Next time specify modern Deep-Strength* Asphalt-base construction...

THE ECONOMICAL ANSWER to cracking low-type cement bases (soil-cement and cement-treated bases) is modern Deep-Strength Asphalt construction. In addition to being stronger and more durable, as proved in the AASHO Road Test, modern Asphalt-base pavements can be built faster and easier and are less costly to build and maintain. They also are water- and frost-resistant, do not lose strength during the critical spring-thaw period, and they are unharmed by de-icing salts.

and end expensive crack reflection problems.

CEMENT BASE BREAK-UP is usually the real problem at the bottom of crack reflection. Cement-treated bases develop shrinkage cracks which eventually reflect through the protective riding surface. As these cracks increase in number and size, surface water enters, thereby causing more distress from instability and freeze-thaw action. Stronger, economical all-Asphalt pavement construction in the first place is the common-sense answer to all road- and street-building problems.

IN THE LONG AGO, now historic time of the first World War, as a child I remember my mother and father quoting, with complete belief, the then current saying, "The war to end all wars." To me, steeped in the heroics of the Confederacy, this seemed somewhat sad, as war then held a panoply and glamour. I remember looking with friends at the illustrated weeklies of the day in enrap fascination at the drawings of battle scenes and gallant figures in uniforms. Even the names of combat units were romantic—Uhlans and Death's Head Hussars, the "Ladies from hell" for a regiment of kilted Highlanders, the Royal Irish Fusileers and the Queen's Own and the Grenadier Guards.

There was the poetry from England's "sensitive young men"—Rupert Brooke, killed in action; Siegfried Sassoon, found reading a Greek book alone in a captured segment of trench, and Alan Seager's "I have a rendezvous with death on some enchanted hill..." shortly before he kept the rendezvous. Then the songs, though horrible in retrospect, were stirring and sentimental: Over There and Keep the Home Fires Burning and, the tear-jerker, Smile the while you bid me fond adieu...

Over all the impressions, the strongest line of memory was the certainties about "the war to end all wars" and "make the world safe for democracy." We knew who the enemy was. He was the Kaiser. I remember placards on the walls of my school: "The Kaiser bibliography." In the movies, it was Kaiser Wilhelm—poor foolish Willy, the King of England's cousin, who loved to rattle sabers and strike fierce militaristic postures—into the fiend who entered the "Ladies from hell" for a regiment of kilted Highlanders, the Royal Irish Fusileers and the Queen's Own and the Grenadier Guards.

Everything was simplified by transforming Kaiser Wilhelm—poor foolish Willy, the King of England's cousin, who loved to rattle sabers and strike fierce militaristic postures—into the fiend who entered American minds as the arch "Hun" (and people still believe that the Germans are Huns). Motives and purposes were thrillingly clear when the unmistakable end of view was to "kill the Kaiser" who crucified children. Students left college to join the Lafayette Escadrille and become "aces," they joined field hospital-units and combat-units; members of the Dartmouth class of 1917 left college to enlist the day after war was declared in April and their diplomas were mailed to them. They went singing, we won't come back 'til it's over, over there.

When Europe became involved in the second World War, before America entered, I was an adult living in New York City, and among intelligent, well-informed people the prevailing sentiment was apprehension, even fear. The Nazi's military machine was a terrifying weapon of warfare and Hitler's programs made the Kaiser seem like a quaint eccentric. The world purposes of the Nazis, accompanied by their skillful infiltration into other countries, removed all panoply and glamour from war. Along with the romance went the comforting slogans, instead of nobly wanting to make the world safe for anything, we simply wanted to be saved from the Nazis.

Before America went in, a group of us in New York, writers and editors, gave part-time gratis service to produce propaganda for the War Department, and the late Stephen Vincent Benet and I wrote (Continued on page 95)

Before you build, buy or modernize, be sure the heating system measures up to GAS!

1. WHOLE-HOUSE HEAT. Gas heat is effective at all outside temperatures. No supplementary equipment required. Gas heats every room in the house so no auxiliary heaters are needed to warm up cold spots.

2. DEPENDABLE. Gas is piped safely underground to the point where it's used, in fair weather or foul. Gas heating systems perform at top efficiency no matter how cold the winter weather gets.

3. LONG-LIVED. Because the heart of a Gas Heating system is a flame, it lasts longer and has far fewer expensive-to-maintain moving parts than a complicated heat pump.

4. GOOD YEAR 'ROUND. Gas Heating and Cooling are both highly efficient. By planning ahead, you can use the ductwork of your Gas heating system for cooling your whole house, too. Gas will do both jobs, dependably and economically.

5. ECONOMICAL. Over the span of your mortgage, a long-lived, year 'round Gas comfort system can save you thousands of dollars. Get all the facts and figures from your Gas company.

smart builders specify genuine
SANFORD BRICK...

When architects, contractors and other building specialists specify genuine SANFORD brick, they know they can rely on the quality that has earned an international reputation for the Sanford Brick and Tile Company. Strict quality control from clay to completion, a choice from more than 225 colors, textures, sizes and finishes . . . and careful shipment by train or truck are some of the important reasons why you will benefit by specifying brick from the "Big S" kilns for your next building project.

radio sketches and pieces for magazines designed to arouse the country to its dangers. With the Nazis, activities, we did not need to create a personalized villain: what we did need to do was to awaken Americans to the realization that what was happening in Europe “could happen here.” It was uphill work. The citizenry was fixed in the attitude that “we tried it once and didn’t like it.” Songs fell flat. Parades and bands stirred nobody. The old appeals to America’s heritage were likely to with sharp faces and blank eyes.

Then the Japanese moved in and accomplished overnight what President Roosevelt and all the machinery of propaganda had failed to do in two years. The dramatic change came on the West Coast. In 1940, when I had been in Hollywood, the attitude of the average Californian to the war in Europe had been, “Oh, that!” After Pearl Harbor happened in the Pacific, imaginary Japanese submarines appeared off the coast on the hour. What the Japanese attack accomplished was to arouse fear: it could happen here.

From the days when I had been innocently influenced by propaganda until the time when I was among those creating it, the significant difference was the absence of idealism, to appeal to, any belief in any end to be accomplished. Also in the new generation there were none, as my contemporaries and I had been as children, who saw anything in the least romantic about war, and in my generation our childish glorification of military combat had long since gone with other illusions. It had all become a dreadful business to everybody.

Since “fear” was a negative appeal, there was little for propaganda to concentrate upon except Hitler as an enemy. This was something of a return to what I had known, that I thought of a football guard I’d ever seen. She so

As America was fully committed by then, I shifted from part-time propaganda to full-time work in the War Department as a special appointee of Secretary Stimson. In the vast wasteland of the Pentagon and me. I had left my home in New York with, an unfinished book and was living on a per-diem allotment in an apartment-hotel in Washington to accomplish the “top secret” assignment given me. The obstacles put in my way were incredible, incomprehensible and maddening in their frustrations to getting my work done. Finally a colonel from civilian life took me aside and explained that I was wearing myself out uselessly by trying to work at 100% of my capacities: this was an impossibility in those around me as I was rocking the boat: I must gear myself to work at 25% of my capacities, and then I would find that everybody loved me and I could relax in easing through the day with my newfound friends.

Since this was not possible, I arranged through the Adjutant-General’s office to have myself banished to the sub-sub-basement of the Pentagon. The gray-walled room was about 15 by 15, with ceilings at least 20 feet high, giving the effect of the bottom of an elevator shaft. At a desk next to mine was my secretary, a wooden-faced automation with the most magnificent calves for a football guard I’d ever seen. She so reminded me of a guard named Rice that I had known, that I thought of her always (and still do) as Miss Richmond.

Odd persons appeared in the doorway of our bleak hide-away, glared at Miss Richmond and me, and stalked out. She explained they were looking to check that paper was not being wasted; we worked under strictest orders against wasting paper—or, indeed, anything except time. One day a fierce-looking man wearing a red hunting-cap came all the way into the room, gave us a disapproving survey and vanished. The next morning the typewriter on the spare desk was gone. It took us only two days to get it back. Again the man in the red hunting-cap appeared in the doorway. This time he said, “You’ve three typewriters and only two people.” I explained that secretaries from the pool came in at intervals to use the other typewriter. The next morning the typewriter was gone again. The man in the red hunting cap never came back. Thereafter, when a girl from the secretarial pool was called, she used my typewriter and I worked in long-hand.

I "enjoyed" the perquisites and privileges of a full colonel, and this was an important time-saver. I could eat in the restaurant with field-officers, which meant that I didn't have to wait long to be served and the food was edible; I also could use army cars in going to other buildings, and was granted various other small amenities. With my rank went a gold-bordered pass, the Pentagon's highest honor: with this I could pass in and out of any section of any official building without being questioned or the papers with me examined. But the gold-bordered pass provided the biggest battle of the private war.

Once I was out of Washington for several days and did not get to renew the pass, as required, before the first day of each month. On about the second of the month, I went to the foyer where a Regular Army sergeant and two armed soldiers guarded the entrance into the glass-walled office where, among other high priority activities, gold-bordered passes were renewed. The sergeant stated that I could not enter the office to have my pass renewed, as my pass had expired, and no one could enter that office without a pass. Dilemma. I suggested he phone the Secretary of War Stimson. Only the officer in charge could do that, "All right," I said, "have the officer in charge phone." He was not available, the sergeant said, growing very suspicious of me. The frozen-faced soldiers edged closer. At this point, the long frustrations broke like a wave and, storming toward the entrance door, I shouted, "I'm either going in this office or you are going to shoot me."

Nobody shot, but the civilian in charge of renewing passes was waiting for me with a grim expression. "You're not supposed to be in here," he said. "I am in here," I said, "so will you renew the pass so I can get my work done."

"We've never had anything like this."

"Neither have I. This is Alice in Wonderland. I'm not sure it's happening—"

My voice was rising with rage and hysteria; heads were turning; the bureaucrat said hastily, "Please, please, here, give me the pass. Now, in the future—"

I fled to my sub-sub-basement sanctuary. A Regular Army colonel was waiting for me. Ah-ha, I thought, court-martial. No, he wanted to have coffee with me at the dismal, shadowed coffee-counter. I told him my experience and he looked at me oddly. It was a wholly normal procedure to him. He changed the subject to something rarely discussed in the tenebrous depths of the Pentagon—the war. Slowly it came to me that in talks with other colonels and several generals (brigadiers) I had heard the same drift: Germany was not really the enemy; Russia was. What we should do was to offer Germany a peace in exchange for deposing of Hitler and then take on Russia, head-on, in East Germany.

As it turned out, these officers knew what they were talking about. At the time, however, I thought the Pentagon had gotten to them in one way as it was getting to me in another. Nobody knew who the enemy was any more. But in that dank-smelling sub-sub-basement, where Miss Ricevich kept the typewriter keys unceasingly clicking and strange faces haunted my retreat, something happened that spread slowly and insidiously over all the United States. Nobody ever knew again—long after that war was over—who the enemy was.

The other day, on behalf of a student, I had occasion to talk to an official of the draft board, from whom I learned that the country is at war again. Young men are being drafted as soon as their undergraduate education is complete (unless their planned graduate work would contribute to maintaining a country at war). And in state colleges, fugitives from the draft board are beginning to study in desperate earnest. Nor was the slightest opprobrium attached to those young men for their lack of patriotism. Indeed, "patriotism" was something like a dirty word.

I thought of the long-ago days when students left colleges to "join the colors" to the tune of Over There, and the "sensitive young men" kept a rendezvous with death as service to God, to country, to King. I remembered motion picture stars barnstorming in Richmond to promote the sale of war bonds. Now Internal Revenue agents stalk the tax-payer and we read that the President of the nation is to clear the rivers of pollution, the air of pollution, the cities of slums; he is making war on poverty and prejudice and ignorance everywhere on the globe. But, at the same time, young men are snatched from their homes, their careers disrupted at the beginning, and some will never have careers, any life at all. They are whisked off to far-away places to endure the hardship and tedium and danger of army life, to suffer mutilation and death, to bring grief to their loved ones. There are no about any resolution that can be accomplished through force of arms. All that seems to belong to another time, another age.

This is in no sense a comment on what to do in Asia. The expert consensus seem to be that, having entangled our fortunes in a foreign war, we have no choice except to hold on and hope for the best. But what does the word “escalation” of the war do to the emotions compared with something like, “We’ll fight them on the beaches, in the streets . . .”? In the first World War we were naive; in the second World War we were scared of a definite threat. But what is going on now? How can the national conscience accept the shipment of fellow human beings to a distant place to face daily exposure to death without having some conviction about the cause, the reason, for this human sacrifice?

From all the official commentary of our leaders in The Great Society, I don’t know whether we’re supposed to be proud or ashamed of what the nation is committed to. Or, are we supposed to follow the President’s line and talk quickly about the streams of welfare that will not be diverted because of escalation in Viet Nam? I know not how others may feel, but as for myself, I feel guilty about every American death, every man whose life is disrupted and every woman who waits, in a cause that has never been clarified.

We don’t even have “mother’s apple pie” to offer as a lure. Frozen pizza with television commercials just doesn’t somehow have the same appeal. And even the “pie” line was phoney, a sop in exchange for truth. It is my belief that now people would accept the truth, whatever it is. But this war/no war is a state of man-made purgatory. Maybe China will be, or is, the enemy, as Russia was/is, and before Russia the Nazis and Japs, and before them the Kaiser. But if I were back in War Department propaganda, I could not bring the same enthusiasm to concocting scare-stories of the “Yellow Peril” as I did to Nazis. After all, when I was doing propaganda, China was our friend.

Since it manifestly is too late for any propaganda any more, too confusing, and the public too apathetic, maybe it would be a healthy change to deal in realities—what used to be called “the cold facts.” Of course, to expect this is even more Utopian than President Johnson’s wildest dreams. Instead, without facts and without parades, we move in a shadowland without convictions and without moral certainty. Maybe it is because of my guilty conscience for those who are, without songs, keeping that rendezvous with death, but I can conceive of no greatness evolving in any society which is engaged in a non-war with this moral vacuity. What kind of “past” will this age offer for the future to build upon and be guided by? What heritage is this to pass to posterity?
So nice some folks stay in the stable.

And enjoy it. Lakeview Motor Resort was once a stable for some of Virginia’s finest show horses. Now it’s one of Virginia’s outstanding motor resorts. Boating, fishing, swimming, riding, lawn games, Golf course under construction. Gourmet food in the Feedbox or private Lakeview Club where there’s music almost every night. Come to Lakeview for a night, a weekend—or a week. If you’re coming tomorrow call ahead for reservations. (EM 6-0321 Roanoke.)
