President's Report to the Membership

Stephen Goffinet, AIA, President

How quickly a year passes! My brief tenure as president of AIA Indiana is rapidly coming to an end. Nonetheless, I wish to take this opportunity to thank the members of AIA Indiana for allowing me to serve them this year, and to share some of the many activities and achievements we have been able to accomplish so far.

One major areas of focus we have emphasized this year has been that of continuing education. It remains a real center of attention for AIA Indiana's future plans and programs. We acknowledge the on-going trend nationally (a trend also common to many other professions) that in our profession, practitioners who are entrusted with the safety and welfare of the public must maintain and enhance their knowledge of the art and science of architecture. We have begun to lay the groundwork for implementing mandatory continuing education (MCE) for architect licensure during next year's (2003) General Assembly. Our goal is to develop a MCE system consistent with the model AIA national initiated during the mid-1990s, a fair and manageable system familiar to most architects. We envision a smooth transition into the new MCE system by all architects in Indiana. Our Legislative Committee is focusing its primary task to this issue and will continue to do so in the upcoming months.

Similarly, we have worked hard to develop an updated business plan for the AIA Bookstore in Indianapolis. We see a natural linking between positioning the bookstore as a center of educational resources that will be concurrent with its retail use, sale of AIA Documents, codes, and other business aspects. Our vision includes a possible partnering or alignment with Ball State University in an effort to establish a viable educational resource center for architects in a downtown Indianapolis location. The plan will direct efforts to implement a statewide system of non-dues revenue in conjunction with expanding our association management services comprehensively to all our local chapters.

AIA Indiana was reasonably well represented on the national scene at both the Grassroots Conference in Washington, D.C. and at the AIA Convention in Charlotte. Still, one disappointment we experienced this year was not being able to have the next Ohio Valley Regional Director elected from the two excellent AIA Indiana candidates nominated. I wholeheartedly thank the time and efforts of Mike McKay, AIA, and Steve Ford, AIA, in putting forth two strong resumes for regional director. We were, however, successful in having one of our associate members, Antonia Stahl of BSA Design, elected to the Regional Council as an associate director. Nonetheless, we need to seriously increase AIA Indiana's level of active participation at the regional and national level in an effort to enhance our component's visibility and representation.

We have also been actively updating our state website, <www.aiaindiana.org>, with the goal of providing a more dynamic, useful, and flexible information resource for our members and the general public. Our desire is to create a site that is user-adaptable, easy to manage and navigate, and a site that keeps pace with on-going events and programs. We anticipate using the Internet more than in the past for the sale of AIA Documents, books, codes, and architectural merchandise from our bookstore. It will also be a resourceful tool to our members by providing information on chapter programs, conventions, conferences, as well as, be an opportunity to solicit non-dues revenue via corporate sponsorships. Likewise, we see using the website as a source for posting our quarterly newsletter, SKETCHES, thus eliminating the cost of printing and mailing.

Finally, we have spent tremendous energies in the coordination of this year's joint state convention with AIA Kentucky. Aptly named and consistent with our theme of continuing education, Learning From Columbus brings together a spectrum of quality speakers, workshops, and tours at one of the nation's noted cities of architectural excellence, Columbus, Indiana. We also use this venue to showcase our annual design award winners and give these architects the recognition they so greatly deserve.

Our future appears to be strong, on solid ground, and moving forward. I again express my gratitude to the members of AIA Indiana for the opportunity to serve as your president in 2002.

Executive Director's Report

In 1980 the Board instructed me, as executive director, to become involved in the Indiana Construction Industry Trust (ICIT) for the purpose of being a liaison to the broader industry. In that timeframe a set of guidelines dealing with construction industry was produced along with the opportunity for our membership to participate in ICIT sponsored health insurance programs.

On July 12, 2002 the Indiana Department of Insurance placed ICIT in a rehabilitation program and assumed management of ICIT. On July 22, 2002, the state-appointed Rehabilitator petitioned Marion County Circuit Court for an Order of Liquidation. The court ruled for liquidation of ICIT on August 26, 2002.

At the September 16, 2002 AIA Indiana board meeting, I brought the Board up to date on the status of the Indiana Construction Industry Trust and its court ordered liquidation. The board of directors determined that it should obtain counsel to advise and represent, if necessary, AIA Indiana regarding the circumstances of ICIT.

Governor and Mrs. O'Bannon participated in a reception held in the Board Room of the Architectural Center. The exhibition was of winning entries of the competition by the Indiana Governor's Residence Commission held earlier this year. The exhibit was open to the public.

Grassroots leadership training was held in Washington in February and is always a good learning experience. It should be mandatory for each chapter President Elect to attend these workshops and have this essential learning experience.

It provides some of the tools necessary to making the presidential year a successful and satisfactory accomplishment. It is also a time when we visit our elected U.S. Senators and Representatives to present the key issues facing the profession.

Over thirty Indiana members attended the National Convention in Charlotte this year. It was a good meeting! Next year the convention is being held in San Diego, May 8-10, 2003. Plan on San Diego and find out just how great the National Convention can be.

Learning units are a continuing responsibility for every member. If we are successful in our legislative efforts, learning units will be required for the profession (the prospects for our growth are intriguing).

With that thought in mind, the state convention should be considered as a place and time to satisfy some of the units necessary for fulfilling active membership. We will be meeting without Kentucky and Ohio in 2003. A year of intense planning and hundreds of man-hours goes into planning a convention and annual meetings, all for the benefit of about 3% of the membership. If you don't attend the meeting, you're not getting full value out of your membership. Being a responsible member of the association, a member of the board - either at the chapter or state level, or a committee - is essential to the successful working of this organization. Meetings are posted for a full calendar year. Chair responsibilities require immeasurable hours off the clock time to plan and execute meetings, accomplish the goals and arrive at the imperatives set for the organization.

Expanding the services to our members statewide, using up-to-date technology, and how we use this ever-changing knowledge are constant concerns. New tools are being developed to make the Bookstore more accessible statewide through the web to create a virtual store: a one-on-one customer relationship that looks beyond our four walls and provides store services to the members with the move of a mouse. We are looking toward the store becoming more of a resource center. We're exploring new ways to promote to the public a broad awareness of the Architectural Profession, resulting in expanded sales of books, codes, documents, and items designed by architects. Additional staffing through shared association management for chapter and advertising will expand the horizon of AIA Indiana in 2003 and beyond. A new board manual is in the works; and I will have it for consideration in 2003.

Architectural Center Bookstore Report

Nancy Grounds, Manager

From AIA in 2002, was a new document titled A114 Standard Form of Agreement between Owner And Contractor Where the Basis for Payment is the Cost of the Work Plus a Fee without GMP Effective date 2001. Document A511 Guide for Supplementary Conditions is no longer available for purchase but can be viewed online at <www.aia.org>.

Revised 2001 editions of existing documents are:

- G804 Register of Bid
- G805 List of Subcontractors
- G807 Project Team Directory
- G808 Project Data
- G809 Project Abstract
- G810 Transmittal Letter

The electronic documents continue to be a love-hate relationship with the members. If you are not a current user and would like a free demo CD, please contact me.

The state of Indiana has not adopted any new codes so far this year, but we should see a new electric code before year-end. In addition, the 2002 International Building Code is getting closer to approval sometime in 2003.

A reminder to members that you receive discounts on everything we sell, i.e., books, codes and documents. For questions or to order, call (317) 634-3871 or toll free at (888) 472-2578. The Bookstore also has an email address at <[aia bookstore@ameritech.net](mailto:aia bookstore@ameritech.net)>.

THE BEST CONTRACT DOCUMENTS JUST GOT EASIER TO USE.

AIA Contract Documents were created from a consensus of contractors, attorneys, architects and engineers. They've been finely tuned through 110 years of legal precedent. And now they are easier to use than ever before thanks to:

- 11 new or revised documents
- Faster-printing "DRAFT" watermark for clean, readable copying and faxing
- Multi-seat licenses
- Improved navigational aids and formatting

Chapter Report AIA Central Southern Indiana G. Kurt Wahl, AIA, President

Completed goals of diverse programs with AIA student inclusion, balanced budget and growing member participation has made 2002 a very successful year.

Central Southern Chapter began the year with a program theme of education and unique architecture. Our meetings have alternated between these topics starting with the Neal Marshal Center at IU, then with Ball State faculty and AIA students at the College of Architecture and Planning in Indianapolis. We most recently visited the new Purdue Aquatics Center where Scholer Corporation, project architect Stephen Ford, AIA, discussed the design which integrated competition, recreation and education. Our meeting was held at Lafayette's Wells Cultural Center where members enjoyed the local art exhibitions. At our next meeting we will again involve the AIA student chapter as we participate in AIA Day at Ball State University.

Education for the members has always been a goal for the Central Southern Chapter. Providing quality continuing education topics is a priority. I am pleased to announce that every meeting has offered CES units to the attendees. The final meeting of the year is scheduled for November 15 and will give members a chance to finish off their annual requirement with six CES units available through four different design industry speakers and presentations. Even if you have met your requirement, this will be a worthwhile meeting to attend.

Remember Central Southern Chapter will be the host chapter for the Indiana / Kentucky regional convention, October 17-19 in Columbus. We will sponsor the host chapter party, so a large Central Southern turnout would be great. Please, mark your calendar and plan to attend.

Fort Wayne Chapter Report

Jerome T. Nix, AIA President

We are pleased to report that AIA Fort Wayne has been involved in several successful projects over the course of the past 10 months. AIA once again co-sponsored the eighth annual Birdhouse Bash for Daybreak Children's Shelter. Five architectural firms participated in this year's event by designing and even constructing the birdhouses. The 2002 birdhouse auction and associated activities raised over $34,000 for Daybreak Children's Shelter.

In July, AIA Fort Wayne participated in the Three Rivers Festival "Art in the Park" program with "Kids Draw Architecture." Participation in the event has increased steadily over the last several years. With over 325 children ranging in age from 2 to 15, there was never a dull moment working the tent and talking to the children. As the program grows, the quality of work by the young artist continues to amaze the committee members. The artwork was judged at our August board meeting, and we are actively preparing the calendar for publication. AIA members can contact Dennis Marshall, R.A., Public Director, for copies of the 2002-2003 calendars while quantities last.

The AIA Fort Wayne Annual Meeting was held on Thursday, October 10, 2002. As we have experienced in the past, there are several openings in the slate of officers for 2003. Any AIA Fort Wayne member or associate who has an interest in serving the membership and advancing the profession of architecture should call Jerry Nix, AIA, or Mike McKay, AIA.

AIA Fort Wayne would like to congratulate and thank Mike McKay, AIA, for his dedication to the profession of architecture and his willingness to serve the membership. Mike was a finalist for the position of Regional Director to the National AIA Board of Directors. The nominating committee selected David Profit, AIA, from Kentucky as our regional director.

The annual AIA/CSI Golf Classic is scheduled to occur at Brookwood Golf Course in Fort Wayne in October 2002. Proceeds from the annual Golf Classic help to fund AIA Fort Wayne's Annual Scholarship distributed through the Indiana Architectural Foundation.

The annual AIA/CSI social holiday party is planned for December 5, 2002. As in the past, we will extend an offer to the local landscape architects and planners to join us in an evening of fun and fellowship.

As president, I would like to thank our current officers for their dedication and hard work and encourage others to become involved and support the local and state efforts of AIA.

Chapter Report

AIA Indianapolis

Drew White, AIA, President

Small, Medium and Large

This year's chapter events explored the theme of scale as it relates to designed and built projects, design practices, and education. The theme was explored in a variety of venues, beginning with a presentation by DMJM, a large design firm based in Los Angeles. This presentation gave the membership an inside view of one of the country's largest practices and built work on a grand scale. Todd Williams, of Williams/Tsein of New York, later presented significant works by this celebrated firm, including the recently completed Folk Art Museum in New York and projects at Cranbrook. Huff + Gooden of Charleston, SC, a small practice, gave insights into the production of high quality projects in the context of its purposefully limited size.

The idea of scale was explored through tours of architectural practices in the city. CSO opened its doors to the membership for a look into a large firm and the movement of projects through it. Axis Architecture + Interiors and Synthesis Architecture provided similar insights into medium and small firms, respectively.

Chapter Report
AIA Northern Indiana
Thomas H. Jordan AIA, President

The year 2002 marked another year of increasing membership activity, community involvement and public awareness of the architectural profession.

The chapter had a successful community service project in Goshen, Indiana that started last fall and was completed in February of this year. We were able to assist the city and community in having open dialogue and discussion on the future development of a specific site on the north side of town. Hopefully, the experience has set a precedent for future development in Goshen.

The chapter had an excellent turnout at the annual golf outing in July. Thanks to the many contractors, suppliers and architectural firms that provided sponsorship to this event, we were able to once again raise enough money to present a sizable amount to Ivy Tech for the Minerva Ditton Scholarship fund. We also thank the Executive Committee of AIA Indiana for being present at this year's outing to give a presentation on state and regional AIA activities.

The chapter is presently in the process of planning a fall chapter event with the theme, "Community Design." We are working to involve the University of Notre Dame Architecture Department and the Student Chapter of AIA. The event will include chapter design awards, and hopefully, student design awards, scholarship opportunities and a keynote speaker that will be of great interest to chapter members, students and community leaders.

In November, the Holiday Party will be visited by Daniel Friedman, Director of the Department of Architecture, Art and Planning at the University of Cincinnati, who will discuss the issue of scale as it relates to both educational environments and the projects that are contemplated within them.

The Home Tour, a bi-annual event, will provide members and the public a glimpse into the homes of 9 architects located throughout the city. The homes vary in style, scale and context, and should offer an intriguing view into the thoughts of an architect who is also his/her client. Proceeds from the tour will benefit Horizon House, which provides shelter and support to homeless people in the city of Indianapolis.

Schmidt Associates lead a tour of an academic mixed-use project at Marten University, allowing for exposure both to chapter members and the university for this important academic mission.

A group of eighteen (18) corporate sponsors assisted in the underwriting of six chapter programs, the development of the chapter's website, launching a marketing/communication plan, and a continuing education event. Our gold level corporate sponsors enjoyed the chance to present their professional services and expertise to the membership during chapter programs.

The annual golf outing has attracted 144 golfers this year, and as is the custom, honors a designer who made a profound contribution to the profession. This year the outing is shepherded by Mies Van der Rohe, who not coincidentally designed objects ranging in scale from single pieces of furniture to skyscrapers.

The chapter has enjoyed this exploration of scale in the built and professional environment, and the opportunities for personal growth that it generated.

We plan to schedule this event for mid-November.

Other chapter news and activities include the following:

(a) NIC to publicly weigh-in on Northern Indiana community topics of interest via editorial statements in local papers,

(b) to continue discussions with Notre Dame to find ways to develop symbiotic relationships between the chapter, the university and the student chapter, and

(c) to endeavor to provide educational opportunities for chapter members.

"Survey Says": Members Answer Call for Issue Information

Lesla Dietrick, Ice Miller

A big "THANK YOU" to those members who responded to the 2002 AIA/IN Legislative Survey. The responses are in and have been tabulated. A few interesting tidbits about the political involvement of respondents: all respondents were registered to vote with 77% voting in every election. In addition, over 50% of respondents went beyond voting to make contributions and to volunteer for and/or meet personally candidates for office. The political make-up of respondents was split pretty evenly, with just a small majority of respondents identifying themselves as Democrats.

Responses to issues questions yielded some consensus. Top AIA/IN issues named by respondents could be grouped into four (4) categories: Design, Practice, AIA, and Legislative. Key issues emerging from those categories were (in order of priority): Mandatory CE, Education Funding, Illegal Plan Stamping, and Business Taxes. Of those four, all but Illegal Plan Stamping can be addressed with legislation. The stamping issue is best addressed at the agency level. Speaking of state agencies, respondents indicated they had ongoing interaction (good and bad) with the following agencies/commissions (in order of priority): Fire and Building Safety, Transportation, Public Works, Attorney General, Health, Environmental Management, Architects Board and Natural Resources.

Finally, respondents were asked about increasing their level of involvement in certain AIA/IN legislative programs. Currently, respondents are uncertain about their ability to participate in a legislative phone tree, and approximately 50% of respondents did not wish to participate in ARCH-PAC, the association's political action committee. Respondents are enthusiastic about getting to know their legislators, with over 60% indicating they would like to become acquainted with their district legislators.

What do these answers mean for AIA/IN members? Stay tuned for future decisions from your hard-working legislative committee and lobbyists who will be reporting to the membership at its annual meeting in October.

Minutes

AIA Indiana Annual Meeting
October 13, 2001, 9:00 A.M. EST
Hyatt Regency Hotel,
Cincinnati, Ohio

James D. Smith, AIA, Secretary

Present: President David Rausch, AIA; Vice President/President Elect Steve Goffinet, AIA; Treasurer Jerome Nix, AIA; Secretary James Smith, AIA; Executive Director Ken Englund, Hon. ISA; Terry Bradbury, AIA; Diana Brenner, AIA; Horace S. Cantrell, FAIA; Brian Carr, AIA; Tony Costello, FAIA; William Coleman, Jr., AIA; Jackson Faber, AIA; Tom Fernandez, AIA; Steve Ford, AIA; Rob Galbraith, AIA; Bob Gloyeske, AIA; Mike Grubb, AIA; Cliff Huggins, AIA; Dean Illingworth, FAIA; Tom Jordan, AIA; Jeff Justice, AIA; Jim Kienle, AIA; Daniel Kloc, AIA; Tad Lupton, AIA; Mike McKay, AIA; Cory Miller, AIA; Lynn Molzan, FAIA; John Padgett, AIA; Dean Rains; Steve Rieck, AIA; Charles Sappenfield, FAIA; John H. Shoaff, AIA; Dave Smith, AIA; Sheila Snider, FAIA; Robert Snyder, AIA; Kurt Wahl, AIA

Prior to the opening of the business meeting, there was a re-presentation of the firm design awards and a re-presentation of the special awards and introduction of the recipients: Sheila Snyder, FAIA, The Juliet Peddle Award; Susan Williams, AIA, The Blackburn Award; John H. Shoaff, AIA, The Pierre Award. Jack Faber, AIA, IDP Coordinator, presented the IDP Firm of the Year award to RATIO Architects. Steve Goffinet presented the AIA Indiana Presidents Award for distinguished service to 2001 President, David Rausch.

The meeting was called to order 9:20 A.M. by President David Rausch

Secretary's Report:

Secretary James Smith presented the minutes from the 2000 annual meeting. The list of attendees was amended: Jack Farber, Tony Costello, Steve Ford and Steve Rieck were in attendance at the Louisville meeting. Secretary Smith asked everyone at the meeting this year to make sure they sign the attendance sheet so we have an accurate report. Tony Costello noted that the Costello Family Fund was referred to as a scholarship, but it is to supplement student members of Ball State AIA for activities. There was a motion and second from the floor to accept the minutes as amended and the members voted to approve.

Treasurer's Report:

The Treasurer's statement of our financial position was handed out and presented by Treasurer Jerry Nix. There were no questions or corrections. There was a motion and second from the floor to accept the minutes as amended, and the members voted to approve as presented.

Old Business:

There was no old business.

New Business:*Election of Officers:

The slate of officers for 2001 was presented to the members:

- President: Stephan Goffinet, AIA
- Vice President/President Elect:
Steve Rieck, AIA
- Treasurer: Jerome Nix, AIA
- Secretary: James D. Smith, AIA

There were no additional nominations from the floor.

There was a request from the floor to take a voice vote in lieu of paper ballot. There was no objection. The voice vote was unanimous for accepting the slate of officers as presented.

President Rausch called for additional business from the floor. There was no further business.

Dave Rausch recognized our Regional Director Tom Fernandez for a report on the region activities and the convention. Mr. Hernandez was very pleased with participation by the three states and was impressed that all of the keynote speakers were regionally generated - not out of town "stars." This reflects the strength of our region. Tom sees this convention as a starting point to encourage further support of our regional talents.

Dave Rausch expressed pleasure with what the Ohio Valley Region has accomplished here and hopes that National AIA takes note of what we are doing as an example for others. There were no further reports or business. A motion was made and seconded from the floor to adjourn.

Meeting was adjourned at 9:40 a.m.
E.D.S.T.

Respectfully submitted

James D. Smith, AIA, Secretary

After the meeting Mike McKay introduced Diana Brenner, Co-Chair of the ArchPAC. Diana made a presentation on the AIA-sponsored bipartisan political support group and requested our financial support.

Annual Report / Forecast for 2003

Steven Rieck, AIA
President-elect, AIA Indiana

I've been asked to project where we are going over the next year: what direction AIA Indiana will take during my custodianship of the office of president.

AIA Indiana stands with several potential landmark events in the near future. Some of them you may have already heard about at this Convention.

The lease on our current space on South Pennsylvania expires next summer. We are in discussions to become involved in a very exciting venture with Ball State University/College of Architecture and Planning: Indianapolis Center, a design center that will include a multitude of design disciplines and services.

We are exploring options to expand the staff of AIA Indiana to allow our present Executive Director to concentrate more on increasing the "non-dues" revenue of the organization, allowing us to increase service and programs to all members.

The Legislative Committee will be working during the 2003 General Assembly to put a continuing education program in place for Indiana registration renewal. By working with the Registration Board and the Assembly before the fact, we hope to have Indiana's program developed so that it is not an additional burden on our members, but works in concert with the established AIA CES program.

AIAIndiana.org has been up and running for several years now. Within the next year, we will activate an updated, more useful, Internet presence. Programs and schedules for each of the chapters will be accessible from your desktop. Soon our bookstore will be able to more easily serve members statewide and people worldwide, using an online ordering system. Winners of state and local design awards will be featured for all to see.

Galileo once noted that if he seemed to see farther than most men, it was only because he stood on the shoulders of giants. We do have the potential to achieve several important goals in the next year, but these goals are only being reached because of the hard work of past officers and directors. I thank those who have served before me, and look forward to working with the directors and officers of 2003.

A clad finish — made to last.

Marvin Windows and Doors' clad products are so low maintenance, so durable that it's rated highest in the industry (AAMA 2605-98). The result is a clad exterior of extruded aluminum that retains its color and looks beautiful for many years.
