Design Your Next Parking Lot Way Cool...

...With Concrete.

Concrete parking areas are premier entryways that showcase your projects like no other pavement can. Concrete's flexibility gives you more options in terms of colors and patterns, while making it easier to incorporate the pavement, walkways and landscaping into the overall design. Concrete pavements do not use petroleum products which consume our fossil fuel reserves, and concrete lasts decades longer than alternative pavements. Concrete's reflective surface is brighter and safer at night, plus it stays cooler during the day. This cooling effect along with the use of landscaping and trees has been shown to reduce the average temperature in urban areas by as much as 10 degrees F. No matter how you look at it, designing concrete parking areas is "way cool."

WE KNOW the business of PROJECTS like nobody else.

We proudly announce that Harper and Shuman, the acknowledged leader in accounting software for A/E firms of all sizes, has joined forces with Deltek, combining the resources and industry expertise of both companies to offer your firm expanded product choices and enhanced services.

Businesses like yours often struggle to fit their processes to software systems designed for general business – not project business. Those systems don't provide the sophisticated project tracking, costing, revenue recognition, billing, project reporting and management that's so critical to a project-oriented business.

Deltek software is designed to meet the needs of your business. Not business in general. That's because we focus exclusively on designing enterprise software for the project-oriented business. Our products are developed and supported by people who thoroughly understand the way you function.

We've been implementing successful, cost-effective solutions to companies like yours for the last 14 years. Let us show you how well we know your business.

How to hire an architect

Few people realize how complicated it is to build – that is, until they find themselves lost in the maze of design options, building codes, zoning laws, contractors, and so on. Because no two projects are exactly alike, there is no single, clear-cut path to follow.

The architect is the one professional who has the education, training, experience, and vision to guide you through the entire design and construction process. Architects do everything from helping you define what you want to build to helping you get the most for your dollar. They don't just design four walls and a roof – they create total environments, inside and out, that satisfy functional needs and are dynamic places to be. Whatever the size of your project, an architect can produce a well-designed building that meets your needs and works within your budget and time frame. This happens in many ways.

A Wise Investment

Architects are trained to solve problems in creative ways, translating your needs into an efficient floor plan and three-dimensional space. With their broad knowledge of design and construction, architects can show you options you might never think of on your own. And architects' services are a wise investment, not an added cost. Consider this:

▼ A well-conceived project can be built more economically. Architects plan your project with you. As ideas evolve, changes can be made on paper much less expensively than after construction has begun. Thorough drawings also make it easier for the contractor to price and build your project.

▼ Energy efficient buildings can save you money on fuel bills down the road. An architect can design a building to maximize heating from the sun and let in natural light, which reduces your heating, cooling, and electric bills over time.

▼ The architect can work with your budget and help you select the appropriate materials and workmanship at a fair price.

Architects develop the drawings and specifications to help you get bids for construction that are based on your requirements.

▼ An architect can help you choose materials and finishes that are durable as well as attractive, saving on frequent maintenance and replacement costs. Architects work to stay abreast of advances in roofing, brick, tile, paint finishes, and so forth. Their familiarity with the full range of materials enables them to suggest the appropriate ones for you.

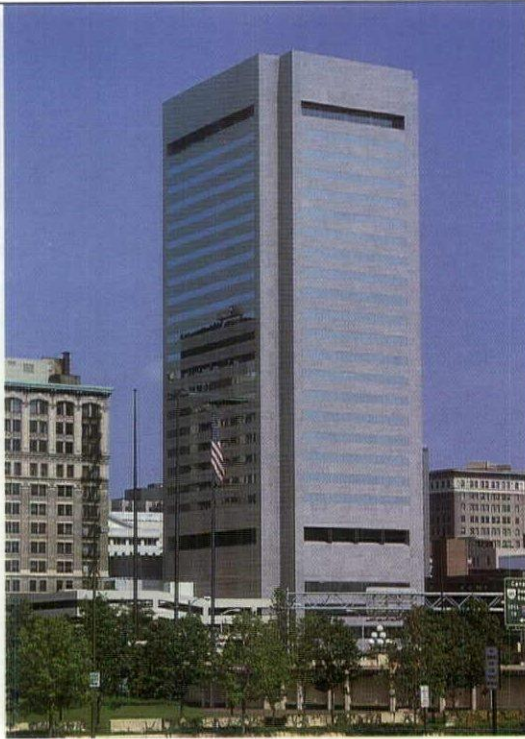

▼ Good design sells. A well-designed house has a higher resale value. A well-designed store draws customers. A well-designed workplace attracts good employees and increases productivity.

▼ The architect can make life easier. Face it: building is a long process that is often messy and disruptive, particularly if you are living or working in the space under construction. The architect you hire looks out for your interests and tries to find ways to make that process go smoothly.

▼ If your project requires engineering or other design services, the architect can coordinate the team. The architect sorts out complex building codes and zoning laws. The architect can help you find qualified contractors based on your project's needs. The architect visits the site to verify that the project is being built according to specification.

Finding an Architect

Architecture firms come in a variety of sizes and types. Each firm brings a different combination of skills, expertise, interests, and values to its projects. Statistically, the average firm is made up of nine or ten people, but can range from one to 100 or more. Some firms specialize in one or more project types. Some include engineering services, such as civil, structural, or mechanical. They may also incorporate other design disciplines, such as planning, urban design, landscape architecture, or interiors. Other architects introduce these disciplines into their projects by involving consultants with special expertise. It is well worth investing the time required to select your architect carefully. As you move forward in the process, be reminded that you will work closely with the architect throughout the project. Invest the same care it takes to find a financial or legal advisor.

Circle 90 on reader service card

Yours will be a business relationship. Find out how prospective architects do business, how they work with clients, how responsive they are to your decision styles, and how well their work stacks up against clients' expectations. Talk with their former clients.

Ask questions. Respect the architect as a professional who brings experience and specialized knowledge to your project. At the same time, don't be afraid to ask: What does the architect expect from the project? How much information does the architect need? How does the architect set priorities and make decisions? Who in the firm will work directly with the client?

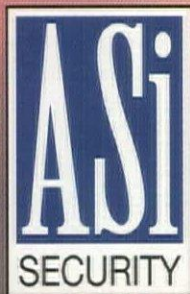

Be frank. Tell the architect what you know about the process and what kind of performance you expect. Ask for an explanation of anything you don't understand. The more you place on the table at the beginning, the better the chances for success.

And get it in writing. Once you've found the architect, you are ready to put in writing the terms of your agreement on the scope of work, services, schedule, construction budget, and architects' compensation. This agreement can take many forms. The AIA has developed a variety of standard contract forms which are used industry-wide. The Virginia Society AIA maintains a complete inventory of the standard contract documents. For a list of them, call us at 804-644-3041.

All told, the path to successful results is paved with many challenges. There are literally hundreds of decisions to be made, decisions which have a strong impact on how the project looks and functions. Experience tells us that successful projects result from good clients and good architects who form good professional, business, and often personal relationships. These relationships are formed early and are nourished by clear communication, mutually understood expectations, and a willingness of both you and your architect to accept your responsibilities.

ARCHITECTURAL ACOUSTICS

You are commissioned to design a new building or remodel an existing space. The purpose of the project is discussed with the owners and certain priorities are laid out. These will drive the overall design, with the acoustical criteria based on the intended use of the space.

But how will your building sound? As today's value conscience society demands more from their living environment, they also are demanding more from their audio environment. They are accustomed to high quality sound systems in their vehicles, state of the art audio systems in their homes and movie theaters with Digital Surround Sound. Your building will be competing in this audio environment.

Architectural acoustic design considerations must be considered for the building to achieve a high level of acoustic performance. Internal acoustic quality is an important factor if the space is to function properly.

Should a sound or communication system be incorporated within the space, it must be carefully coordinated with the room's acoustics and architectural layout. Items such as basic room size, shape, seating, and surface finishes have a considerable impact on acoustical quality. With acoustical treatments, effective use of internal finishes, and room shape, you can optimize acoustical performance.

Your design will have a very specific acoustic fingerprint. This acoustic fingerprint can be determined long before the first cubic yard of concrete is poured.

The determining of a building's acoustical fingerprint is both a science and an "art". Experience and modern technology have come together in this process with computer modeling and CAD design programs.

With computer aided design programs and experience, we are able to accurately anticipate the performance of the sound system within a specific structure before it is built. Whether the designed space is to be an arena, church, classroom, courtroom, auditorium or stadium, the proper acoustical design and sound reinforcement system can have a tremendous difference in the comfort level of those using the space, and in some instances the usability of the space.

With the successful completion of over 10,000 audio and sound reinforcement systems Independence Communications, Inc. uses computer modeling as just one of the tools in the engineering, design and installation of some of the most dynamic sound systems used today.

Independence Communications, Inc. provides consulting, engineering, design and installation for all types of acoustical projects large and small.

FIRST

If you are trying to locate architects in a particular area, but don't know the firm by name, look in the index that begins on page 101. That's organized by city and town.

SECOND

If you know the name of the firm you are trying to locate, simply thumb through the following pages and find the name in the alphabetical listing.

THIRD

Here's what you will find under the firm listing.

1 Name, address, and phone number.

2 Principals and Firm Personnel

If you want to talk about a possible commission, ask for the person listed as "client contact." If you want to talk to the firm about using a new product or service, ask for the person listed as "vendor contact." In smaller firms, these contacts will be the same person.

3 Principal areas of practice

While architects pride themselves on being generalists, many firms develop particular strengths over the years. This listing includes the four most important areas of a firm's practice, though other project types aren't necessarily excluded from the range of work a firm is qualified to do.

4 Firm specialties

Here is where many firms take the opportunity to elaborate on the types of work they do or to make qualitative statements about how they go about practicing their profession. This statement may help you understand the intangible qualities of the firm a little better.

5 Recent projects

We have limited each firm to naming no more than five of their recent completed buildings. Take note: Many of the buildings may have been recognized for design excellence or other attributes. If you are considering hiring this firm, go take a look at some of the buildings first and ask the building owners about their level of satisfaction with the results.

LAST

A few words about this directory. Contained here are the architecture firms which have a member of the Virginia Society AIA as a principal. There may be other principals and employees at the firm whose names are not listed. The information published here is provided by the firms and we assume it to be accurate, though we do not assume liability for its accuracy.

Baskervill & Son, a full-service architectural, engineering, facilities management, and interior design firm, brings more than 100 years of imagination to the design and planning process. In 1999, Baskervill & Son and Rose Architects combined two well-known firms to enhance our ability to serve the community through our combined markets. Studio B is a unique design group with a basis in architectural and interior design, extending to concept development for businesses, including identity packages, theme thinking, and marketing materials. Throughout our history, our mission has been to strive for the highest possible level of professional services for our clients. Our belief is that significant achievements in architecture and engineering occur only when client, architect, engineer, and contractor function as a team. Good communication and a tightly driven management process are critical to the success of all projects. We have worked to employ talented professionals with a spirit of cooperation, who create buildings imaginatively, memorably, and cost-effectively.

Context, fit, and appropriateness of each project characterizes the firm's practice, which is founded on the strong conviction that the creation of successful buildings and spaces is best served through a collaborative process with the client. Our approach makes little distinction between architecture and interior design and has produced a strong portfolio of projects, which have received local, regional, and national recognition. The firm's present clients are primarily institutions and corporations.

HOW

If music is the universal language, few people are more eloquent than Marvin Hamlisch. His timeless melodies and award-winning scores include "The Way We Were" and "A Chorus Line." Yet few things in life give him more pleasure than the view from his recently-remodeled vacation home. By replacing three small windows with six sliding french doors, Marvin created his favorite place to recharge his creative spirit. Which doors met his uncompromising standards? Marvin Hamlisch chose Marvin.

"You always know where you stand here, always know what your role is on a project. With most of our work originating in the public sector, the firm has a clear overall vision and well-established goals. In the end, that helps us respond to the client's needs quickly and accurately"

Bryan McMath

Lisa McWhirt

"If you can honestly say you look forward to going to work every day, that's a great indication of the quality of a job. I've always enjoyed going to the office, even when the workload is unusually demanding and the deadlines are tight. Our management team and the entire staff are very supportive, and they genuinely like to have fun at work."
