ASPHALT PAVING
The Before and After Surface

Modern, full-depth asphalt is the only kind of paving material that can serve building contractors and their customers before and during building construction, as well as after completion.

How? Well, asphalt paving—as an access road or strip—permits vehicles and equipment to get into and use construction sites right at the start of the project. This kind of paving is called “stage construction.” And usually it involves:

From the start of the project, an asphalt paving mat supports trucks, cars, and equipment as they move in and out of the project site. It enables construction to continue, even in bad weather. If it is a road or highway job, traffic can use the paving even before final completion.

After its temporary service during the construction period the initial layers of asphalt paving are easily and effectively converted into a permanent surface for the use intended. Usually, the original courses of asphalt paving serve as a base for additional layers of asphaltic material, thus providing a full-depth surface to serve present and future needs.

Yes, asphalt is economical, dependable, and versatile. It’s the only surface that’s with you from the start of your construction work through its completion—and still with you, serving your needs, many years into the future.

Construction is an industry becoming more sophisticated every day. Offering more opportunities than ever to those entering it as a career field. Pay is among the best in the nation. Working conditions are good and improving with each new piece of machinery. And the possibilities for using our knowledge, skill and ingenuity increase daily.

As we move ahead into the last quarter of this century, things are changing rapidly. Our landscape and our living conditions are in a state of flux. Whether these changes are for the better or worse hinge, in large part, on the Construction Industry. On whether or not those making the decisions and doing the job are properly informed and organized. And have the Skill, Integrity, and Responsibility of the Contractor Members of the Virginia Branch, Associated General Contractors of America, Inc.

ON OUR COVER: BIRTHPLACE OF LIBERTY — St. John's Church, 35 years older than America itself, was the site of the 1775 Virginia Convention which led to American independence. Located on historic Church Hill in Richmond, visitors may stand where Patrick Henry stood as he uttered his ringing call to freedom—"Give me liberty or give me death!" St. John's Church—still in active use—is one of ten points on the unique "Richmond Tour," a self-guided experience for visitors to Richmond. ‘The Sweetness of Life’

A SORRY OF long distance acquaintance, the British historian Sir John Wheeler-Bennett, made in his new book an interesting observation about 20th century England which could, in a limited degree, be applied to America. Using a remark originally made about pre-Revolutionary France, he joins other Britons in saying that no one who had not known England before the First World War “could understand, in its true sense, la douceur de la vie”—which I take to mean, in effect, the sweetness of life.

This was undoubtedly true of the nobility and those untitled families of wealth, education and substantial position (such as Sir John’s) whose patterns of life intermingled with those of the nobility. Even in the working classes, among whom there was considerable industrial unrest before the war, there seemed an instinctive pride (such as that enjoyed by the citizens of Rome) in being a citizen of England, both as Shakespeare’s “blessed isle” and as the center of the modern world’s greatest empire.

However, it was chiefly the privileged classes who experienced “the sense of peace and security which, in the course of this century, has been taken from us.” This is a quote of Sir John from Harold Macmillan’s autobiography. Since Sir John’s generation came of age a bit too late to participate in the First World War, it was for him 1939 rather than 1914 “which saw the deluge that swept away my world.”

In America, its pre-World War I quality of life was not swept away so dramatically nor with such finality. It was more gradual erosion which, beginning during the Depression, did not complete its destruction of our early century quality of life until about the late sixties. Its passing was not generally recognized until the Watergate horrors reached their climax in 1974. Then, too, our approximation of “the sweetness of life” lacked many of the factors, both tangible and intangible, that gave sharp definition to this quality in England.

We had none of the traditional ties such as the Crown, which gave a sense of stability in that period of “peace and security,” which was unshaken even when the bloated King was a notorious libertine whose first thoughts were of his own comforts and pleasures; when his son, King during World War I, was practically an illiterate whose idea of a great day was a shooting at which 2,000 doves were slaughtered, and whose first cousin Willy, Victoria’s grandson, was the German Kaiser whose dangerous capriciousness plunged Europe into war. Nor, of course, did we have any of those visual symbols of a tradition, as the daily show of the resplendent Horse Guards’ ride to the Palace. We were too “democratic” for this sort of pomp and ceremony.

Tomorrow is Here

Here in Newport News.
Here in the hands of the people who work here. Because our people are building tomorrow with something that started a long time ago.

A legacy of expertise.
The teamwork, skills and engineering ability that have put together some of the world's most complex technical achievements.

Like the Navy's nuclear powered submarines, aircraft carriers and frigates. The world's most sophisticated commercial ships—liquefied natural gas carriers. And services and components for commercial nuclear power plants.

And when the call comes to go to work on other ideas for the future, we're ready. Because our people are ready. And always have been.

To tell the Virginia Story
THANK YOU, VIRGINIA!

Thank you for making us the largest Virginia agency writing Contractor's Insurance. And thank you, also, for calling upon the Rutherfoord organization to provide more Contractor's Bonds than any other agency in Virginia. "Virginia Is For Lovers"—and we love Virginia Contractors!
The decision is up to you and your congressman. But before you make up your mind, read this.

America already has one of the best health care systems in the world, but there are still problems that need to be solved. Problems like providing better protection for the poor and the elderly, and making catastrophic coverage available to more people. A number of proposals aimed at solving some of these problems are in front of Congress now.

The range of proposals is staggering.

National health insurance proposals range from the protection of the poor to some degree of protection for everyone; from comprehensive benefits to catastrophic coverage; from voluntary participation to mandatory payroll deductions, with mandatory payments by employers.

Some programs would be administered entirely by the government. Other programs would be administered by private plans under government supervision. And still others would be administered by the government and private plans working together.

NHI won’t be free.

All of these proposals have one thing in common: none of them is going to make hospital and medical bills disappear. Whether you continue to pay through a private health care plan like the one you have now, or through higher taxes for a national program, quality health care is going to be expensive; and with estimates for the cost of one national health insurance program as high as $116 billion* per year in Social Security taxes, it’s important to look at the strengths as well as the weaknesses of our existing system before we decide what steps to take next.

What’s right with the health care we have?

Nine out of every ten Americans already have, or are eligible for, some form of health care coverage.

Catastrophic coverage—like our own $250,000 Major Medical—and benefits for low-income people are already available from many plans.

Private plans are continuing to extend benefits and to work with doctors and hospitals in finding ways to control health-care costs.

And, above all, the consumer has freedom of choice. If you don’t like the service of your present plan, you or your group can change to another. And this is the most powerful incentive we know to encourage our existing private plans to continue improving!

Our free booklet helps explain the choices.

Before you reach any conclusion on America’s health care policy, we hope you’ll take time to study the issues—and the alternatives. To start, we’ve prepared a brochure outlining the major proposals now being considered in Congress, and you can get a copy free from your local Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia office. (We’ll also be glad to send you information about our health care programs. No health questions will be asked when you apply—and your coverage will be continuous, no matter how many health care expenses you have.)

So before you decide, read. Listen. Study. And, when you’ve reached your decision, stand up and be counted.

After all, it’s your money. And your health.

* If the program had been in effect during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975.

"BUILD WITH BRICK"
E. C. Keys can heat you up. Cool you down. And absolutely floor you!

We've expanded. Into a lot of new locations. That means more people to serve you... with a terrific selection of new products.

In Maryland, Washington, D.C., and parts of Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware, we're now the distributor of quality Fedders heating and air-conditioning systems. Congoleum flooring products, too. And, we've even expanded our well-known line of masonry and gypsum products—distributing from Baltimore, Washington, and Richmond.

Now, more than ever, we've got what you're looking for. So, if you are thinking about starting a new construction project—look to Keys for brick, windows and patio doors, fireplaces, roofing materials, cement and gypsum, fuel oil, specialized exterior coatings, paints, stains, masonry, steel bi-fold doors... and... well, literally hundreds of other building supply materials.

And nearly all are ready for immediate delivery.

E. C. Keys and Son. Now one of the nation's largest wholesale building supply firms. Call your Keys area manager. His number is listed below. He'll have what you're looking for.

We've got what you're looking for.

Super Tree.

Believe it or not, this tiny seedling will be the parent of a whole forest of stronger, healthier trees. Super trees, as they are called by forest geneticists. They're a result of Chesapeake Corporation's forest genetics program. By grafting cuttings from a superior tree onto a sturdy normal tree, such as this seedling and thereafter controlling pollination, it will produce seed with all the characteristics of the super tree.

Look out for our roots

Underground phone cables. But it's hard to know where they are. Or aren't. And if you're digging, you could accidentally cut some.

Then everything stops. A lot of phone service. And your crew.

So find out where underground phone cables are, before you dig. After all, our roots keep a lot of phones alive.

Before you dig, call us.

'The Sweetness of Life'

Our very fluid society could not even conceive of a social structure such as the nobility and the upper classes which had brought an order to England for centuries. In fact, we had no upper class as such. Every community, however small, had its monied citizens who, when there were enough of them, formed a coterie of the local "socially prominent." But the whole nation, where the average citizen knew nothing of the tribal customs of distant regions, was aware of the existence of an "upper crust"—consisting of the very new very rich whose ostentatious, sometimes outrageous, displays of wealth got into the Sunday supplements. Obviously there was nothing in their hi-jinks even to suggest a cementing thread to the whole.

Yet, even without enduring social structures or traditional ties with their ceremonious rituals, and at the beginning of the century only thirty-five years away from a divisive civil war and with non-English speaking immigrants pouring in by the millions, we did have our own version of "the sweetness of life." Our feeling of "peace and security" might have been based on parochialism and the safety of physical isolation rather than on England's awareness of its might as a survivor of centuries of wars, but was none the less sweet. Although our very young might feed on the legends of cowboys and Indians and outlaws (whom we imagined to be still roaming the plains of our Western states) rather than on the many dramas and legends of British history which also contributed to the solidity of that England, we were warmed by a strong sense of neighborhood and place, and were secure in our regional and national identities.

We had one factor which England lacked: this was the folk hero, Horatio Alger. While the Crown symbolized the perpetuity of the English people, Alger's fairy tales expressed for the young an ebullient belief in the power of self-determination in the individual alone in an alien but open society. The key words were "pluck" and "strive," and they attracted "luck." (In modern times the Alger themes have been expressed in popular psychology as "the power of positive thinking.")

Our strivings were not directed toward riches or power, nor did these strivings give us any strong urge to improve (or "rise above") the positions in which we grew up—although as some of us grew a little older, education and some maturity focussed our ambitions on careers which would place us in different environments. Not remotely within our goals was today's mania for external or internal demands for new objects to purchase and temporarily satisfying those demands. But, although the creation of this state of perpetual demands has had the side-effect of contributing to the loss of the sense of satisfaction, this is not to join the fashionable indictment of Big Business as the source of all evils in our society.

Including all forms of industry, commerce, finance and advertising, Big Business is responsible for our high standards of living and for much of our way of life. Operating with the single-minded purpose of making profits, Big Business has been enormously skillful in coordinating highly specialized brains in such diverse areas as research and production technology, in management and in marketing, and in creating consumer demands for its products. Its discipline and organizational powers are unequalled in any other major American endeavor. Compared to Big Business, for instance, the education industry is ludicrous.

Yet, in the widespread inner dissatisfaction in today's America there seems to be a growing tendency to blame our ills on Big Business and to regard profits as an evil. Currently, there is considerable controversy about the expansion of Big Business into multinational corporations. Whether for good or ill, the reality is that with the global corporations Big Business is in the jet-age. The executives of these global corporations, whether American, English, Dutch, German, French, Swiss, Italian, Canadian, Swedish or Japanese, have a worldview in contrast to a nationalistic view. They tend to transcend the interests of the nation in which they are based, and in many ways already operate outside a nation's regulations and controls.
At the same time, there is perhaps an unconscious contrast with the efficiency of Big Business and the discouraging goings-on of our government. Where Big Business has entered the jet-age with its vision and operations, our government is still back with the T-model Ford. We are gnawed at by the uneasy feeling that our system of government is obsolete, that the people in Washington are unrelated to the world in which we actually live. While the environment in which we live has been drastically changing, the system of government has not materially changed in the past fifty years except to grow bigger, more cumbersome, more antiquated and, more costly.

The majority of the members of the two houses are probably as honest and as decent as President Ford, and a few might be brighter. Yet, during the past year we have seen both our Houses of Congress reduced to paralysis by procedural customs which permitted a piece of trivia in the Senate and plain stupidity in the House to halt legislation at a time when the nation desperately needed enlightened action.

If such a thing went on in one of our major corporations, it would be reduced to bankruptcy; if it went on in all our major corporations, the country would be thrown into bankruptcy. Here the difference between government and Big Business is that while corporation management knows where it is going and how to get there, the people in Washington are so confused by the obsolete system that they cannot even see what the fundamental problems are and hence are unable to think where they want to go, let alone how to get there.

As an illustration of this point, recently I, along with doubtless thousands of others, received a form letter from Senator Henry M. Jackson requesting a contribution to his campaign. Accompanying the request was a statement of some of his principles. Although familiar with Jackson's name, because of his long infatuation with the presidency, prior to reading this statement I knew little of his views or legislative action—beyond his sponsorship of the ill-fated demand-threat on Russia to increase its quota of Jewish emigrants to the satisfaction of the United States Senate.

In his bill of particulars, Senator Jackson makes no reference to the Russian exodus misadventure, but he does believe "a strong Israel is vital to American policy in the Mideast. And I will not back down on a matter that involves the security of the United States." From this fine general principle, he gets on to boggy ground with, "neither will I discontinue my fight in the Senate for an energy program that will rid us of the blackmail of foreign oil. I will not stand for our nation being bled while oil companies grow rich beyond belief."

This is a deceptively simplistic position on the complicated problem of energy. Looked at closely, it does not even suggest an approach to the real problem. America's 6% of the world's population uses 30% of the world's energy output when the present world demands far exceed the available supply. In this situation, no one has advanced a feasible plan that "will rid us of the blackmail of foreign oil," because we have no controls over the oil prices charged by the oil producing countries.

Regardless of the programs improvised by Senator Jackson and his colleagues, until new sources of energy are developed nothing can prevent higher prices for fuel oil and gasoline for automotive vehicles. In the short-range view, the days are over when Americans enjoyed low prices for gasoline and oil. In the more ominous long-range view, the National Academy of Science has estimated that the oil reserves of the whole world will be exhausted in fifty years unless alternate sources of energy are produced on a large scale.

As for the "nation being bled white while oil companies grow rich beyond belief," this seems the politicians' standby of making Big Business the villain. It is cashing in on the current attitude that finds something odious in profits. Although recently some of the big oil companies have taken losses, or at least showed less profits, there is no doubt that they have made a lot of money for, including their stockholders, a lot of people. Yet, to attack the oil companies for their efficiency in accomplishing the single-minded purpose of their profit-motive seems more in the line of crowd appeal than a realistic approach to the problems of energy.

After all, the oil companies have been getting rich for generations (long before energy problems were dreamed of), and so have and are numerous other companies. As for the nation being bled, the combined income of the oil companies is scarcely a drop in the bucket to the billions squandered by Senator Jackson's colleagues on idiot schemes, on the shiftless and swindlers, on the 1,009 federal grant programs already on the books, with the end not in sight.

In Senator Jackson's statement of principles, continuing in the realm of those generalities dear to the hearts of candidates, he says, "I've had enough of government economists who play with inflation... argue about recession and depression... juggle low interest rates with high interest rates... while jobs are being wiped out and the lifelong savings of millions go down the drain."

Here, he seems to be blaming persons in the government for almost everything except what it is guilty of: that is the mindless profligacy of Congress which at the least contributes to inflation. For, despite the arguments of liberal economists, there is a sneaking... suspicion around that government spending is linked to inflation. Congress certainly must think so since, our Big Spenders being unable not to refuse constituents' petitions for hand-outs, Congress protects itself against the consequences by voting themselves automatic pay raises against cost-of-living rises. This certainly seems to be the case of anti-inflation measures beginning at home, or, as the Indians supposedly used to say, “white man speaks with the forked tongue.”

When Caspar Weinberger left his post at HEW, whose $118 billion budget is ten times as much as the combined Federal profits of 19 major oil companies, he warned that unless the politicians could curtail their propensities toward more costly programs he believed the nation will share the fate of New York City. He was ignored, as were others who have given similar warnings. Weinberger said, “It is also the propensity of welfare states to spend beyond their means, leaving the day of fiscal reckoning to another generation. The news today is that we are that other generation.”

Senator Jackson was not among the very few who might have taken heed of those words. Hot for more programs, he states, “The time has come to give financial protection to middle class working people and to the elderly—and to help our small businessman who is caught in the squeeze.” Selecting only one of this blanket future program, since the disappearance of the family grocer and the corner drug store, the small businessman has been squeezed out by the thousands a year, and the trend is irreversible.

“I want to get the government working. I want to get the economy working. And most of all, I want to get people working.” Spoken in communities that have been hard hit by unemployment, this would evoke standing ovations. But after the sound of applause died away, Senator Jackson would confront one of those unpleasant realities that seem so difficult for our Model-T government to comprehend.

For it should be obvious enough that government policies make their contributions to unemployment as well as to inflation. The growing armies of Federal employees enjoy a higher average pay than workers in the private sector, as they do higher benefits in such areas as pensions. When one realizes the costs of government, including the billions of dollars down the drain in the one thousand plus programs and the millions wasted in “benefits” and perquisites to members of Congress, it is clear that the majority of members in both houses either cannot or will not comprehend the relationship of their legislative acts to the nation’s economy.

Since economists point out that money used by the government is money held out of investment in industrial development, Congress’ largess with the taxpayers’ money can be seen as a factor in choking off the sources of employment. Another factor is the number of Americans employed abroad by the multinationals. In 1966, the last accurate count, American-based multination coiporations employed 3,240,000 non-Americans in their overseas operations. This 30% of their total work-force is believed to be higher today. Part of the multinationals’ motives for these operations abroad is to escape U.S. tax structures and other regulations and the comparative high wage-scale of U.S. unions. In Hong Kong, for instance, the labor market offers workers at $1 a day, seven days a week, no strikes, and Taiwan provided union-less labor.

Given these factors, among others, the reality to be faced is that unemployment at some level is here to stay. In ignoring this reality, Senator Jackson unfortunately seems only typical of those in Washington who are caught in a compulsion for still more programs that cost still more money the government does not have.

Beyond this, Senator Jackson somewhat lamely says into what have become the brave declarations of presidential candidates:

“We need faster action on tax reform and welfare reform.” (From Congress!)?

“We need to protect our future retirees by getting the social security system on a sound financial basis.” We sure do, but it is improbable that even the brains, efficiency, disciplines and organizational genius of all the multinationals combined could bring financial soundness to this grotesque nightmare.

“And I want to make sure that every child gets a decent education without placing an unfair burden on the homeowner.” This is the most fanciful of all. The nation needs a new concept of what constitutes a “good education” and a complete redesigning of its educational system, including a separation of the purposes of education from sociological mandates.

“I have seen the financial drain of terminal and chronic illness. We need a workable form of national health insurance.” This has become a favorite subject of those congressmen who, undeterred by the disastrous consequences of government intervention in all phases of our economy and life, delude themselves (and/or their constituents) into believing that further government intervention can lower the cruel costs of sickness, especially to the older citizens whose fixed incomes of retirement do not advance with the costs.

Personally, I can well understand the appeal of such a promise. In the past year, when I was twice hospitalized, the costs made a serious imbalance in my economy and the charge of one particular doctor did seem outrageous. At the same time, the charges of an air conditioner repairman, who spent about twenty minutes in all on minor repairs to two window-box air conditioners, also seemed outrageous. I was really shocked at the charges of a painting contractor, with whom I'd done business amicably for years on a repair job on work of his which had not held up.

In a way worse, were the dealings with a carpenter contractor, to whom I'd given considerable business, about a louvered door he had made that never worked properly and was falling apart. Churlishly he gave a few minutes to a patchwork job, that any carpenter should have been ashamed of, the while complaining that he had no time for my door because of customers waiting for him. This cost me another door.

With all this commonplace in today's society, it is a deception to suggest that the government can do better for the health industry than it did for the postal service or social security. Nothing anywhere promises American citizens inexpensive or even good medical care. My belief is that the medical profession's relative freedom from government intervention makes it (like the global corporations' efficiency) generally good. During my various bouts with illness in the past couple of years, only one physician, after arranging for me numerous troublesome and costly laboratory tests, came up with nothing more than a hare-brained suggestion that would have exacerbated a chronic ailment. But he was not churlish: in fact, he was very pleasant. As it turned out, another doctor as a friend suggested a remedy that, with some measures of my own, cleared up the problem.

Before meddling further with the health industry, it should be recognized that physicians today have replaced the small businesses in our economy. Several doctors form a company, like a legal firm, that employs receptionists, telephone operators, bookkeepers (busy with the paperwork caused by such national health insurance as we now have), secretaries, nurses and, where the company maintains its own laboratory, its own lab technicians. In several of those with which I am familiar, one important non-medical person occupies a position of something like Chief of Operations. Without such a small business structure, the doctor would have little time (or energy) for the practice of medicine.

It should also be recognized that Medicare has been more of a bonanza to doctors than to patients. During the ten years of the existence of Medicare, medical care costs have risen 87.2% as compared to an overall 68.9% in the costs of living. Doctors' incomes have increased by 6 to 8% a year during that period, twice the increases before Medicare.

The Social Security Administration released a sobering figure. The average medical costs of aged persons have increased from $335 a year in 1967 to $1,218 a year in 1974. Since the Medicare coverage of 38.1% comes to about $456 of the 1974 costs, this is about $222 more than the 1967 cost without Medicare. Add the $80 yearly cost of Medicare, and the "average aged person" pays $300 a year more in medical care costs than eight years ago. The real boon of Medicare to the "average aged person" is in hospital expenses, especially in long hospitalization.

While Medicare has apparently whetted the greed of some doctors, and doctors of the older generation lament the advent of dollar-hustlers among young doctors who shirk thoroughness of medical training, there is nothing the government can do about this. These are manifestations of human nature and reflections of our times. Then, on the whole, the medical industry is too elaborately structured and too deeply imbedded in the "free enterprise" system of capitalism to be anything but deranged by a modified socialism of government intervention. At best, the least harm government intervention would cause is still higher costs to us all. However Congress, heedless of all warnings, complies with the pleas of constituents by spending more money on more catch-all programs in a way to indicate a compulsion toward edging deeper into the structure of national health care.

In the real world, as pointed out by economist Sidney E. Rolfe in the Saturday Review, "the real crisis is the recognition of the limits of the wisdom of the state ... It was, after all, in the Presidency of Lyndon Johnson, the greatest of the imperial Presidents, that huge expenditures were undertaken—often deceptively—without appropriate offsets of taxation, and that the money supply increased approximately three times as rapidly as production grew, with inflation the inevitable consequence ... These policies were, furthermore, continued under the Nixon administration, exacerbating the inflation that in turn threatened to destroy much of the social fabric of the economy."

It is improbable that Washington politicians will recognize the "limits of the wisdom of the state," since they themselves are components of the state, and the majority (including our present president) recognize chiefly the attitudes and measures that "get there first with the most votes." In view of this, it is unfortunate Big Business has a bad name among so many of the young, to whom "profit-motive" has become a dirty compound word. For the profit-motive was inherent in the growth of the nations of the modern Western World, while recent government intervention has weakened some of these nations (notably Britain) and its effects have contributed to, as in America, dissatisfaction among the people, and in the nation—to use a phrase from an old novel by Edith Wharton—the loss of "the thread of purpose."

To refer again to Weinberger's farewell remarks on leaving HEW, he warned of "a faceless, gray egalitarianism" that will ensure "an equally mediocre existence for everyone, achieved at the cost of personal liberty." With this more than a distinct possibility, the most refreshing stand any candidate could offer would be an admission of the disaster of government intervention and the proposal of legislation that would bring paralysis to both houses for several years. With such a respite we might find out what our individuals can do when left alone. The best achievers might even recapture the "sweetness of life." Certainly the potential cannot have withered away in fifty years.

We’ve had more than 100 years to learn the facts of life,

(and retirement)

And it’s all important information we’ll be glad to share with you. Your Life of Virginia representative will tell you those things that apply to your family, your situation, your needs. So if you want to be sure about insurance protection, don’t ask your father about these facts of life... unless he’s a Life of Virginia representative.
"Nobody runs our credit union but us."

Whenever you think of a financial institution, you probably think of some ultra-conservative type in a pin-striped suit who has to stare at you for a minute before he remembers your name.

We think that's why you'll like our credit union. Because you're more than a customer. You're part of the family.

When you join our credit union, you have a voice in the management of a responsible financial institution. You own it. You help run it. You share in the profits. Through a good return on your savings and a fair interest rate when you borrow.

Join your credit union. It's where you belong.
