The Illinois Indiana Masonry Council presented nine awards at its 10th Annual Excellence in Masonry '83 Architectural Awards banquet held March 31. Four Chicago Chapter member firms captured five of the Excellence in Masonry Awards, which honors outstanding projects constructed predominately of masonry. This year's competition, which is judged in St. Louis by a jury comprised of four AIA members, drew 42 entries.

Nagle Hartray & Associates, Ltd., was presented with the Bronze Medal for the Mid-Quad Dormitories at Northwestern University; Crouch-Walker Corporation was the mason contractor winning for Excellence in Masonry Execution. The judges commented that the project "makes a quiet option for quality and unpretentious dignity...a timeless example of architecture. The proportions of the facade and roof line give prominence to the central face and improve the character over the existing buildings...a straight-forward plan."

Special Mention Awards were presented to Booth/Hansen & Associates, Ltd. and Skidmore, Owings & Merrill. Booth/Hansen, with Caesar Fiocchi Company, Mason Contractor, was cited by the jury for the Casa Della Luce urban townhouse, Chicago, stating that "it was directed by a concern for the full, gentle human experience, and testifies to a sensitivity to its surroundings and nature."

Skidmore, Owings & Merrill was recognized for the Terraces/Dearborn Park Apartments in Chicago, a "handsome array of forms" against the sky. "The warm, red brick is complimentary to the other masonry buildings in the area. Limestone trim runs along the top of the building and down its terraced sides accenting a traditional Chicago building material," commented the jury. Frank Miller's Sons Fireproofing Company was the mason contractor on the project.

Two Special Mention Awards were presented to Bauhs & Dring, Architects and Planners. The first for Concord Lane Townhouses, Chicago, for which the judges commended excellent use of a "difficult site." "The Facade is in the Victorian vernacular, with small bays and alternating peaks, with brick recalling the appearance of surrounding residential buildings."

Moving Ahead With Fees & Compensation Seminar

Last month's article on Architectural Fees and Compensation has generated some reactions; therefore, we have decided to move ahead with a conference in the fall on this important topic. I would like to share some thoughts with you on various reactions I have had to my comments:

First of all I must say that the views on fees and compensation are my own and do not represent the public policy of our endangered profession. I guess I have come to the realization that the profession could be extinct, but we would always have the AIA Washington Headquarters.

Second, clients in the public and private sectors have mentioned to me that fees for architectural services should be higher, but they admit that they do negotiate fees, and if an architect is willing to do free work and lower his fees to obtain a commission, why should they complain? In fact, one developer has said an architect's fees should be at a point that he won't go bankrupt during the job, and no more.

Third, I hope the conference will lead to a framework for compensation for architectural services. It is always interesting to note that a real estate broker receives a commission on a commercial lease - 7% of the average first year rental and 2% for each year thereafter. The lease commissions are far in excess of the compensation paid to the architect. When you look at housing, the difference is even greater.

Architects might consider charging a per diem rate based on a minimum of three times salary with the provision that liability should be limited to no more than three times the architectural compensation.

Compensation to employees of architectural firms will also be included in the conference. The Chapter office will send members of our Chapter a brief survey dealing with compensation that will be presented during the conference.

The recent survey by the Professional Services Management Journal, dated March, 1984, is of interest. They surveyed 354 firms and included 8,035 individuals. They note that the median salary of an individual who has complete charge of a project, negotiates fees, etc. is $38,246. In firms of less than 50 people, the median is $32,069. In like turn, a job captain's median compensation is $30,500 and in firms of less than 50 people, the median is $29,660.

In my own survey, I have found that a graduate architect, registered, and with seven years of experience is in the range of $24,000 to $26,000. I think the survey we are undertaking will be of interest.

Please call me or our Executive Director, Alice Sinkevitch, if you have any thought on the preparation for the conference in the fall.

Thomas J. Eyerman, FAIA

Hackl Elected V.P.

The Chicago Chapter is extremely proud to announce that Donald J. Hackl, FAIA, was elected vice president of The American Institute of Architects on May 9 at the National Convention in Phoenix.

Hackl, who is president of Loeb L Schlossman and Hackl, has been a leader on national, state, local AIA boards and committees since 1975, and is currently fulfilling a three-year term as National AIA Director. He has served the Chapter Board as treasurer, director, first vice president, and in 1982 as president.

He has been active in many professional and civic organizations: as director for the CAAC; as member of the Board of Advisors, Construction Law Institute; and director, treasurer, and vice president of the Chicago Building Congress.

With more work to be done at The Institute, we are confident that Don's quality of leadership and drive will see new accomplishments.

Chapter Programs

Basking in Success

Pictured at the April 3 reception at The Art Institute honoring the 25th Anniversary of the Women's Architectural League are (from the left) John Zukowsky, Curator of the Department of Architecture at The Art Institute; Pauline Saliga, Assistant Curator; Joseph Giovannini, architecture history and design writer for the New York Times; the representative from Victor O. Schinnerer & Co. who presented a grant to the Department of Architecture in honor of the WAL; and Carol Brejcha, WAL president.
Aubrey Greenberg, AIA and Dan Gallagher, Chapter Office Program Coordinator, are riding high on the success of the 31st "Architect/Designer Developer" seminar held at the M & M Club. 205 were in attendance at the one-day conference with registrants representing ten states.

Greenberg, working with Dan and the Board of Directors, lined up a program packed with information for the architect anxious to expand business and ultimately increase profit. Attendees were enthusiastic about the information offered. "Program was spectacular - more energy, sense of hope, inspiration, and technical expertise working in a synergetic manner than I've ever experienced in an architect-related meeting." This was the best $35 spent in a long time." "Fantastic networking." With this kind of response and encouragement, our members can count on it.

Prepare to Build

If you have never trekked to the North Avenue Beach the first Saturday in June with appropriate sand digging and castle building apparatuses to compete in the CCAIA Annual Sandcastle Competition, you should add this to your series of life's samplings.

An elite corps of judges has been netted to view the sculptures and pronounce them good, gooder, goodest: Alderman Clifford Kelly of the 6th Ward, Henry Hanson of Chicago Magazine, Carole R. Sloan, general manager of radio station WBEZ, Elizabeth Lepeck, Lewis Manilow, developer, and Edmund Thornton, Ottawa Silica Co. Foundation.

Get your gear gathered and join in all the serious nonsense on June 2 by registering noon somewhere south of the jetty at North Avenue Beach. Look for someone holding a brightly-colored pennant. Rain date: June 3.

elicited these comments from the judges: "the architect chose to restore the intriguing masonry...it shows a sensitive talent divested in the expressions of this building."

Among the evening's presenters was the Chapter's president, Tom Eyerman, who presented the Gold Medal, and Norman DeHaan, 1984 president-elect, who presented the two Silver Medal Awards.

Interiors Winners Selected

Ten projects have been selected as winners in the 1984 CCAIA Interior Architecture Awards - Year 5 Program.

The jury, consisting of John Morris Dixon, FAIA, editor, Progressive Architecture; Michael Graves; and Theo Konodos, IALD, principal, Bonvini/Kondos Associates, met in New York to judge 68 entries that encompassed office, commercial, institutional, and residential interiors.

The awards presentation ceremony will be held June 14, 6 p.m. at the Graham Foundation, 4 West Burton. Representative slides of each entry will be shown.

Please telephone the Chapter office and let us know if you will be joining in the presentation reception.

Symposium Challenges Modern Architecture

On Friday, June 15 at 2:30 p.m., architects from three continents will assemble to discuss what Vincent Skully calls a "common movement, the international reaction against canonical modernism in architecture" - Postmodernism. Paul Goldberger will moderate the symposium of leading architectural practitioners: John Burgee, Michael Graves, Helmut Jahn, Josef-Paul Kleihues, Henning Larsen, Carlos Ott, Juhan Pallasmaa, and Christian de Portzamparc.

John Burgee's firm, John Burgee Architect with Philip Johnson, has successfully adapted historist styles of past architecture in building such as the Chippendale-topped AT&T Building in NYC, and the PPG corporate headquarters in Pittsburgh with its Gothic imagery. Progressive Architecture devoted the February 1984 issue to the firm's work.

Michael Graves, with his Portland and Louisville skyscrapers, provided an important study of classicist forms and signalled a renaissance with the color palette in, not only interiors, as in the award-winning Sunar/Hauserman showroom, but by wrapping the exterior of a building in a spectrum of color.

Helmut Jahn has uprooted the traditional modernist approach to the design of the contemporary high-rise with his slick facades and forms that do not neglect historic precedents.

Josef-Paul Kleihues, of West Germany, is director of the Internationale Building Exposition in Berlin. His buildings exemplify the conscientious European fascination for...
JIA Gold Medal To Be Awarded

The $2000 first place prize or the winning UIA Gold Medal design will be awarded during Neocon. An international jury will select the winning design or the highest award the order of International Architects can bestow upon a living architect.

The winning entry will be selected for the actual design of the Gold Medal, the first to be awarded at the 7th UIA Congress in Cairo, January 20-24, 1985. The medal will be given every three years.

Entries for the competition are due June 10. Program information can be obtained at the Chapter office or at the Merchandise Mart.

Best in Product Display Recognized

Neil Frankel, AIA, associate principal at Swanke Hayden Connell; Margaret McCurry, AIA, ASID, partner at Tigerman, Fugman, McCurry; Mel Hamilton, AIA, vice president of ISD, Incorporated; and Lisa O'Dwyer, student member of the Chicago Chapter, will judge the 1984 Neocon Product Display Competition.

Award certificates will be presented Friday, June 15, 10:30 a.m. at the Expo Center in the Merchandise Mart. Winners will be published in the August issue of Interiors Magazine.

There is no registration fee to attend Neocon events; however, all architects are required to register for Neocon. Admittance to any of the programmed events is by ticket and registration identification. Please call 527-4141 for program/registration information.

Looking at Books

Survey books have a purpose, but they are not for the enlightenment of the cognizant. For sure, those in-the-know will not need to grace their coffee tables with Paolo Portoghesi's Postmodern, a glossy paperback at a glossy price.

But Portoghesi, architectural coordinator at the Venice Biennale, is the High Priest of European Postmodernism, and those who do want to know about his faith will find it difficult. Like the Latin mass, the problem is the language. Portoghesi's historical and theoretical explanations, his descriptions of the symbolism, and the justifications of the surrounding avant garde are all shrouded in the most obscure language. Even the keen reader will be discouraged by the unequal struggle to capture an abstract idea lurking in sentences six lines long, solid with multi-syllable words. The result is that the text is basically inaccessible; it is a demonstration of the elitism of "High Culture," a very European phenomenon.

The first third of Postmodern is devoted to a description of the background, purpose, and birth of the Postmodern travelling exhibition, "The Strada Novissima" of the Venice Biennale of 1980. This initiates a series of essays on the recent work by the most important and well-known Postmodern architects of America, France, and Germany, including a large group of Italian architects of lesser fame. It is the great illustrations of their work that finally redeems the book. The quality of precision that belongs to architectural drawings, combined with the historical imagery of Postmodernism, makes the point. Together, with the plans and excellent photographs of completed work, the view emerges that, shorn of words, on the level of visual pleasure, Postmodernism is ebullient, and above all, fun. Maybe that is more than enough to justify the coffee table existence of this survey book.

THE AMERICAN WOOD COUNCIL will hold a Non-Residential Renovation and Reconstruction Design Award Program honoring outstanding projects and their architects. Awards will be given for projects using wood as a dominant element in the renovation. Projects qualifying must have been completed after 1978 and may involve renovation of a building or major additions to existing structures.

Submissions must be postmarked by October 1. Information may be obtained from the Council at 1619 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Suite 500, Washington, D. C. 20036.
GEORGE VERONDA, AIA member of the Chicago Chapter for 16 years died April 7 after long illness.

Mr. Veronda's firm was involved primarily in small commercial projects: the design of the Phyllis Kind Gallery in both Chicago and New York, the Esther Saks Gallery, and the Side Dishes restaurant opening in the gallery building in May.

Mr. Veronda's design for the Roger Brown residence in New Buffalo, Michigan was selected as one of Architecture and Environment for the Gerontological Society of America from 1971-1977.

Mr. Byerts was internationally known for his work as a gerontologist, reporting in Milan, Italy in 1983 on "The Social and Physical Aspects of Housing and Aging: A U.S. Perspective" for the 12th Conference of Mayors of the World's major cities. He received a special citation from The American Institute of Architects in recognition of his contribution to improved and more sensitive design for the elderly.

Those wishing to make contributions should do so to their favorite house of worship.

THOMAS BYERTS, AIA, Chicago Chapter member since 1978, died May 2 in Newport Beach, California after a long illness.

Mr. Byerts was an Associate Professor in the School of Architecture at the University of Illinois at Chicago, and had recently received a grant from the Retirement Research Foundation to engage in a longitudinal study of public housing for elderly residents. He was Director of Architecture and Environment for the Gerontological Society of America from 1971-1977.

When it’s time to recycle an old building into a desirable piece of real estate, Jon has the people, the know-how, and the creative vision to do the job right.

We flew in all the rare marble for the lobby of a luxurious office building we were creating from a former restaurant commissary. And Jon helped fashion highly unusual office/commercial space from a former picture frame factory. When it comes to recycling, we like what we do so much that we located our headquarters at Office in the Park, a suburban grammar school our design/build team transformed into prime office space.

Other people like what we do, too. Two of our renovation projects were among a select group spotlighted at a Chicago Architectural Foundation exhibit, “Renovating Chicago.”

If you can see the possibilities in recycling, give us a call. We share the same vision. And we have the ability to make it a reality.
