“CAN YOUR FIRM SURVIVE A LAWSUIT ?”

If you missed the AIA SOUTH ATLANTIC REGIONAL CONVENTION you missed the answer to this question!

THE ATTORNEYS PRESENT WERE:

Dudley Humphrey, Esquire, Petree Stockton & Robinson

Gary Gough, Esquire, of Victor O. Schinnerer

George G. Hearn, Esquire, of Johnson Gamble Mercer Hearn & Vinegar and Counsel to NCAIA

During periods of economic stress, construction claims increase and architects become attractive targets for disappointed clients and contractors ... whether or not they are at fault. Here are a few tips for your firm on how to reduce exposure and improve chances of surviving a lawsuit or arbitration proceeding:

- Know the level of expectations of the client
- Build a good relationship with client
- Keep accurate records
- Obtain contracts with clients and consultants

AND THE LIST GOES ON.

American Institute of Architects

The mission of AIA North Carolina is to:

- Effectively represent the collective architectural membership to the general public, state government and its constituencies
- Provide meaningful services and support our members to produce excellence in architecture
- Coordinate the building industry and profession to ensure better living standards through an improved environment
- Organize and unite the profession in fellowship

The North Carolina Chapter of the American Institute of Architects is the recognized advocate for the architectural profession in this state.

With a membership of 1470, AIA North Carolina is the second largest statewide AIA chapter in America. More than 90 percent of the state's architects belong to AIA North Carolina. Membership has increased dramatically, from 215 in 1955 and 695 in 1975, to the current 1470.

The advantage in membership lies in the breadth of service provided. AIA North Carolina publishes North Carolina Architecture, a bi-monthly magazine distributed to the state's architects, engineers, contractors, elected officials, civic leaders and decision-makers. AIA North Carolina also publishes a newsletter for its members.

The Chapter staff, headquartered in Raleigh, organizes an annual convention, highlighted by the presentation of the AIA North Carolina Design Awards.

Members also have an opportunity to supplement their education and training through seminars offered on subjects such as design trends, marketing and professional liability.

AIA North Carolina has become increasingly involved in public policy development and legislation. AIA North Carolina opinions and positions are actively sought by lawmakers when dealing with legislation affecting architecture, building codes, construction and planning.

AIA North Carolina members work and live in every corner of the state, practicing in firms ranging from one to 30 members. The membership is divided into geographical sections, located in Asheville, Charlotte, Durham/Chapel Hill, Eastern North Carolina, Greensboro/High Point, Raleigh, Wilmington and Winston-Salem. The Charlotte section is the largest with 336 members, while Raleigh is second at 214.

AIA North Carolina offers its members an opportunity to participate in more than 20 committees dealing with topics such as historic preservation, continuing education, efficient energy design and government affairs.

Some Concrete Evidence That Parking Can Be Beautiful.

Charlotte-Mecklenburg Government Center Parking Structure, Charlotte, NC.
Architect—J. N. Pease Associates.
Contractor—Laxton Construction Company, Inc.

To prove that decks don't have to be ugly, we offer the following evidence:

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Government Center Parking Structure. Winner of several 1986 design awards. An integral part of an architecturally-consistent Government Center Plaza. A parking deck that inspired Richard Maschal, Art and Architecture Editor for The Charlotte Observer to say, "It is a handsome parking deck, a beautiful parking deck. It sets a new standard in Charlotte for what decks can be."

We're very proud of those words, because much of the beauty of that deck comes from Exposaic pre-cast exterior panels. And beneath its pretty face there are more Exposaic products. L girders. T girders. Columns. Double tees. All pre-cast, pre-stressed and custom-made in our factory for a perfect fit, to provide beauty and structural integrity in a very cost-effective package.

So if you have a parking deck to build, make Exposaic a part of your team. We'll show you how something beautiful can be cast in concrete.

QUIET'S BEST

Do you think new home owners want to hear their home's waste plumbing system in action?

Not a chance.

People making a substantial investment in a new home, or in an addition to any existing one, expect trouble-free performance and quiet operation. That's why the DWV plumbing system that's hidden within the walls is as important to the owner, architect and contractor as the visible features of the home.

To insure quiet DWV system operation, specify cast iron pipe for the drain lines and reserve plastics for venting purposes. Since a noisy plumbing system is long-lived and expensive to change, build a quiet one the first time.

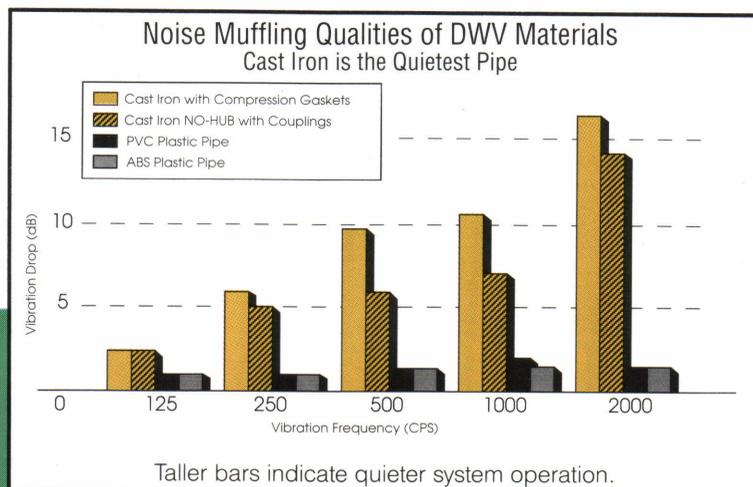

Charlotte Pipe and Foundry Company manufactures both cast iron and plastic materials to the highest standards of quality. Charlotte Pipe . . . proudly providing customer satisfaction for over 90 years.

President's Message

As we begin 1991, our profession nationwide is in the midst of experiencing a major economic slowdown. In many parts of the country, our architectural colleagues have already felt the effects of soft markets, intense competition, project delays, job layoffs and daily arrivals of resumes from young architects seeking employment. Many of our North Carolina firms are beginning to feel the impact of the changing economic situation.

Here in North Carolina, there is a prevailing belief in cautious optimism. Our economy is, of course, tied to the national economic situation, but we are fortunate in that our state has positioned itself to be generally well-rounded and not beholden to only one industry, as was Texas and the oil industry or Massachusetts and high technology.

In a difficult time such as this, your membership in AIA North Carolina holds greater value than ever! AIA North Carolina provides you timely information and an opportunity for you to network with your peers. We offer you the resources you need to practice your profession effectively. When architects are better informed, our clients receive better buildings and the public also benefits through an improved built environment.

One of our most vital functions as a professional association is to provide a unified voice on legislation, regulations and issues affecting our industry.

- ◆ AIA North Carolina is actively involved in helping public officials understand that when projects are frozen, people lose jobs.
- ◆ We are helping public and private owners appreciate the role of an architect in quality construction.
- ◆ We are protecting the public interest in making certain that an understandable building code is consistently enforced and that licensed architects are placed in a position of responsibility.

The ultimate success of a professional association is in direct proportion to the quality of its volunteer leadership. By actively participating in our chapter and its sections, you can have a clear role in shaping public policy on crucial issues such as energy-efficient design, housing for the homeless, historic preservation, urban design assistance and continuing education for architects.

We, the officers and directors of AIA North Carolina, are committed to serving you. We need and value your comments and participation. Please help us to help you. Together we can strengthen our architectural profession in North Carolina.

Equivalent Thickness and Fire Resistance of Typical Solite Lightweight Aggregate Concrete Masonry Units.

"Equivalent Solid Thickness" is the average thickness of the solid material in the unit, and is used as a criteria for fire resistance. We can compute Equivalent Solid Thickness by this formula. If Ps equals percent solid volume, T equals actual width of unit, then equivalent thickness, EQ. TH. = $\frac{T \times Ps}{100}$

If this 7.62" Hollow Unit has 52% solid material
 Then its Equivalent Solid Thickness is $\frac{7.62 \times 52}{100} = 3.97$ " (2 Hour Rated)

“My partner and I rest a whole lot easier at night knowing that DPIC is there for us. Until we became acquainted three years ago, we didn't realize just how vulnerable architectural firms were or how devastating a single claim could be. We certainly didn't realize the difference an insurer could have in our continued success.

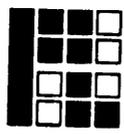

Protecting our 20-year investment in this business and the livelihood of our 25 employees has always been a foremost objective of Lee Nichols Architecture, but rather than resting on our laurels of continued success, we now have a more realistic approach to new projects.

The greatest benefit DPIC offers us is their knowledge and quick, personal service. When Stuart Thomas of Professional Liability Consultants in High Point called on us three years ago, DPIC made an exceptionally thorough evaluation of our firm before issuing any policy. They asked questions we had overlooked ourselves. At that point, we knew we weren't dealing with just any insurer. And since then, they have continued to evaluate all our written contracts so we can avoid complications down the road.

As far as we're concerned, DPIC is changing the way the insurance industry does business. They've caused us to have greater expectations, but, more importantly, a healthier attitude toward professional liability. Now we think in terms of loss prevention, which benefits us as well as our clients. It's a comfort zone we never had before.”

Don Lee, FAIA, and Bill Nichols, AIA, are principals in Lee Nichols Architecture, a Charlotte firm founded in 1969. Don Lee is past president of NCAIA. Bill Nichols is past president of the Charlotte chapter of NCAIA. We value our relationship with their firm and appreciate their willingness to talk to you about us.

North Carolina Board of Architecture

The North Carolina Board of Architecture, established by the General Assembly in 1915, is responsible for enforcement of the laws and regulations governing the practice of architecture in the state. A major task is to determine the qualifications of applicants who seek to take the registration examination which is registered nationally.

The Board is comprised of seven members appointed by the governor, five of whom are licensed architects appointed for five-year terms. Two of the members of the Board are not licensed architects and represent the interests of the public at large. The public members serve at the pleasure of the governor.

North Carolina requires registered architects to hold a degree in architecture from a college or university where the degree program has been approved by the Board, or

"It shall be unlawful for any individual, firm or corporation to practice or offer to practice architecture in this state....unless such person holds a current individual or corporate certificate of admission to practice architecture."

—Chapter 83A,
North Carolina General Statutes

Architects are licensed in North Carolina for the express purpose of safeguarding life, health and property. By virtue of their education, professional training and passage of the Architectural Registration Examination, architects are uniquely qualified to perform this vital function.

professional education equivalents outlined and defined in the Board's Table of Equivalents for Education and Experience. Beginning July 1, 1991, the professional education qualification shall be a National Architectural Accrediting Board (NAAB) accredited professional degree in architecture.

Officers and board members are: James L. Padgett, AIA, president, Asheville; Michael R. Tye, AIA, vice president, High Point; Doris H. Moore, public member, secretary-treasurer, Yanceyville; Walter L. Bost, AIA, Kannapolis; Kenneth W. Burnette, Architect, Morehead City; W. Calvin Howell, AIA, Southern Pines; and Barbara E. Armstrong, public member, Fayetteville.

NCARB

National Council of Architectural Registration Boards

The National Council of Architectural Registration Boards was established in 1920 to assist member boards in carrying out their duties, to foster the enactment of uniform architectural laws, to develop examinations and establish standards for certification requirements in education and training, to perfect its procedures for verifying the qualifications of applicants and determining their eligibility for certification and to establish and maintain reciprocal registration between states having registration laws.

The NCARB is a non-profit corporation with all legally constituted boards of architecture in the United States as members.

To be eligible for NCARB certification, architects must submit satisfactory evidence that they comply with the standard for education, training, examination and character and have been registered by a member board.

The NCARB will, upon request of an individual architect, secure, authenticate, and record factual data of the applicant's education, training, practice and character. This record will be forwarded to any state board upon request of the applicant.

Certification shall be given an applicant holding a council record verifying that the applicant has complied with the council's standards of education, training, practice and character; and that the applicant has passed an examination conforming to the council's standards of content, extent and length of time.

Certification by the NCARB is recommendation to all registration authorities that registration be granted to the holder without further examination. Most board members accept NCARB certification as conclusive evidence of an architect's eligibility of registration. It is, however, not a national registration.

Complete information on compiling a council record and obtaining council certification can be obtained from:

NCAIA Political Action Committee

Since its formation in 1986, the AIA North Carolina Political Action Committee has become increasingly active and successful in the political arena.

Established initially to assist candidates for the North Carolina General Assembly and Council of State, the NCAIA-PAC has reaffirmed that commitment to helping candidates who will be influential in determining the course and future practice of architecture in North Carolina. The national AIA-PAC focuses its attention and resources on candidates for federal offices. This two-pronged PAC approach enables the NCAIA-PAC to use its own resources to concentrate on legislative issues in North Carolina.

The Board of Directors of the NCAIA-PAC represents the diversity of the general membership in terms of firm size, type of practice, geographic distribution and bipartisan political affiliation. Board members are elected to three-year terms.

Candidates who receive contributions from the NCAIA-PAC have scored impressive victories. This success rate places the NCAIA-PAC among the top PACs in North Carolina.

Charles Snow, the 1991 NCAIA-PAC chairman, says, "The NCAIA-PAC has established itself as a respected force in North Carolina politics. Because we rank as the most successful AIA political action committee in America, we have become a model for other states to follow. The reason our PAC is so effective is because of our members' active participation. In the coming decade, the peaceful coexistence of North Carolina's natural and built environment figures to be a major issue. We, as architects, are uniquely qualified to serve as a positive resource in public policy formation and development."

New Joint Committee Recommendations (JCRs) recently were sent to all member firms of AIA North Carolina.

A fresh set of JCRs has also been provided to Carolinas AGC Building Division members in North and South Carolina.

Those actions are part of full-court-press efforts to promote the use of JCRs.

The JCRs offer solid tips on how to sidestep problems in the construction industry. They tackle such issues as bid openings, payment and retainage.

"The JCRs are suggested working practices that are fair to owners, architects and contractors," says Roy F. Kendrick, AIA, co-chairman of the NCAIA/Carolinas AGC Joint Cooperative Committee. "They are intended to promote mutual cooperation, understanding and respect regarding our common interests in the planning and construction of the building environment."

While JCRs aren't law, life in the construction business is much easier when the guidelines are used. The JCRs also pack some clout because they've been approved by the Boards of Directors of the Carolinas AGC.

The JCRs are the result of years of work by the Joint Cooperative Committee. The recommendations—which are developed by the Joint Committee—have played a big role in everyday construction practices.

JCR No. 2, for example, recommends that bid openings be held on Tuesday through Thursday, preferably at 3:00 p.m.

If you've ever had a problem with addenda being issued at the last minute, look at JCR No. 5. It recommends that if addenda are necessary, they should be issued not later than four working days before receipt of bids.

JCRs also cover such subjects as how much to charge for handling unsuitable soil, arranging a pre-bid conference, final inspection preparation and estimating time.

Earlier this year, a JCR publicity plan was approved by the Boards of Directors of AIA North Carolina and the Carolinas AGC. One finding in the plan was that many architects don't know about the JCRs because they have not been passed along in the field. So, the general procedure often is not to use the JCRs.

AIA North Carolina and the Carolinas AGC encourage architects and contractors to pass the word about the JCRs to everyone in their firms and to make a set of JCRs readily available.

Meanwhile, early in 1991, each of the eight sections of AIA North Carolina will have a program on the JCRs that will be put on by architects and contractors. Efforts have begun to tout the JCRs at design schools such as N.C. State and Clemson.

Architects who want additional copies of the JCRs may call the Raleigh office of AIA North Carolina (919-833-6656). A set of JCRs and a notebook are available for $15.00 apiece.

Architectural Education

Three universities in North Carolina offer programs leading to degrees for architects or engineers. Here are summaries of the programs at the three universities, compiled from material submitted to AIA North Carolina by the deans of the schools.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE UNIVERSITY

The Department of Architecture at N.C. State University in Raleigh was established in 1948 as one of two original academic components in the School of Design.

Under the guidance of founding Dean Henry L. Kamphoefner, the School of Design experienced a long period of development. Designers and theorists such as Buckminster Fuller, Matthew Nowicki, Lewis Mumford, Eduardo Catalano and others joined the faculty in the school's early years and helped build its reputation for innovation and experimentation.

Those qualities have continued to provide the focus of academic concern as the architecture department has enlarged its mission and curricular options over the past 40 years. In the late 1960s the Department initiated a graduate program. N.C. State also offers a four-year BEDA program and the professional B. ARCH degree.

The Department of Architecture offers three degree programs:
Bachelor of Environmental Design in Architecture (BEDA)

A four-year pre-professional curriculum that serves as the foundation for the two advanced programs. The curriculum includes a balance of general studies (English, mathematics, science and humanities), design studio courses and architectural support courses (history, technology, methods and theory).

Bachelor of Architecture (B. ARCH)

A one-year professional curriculum that builds on the four-year BEDA program.

Master of Architecture (M. ARCH)

A two-year professional curriculum that follows a four-year pre-professional program in architecture. Additionally, applicants with the B. ARCH degree are accepted for an intensive second professional program, and applicants with degrees in non-architectural fields may apply for a four-year graduate program.

Both the B. ARCH and M. ARCH are first professional degrees accredited by the National Architectural Accrediting Board. The most recent accreditation action took place in 1990, extending accreditation of both programs for five years.

The School of Design annually admits 100 to 120 freshmen and transfer students to the common first-year "Design Fundamentals" program. Students begin their architectural studies in the second year. For information about undergraduate admissions standards and procedures, contact the School of Design, N.C. State University, Box 7701, Raleigh, NC 27695-7701 or call (919) 737-2201.

Admissions to the B. ARCH and M. ARCH programs are by application to the Department of Architecture. For additional information, contact the Department of Architecture, School of Design, N.C. State University, Box 7701, Raleigh, NC 27695-7701 or call (919) 737-2204.

There are 600 students in the School of Design, 300 of whom are in the architecture department. Approximately 200 students are in the BEDA program, with the remainder in the advanced programs. In 1989-90, the architecture department awarded 43 BEDA degrees, 12 B. ARCH degrees and 20 M. ARCH degrees.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, CHARLOTTE

The College of Architecture at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte was founded in 1969 and graduated its first students with professional degrees in 1976, the same year Charles C. Hight was named dean.

In July, 1989, the school received its third consecutive full accreditation from the National Architectural Accreditation Board.

The curriculum provides a balance between theory and application, and general and professional education.

The program is structured so a person may develop a double major or minor in another field such as engineering, earth science, business, computer or behavioral science. The curriculum is organized in three sections:

The Foundation Program

During the first two years, students are enrolled in general education and architectural courses. The studios and seminars, which occur each semester, focus upon acquiring the fundamentals of visual development, problem solving, conceptualization and the relationship of architectural form to physical environment.

The Middle Program

In the third year, all students design relatively small-scaled building which are site-specific. In the following two semesters, students enroll in optional "topical studios."

Also, students take four architectural elective courses: exploration of applied visual form, graphic development, architectural reading and theory, urban design, lighting design, solar energy, programming, acoustics, and the study of communities.

Upon completion of the fourth year, the bachelor of arts in architecture degree is awarded and students may apply for the fifth year, in the College of Architecture, UNC Charlotte.

Admission to the fifth-year program requires completion of a bachelor of arts in architecture, bachelor of environmental design or other related studies.

Advanced Program

In the fifth-year program, students may pursue a design thesis or study a faculty-directed design topic in the spring semester.

Upon completion, the professional Bachelor of Architecture degree is awarded.

The full-time faculty is augmented by a distinguished visiting architects program.

In addition, the college has a graduate, Master of Science in Architecture, research program that focuses upon theories of architecture and technology and their relationship.

More detailed information may be obtained by writing the College of Architecture, UNC Charlotte, Charlotte, NC 28223.

NORTH CAROLINA A&T STATE UNIVERSITY

The architectural engineering program at North Carolina A&T State University is based on a five-year, 160 semester credit hour curriculum. The program, which leads to a bachelor of science degree in architectural engineering, is accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology.

The objectives of the first two years of the curriculum are to provide the student with a strong foundation of mathematics, chemistry, physics, written and graphic communications and the humanities. The remaining three years of the program emphasize the art and science of building design and construction. Students are required to take several courses in each of the following core areas:

- architectural history
- architectural design and site planning
 - building materials and methods of construction
 - structural analysis and design (including wood, concrete and steel)
 - environmental systems analysis and design (HVAC, plumbing, lighting)
 - ethics and professional practice

In addition to the core courses, the student has several electives. In the senior year, each student selects an option block of courses that are designed to provide depth in a specific area. The option block areas include: design and planning, structures and environmental systems. A total of nine credit hours must be taken in one of these areas.

The program embodies three major components. First is the typical classroom lecture. The second component includes hands-on laboratories in the following areas: structures, soils, concrete and computers (including computer-aided drafting and design and project management). The third component is the design studio in which each student is assigned a drafting table with parallel bar and a layout table for the entire semester. The jury system is used to critique most design projects. An interdisciplinary senior design project is a required part of the curriculum. In this course the students form design teams and each team must plan and execute a comprehensive design package including plans, specifications and construction cost estimate. A major goal in this course is to give the students experience in a team design effort similar to that which they might encounter in an architect's office. These program elements combine to provide the student with a well-rounded educational experience.

At the graduate level, the department offers programs that lead to a master of science degree in architectural engineering. The three degree options include: structures, facilities management, and heating, ventilating and air conditioning (HVAC). Thirty-six credit hours are required to complete the masters degree.

There are presently six full-time and two part-time faculty in the department in addition to the chairman. During the 1989-90 academic year, several faculty members and the chairman were involved in funded research projects. Both undergraduate and graduate students participated in these research projects. Sponsoring agencies included: NASA, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Construction Research Lab, Honeywell, Inc., the North Carolina Energy Office and the North Carolina Brick Association.

AIA Design Awards Competition

The 1991 AIA North Carolina Design Awards will be presented on the evening of Aug. 9 during the 1991 AIA North Carolina Summer Design Conference in Wilmington-Wrightsville Beach.

Each year, a distinguished panel of independent judges selects the best design work submitted by AIA North Carolina members. Entries are judged for excellence in function, for executing a complex program in a distinguished manner and for creativity, both aesthetic and structural. All award entries are scheduled to be featured in the September/October issue of North Carolina Architecture.

AIA North Carolina members also are considered for the prestigious Kamphoefner Prize, a relatively new award. Administered by the North Carolina Architectural Foundation, the $10,000 prize is given in recognition for sustained contribution to the modern movement in architecture.

Established through an endowment bequeathed by Henry and Mabel Kamphoefner, the prize has been presented twice since its creation. The first honoree was J.N. Pease of Charlotte in 1988. No winner was chosen in 1989, but in 1990 Murray Whisnant of Charlotte was honored.

In years when no winner is selected, the money is used for two traveling fellowships for students of architecture.

Henry Kamphoefner worked closely with the North Carolina Architectural Foundation to create the prize which bears his name. Considered the godfather of architectural education in North Carolina, Kamphoefner died after suffering a heart attack last February at the age of 82.

Kamphoefner was best known for his extraordinary 25-year tenure as founder and dean of the School of Design at North Carolina State University. Under his guidance, the School rose to international prominence in architectural and design education.

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1907, Kamphoefner received his B.S. in Architecture from the University of Illinois in 1930 and his M.S. in Architecture from Columbia University in 1931. He opened his own private practice in Iowa in 1932, began to teach at the University of Oklahoma in 1937 and served as the Director of the School of Architecture at Oklahoma from 1942-44. He was asked to become dean of the new School of Architecture and Landscape Design at N.C. State College in 1948 and immediately reshaped the School of Design, as he called it, to encompass not only architecture and landscape design but also textile design, product design and graphic design.

Henry L. Kamphoefner, 1907-1990

Kamphoefner was recognized for, among other things, the quality and creativity of the faculty he brought to N.C. State, his innovative visiting lecturer program and the School's unmatched Student Publication. He retired in 1973 and received the Topaz Award in 1977.

Gyp-Crete 2000™ Floor Underlayment

Because Not All Concrete

Is the Same

Maybe the concrete cured or the form work bled. Or maybe the surface just isn't smooth enough to accept a finished floor good.

To anyone who works with concrete, the problem of a rough, uneven, out-of-level floor is all too familiar.

Luckily, there's a solution.

Gyp-Crete 2000 pours over concrete and corrects a multitude of sins. It smooths rough spots without dusty grinding. It dries without shrinkage cracks, accepting foot traffic within 90 minutes of application. And at depths of 3/8 inch to 3 inches, Gyp-Crete 2000 can create a smooth, flat floor without time-consuming hand troweling.

Best of all, a Gyp-Crete 2000 crew can apply up to 30,000 square feet per day at a fraction of the cost of other cementitious underlayments.

NORTH CAROLINA ARCHITECTURE

by Catherine W. Bishir
Photography by Tim Buchman

This magnificent book illustrates the wide range of North Carolina's architectural heritage, displaying the grand public and private buildings that have become familiar landmarks, as well as the quiet beauty of common structures: farmhouses, barns, urban dwellings, log houses, mills, factories, and churches. These buildings, like the people who created them and who have used them, are central to the character of our state.

ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS IN NORTH CAROLINA

A History of the Practice of Building

by Catherine W. Bishir, Charlotte V. Brown, Carl R. Lounsbury, and Ernest H. Wood III

Working chronologically, from 1650 to the present, the authors analyze building as a craft, an industry, and a profession, discussing in detail the people who produced the state's built landscape.

"An exciting new approach to the study of architectural history. . . . Far beyond the traditional architectural historian's study of individual buildings."—Dell Upton

C/S CONTOURS

DRYWALL SHAPES. Introducing radiused corners into a rectilinear world has always been problematical. To achieve subtle turns, contoured transitions or precise reveals in drywall interiors has, till now, required: finding expert craftsmen; using wood or other materials in less than satisfactory ways; or abandoning curves altogether.

ENTER CONTOURS™. But now, architects, designers and interior contractors have entered an era where almost anything is possible.

Contours' broad variety of profiles in aluminum, galvanealed steel and vinyl/acrylic can easily transform an ordinary drywall interior into an exciting "soft-edge" environment.

These profiles include radiused inside/outside corners, wall terminations, light coves, column covers, ceiling vaults and accent reveals.

EASY TO WORK WITH. C/S Contours components have all been designed for simple, low cost field installation using the ordinary tools of the drywall trade. Flanges are offset and punched to receive drywall screws, joint tape and spackle. All Contours profiles are specially treated to accept paint and flexible fabrics, assuring continuity of finished surfaces.

DELIVERY. Extruded aluminum and vinyl/acrylic profiles are normally shipped within three working days of receipt of order.

Custom-formed profiles are shipped seven to 21 days after receipt of firm dimensions and specifications.

Unusually large or complex orders may require additional time. For complete profile availability or design assistance, call (704) 342-3337.

So, next time you want to throw a curve at this rectilinear world, use Contours and make almost anything possible.

SPECIFICATIONS. Furnish and install C/S Contours™ prefabricated drywall accessories as manufactured by Construction Specialties, Inc., Muncy, Pa.

Material shall be extruded aluminum, galvanealed steel, or vinyl/acrylic. Each profile shall include 1/8" wide offset flanges and staggered hole perforations to accept standard drywall screws, tape and spackling compound. Metal surfaces shall be pretreated for compatible bonding of joint compound, paints or flexible fabrics.

So, whenever there's a question of curves, call Bob Grogan or Jack Edwin at (704) 342-3337.

CODE OF ETHICS AND PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT

Preamble

Members of The American Institute of Architects are dedicated to the highest standards of professionalism, integrity and competence. The following principles are guidelines for the conduct of members in fulfilling those obligations. They apply to all professional activities, wherever they occur. They address responsibilities to the public, which the profession serves and enriches; to the clients and users of architecture, and in the building industries, who help to shape the built environment; and to the art and science of architecture, that continuum of knowledge and creation which is the heritage and legacy of the profession.

This Code is arranged in three tiers of statements: Canons, Ethical Standards and Rules of Conduct. The Canons are broad principles of conduct. The Ethical Standards are more specific goals towards which members should aspire in professional performance and behavior. The Rules of Conduct are mandatory, the violation of which is grounds for disciplinary action by the Institute. The Rules of Conduct in some instances implement more than one Canon or Ethical Standard.

Commentary is provided for some of the Rules of Conduct. That commentary is meant to clarify or elaborate the intent of the rule. The commentary is not part of the Code. Enforcement will turn on application of the Rules of Conduct alone. But the commentary will assist those seeking to conform their conduct to the Code and those charged with its enforcement.

CANON I GENERAL OBLIGATIONS

MEMBERS SHOULD MAINTAIN AND ADVANCE THEIR KNOWLEDGE OF THE ART AND SCIENCE OF ARCHITECTURE, RESPECT THE BODY OF ARCHITECTURAL ACCOMPLISHMENT AND CONTRIBUTE TO ITS GROWTH; LEARNED AND UNCOMPROMISED PROFESSIONAL JUDGMENT SHOULD TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER ANY OTHER MOTIVE IN THE PURSUIT OF THE ART AND SCIENCE OF ARCHITECTURE.

E.S. 1.1 Knowledge and Skill: Members should strive to improve their professional knowledge and skill.

R. 1.101 In practicing architecture, members shall demonstrate a consistent pattern of reasonable care and competence, and shall apply the technical knowledge and skill which is ordinarily applied by architects of good standing practicing in the same locality.

Commentary: By requiring a "consistent pattern" of adherence to the common law standard of competence, this rule allows for discipline of a member who more than infrequently does not achieve that standard. Isolated instances of minor lapses would not provide the basis for discipline.

R. 1.102 Members shall not undertake to provide professional services if their competence is substantially impaired by physical or mental disabilities.

E.S. 1.2 Standards of Excellence: Members should continually seek to raise the standards of aesthetic excellence, architectural education, research, training and practice.

E.S. 1.3 Public Understanding: Members should strive to improve public appreciation and understanding of architecture and the functions and responsibilities of architects.

E.S. 1.4 Allied Arts & Industries: Members should promote allied arts and contribute to the knowledge and capability of the building industries as a whole.

CANON II

OBLIGATIONS TO THE PUBLIC

MEMBERS SHOULD EMBRACE THE SPIRIT AND LETTER OF THE LAW GOVERNING THEIR PROFESSIONAL AFFAIRS AND SHOULD THOUGHTFULLY CONSIDER THE SOCIAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT OF THEIR PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES.

E.S. 2.1 Conduct: Members should uphold the law in the conduct of their professional activities.

R. 2.101 Members shall not, in the conduct of their professional practice, knowingly violate the law.

Commentary: The violation of any law, local, state or federal, occurring in the conduct of a member's professional practice, is made the basis for discipline by this rule. R. 2.104 speaks to law violations by members occurring other than in the practice of architecture.

R. 2.102 Members shall neither offer nor make any payment or gift to a local, state or federal official with the intent of influencing the official's judgment in connection with an existing or prospective project in which the members are interested.

Commentary: This rule does not prohibit campaign contributions made in conformity with applicable federal and state campaign financing laws.

R. 2.103 Members serving in a public capacity shall not accept payments or gifts which are intended to influence their judgment.

R. 2.104 Members shall not engage in conduct involving fraud or wanton disregard of the rights of others.

Commentary: Conduct which brings into serious question a member's qualification to assume the fiduciary duties of an architect is the basis for discipline even if that conduct did not occur in the course of practice.

R. 2.105 If, in the course of their work on a project, the members become aware of a decision taken by their employer or client, against the members' advice, which violates any law or regulation and which will in the members' judgment, materially affect adversely the safety to the public of the finished project, the members shall:

- (a) refuse to consent to the decision, and
- (b) report the decision to the local building inspector or other public official charged with the enforcement of the applicable laws and regulations, unless the members are able to cause the matter to be satisfactorily resolved by other means.

Commentary: This rule extends only to violations of the building laws which threaten the public safety. Ethical Standard 2.1 calls on an architect to oppose technical violations of the law which are not threatening to safety, in which case discipline would not be imposed in the event that opposition is not successful. The obligation under this rule applies only to the safety of the finished project, an obligation coextensive with the usual undertaking of an architect.

R. 2.106 Members shall not counsel or assist a client in conduct that the architect knows, or reasonably should know, is fraudulent or illegal.

Commentary: This rule extends not only to matters which an architect knows are illegal, but also to matters which an architect of reasonable competence and prudence "should know" are illegal or fraudulent.

E.S. 2.2 Natural and Cultural Heritage: Members should respect and help conserve their natural and cultural heritage while striving to improve the environment and the quality of life within it.

E.S. 2.3 Civic Responsibility: Members should be involved in civic activities as citizens and professionals, and promote public awareness of architectural issues.

R. 2.301 Members making public statements on architectural issues shall disclose when they are being compensated for making such statements or when they have an economic interest in the issue.

E.S. 2.4 Public Interest Services: Members should render public interest professional services and encourage their employees to render such services.

E.S. 2.5 Human Rights: Members should uphold human rights in all their professional endeavors.

R. 2.501 Members shall not discriminate in their professional activities on the basis of race, religion, gender, national origin, age or nondisqualifying handicap.

Commentary: This rule applies to all professional activities of the member, including but not limited to dealings with clients, colleagues and employees. It is stated with such breadth here so as to avoid repetition under the other canons.

CANON III OBLIGATIONS TO THE CLIENT

MEMBERS SHOULD SERVE THEIR CLIENTS COMPETENTLY AND IN A PROFESSIONAL MANNER, AND SHOULD EXERCISE UNPREJUDICED AND UNBIASED JUDGMENT ON THEIR BEHALF.

E.S. 3.1 Competence: Members should serve their clients in a timely and competent manner.

R. 3.101 In performing professional services, members shall take into account applicable laws and regulations. Members may rely on the advice of other qualified persons as to the intent and meaning of such regulations.

R. 3.102 Members shall undertake to perform professional services only when they, together with those whom they may engage as consultants, are qualified by education, training, or experience in the specific technical areas involved.

Commentary: This rule is meant to ensure that members not undertake projects which are beyond their professional capacity. Members venturing into areas which require expertise they do not possess may obtain that expertise by additional education, training or through the retention of consultants with the necessary expertise.

R. 3.103 Members shall not materially alter the scope or objectives of a project without the client's consent.

R. 3.104 When acting by agreement of the parties as the independent interpreter of building contract documents and the judge of contract performance, members shall render decisions impartially, favoring neither party to the contract.

Commentary: This rule applies when the member, though paid by the owner and owing the owner loyalty, is nonetheless required to act with impartiality in fulfilling the architect's role in the typical construction industry documents.

E.S. 3.2 Conflict of Interest: Members should disclose to clients or owners significant circumstances that could be construed as conflicts of interest and should ensure that such conflicts do not compromise those interests.

R. 3.201 Members shall not accept compensation for their services from more than one party on a project unless the circumstances are fully disclosed and agreed to by all interested parties.

R. 3.202 If members have any business association, direct or indirect financial interest, or other interest which could be substantial enough to influence their judgment in connection with their performance of professional services, the members shall fully disclose to their clients or employers the nature of the business association, financial interest, or other interest, and if the clients or employers object to such association, financial interest, or other interest, the members will either terminate such association or interest or give up the commission or employment.

Commentary: These rules are intended to embrace the full range of situations which may present a member with a conflict between his interests and those of his client or employer. In some situations a conflict is easily discerned, as when the architect owns property adjacent to property upon which he has been asked to design a structure and is faced with design options which would affect the value of his property. Other instances are not so clear, and that is more frequently the case as new systems and procedures for the construction process, such as design-build, come into the market. In every case the architect must take adequate steps to ensure that the client is aware of any substantial interest which the architect has which might run counter to the interests of the client.

E.S. 3.3 Candor and Truthfulness: Members should be candid and truthful in their professional communications.

R. 3.301 Members shall not intentionally or recklessly mislead existing or prospective clients about the results that can be achieved through the use of the members' services, nor shall the members state that they can achieve results by means that violate applicable law or this Code.

Commentary: This rule is meant to preclude dishonest, reckless or illegal representations by a member either in the course of soliciting a client or during performance. For example, it would cover the conduct of an architect who provides conceptual drawings based on an inadequate site examination or without regard for zoning laws, which lead a prospective client to believe that a design could be achieved when in fact it could not.

E.S. 3.4 Confidentiality: Members should respect the confidentiality of sensitive information obtained in the course of their professional activities.

R. 3.401 Members shall not reveal information obtained in the course of their professional activities which they have been asked to maintain in confidence, or which the reasonably prudent architect would recognize as likely, if disclosed, to affect the interests of another adversely. However, under the following exceptional circumstances members may reveal such information to the extent the members reasonably believe necessary:

(a) To stop an act which creates an appreciable risk of significant harm to the public health or safety or property of others and which the members are unable to prevent in any other manner; or

(b) To establish claims or defenses on behalf of the members; or

(c) To comply with applicable law or with this Code.

Commentary: This rule embodies generally accepted standards of client confidentiality, recognizing that under certain circumstances that confidentiality must yield to other interests.

Because the law does not recognize an architect-client privilege, the rule permits an architect to reveal a confidence when necessary to comply with a subpoena or other legal process.

CANON IV OBLIGATIONS TO THE PROFESSION

MEMBERS SHOULD UPHOLD THE INTEGRITY AND DIGNITY OF THE PROFESSION.

E.S. 4.1 Honesty and Fairness: Members should pursue their professional activities with honesty and fairness.

R. 4.101 Members shall comply with the registration laws and regulations governing their professional practice.

R. 4.102 Members shall not knowingly make false statements or knowingly fail to disclose a material fact requested in connection with their application for registration or their application for AIA membership.

R. 4.103 Members shall not assist the application for registration or AIA membership of a person known by the members to be unqualified with respect to education, training, experience, or character.

R. 4.104 Members having substantial information which leads to a reasonable belief that another member has committed a violation of this Code which raises a serious question as to that member's honesty, trustworthiness or fitness as a member shall report such information to the body charged with enforcing this Code.

Commentary: Often, only an architect can recognize that the behavior of another architect poses a serious question as to that other's professional integrity. In those circumstances the duty to the professional's calling requires that the matter be brought to the attention of the proper authorities. In most jurisdictions such reporting, an implementation of professional standards, is protected from a libel or slander action if the report was made in good faith. If in doubt, a member should seek counsel before reporting on another under this rule.

R. 4.105 Members shall not sign or seal drawings, specifications, reports or other professional work for which they do not have direct professional knowledge or direct supervisory control; however, in the case of those portions of such professional work prepared by the members' registered consultants, the members may sign or seal said portions of the professional work if the members have reviewed such portions, have coordinated their preparation, or intend to be responsible for their adequacy.

Commentary: The essence of this rule is that the sign or seal of a member should not be affixed to any professional work unless the member intends to accept professional responsibility for its adequacy. The requirement that the member have professional knowledge or supervisory control or have reviewed or coordinated the consultant's work is evidence of the intent to assume professional responsibility.

R. 4.106 Members speaking in their capacity as architects shall not knowingly make false statements of material fact.

R. 4.107 Members shall accurately represent their qualifications and the scope and nature of their responsibilities in connection with work for which they are claiming credit.

Commentary: This rule is meant to prevent members from claiming credit for work which they did not do, misleading others and denying other participants in a project their proper share of credit.

E.S. 4.2 Dignity and Integrity: Members should strive, through their actions, to promote the dignity and integrity of the profession, and to ensure that their representatives and employees conform their conduct to this Code.

R. 4.201 Members shall not make misleading, deceptive or false statements or claims about their professional qualifications, experience or performance.

R. 4.202 Members shall make reasonable efforts to ensure that those over whom they have supervisory authority conform their conduct to this Code.

Commentary: What constitutes "reasonable efforts" under this rule is a common sense matter. As it makes sense to ensure that those over whom the architect exercises supervision be made generally aware of the Code, it can also make sense to bring a particular provision to the attention of a particular employee when a situation is present which might give rise to violation.

CANON V OBLIGATIONS TO COLLEAGUES

MEMBERS SHOULD RESPECT THE RIGHTS AND ACKNOWLEDGE THE PROFESSIONAL ASPIRATIONS AND CONTRIBUTIONS OF THEIR COLLEAGUES.

E.S. 5.1 Professional Environment: Members should provide their associates and employees with a suitable working environment, compensate them fairly, and facilitate their professional development.

E.S. 5.2 Professional Recognition: Members should build their professional reputation on the merits of their own service and performance and should recognize and give credit to others for the professional work they have performed.

R. 5.201 Members shall recognize and respect the professional contributions of their employees, employers and business associates.

R. 5.202 Members leaving an employer's service shall not without the permission of the employer take designs, drawings, data, reports, notes, or other materials relating to work performed in the employer's service by the members.

R. 5.203 Members shall not unreasonably withhold permission from departing employees to take copies of designs, drawings, data, reports, notes, or other materials relating to work performed by the employees in the members' service which are not confidential.

Commentary: A member may impose reasonable conditions, such as the payment of copying costs, on the right of departing employees to take copies of work performed while in the member's service.

 - (c) Suspension of membership for a period of time.

Ethics and the Promotion of Experience

What does an owner look for when soliciting for architectural services? How does an owner look at promotional material? What information is helpful to his decision-making process? How is he affected by the quality of the material? The ambiguity of information? The discovery of something that appears to be less than truthful?

Conversely, how does a young architectural firm accurately and responsibly promote the quality and diversity of its experience? How does the firm explain that experience in terms that are fair to itself, fair to its previous employers and fair to prospective clients? How does this firm persuade an owner to select them for a commission without a string of successfully completed projects?

A number of years ago the Faculty Building and Grounds Committee of the University of North Carolina was interviewing a number of architectural firms who had expressed interest in working on campus. By coincidence, three firms in succession showed slides of the same group of buildings, each firm claiming to employ persons (either principals or others) who had a responsible role in the design of these buildings. As the third set of nearly identical slides appeared on the screen, the chairman of the committee loudly interrupted the proceedings with the comment, "But I thought we were interviewing different firms!" One can imagine the stammering explanation that followed.

While everyone knows that experience follows individuals as they move from firm to firm, everyone must also acknowledge that the "parent" firm is responsible for creating the situation that provides that experience. Many architectural firms, particularly those that seem to foster the birth of new firms, provide opportunities for the kind of professional growth that is necessary for those who wish to start their own practice. How does the young architect explain these circumstances so that they are clearly understood? How does this architect face the dilemma of taking credit when it is due, more importantly giving appropriate credit when it is warranted?

First of all, job titles, while they may serve a specific purpose in a particular office, do not enjoy universal definitions that one might find in Webster's dictionary. We have had single projects at the university that have been assigned to a "project designer," "project architect," "job captain," "project manager" and "principal in charge" and that have been subject to the manipulations of the "director of design." What happens when each of these individuals starts their own practice and claims credit for involvement in such a project? This is precisely what happened in that circumstance before our Building and Grounds Committee. The resulting confusion was not helpful to the client nor was it helpful to any of the firms that were presenting their credentials. From our perspective, it is much better to explain the project involvement in terms of tasks and levels of responsibility that can be clearly understood by those outside the profession.

I have never understood the apparent reluctance to name specific firms or individuals when explaining personal involvement in a project. I would much prefer to hear a statement like, "While employed by firm XYZ, I worked under the supervision of architect X in developing the project design." This is far superior to saying, "I was the project designer, but not the architect of record." This means little or nothing to the layman, particularly if the next architect says, "I was the project architect" for this same project.

A second admonition has to do with being honest with yourself and the information that you present. To do otherwise is extremely foolish. For example, I received a telephone call one day from an individual who introduced himself as the design architect of one of
