 1 can Cream of Chicken Soup

3. Cook 45 minutes

Glori-Fried Chicken

2 pounds chicken parts
2 tablespoons shortening
1 can Campbell's Cream of Chicken Soup
(Or Cream of Celery, Cheddar Cheese, Cream of Mushroom Soup)

In skillet, brown chicken in shortening. Pour off drippings. Stir in soup. Cover; cook over low heat 45 minutes. Stir now and then. Uncover; cook until desired consistency. 4 to 6 servings of delicious chicken and gravy.

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO ARBOR DAY?

When did you last celebrate Arbor Day? Really celebrate it—getting out, digging a hole, and planting a tree. But unfortunately for the cause of natural beauty, we've been so busy being affluent and so ingenious in devising more and more sophisticated patterns of leisure, that we've almost done in the goose that's been providing us with a steady supply of golden eggs. We are using more and planting fewer trees, while Arbor Day gathers dust in our mental Smithsonians.

We can no longer afford to wait and waste. Our cities will get bleaker, more unlivable, and the bulldozers will find that there's no more countryside to despoil for parking lots, used-car lots, and so-called building lots. As the population burgeons we're going to need more trees and open space for recreation in the cities and in the country, and we're going to need more timber than we now have for our housing requirements.

Our suburbs have been built with no consideration of the terrain and the plants it once supported. Ecology, the study of what happens to an area when man interferes with its terrain, water table, and plant life, is Greek to most builders. The land is leveled, shaved close to the skin of every living bit of green, and dwellings spring like mushrooms after a rain on rectangles of barren, unproductive subsoil.

And with all of our technological acumen and legendary ability to get things done, we can't even rid ourselves of the Dutch elm disease, which has spoiled our most beautiful old towns and reduced the stately American elm to a nearly extinct species. What a combination—public indifference, the ubiquitous bulldozer, and the elm bark beetle!

Are you beginning to see a grisly pattern in all this? Urban life becomes unbearable and the migrations to the suburbs begin. Once there, the same chaotic, planless leveling and asphaltting process that made the city unendurable begins all over again. What the bulldozers began, the hucksters of the migrations complete.

Cheap commercialism defaces the access roads to our exurbias, and the drive to the nearest orchard, lake, working farm, or woods gets longer and longer every year.

The improvement of our physical environment, the enhancement of its aesthetic value, is only one part of the tree-planting picture. The other half is economic. We need to improve the management of our forests our need for wood will also increase, if only for more and better houses. The 300-tree-per-person figure is not likely to decrease as we move upward on the population-growth charts.

Arbor Day can serve to focus public attention on various conservation, beautification, and reforestation programs. It can be the connecting thread that pulls together all the disparate strands of mass concern and indi-cessful Arbor Day observance. You must choose trees adaptable to local soil and climatic conditions and in harmony with any existing community tree-planting programs. The United States Forest Service, the State Forester, Soil Conservation Service, your extension forester or county agent, as well as a reliable local nurseryman can help you or your organization choose suitable trees. They can also guide you in correct planting procedures, tell you what tools you will need, and provide information on after-care.

What will you, your community, or organization do on Arbor Day? You might plant trees for community forests, church and school forests, and family forests. You can plant trees to reclaim eroded, gullied, useless land; for conservation plantings; recreation areas and parks. You can plant for windbreaks and shelter-belts or for Christmas-tree plantations. We need wildlife plantings, watershed protection, roadside and highway plantings.

It would take tomes to describe all the benefits a society derives from its trees and forests. Suffice it to say that the decline of many nations in the past has been linked with deforestation and its companions—erosion, lack of water, migration.

Arbor Day began in Nebraska, which in the first half of the 19th century was an almost treeless expanse. In 1885, thanks to the efforts of former Secretary of Agriculture Julius Sterling Morton, the Nebraska state legislature set aside April 22nd for the observance of a tree-planting day. During that first year over a million trees were planted in the formerly treeless state.

Today, every state but Alaska recognizes Arbor Day. Because of climatic differences it's not possible to set a uniform date for its observance across the country. Each state legislature or governor proclaims a day for the annual observance of the holiday. Many states have chosen the last Friday in April, others have set dates earlier or later in the spring. Some Southern states have fall or winter dates. Hawaii observes it in November. Although not a national legal holiday, Arbor Day is national in scope and significance—not a quaint custom but a practical way to replenish our timber resources and restore beauty to ravaged, neglected acres. Let's not forget it this year.

DENTISTS RECOMMEND POLIDENT 9-1 OVER ANY TOOTHPASTE

so that we will not run short of wood, water, forage, wildlife sanctuaries, and recreational facilities. In order to meet our wood requirements, current and future, we need to boost our tree-planting program tenfold.

Each person in his lifetime uses the wood produced by 300 mature trees. Our present population, which is around 194 million, is expected to jump to over 350 million people by the year 2000—only 34 years from now. It usually takes much longer than 34 years to grow saw timber. It is not unreasonable to predict that vidual inertia. Sometimes the planting of a single tree, if given adequate and dramatic publicity, will spark large-scale plantings for community, state, and ultimately national benefit. And at the very least, Arbor Day observances help to focus people's attention on trees for one day a year. Everyone must get into the act, from the federal down through state and local governments, through the public school system, to everyone old enough and strong enough to handle a shovel.

Careful planning is vital for a suc-

Want to forget about warping, rusting and rotting?

Remember aluminum siding.

Aluminum siding just doesn't rust. Ever. Doesn't split, crack, warp or rot, either. And because aluminum doesn't absorb or transmit moisture, there's no flaking or peeling of the finish.

With aluminum siding you don't have to paint your house every 3 or 5 years. The original finish will last for years and years. To clean the siding, just hose it down. Simple as that.

Aluminum siding insulates, too. It can help keep your home cooler in the summer, and warmer in the winter.

From every angle, aluminum siding is a natural. Natural beauty, strength and durability. And available in a whole range of modern designer colors.

If you can remember to get aluminum siding for your home, you can forget all the rest.

May your future be as bright as aluminum's.

with plenty of closet space. By placing the kitchen in a wing between the main structure and the garage, the rooms off the center hall are made exceptionally large. The living room, for example, is 14x26'. The authentically detailed paneling around the living room fireplace was copied from paneling in Early American homes, and has been painted Williamsburg blue. The living room extends the depth of the house, with windows on three sides. Simplicity in drapery style and accessories are in keeping with the style of the house in general. The kitchen repeats the colors of the living room. Bay windows in the breakfast room open onto terrace and lawn at rear. Near the breakfast room is a large dining room for special occasions and entertaining.

Wouldn't you like to have a toilet

American-Standard has it now. The Luxor.

Handsome, isn't it?

The handsome Luxor* toilet you see here comes with the new Vent-Away* toilet ventilator. Vent-Away whisks toilet odors down the drain before they have a chance to become bathroom odors. How does Vent-Away work? By siphoning air from the bowl. Quickly. Quietly. At a touch of the flushing button.

Another nice thing about the Luxor—it refuses to overflow. What's more, Luxor is one-piece, sparkling vitreous china (so easy to clean!). And it's whisper-quiet when you flush it. With never any handle jiggling needed!

REMODELING FACT SHEET

When adding a room or wing to your house, attention to certain key details ensures a sound job, both visually and structurally. On this page are some of the most important points. If you're doing the work yourself, use them. If you hire a contractor, show them to him.

For a smooth blend of old and new siding, existing clapboards are cut back to permit staggering and overlapping of new siding. The end of each clapboard falls on a stud.

On corner-board houses, boards can be retained and addition set back a few inches. This technique is often used where a flush joint would make the house look elongated.

To prevent uneven settlement between house and addition, soil under the addition must be thoroughly tamped. In many cases, this will be sufficient. But to play safe, the new foundation also should be tied to the old. In a slab (top) this can be done by setting reinforcing rods into the old slab before new concrete is poured. Similar technique works with poured concrete foundations (center). With concrete block, chiseling out existing blocks makes possible alternating of new and old blocks.

In brick or brick-veneer construction, alternating end bricks may be chiseled out of existing wall and new bricks inserted. Select new bricks to match old in size and color.

To avoid removing old brick, new wall may be butted against old if the new wall is set back as with corner-board wood houses. This avoids unsightly mortar joint at corner.

Joining a wood addition to a brick or brick-veneer house can cut foundation cost. Wood clapboards may be set flush with existing brick wall. Joint is covered with wood batten.

If wood batten strip appears unsightly, wood addition may be set back and new siding butted against the brick. Addition is joined to house by double stud against masonry.

In most modern homes you'll find...

familiar scenes like this, and a Honeywell Thermostat. Your Honeywell Thermostat contributes much to your comfort year after year. Most homes with automatic heat have at least one Honeywell Thermostat.

We've designed our thermostats, like the Honeywell Round above, to stay free from trouble. It's reliable and accurate. The handsome decorator cover snaps off so you can paint it to match your wall. It has a picture window dial, large numerals, and separate temperature and setting scales... all features which make it easier to read, easier to use.

But don't be fooled. A Honeywell Thermostat on your wall doesn't mean you have Honeywell controls on your entire heating or cooling system. Be sure you get all-Honeywell controls when you buy or build a home or replace your present system. Nothing performs as well as a matched control system. And a complete Honeywell control system needn't cost one cent extra.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON LUMBER

When you visit your lumberyard, do you talk the dealer's language? If not, you probably pay too much for the lumber.

Take the job of framing two extra rooms in a basement, for example. One weekend remodeler needed 800 board feet of 2x4s for studs and a few 2x6s for door headers. He paid $145 for Kiln-Dry Construction-grade fir instead of $90 for Standard and Better, which would have served just as well. Door-frame molding in sets costs $5.75 and $3.25 for sets with small defects. The latter could have been used because the molding was painted rather than stained. As part of some built-in cabinets, the same fellow bought A-A plywood at $5.50 per 4x8-foot sheet. A-D grade (continued)

Standard-grade framing lumber is economical to buy, serviceable for framing walls of houses and additions.

Construction grade has more knots and other defects than Select, but fewer than Standard or Utility.

Select Structural is recommended for purlins and beams that are left open to view.

Utility-graded framing members are economical, but must be limited to short-span applications.

(continued) at $3.30 would have served. If he had allowed Standard framing lumber to dry thoroughly, he could have gained the advantages of Kiln-Dry lumber. All told, his materials were $235 instead of $148.

LUMBER CLASSES

The kind of tree: Softwoods include cedar, cypress, fir, hemlock, pine, redwood, and spruce. Hardwoods include alder, basswood, beech, birch, cherry, gum, hickory, maple, oak, poplar, and walnut. Hardwoods go into furniture, paneling, flooring, and where appearance or wear is a prime requirement. (See chart page 81.)

Grade is another classification. Industry inspection bureaus apply strict rules in marking lumber according to quality. Price depends on the species of wood and its grade (determined by the quality), so learn to recognize both.

Finish grades may be clear (without knots) or nearly so and are used where appearance is important. Frequently A and B, the two highest grades after "clear," are combined and sold as B and Better. The C and D grades are more economical and may include small imperfections.

Stress grades: Select Structural (grade marked Sel-Str), Construction, Standard, and Utility are graded to assure structural strength for joists and roof planking. Select Structural is most often used for purlins and beams when the framing will be left open to view, or for decks and porches. The most common grade used for framing walls is Standard and Better. Utility lumber, when used for joists or rafters, is limited to short spans.

Boards in Select Merchantable (Sel-Mer) can be used in place of finish grades when painted. Standard and Utility grades are generally used where appearance is not important and strength is secondary, as in subflooring, sheathing, roofing.

Condition: Kiln-Dry (KD) lumber is scientifically dried at the mill to about 12 percent moisture. It costs about 30 to 35 percent more than Air Dry (AD) or green lumber. Consider paying the extra price for KD when shrinkage will cause such problems as opening seams in roof decks, nail popping, seam separation of plasterboard, and cracks between tiles. Green lumber may shrink as much as $\frac{3}{4}$ inch per foot as it dries. AD lumber reduces shrinkage problems, but several months' drying may be required to achieve this benefit.

Trim and molding are kiln-dried before final shaping. Solid imperfections in trim can be painted over, but use only clear moldings with stain and varnish, which show the grain.

HOW LUMBER IS SOLD

Lumber is sold by the board foot, a basic unit equivalent to a piece 12 inches long by 12 inches wide and one inch thick. So, 1x12s priced at $100/M (M = 1000 board feet) means you get 1000 lineal feet of lumber cut to a rough measure of 1 inch by 12 inches for $100. A 2x6, twice as thick and half as wide as a 1x12, also runs one board foot per lineal foot.

Measure a 2x4 in a lumberyard and you'll find it is only about $1\frac{5}{8}$ by $3\frac{5}{8}$. Rough boards and planks originally are cut to their full nominal dimension, but are finished to the smaller dimension you buy. The bigger the piece of lumber, the more that's trimmed off in finishing. Some manufacturers dry lumber before shipping, shrinking a 2x4 to 1½x3½.

There are two terms you may run into: The symbol S4S means "surfaced (or finished) 4 sides." Also, "quarter" or "¼ inch" describes some thicknesses for lumber, such as ¾ stock, nominally 1¼ inches thick but finished to about 1⅛.

Small boards, such as 1x2s and 1x3s, molding, and specialty shapes are usually sold by the running or lineal foot, instead of board feet.

Sheet wood products, such as plywood, fiberboard, flake board, and hardboard, are sold by the square foot in specific thicknesses. All dimensions are full; a ½-inch by 4x8-foot panel actually measures that size.

USE CATEGORIES

Solid lumber paneling comes in many shapes and may be clear or knotty. Price varies widely according to species, pattern, and grade, so shop around. Since paneling should be installed with matching grains, buy 15 to 25 percent more than the wall area to be covered.

Siding lumber should be naturally resistant to decay, such as the heartwood of cedar, redwood, or cypress. Properly applied, such woods don't need paint or stain except for appearance. Other woods can serve as siding if kept painted or stained. Siding with small imperfections that can be painted over will save you 20 to 40 percent on materials.

Fencing should be cut from naturally decay-resistant woods such as cedar, redwood, or cypress. Knots and rough finishes are quite acceptable. Grape stakes or cedar splits make a good-looking rustic fence but usually cost more. If cedar, redwood, or cypress fencing materials are not available, or are too costly in your area, try pressure-treated fir.

Hardwood lumber, except for flooring and window trim, shoe mold, and other sections, is seldom stocked in the average lumberyard. Instead, look for a yard that specializes in hardwood. Consider using hardwood-faced plywood or flake board. Even these specialty veneers are best purchased from a yard that stocks materials for cabinets and furniture. Flake board is less expensive than veneered plywood and will not warp when used for cabinet doors.

Structural plywood, usually Douglas fir, is manufactured in two types—exterior and interior. Exterior plywood can be used inside, but it costs about 10 to 15 percent more. Interior-type plywood must not be used where it is exposed to water.

Like lumber, fir plywood comes in many grades in both interior and exterior types (see chart, page 82).

Hardwood plywood has two primary uses—cabinetwork and paneling. The average lumberyard carries only a minimum stock of cabinet type, but paneling types are widely available. Hardwood paneling comes in various grades and types. Type I is rated waterproof; types II and III are water-resistant. Five grades range in appearance from "book-matched clear veneers" to "backing."

Plywood paneling may be prefinished with lacquer or scratch-resistant plastic when you buy it. Even more damage-resistant are the panels with a clear plastic sheet bonded to the surface. Matching color sticks of hard putty are available to fill nail holes after application.

LUMBER BUYING TIPS

- Buy from a "cash" (cash-and-carry) lumber dealer. Cash lumber is priced for pickup at the yard, so if you have a car-top rack or station wagon you also save the delivery charge.
- Since prices vary, even in one locality, shop around at different yards. Also, check the classified section of your Sunday newspaper for reduced prices and specials.
- Negotiate a "house price" when you are in the market for a large quantity of lumber. To attract builders, most yards offer discounts on bulk purchases. If you plan to buy several hundred dollars' worth of lumber, then look for a yard that will allow

- you a professional builder's discount.
- Shop the "shorts" and "odds-and-ends" pile for the items you need, then bargain for a special price on these otherwise wasted pieces.
- Select lower-grade lumber from which you can cut the lengths of good pieces you need. By knowing the exact sizes you need, you can cut out the good portions, use the remainder for kindling and pay less overall.
- Select the individual pieces you need. Every grade of lumber includes certain pieces that could rank in a higher grade. If you take "stack run," you get a mixture. Instead, select pieces from the stack yourself to get the top end of the grade.
- Consider buying used lumber, either at a wrecking site or from a yard that specializes in it. However, be very careful of two things: unseen nails and bolts that can wreck a saw blade, sending dangerous pieces flying; and soft spots, indicating decay.
- When buying plywood, don't buy a full 4x8-foot sheet if you need less. Check the cutting pile for sizes you can use; or have the yardman cut a piece the exact size you need (and pay a small cutting charge). Check cabinet shops or manufacturers for short lengths, cutoffs, and leftovers.
- Check surplus outlets for both used and new lumber and specialty items. Cabinets, doors, paneling, and odd lots of lumber are often available at sharply reduced prices. ■

Cooking with wine is as old as wine itself. Like herbs and spices, wine adds a final touch of subtle perfection and transforms the simplest dish into a dish of honor. A simple lamb stew becomes the elegant Ragout Agneau you see here by the addition of some tasty dry red wine. If you like to cook, you can cook with wine, for it is just that easy. Enjoy the full rich flavor, the tantalizing aroma that only wine can impart to foods. Recipes and tips begin on page 98.

CHEESE

Perhaps the most soul-satisfying accomplishment any homemaker can master is making homemade bread. Your grandmother knew it every Saturday morning. Maybe your mother did. You will too when that heavenly fragrance starts wafting its way through the kitchen . . . when you see the kids gobbling up those still-warm, butter-laden slices . . . and then the whole loaf suddenly disappears! We're all for reviving the age-old art of baking bread. Why not make it a custom in your family? Here are six wonderful breads to start you on your baking way. Recipes for them begin on page 92.

“For a touch of the islands, try Tuna Hawaiian. Toss together sliced onion, celery, green pepper, pineapple chunks, water chestnuts, and tuna. Top with chow mein noodles.”

“Springtime comes with a Garden Skillet Supper. Skillet-browned pork chops are flanked by thinly sliced carrots, Italian green beans, and small whole potatoes.”

BE SKILLFUL WITH A SKILLET

Skillet meals are the nicest thing that can happen to a busy cook. They're so quick, easy, and isn't it nice not to have to wash up all those pots! Best of all, skillet meals have a wonderful way of blending the flavors of foods cooked together—much the same way they do in a one-pot stew or casserole. Here are three of our favorite skillet meals. Two are cooked on top of the range, one in a portable skillet. Turn to page 91 for complete recipes.

Surround it with Saran Wrap.

Please. Never leave a ham in a cold dark lonely refrigerator with nothing on. It's indecent. Besides, the flavor starts going out when the light does.

Why let it happen when just a little Saran Wrap* can keep a ham full of flavor right down to the last slice? And you can see what's going on. That's important.

Why not surround all your good food with all new Saran Wrap? It seals in flavor and saves natural moisture better than any other wrap. Keeps everything looking and tasting beautiful.

In fact, all new Saran Wrap now behaves so beautifully and costs so little, it's perfect anywhere you use it.

- | | |
|--|----------------------------------|
| 2 tbs. butter or margarine | 1 can (13½ oz.) chicken broth |
| 1 c. thinly sliced onion | 2 tsp. soy sauce |
| 1 c. thinly sliced celery | ½ tsp. salt |
| 1 large green pepper, seeded and diced | 2 cans (7 oz. ea.) tuna, drained |
| 1 can (13½ oz.) pineapple chunks | ½ c. water chestnuts, sliced |
| 2 tbs. cornstarch | 1 can (3 oz.) chow mein noodles |

Heat butter or margarine in large skillet. Cook onion, celery, and green pepper until just soft. Drain pineapple chunks; reserve. Combine pineapple syrup and cornstarch; add chicken broth, soy sauce, and salt; pour into skillet. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Add tuna, water chestnuts, and pineapple; cover; heat until bubbly and piping hot. Serve with crisp fried noodles or hot cooked rice, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

ARROZ CON POLLO

- | | |
|--|--|
| 2 broiler-fryers (1½ lbs. ea.), cut up | ½ tsp. ground ginger |
| ¼ c. pure vegetable oil | ½ tsp. saffron |
| 1 c. chopped onion | 2 c. long-grain rice |
| 1 clove of garlic, mashed | ½ c. sherry |
| 2 cans (about 1 lb. ea.) tomatoes | 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen peas, partly thawed |
| 4 c. chicken broth | ¼ c. quartered, pitted black olives |
| 1½ tsp. salt | 1 can (4 oz.) pimiento, cut into rounds |
| ¼ tsp. pepper | |
| 1 tsp. paprika | |

This recipe will require a very large or 2 regular-size skillets. If you use 2, be sure to divide all ingredients equally between them. Brown chicken in hot oil. Divide between 2 skillets. Remove chicken; reserve. Cook onion and garlic in oil remaining in skillets, until soft. Add tomatoes, chicken broth, salt, pepper, paprika, ginger, saffron, and rice. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes. Stir to prevent sticking. Add chicken; simmer 25 minutes; stir in sherry; ring edge of skillets with peas; cover. Cook 10 to 15 minutes longer or until chicken and rice are tender. Garnish with olives and pimiento. Makes 6 servings.

GARDEN SKILLET SUPPER

- | | |
|---|---|
| 4 loin pork chops, each 1-inch thick | ½ tsp. leaf sage, crumbled |
| 2 tbs. pure vegetable oil | 1 c. hot water |
| 1 envelope granulated beef bouillon or 1 beef-bouillon cube | 1 c. thinly sliced, pared carrot |
| 2 tbs. instant minced onion | 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen Italian green beans |
| ½ tsp. salt | 1 can (1 lb.) whole small potatoes, drained |
| ¼ tsp. pepper | |
| ½ tsp. leaf thyme, crumbled | |

Brown chops well on both sides in hot oil in skillet. Pour off all accumulated fat. Add beef bouillon or bouillon cube, onion, salt, pepper, thyme, and sage to hot water; pour over chops. Cover; turn heat low; simmer 20 minutes. Add carrot and green beans. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes. Add potatoes. Simmer, covered, 5 minutes or until heated through. If you wish liquid thickened, stir in 1 teaspoon cornstarch that has been blended with 2 tablespoons cold water. Simmer until liquid is clear. Makes 4 servings.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 pkg. (8 oz.) elbow macaroni | 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce |
| ½ lb. ground chuck or round | 1¼ tsp. salt |
| 1 tbs. shortening or pure vegetable oil | 1 tsp. basil, crumbled |
| 1 c. chopped onion (1 large) | ¼ tsp. pepper |
| 1 medium-size green pepper, seeded and chopped | ½ lb. sharp Cheddar cheese, grated (2 c.) |
| 1 can (about 1 lb.) tomatoes | 2 tbs. chopped parsley |

Cook and drain macaroni. Brown meat in large skillet over medium heat, so that no pink remains. Remove meat; set aside. Add shortening or oil to skillet; cook onion and green pepper until soft. Return meat to skillet. Add cooked macaroni, tomatoes, tomato sauce, salt, basil, pepper, and 1 cup cheese. Cook 10 minutes or until well heated and bubbly. Add remaining 1 cup cheese and parsley; stir to blend. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

FRENCH BREAD

- | | |
|--|----------------------------------|
| 2 c. warm water (105°-115° F.) | 6-6½ c. sifted all-purpose flour |
| 1 pkg. active-dry yeast or 1 cake compressed yeast | Cornmeal |
| 3 tbs. soft shortening | 1 egg white |
| 1 tbs. salt | 2 tbs. water |

Pour 2 cups warm water into mixing bowl; sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir to dissolve. Add shortening, salt, and 4 cups flour. Beat until smooth. Add enough remaining flour to form a stiff dough. Work in with hands, if necessary. Turn out onto floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic. Put in greased bowl; turn over to bring greased side up. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, about 1½ hours or until double in bulk. Punch down; let rise again about 30 minutes or until almost double. Punch dough down; divide in half. Shape into 2 long loaves, tapering ends with hands. Place on greased baking sheet that has been sprinkled with cornmeal. Make several gashes in each loaf about ¼ inch deep. Do not cover; let rise about 1 hour or until double in bulk. Heat oven to 400° F. Place shallow pan of boiling water on bottom of oven. This will help to create steam for crispy crust. Beat egg white slightly with water; brush on loaves. Bake 20 minutes; brush again; bake 20 minutes longer until glazed and brown. Cool. Makes 2 loaves.

COUNTRY-STYLE BUTTERMILK BREAD

|--|--|
| 2 c. buttermilk | 2 pkgs. active dry yeast or 2 cakes compressed yeast |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ c. sugar | $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. baking soda |
| 1 tbs. salt | 7-7½ c. sifted all-purpose flour |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ c. shortening | Melted butter or margarine |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ c. warm water (105°-115° F.) | |

Combine buttermilk, sugar, salt, and shortening in saucepan. Heat until bubbles appear around the edge and shortening is melted; cool to lukewarm. Measure water into large bowl; sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir to dissolve. Add lukewarm milk mixture. Add baking soda and 3 cups flour; beat until smooth. Add enough remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured board. Knead 5 minutes or until dough is smooth and elastic. Put in greased bowl; turn over to bring greased side up. Cover; let rise in a warm place (85° F.), free from draft, about 1½ hours or until double in bulk. Punch down; let rise about 30 minutes or until almost double. Punch down; knead to distribute gas bubbles; divide in half. Shape each half into a loaf. Place in greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Brush with butter or margarine; cover. Let rise about 45 to 50 minutes or until double in bulk. Bake 25 to 30 minutes in 425° F. oven. Makes 2 loaves.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

|------------------------|--|
| 1¼ c. milk | $\frac{1}{2}$ c. warm water (105°-110° F.) |
| 1 tbs. sugar | 2 pkgs. active dry yeast or 2 cakes compressed yeast |
| 1 tbs. salt | 4 c. whole wheat flour |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ c. honey | 2-2½ c. sifted all-purpose flour |
| 2 tbs. shortening | |

Combine milk, sugar, salt, honey, and shortening in saucepan. Heat until bubbles appear around the edge and shortening is melted. Cool to lukewarm. Measure water into large mixing bowl; sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir to dissolve. Add lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in whole wheat flour. Add 2 cups of all-purpose flour; work in well. Add enough remaining flour, if necessary, to make stiff dough. Turn out on floured board. Knead 5 minutes or until dough is smooth and elastic. Dough will not feel as smooth as doughs made with all white flour. Put dough into large, greased bowl; turn over to bring greased side up. Cover with towel; let rise in a warm place (85° F.), free from draft, about 1½ hours or until doubled in bulk. Punch dough down; let rise about 30 minutes or until almost double. Grease two 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pans. Punch dough down; divide in half; shape into two loaves; place in pans; cover. Let rise 50 to 60 minutes or until double in bulk. Bake in 375° F. oven 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 2 loaves.

CINNAMON RAISIN BREAD

- | | |
|--|----------------------------------|
| 1½ c. milk | 2 eggs |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ c. sugar | 7-7½ c. sifted all-purpose flour |
| 1 tbs. salt | 1½ tsp. cinnamon |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ c. shortening | 2 c. seedless raisins |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ c. warm water (105°-115° F.) | 1 egg white |
| 2 pkgs. active dry yeast or 2 cakes compressed yeast | 2 tbs. water |

Combine milk, sugar, salt, and shortening in saucepan. Heat until bubbles appear around the edge and shortening is melted; cool to lukewarm. Measure water into large bowl; sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir to dissolve. Add lukewarm milk mixture and eggs. Mix 4 cups flour and cinnamon; add to yeast mixture; beat until smooth. Add raisins and enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Turn out onto floured board; knead until smooth and elastic. Put in large, greased bowl; turn over to bring greased side up. Cover; let rise in warm place (85° F.), free from draft, about 1½ hours or until doubled in bulk. Punch down; let rise about 30 minutes or until almost doubled. Punch dough down; knead to distribute gas bubbles. Divide dough in half; divide each half into thirds. Shape each third into rope about 12 inches long. Braid 3 together; repeat with other 3. Place each in greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise 50 to 60 minutes or until double in bulk. Beat egg white slightly with water; brush on loaves. Bake 30 to 35 minutes in 375° F. oven. Makes 2 loaves.

1½ c. milk
2 c. (½ lb.) shredded Cheddar cheese
2 tsp. salt
2 tbs. sugar
2 tbs. shortening
½ c. warm water (105°–115° F.)

2 pkgs. active dry yeast or 2 cakes compressed yeast
1 egg
6½–7 c. sifted all-purpose flour
1 egg yolk
2 tbs. water
Poppy seeds

Combine milk, cheese, salt, sugar, and shortening in saucepan. Heat until bubbles appear around edge and cheese and shortening are melted. Cool to lukewarm. Measure water into large bowl; sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir to dissolve. Add lukewarm milk mixture, egg, and 4 cups flour; beat until smooth. Add enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Turn out onto floured board; knead until smooth and elastic. Put in large, greased bowl; turn over to bring greased side up. Cover; let rise in warm place (85° F.), free from draft, about 1½ hours or until double in bulk. Punch down; let rise again about 30 minutes or until almost double. Punch down; knead to distribute gas bubbles. Divide in half. Shape each half into a 20x6-inch rectangle. Roll up like a jelly roll; seal tightly at each turn. Stretch out to about 24 inches. Coil around on greased baking sheet, placing one coil on top of the other; tuck end in on top. Repeat with other half of dough. Cover. Let rise about 40 to 50 minutes or until double in bulk. Beat egg yolk and water together; brush loaves with mixture; sprinkle with poppy seeds. Bake 25 to 30 minutes in a 375° F. oven. Makes 2 loaves.

RYE BREAD

1 c. milk
¼ c. molasses
3 tbs. shortening
2 tsp. salt
1 c. warm water (105°–115° F.)
2 pkgs. active dry yeast or 2 cakes compressed yeast

3½ c. rye flour
3½–4 c. sifted all-purpose flour
2 tbs. caraway seeds
Cornmeal
1 egg white
2 tbs. water

Combine milk, molasses, shortening, and salt in saucepan. Heat until bubbles appear around the edge and shortening is melted. Cool to lukewarm. Measure water into large bowl; sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir to dissolve. Add lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in 2 cups rye flour, 2 cups all-purpose flour, and caraway seeds; beat until smooth. Mix in 1½ cups more rye flour and 1 cup more all-purpose flour to make a very firm dough. Turn out onto floured board; gradually knead in ½ to 1 cup more all-purpose flour. Continue to knead until dough is smooth and elastic. Put dough into large, greased bowl; turn over to bring greased side up. Cover; let rise in warm place (85° F.), free from draft, about 1½ hours or until double in bulk. Punch down; let rise again about 30 minutes or until almost double. Punch down; knead to distribute gas bubbles; divide in half. Shape each half into round or oval shape. Place loaves on opposite corners of large baking sheet which has been greased and sprinkled with cornmeal. Gash tops ¼ inch deep. Let rise about 30 minutes or until just double in bulk. Beat egg white and water until just blended; brush loaves. Bake 20 minutes in 375° F. oven. Sprinkle tops with cornmeal or brush once again with egg-white mixture. Bake 10 to 15 minutes longer. Makes 2 loaves.

HOMEMADE BREAD

Tips on baking

One of the most important steps in making good bread is to understand the ingredients that go into the bread. Another factor is an understanding of the part each ingredient plays toward making the perfect loaf. Just plain wanting to make bread and getting your hands into the dough is the most important of all.

Flour

Wheat flour is used because it contains that special substance called gluten, so essential to bread making. When flour is kneaded with the liquid, the gluten stretches to form an elasticity that holds the bubbles of gas produced by the yeast. For best results we recommend using regular, sifted all-purpose flour. When flours other than wheat are used, such as rye, whole wheat, etc., it is best to use them in combination with all-purpose flour with its fine gluten content. In breads calling for a range of flour, add only enough to handle the dough easily. Too much flour will make a heavy dough. Too little flour will make a soft dough, coarser in texture, and more likely to collapse during rising or baking.

Liquid

This may be milk, reconstituted nonfat dry milk, evaporated milk, water, or buttermilk.

Yeast

Yeast makes dough rise and gives bread its porous texture. It is a small plant that “grows” and multiplies under proper conditions. 80° to 85° F. is the ideal temperature. It feeds on the sugar and (continued)

Happy Apple Ham with the apples that won't turn brown.

Comstock Pie-Sliced Apples
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons vinegar

3 tablespoons butter or margarine

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar
3 ($\frac{1}{2}$ " thick) ham slices
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup cornflake crumbs or
1 package refrigerated biscuits

Open Comstock Pie-Sliced Apples. Peeled, pared. Firm, fresh. And they'll stay that way, thanks to our special juicy packing process. Drain well. Mix with mustard, vinegar and brown sugar. Place in buttered baking pan.

Cut ham slices into halves. Place ham on apple slices. Sprinkle top with cornflake crumbs, dot with butter or place biscuits on top.

Bake at 375 degrees F. 20-25 minutes. Serves 6.

FOOD TIPS TO CLIP AND FILE

- To substitute cocoa for chocolate in a recipe: For each square of chocolate required, use 3 tablespoons of cocoa and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine.
- Use leftover pastry to make appetizer nibblers. Press the bits together and roll out $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch thick. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar or grated cheese. Cut into strips and bake.

starch of the dough and forms gas which makes the dough "rise." It also gives yeast breads that tantalizing aroma and delicious flavor. Yeast is available in two forms. Compressed yeast comes in cake form, is perishable and must be refrigerated immediately. It contains a live plant and starts to grow as soon as food, moisture, warmth, and air are present. Active dry yeast is granulated and stays fresh for several months without refrigeration. Be sure to check the expiration date on the package. To dissolve either compressed or active dry yeast, crumble or sprinkle it into warm water (105° to 115° F.) in a warm bowl. Let it settle for a few seconds then stir to dissolve.

Other ingredients

Salt is essential to give flavor to bread and to control the action of yeast. Sugar provides food for the yeast. It, too, adds flavor and is partly responsible for the nice golden brown crust. Shortening improves the flavor, keeping quality, and makes the bread more tender. It also helps contribute to a browner crust. Eggs give yeast breads delicate texture and add flavor, color, and richness.

Mixing the dough

There are several methods of mixing the dough. All the breads you find in this article use the kneading method. This gives the bread a fine, even, light texture, and better keeping qualities.

Two rising periods are usually required with kneaded dough. No-knead dough saves time and produces a product that is more coarsely grained. The dough is mixed, allowed to rise, and then turned onto a floured surface to coat with flour for easier handling in shaping for the pans. A batter dough is mixed quickly and is not kneaded. The dough is allowed to rise, stirred down, turned into the pans, and let rise again before baking. It is good to use an electric mixer (provided it is designed for bread mixing; follow your manufacturer's instructions) at low to medium speed to blend in half the flour when making breads by the batter method. The rest of the flour may have to be blended by hand if your mixer does not have a special dough-blending attachment.

TIPS ON KNEADING, RISING, BAKING, AND STORING FOR KNEADED METHOD

How to knead: Flour your hands well. Flatten dough slightly and shape into a round ball. Pick up the outer rim of the dough at a point farthest from you and fold over on top edge nearest you. Press down with the heel of your hands, gently but firmly, pushing dough away from you. Turn the dough $\frac{1}{4}$ way around and repeat the kneading process above until the dough looks full and rounded, smooth, and elastic. You will see tiny bubbles just under the surface of the dough. It should not be sticky.

Rising: This should not be done too quickly or too slowly for best results. Place the dough in a well-greased bowl and cover with a clean towel. Keep in a warm place (85° F.) free from drafts, until dough has doubled in bulk.

To test for double in bulk: Press two fingers deeply into the dough. If a depression remains the dough has risen sufficiently. Punch down by pushing fist into the center of the dough, then fold edges toward the center. Turn dough upside down for the second rising, to bring greased side up, unless the recipe directs otherwise. When the dough is light it is ready for shaping.

Baking: Always bake bread and rolls in a preheated oven. For two loaves or 2 pans of rolls, place on center shelf in oven with 2 inches between pans to allow for good heat circulation. For more than two pans, stagger on two shelves, separate for heat circulation.

To test for doneness: Tap the loaf with the knuckles. If baked through, it sounds hollow, the loaf is well browned, and shrinks slightly from the sides of the pan. Remove from pan immediately to prevent a soggy crust. Place loaves on wire rack. Space them to allow good air circulation but have them free from draft to prevent cracking of the crust. If you want a soft crust, brush the loaves with soft butter or margarine after taking them from the pans. For a crisp crust, do not brush loaves.

To store: Be sure bread is thoroughly cooled before storing. Wrap in wax paper, foil, or transparent plastic wrap.

RAGOUT AGNEAU (Lamb Stew With Wine)

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|---|
| 2 tbs. pure vegetable oil | 1/4 tsp. pepper |
| 3 lbs. boneless lamb shoulder, cubed | 3 c. dry red wine |
| 1 c. chopped onion (1 large) | 2 c. pared, sliced carrots |
| 1 carrot, pared and finely chopped | 18 small white onions, peeled, or 1 can whole onions, drained |
| 1 1/2 tsp. salt | 1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced |
| 1/2 tsp. rosemary, crumbled | 2 tbs. butter or margarine |
| 1 tsp. basil, crumbled | 2 tbs. flour |
| 1/2 tsp. thyme, crumbled | 2 tbs. chopped parsley |

Heat oil in Dutch oven or kettle; brown lamb well on all sides; remove meat from kettle; reserve. Add chopped onion and chopped carrot to kettle; cook until soft. Return meat to kettle; add salt, rosemary, basil, thyme, pepper, and red wine. Bring to boiling; turn heat to simmer; cover. Cooking time for lamb will be from 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Sliced carrots and onions will take 30 minutes to cook; mushrooms 15 minutes. Judge the time you should add them to the stew according to the tenderness of the meat. Blend butter or margarine and flour together in small bowl. This is called beurre manié and is used for thickening stew. When meat and vegetables are tender, spoon enough of the beurre manié into the stew to thicken it to the desired consistency. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Taste; add additional seasonings, if desired. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Nice with buttered, thin noodles. Makes 6 servings.

POT ROAST WITH WINE AND VEGETABLES

- | | |
|---|---|
| 2 tbs. pure vegetable oil | 4 small tomatoes, peeled and quartered |
| Sirloin tip, chuck, or round pot roast (3 1/2-4 lbs.) | 4 stalks celery, cut in 2-inch lengths |
| 2 c. chopped onion (2 large) | 2 c. carrots, pared and cut in 2-inch lengths |
| 1 tsp. salt | 2 leeks, peeled and cut in 2-inch lengths |
| 1/4 tsp. pepper | 3 tbs. flour |
| 1/2 tsp. thyme, crumbled | 3/4 cup water |
| 1 1/2 c. dry red wine | |
| 1 c. water | |

Heat oil in Dutch oven or heavy kettle. Brown meat well on all sides; pour off all but 2 tablespoons oil. Add onion; cook until soft. Add salt, pepper, thyme, red wine, and 1 cup water. Bring to boiling; lower heat to simmer; cook, covered, about 3 hours or until meat is almost tender. Stir occasionally, turning meat, to prevent sticking. Add tomatoes, celery, carrots, and leeks (or cook vegetables, except tomatoes, separately and serve with meat). Cook 40 to 60 minutes or until vegetables and meat are tender. Remove meat; keep warm. Blend flour and 3/4 cup water. Stir into liquid in kettle. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Makes 8 servings.

SCALLOPS WITH TOMATOES AND MUSHROOMS

- | | |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 2 lbs. scallops | 1/2 c. light cream |
| 1 c. dry white wine | 1 can (6 oz.) sliced mushrooms |
| 1/2 c. water | 2 tomatoes, peeled and chopped |
| 1/2 tsp. salt | 1/2 c. shredded Swiss cheese |
| 1 bay leaf | 1 c. dry bread crumbs |
| 1/4 c. butter or margarine | 1/4 c. butter or margarine |
| 3 tbs. flour | 2 tbs. grated Parmesan cheese |
| 2 egg yolks | |

Wash scallops. Heat wine, water, salt, and bay leaf together until mixture comes to boiling; add scallops. Lower heat; simmer scallops 5 minutes. Do not overcook or they will toughen. Remove bay leaf; drain; measure broth (there should be 2 cups); reserve. Melt 1/4 cup butter or margarine in saucepan; add flour; cook until bubbly. Add reserved wine broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Beat egg yolks with cream; stir into wine sauce. Heat until mixture just comes to boiling; remove from heat. Add Swiss cheese; stir until cheese melts. Add scallops. Combine mushrooms and tomatoes; divide mixture among 6 large scallop shells or other individual heatproof serving dishes. Spoon scallop mixture over tomato mixture. Combine bread crumbs, 1/4 cup butter or margarine, and Parmesan cheese; sprinkle over tops of mixture in shells. Heat at 400° F. 10 minutes or until piping hot and bubbly. Makes 6 servings.

CHICKEN TOURAINE

- | | |
|---|--|
| 2 whole (broiler-fryers) chicken breasts, halved, and 4 chicken legs (broiler-fryers) or 2 broiler-fryers (1 1/2 lbs. ea.) cut up | 1/4 tsp. pepper |
| 2 tbs. butter or margarine | 1/4 tsp. onion salt |
| 1/4 c. dry sherry | 1/2 tsp. tarragon, crumbled |
| 1 clove of garlic, chopped and mashed | 1 envelope granulated chicken bouillon |
| 2 tbs. flour | 1/2 c. water |
| 1 tsp. salt | 1 1/2 c. dry white wine |
| | 1/4 c. toasted, blanched, slivered almonds |
| | Hot, cooked rice or noodles |

Brown chicken in skillet in butter or margarine. Heat sherry in small saucepan until bubbles form; pour over browned chicken; ignite; shake pan gently until flames die. Remove chicken while preparing wine sauce. Add garlic to fat remaining in skillet; cook 2 minutes. Stir in flour, salt, pepper, onion salt, and tarragon. Cook over medium heat until bubbly. Dissolve chicken bouillon in water; add to skillet; add white wine. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Return chicken to skillet; cover; lower heat. Simmer 30 to 35 minutes until chicken is tender, when tested with a two-tined fork. Sprinkle chicken with toasted almonds. Serve with hot, cooked rice or noodles. Makes 6 servings. (continued)

If you could guide the butcher's hand you'd carve out a Golden Star

Naturally, you'd want the choicest meat in the whole ham. So you'd have the butcher carve a small "filet" out of the lean side. You'd have him hand-trim it of outside fat, leaving only the pinkest, tenderest, juiciest lean. And you'd have the start of our Golden Star Ham.

We go much further. We hardwood smoke the meat. (Many canned hams aren't smoked.) And we cook it, long and lovingly, in its own juices for added tenderness.

With all the extra care lavished on the Golden Star you'd expect to pay more. Per pound, you do. But our waste-free Golden Star goes so much further, it may well be the most economical ham you ever served. Certainly, the best.

Cooking with wine

Cooking with wine is easy. You don't need special recipes to discover the wonderful things wine can do for everyday cooking. Wine is more than a flavoring and its addition can only improve a dish. It enhances flavor by blending with and accenting food's natural flavor. It lends aroma and smoothness of flavor to a dish. It will tenderize wild game and the economical cuts of meat when used as a marinade. When used with fish, wine tends to minimize the oily or so-called "fishy" taste and to cut down much of the odor of fish cooking, which so many people find objectionable. The alcohol in the wine disappears fast when it reaches the low simmering stage (just as it does with vanilla) and leaves only the delicious flavor.

Which wine to use for a particular dish? A rule of thumb would be to use the same types in cooking as would ordinarily be served with the food at the table. Generally, white table wines would be used with chicken or fish, red table wines in meat dishes. But no rule is hard and fast—consider Coq au Vin—chicken in red wine. Substitute wine for half the water when making gelatin desserts or salads; pour a little Burgundy over hamburgers as they brown; baste a roasting chicken with sauterne; pour port or rosé on sugared strawberries.

Here are some tips to show the kind of wine recommended for various dishes. Amounts are minimum. Experiment and taste as you go. For red table wines use a Burgundy or claret. For white wines use sauterne, Rhine wine, or Chablis.

What to look for in a new toaster:

CRUMBS

Crumbs? In your brand-new Toastmaster toaster? Possibly. It's typical of Toastmaster thoroughness, that every toaster is tested with toast . . . so it's sure to work right, whether you buy it for yourself or give it as a gift. Sometimes, of course, a tiny crumb stays inside, like a souvenir of work well done.

Turn it over

Turn your handsome Toastmaster toaster upside down, and see. Open the handy hinged crumb tray, and look inside. Even if the crumbs are gone, you'll see workmanship as fine, materials as handsome as on the outside case itself.

This isn't done for Show. It's done to make your toaster serve you better, year after beautiful year.

What, no wires?

Look again. Where are the wires? Toastmaster uses rigid steel bus bars to carry current to the heating elements. There are no loose wires to flex and wear thin. You say, even the bus bars look good? Engineers say, things built to work better, look better.

Look again. Where are the heating coils? Heating elements on Toastmaster toasters are so neat that you hardly notice them, especially on deluxe models. That's because Toastmaster uses special nickel-chromium wire carefully emplaced on insulating mica plaques, for extra years of trouble-free toasting.

Beauty is as beauty does

Look again, at the beautiful Imperial (Model B122, at top). It's fully automatic. You never, ever push a lever. A small motor even lowers the bread.

On both the Imperial and the Sovereign (Model B112, below), see how the controls are up front, where they're easier to use.

And compared to lesser toasters, Toastmaster toasters are built like fine watches. Built to work better. Built to work longer. Built to work right. It's the same with all fine Toastmaster products.

Doesn't someone you know deserve a Toastmaster toaster? (Don't you?)

TOASTMASTER

PASS THE CHEESE PLEASE

By Stanley Schuler

Melt it into an omelet for breakfast. Toast it in a sandwich for lunch. Spread it on crackers for cocktails. Crumble it over a salad for dinner. Eat a slice with your bedtime apple. Cheese is wonderful!

Maybe you are already one of the turophiles (cheese fanciers) who have helped to triple the per capita consumption of cheese in the United States in the past 30 years. But yes or no, you'll get a lot of mouth-watering pleasure just browsing in a cheese specialty shop or in the cheese department of a well-stocked supermarket or department store.

According to the Department of Agriculture there are more than 400 varieties of natural cheese. (Natural cheese is made directly from milk or whey. Process cheese is a combination of natural cheeses.) They fall into three broad classifications: hard, semisoft, and soft. Some are imported. Many are American. Some, unique; others are excellent imitations or variations of famous types. Some are available the year round; others only in certain seasons. Here are some of our favorites.

HARD CHEESES

Cheddar (sometimes called American or store) is far and away the favorite American cheese. The most versatile too. Whether you like it mild or sharp is a matter of taste, but the sharp has the more authentic Cheddar flavor and is generally preferred, especially in cooking. (The color of the cheese, incidentally, has nothing to do with the flavor.) New York and Vermont are famous for theirs, but you're a wizard if you can distinguish them from the fine Cheddars made in Wisconsin, Kentucky, and other major cheese-producing states.

Several delightful cheeses similar to Cheddar, but with characteristics of their own, include Cheshire, which is somewhat crumbly and has a salty tang. Colby is a mild cheese with a somewhat softer, more open texture. Coon is crumbly and very sharp. Derby and Gloucester are milder, slightly flakier varieties. Sage has a mottled green appearance and a sage flavor.

that you might have to go to a specialty shop or a cheese store to find if you want a wide choice. And if you want to taste Swiss at its best, buy it by the chunk. You can buy both the domestic and imported Swiss. We have tasted some very fine U.S. Swiss cheeses, yet we must offer accolades to their alpine cousins. They do turn out a good product with a rich, smooth flavor. Gruyère (pronounced groo-yehr) is like Swiss cheese but has smaller eyes and a sharper, nutlike flavor. It's a grand munching variety; also makes an unusually tasty fondue.

Edam and Gouda are close cousins from Holland. They are yellowish; firm to semisoft; with a mellow but hearty "real cheese" flavor. Edam is usually shaped like a cannonball and covered with red paraffin. Gouda is usually a flattened ball which may or may not have a red wax covering. If you yearn to be an authentic gourmet, eat them for breakfast as the Dutch do.

Provolone (proh-voh-loh-neh). In both appearance and flavor provolone is quite different from most of the (continued)

(continued) popular hard cheeses. It is shaped like a large pear, sausage, or ball, and has grooves where the strings of the net in which it is hung press into the surface. The cream-colored body has a sharp, salty, smoky flavor that you can't get enough of. Good to eat by itself or as a pizza topping.

Caciocavallo (kah-choh-kah-val-luh) is much like provolone except that it is not smoked, is a little whiter inside, and is ten-pin shaped. When it grows hard with age, it's perfect for grating.

Parmesan (pahr-muh-zahn) is marvelous for grating over any number of dishes. Freshly grated Parmesan has a zesty flavor that adds a special touch to many dishes.

Sapsago. When you get through grating this rock-like green cheese your hands will be smelly; but the delectable flavor of the cheese will quickly make you forget this small problem. Mixed into cream cheese, sapsago makes a superlative spread or dip with a pecanlike flavor.

SEMISOFT CHEESES

Roquefort. Many of the tangy, white cheeses veined with blue or blue-green mold are called Roquefort. The ones legally entitled to this name are those that are produced from ewes' milk in the vicinity of Roquefort, France. These are among the world's truly noble food products. But don't overlook other blue-veined cheese. They're noble too. Included in this outstanding assemblage are blue (or bleu) cheese made in many parts of the world, but especially in Denmark, France, and the U.S.; Gorgonzola from Italy; and Stilton from England. The last—a little milder than the others—is considered to be one of the great dessert cheeses.

Bel Paese (bell pah-aye-seh) is a smooth, creamy-yellow, mild, sweet cheese which lives up to its name—"beautiful country."

Münster (mun-ztir) is like brick but usually cylindrical, milder, and creamy-white inside.

Chantelle is a Midwestern cheese similar to Port du Salut and covered with red wax.

Caerphilly (car-fil-lee) is a white, smooth but granular, delicately flavored cheese. People who have sampled it often rate it as one of England's best. It should be eaten soon after it comes on the market, because it is perishable.

Fontina is a smooth, yellowish, gently lay-veck) is also similar to Camembert but yellow and firm enough sometimes to be classified as a semi-soft cheese.

Limburger is so famous for its aroma that many people have undoubtedly been discouraged from sampling its robust, pungent goodness. But if you will try it just once on crackers or dark bread, you'll become a fan.

Liederkranz was invented accident-

Mozzarella (moh-tsoh-rel-luh). A creamy-white, slightly firm, delicately flavored cheese used in cooking. Scamorze is the same thing. Try toasting it on bread. Other soft, white, mild cheeses that are used in cooking and for salads, dips, snacks, etc., are cottage; cream; Neufchâtel (nuh-shah-tell), which has a slightly acid taste; and, sweet, nutlike ricotta.

Two unusually rich, creamy, white cheeses are Crème Danica and Petit Suisse (very expensive).

HOW TO SERVE CHEESE

Here are four rules that will increase your enjoyment of cheese:

1. Don't let tradition or the mumbo-jumbo of self-styled cheese experts limit the way you use, serve, or eat a particular variety of cheese. Remember that all cheeses can be eaten in a number of ways and at any time of day you like. For example, Roquefort is just as good before dinner as after, just as delicious melted on top of a hamburger as it is in a salad dressing.
2. Don't camouflage the flavor of cheese by serving it with highly seasoned cocktail crackers or breads. It should be eaten either by itself, with soda crackers, water biscuits, plain breads, or with fruit or wine.
3. Serve the soft white cheeses, such as Neufchâtel, within a few days after buying them. They are perishable. Other soft cheeses are best to eat when they are quite soft and creamy inside. (Semisoft and hard cheeses should also be allowed to reach a definite stage of ripeness before they are served. If you cannot tell when this is, depend on the good judgment of your cheese dealer.)
4. Serve the soft white cheeses while they are slightly chilled. All other varieties should be served at room temperature. This means that they should be removed from the refrigerator 30 minutes to an hour or more before serving.

Experimenting with serving different cheeses in unusual ways and keeping an open mind will add immeasurably to your enjoyment.

HOW TO STORE CHEESE

All cheeses should be kept in the fresh-food compartment of your refrigerator. To keep them from drying out and transmitting or picking up odors, wrap them in aluminum foil or plastic film or store small pieces in tightly covered jars or plastic bags. If mold forms on a cheese, cut it off; it is not harmful.

tangy cheese that originated in Italy but has been largely taken over by Danish producers.

SOFT CHEESES

Camembert (kam-em-bare) is another classic cheese. The creamy-yellow body, which is very soft when the cheese is fully ripe, has a rich, mild but very definite flavor that is beautifully complemented by fruit. The grayish rind should be eaten too.

Brie (bree) and Coulommier (koo-lawm-me-eh) are much like Camembert but firmer. Pont l'Évêque (pawn Feta is a white, crumbly Greek cheese with a briny flavor. Eat it with grapes or melons.

Vacherin. Depending on how it is made, this resembles either a zesty Camembert or a nutty Swiss. It is runny enough to be eaten with a spoon. Wonderful with berries or a light claret.

FROM OUR READERS

Here's refreshing proof that a can of fruit can harvest a bushel of good eating. The American Home test panel had a delicious time picking this crop of "blue ribbon" recipes. We know that you'll all have an equally good time trying them in your own kitchens.

FRENCH PEAR PUDDING

1 egg
1 c. dairy sour cream
1 tsp. vanilla
2 tbs. sugar
1 tbs. flour
1 can (1 lb.) pears, drained

¼ c. brown sugar, firmly packed
⅓ c. flour
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 tbs. butter or margarine

Heat oven to 350° F. Beat egg slightly in small bowl; stir in sour cream and vanilla. Mix sugar and 1 tablespoon flour; add to sour-cream mixture; mix well. Quarter pears; arrange in shallow baking dish. Top with sour-cream mixture. Bake 15 minutes. While pudding bakes, combine brown sugar, ⅓ cup flour, and nutmeg in second small bowl. Cut in butter or margarine with pastry blender until mixture resembles cornmeal. Sprinkle over pudding. Bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

SUGAR PLUM TARTLETS

1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
½ c. butter or margarine
1 c. sifted all-purpose flour

1 can (1 lb. 15 oz.) plums
1 egg
¼ c. sugar
1 tsp. sherry
¼ tsp. vanilla
½ c. orange juice

Soften cream cheese and butter or margarine to room temperature; blend together. Stir in flour. Chill 20 minutes. Roll out dough on lightly floured board. Cut out circles to fit 1¾-inch muffin-pan cups. Press circles into cups. Heat oven to 400° F. Drain plums. Cut plums in half; remove pits. Place a half plum in each muffin-pan cup. Beat egg until frothy; add 3 tablespoons sugar, sherry, vanilla, and orange juice gradually. Pour into muffin-pan cups almost to the top. Sprinkle with remaining sugar. Reduce oven heat to 325° F. Bake tartlets about 30 minutes or until custard mixture is set. Remove from pans carefully. Cool on wax paper on wire cake rack. These may be served warm or chilled. Makes about 20 tartlets.

1 c. milk

Drain mushrooms; measure and reserve 4 tablespoons; discard liquid. Put remaining mushrooms, chicken, potatoes, onion, and green pepper through food chopper using medium blade. Stir in 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 2 teaspoons salt, and ½ teaspoon pepper. Form mixture into 16 patties. Heat butter or margarine in large skillet (or use 2 skillets). Cook patties over low heat about 10 minutes or until potatoes are cooked and patties are crusty on bottom. Turn and brown second side. Remove to heated platter; keep warm. Make Mushroom Sauce: Blend flour into fat remaining in skillet; add ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper and ¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning. Stir in chicken broth and milk slowly. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Reduce heat; add reserved mushrooms; simmer 2 to 3 minutes. Serve sauce over patties. Makes 8 servings.

SKILLET HASH: Prepare hash mixture as above. Heat butter or margarine in large skillet with heatproof handle; add hash; spread evenly. Cook, covered, about 15 minutes or until brown on bottom. Uncover; broil about 3 minutes or until top is browned. Loosen edges with spatula; turn one half onto other half. Turn out on serving platter. To make sauce, melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in medium-size saucepan and proceed as above.

BAKED HASH: Prepare hash mixture as above. Turn into buttered, 2-quart shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with ½ cup grated Cheddar cheese, if desired. Bake at 350° F. 30 minutes or until nicely browned. Prepare sauce as above.

TOMATOES PROVENÇALE

1 clove of garlic, crushed
2 tbs. finely chopped onion
2 tbs. finely chopped parsley
½ tsp. basil, crumbled
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
2 tbs. olive oil (about)

Cut tomatoes in half crosswise. Arrange, cutside up, in shallow baking dish. Mix garlic, onion, parsley, basil, salt, and pepper in small bowl. Stir in enough olive oil to make a paste of the mixture. Spread on tomato halves. Broil, 3 inches from heat, about 10 minutes or until nicely browned. Makes 8 servings.

PITFALLS FOR THE DO-IT-YOURSELFER

By Arthur E. Johnston

Thoreau built his own hut by the side of Walden Pond. In the 20th century few of us have the time, know-how, or the inclination to follow suit. But there are many improvements in the homes we own which tempt us to be do-it-yourselfers.

There are three good reasons for doing work yourself: to save money, because you enjoy doing such work, or because it is often difficult to find a professional who's willing to do the job you want done.

But anyone who anticipates a do-it-yourself job should be aware of the pitfalls involved.

Pitfall Number One: Loss of your time. The do-it-yourselfer must equate the time he spends versus the cost of a contractor. Will giving less time to your family affect family relationships? Will the work interfere with your profession, in terms of efficiency and meeting social obligations? If so, are the immediate cash savings worth the long-term losses? On the other hand, if the project is a form of relaxation it may well be worth the time spent. The decision is a highly personal one—but not to be taken lightly.

Also remember that work done by yourself in spare hours must be spread out over a longer period of time than a contractor would require. Hence, if the need for an extra room is immediate, or if the house requires painting before a specific date, time itself may force you to "contract" it out.

Pitfall Number Two: Physical strength. Each of us must gauge his own stamina. For jobs that require heavy physical work, such as post-digging, carrying heavy concrete blocks, etc., or for jobs, such as roof laying, which require exceptional balance—in fact, any job that could be dangerous to the amateur—a man should seek professional help.

Pitfall Number Three: Excessive cost of tools or materials. Let's say you have decided to put in dormers and add two bedrooms in your attic. Your basic tools would be a hammer ($1.50), a carpenter's square ($4), a general-purpose hand saw ($5), and a level ($3.50). You can do an adequate job with these, but many a do-it-yourselfer has killed the savings he's made by accumulating unneeded equipment.

Before you buy any expensive equipment—such as a radial power saw—make sure it will pay for itself in time saved and also that it's a tool you'll be able to use for other jobs you plan. A good approach is to pick out dual-purpose tools. An electric drill, for plumbing fixtures, for example, because they were on sale and then a few years later had to replace certain parts, you might lose more than you initially saved.

Pitfall Number Four: Faulty or inadequate instructions. You can lose money rather than save because you accept faulty instructions, or do not know correct construction procedure.

If you are putting on a roof, for cheaper. Because of the necessity for soldering the joints, copper plumbing requires an expert to install it. Also, if you are not told that you should "ground" your dishwasher, your family is in danger of getting a severe electrical shock. Instructions, quite often, only go to a certain level of detail. Without a professional's experience, you may be simply unable to follow them.

Pitfall Number Five: Legal problems. Do-it-yourselfers often fail to check local regulations the professional would be familiar with. Will that added room be too close to the lot line? Must plans be filed with the local building department? Must the job be inspected at various stages? Will you be liable if someone trips on the wooden forms for your new concrete walk?

You also must be aware of special mortgage regulations. A do-it-yourselfer who wishes to build his own house and has a plot of land, and perhaps, a little money may get from a building and loan association a so-called "letter of commitment." This will allow him to borrow up to 90 percent of the total cost of his new house. It is essential that this letter be taken to a bank, and that the bank lend the money for the job before the land is touched in any way—this can mean cutting down even one tree!

To be specific, suppose you are building a house and have $3000 savings and have obtained a letter of commitment, which promises you your mortgage. You begin excavating your cellar and building your foundation, postponing your bank loan until you run out of money. By beginning to build your house, however, you have destroyed your letter of commitment. Then, by not being able to obtain a mortgage, you have tied up your savings in an enterprise you are not able to complete.

There are legal means of straightening such problems out, but everything will be much simpler if you check with local building officials, your lawyer, and financial institutions before you start spending your time, money, and effort on any major job.

Merely being aware of these five pitfalls will help you overcome them. If you like to work on your home, like to save money, have the time, energy, and know-how, go to it! But be realistic. Weigh the advantages of do-it-yourself remodeling against the disadvantages.

example, can also grind, sand, and drive screws. Another way to save time and money on short jobs is to rent the necessary power tools.

Tools are not the only problem for the do-it-yourselfer. He must be capable of selecting his own materials. Sometimes he can save money by knowing when to substitute second-grade lumber for first-grade lumber. (See How to Save Money on Lumber, Page 81.)

In most cases, the do-it-yourselfer should stick to well-known brands of materials. If you bought "off-brand" example, and don't "break the joints" between the shingles (in layman's language this means covering the crack between two shingles) so that two thirds of the bottom shingle is covered by the top shingle, you may have a leaky roof.

Or suppose you plan to install a new under-the-counter dishwasher. The "expert" at the store tells you to use copper plumbing, but although copper plumbing is good in many cases, it may not be in yours. Rubber hoses might give an acceptable performance and would certainly be

WHICH WAX FOR WHICH FLOOR

How many times have you stopped in amazement at the profusion of floor waxes on the shelves of your supermarket—wondering just which type of wax would be best for your kitchen floor. Would that same wax do for your playroom? Your foyer?

Basically, all floor waxes belong in one of two groups—polishing waxes, which must be buffed to a shine, and self-polishing waxes, which dry to a bright shiny finish. Within each of these two groups are waxes that offer special floor-care features. A knowledge of these features and of the characteristics of the two basic wax groups will guide you in choosing the right wax for your floors.

We have listed the names of some more commonly known waxes as examples of each type of wax. There are other well-known products on the market (many regional) which will fall into these categories. By reading the label carefully, you should be able to tell which category they belong to.

POLISHING OR BUFFING WAXES

A polishing wax must be buffed vigorously to produce a shiny hard coating which will beautify and protect your floor. Many of these products have natural waxes as their major ingredient. The wax ingredients are usually dissolved in a solvent much like a cleaning fluid—the more solvent present, the greater the cleaning power. Since they require vigorous buffing, polishing waxes are not easy to use unless you have an electric polisher. Polishing waxes come in two forms—paste and liquid:

Paste Waxes

Aerowax Clear Paste Wax. Beacon White Paste Wax. Bruce Paste Wax. Butcher White Diamond Paste Wax. Johnson Paste Wax. Simoniz Paste Floor Wax. Trewax Clear Paste Wax.

Because the wax ingredients are very highly concentrated in a small amount of solvent, a paste wax is economical and gives a high degree of protection to your floor. However, because the wax ingredients are highly concentrated, any coloring they contain (usually an off-yellow) is also more concentrated. This may enhance the beauty of a wood or cork floor (even help camouflage a worn wood floor) but is not desirable on light-colored resilient flooring.

Paste wax should be applied in a thin coating and buffed well. Although the solvent base acts as a cleaning agent, the floors should be thoroughly cleaned occasionally. Use a wood-floor cleaning product (be sure to follow manufacturer's directions and precautions) for best results.

A paste wax is recommended for wood and cork floors and sealed cement floors and walks.

A paste wax should never be used on asphalt tile and some rubber tile. (The solvent will soften these materials and cause the colors to run. If you're not sure of your flooring, test a hidden corner with a small amount of cleaning fluid first.)

Liquid Polishing Waxes (solvent-based)

Bruce Cleaning Wax. Butcher Floor Paste. Johnson Beautiflor. Truwax Cleaning Wax. Simoniz Electric Polisher Floor Wax. Wood Preen.

These waxes contain just about the same ingredients as a paste wax—but the proportion is different. There is a higher percentage of solvent present. This means they are good cleaning waxes and they are also easier to apply in thin coats.

Trewax Non-slip Liquid Floor Wax

The wax ingredients in this polishing wax are held in a water base. This makes the wax safe for asphalt tile and rubber tile. However, because it is a water base, it is not a cleaning wax and is not recommended for wood or cork floors (as water may harm this type of floor).

TIPS FOR POLISHING WAXES

Always shake a solvent-based liquid wax to distribute the wax ingredients thoroughly.

Always apply the wax in a thin coating. If you want extra wax protection, apply a second thin coat (buffing after each application) rather than one heavy coat. Too heavy a coat of wax is one of the major causes of slippery floors.

The other major cause of slippery floors is insufficient buffing. Remember the floors must be buffed vigorously to a hard, shiny coating.

If you are buffing a polishing wax by hand, do just a small portion of the floor at a time and polish while the wax is still soft. If you're using an electric polisher, apply wax to the whole floor area, let dry thoroughly, then buff according to directions.

Stick 'em up, match 'em up,

New Weldwood Panel Adhesive is the successor to hammer and nails, and 50% faster, too, for installing paneling on studs or furring. No scratches, no dents, no holes to putty, either.

Weldwood Color Tones® takes the guesswork out of matching trim to paneling. No measuring. This one-step system lets you color-match 138 different wood tones.

SELF-POLISHING WAXES

These waxes have little, if any, natural wax ingredients. Instead, they are made of synthetic waxes and other ingredients which are held in a water base. They are all in a liquid form and all dry to a tough, shiny finish. Because of their popularity, several self-polishing waxes have been developed which feature special properties. These we shall describe and discuss separately.

Regular Self-Polishing Waxes

Aerowax Self-Polishing Floor Wax. Beacon Wax. Bruce Self-Polishing Floor Wax. Johnson Bravo. Johnson Glo-coat. Simoniz Vinyl Wax. Tre-wax Gold Label Self-Polishing Wax.

Most of the self-polishing waxes on the market fall into this category. Before applying these waxes, the floor must be thoroughly cleaned (follow container directions for cleaning). Apply the wax to a dry, clean floor in long, even strokes—away from you. Let dry thoroughly. Some of these waxes are detergent washable. Floors may be cleaned with a detergent between waxings without losing their shine. Read the label carefully to see if a floor wax is detergent washable, and if so how the wax may be removed (you may need to add ammonia to your cleaning solution).

These waxes also differ in ability to resist water spotting, scuffing, and black marking, and in their durability. Your best guide to quality is to choose a good brand name, try it, and see how satisfactorily it works for you and your floors.

Regular self-polishing waxes are recommended for all resilient flooring (such as linoleum, vinyl, etc.).

Regular self-polishing waxes are not recommended for wood and cork floors because these waxes are water-based and may harm the floor.

Buffable Self-Polishing Waxes

Armstrong Epic Floor Wax. Butcher Green Stripe. Butcher White Stripe. Johnson Stride Floor Wax.

These waxes dry to a shiny finish which is slightly softer than the regular self-polishing waxes. Because it is softer, it will also respond to buffing so you can touch up your floor between waxings. With a quick buffing you can remove scuff marks, etc. and restore much of the original shine.

Self-Polishing Waxes for Light-Colored Floors

Armstrong Epic Floor Wax. Butcher Bright. Johnson Klear Floor Wax.

With the increasing popularity of resilient flooring in very light colors, some manufacturers have developed colorless, or almost colorless waxes specifically for these floors.

Self-Cleaning, Self-Polishing Waxes for Resilient Floors

Armstrong One Step Floor Care. Bruce Wash 'n Wax. Dri-brite. Vista Floor Cleaner Wax.

These are self-polishing waxes which have a detergent solution included in their makeup so that they will clean your floor as they polish it. (This is different from the cleaning action of the polishing waxes which clean with a solvent rather than a detergent.) Although you do not need to clean the floors first, remember that the addition of the detergent solution means less wax ingredients so the wax coating will not be as durable as the regular self-polishing waxes.

These waxes are excellent to use as auxiliaries to a more durable self-polishing wax. By using a self-cleaning, self-polishing wax between regular waxings, your floor can always look good, and you won't need to clean and wax your floors with a regular wax as often.

Self-Polishing Waxes for Wood and Cork Floors

Armstrong One Step Wood Floor Care. Bruce Self-Buffing Wood Floor Wax. Johnson Klear Wood Floor Wax.

These waxes contain self-polishing-wax ingredients in a solvent base. They dry to a shiny hard finish as do the other self-polishing waxes.

They are good for you if you have a large expanse of wood or cork floors, do not have an electric polisher, and do not want to buff by hand. However, be sure to read the label carefully on how to prepare your floors for this wax. They should be thoroughly clean.

TIPS FOR SELF-POLISHING WAXES

Never shake a water-based wax. The wax ingredients do not need to be distributed because they are held in an emulsion, and shaking will cause bubbles to form in the wax coating.

Always apply in thin coats. If you want extra wax protection, apply a second thin coat after the first has thoroughly dried.

Some quality factors that are important to look for in self-polishing waxes are: a rich initial gloss; resistance to water spotting; enhancement of floor pattern and colors; retention of gloss for a reasonable length of time; resistance to black marking, soiling, and scuffing.

A well-equipped cleaning closet will include more than one kind of wax. The flooring in your home differs from room to room; so does the wear it gets. The increased specialization of waxes means you can select your wax for the floor you'll use it on. But no matter what you choose, do wax your floors to enhance their beauty and provide the valuable protection that they need.

Why Not A Reception Before The Wedding?

Even a small wedding reception can be expensive—here's how to do it for just a little over $300.

A wedding is a wonderful thing. And when it happens to be your own daughter's you're apt to go all out to make it a once-in-a-lifetime affair. But what if you haven't the money or space—as was our case? How can you give a wedding that will cost next to nothing and still linger in everyone's memory for years to come?

The problem always comes down to the same thing: One must have a reception, to which are invited so many of those people, on the periphery of families and friendships, whom we only see at long intervals. They expect it. As do many of those people we work with either at jobs or on a community-organization or church basis. At the going rate of about $10 per person for an uninspired group meal at a merely passable restaurant or club, plus music, flowers, and drinks, we figured that the minimum amount we could expect to spend would be close to $2000.

Of course, it would be possible to float a loan, or raid the family savings to a serious degree, but we felt we had to find another solution—i.e., to do well by our young, and stay solvent.

We found the answer and it all worked out beautifully. Not in one big, gigantic reception but in a series of small parties before the wedding. Of course there were a few disgruntled periphery people, but then one can't worry about them and they would have been much more disgruntled had we had a reception and excluded them.

We couldn't have a regular reception at home. While our apartment is ample and comfortable for us, it wouldn't take the crowd. This led us to the idea of entertaining people in groups. The groups were to be made up of people who would have something in common, and parties for them were to be held at intervals of about a week. For instance, first we entertained the prospective groom's immediate family and ours (about 15 people) at a dinner party. Minnie, savior of our family in past back-to-the-wall situations, saved that day by coming in to serve the dinner and clean up afterwards. The meal was simple yet adequately festive, and there was plenty left for seconds—appetizers, a glazed baked ham with vegetables and all the trimmings, wine, dessert, and coffee. The cost, including cocktails before dinner and flowers for the table, came to approximately $50.

The next party was for friends of our family. These were the really close ones who were delighted with an opportunity to spend an evening with the happy couple and get to know the prospective groom much better than they ever would at the usual reception. Just rolled sandwiches, dips, and drinks served for this. The final bill for nine guests—a conservative $40.

After that there was a duplicate evening for the groom's family friends. We entertained 12 guests at this party and spent about $45.

Then there was an evening party for about 25 consisting of people with whom our daughter and her fiancé worked. We got away for $75 on this get-together.

Have you ever noticed how few young people are present at the usual wedding reception? Those obligatory people make it impossible for the young couple to include as many of their friends as they would like. So, last of all was a buffet and cocktail party for about 16 friends of the bride- and groom-to-be. These are always easy things to manage. Minnie came back again for this one, and we had the food catered—hors d'oeuvres and cocktail sandwiches. With all, this ran about $95.

And that was it. Invitations were issued for church attendance only, and at the end of the ceremony the bridal party and parents greeted everyone at the back of the church. After that only the bride and groom, immediate families, and the two attendants came back to our apartment for wedding cake and champagne. (We bought the cake, but if you happen to have someone in your family who has a baker's talents you might save a little money here. There are plenty of marvelous wedding-cake recipes in the etiquette books that include wedding-party recipes; also check the special sections in entertaining cookbooks.)

Our daughter and her fiancé were as delighted and relaxed about this kind of wedding reception as we were. The series of parties—and they were well but simply done—cost us about $300. And we had entertained over 70 people. Quite a contrast with the usual way of things. After it was over the most important factor was that the people who mattered most to the couple had had an opportunity to spend some time with them, and that, taken in small groups, this was an easy way to celebrate the wedding.

Anyone who has ever observed that stiff-faced couple at a formal reception (they seldom enjoy it!) will agree that this is worth considering. For us it was a smash hit all the way through. — N. A. H.

if you're SHOPPING FOR A RANGE

Lucky you! Never before has there been such a choice of styles, features, and conveniences. You can almost custom-select the right range to fit your needs and your pocketbook. Here are some of the things you'll find when you shop for a new range.

STYLING NEWS

The increasing popularity of the eye-level ovens, both in the single-oven, stack-on range and the double-oven range, has brought many new models of this type on the market—in all prices, with a larger selection of features. Good news for you if you like the convenience and space-saving features of an eye-level range.

All ranges are incorporating design and styling features to make them trimmer and better looking than ever.

CLEANING FEATURES

Three major range manufacturers are offering ranges with self-cleaning ovens this year. Some are offering them in their moderately priced ranges as well as their deluxe top-of-the-line models.

Other range manufacturers have made oven cleaning much easier by incorporating features such as removable oven liners, Teflon-coated or chrome oven liners (some of these are removable also), foil oven liners, disposable oven liners, and special broiling features designed to eliminate or cut down the problem of grease splattering on oven walls.

SPECIAL NEW FEATURES

An automatic stirrer. A magnetic field in an electric cooking unit controls a magnet in a stirring device which you put in the pan.

A cook-and-hold control on a thermostatically controlled gas burner. This works much like the familiar cook-and-hold oven control. It cooks your food to the desired degree of doneness according to the time and temperature you select, then automatically reduces the heat and holds it at the right serving temperature.

AND DON'T FORGET THESE

New in the past few years but also worth remembering: built-in ventilating systems, broiling features such as speed broiler, adjustable broiling height for different thicknesses of meat, infrared gas broilers, smokeless broiling.

Others are the automatic cook-and-hold oven, automatic oven meat cooker, automatic meat tenderizer control in oven, extra-low oven-warm-

THE ELECTRONIC RANGE

There's a new look for the fabulous electronic range. This is the range that cooks with microwave energy. The microwaves are absorbed by the food where they generate the energy that cooks the food—from the inside out. Oven and cooking utensils remain cool; cooking time is cut to a fraction of normal cooking time.

The new model is part of a unit called the electronic cooking center. In appearance, it resembles the conventional eye-level, double-oven free-standing range. However, the top oven is actually an electronic oven. The lower oven is a conventional electric oven and four cooking surface elements complete the unit.

WHAT YOU SHOULD BUY

The range you buy will depend upon your space needs, features important to your way of cooking, and how much money you have to spend on a range. Just remember—a little extra money spent for a feature that's important to you and your cooking needs is never money wasted and will be repaid many times over in time and energy saved.

To help you in your selection of a range and to find out more about the features being offered this year, send for the revised edition of American Home Buyers' Guide to Ranges. It contains a comprehensive listing of the styles and features each manufacturer is offering. Send 15¢ (no stamps please) to: American Home, Reader Service, Dept. BG-1, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

SHOPPING FOR OTHER APPLIANCES?

Then you'll want to send for our other American Home Buyers' Guides. Women Drivers of homemaking, women drive our most precious cargo—children. Round trips to school, dancing lessons, dentists, doctors, and club meetings are just a few of the more important appointments. Running a husband to and from the station plus numerous trips during the day to supply other family needs make up a great part of her day.

Literally, she qualifies as a cabby meeting deadline after deadline as faithfully as a postman. And unfortunately much of her driving is accompanied by howling children, barking dogs, a tired husband, or a worried thought of whether she will be on time for her next pickup. Following are some tips that should make her driving easier.

TIPS FOR WOMEN ONLY

1. See that each child you carry has a seat belt or harness. Buckle each one in, as well as yourself, before you move the car.
2. Make sure all doors are closed and locked before you move. Special locks or removing the inside rear door handles can further insure safety when carrying children.
3. An extra mirror installed under the regular mirror can let you watch your passengers without turning around.
4. Appoint an older child copilot to help control children.
5. Before you start your car moving, make sure your passengers, including children not your own, understand the rules of discipline you want maintained.
6. If a need arises to restrap, rebuckle, or discipline a child pull the car over to the shoulder immediately and stop. Then take the necessary action. Do not try physical discipline while the car is moving.
7. If you have power-operated windows make sure all hands and heads are clear when you put them up. With small children you should have a lock-out master switch over each individual window switch or have them disconnected. You cannot trust the control of a dangerous window to a child.
8. The rear window on a station wagon can be especially dangerous. If it remains open a good deal, have a screen installed.
9. If you must leave your car for even a few seconds, make it a habit to park your car securely with the engine off and take the keys with you. With the modern automatic transmission it is too easy for a car to be shifted.
10. Try to arrive at your pickup point a few minutes early and park in a position that will enable you to pull out forward when leaving. Backing is normally dangerous because of vision limitations, but doing it with children or in heavy traffic increases the danger. This Westinghouse uses plain tap water...
Steam'N Sprinkle iron
Fill it up...

and feel it glide
double-coated
Teflon® bottom.

This is the iron that makes ironing easier from the moment you pick it up till you put it away. Just fill it up at the faucet, it's ready to glide through the toughest ironing job. The bottom is now double-coated with Teflon® (DuPont's registered trademark for its TFE non-stick finish) so it just won't stick, even on heavily starched fabrics. And there are 17 vents for deep steam penetration and maximum working surface. Want to sprinkle? This iron sprinkles on any setting. Has every other feature you need in an iron, too. A Single Dial Control. Fabric Guide. Water Window. Yet all this iron needs is plain tap water, and a guiding hand.

*In extreme hard water areas continuous use of tap water is not recommended, but periodic use of tap water is satisfactory.

Multi-Action Cordless Electric Toothbrush:

The Westinghouse toothbrush has been provisionally accepted as an effective cleansing device for use as part of a program of oral hygiene to supplement the regular professional care required for oral health.

PERMANENT-FOLD ROMAN SHADES

Permanent-fold Roman shade requires cutting your fabric 3 times as long as the desired length. Cut width same as the window, adding 3 inches for side hems. Make 1½-inch side hems and 2-inch top hem. Run a row of stitching 1 inch below the top edge to make a rod casing. For the shaped bottom, draw design on heavy paper.

When you have achieved desired effect, use paper pattern to cut the bottom edge and facing piece. Turn under raw edges and face. Next, stitch a length of narrow, firmly woven tape down each side, about 3 inches from the edge. Then, spacing the tapes evenly, about 8 inches apart, stitch lengths of the tape from top to bottom across the entire shade width.

Our window was 30 inches wide so only 4 lengths of tape were needed, 2 on each edge and 2 positioned 8 inches apart. Sew rings of the Roman-shade type every 3 inches down the full length of each tape, making sure they are directly in line with each other. Secure a narrow, flat board under the top of the window frame with angle irons. Position a rod 2 inches below board. Insert a screw eye in board directly above each row of rings on the tapes. Fasten a draw cord to the first ring at bottom of each row, thread up through the rings to top and then through screw eye. Affix a screw eye large enough to take all cords at top corner of window. After all cords are threaded, pull to side through this large screw eye. Lower shade and knot cords together at screw eye. Attach a decorative cord pull to the knotted cords for raising and lowering.

The Roman shade is combined with the simplest type of cafe curtain. Measure after rod is mounted. Make curtains twice width of window for smart fullness. Allow 4 inches on each curtain side for 1-inch-wide side hems (folded double). Allow 6 inches for top and bottom hems and casing. Make two-inch double top hem and a 1-inch bottom hem (folded double). After top is hemmed, stitch across it from side to side, one inch below top edge, to make the casing. Insert rod and adjust fullness evenly.

FRENCH PROVINCIAL LOOK

setting. Measure length of curtain from top rod to bottom rod, adding 3 inches for top and bottom hems. Double the width of measurement for width of curtain and add 2½ inches for side hems. Cut two lengths of commercial 4-cord shirring tape for each curtain. These should be double the width plus 2 inches.

Hem long sides of the curtains. Hem top and bottom, leaving an opening for rod insertions at sides in the top and bottom hems. Apply shirring tape to wrong side of curtains, positioning 1 inch from edges. Insert rods into top and bottom hems and draw the woven-in tape strings until the desired width is attained. Tie strings at ends and pin to underside of tape. These strings can be released when laundering and ironing, then drawn up again; or may be cut off and the gathers stitched in place permanently.

AUSTRIAN SHADES

Graceful Austrian draperies or shades require plenty of fullness. To achieve this, the length of your fabric should measure 3 times the length of the finished shade. The width is the same as the window width, plus 3 inches for each set of scallops.

For our shade with fine scallops, we added 21 inches allowance to the window width. Each scallop should be 8 to 10 inches wide to be graceful and all the same width when finished. If you need more than one width of fabric for your shade, plan the joining seams to coincide with the shirring tapes between scallops. Join fabric widths with ½" seams, pressing as you stitch. Trim to ¼". Hem sides and lower edge. Make hem and 1-inch casing at top. Sew special commercial Austrian-shade shirring tape that comes with rings already attached, over each side hem on the wrong side, starting with a ring at the lower edge. Stitch shirring tape down length of shade at even intervals (about 10 inches apart) across the whole width. Our shade used 6 tapes.

Take care to keep the rings directly in line with each other. Make sure shirring cords are knotted at lower edge to prevent their pulling out. Draw up the woven-in shirring cords evenly to desired length. Knot and fasten cords at top. Cover a thin curtain rod and slide through rings, 2 inches above lower hem, tacking to the shade at sides. Fasten draw cords to each bottom ring and thread through rings to top. Mount shade and fasten draw cords in the same manner as for Roman shades.

VICTORIAN DRAPERIES, SWAG, AND JABOTS

Lined draperies: Two (striped cotton fabric) draperies are required for each window. Cut fabric 9 inches longer than desired finished length; cut fabric 6 inches wider than desired finished width (twice width of window). Cut lining (cotton sateen) 3 inches shorter, 4 inches narrower than fabric. Cut off selvages. Join widths of fabric and lining until they are correct sizes. If seam in drapery is off-center, it should fall toward outside of window. Drapery and lining seams should match.

Turn up $\frac{1}{2}$ inch to wrong side at bottom of drapery; stitch. Turn up 5-inch hem. Hem by hand. Turn up $\frac{1}{2}$ inch at lower edge of lining on wrong side; turn up 2-inch hem. Hem by hand. Place drapery and lining, right sides together, so that hem of lining covers 2 inches of drapery hem. Pin side edges together, hems should be same distance apart on both sides. With lining on top, machine-stitch both sides $\frac{1}{2}$ inch from edge. Turn right side out.

Lay drapery on flat surface; smooth lining so that 2 inches of drapery extend beyond lining on both sides. Baste top edges together. Using pleater tape, make pinch pleats at top of drapery. Fasten bottom hem of lining to drapery with three or four French tacks. Hang with drapery pins.

Center swag: Finished swag and jabots are tacked to 4-inch-deep, 1-inch-thick board same width as window. Board is attached to top of window with angle irons. (Note: Make pattern for swag and jabots in muslin before cutting fabric to determine exact size and proportion.)

Width of board determines top width of swag. Bottom width of swag depends on desired depth. As an example, for a 15-inch-deep swag the fabric should be cut 8 inches wider at the bottom than at the top. For each inch in depth, add 2 inches of width at the bottom.

Cut top of swag (floral print) straight on crosswise grain of fabric, 1 inch wider than board. Allow $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches extra length at top for hem; allow $\frac{1}{2}$ inch extra length at bottom for seam. Cut sides diagonally so that bottom is correct width for depth of swag. Cut lining (cotton sateen) same size as swag, eliminating $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch top hem.

Right sides together, stitch lining and swag together across lower edge. Trim seam; press. Turn wrong sides together; press. Turn top of swag under $\frac{1}{2}$ inch; turn 1 inch; press. Stitch $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch twill tape to back of hem just below top crease. Pin side edges of lining and swag together; stitch $\frac{1}{4}$ inch from edge; press. Fold; pin pleats in place. To lay pleats, work from top. Pleats may be $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches to 2 inches deep. Second pleat overlaps first, third overlaps second, etc., until entire piece is pleated. Stitch over pleats $\frac{1}{4}$ inch from edge, working bottom to top. Turn hem to underside; pin; slipstitch. Tack swag to board through twill tape across top. Tack at each end.

Jabots: For the average window the outside length of jabots should be about 30 inches, 18 inches, or 20 inches across. When cut, they are shaped like this:

Unlined drapery: Measure from rod to floor to determine length; add 6 inches. Measure from side frame to side frame to determine width; double this measurement; add 6 inches. Cut off selvage edges; seam panels together. Finish side hems, using 1-inch double hem. Press seams and hems. To make top casing, turn edge to underside $\frac{1}{4}$ inch. Turn down $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch hem. Pin, machine stitch, and press. To make bottom hem, turn edge to underside $\frac{1}{2}$ inch; machine stitch. Turn $4\frac{1}{2}$ -inch hem allowance. Hem by hand. Insert rod in casing, making sure that fullness is even. Attach rod to back of arch.

BOOKCASE DRAPERY

Frame window area with 1x3" boards; add two 5-inch boards at top and bottom. Attach $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch curtain rod to top. Bottom rod is attached after draperies are made.

Drapery: for length measure from top to middle of bottom panel, add 2 inches for top and bottom casings. For width, measure from side frame to side frame; double this and add 6 inches for side hems and seams. Cut off all selvages; sew panels together. Finish sides with 1-inch double folded hems. Press seams and hems. For top casing make $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch hem (with $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch turn-in). Pin; sew; press. Repeat for bottom casing. Insert rod in top, distribute fullness. Attach rod to top frame. Insert rod in bottom casing, pull taut and determine the correct position for brackets; attach the rod to the frame back.

MAGNOLIAS

These are among the first trees of spring to provide your garden with colorful flowers. Two species, the Asiatic and the American, can be planted. The former blooms before the leaves appear, while blooms of the American types appear with the leaves in late May to midsummer. Magnolias have handsome, smooth, dark green, somewhat leathery foliage, marvelous for flower arrangements. When the sweetly fragrant blooms are gone the tree is one of the most beautiful you could wish for, clothed in good-looking leaves and smooth gray bark.

Magnolias are easy to maintain, requiring a fertile, well-drained soil, preferably mulched to hold moisture in. You can plant them in part shade but they thrive best in full sun. If you plant one of the large-leaved species, protect it from winter winds.

There are varieties to grow in the North as well as the South. The handsome evergreen Southern magnolia (Magnolia grandiflora) is not hardy in the North although it will grow in some protected locations. One of the easiest to grow, and one that thrives under difficult city conditions is M. soulangeana, the saucer magnolia. It is a globe-shaped tree 15 to 20 feet tall. There are many named varieties with large, cup-shaped, beautifully colored blooms. The most frequently seen are those whose petals are soft pink on the outside, creamy white inside. The flowers of 'Lennei' are tinted a deep purple pink and white.

Magnolia stellata, the star magnolia, bears star-shaped blooms on a shrublike plant. Flowers are about three inches across, very fragrant, in white and pink. Petals are ribbonlike, graceful. This is the first magnolia to bloom and may be touched by frost in the north, unless you plant it in an exposed location where the cold will retard flowering until danger of frost is past. The shrub grows to about ten feet, the foliage is dark green.

Another early bloomer is anise magnolia (M. salicifolia), named for the leaves which emit a fragrance of anise when bruised. Flowers are white.

If you have room for a large tree, with lovely large flowers, plant the Yulan magnolia (M. denudata). It bears six-inch, lemon white to white fragrant blooms, early in the season.

The silverleaf magnolia blooms after the leaves unfold, and has pink or white flowers. Leaves are large, eight to 16 inches long. A tall grower.

Our southern or bull bay magnolia (M. grandiflora) is one of the most beautiful flowering trees—its form and flowers are matchless. It's a tall evergreen tree with large, dark green leaves rust-colored on the undersides. Fragrant white flowers appear in late spring through summer. Although it's been grown in protected spots north, it is generally not hardy in cold climates.

high intensity lamps

You have been seeing it around a lot lately—that versatile little lamp called “high intensity.” It is small in size, with an adjustable arm and swivel shade. We call it “the tiny giant” because, although small, its light is very bright. It’s different from other lamps because it focuses a whiter, brighter light on a small area.

What makes high-intensity lighting new today is the way the lamp is designed—a small unit, a small bulb, a well-directed shade, plus a light more intense than ance isn’t the important thing in a high-intensity lamp. It is functional—it does a job.

The high-intensity lamp is a great little eye saver for doing close work. It’s useful for sewing, reading, writing—a perfect solution for the night owl who reads in bed while her spouse tries to get to sleep, or for the student who studies into the wee small hours. It also makes that from a big bulb.

High-intensity lamps are not meant to be decorative. In fact, an advertisement for one used to boast of its “ugliness.” They’ve become so popular lately, though, that they’re now being made in trim designs and pretty pastel colors. But appearance a good night lamp for children or a “make-up” light to place next to your bedroom and bathroom mirrors.

What accounts for the extra whiteness of a high-intensity lamp? A transformer (usually contained in the base) and a small bulb. The transformer reduces the regular household current of 110 to 120 volts to six to 12 volts, making possible the use of the small bulb (one originally designed for an automobile headlight). The bulb burns at a higher temperature, producing a whiter, brighter light. The (continued)

(continued) light is closer to natural daylight, making colors truer, sharpening the outline of objects, and eliminating shadows. Because of their brightness, these bulbs are more expensive than conventional light bulbs and don't last as long. But for the amount of light produced, they use less electricity than an ordinary bulb of equal intensity.

High-intensity lamp bulbs don't have the screw-type base of conventional bulbs. Most of them are held in the socket by prongs located at the base of the lamp.

Some high-intensity lamps use a small 40-watt bulb with a special socket instead of a transformer. But this light is not as white as the one produced with a transformer.

If you want to compare the whiteness of a high-intensity lamp with that of an ordinary incandescent lamp, put a piece of white paper under the light of each. You'll notice that the paper appears whiter under the high-intensity lamp.

In most of these lamps you have two light levels to choose from—high and low. Because the shades swivel and the arms telescope and pivot, they are easily adjustable. They're also easily portable and many can be hung on the wall.

position the shade so that the light is below eye level. This prevents the glare from hitting you in the eyes. (You should never look directly at the bulb.)

There is a controversy as to whether it's better to use the lamp alone or in conjunction with other lighting. Using it in combination with another light source is best, according to the Better Light, Better Sight Bureau and other experts. This is known as "plus lighting." This combination of lighting is supposed to reduce eye fatigue by eliminating high contrast and deep shadows, which can be bothersome.

But other lighting consultants and ophthalmologists advise using the lamp as the sole source of light. They contend that a light brighter than the surroundings is helpful for concentration, that it's good for the eyes to adjust from light to dark, and that a lack of variety in lighting is one of the leading causes of eye fatigue.

The best thing to do is to try your high-intensity lamp both ways—alone and with other lighting. After working under both sets of conditions, pick out the way that is most comfortable to you.

Well suited to the grooming area. Keystone. $9.95.

News Notes

By Virginia T. Habeeb

It's a constant source of amazement to see how food processors, appliance and housewares manufacturers, keep coming up with so many new items for daily and practical use. Every day finds an easier way to do something we've been doing the hard way for years. This automatic clothes brush was one of the many new items we saw at the recent Housewares Show in Chicago. It's cordless and rechargeable, from General Electric. Other items of interest . . . Attractive Pyrex mixing bowl from Corning Glass Works. So pretty you can even serve punch from them when you're not using them for mixing cakes . . . Many of our favorite irons are now sporting Teflon-coated sole-plates . . . Bath accessories—hampers, soap dishes, etc.—have taken an adventurous swing into bright, vivid colors in place of traditional pastels.

What's new about blenders? The electronic solid-state control, introduced by Waring on their timer-blender, is now available on new blenders from Westinghouse and Rival. With this control, you can dial the speed of the blender fast or slow just as you dial your radio volume. The greater flexibility of speed increases the things you can do with the blender. (You can even whip egg whites with it!)

ature range up to 350° so you can select the proper cooking temperature.

Bright supermarket news this month: Pepperoni Pizza is Chef Boy-Ar-Dee's latest packaged pizza mix. . . . Mixed Seafood Grill, a frozen 3-course dinner from Swanson, includes haddock, shrimp, scallops, and fish croquettes. . . . From Betty Crocker Kitchens come Butter Brickle Cake and Frosting mixes. Tastes like the famous butter brickle ice cream 'cause they have the same bits in them. . . . A quick-cooking dinner from Golden Grain Macaroni Company is Noodle-Roni Romanoff. . . . Tomato Sauce with Cheese is new from Hunt's. . . . Honeysuckle Turkey Roast, a new convenience item from Ralston Purina Company, is a frozen 2½-pound boneless roast, ready to cook (giblets and all) in its own foil pan with a gravy packet included!

Try this clever storage trick for tiny cans of hors d'oeuvres-type foods (sardines, anchovies, smoked oysters, etc.). Invest in a small plastic dishpan—put all your small cans in it and place on a shelf within easy reach. A simple solution to the pesky chore of fishing through wobbly stacks of cans.

Country Cookery cookware is a new idea in enamelware from Sterno, Inc. Each of the eight utensils has its own individual heat stand. By adjusting flame, you can use the stand to cook the food or to keep cooked foods warm. In four lively colors—bayberry blue, flame red, lime green, and mocha tan. Cookware for the patio!

Have you heard about the new method of applying a Teflon finish? It's called the Boeclad process and is used by Revere for the Perma-Loc finish they now feature on a line of utensils. With this finish, the utensils are durable and nonscratch as well as nonstick. Using this process also makes it possible to Teflon-coat satisfactorily a wider variety of utensil materials for top-of-the-range cookery.

It's getting easier and easier to be beautiful—thanks to manufacturers' ingenuity in providing us with a parade of beauty-care products. Here are just a few: Electric combs from Owen Franks and Meteor. Electric hairbrush from Ronson. Electric manicure set from Sunbeam. And more hair dryers—all kinds and sizes. We especially like the new portables in their good-looking, easy-to-tote cases.

Even vacuum cleaners are going fancy these days. For example: Shetland Lewyt's new Fashionables—decorated canister vacuum cleaners. They come in eight different designs, each with its own bright color. All models, from delux to economy, cost no more than the company's regular, nondecorated cleaners of the same price range.

Sunbeam's new Courier canister cleaner features briefcase styling. This compact unit (available in three models) is designed to be easy to store and to maneuver.

Eureka has a new two-speed lightweight upright vacuum cleaner with clean-cut styling as well as features for greater cleaning power.

Every once in a while we run across a household tip by accident that is worth its weight in dollar bills! If you like stuffed vegetables such as green peppers, cabbage, or squash, and make your filling of ground meat and rice, keep the filling light and fluffy by adding about 1 tablespoon lemon juice (for each pound of meat) to the meat-rice mixture.

QUIET

Anyone knows Tampax tampons help you go all out for action. But what about the quiet corner of your life?

Here are some of the "quiet" advantages of Tampax tampons.

1. You can sit for long periods with no discomfort.
2. Whatever you wear, you're perfectly at ease.
3. Tampax tampons are very unobtrusive. You can carry a couple in your bag under a hankie.
4. You don't have any disposal problems.
5. And Tampax tampons always keep your secret. Quiet!

HOW TO PAINT A CHEST

Have drippy runs every time you paint furniture? Here's how to have a clean, neat job.

1 Remove drawers, hardware.
Fill brush with paint, but not dripping. Brush paint on one side of chest; work from bottom to top. Use a vertical stroke and overlap each brush stroke lightly. Work fast. Smooth out runs. Repeat on other side.

2 Paint frames for drawers on front of chest. Watch corners; too much paint will drip. Keep it smooth.

3 Paint top of chest from back so you won't stand in front of the wet front surface.

THE RIGHT WAY TO USE AN AX

By Robert B. Berger

The ax is one of the most useful of all tools, provided you know the right way to use it.

First of all, an ax must have that almost indefinable quality—balance. If you're buying one, be fussy. Heft several to find the one that feels right. Generally, two types are available: the single-bit, which has one cutting edge, and the double-bit or two-edged type, favored by lumberjacks. For the home owner, the single-bit is preferable because it is safer to use, and its flat back makes it a reasonably effective tool for driving stakes and posts. Whichever type you choose, get one with a so-called bonded head to eliminate the dangerous problem of loosening.

No matter how strong and athletic you may be, don't buy a heavy ax. A light head, no more than about 2½ pounds, is easier to swing with maximum accuracy and minimum fatigue. Best handle length is about 27 inches.

While chopping, wear leather work gloves. Even a few minutes' swinging can raise painful blisters. Leather gives more protection and a better grip than the usual cotton work gloves. In winter, a special precaution is in order. If the temperature is much below freezing, take the ax in the house to warm up before use. A cold edge may break.

For a start, let's cut a sapling and work our way up from there. As small as it is, a sapling presents a special problem because its springiness absorbs the force of each blow. The trick is to bend it and make an angular cut close to the ground. Swing the ax with one hand, like a hatchet, holding it near the head.

It's always a temptation for the weekend wood chopper to put all his strength into every swing. That's a sheer waste of energy. Instead, try for an easy, accurate swing and make certain that the blade slants into the work. Trying to cut at a 90° angle to the grain is ineffective and can cause injury if the blade glances off uncontrollably.

A routine job for the axman is lopping branches from a fallen tree. This should be done from the underside, where the cut can be made with the grain; don't cut downward into the crotch of the limb. It's especially important to remember this when trimming branches from live trees. Cutting upward, with the grain, slices smoothly into the wood.

When cutting fireplace kindling, don't try the woodsman's technique of holding the stick between the fingers while you split it with a one-handed swing. That's fine if you're a woodsman, but most other people chop fingers that way. A better way is to lay the wood on a chopping block or log. Never prop the wood up at one end and chop in the center in an attempt to break it in two. Wood will go flying, endangering you and anyone standing nearby.

Cutting a fairly large tree requires some planning. Examine the tree carefully, looking for large, dead branches that may fall while you chop. If there are any high, heavy dead limbs, leave the job to a tree surgeon; but if all is in order, wait for a windless day and go to work.

Almost invariably, trees grow with a definite lean. It's best, if possible, to fell the tree the way it's slanted. This can be done by chopping first on the side facing the direction of lean, alternating between downward-slanting and upward cuts. To avoid crowding the blade, make a wide bucket-shaped notch. After the first cut has gone a little more than halfway through the tree, move to the opposite side of the tree and cut a similar notch a few inches higher than the first one.

When the tree starts to fall, step to the side. Don't stand directly behind, as it may kick back on its stump with great force as it topples.

Whether you're cutting a sapling or felling a full-size tree, always be sure that if you miss a swing your feet will be clear of the blade. It's particularly important to keep this in mind when trimming limbs off a downed tree. If you're standing on the trunk as you work, the blade is a constant menace. If possible, roll the tree so that you don't have to climb on the trunk to chop off branches.

Another safety tip: It's best not to wear sneakers when chopping wood, as they afford little or no protection if a wild blow strikes your foot. It may seem paradoxical, but a well-sharpened ax is safer to use than a dull one. A keen edge bites into the work; a dull one glances off uncontrollably. Sharpen with a flat mill file that's coarse on one side and fine on the other. If the edge is very dull or nicked, start with the coarse side. If possible, C-clamp the ax to the edge of a workbench and make all file strokes in one direction, from the edge toward the head. Lift the file on the return stroke. After filing, remove the burr by honing with a whetstone, using a circular motion. Ordinarily, it won't be necessary to file the ax very often, but it should be honed before every chopping session.

Should the ax handle loosen, it's not difficult to fix temporarily. After greasing the head to prevent rusting stand the ax in a bucket of water overnight. The handle will swell and the head will fit snugly. For a permanent repair, drive in new wedges, preferably metal ones. These are obtainable at most hardware stores that sell tools.

When an ax is not in use, keep it sheathed. A section of old garden hose long enough to cover the edge provides adequate protection. Just slit the hose and tie it over the edge.

Concentrated cleaning power especially for electric toothbrushes

Electrx™ gives you 4 advantages for automatic brushing!

1. Concentrated cleaning power. Electric toothbrushes have smaller brush heads—use far less toothpaste than ordinary toothbrushes. This new toothpaste provides the concentrated cleaning power you need for efficient performance.

2. New ribbon shape. Electrx comes out of the tube in a ribbon that lies flat and is designed to hold better on high-speed brushes.

3. Minty flavor. A new flavor formulation that looks and tastes like fresh green mint. It appeals to adults and is a special favorite of children. Helps stop bad breath, too!

4. Clinically tested formula. When used in a program of good oral hygiene, Electrx is effective in helping to reduce new cavities.

WHY ARE BIG, BIG LOADS SUCH A BREEZE FOR THE NEW PHILCO WASHER?

Now Philco gives you a better way to wash. Gentler. More effective. And with far more room in the tub. You can actually wash as much as double the average load!

Philco calls this better way to wash "Blades of Water" action. A flexible water impeller deep inside the washer makes 575 strokes a minute. Powerful surges of water go through and through the wash. These are the "blades" of the new Philco. They wash away the dirt, not the fabric.

HERE'S NEW CONVENIENCE. Philco's extra-wide Contour Top makes loading the easiest ever. Exclusive Philco Ball Point Balance automatically adjusts to off-balance loads, never shuts off in mid-spin. And with as many as four programmed wash cycles and two automatic soak cycles, you're ready for any washing job with a new Philco.

HERE'S NEW DEPENDABILITY. Philco has reduced structural and moving parts by 27%. Many common washer problems have been engineered right out of existence!

But, most important, here's a better way to wash. One that can handle even really big loads.

Make it a point to see all the exciting Philco laundry products. Philco Dryers with exclusive Criss-Cross Tumbling. Philco Duomatics, the combination washer-dryers that fit in the space of a washer alone. And the new Philco Automatic Washers that give you "Blades of Water" action for the best washing job you've ever seen.

DRAGON'S BLOOD CREEPING SEDUM
(Sedum Spurium, Dragon's Blood)

Brilliant Red Flowers in Summer, Green Foliage in Winter—Lasts a Lifetime! Here's the nearest thing to a maintenance-free planting. Never overruns itself, never needs pruning, is disease and insect-free, scoffs at worst winter conditions, ignores summer heat and drought, and is among the longest-lived plants known. Brilliant red clusters of star-shaped flowers bloom June to fall; semi-evergreen foliage completely covers the ground even when not in bloom.

Never Grows Taller Than 4"! Perfect For A Hundred Landscape Uses! Now cover poor and sandy waste places where almost nothing else will grow: under trees, in rock gardens, banks or borders, any area of your garden. Spreads rapidly, thrives in full sun or partial shade. Beautiful in front of flower borders. For a luxuriant ground cover, plant one foot apart.

When it's sopping outdoors, go shopping indoors.
Just curl up with your phone and call your favorite stores for anything your family needs. You're never "locked-in"
by weather or baby or lack of a car when you have your phone nearby.
And the cost of calling is such a bargain.

Hiya, Herschel . . . what's new around the castle?

Oh oh . . . I'd better cut out before Charger here makes with the hoof marks, huh?

Hmmm . . . bet an Azrock Florentine Marble floor would look great in my castle, too.

You're lookin' at it, Clyde . . . the King's new floor of embossed Florentine Marble in Azrock vinyl asbestos tile. It's the latest!

No problem. That marble tracery styling is embossed . . . to help conceal heel and scuff marks. Easy cleaning, too . . . in colors that really sing . . . and the price is right.

Clyde, I'm with you. What say we ride down to our Azrock merchant listed in the Yellow Pages? Lead on!

Ivory Liquid's Mary Mild says:

“‘Dishraggedy’ hands? Today’s Ivory Liquid with its Young-Hands Formula can help them look young again...”

...kinda like you had a maid, like me, to do your dishes!

'Tis a pity how housework can make hands rough, old-looking, “dishraggedy”...

But I've got good news for you... proper hand care and today's Ivory Liquid make hands look young again...

“...kinda like you had a maid, like me, to do your dishes. Try it now!”

Try today's Ivory Liquid with its Young-Hands Formula. It's mild, so pure and creamy white...makes longer-lasting suds, too!
