Charlotte-Mecklenburg has seen the Light. Styrofoam Lightguard Roof Insulation And Ballast.

Project: Rama Road Elementary School
Charlotte-Mecklenburg School System
Architect: Clontz & Associates
Matthews, NC
Roofing Contractor: E.M.C., Inc.
Charlotte, NC

STYROFOAM LIGHTGUARD\* brand insulation is intended for use above waterproofing membranes in IRMA systems. The product is comprised of STYROFOAM RM brand insulation with a factory applied nominal  $\frac{3}{8}$ " latex modified cementitious facing as the ballast. The product has a drain channel on the bottom of the board. The long edges of the product are tongue-and-grooved.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system has used Styrofoam Lightguard on four school projects. Rama School (Re-roofing) was designed by Jack Clontz and utilized an American Hydrotech EPDM Membrane. The Styrofoam Lightguard was placed above the EPDM and serves as insulation and ballast. Lightguard protects the membrane from physical and thermal abuse. Total membrane protection is what Styrofoam lightguard is all about. And it weighs only 4.5 pounds per square foot. Styro Systems, Dow, Advanced Single Ply Systems, and American Hydrotech can help you see the Light on your next project.

Duke Power's New Owners.

These people own stock in Duke Power. They also happen to be Duke Power customers. They believe, as we do, that people who use electric power should have an interest in how their power company operates.

In fact, we believe so strongly in that concept, we've developed a plan that lets residential customers buy Duke Power common stock without paying brokerage fees. Or any other fees, for that matter. And you can buy the stock at your convenience. You can invest as little as $25 a month. Or any amount you like up to $3,000 a quarter. This particular plan is available only to Duke Power residential customers.

So if you're a customer send us the coupon, and we'll send you complete details on how to own a piece of your power company.

Note: This announcement shall not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy, as any sale or offer to sell must only be by means of the prospectus.

COVER: The AIA Tower in Raleigh is both the headquarters of the North Carolina chapter of the American Institute of Architects and a symbol of the durability of the state's architectural profession. The Tower, which was built in 1887 by the Raleigh Water Works, is a Raleigh Historical Site and is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Abandoned as a water tower in the early 1900s, the structure was bought by architect William Henley Deitrick in the 1930s to serve as space for his practice. In 1963, Deitrick deeded the property to the NCAIA, which renovated the building and still occupies it. Tower rendering by Brad Wiggins.

ARCHITECTURAL EDUCATION

Three N.C. schools offer programs for professionals

Three universities in North Carolina offer programs leading to degrees for architects or engineers.

Here are summaries of the programs at the three universities, compiled from material submitted to the NCAIA by the deans of the schools:

N.C. STATE

The department of architecture at N.C. State University in Raleigh was established in 1948 as one of two original academic components in the School of Design.

Under the guidance of founding Dean Henry L. Kamphoefner, the School of Design experienced a long period of creative and intellectual development. Designers and theorists such as Buckminster Fuller, Matthew Nowicki, Lewis Mumford, Eduardo Catalano and others joined the faculty in the school's early years and helped build a reputation for innovation and experimentation.

Throughout this early period, the architecture department offered a single degree, the five-year bachelor of architecture. In the late 1960s, the department altered its course and adopted the now-common "4+2" master of architecture curriculum to accommodate emerging professional and academic issues and to provide new opportunities for students to pursue non-traditional as well as traditional educational paths. The bachelor of architecture degree was phased out in 1972.

The department of architecture offers three degree programs:

1. Bachelor of Environmental Design in Architecture (BEDA)—a four-year pre-professional curriculum that serves as the foundation for the two advanced programs. The curriculum includes a balance of general studies (English, mathematics, science and humanities), design studio courses and architectural support courses (history, technology, methods and theory).

2. Bachelor of Architecture (B. ARCH)—a one-year professional curriculum that builds on the four-year BEDA program.

3. Master of Architecture (M. ARCH)—a two-year professional curriculum that follows a four-year pre-professional program in architecture. Additionally, applicants with the B. ARCH degree are accepted for an intensive one-year program, and applicants with degrees in non-architectural fields may apply for a four-year graduate program.

The M. ARCH is a first professional degree accredited by the National Architectural Accrediting Board. As such, it satisfies educational requirements for professional certification established by the various states and the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards.

The B. ARCH program, which was examined for initial accreditation in 1985 provides similar qualification for professional registration.

Admission to the architecture degree programs is competitive.

Application to the undergraduate BEDA program is made to the School of Design, which annually admits 100 to 120 freshmen and transfer students to the common first-year "Design Fundamentals" program. Students begin their architectural studies in the second year. For information about undergraduate admissions standards and procedures, contact the School of Design, NCSU, Box 7701, Raleigh, N.C. 27695-7701 or call (919) 737-2201.

Admission to the B. ARCH and M. ARCH programs is by application to the department of architecture. Creative ability, superior academic achievement and promise of professional accomplishment are criteria sought in applicants. For additional information, contact Robert Burns, Head/Department of Architecture, School of Design, N.C. State University, Box 7701, Raleigh, N.C. 27695-7701 or call (919) 737-2206.

There are approximately 600 students in the School of Design, 300 of whom are in the architecture department. From 200 to 230 students are in the BEDA program, with the remainder in the advanced programs. The architecture department awarded honor degrees to 30 percent of the 1984 and 1985 BEDA recipients.

UNCC

The College of Architecture at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte was founded in 1969 and graduated its first students with professional degrees in 1976, the same year Charles C. Hight was named dean.

In July of 1984, the school received its second consecutive five-year accreditation from the National Architectural Accreditation Board.

The curriculum is organized so that students acquire a common body of general and architectural knowledge and skills while investigating societal and professional issues and subjects, many of which are of individual interest. Thus there is a balance between theory and application, general and professional education, intuitive and rational thinking, process and product, analysis and synthesis, common experience with opportunity for individual experimentation and skill development with intellectual maturation.

To assist students who desire a secondary concentration, the program is structured so a person may develop a double major or minor in another field such as engineering, earth science, business administration or behavioral science. The curriculum is organized in three sections:

1. The Foundation Program—

During the first two years, students are enrolled in general educational and architectural courses. The comprehensive studios, which occur each semester, focus upon acquiring the fundamentals of: graphic development, exploration of visual form, development of problem solving and conceptualization skills as well as architectural form relationships with physical environmental, human needs and technology.

Architectural history courses in the second year give students an understanding of the evolution of architectural form and ideas, as well as their relationship to society.

2. The Middle Program—

In the first semester of the third year, all students use the previously acquired knowledge and skills in the holistic design of relatively small-scaled buildings which are site specific. These endeavors include investigation of various architectural issues and ideas. In the following three semesters, students enroll in optional "topical studios."

Also, students take at least four architectural elective courses. These seminar/lab options include: exploration of applied visual form, graphic development, architectural readings and theory, urban design, architectural preservation, solar energy, programming, light/acoustics, study of communities and real estate development.

Upon completion of the fourth year, the bachelor of arts in architecture degree is awarded and students may apply for the fifth year.

3. Advanced Program—

The fifth-year program, which is composed of students from UNCC and other schools, provides a balance between individual and collective professional studies. In the fall semester, students engage in a series of common design studies for the purpose of further developing their abilities to conceptualize, solve problems and deal holistically with architectural projects set in natural and urban environments. At the same time, students complete selection of their individual thesis and develop an appropriate program.

Upon completion, the professional bachelor of architecture degree is awarded.

The full-time faculty is augmented by a comprehensive visiting architects program.

The 270 students enrolled in the College of Architecture include a freshman class of approximately 72 students, one half of whom have prior college experience. Selection of students is based on SAT scores, prior academic record, the portfolio of creative work, quality of the applicant's letter of intent and personal interview.

Admission to the fifth-year program requires completion of a bachelor of arts in architecture, bachelor of environmental design or other related studies. Consideration for acceptance includes study of the student's previous academic record and professional activities, the personal statement of study intent and portfolio of creative work. When appropriate, a personal interview may be required.

More detailed information may be obtained by writing the Office of Admissions, UNCC, Charlotte, N.C. 28233, or the College of Architecture, UNCC, Charlotte, N.C. 28211.

N.C. A&T

The department of architectural engineering was founded at N.C. Agricultural and Technical State University, Greensboro, in 1918.

It has been accredited as an engineering program for nearly 20 years.

Strong emphasis is placed on training in the building sciences and on training in engineering as it applies to the design and construction of buildings, says acting department chairman Reginald Whitsett.

Instruction in the department is organized under four divisions:

1. Graphics, architectural design and architectural history.
2. Environmental control, electrical and mechanical equipment of buildings.
3. Professional practice, management and materials and methods of construction.
4. Structures.

The five-year program in architectural engineering offers 160 semester hours leading to the bachelor of science degree.

Enrollment has leveled to approximately 200 undergraduate students. Students are admitted to the department based on class rank and scores on standard aptitude tests.

Faculty members have backgrounds in city and urban planning, structural engineering, mechanical engineering and architecture.

More information can be obtained by writing: Reginald Whitsett, acting chairman, Department of Architectural Engineering, N.C. A&T State University, Greensboro, N.C. 27411. □

NATIONAL COUNCIL SETS CERTIFICATION STANDARDS

The National Council of Architectural Registration Boards was established in 1920 to assist member boards in carrying out their duties, to foster the enactment of uniform architectural laws, to develop examinations and establish standards for certification requirements in education and training, to perfect its procedures for verifying the qualifications of applicants and determining their eligibility for certification and to establish and maintain reciprocal registration between states having registration laws.

The NCARB is a non-profit corporation with all legally constituted boards of architecture in the United States as members.

To be eligible for NCARB certification, architects must submit satisfactory evidence that they comply with the standard for education, training, examination and character and have been registered by a member board.

The NCARB will, upon request of an individual architect, secure, authenticate and record factual data of the applicant's education, training, practice and character. This record will be forwarded to any state board upon request of the applicant.

Certification shall be given an applicant holding a council record verifying that the applicant has complied with the council's standards of education, training, practice and character; and that the applicant has passed an examination conforming to the council's standards of content, extent and length of time.

Certification by the NCARB is recommendation to all registration authorities that registration be granted to the holder without further examination. Most member boards accept NCARB certification as conclusive evidence of an architect's eligibility of registration. It is, however, not a national registration.

Complete information on compilation of a council record and obtaining council certification can be obtained from:

BOARD OF ARCHITECTURE HAS GOVERNED SINCE 1915

The North Carolina Board of Architecture, established by the legislature in 1915, is responsible for administering the practice of architecture in the state. The board is comprised of seven members appointed by the governor, five of whom are licensed architects. Two non-architects represent the public at large.

Current officers and board members are: Tai Y. Lee, Waynesville, president; Lloyd G. Walter Jr., Winston-Salem, vice president; Herbert P. McKim, Wilmington, secretary/treasurer; John L. Atkins III, Chapel Hill, member; Walter L. Bost, Charlotte, member; Harold Barnes, public member; and Doris H. Moore, Yanceyville, public member.

North Carolina requires registered architects to be at least 18 years old, have a degree in architecture from a college or university with an approved five-year degree program, be of good moral character and have successfully completed a licensing examination in architecture as specified by the rule of the board. Equivalent professional education and practical training may, in some cases, qualify an applicant to take the examination.

Individuals holding a current license for the practice of architecture from another state and a certificate of qualification issued by the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB) may, upon application and at the discretion of the board, be licensed without taking the written examination.

N.C. ARCHITECTURAL FOUNDATION

Established in 1963, the North Carolina Architectural Foundation has promoted and sponsored architectural programs and education over the years.

The Foundation has raised funds from NCAIA members to renovate the AIA Tower building and to fund architectural student scholarships at NCSU School of Design and UNC-C School of Architecture. One of the Foundation scholarships awarded through NCSU is in memory of William Henley Deitrick.

Because it no longer had the capability or mechanism to raise substantial amounts of funds to fulfill its purposes, the Foundation Board of Directors disbanded the Foundation in 1986. A newly organized N.C. Architectural Foundation replaced the original foundation. Using the original corporate charter of the old Foundation, the new Foundation is totally restructured and serves as the endowment arm of the NCAIA.

A substantial endowment is expected from Henry and Mabel Kamphoefner. This gift will be part of the financial base of the newly amended foundation. The purposes and goals of the foundation still are to actively encourage and support quality training and education in the field of architecture. The financial base has been broadened substantially as has the membership and Board of Directors of the Foundation.

The increased resources available for scholarships and other educational endeavors will enable the Foundation to achieve its goals more effectively.

NCAIA POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

Recognizing the need to become politically involved in areas that have long-range consequences for architects and architecture in North Carolina, the NCAIA membership formally approved the establishment of the NCAIA Political Action Committee in 1986.

The PAC was established to assist candidates for the North Carolina General Assembly and statewide candidates. The national AIA-PAC focuses its attention and resources on candidates for federal offices. This two-prong PAC approach enables the NCAIA-PAC to use its own resources to concentrate on issues and laws in North Carolina.

The initial NCAIA-PAC board of directors, and all subsequent boards, represents the diversity of the general membership in terms of firm size, type of practice, geographic distribution, and bipartisan political affiliation.

The first year's efforts exceeded expectations. The NCAIA membership responded quickly and generously and enabled the NCAIA-PAC to endorse candidates for the 1986 elections. Of the ninety-seven candidates who were endorsed, 93 percent were elected. This success rate places the NCAIA-PAC among the top PACs in North Carolina. Based on total financial contributions to candidates from individual PACs, the NCAIA-PAC was among the top ten in North Carolina.

As Board President Joe Harris said, "Our mission is to have an impact on election so that our PAC and NCAIA will become effective voices for architects in the political and legislative arenas. Our first year and our initial success have put us strongly on the road to achieving our goal."
