It's 225 calories. It tastes like 2,225 calories.

Slender® from Carnation, mixed with cold, fresh milk, just doesn't taste like a liquid diet ought to. Slender tastes rich. Creamy. Satisfying. You have to keep reminding yourself that it's only 225 calories. And a completely balanced diet meal. Isn't it about time somebody put a little fun in your diet?
This is Counterspace Cooking. There's never been anything like it.

The Counter That Cooks has no coils, no burners, no grease traps. You cook on a smooth, tough Pyroceram® glass ceramic surface that's as beautiful as it is functional.

Each of the invisible electric heating elements is thermostatically controlled—providing heat so even and precise you may never need a double boiler again. The individual sunbursts turn yellow to tell you which cooking area is on, but the rest of the countertop stays cool. And you can imagine how easy it is to clean up spills and boil-overs.

The Counter That Cooks comes with a complete set of Cookmates—cookware specially designed for Counterspace Cooking.

I lost 86 pounds, before my husband came home on leave.

By Christine Stanley — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

When my husband left for duty in Thailand, I weighed 205 pounds. “Babyspeck” he called me. That’s German for “baby fat.” But I tell you, when you are 24 years old and the mother of two children, it can’t be that.

Always, I loved food. I remember my first day in school in Mannheim, Germany. It was the custom for each child to have her picture taken with a big paper cone, filled with candies. I wanted bread, meat and cake. And I got them.

When graduation from high school came, I was so round, the only dates I had were with girls for the movies. Then I got a job and realized how important it was to be slim. So I tried hard to reduce. But not too sensibly. Once, all I ate for almost two weeks was bread and coffee. I made myself so sick and exhausted, I had to take time off to get myself well again. Isn’t that shameful?

It’s a wonder my husband ever looked at me. He is a sergeant in the regular army and we met when he was stationed in Germany. I spoke pretty good English, learned from school, so we got on from the beginning. Maybe that was one of the big attractions. However, when I started cooking, German style, for him, he stayed skinny, but I got much fatter.

Even when I was expecting my son, and the doctor threatened to put me in the hospital to lose weight, I couldn’t make myself do it. Luckily my baby was born all right and not hurt from all the fat I was carrying around.

After that, my husband was teasing me all the time and pinching the flab around my ribs, yet I couldn’t get rid of it.

It was about then, my husband left for Thailand. I hadn’t been weighed for a long time, so, while visiting a friend, I got on her scales. I couldn’t believe my eyes. 205 pounds! My friend gasped. “Christine, you’re only 24 years old. What will you weigh when you’re 30?”

My answer was to go to a drugstore and buy a box of vanilla caramel Ayds. I’d been reading the stories of people who had lost weight with the help of them, and I thought maybe they could help me.

Well, I took Ayds exactly as directed. One or two before meals with a hot drink. And they really helped me eat less. Why, the first week I lost eight pounds on the Ayds Plan. Without harmful drugs, too.

And every week after, I lost three or four pounds. Sometimes I switched to the plain chocolate fudge type Ayds, other times to the chocolate mint fudge. Finally, my clothes got so big I couldn’t take them in any more. So I washed them and packed them in a big army moving box.

Such fun I had buying clothes. I spent even much of my food money to dress up when I reached 119 pounds. I tell you, when my husband came home that Christmas and opened the door, he turned pale. “I’m definitely in the wrong house,” he said.

I’m so thankful to Ayds candies, I can’t tell enough people. Why, the night before my husband went back, we went dancing. When the orchestra finished, he said: “Now I’m going to do something I wasn’t able to do in all five years of our marriage.” Then he picked me up and carried me off the floor. The whole room applauded. For me. But I kept thinking it should have been for Ayds.

KRAFT
See Wrinkles*
Actually Reduced

With Medically Proven
Hormone Application

Now you can see your skin become clearer and younger-looking as *dry-skin wrinkles diminish in only 10 to 12 days. A laboratory test conducted by skin specialists proven conclusively that estrogenic hormones, applied to the skin, actually reduce dry-skin lines and wrinkles to a marked—visible—degree.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula—but without hormones—was applied to the other side.

The results of this "half-woman" test showed that skin lines on the hormone side were clearly, visibly reduced. Many fine lines had disappeared altogether, while even deep wrinkles showed dramatic improvement.

How? Why? Doctors say the hormones cause skin cells to increase their natural moisture. As millions of cells become plumper, they smooth out lines much as you plump up a pillow. Results are often visible in 10 to 12 days.

This anti-wrinkle formula is produced by the trustworthy 56-year-old Mitchum laboratories under the name HORMONEX Beauty Serum. It acts so rapidly because pure hormones are quickly carried into the skin in a penetrating liquid formula.

Note this: Only 7 drops a day of HORMONEX Beauty Serum are the full recommended treatment for face and neck. Just seven drops a day!

The regular 100-day supply comes in a convenient dropper bottle at $3.50—less than 4 cents a day. Look younger quickly. See those dry-skin wrinkles visibly reduced.

You may obtain HORMONEX Beauty Serum at your favorite drug or toiletry counter.

"Barbara is a model housewife. But she's the last person I would expect to brief me about what is going on in the world. So you can imagine my surprise when Barbara began talking about such news as:

1. When peace breaks out: why top economic aid to South Vietnam is on the verge of a business boom.
2. How to make sure you are buying a genuine antique — and not a piece of junk.
3. Your private life may not be a secret: how insurance companies collect data about you.
4. How a new technique with ceramics is expected to put an end to dentures.
5. The tax changes Nixon wants: why you may pay considerably less.
6. After Vietnam — what kind of U.S.-Asian policy?
7. Why a top federal official says that the billions of dollars spent on pollution control have been ineffective.
8. How some organized groups of housewives are waging a battle against high prices and inadequate service.
9. How you can increase and perhaps double your life insurance coverage — without spending a penny more.
10. How families are saving hundreds of dollars on air fares by understanding the airline 'rate language'.
11. Steps to take immediately to protect yourself if you lose your credit cards.
12. How a new invention, using a computer and radio components, may end mid-air collisions of aircraft.
13. Why Canadian officials are considering making it easier for U.S. Army deserters to find sanctuary in Canada.
14. Why parents who want their children to go to college should begin their planning by the 9th grade.
15. How to save money — perhaps hundreds of dollars — when purchasing a new car.
16. Why many people and even clergymen are secretly practicing witchcraft.

"Where did Barbara get all of this information? Certainly not from day time television or the local paper. No — a short while ago, on a friend's advice, she took out a subscription to The National Observer, the national weekly newspaper. I could see the change in her almost immediately, and when I began reading The Observer, too, I knew why. It really explains the news. Each story is not just a collection of facts, but a fascinating, thorough report that puts all the pieces together.

"Since The National Observer presents national and world news without bias, scare headlines or sensationalism, we are glad to see the children pick it up. Now we're all discussing the news in our house."

Today, thousands of families all over the country are enriching their lives and adding to their reading pleasure through The National Observer:

The National Observer is not a magazine . . . not a daily newspaper. It is an entirely new kind of national news weekly for you and your family that fills the gaps in your picture of the world panorama. The Observer not only tells you what's happening, but also why.

All the Major News in Depth

The National Observer is published by Dow Jones & Company, the same world-wide news-gathering organization that publishes The Wall Street Journal. For five successive years, The Observer has won top awards for distinguished reporting.

Because The National Observer is printed on high-speed newspaper presses in its four modern printing plants across the country — and because newspapers can be "made up" faster than magazines — last minute stories can be included only hours before The Observer comes off the press.

You get more news — and you get more out of it. In its full-size newspaper format (printed on our own special crisp, white newsprint) you often get more reading material than in other news weeklies — not just one major "cover story," but five or six. Inside pages are important news pages, too — there's no "letdown." More than 50 excellent pictures and illustrations open windows not only on the people, places and events in the headlines, but also on such colorful sidelights as the amusing spectacle of an elephant giving his autograph.

Many Enjoyable Special Features

Each week, too, The Observer brings you more than a dozen special features that add to your enjoyment or broaden your knowledge in important areas. "This Week in Washington," for example, can be read in a matter of minutes, yet it brings you up to date on significant happenings. "How's Business?" fills you in quickly on important trends in business and industry.

For Bridge enthusiasts, there's "Better Bridge": for crossword fans, a really challenging weekly brain-teaser; for recipe collectors, a gem or two almost every week in "Food for Thought." And for both you and your youngsters, there's a weekly news quiz, plus "Current Events Classroom," a column which brings you news background on topics such as the mystery of certain Unidentified Flying Objects for which the United States Air Force has no explanation. On the lighter side, "Reflections" explores the random aspects of life such as the "good old days" when a pocket watch was a major status symbol. And, "The Compleat Consumer" offers you tips on how to live better and get the best buy for your dollar, whether you're planning to buy a car . . . a camera . . . or take a vacation cruise.

Send No Money — Just Mail Card

You really have to try The National Observer a while to appreciate how much it can mean to you and your whole family. So we invite you to accept this no-risk trial subscription offer. Mail the card today!

Monique Silverman was introduced to art collecting by her husband. "Michael had the interest in art. He liked to paint," recalls Mrs. Silverman. But with their Magritte, Coudrain, Lowndes and African sculpture, Michael Silverman no longer has any room to paint in. Mr. Silverman comes from South Africa and his wife is French. Both work for Boussac of France, Inc., importers of fabrics in the United States, and they travel a good deal. Here and abroad they constantly go to galleries and make an effort never to miss the show of a favorite artist. Mrs. Silverman has no theories about the display of art at home. "It is very personal, just what seems right." The Silvermans, shown with their 15-month-old son, Stephane, Michael's mother and their schnauzer, Tigibus, have been collectors for nine years and she observes, "One sort of changes, one's own taste changes, because of what is going on, you know. And the eye gets used to certain things. You might see a collage and think, 'Oh, that is ugly!' but later you might find that you want to own one." The Silvermans did. Their collage by Italo Valenti is on the wall behind Michael Silverman—the head on the left is Oceanic, from New Guinea.

When Mina McEvoy married, she had a master's degree in art education and her dowry, she recalls, was a collection of art books. It was all new to her husband, but not for long. "He just took over," says Mrs. McEvoy cheerfully. She explains the conversion of Andrew McEvoy as due to his being a lawyer. "Everything was so verbal, so many words all day," she says. "He loved coming home and not reading or talking, just seeing." At first the McEvos were interested in graphics, but then it dawned on them that buying graphics was "a little like eating peanuts. We were spending so much money in dribs and drabs, and we realized that by pooling them we could buy one important object." The McEvos go regularly to galleries and shows and he devours periodicals. It was while looking through a German magazine that he noticed a tiny painting by Fernando Botero. They tracked the artist down through the Pan-American Union and acquired the large charcoal on canvas by which Mrs. McEvoy stands. Baby Alec and his brother, Brian, are amusing their dad. The head on the left is a Leonard Baskin, by the sofa, a Gallo. Over the sofa are the works of Baskin, José Luis Cuevas and Ivan Vial.
Don't settle for some of the taste some of the time.

Viceroy gives you all the taste all the time.
THE GOOD-LOOKING HOMEMAKER By Constance Bartel

IF YOU'VE GOT IT—KEEP IT!

Texas-born Joyce Constantine is a recent convert to high-rise living. She, lawyer husband, Paul, and two-year-old Brian live at Chicago's Lake Point Tower (see page 48) in a contemporary apartment with a dazzling view of Lake Michigan. At twenty-four, Joyce obviously doesn't have to worry about her looks.

Mrs. Constantine is therefore a perfect example of our theme: If you're lucky enough to have something special, take good care of it—because it won't take care of itself. Joyce faithfully follows a conditioning program to ensure that her hair is in shape for streaking. She takes gymnastic classes regularly at a spa conveniently located in her huge apartment building. She creams and protects her pretty hands and skin.

Like Joyce, every woman smart enough to appreciate her own beauty breaks can do something about making them last. Here's how:

EYES: The skin around your eyes is extremely delicate and is the first area to show signs of time. Smooth lids wrinkle and droop. Tiny lines creep and quietly deepen into crow's-feet. Ward everything off by using a good eye cream before you need it. Don't rub, scrub or gouge your eyes. Wear optically correct sunglasses; don't strain your eyes.

FACE: The line from under the ear to the chin doesn't stay firm by itself. First it softens at the edges, then slackens—finally you have jowls. Your mouth, too, is in danger. Isometric facial exercises are your insurance.

Joyce and Paul Constantine are the cheering squad at son Brian's football practice.

TEETH: If yours is a cover-girl smile, you probably are taking proper care of your teeth. But are you gum conscious? It is possible to lose sound white teeth because of weak gum tissue. Gum massage is the answer. Be sure to massage your gums when brushing your teeth. Ask your dentist for proper brushing instructions or about using a water jet device.

NECK: The skin on your throat and neck is almost as perishable as the skin around your eyes. Use throat cream now while it's a protection rather than later when it's a desperate effort. Also exercise your neck and chin several times daily by dropping your head forward, then backward, then swiveling slowly from side to side.

FIGURE: Fifteen minutes of bends and stretches every day of your life is a little investment when a beautiful figure is at stake. And watch your diet. As you get older your need for food decreases, but not your appetite. Start a lifetime habit of high-protein, low-starch eating, with regular control of sweets. Exercise to keep the inner thighs and calves firm, and slather on moisturizing body lotions to prevent dryness and scaliness. Include arms in your muscle-toning and firming exercises.

HANDS: Never let the skin get dry. Use a moisturizing hand cream every time you dry your hands, wear gloves for every household job and wear gloves in damp weather, even if it isn't cold. Joyce Constantine wisely takes nothing for granted. Neither should you. END

Joyce and Paul Constantine are the cheering squad at son Brian's football practice.

A WALK THROUGH CALIFORNIA

By Nancy C. Gray

The other day I walked across the state of California, from the coastline to the fringes of the Eastern Slope. I could have made the trip in half an hour but it took me half a day. And anyone can make it without leaving Oakland!

Actually, the 200-mile excursion is compressed miraculously into 28,000 square feet on the first level of the handsome, new Oakland Museum. In this single space is one region's adventure in the dynamic ecology of today's world.

In minutely detailed, very lifelike dioramas are aspects of environments with which man has so long tampered and must now come to understand. As the exhibit's master-designer, Gordon Ashby, explains, "The message here is not the trip; it is that cerebral man-idea which fits many 'ologies' together into one word, ecology." It's the "hot" word. And it is spelled out here for all to see: Ecology is the totality of relations between organisms and their environment.

The exhibit starts with what A; refers to as the "decompression chamber," ten floor-to-ceiling photo panels that set the spirit of the walk. One darts past these slices of the natural world of California to a "think tank" where ecology is diagrammed in terms of such as matter, energy, time, space, and population. And then the personal experience begins as you slowly from the coastline to the band of mountains where the redwoods stand. Acting curator of natural sciences, Hub D; hopes that some day "we'll be able to spray out essences so we can smell the fragrances characteristic of the regions."

Beyond the first band of mountains lies the Inner Coast Range where one exhibit depicts the seasons in one small community. In lush, moist February the same patch is transforme to dryness and inhabited only by mice who burrow underground. In every display, there are stories to be woven.

California uniquely travels all communities of nature from the Arctic to the tropics. The exhibit is designed to let you examine eight areas of California closely. It is a kind of prelude to what you can expect if you actually visit one region. Coastal Mountains, the four regions of the Inner Coast Range, the Interior Valley with its islands and marshes, the Sierras and High Sierra are recently installed. Yet to come is the Great Basin, deserts and coastline. Dramatic photo murals by Ernest Braun, Philip Hyde and others hint at these. Off to the side of the walk are the general galleries where the "olojpes" and an occasional "ography" one day be at home.

How did this trail-blazing exhibit come about? After the city of Oakland passed its bond for the building (a three-story, gardened masterpiece), Hub D; says, "We were faced with an architectural triumph but no money in its halls." Many stuffed animals lurked in Oakland's (cont)
Great news from Dr. Seuss' for parents of 2 to 6 year olds!

Take these colorful 3 BRIGHT and EARLY BOOKS all for only $1.65 ($5.85 value) with your child's trial enrollment in The Beginning Readers' Program

For the first time ever, there's a new kind of book for very young children. Created by Dr. Seuss and his friends, they're called BRIGHT and EARLY BOOKS—remarkable little stories that give your youngster a jet-propelled start into the world of reading.

Dr. Seuss and his friends have done a wonderful thing! They've created BRIGHT and EARLY BOOKS that charm even very little kids into reading. Extra easy, breezy and gay, BRIGHT and EARLY BOOKS make learning to read really child's play for 2-to-6 year-olds. They talk to a tot about things that are delightfully familiar to him: his eyes and the fun of seeing... his feet and the marvels they can perform... the ideas that a young child finds so fascinating. But humor is the real magic of these enchanting new books. The illustrations are so funny a youngster can't resist them—and from there it's a natural step to reading the clever (but very simple) rhyming words. All it takes is a bit of "read aloud" help from you, and your youngster is off on his way. Slowly at first, then with more assurance, he'll be reading all by himself!

From this happy start—on to bigger things!

The three BRIGHT and EARLY BOOKS shown here are the starter books in the BEGINNING READERS' PROGRAM. They cost $5.85 at the publisher's catalog price. But you may have all three for only $1.65. They'll get your "beginning" beginner off to a happy start in reading. And then it's an easy glide right into reading regular BEGINNER BOOKS... for they begin where BRIGHT and EARLY BOOKS leave off!

As a member of the program, your child will receive a BEGINNER BOOK each month, and you will be billed only $1.65 plus delivery instead of the publisher's catalog price of $1.95 (you save on every book). After accepting four monthly selections, you may cancel membership at any time. Enjoy this 10-day treat free!

It's a delight to watch Dr. Seuss and his friends charm your child into reading. We'd like you to see how they do it. So you're invited to accept the three books shown here for a 10-day free trial. You must be delighted, or you may return the three books and owe nothing. Just fill out and mail the attached reply card (or coupon) today.

Snow Museum which this was to replace. "But we had no assets to finance new collections, only staff. To our thinking, the best collections were already extant, anyway. No point in echoing them; it was time to innovate. 'So why not,' we asked, 'bring all the natural sciences together through ecology?'"

Skilled preparators like Joe Eckert, gluing leaves on aspen twigs, have compressed California into a museum.

For three years, a staff of preparators, people skilled in preparing displays of animals and making models of landscapes, fanned out across the state. One researcher, an eloquent young man named Darrol Shillingburg, estimates he traveled 10,000 to 12,000 miles searching out ingredients. He was also instrumental in building the strange-looking spaceship-on-its-side structure which freeze-dried smaller animals (after they had been killed) and plants.

In the same back room where Shillingburg presides over this piece of weird equipment, a bundle of energy named Vickie Stokes, ex-art teacher, now "tree expert," turns out forests from bits of dill hydrangeas and moss (perfect for trunks), manufacturing trees by dipping these in fine foam, then painting. She also restores freeze-dried or pickled (with glycerine) plants by carefully repainting and detailing. "If we say something with all this," says Vickie, "it's 'stop destroying.'"

Ingenuity mothers continual invention. How successful the venture is may be reflected in a child's uphill scrawl left in an open comment book: "I think this exhibit is very nice. It gives me an idea." Writes an adult, "Strikes deep!" And another, "When will people ever stop and think?"

Believe me, those who see this exhibit do.

THE WOMAN BESIDE
BEHIND
THE WHEEL
By Denise McCluggage
Skill at map reading
can take the tension out of family drives.

It's late and it's dark. Your windshield wipers ticktock at a constant sheet of rain. Your headlights polish the highway with its center line dotting off into terra incognita. "We're lost," the man at the wheel, the head of your household, your mentor and protector admits. "Please get the map out of the glove compartment and find out where we are." (I paraphrase loosely to protect the innocents not quite asleep in the backseat.)

Small wonder many women tremble at the sight of a map. They always seem to be meeting them in emergencies and with the frayed temjper seated at their elbow about to unravel all over the front seat should they be too slow in deciphering head-of-a-pin print dancing about under dim light.

"A map should be regarded as an antidote to panic, not an occasion for it," claims David Greenhood, a map lover who wrote a book called Mapping that is so entertainingly instructive it is liked by people who generally don't even care where north is. The book first came out twenty-five years ago and it deals only tangentially with the road map you are fishing for in the glove compartment.
However, it can make a "map muser" out of you and that's the first step toward becoming a crackerjack navigator.

And if you are a woman, navigator you most likely are. Although there are now nearly as many women drivers as men, when there is one of each in the car, it is usually the man who is driving.

Knowing how to read a map can be rewarding in many ways. Helpful for finding lost ways, the knack is also useful in not losing them in the first place.
But those are bare basics. A map in hand is a letter of introduction to the passing terrain. "Permit me to introduce Camel's Hump (4083 feet high) off to your left." "Meet the Mad River which you will notice is running north, a rare trait in American rivers.

If congeniality with the immediate geography doesn't appeal to you, consider the freedom that having a way with a map can give you. All sorts of options are yours. You can take the quicker, easier freeways, turnpikes, throughways and interstates if that is your mood, or should you weary of the sanitary aloofness of the superhighways, you can choose a nitticr-grittier sort of road that wanders the hills and mingles with the farms and villages. Many old highways have been relieved by the superhighways of much of their frantic traffic and are now a pleasure to travel.

Or take this as a for-instance: It is a Sunday evening ending a hot summer weekend with everyone who escaped the city now converging on it again in a claustrophobic crawl through a haze of carbon monoxide. Locked into their linear fate on the superhighway by an ignorance of the maze of secondary roads around them (which they can see tanta­ lizingly empty, free of weekday commercial traffic), the drivers plod their temper­ shortening way homeward.

But not Clever Map Reader (that's you). As the traffic begins to congeal, quickly you whip out your handy map
and start finding an alternate way home.
At the next exit you unhitch yourself from the caterpillar ride and go your independent way. What you find (continued)
Stop prewashing your dishes. Finish does it for you.

Finish has an extra-active chemical to scrub away stuck-on food.
Even in hardest water. When you use Finish, it's like having a chemical brush scrubbing away in your dishwasher.
Dishes and glassware will come out spotlessly clean. Every time.
And you can forget about prewashing.

may be longer in time, and it can take constant attention to the map and the surroundings—matching one to the other—but at least you are doing something. You are not merely a gnat caught in aspic.

And it can be marvelous fun, this scrambling about on back routes. I remember one Saturday in England after a motor race at Goodwood. We avoided the crush of traffic and made absolutely record time back to London, to boot, by using mostly the secondary and tertiary roads, some of which required opening and closing livestock gates and fording small streams.

Before you take to much scrambling, it is best for navigator and driver to agree on terminology and then be consistent to avoid confusion. At a complex intersection, for instance, saying “Turn right” may not be clear. Do you mean “Bear right,” “Keep right,” “Hard right” or what? It doesn’t matter what you decide to call the various degrees of turning, just as long as you both mean the same thing. (Maybe “follow the red car” is the surest way.)

Experience will soon teach you just how much the driver wants to know and how far ahead of the actual maneuver he prefers to know it. Since you are the one with the map, you can tell when crossroads, bridges and other landmarks are due. It is fun to announce, “Turn right at the T-junction” (where the road you are on joins another at right angles) or “Keep straight on across the railroad tracks” just before they come into view.

But how do you get to that heady height of omniscience? As the saying goes: “Practice.” Get a road map or better yet, several different road maps of your state. Spread them out at home free of all pressure of the road and really look at them. First, as a whole, take in the various relationships of towns, general direction of major highways and rivers.

The first thing you need to know about your map is that the top is north. Of course any fool knows that but it was not always so. The fact that one orients the map to the terrain and orients oneself to the map pays tribute to the time when the top of the map was east and the Romans were looking toward Constantinople or Marco Polo toward China.

So get oriented north: Face that direction (if you know which way it is) and with your map lying flat in front of you, what you see is a bird’s-eye view of your state. If one town lies to the right of another on the map, it is to the east of it, both on the map and on the ground.

North-topped maps have led to the inaccurate but graphically entrenched notion that Canada is “above” the United States and Mexico “below.” Thinking “up” and “down” for “north” and “south” is a dangerously limiting concept and can be confusing. In my section of Vermont the local people say “Down to Middlesex” when they refer to a town fifteen miles to the north! It is down river, they point out (that Mad River you met earlier) and a few hundred feet lower in elevation—that’s down isn’t it?

North-topped maps can also be confusing to someone reading a map while headed south. Say they want to go to a town east, or to the right, of the road they are traveling on. “Turn right at the next intersection,” the navigator says, and the driver does—and finds himself staring straight into the sunset. That can’t be east.

There are two ways to avoid this common error. The most graphic is to “orient” your map to the terrain—point north north and south south. Now left and right on the map are left and right on the face of the earth too, but all the printing is upside down. Another method is to visualize yourself driving along those red roads on the map; however, most beginners find it easier to learn to read upside down.

Back to your at-home map studying: The next thing you should pay attention to is scale. What you most likely want to know from your road map is what the little inch on the map is equal to in miles on earth. The map's legend—boxed off in the corner—will tell you.

Also in the legend is a key to all the other symbols used on your map. With road maps, sample the offerings of the various oil companies until you find one with the kind of emphasis you like and find easiest to understand. But do have alternates available for really tricky navigating. Even on maps of the same scale, one may have a road looking rather important and another will not show it at all.

And be sure and check the date of your maps. Maps just a few years old can be totally outdated with the rapid construction of new highway systems.

In studying the legend, you will notice that the roads and highways are shown in different colors and thicknesses to illustrate the different widths and surfacings of the actual highways. People traveling in unfamiliar territory often stick to the same sort of highway and never chance a road of a different color. Be a little more adventuresome on your next trip.

To locate a specific town on a map is an easy matter since all road maps are squared off in index grids and each tier is designated by a number or a letter. Listed alphabetically in the map's index is the town you are looking for with a code such as A-6 or H-10. Find the letters and the numbers along the edge of your map and directly under one and across from the other is the square wherein lies the town you seek. (If it's a military map you're reading, the coordinates are numbered across and up from the left-hand corner and the rule, with lives often depending on it, is "Read right, then up").

The next step is connecting the two towns, choosing the route that suits you best by referring to the symbols. Drawing a line along that route makes it easier to see if you use transparent water-color pens to mark it.

If you miss a turning and find yourself lost, stop to ask directions and don't start off again until you've found on the map exactly where you are and which way you are headed.

It is best to keep driving after you realize you are lost until you find a landmark and can collect a little data—train tracks, rivers, signposts, whatever. Then pull far off the road and look for a place on the map that fits the data.

One danger here is jumping to conclusions. Keep an open mind and consider the possibility that you may have wandered farther afield than seems possible or that you are headed in a different direction than you think you are. The North Star is there, graphically pointed out by the big dipper, if it is a starry night. In the daytime, if it's a sunny day and you have a watch, point the hour hand at the sun. Halfway between it and noon is south.

The most important thing to remember in this whole getting un-lost business is: Don't invest your ego in any one theory, and waste no energy in determining who made the wrong turn and who wanted to go which way back there at the crossroads. Concentrate instead on finding the right way, not on finding out who was right. "We're lost," he said. Just leave it at that.

Burkhard Lubke and his pretty, young wife Annette are touring the United States to spread the virtues of the Interlubke wall system shown below, which Mr. Lubke and his father manufacture in Wiedenbrück, West Germany. We were lucky enough to catch the Lubkes as they zoomed through New York on their way to California where they plan to visit the furniture and department stores that sell the system. “Not all furniture that stands against a wall is necessarily a wall system. Bookcases are not wall systems. What makes a wall system is the modular design, so that all the components can be used interchangeably,” says Burkhard Lubke. “In our own case we speak of ‘continuous assembly’ because you can keep on adding components as you need them.”

Another characteristic of all wall systems is that each one encompasses a variety of components. Take the Interlubke system—in addition to basic pieces such as shelves, drawers, cabinets and cupboards, there are fold-away tables, revolving beds, record, TV and speaker cabinets, desks and a vast array of interior fittings to “specialize” the storage components. There are shoe racks, shirt trays and laundry baskets to name but a few. Components are sold on an open-stock basis in the same fashion as dinnerware. The white finish is a poured polyester, baked on at 140° and will never change color, so there is never any trouble with color-matching old and new pieces. Fillers and aprons make for a neat, built-in appearance. The systems may also be used free-standing as room dividers.

The increasing popularity of wall systems both here and in Europe is evident. According to Burkhard Lubke, “Space everywhere is becoming more expensive so that one room now has to serve many purposes where formerly it served only a single one. A wall system that incorporates a revolving bed turns a studio apartment into a sitting room or turns a study into a guest room; it makes the dining room a home office and the bedroom can become a hobby center. The list of possible transformations is almost endless.”

Another argument in favor of wall systems is their adaptability and versatility. After all, they are designed to take care of individual needs and each installation is custom-assembled to suit a particular situation. Most systems, and this one is typical, are styled to go in any room of the house and to be re-assembled in myriad ways. As a result, today’s living room library wall can become tomorrow’s dining room storage wall and that, in turn, can easily be transformed into a nursery or bedroom wall or an entry or family room wall, without ever looking makeshift.

The Lubkes are so sold on wall systems that their own modern house has no conventional walls. Rooms are defined by back-to-back wall systems.

The Interlubke wall sys-

Who says you're too old to wash your face?

There are still some skin experts who think water hurts any skin over 25. We have news for those experts. Dirt hurts skin even more. Dirt ages your face faster than birthdays.

This is why we created Jaquet Aqua Cleanser and the exclusive Beauty Splashdown. Here is how you use it:

One: Pour Aqua Cleanser in your hands, and massage into the face gently for thirty seconds.

Two: Now bend over the sink, let fresh lukewarm water run from the tap. Fill your hands with water, and splash your face eleven times.

Your skin has never felt cleaner, clearer, or softer, and that is why so many women insist on washing their faces with creamy Jaquet Aqua Cleanser and water.

You see, Jaquet believes you're never too old to look young.

The name is familiar. Have you noticed that famous fashion designers’ names are cropping up more and more often in unexpected places: on towels and drapery prints (Emilio Pucci), shower curtains and bath mats (Yves Saint Laurent), even on desk accessories (Pierre Cardin)? And now Oscar de la Renta has been commissioned to design a small collection of drapery patterns for Owens Corning, maker of Fiberglas. What’s in a name? We asked some of the home-furnishings manufacturers who are taking the fashion ploy in increasing numbers. “Plenty of sell” they all answered. They count on cashing in on the public’s familiarity with fashion names, feel that a famous signature adds cachet and authority to a product.

Sometimes the use of a fashion designer to do a line of home furnishings really works out. Case in point are the Pucci patterns and colors that translated well from ready-to-wear into fabrics for the home. Sadly, the name signature is not always a guarantee that a designer lives up to his fashion reputation. Look at the design first, the name only after you’ve decided that the design is good.

“Splush?” Don’t worry. We had never heard of it either. Splush is what the carpet industry is calling those in-between textures, the intermediates between plush and shag. If you think you might feel silly asking the salesman for splush the next time you shop for a carpet, why not say “A shaggy plush or a plushy shag, please.” Sounds a trifle more dignified, doesn’t it? More apropos carpets: indoor-outdoor carpets are looking more indoorsy all the time. Rejoice if you are a do-it-yourselfer, or are married to one, for there are more carpet tiles being made than ever before. If noise is driving you up the wall, cover it with carpet (some refer to it as acoustical tapestry) instead. And if you are a coward about carpet-generated electric shock you’ll be happy to hear that Dow Badische has recently introduced Zefstat, a carpet yarn that is said to control static in carpets.

Fashion in flowers. There’s fashion in almost everything else, so why not in flowers. Currently one “in” way to arrange flowers is to put single blossoms of various kinds in small vases and to group them casually on a dining or coffee table.

DECORATING CLINIC

QUESTION: Sad to say, the medium-dark blue-green carpet in our living room is still in good condition, too good to throw away. We've tried green walls but it always looks like spinach.

ANSWER: Forget green, that's adding insult to injury. Green walls won't give you the contrast you need. Try white painted walls, navy upholstery and brilliant yellow lamps and accessories. Either a table or chair frame lacquered yellow would look great.

QUESTION: Our new apartment, it is our first, has only a mini-dining area. Since we have lots of family and many friends we want to entertain at sit-down dinners. Buffet parties are not for us.

ANSWER: You haven't a worry in the world. Furniture manufacturers are familiar with your dilemma and are ready to help you with dining furniture scaled for apartment-size spaces. These new Condominium dining groups with expandable tables that seat eight will be in furniture and department stores this spring.

QUESTION: American Home favors modern, condemns Mediterranean. Now just what does that leave for a family who doesn't want a cold, all-modern home but one that is warm and informal?

ANSWER: See page 56 for 1970's modern furniture and you will agree that modern and cold are no longer synonymous. Furthermore, lots of delightful possibilities lie between those two extremes, modern and Mediterranean. There are all the wonderful American styles from Colonial straight through Victorian. There is French Provincial and there are English 18th-century designs with country manners that are not at all formal. Finally you might consider a mix of many styles to personalize your home.

QUESTION: How can I make our dingy downstairs hall look less depressing? It is much too long and high for its width, has far too many doors. One of these opens into the living room with its brown tweed carpet. Would a red rug help cheer it up?

ANSWER: It will take a bit more than a red rug to change your gloomy entry. For practical reasons a patterned rug is preferable in a hard-use area. One of the new geometries in a combination of bright tomato red and brown will do wonders. Be bold—lacquer all the doors bright red, cover the walls with shiny white vinyl and try mirrors in white Italian plastic frames.

QUESTION: The ugly lighting fixtures in our apartment are driving me up the wall. We won't be here long enough to spend lots of money replacing them. They all have exposed bulbs.

ANSWER: These days the exposed bulb is practically a status symbol. Replace your existing bulbs with five or six-inch-diameter round bulbs and you won't have to buy a new wall or new ceiling fixtures. These bulbs have standard bases and come frosted or clear. The latter will give a sparkling modern look.

Letters submitted to Decorating Clinic will be selected for an answer on the basis of their general interest. We are unable to send personal replies.

This home was built for Reverend Henry Whitfield who led a group of Colonists in founding Guilford, Connecticut, in 1639. It also served as the town meetinghouse. It is the oldest-known stone house still standing in what was once Colonial America. The roof was originally thatched.

What is this picture of a 1639 stone house doing among the most now exhibits at Expo 70, opening March 15th in Osaka, Japan? It is in the 100-photograph display of American architecture from four centuries—the highly personal choices of Ivan Chermayeff, whose firm designed the U.S. Pavilion at the fair, and architectural critic Peter Blake. Featuring some of our best but less publicized buildings (no Frank Lloyd Wright, for instance), it aims to give Oriental visitors a glimpse of the sweep and diversity of American style. Here and on the following eight pages, we single out 10 examples—uniquely American and often strikingly similar, even though they are centuries apart. The clean, sharp lines of a 17th-century ironmaster’s house recur in a suburban home of today. The communal quarters of a once-flourishing religious sect might have inspired the look of a modern fun-and-sun community in California. The curved bowfronts of Federal town houses in a serene old Boston square have their counterparts in a cloud-piercing apartment tower just built in Chicago. These buildings prove that the best of the old lingers on in the new. In turn, today’s best will become tomorrow’s classics, conveying the message, “So that’s how they lived then.”
Shapes echo those of earlier days.

The weathered-wood Ironmaster’s House (right) in Saugus, Massachusetts, was begun in 1636 for the manager of the first ironworks in America. It bears a remarkable resemblance to steep-roofed rural English manor houses of the time. Its geometric lines reappear in current designs, such as the Roger Straus house (below) built in suburban New York in 1967. Designed by Charles Gwathmey and Richard Henderson, it uses the same bold shapes seen in the house built 331 years earlier, but in stucco with a terne roof. Technology now permits much larger windows and the freer shapes in the towers.
Communal living, cloistered and convivial, spans two centuries.

When people come together on a remote site to pursue a common purpose, their houses will reflect that purpose. At right is the Cloister in Ephrata, Pennsylvania, begun in 1743 for the followers of the German mystic, Johann Conrad Beissel. Life revolved around work and worship and the buildings have an austere, medieval flavor. Tiers of small dormers admit light to rooms under the eaves. Below, several thousand miles away is Sea Ranch in northern California. Built in 1966 as a recreation community, it has a distinctly cozy, playful atmosphere. Yet architects Moore, Lyndon, Turnbull, & Whitaker basically used the same farmhouse shapes.
The 19th-century parvenus—cotton planters, lumber barons, merchant princes—piled decoration on decoration to let the world know they were rich.

Longwood (far left), the splendidly domed, octagonal home in Natchez, Mississippi, was commissioned by Dr. Haller Nutt, a cotton planter, but it was never finished; the Civil War intervened. The designer, Samuel Sloan, was a Philadelphian.

This incredibly lavish house (left) in Eureka, California, was built for lumber baron William Carson in 1885. Canadian architects Joseph and Samuel Newsom made it the epitome of Victorian with brackets and knobs piled upon a variety of unmatched towers, gables and other protrusions.

Below, an unknown carpenter worked years on the delicate richness of the 1887 Jacob Sonnenthal house in Galveston, Texas. This fantasia of lattice-work was one of the first houses designed from the inside out, instead of by fitting rooms into a formal plan.
The urban approach, traditional and today: people live adjacently but separately, pursuing their lives in mellow dignity or dizzying dazzle.

Louisburg Square (below) on Boston's Beacon Hill is one of the loveliest in America. These red brick, bow-front Federal-style buildings, built in the 1830s and 1840s, once housed novelists of such opposite persuasions as Louisa May Alcott and William Dean Howells. The park in the center of the square is owned jointly by residents.

Lake Point Tower in Chicago (right) at 70 stories is the world's tallest apartment building. It is also one of the first skyscrapers to have curved glass walls. Surrounded by its own landscaped, private park and completed in 1969, it was designed by George Schipporeit and John Heinrich. For a report on living there, turn the page.

CHICAGO STYLE: GLASS-HOUSE LIVING AT ITS LOFTIEST
What kind of people live in the world's largest mink-lined goldfish bowl? Here's an inside report on life at the top.

By Jeanne Lamb O'Neill

Sunlight streams through the pretty green park, dancing in the lacy tracery of the honey locust trees, glimmering on clumps of gay petunias and glinting on a pair of mallards flirting with a waterfall at the edge of the lagoon. To complete the pastoral, postcard-perfect picture, down the winding garden path comes young Mrs. Paul Constantine with two-year-old Brian clutching his favorite football.

So, you're probably thinking, what else is new? The world is full of parks and mothers and babies. But this pretty park, all two-and-a-half leafy acres of it, happens to be on the third floor of an apartment building—the tallest all-apartment building in the world, if you please, smack downtown in the third largest city in the nation. Namely, that shimmering, sexily curved shaft of golden glass you see to the left.

This is Lake Point Tower, a $14 million palace in wonderland conjured up by Developers William Hartnett and Charles Shaw and Architects George Schipporeit and John Heinrich. Looming 70 stories high on Lake Shore Drive, it has one foot in swinging downtown Chicago and the other in glittery blue Lake Michigan. Meanwhile, back on the "prairie" or third-floor recreational plaza landscaped by Alfred Caldwell, you're up to your ears in staghorn sumac, cockspur thorn, prairie rose, viburnum and nannyberry.

Does it remind you of Mies van der Rohe, this overgrown three-leaf clover? It should. He dreamed such a swirly glass dream way back in 1921, and the men who have breathed it into being, here in his own adopted city, are Mies's disciples. This is not just another office skyscraper. This is a house where people live. It's here because, with popping population and shrinking land, the only way to go is up. Lake Point Tower is way up, all right, but it is not way out. You may be living in the sky tomorrow.

Living in the sky is like falling in love—you have to do it to know what it's like. You have to wake up in the morning with nothing but 50 curving feet of tinted glass between you and the newborn day. You have to stand in the middle of a pelting, pounding, crackling summer storm—in the middle of your living room. You have to curl up on the window seat when the (continued) rest of the world is asleep and gaze at the fiery array of tiny gems strewn on black velvet that is the dramatic impact of a great city by night.

Anyone can tell at a peek that by day the views are, to put it skimpily, breathtaking. At night they would stop your heart from beating. But we want to know more. What is it like to eat, sleep and drink in the sky? What is it like to see four different states out the window while you’re shaving and look down on planes streaking by? Don’t they get dizzy way up there? Do they spend half their lives waiting for an elevator? What kind of people want to live in the world’s largest mink-lined goldfish bowl, anyway? And why? Well, let’s ask Joyce Constantine and find out.

While the old Irish gardener takes time out for some man-to-man football talk with Brian, Joyce tells us why she lives in a glass-covered skyscraper instead of a rose-covered cottage in the country. She loves it and she wouldn’t trade it for all the white picket fences in suburbia.
All-plastic pairing. Just like wall systems, seating systems also help solve all kinds of problems. Monolithic chairs of structural foam come with or without the quilted cushions.

Shown back to back here, they also line up or turn corners with the help of ottoman-tables. Chair, complete with Naugahyde-covered cushions by Overman, USA, Inc., is about $100.

Beanbags to sit on. This one is filled with exploded styrene pellets; covering is Naugahyde. By Thayer Coggin, Inc., it retails for $123.

Plastic for comfort. Downy-soft seating is engineered without springs. Instead, it is all done with plastic. Sofa by Selig is $970.

Bouncy and suede. Z-shaped, cantilevered, chrome-plated steel. Bouncy frame for a Swiss suede sling seat (also available with a wood base shown, this chair by Founders Furniture, Inc., sells for about $300. It is available in about 500 fabrics. Continued Molded fiber glass, brown suede. Spider chair, imported from Germany, contrasts a slick, cradle-like frame of molded white fiber glass with a soft, squashy suede cushion. From Basic-Witz Furniture Industries, Inc., $399.

Stretched curve. Bright orange jersey covers this curvy chair imported from Switzerland. In profile, it looks rather like an abstract rocking horse. The low-seated frame is molded of foam. For chair as shown, price is $159, by Basic-Witz Furniture Industries, Inc.
Elegant chrome. Smoked chrome, smoked glass and pewter-colored Frontera combine in this classic-modern dining group scaled for apartment living. Table is $270, chairs, $140 each, by The Lane Company, from the Hemisphere Collection.

Chunky sectional. Pillowless seats, sausage-roll backs make wedgelike chairs that line up in curvy arch-shaped sofas covered in fake curly lamb. Corner piece is $264, armless chair, $196, by Directional Industries, Inc.

Wicker and steel. Polished chrome base supports a wicker-basket seat from Taiwan; $324, by Founders.

CROWN ROAST OF PORK
1. Have your butcher prepare a crown roast or do it yourself. Buy two rib ends of pork loin with the backbone removed. Cut and scrape away meat from the tips of the bones. Make a small incision at the base between each rib, then bend each piece into a half circle. Join the ends and sew them, using a large needle and strong white cord. Tie securely.

2. Heat the oven to 425° and rub the meat with 2 teaspoons salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper. To help keep the shape, I put a small heatproof cup in the center, then put the roast upside down in a roasting pan. This lets the roast baste itself. Insert a meat thermometer, making sure the bulb is not touching any bone. After an hour's roasting, add diced celery and onion to pan; reduce heat to 375° and roast 11/2 hours or until the meat thermometer registers 170°.

3. While pork roasts, prepare the stuffing. The sliced celery is sautéed in the butter or margarine for 5 minutes, the minced onion, thyme, 1/2 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper added and cooked 5 minutes or until tender. Then mix with chopped parsley and rice.

4. Put the finished roast on a serving platter, remove the small cup and fill the center with the stuffing. If there is any extra I put it into a serving dish and put both aside to keep warm while I make the sauce. Put the roasting pan over medium heat a few minutes and then discard all the fat. Next put the pan over high heat, add the chicken broth and bring to boiling. Simmer 2 to 3 minutes. Correct seasoning.

5. For a finishing touch, I place a kumquat on the end of each rib bone and garnish the platter with parsley. Carving a crown roast is simple—just cut between the rib bones.
Baked beans, a dish the Indians taught the Colonists how to make, is best known as New England's traditional Saturday supper. Teamed with brown bread, it can be a feast for anyone any night of the week. The secrets for turning lowly dried beans into succulent morsels are few.

Dried beans should be soaked before cooking to replace some of the water lost in drying. Cover them with water and let stand overnight or use the quick method below.

Cook the beans in the same water in which they soaked to retain their natural flavor and to save minerals and vitamins.

Use a large, heavy pot or Dutch oven with a tight-fitting lid. It should be two to three times larger in capacity than the combined amount of the beans and the water.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

1 pound dried pea or navy beans
3 quarts cold water
1 large onion, quartered
½ cup molasses
¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup water
½ pound salt pork

1. Wash beans. Discard any that are not perfect.
2. Put beans into a large (about 6 quart) pot. Add 3 quarts of cold water and onion. Bring to boiling. Boil 2 minutes.
4. Bring beans and water to boiling again. Lower heat. Simmer 45 minutes or until beans are just tender. Drain. Discard onion.
5. Heat oven to 300°.
6. Put beans into 2-quart bean pot or heavy casserole that has a tight-fitting lid.
7. Combine molasses, brown sugar, salt, mustard and water in saucepan. Bring to boiling. Pour over beans.
8. Cut gashes in salt pork about ⅛ inch apart. Cut down to but not through the rind.
9. Push salt pork down into the beans until only the rind shows. Cover the bean pot or casserole.
10. Bake 5½ hours. Check occasionally and add water if the beans seem to be dry.

BROWN BREAD

1 slice day-old bread
1 ¾ cups buttermilk
1 cup cornmeal
½ cup rye flour
⅔ cup whole-wheat flour
1 ½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup molasses
½ cup raisins

1. Tear bread into crumbs with fingers or whirl in a blender. Put into a small bowl. Stir in buttermilk. Let stand 15 minutes to let the crumbs absorb the buttermilk.
2. Press crumb-milk mixture through a sieve into second bowl. Reserve.
3. Sift cornmeal, rye flour, whole-wheat flour, salt and baking soda into a large bowl.
4. Stir in crumb-milk mixture, molasses and raisins.
5. Grease 3 clean 1-pound cans well.
6. Fill cans two-thirds full.
7. Cover with aluminum foil. Tie securely with clean, white string.
8. Place a rack in a large kettle. Set cans on rack.
9. Pour boiling water into the kettle until it comes halfway up the sides of the cans. Cover kettle.
10. Bring to boiling. Lower heat so the water boils gently. Boil 3 hours, adding more water if necessary to keep it at the right level.
Remember Mrs. Mills down the block, and how the neighborhood kids hung around hoping for some of her layer cake? Pepperidge Farm remembers.

In every neighborhood, there used to be a woman who was a natural-born cake-baker. Her kids were the envy of the block. Naturally, you'd play in their backyard a lot, trying to look hungry and polite.

Pepperidge Farm remembers. So today, we bake that kind of cake—three layers high, and iced all around. Five varieties—Vanilla, Golden, Chocolate Fudge, Devil's Food and Coconut. And they're all frozen, so you can serve them fresh and moist any time.

And if you notice kids hanging 'round your house at snacktime, you don't even have to tell them who made the cake.

country-club amenities as an oversized, heated swimming pool, an 11-hole putting green, a barbecue big enough to roast an ox, religious services on Sunday and a children’s playground.

We’re already Astroturf-putting-green green with envy, but wait—there’s also an indoor pool, two paddle tennis courts and a handball court. In fact, there’s a complete health spa on the second floor. Sure, you have to pay to belong to the spa, pool and dining club just like anywhere else, but here they’re handier.

But, continues our tower booster, what they really love about living here is the blissful peace and privacy. No nosy neighbors or noisy lawn mowers. No coffee klatsches (shudder). No car pools. Says Joyce, a Texas transplant, “Sure, I miss Houston, but there’s a different excitement here.”

When you look out the window at Lake Point Tower (try it on page 52), you can see another even taller tower—Chicago’s fantastic new 100-story John Hancock Center. In fact, you can’t miss “Big John,” as the natives call their mighty glass giant, from anywhere. Driving into the city, your first question is “What’s that?” “That” is $95 million worth of experiment in vertical living designed by the renowned architectural firm of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill. It’s only 16 feet shorter than the Empire State Building! (But Lake Point is still the “world’s tallest apartment building” because Hancock Center is half offices, see?) It’s a whole city-within-a-city right on downtown Chicago’s Magnificent Mile.

Obviously, living in Big John must be another kettle of goldfish altogether. You’re living on top of bustling lobbies, banks and shops, including a sparkling-new Bonwit Teller. You’re on top of seven parking floors, 28 office floors—and underneath eight floors of TV equipment, observation lounges, restaurants and mechanical equipment.

You’re living in a behemoth that will lure millions of tourists from all over the world. It took 42,000 tons of steel to build it; it uses as much electricity as a city of 30,000 people; it has the world’s fastest elevators (1800 feet a minute) and the world’s craziest swimming pool (546 feet high in the sky). Living in Big John, how could you not help feel that you’re making history every time you make the bed?

But even Big John is full of homey touches. You enter through a private lobby, away from the hoopla, and zip nonstop to the Sky Lobby on the 44th floor. Here is where apartment living begins—and where you will find all the amenities the management could think of. “Home” may be anything from a $200 a month studio on the 44th floor to a $775 a month spread on the 92nd floor (or three of them put together, in the case of one free-spender)—but when you get right down to it, or up to it, your home in the sky is as cozy and quiet as a Cape Cod cottage. Once you close your door, your only neighbor is the man in the moon.

There are 705 apartments in Hancock Center, 900 in Lake Point. Who lives in them? Doctors, lawyers, merchants and at least one advertising copy chief, company presidents and owners, bankers, judges, editors, architects, archaeologists, producers, (continued on page 67)

professors, a football player, a museum director, an Internal Revenue man, and who would like to volunteer to count the vice presidents?

There are bachelors, widows, divorces, grandmas, teen-agers and, yes, even babies and grammar-school kids who catch a school bus. But typically, sky-tower residents are between 45 and 60. Their children are grown. They may have sold their house in the suburbs or moved from another city luxury apartment or been transferred from some other city, state or continent. Whatever the case, they’re people who want their “pie in the sky” right here, right now and are willing to pay for it. (At Lake Point a four-bedroom penthouse goes for $1450 a month—and one tenant has spent another quarter million “fixing it up,” if you can believe that.)

But what concerns both tower managements most is that their tenants are people. They’re joggers, bicycle buffs, green thumbs, bird watchers, boat watchers, amateur chefs, camera bugs, bridge fiends, art lovers, music lovers and, by all means, dog lovers. Lake Point even has a Dog Walk dotted with fake plastic mini-hydrants to keep its 55 (officially) resident poodles, schnauzers, and lhasa apsos happy. Not to mention their owners. A bespectacled young insurance man confided that the Dog Walk is a divorcee’s best friend. “Come on, Max,” he’ll say, “Get me a date for tonight”—and Max usually does.

A newly divorced insurance broker has his reasons for living in a sky tower.
So does the slim, stunning executive’s wife you see perched in her 53rd floor pied-à-tower on page 52. She and her husband have always been “apartment people,” says Mrs. John Lloyd. When he trots around the globe, she likes to be able to trot behind—with just the turn of a key in a door. They’re “architecture-oriented” and love the pure structural excitement of the building.

Dressed in the same cashmere and tweed’s you’d see in the Connecticut countryside, Mrs. Lloyd.smilingly offers the same cup of coffee as your next-door neighbor and confides that she does all her own housework—because she likes to and “it’s so easy here!” The Lloyds’ is a “day apartment”—all lightness, brightness and whiteness. Today is a shimmering blue-white-and-gold day in Chicago and the 50-foot curve of window drops it right in our laps. We can see for miles but not just around the bend into other peoples windows—the reason for Lake Point’s triform (continued)
shape. Looking down at the sailboats bobbing below, we can’t believe that we have no acrophobia—we who turn white on the second step of a stepladder. The bank of window seats “anchor” us. We learn that they also house the four-season climate control in each room; you can air condition one room while you turn on the heat in another. And, yes, that’s fresh air we feel now!

One more surprise: there isn’t a sound up here. But what did we expect? If you’re way above the fog and smog, you’re above the noise level too.

Decorator Glenn Craft’s apartment on page 55 is a house of another color. It’s a “night apartment”—because he has a daytime office in Big John (commuting time 13 seconds) and can dig in the dirt on weekends at his old country farmhouse. Curled up in the window, we forget we’re in the world’s tallest flattop oil derrick—we’re in a cozy attic window seat 49 stories high.

Vivacious, blonde Mrs. Betty Kalahar, leasing agent for Lake Point Tower, also lives and works under the same roof. And loves it. With the building’s built-in blessings, entertaining is all play and no work. The maid service will whisk someone up to tidy before last-minute guests; the chef’s pantry will shoot up tasty hors d’oeuvres; the valet service will press her dress. She can’t imagine why she and her husband ever thought that suburbia was the good life.

Sky living may not be everybody’s cup of tranquillity (any more than ordinary apartment living). But one woman told us earnestly, “I’ve never been so close to nature.” In the suburbs, she said, she couldn’t see the view for the trees and her neighbor’s picture window. Now she’s on intimate terms with seagulls, snowstorms and fleeting sunsets. And do you wonder what gardeners do in a sky apartment? They garden. With all that pure air, light and push-button climate, plants grow like wild flowers.

If it’s the patio you miss, you can get a “sky terrace” in Big John for sunbathing and cocktails. The windows even open—but we wouldn’t want to try it on a windy day in the Windy City.

But if sky towers can’t protect their tenants completely from outside elements, they make up for it inside. Tenants are watched over only slightly less fondly than the gold in Fort Knox. Sophisticated electronic controls, elaborate communications systems and doormen on duty 24 hours a day not only give the tenants a warm, snuggly feeling in these jittery times but arc a dandy buffer against unwelcome drop-ins who were “just driving by.”

There must be something bad about sky-tower living. There is. Sky people have the sun, moon, stars and built-in supermarkets. They even have closets (84 running feet of storage in a plush penthouse). But they don’t have woodburning fireplaces. They have to resort to phonies with fake “crackles” and gadgets that give off puffs of smoke and the smell of burning balsam. But blame it on the stony-hearted Fire Department—the management has a heart of golden, melted butter.

With or without fireplaces, would you like to live in a glass tower? Would we? Are they the answer to the multibillion dollar waste in our cities and suburban sprawl? They’re certainly one of them. We’ve looked at the newest, biggest and, possibly, the best. We can only say that sky living, done with taste, style and honest consideration for human needs, can be beautiful. Is it heaven? Well, it’s 1007 feet and seven inches closer to it anyway.

THE NEW FURNITURE

The new Modern has lost much of the angularity and severity of earlier modern furniture. Since it depends less on sharpness of outline than its predecessors, it may be better able to take the hard knocks of family life. It is these changes that have suddenly made modern enormously popular with store buyers from across the nation who visited the Southern Furniture Market in North Carolina, where modern was launched, and who bought it enthusiastically. As a result, you can expect a new wave of furniture in your furniture and department stores.

Another black mark against most modern has been its high price. Until recently it really was almost impossible to find well-made modern furniture at any but custom-made prices. Although some of the pieces shown here are, indeed, expensive, they are no more expensive than more traditionally styled furniture of comparable quality—many others are reasonably priced.

Modern for the 30s, mostly of German extraction, was known as the "international style." But U.S. modern for 1970 is truly international in scope. Italian and English designers, suedes from Switzerland and Germany, wicker from the Far East, plastics from Italy and Sweden, rosewood from Brazil and Africa have been brought together by American manufacturers to create new furniture for Americans. In addition, more and more furniture firms are importing pieces from abroad.

Furniture designers are often judged by their chairs—these being much more of a design challenge than any other piece of furniture. Judging by the new chairs, designers are getting better all the time.

The seating pieces currently making their way to the stores are in a class by themselves. They are creative designs that take advantage of all the latest advances in textile, plastic and molding technologies. The roster of materials includes chrome, aluminum, urethane foam, rigid foam, fiber (continued) glass, molded plywood and plastic. The look in seating is either curvy graphic or modern sleek or frankly squashy. On the functional side, seating systems or modular combinations of sectionals are very new in their adaptability. What looks like a sofa can break apart into a series of chairs or be reassembled into a different shape.

Gray, a color that has been absent for decades, is making the furniture fabric scene all over again. The most often-seen shade of gray is a light charcoal or deep flannel color that is smashing with all the silvery and smoky metals used for frames and trim. In addition to gray there is a range of neutrals. White, in lacquer, plastic or fiber-glass frames, contrasts sharply with tomato red, with navy and with a deep chocolate brown.

Designs for storage pieces, for tables and dining-room furniture are somewhat less spectacular than those for seating but modern is making inroads in this design area as well. Simple pieces, often of highly figured woods, such as rosewood and various burls, are trimmed with metal. The trend to roundness, to curviness shows in round beds, curved closets and chests.

Hand-forged aluminum corner fittings, Plexiglas rods and a glass top make an almost transparent coffee table. Other shapes and sizes and an étagère are also available. See-through furniture like this is much in evidence. By Founders, table retails for $450.

This étagère has see-through glass shelves and a rosewood back panel. By Henredon, it retails for $295.

THE "VELVET" TOUCH

Velvet upholstery is so popular today that there can be long delays on furniture you order covered in it. Therefore, the synthetic velvets are extra good news. Trevira, a 100 percent velvet polyester by Hystron Fibers, is much like mohair plush and costs about one-fifth the price. It is available in a large range of rich, sparkling colors. Since the fiber itself resists soil, no special finishes are necessary.

Another new type of velvet by Guildford Mills is made of Enka nylon and called Iron Velvet. A foam core and knit backing give a soft, spongy feeling to the fabric and allow it to be slightly stretchy. Iron Velvet can be cleaned with water and detergent or by using a household upholstery cleaner.

THE STRETCHABLES

Stretch fabric is most important to the new undulating furniture forms. One fabric entering the scene is imported from Sweden by Overman USA for use on their upholstered furniture. It is a washable, stretch terry cloth, soft and snuggly, very much like the little stretch suits babies wear.

One more name to watch out for is Anim/8, a stretch fiber that can be combined with any other fiber, natural or synthetic. Due to this, any upholstery fabric can be made stretchable.

Most of the stretch knits and jerseys used on today's furniture are made of solid-colored or woven-patterned wool. The stretch is due to their knit construction and in some cases, the addition of a small percentage of elastic material.

THE MOCK FURS

Perhaps the most amusing of all the new upholstery materials are the fake furs. Many fabrics being used are thicker, more luxurious versions of teddy-bear plush. Some imitate those rare and dwindling spotted-cat furs —ocelot and leopard. Another is a mock version of curly lamb in a blend of wool, mohair and Rhovyl called Khyber from Borg Fabrics.

All these fabrics will soon be seen on the new undulating furniture forms. Due to their rugged surfaces and good acoustical properties, many of them can be used as wall coverings. They are especially good on cracked or damaged walls that need camouflage.

Winters in Japan are cold and blustery. People hurry in out of the cold eager for a warming meal. Winter food in Japan, a country where central heating is often literally a hibachi set in the middle of the room, has to be hearty. Family or guests sit around a low table, tuck their knees under a warming quilt and take turns with chopsticks or skewers cooking one-dish meals. This little-known Japanese winter cuisine is easy to make and the chicken, shrimp and beef dishes are much to American tastes. The cook-at-the-table aspect makes them perfect for small parties. What is distinctive is not so much the ingredients used but the method of cooking, which is remarkably fast. All the hostess need do is set out the thinly sliced ingredients and several tangy dipping sauces. The guests will gladly do the rest. You might serve sake (rice wine) well heated and poured out a sip at a time. If sake isn't to your taste, why not try beer as the Japanese often do. For recipes turn the page.
SHABU-SHABU

The Japanese word Shabu-Shabu simply comes from the sound that the thin slices of beef make when whisked back and forth in the steaming broth of a Mongolian "hot pot." A special Shabu-Shabu utensil (shown on page 76) is used in Japan for this dish, but any heavy pot placed on a table cooker or an electric tempura cooker will do nicely.

6 large, dried Japanese mushrooms or 6 large, fresh mushrooms
4 to 5 Chinese cabbage leaves
12 fresh spinach leaves or 1 cup cooked, frozen spinach, well drained
2 carrots, pared and cut into fine strips
1 pound boneless shell or sirloin steak, fat covering removed, cut in ¼-inch-thick slices
8 green onions, cut lengthwise in fine strips, including green tops
2 cakes fresh or canned soybean curd (tofu), cubed (optional)
3 cans (13½ ounces each) chicken broth
2-inch piece dried kelp (kombu) washed under running cold water (optional)

Dipping Sauce

Place dried Japanese mushrooms in cold water for 30 minutes. Drain well. Slice dried or fresh mushrooms.

Trim core from cabbage leaves. Place leaves in boiling water for 30 seconds. Cool under cold running water. Drain.

Place fresh spinach in boiling water. Bring water back to boiling. Cool under cold running water. Drain well.

Arrange cabbage leaves one on top of another in center of clean towel. Place spinach leaves down the center of top cabbage leaf. Lifting towel to help start shaping, roll cabbage around spinach into a long, tight cylinder. Remove towel. Cut into ¼-inch slices.

Place carrots in cold water. Bring to boiling. Cook 2 to 3 minutes. Drain well. Arrange all ingredients on large tray or platter. Pour chicken broth into pan; add kelp. Bring to boiling; adjust heat so broth will simmer continuously throughout the meal.

Each guest picks up slices of meat with chopsticks and dips them two or three times into simmering broth. Do not overcook the meat as it will lose its flavor. Dip meat in sauce and eat immediately. When all meat has been consumed add vegetables to the broth and eat as they are done. When all food has been cooked, remove and discard kelp; correct seasoning of broth; serve as a soup. Makes 4 servings.
DIPPING SAUCES
Sesame Seed Sauce. Combine 2 cup soy sauce; 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons crushed, toasted sesame seeds. Strain before serving.

Ponzu. Combine equal parts soy sauce and lemon juice.

YAKITORI
In Yakitori, literally "broiled chicken," skewered pieces of chicken, chicken liver, green onions and green peppers are brushed with a sauce and grilled over charcoal.

½ cup soy sauce
½ cup mirin or sweet sherry
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water
1 broiler-fryer (about 3 pounds), skinned, boned and cut into 1- to 1½-inch-square pieces
6 green onions, cut in 2-inch pieces, including green tops
2 green peppers, seeded and cut into 16 strips
6 chicken livers, cut in half

Light the hibachi or charcoal grill. Lightly brush pieces of chicken and green onion alternately on each of 8 bamboo skewers. Thread pieces of green pepper and chicken liver alternately on each of 4 skewers. Brush meats and vegetables with sauce. Broil 4 to 5 minutes, 4 inches from heat, turning and basting once or twice during cooking. Moisten with remaining sauce before serving and sprinkle with Japanese pepper (kona saussho) or ground black pepper, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

BATAYAKI
A specialty of Nagoya, Batayaki is a popular variant of the well-known Sakiyaki but in this recipe the ingredients are cooked in butter instead of in a soy-sake mixture.

Batayaki, like Sukiyaki, is prepared at the table in a fetau (a heavy pan) or skillet placed over a charcoal-burning hibachi or an alcohol burner. An electric skillet would be a very practical substitute.

4 large, dried Japanese mushrooms or 2 medium-size shrimp
1 pound medium-size shrimp
2 cups water
2 cups canned yam noodles (shirataki)
1 cup butter or margarine
8 green onions, cut in 2-inch pieces, including green tops

2 cakes fresh or canned soybean curd (tofu) cut in 1-inch cubes (optional)

Shell and devein shrimp. Make a slit along inner curve of shrimp with small knife; flatten shrimp butterfly fashion.

Place dried mushrooms in cold water to cover; let stand 30 minutes; drain well. Cut mushrooms in thick slices.

Bring water to boiling; add yam noodles. Bring back to boiling; drain. Cut in 5-inch-long pieces.

Arrange all ingredients on large tray or platter. Heat ½ cup butter or margarine in pan or skillet. Add half the shrimp; cook about 2 minutes, stirring occasionally, until pink on all sides. Push shrimp to one side of pan. Add half of each vegetable to pan. Cook 3 to 4 minutes, adding more butter if necessary. Stir occasionally but keep vegetables in separate groups as much as possible. Transfer to individual plates or let guests help themselves from the pan. Repeat with second half of ingredients. Makes 4 servings.

WHAT’S NEW ABOUT MILK?

Whole milk, buttermilk, condensed milk and dry milk are all familiar names to most people. However, one look in the dairy case today will show you that there are many new varieties of milk on the market. Not all are in every market, but in almost every community across the country at least one new type of milk can be found.

There are two reasons why these new milks have been developed. The primary reason was to satisfy the taste preference and dietary needs of the consumer. The second factor was the necessity to improve the keeping quality of milk and to make distribution, storage, use of by-products, and preservation of surplus more efficient.

Low-sodium milk was developed to satisfy the needs of people on restricted sodium diets. It is made by reducing the salt content of whole milk; its flavor is quite similar to that of whole milk. It is available as a canned or fresh product in many parts of the country.

Skim milk, made by removing the fat from whole milk, was also developed to suit the tastes and dietary needs of the consumer. It contains fewer calories than whole milk. Containers labeled skim milk will vary in fat content from 0.1 percent to 2 percent depending on the standard established by the state.

Nonfat, fat-free or defatted milk contains no more than 0.1 percent milkfat.

Two-percent milk, as the name implies, contains 2 percent fat but is still lower in calories than whole milk, 135 calories per 8 ounces as opposed to 165.

Modified skim milk is skim or nonfat milk to which milk solids have been added. Amounts vary from state to state, but the milk usually contains 0.5 percent and 10.5 percent respectively.

Fortified skim or fat-free milks have had vitamins A and D added and often contain added nonfat milk solids.

Concentrated milks, made by removing varying amounts of water from fresh milk, may be fresh, frozen, canned, evaporated, condensed or dried. The milk usually contains 0.5 percent milkfat.

Concentrated canned milk is concentrated sterilized milk in aseptically sealed cans. It will keep three months on the shelf or six months if refrigerated. It is found only in a few areas.

Cultured milks are prepared from pasteurized milk and are produced by adding special bacteria cultures. Buttermilk is the best known cultured milk. Acidophilus milk, available in only a very few markets, is a cultured milk made from skim milk. It is tart and is often used for intestinal disorders, particularly after antibiotic treatment.

Flavored milks differ from milk drinks in that flavored milks are made with whole milk. Milk drinks are made with skim or partially skimmed milk.

Canned whole and frozen whole milks are not generally available in supermarkets but are manufactured for export. Their increased keeping qualities make them suitable for transportation.

Each year research uncovers more facts which reaffirm the importance of milk in the diet. No other single food has so many nutrients that are as vital for health and good nutrition as milk, which is why milk is called “nature’s most perfect food.”

GOOD RIDDANCE By Stanley Schuler
Garbage—household nuisance and community scourge—is getting easier to carry away.

Suddenly that old, nasty, dreary chore known as taking out the garbage looks a little less dreary and a lot less nasty. For the first time since the garbage disposer was invented way back in the thirties, industry—prodded by government sanitary engineers—has set out to devise replacements for garbage cans.

The newest idea for making your household waste disposal job easier is a “compactor”—a husky device that compresses dry waste material into relatively small, solid cubes which can then be stored in little space until they are hauled away.

Compactors for apartment houses got a boost when the nationwide drive to clean up the atmosphere was launched several years ago. And now Sears, Roebuck and Co. and Whirlpool are test-marketing one for residential use.

Designed for under-counter installation in the kitchen, the Sears compactor is only 15 inches wide and plugs into any 120-volt outlet. A safety key lock device prevents accidental activation by children. Each time the loading door is opened, an aerosol automatically sprays a deodorizer and bug killer on the block of refuse, which is enclosed in polyethylene film. You can compress the equivalent of more than three full cans of trash into a cube that measures only 10 by 16 by 16 inches.

The cost of the unit is about $200. The polyethylene bags cost about $5 for 15. This may seem high but private collection would probably cost more. The main advantage of the compactor is that it enables you to dispose of all trash without going out of the kitchen, a convenience not matched by any other trash disposer. Since compactors are not in national distribution, they must be considered somewhat experimental.

Another successful waste disposer is the paper garbage bag. New to most Americans, though it actually has been in limited use for about a decade, it is an improvement over the conventional garbage can in almost every possible way.

The bags, made of durable, weatherproof kraft paper, have a capacity of 30 gallons (most garbage cans are 20 gallons) and hold up to 50 pounds of refuse. Some bags are suited for dry refuse only; others can hold wet material. When they are full, you shut the top and leave it for the collector. They are hung off the ground in metal holders with metal lids. Outdoors the holders are screwed to a wall; indoors they may be on wheels. The cheapest holders are nothing more than open metal racks; the best are completely enclosed.

Other advantages are less obvious but no less important. Although paper has a much shorter life than metal and rigid plastics, the garbage bags are in one sense more durable than conventional garbage cans. When the latter are damaged, they lose their ability to keep in odors and keep out rain, insects and animals. But paper bags can take a hard beating without losing their effectiveness as containers.

Just how tough they are was demonstrated by a little test conducted by a group of MIT students. They reported: "A garbage bag was filled with waste from a fraternity, including hot coffee grounds, eggs, spaghetti and excess water. It was then placed outdoors in the snow and left for four days, during which Boston experienced the heaviest rain since it was last hit by a hurricane. After five days there was no leakage from the bag. We then dragged the bag for over 200 feet on rough gravel before it was torn with small slits."

Paper bags are also more sanitary than ordinary containers because they don’t breed germs and flies to the same extent. Germs are removed from your premises when the bags are carried away and destroyed. Flies seem to find it harder to get into bags than into covered cans. Also, the disposal of the bags prevents completion of a fly’s breeding cycle.

In a California Department of Public Health study, it was found that once-a-week refuse collection produced 747 fly larvae in an average metal can; the average paper bag produced only 92. With twice-a-week collections, a metal can produced 74 larvae but a paper bag yielded only 24.

The success that paper bags are beginning to enjoy is evidenced by the number of cities that are passing ordinances either requiring their use by all property owners or encouraging it. The first of these was College Park, Maryland. It took the step in 1962 when it ordered the use of bags by everyone served by the municipal sanitation department.

College Park has a twice a week, back-door collection system. At the start of the paper-bag program, it supplied all home owners with one free rack-type wall holder. Additional holders or closed holders could be bought. The city also supplies two free bags a week to each home owner, plus one bag if a family has two or more holders. Extra bags are sold by the city at cost—9 cents each.

Not only are paper bags inexpensive ($28 a year per house) but they also speed up operations so much that College Park has now cut its sanitation force to 12 men who work only four days a week making collections; the rest of the time they’re doing other things.

Paper garbage bags can be used if the community law does not specifically require metal or rigid plastic cans. But the bags are hard to find in retail stores and may have to be ordered from a paper distributor.

Plastic garbage bags are readily available in any hardware store and most supermarkets throughout the country. And in some cities that recommend their use by home owners, such as Flint, Michigan, you can buy them directly from the city for as little as 50 bags for $1.75.

Plastic bags in widest use differ from paper garbage bags in that they are very lightweight (only 1.5 mils thickness) and are designed only for lining conventional garbage cans. This, of course, helps to keep the cans clean. Pickup by city collectors is fast, neat and noiseless. The bags themselves take up very little storage space before they are slipped into containers, and they are handy for wrapping and storing everything from potting soil to your finest blankets. On the other hand, they can be punctured by broken bottles, nails and nutshells. If loaded carelessly or too heavily, they may pop. And they do not discourage flies to any appreciable extent unless they can be (continued on page 88)

Mother Of 5 Active Children Tells How She Relieves Her Nervous Tension Headaches

MRS. RICHARD POLANSKY, an attractive young wife and mother who lives in California, has five children, ages 6, 5, 4, 3 and 2. She says, "Needless to say nervous headaches are a common occurrence at our house. One day my neighbor gave me 2 Anacin Tablets. It's one of the most effective products I ever used. I was amazed at the fast relief Anacin gave me."

This is not surprising because Anacin® is a special fortified formula that has 100% more of the one powerful pain reliever doctors recommend most for headaches—100% more than any other leading extra strength tablet.

Anacin turns off headache pain in minutes so relaxes its nervous tension and releases painful pressure on nerves. You feel great again and the soothing effect lasts for hours. Next time take powerful, fast-acting Anacin Tablets.

collected at least twice each week. However, there are also heavy, bags which are just as sturdy as 3-mil paper bags and are designed for use in the same kind of holders.

But what about those two old-faithful waste-disposal appliances—the garbage disposer and incinerator?

Figures show that disposers are selling in greater volume than ever before. Roughly 14 million dwelling units are equipped with them, and the figure rises by about a million and a half units each year. Ask any homemaker why and you get the same answer: "If I had to give up my appliances, the disposer would be the last to go." The reasons: A disposer washes food waste down the drain before it turns into garbage and it saves clean-up time.

It also reduces the fly population by eliminating garbage in cans. And it helps to keep sewers clean by grinding food waste into small particles which scrub the pipe walls as they flow down to the treatment plant.

Residential incinerators are much less popular, perhaps because many people associate them with the smoky commercial incinerators which cities are now trying to ban. But the fact is that current models certified by the American Gas Association are as smokeless and odorless as any good gas warm-air heating system.

The basic advantage of an incinerator, which is about the size of an apartment-house range, is that it will burn up all combustible household refuse. One Ohio family of six reports that in the course of a week they accumulate on the average of only one can of nonburnable trash. The rest of the trash is reduced to ashes which are collected in a container in the bottom of the incinerator and then poured into the garbage can every week. Monthly operation is about $1.

The only serious disadvantage of incinerators is that, like a furnace, they must be connected into a Class A chimney (which means they are usually installed in the utility room or basement). Lacking this chimney, the only way to use an incinerator is to install it in a fireproof shelter away from the house.

Now that so many people have become interested in our growing, Vesuvius-like waste disposal problem, there's no telling what ingenious solution they will come up with.

Until they do, however, there are a lot of good solutions already available that you ought to look into.

- Grows With Tropic Ease — Indoors!
- Foot Long Exotic Shaped Leaves
- Produces Fruit Up To 10 Years
- Bears a Colorful Array of Flowers from Spring to Fall, Followed by Hundreds of Plump, Juicy Red Tomatoes

FROM NEW ZEALAND’S FAMOUS HORTICULTURE RESEARCH GROWERS COMES AMAZING NEWS! WELLINGTON’S RARE — EXOTIC — ASTONISHING TREE TOMATO is now available in the U.S.A.!

And in a newly-developed super-hybrid variety that harvests up to 40 lbs. (hundreds of tomatoes) year — thousands of tomatoes up to 10 years — FROM ONE TOMATO TREE!

An astonishing South American tomato fruiting tree that gives stunning blossoms for months, blooms yearly even in the North, grows as a tree outdoors and with tropic ease indoors. now is perfected and made available by New Zealand plant scientists.

What Happened In Palliser Bay!
The growing fields of Southern Auckland are located in Palliser Bay and there New Zealand’s horticulture experts married Brazil’s tree tomato to the fertile rain forests of New Zealand. South America’s luscious tree tomato was discovered by Brazilian Indians; brought to Brazil, filled flavor and lusciousness by Portuguese missionaries; and hybridized to a super-resistant super-easy-to-grow variety.

There are 30 different varieties of tree tomatoes in South America but only one is the lushest, most delicious and easiest-to-grow of them all! And that one was made over after four years of hybridizing at Palliser Bay — working with various universities — discarding weaker, keeping stronger strains — until the final super variety was ready for you.

Who Put All Those Tomatoes In That Itty Bitty Seed
Imagine one seed does produce over 400 lbs. of tomatoes in one lifetime.

And New Zealand’s super Tree Tomato is so easy to raise that 80% of normally-planted seeds take. So easy it will grow inside anyplace a philodendron will grow! In actual test seeds thrown at random in plowed fields, it grew with no human care. Each seedling grows to 3 or 4 ft. indoors or up to 8 ft. outdoors or you can stop the growth of the tree at any height you wish between 3 and 8 feet. It is super disease-resistant. Imagine stunning exotic-shaped leaves up to one foot long! Imagine the constant changing show. First the lovely leaves — then a shower of fragrant flowers — and finally a beautiful array of luscious tomatoes. And this fruiting period goes on for five months.

A Family Delight
Show your children nature’s mysterious way of bringing a New Zealand fruit-bearing season right into your own home and reversing the U.S. season. Surprise and delight your friends. Enjoy delicious, mouth-watering salads, fresh fruit salads, special jams and desserts — all winter long. See huge hanging clusters of succulent red, plump and juicy tree tomatoes in successive waves month after month. Indoors, pluck your own dinner tomatoes.

Each Tomato Costs Tiny Fraction of a Cent!
Accept our introductory offer. Frankly we want everyone who enjoys delicious fresh tomatoes and gorgeous beautiful blooms and blossoms to enjoy this super-hybrid Tree Tomato.

We will ship you a full season’s supply of these super seeds for $1. These seeds, up-to-now too difficult to obtain, are in demand.

LIVE LONGER AND BETTER
In the Healthiest, Sunniest Climate in All America—Deming, New Mexico!

Your Own Ranchette
Just $299—Only $5 a Month!

(*See Below)

Do you know people who wake up to sunshine 355 days out of each year... people who don’t now what it is to be oppressed by humid heat in the summer or by the cold clutch of winter? Do you know people who can say that in their State the rate of cancer and heart disease is half what the Nation as a whole faces? Do you know people to whom a suntan is a year ’round commonplace? We know such people. They live in New Mexico.

There isn’t a place on earth where the air is purer, where body health is more lavishly bestowed. No place where the words at the top of this page,—live longer and better—fit more than they do in New Mexico.

And in all New Mexico itself it would be difficult to match the climate and beauty of the region surrounding Deming. As spectacular as the northern portion, but without the old of winter. As dry and pure as Arizona, but not as hot in the summer. And, as actively vigorous and prosperous as the city you now live in, yet without the fever, without the tension.

To live anywhere in New Mexico is to live better. The superb climate, naturally air-conditioned in the summer and brilliantly sunny in the winter, the breathtaking beauty of a lavish Nature—the young vigor of a state that is causing a business and investment boom—these are the reasons that tens of thousands of Americans already come to Deming.

Consider then: Here in the center of this miraculous climate and beauty are towns which have grown amazingly in the last few years, as, for example: In 1950 it had 12,000 people. By 1960, 31,000 people, or 260% in 10 years—and still growing. Like Tucson and Phoenix, this area has the same desert allure, where pure air, pure drinking water permits lovely towns to flourish. Deming shows the same 85% possible growth in a shorter time than the national average.

Beginning 3½ miles from the flavorful city of Deming (population 1,000) are 24,000 acres of former ranches whose farthest boundary is 5 miles from town. Spectacularly set off by the breathtaking Florida mountains, this land is so typical of the romance of the southwest that has been photographed for the covers of many magazines. In this lovely region every DEMING RANCHETTE fronts graded earth roads already dedicated to Luna County in widths of 50 and 80 feet. Every Ranchette has access to avenues leading to three major highways—U.S. Highways 70 and 60 and brand new Interstate 10.

DEMING is blessed with water which is called “America’s finest drinking water, 99.99% pure.” There are homes already built on DEMING RANCHETTES and all they have electricity. When you are ready to build your new home, electricity will be made available to you. Schools, churches, shops, stores, golf course, tennis courts—all are located in the growing city of Deming. Fertile soil is yours for the planting. Almost everything will grow here when watered—fruits, vegetables, trees, flowers.

Deming’s friendliness captivates the fancy of people from every state in the Union. To visit us is like going back to the warmth of one’s own home. Here are the practical benefits of living anywhere near Deming.

GOLF—The Rio Members Country Club Golf Course is right in Deming itself. It is a beautiful course with the Florida Mountains towering in the background. You play 12 months a year and green fees are very reasonable.

HUNTING AND FISHING—What are you after? Deer, antelope, wild turkey? Or maybe bear, mountain lion? Well, you can get deer, quail and jack-rabbits right in your own backyard, in the Floridas. For really big game, and great fishing, try the Gila National Forest 60 miles directly south of Deming. Almost 2,000,000 acres set aside for hunting and fishing.

HORSEBACK RIDING—You’ll find the Florida Mountains enthralling, ring along a treasure pouch and join other rockhounds seeking amethyst, jack-rabbits right in your own backyard, in the Floridas. For really big game, and great fishing, try the Gila National Forest 60 miles directly south of Deming. Almost 2,000,000 acres set aside for hunting and fishing.

INVESTMENT—More than 18,000 people have bought Ranchettes through the mail and on site.

The new U.S. Interstate 10 is now being built with interchanges right in the heart of Deming. Consider other developments such as the new retirement Home and the new road being built from Palomas, Mexico (33 miles south of Deming) into the interior of Mexico and you will agree with is that Deming has a tremendous future.

AMERICAN WING

Unfortunately I have to live in New York City but fortunately I live near the Metropolitan Museum of Art. There I recently spent several hours enjoying the beauty of the antiques pictured in your December issue. The patina on the beautiful highboy and secretary pictured in your article, "A Wing Full of Glory," makes you want to run your hand over their soft finishes.

A QUALITY ENVIRONMENT

As a wife and mother who has in recent years developed an increasing interest in the quality of our environment, may I thank you for your continuing emphasis on the subject.

You and your staff accomplish so much by bringing to our attention the many aspects of this subject—everything from open green spaces to quality of design in individual buildings and projects and the whole complex area of the housing needs of the future—new materials, zoning restrictions and antiquated building codes. Your editorial policy is right on the beam.

SHROPSHIRE, HAMPSHIRE, SUFFOLK?

As a farm wife whose husband used to raise Suffolk sheep, I can tell you those are not Suffolks in your November "House of History." They look like Hampshires to me, though the lamb in the foreground may be a Suffolk cross.

Mrs. Wesley W. Lee

They are either Hampshires or Shropshires.

Mrs. Virginia Easterbrook
Dudley, Mississippi

Hampshires they are.

SHAKER BOOKS

In your October issue you named Shaker Recipes for Cooks and Home-makers by William Lawrence Las-siter and The Shaker Cook Book—Not By Bread Alone by Caroline B. Piercy as two excellent Shaker cookbooks. I tried the bookstores in my area and they all said both are out of print. Hopefully you can tell me how I can order good copies, possibly through Eastern bookstores.

Back by Popular Demand

The change in your magazine that makes me unhappy is dropping Decor­rating Clinic. I miss it very much. Could you please bring it back?

Mrs. H. Darrow
Detroit, Michigan

You are not alone. Many readers have requested that "Decorating Clinic" be brought back. You'll find it on page 36.

KITCHEN KLATSCH

Should a soufflé dish be greased?

Miss Mary Kotkow
Queens Village, N. Y.

We never grease a soufflé dish. These dishes are specially designed to have straight, smooth sides which allow the egg mixture to slide easily as it expands. During baking, the soufflé clings to the side of the dish which gives support to the finished soufflé.

Should margarine be used in place of butter in a low-calorie diet?

B. Weeks
Omaha, Nebraska

Butter and margarine have the same number of calories per unit weight. Margarine is recommended for low-­ cholesterol diets, but if you are counting calories, there is no difference.

In the October issue you printed a recipe for Starter for Sourdough Bread. Since I am not familiar with Starter, could you explain what it is and why it is used?

Mary B. Haynes
Phoenix, Arizona

Starter is a fermentation made from yeast, flour, water or milk and sugar. It was popular years ago because it kept a long time and could be used again and again for leavening.

THE SPANISH HAVE A WORD FOR IT.

THOMASVILLE.

They have a word for style, too. Elegante. It's what makes the difference between a beautiful bedroom and a bedroom that makes you feel beautiful. That bedroom is Coronado.

See how the Baroque-inspired double doors are translated into drawers for the triple dresser? Notice the heavy hardware, executed with the flourish of medieval Spanish artisans. And the glowing Fiesta finish with the warmth and richness of Spanish sherry. Or you can have Coronado in Spanish Umber, a deeper finish.

THE INDOOR WORLD
The Sunshine Room
It's wherever you put an Armstrong vinyl floor.

The whole room sparkles when the sun-bright glow of an Armstrong vinyl floor joins forces with natural sunlight.

This is one of the Vinyl Corlon® floors in the Armstrong Coronelle® Collection. It's called Cumberland™. It's like a patio of random, textured stones on the sun-drenched shores of the Mediterranean.

We put sunshine and vinyl into every Coronelle design and color. The sunshine is the glow from deep within that gives both the room and your spirits a lift. The vinyl is the tough material that makes the floor easy to clean and to keep clean.

Every home should have a Sunshine Room. It can be a kitchen, family room, front hall—any room where you put an Armstrong floor made with sunshine and vinyl.

Years ago, master craftsmen made ceilings worth looking at.

Today, Armstrong makes ceilings worth looking at again.
Chandelier Ceilings

Armstrong's new Chandelier Ceilings are different from any other ceilings because they're made of a different material—called Trilon™. Trilon lets you install tiles so close to one another that the design seems to flow together. And you can do a 10' x 14' room over a weekend. The cost for Chandelier Ceiling tiles for a room this size? Less than $50.

One of the richly textured designs of Chandelier Ceilings is shown here. And it is acoustical, so it quiets noise. Chandelier Ceilings are also fire resistant. And, they're made only by Armstrong—the Ceiling Masters.

You can see Armstrong's new Chandelier Ceilings at your building supply dealer now. For the names of the dealers nearest you, call this special number toll-free: 800-243-6000. The triple-dividend dessert. Elegant...luscious...and easy! Pick up the makings at your grocer's, put them together in minutes. After weeks in the freezer, the cake is still moist, the ice cream free of crystals. Why?

Because Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap (unlike plastic bags and many other wraps) molds tight and firm, seals air out, seals freshness in.

Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. For everything you want to keep in your freezer.
