WE FINISHED HIGH SCHOOL IN 5 MONTHS.

"To finish so fast. And flow so smoothly. That's enormously unusual for a project of this scope."—General Contractor

- Design, manufacture, and erection of 273,000-sq.ft. precast concrete high school in 20 weeks using two cranes, to replace previous school destroyed by fire in Guilford County, NC.
- Aesthetic features include abundant light, smooth-trowel finish of interior walls, and exterior finish combining thin brick facades and concrete mix with light/medium sandblast.
- Smooth process flow and high product quality, with insulated precast sandwich panels meeting R-19 minimum, electrical embeds cast into panels, and flat slabs at corridors to maximize clear height for mechanical systems.

For world-class innovation, architects bank on Alpolic.

When a client wants to project an image of real innovation and stainless integrity, Alpolic/fr provides the solution, naturally. That's why Mozas + Aguirre Architects chose Alpolic/fr SCM Stainless Steel Composite Material, Dull Finish, for Caja Vital Kutxa in Vitoria, Spain. By the way, don't let the name fool you. Its beautiful matte surface is called "Dull Finish", but that's the only thing dull about it. FOR MORE INFORMATION, CALL 1-800-422-7270 OR VISIT WWW.ALPOLIC-NORTHAMERICA.COM

DREAMING CREEK
authentic architectural timbering

TRANSFORM YOUR CLIENT'S DREAM TO REALITY.

Dreaming Creek was founded on the centuries-old tradition of handcrafted architectural timbering. That's all we do.

Rather than outsource, we run our own sawmills and employ only the most talented designers, engineers and timbersmiths to offer you the finest customized timber-frame structures available.

For over 20 years, architects, designers and builders have depended on us for residential and commercial structures, particularly in challenging environments such as 160 mph winds, 300-pound snow loads and Zone 4 seismic shifts. Hopefully, we can help you, too.

Building or renovating a house?
Here's how to find the right

Architect

ARCHITECT:

Each architect has an individual style, approach to design, and method of working. So it's important to find an architect who is compatible with your personal style and needs. To help in your search, follow these few steps to success.

Build a list of possibilities. Ask around. Find out who designed projects in your community that you like. Get recommendations from friends, relatives, and acquaintances who have worked with architects. Check to see if the architect is a member of the American Institute of Architects (AIA). Membership in the AIA means that the architect subscribes to a high professional purpose to advance standards of practice and service to society. This includes having a code of ethics and access to a variety of professional and technical resources.

Contact your local AIA chapter. Many have lists of member-owned firms that are interested in doing various types of projects. The most complete statewide list is published in this directory, but you can also search for firms on the internet at www.aia.org.

Call each firm on your list. Describe your project and ask the architects if they are available to accomplish it. If so, request literature that outlines the firm's qualifications and experience. If the office is unable to handle your project, ask if they can recommend another firm.

Interview each firm. Interviewing a firm gives you a chance to meet the people who will design your project and to learn if the chemistry between you is right. You may be working with your architect for a long time, so choose someone with whom you feel comfortable. Allow at least an hour for the interview, preferably at the architect's office where you can see where the work will be done. Some architects charge for the interview, so ask if there is a fee involved with the consultation.

Ask questions. How busy is the firm? Does it have the capacity to take on your work? Who will handle the job? Insist on meeting the person who will actually design your project. What is the firm's design philosophy? Talk about a project budget and the range of fees that the architect would anticipate for your project. Before you select an architect, ask to be taken to at least one completed project. Also ask for references from past clients. These are invaluable. In addition, you might want to obtain an Architect's Qualifications Statement (form B431) from the Virginia Society AIA offices. This standardized document may be used to verify an architect's credentials and other information prior to selecting an architect for a project.

Making the final cut. Unlike buying a new car or new appliance, you can't see the product and test it out. The architect provides a professional service, not a product. The right architect will be the one who can provide the judgment, technical expertise, and creative skills – at a reasonable cost – to help you realize a project that fits your practical needs as well as your dreams.

This brief introduction was excerpted from "Home Delivery," a guide to how an AIA architect can help you realize your dream home. Copies of the publication can be requested by calling the Virginia Society AIA at 804-644-3041.

NEW DIRECTIONS IN SUSTAINABLE
ARCHITECTURE & DESIGN

2501 MONUMENT AVE.
RICHMOND, VA • (804) 644-3041
WWW.VIRGINIAARCHITECTURE.ORG

Organized by the National Building Museum in Washington, D.C., and presented by The Home Depot Foundation with generous support from the ASID Foundation of the American Society of Interior Designers, Portland Cement Association, Benjamin Moore® Paints, EPA/Energy Star, The Nathan Cummings Foundation, and the U.S. Department of Energy.

The Virginia Society of the American Institute of Architects is committed to recognizing design excellence through its annual Awards for Excellence. Late in 2008, three juries honored 17 projects in the mid-Atlantic region in the categories of architecture, interior design, and historic preservation. From Baltimore to Biltmore, Harpers Ferry to Hampton Roads, D.C. to Danville, these projects represent a high degree of craft in design and building.

Architecture, Interiors, and Historic Preservation. Three categories, three juries, and three important questions: how do these entries advance the practice of design? How do they participate in the values of their profession? And, how do they compare to their peers? With this award, the Virginia Society AIA celebrates a series of outstanding projects, all produced in the last five years, which emerged from our shared design culture to stand above the rest.

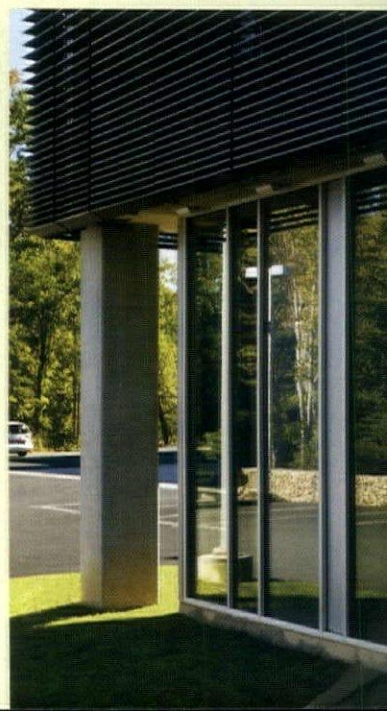

2008 Design Awards

Massie Road Central Plant

The Charlottesville firm VMDO celebrates the functional aspects of architecture at the University of Virginia's Massie Road Central Plant. Like a Charles Sheeler scene, the project's industrial forms announce their purpose and define an important part of campus life. "This project celebrates function in ways that other projects do not," noted the jury, which could not resist calling it "the machine in the garden" as technology and industry exists where our rural and urban environments intersect. In the heart of the school's North Grounds extension, the jury felt that this machine was an elegant nod to its unique role for a modern, if relatively rural, school.

Location: Charlottesville, Virginia

Design: VMDO Architects

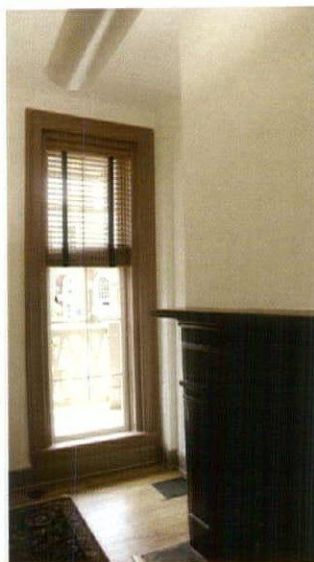

Owners: Rector and Board of Visitors, University of Virginia

General Contractor: Barton Mallow Company

Photographers: Virginia Hamrick and Steve Davis

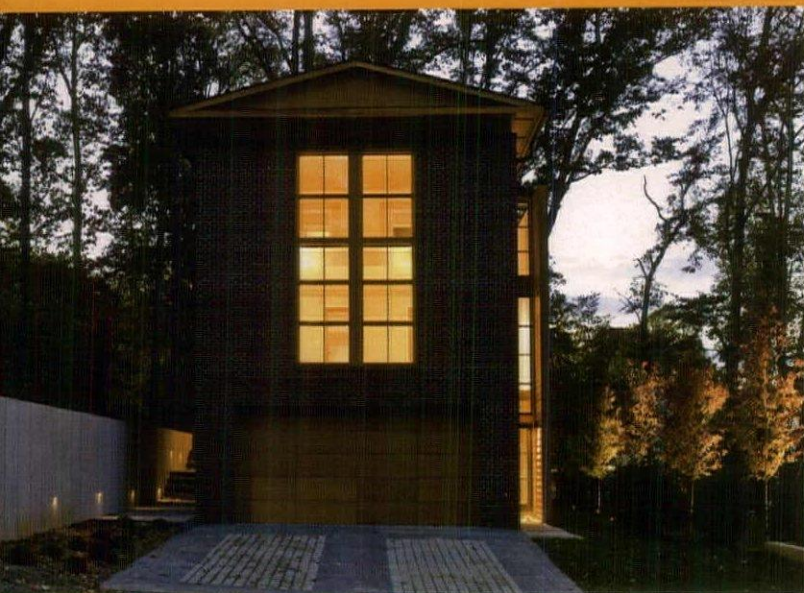

Varsity Hall

Another Charlottesville project to win accolades was Train & Partners' Varsity Hall for the University of Virginia. Researched, relocated, reappointed, and restored—this William Pratt building from 1858 is believed to be the nation's first dedicated college infirmary. A robust, Italianate outlier on campus, Varsity Hall is unlike many of the red brick buildings from Jefferson's time and today. "This project is a remarkable commitment to spend the money in order to save money," remarked one juror, which confirms one of the benefits of preservation in any community.

Poplar Terraces

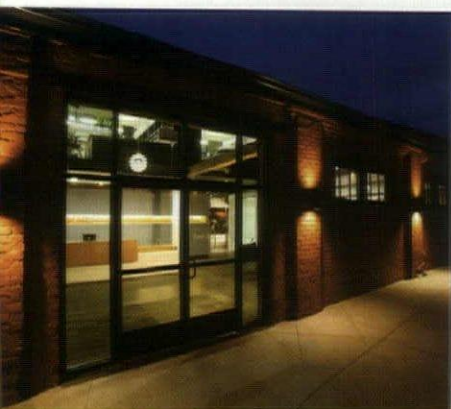

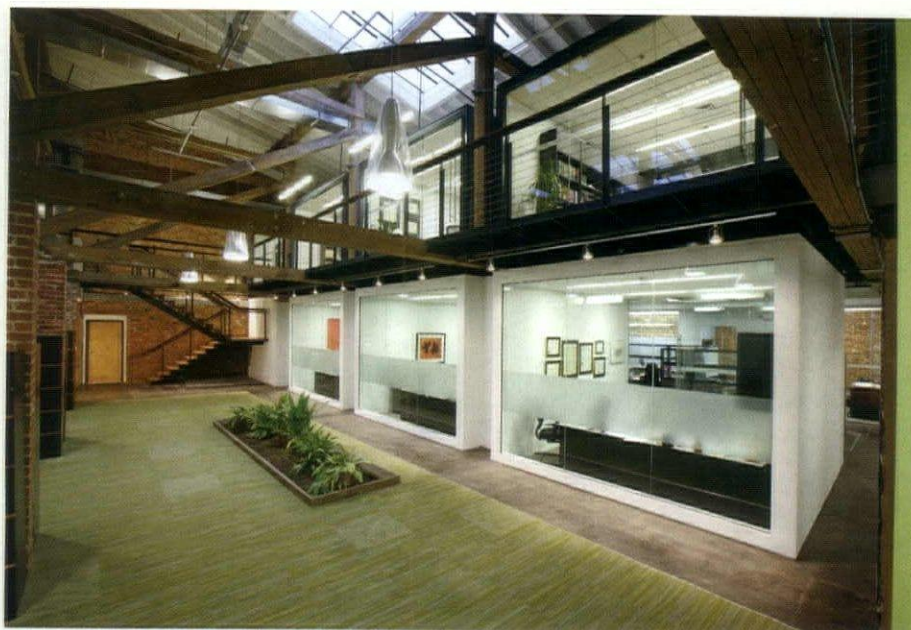

Simple volumes and smart site planning contribute to a sense of rhythm on this small Falls Church site. Giving onto individual yards, the restrained forms of Poplar Terraces by Studio 109, PLC stands as a jury favorite. The project's potential to create community, the jury felt, is a positive response to its Northern Virginia setting. Protected, old-growth Tulip Poplars dot each of the four lots and opportunities are created to reinforce the connection to the landscape. Each home's stairway sits just outside the structure's forms—keeping daylight and those poplars always in sight.

Location: Falls Church, Virginia
Design: Studio 109, PLC
Owner: Herring, LLC
General Contractor: M.T. Puskar Construction
Photographer: Jim Rounsevell

Kaplan Law Offices

Demonstrating material tension was SMBW's law offices for Gregory Kaplan in Richmond. The project represents a successful partnership between timber trusses, modular pod construction, and industrial catwalks in a brick envelope. As the bones of the building are celebrated along side a sleek, more finished use of steel and glass, it is clear that old and new were seen as complementary—not competing—ideas, according to the jury.

Location: Richmond, Virginia
Design: SMBW Architects, P.C.
Owner: Gregory Kaplan
General Contractor: Capstone Contracting

15

Old Frederick County Courthouse

Preservation fundamentals were at work in Reader & Swartz's Old Frederick County Courthouse. Built in 1840, this building has served legislative, military, academic, and administrative functions over the course of its lifetime. Now, the building has a new life as a teaching tool about architecture and memory. Everything about this renovation is, as one juror noted, "an invitation to understand the building."

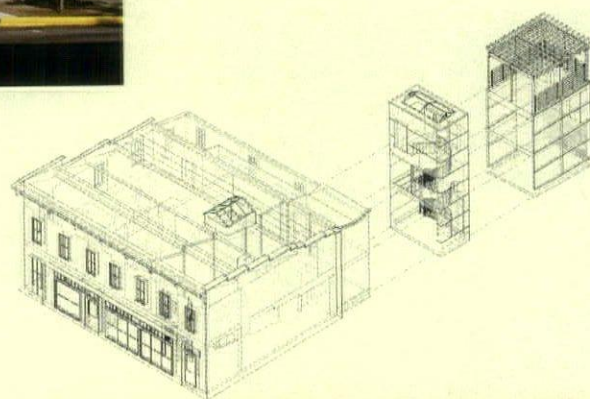

Location: Winchester, Virginia
Design/Restoration: Reader & Swartz Architects, P.C.
Owner: Frederick County, Virginia
General Contractor: Lantz Construction Company of Winchester, Inc.
Photographer: Ron Blunt Photography

City Meat Building

Of all the preservation projects reviewed by the jury, Reader and Swartz Architects' City Meat Building had the most joie de vivre, according to one juror. In addition to its strong evidence of research, the architects demonstrated their knowledge of historic structures and the need for clarity in a renovation. From a turn of the century butchery to a modern office suite, the project's use of color and super-graphics is a playful and welcome sight.

Location: Winchester, Virginia
Design/Restoration: Reader & Swartz Architects, P.C.
Owner: City Meat Properties, LLC
General Contractor: M.T. Puskar Construction Co., Inc.

House on Hooper's Island

Architecture can stand alone, but it can also represent the diversity in the environment around it. Recognized nationally, David Jameson Architects' House on Hooper's Island sits at an ecological crossroads next to a wildlife refuge, a marsh, a pine forest, and a river. It serves a diverse set of uses, too. Depending on the season and the number of visitors, various parts of the program can be expanded into four independent structures: a master cabin, guest cabin, lodge, and studio. Where as the project feels relaxed, it is never undisciplined. Jameson's attention to detail and emphasis on the extraordinary experiences that architecture can create make this project stand out.

Location: Church Creek, Maryland
Design: David Jameson Architect
General Contractor: CJ+E
Photographer: Paul Warchol Photography

Black White House

The language of Modern architecture can be rich even if its forms are sometimes spare. Solids and voids, public and private spaces, prospect and refuge are all opposed ideas that shape Black White House by the office of David Jameson. In this project, a set of towers on the outside collect light for the living spaces inside, which in turn connect the towers. This relationship between volume and form led the jury to agree that Black White House is a strong project for both its coherence and the tension that all those opposed ideas create.

I. Gorman Jewelers

The acts of crafting jewelry and creating interior spaces share an attention to detail and an understanding of how people move. Timeless and original, inviting and challenging, Hickok Cole's I. Gorman Jewelers draws you in and treats each piece of jewelry as a piece of art. A new entry gives visitors a clue as to what they will discover inside: clean lines, a comprehensive design campaign and a real attention to materials in service of the jewelry itself.

Residence 1418

Openness was at the heart of Washington, D.C.'s Residence 1418 from the office of Robert Gurney. Jurors noted the project's crispness and attention to detail, which is never lacking in this firm's work. Simplicity and a total design concept connected the spaces and, according to one juror, meant that "it all works together at the end of the day." The relationship between light and surfaces, the use of refined materials, and an attention to proportion made this home stand out.

Richard B. Russell Federal Building

Gensler's new entrance for the Richard B. Russell Federal Building in the heart of Atlanta is an innovative strategy to enliven a straightforward office building. This sculptural approach refreshes all of the public spaces and accommodates more stringent security requirements. Jurors found the relationship between the lighted dome, the entrance pavilion, and the Modernist tower behind intriguing as "they just work well together," even if they stand apart from each other.

Location: Atlanta, Georgia

Design: Gensler, Washington, D.C.

General Contractor: Holder Construction

Photographer: Prakash Patel

Five Brothers Condominium

Another total design concept recognized by the jury was Geier Brown Renfrow's Five Brothers Condominium in Silver Spring. The jury agreed that it was an inventive project for its use of materials and circulation. "How do you spell relief for two busy parents of three," the project brief asks? Through a series of workable, smart spaces where nothing was left to waste, responded the jury.

Fort Pickett Officer's Club

Like so many military structures that lingered past their intended lifetime, the former Fort Pickett Officer's Club became unrecognizable because of poorly planned remodeling. The Charlottesville firm DASA, PLC reinterpreted the structure for a new use by stripping it down to its original appearance and jurors felt that this project was simple and well done. As a community resource, "it's great that the community stepped-up to preserve the building in such a straightforward way. It's an intervention that ought to be celebrated."

Design/Restoration: DASA, PLC

Sugarloaf Mountain Vineyard

Light is at the center of Cunningham Quill's Sugarloaf Mountain Vineyard in Dickerson, Maryland. Winemaking as a "transparent process" drove the first phase of this project, which called for a production facility in glass and steel—with a nod to vernacular architecture in the area. "This project goes a long way," remarked one juror, "by taking a simple approach." While winemaking will be the main attraction for visitors standing on the project's forecourt, the architecture reveals subtle clues about its own making if you look deeper.

Fifeville Hybrid Housing

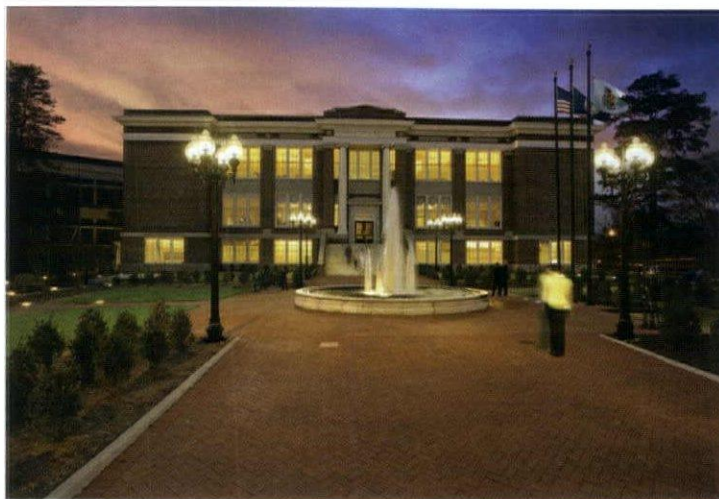

Community Planning and Design's proposed project Fifeville Hybrid Housing combines elegance with a sense of purpose. As development slices through cities and towns, it can destroy communities, but it can also create new opportunities. The main idea in this unbuilt project is to establish a sense of place in the Fifeville neighborhood of Charlottesville. Commissioned by Piedmont Housing Alliance, this project seeks to establish a model for low-income communities in other small cities in the United States. Unlike the monolithic apartment tower, however, Fifeville Hybrid Housing seeks to bring people out of their homes into communal spaces and bring light into the block to create a place for people to gather. "A good courtyard and good density," remarked one juror "is how projects like this succeed."

Suffolk High School

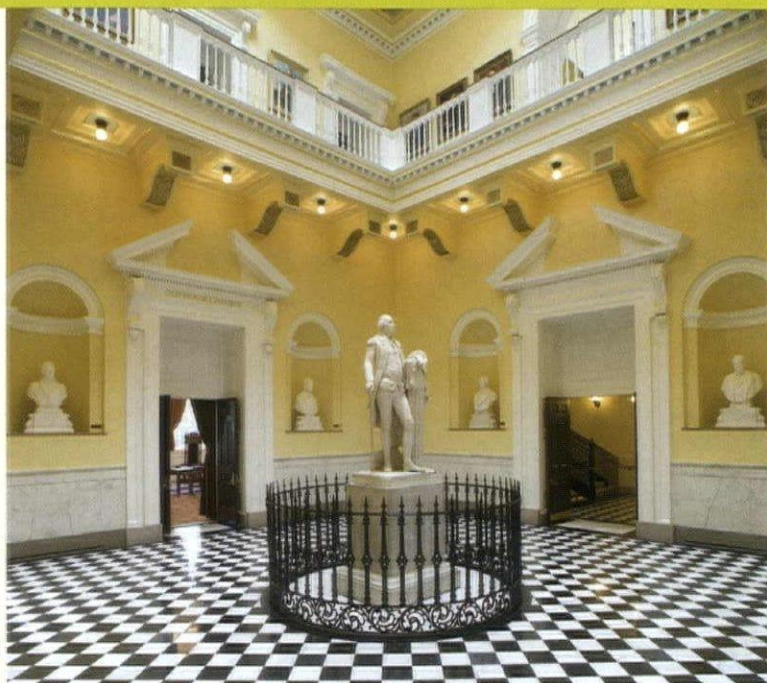

"They kept the spaces as well as the details—and they went to lengths to do so," noted one juror about CMSS Architects' Suffolk Center for the Cultural Arts. The project brings the former Suffolk High School up to code and up to speed with the needs of an active community. Everything that could have been reused was and evidence of its former life still exists in little things, like the dulled stair treads, railings, and the gymnasium floor. Details add up and lend integrity to the process of renovating one of Suffolk's most important assets.

Virginia State Capitol

RMJM Hillier and BCWH Architects' Virginia State Capitol restoration demonstrated three important tasks of historic preservation: methodical research, an emphasis on context, and a recovery of the building's original identity. The original building by Thomas Jefferson and Charles-Louis Clérissieu represented statehood, order, and governance in the Commonwealth. Architecturally, the original building aspired to the proportions and precision of the Roman Maison Carrée in Nîmes, France, which was an important influence on Jefferson. As it was in 1792, when the General Assembly met there for the first time, the building is innovative once again. Modern visitor amenities now reside under Shockoe Hill and the historic interior was restored with the latest material and technological applications.

Known for his modesty, dedication to the profession, and service to the community, Jack Rinehart's record spans several decades and includes collaboration with many previous Noland Medalists.

M. Jack Rinehart, Jr., FAIA

Jack Reinhart's office lies nestled in the trees on a hill just outside Charlottesville. On approach, his access drive doubles back gently, climbing along the contour and arriving in a gracious, leafy court serving separate entries to his house and studio. The atmosphere is distinctly tranquil—a pair of binoculars sits with a bird watching guide near one large window in his studio—but unmistakable signs of a prolific and enduring architectural practice also abound. Study models line the walls. Neatly labeled working drawings hang from racks in orderly rows. Handmade perspectives, plan sketches and detail studies show projects in various stages of development. Everywhere one sees evidence of a sensibility borne of patience and keen observation.

Among the many items covering his studio walls, a handsome flyer catches my eye. Dating from 1982, it's a handmade announcement for a lecture at the University of Virginia by landscape architect Dan Kiley, a few simple lines of text combined with an elegant pencil drawing of a building at the edge of a carefully composed, asymmetrical landscape. Its presence on the wall of Jack's studio after all these years resonates for a number of reasons. For one thing, the drawing technique and design sensibility in the flyer reveal insight into Jack's own. He draws his projects and builds his study models by hand—when he needs computer-generated working drawings, he says, he contracts with others; there are no computers in the studio. The most ubiquitous drawing format on display is an aerial view, typically showing an arrangement of buildings composed within a larger landscape. In Jack Reinhart's worldview, the detail and the big picture both matter.

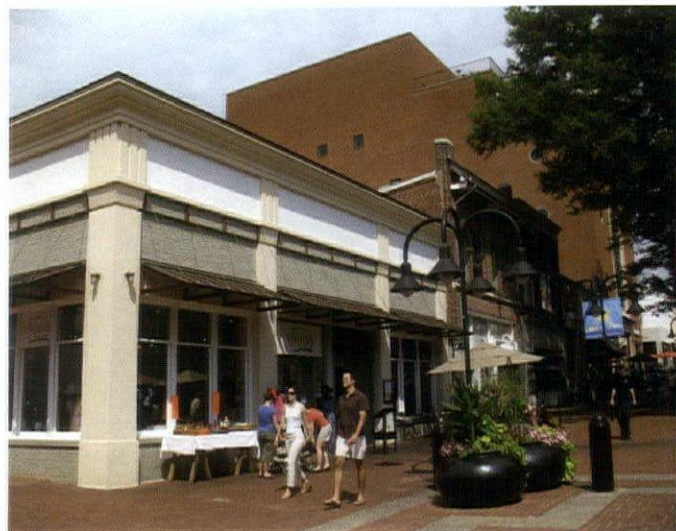

Rinehart has been involved in more than 20 projects and studies within a four-block radius of the Downtown Mall in Charlottesville.

The Dan Kiley flyer also serves as a reminder that Jack's alma mater is the University of Virginia, which he attended first for a degree in the School of Commerce, then again several years later when he returned to earn a five year architecture degree. One senses in Jack a genuine fondness for and loyalty to people and places from his past. His library, for example, contains a whole section on vernacular and historic Virginia architecture, with titles like Springtime in Virginia, Eric Sloane's An Age of Barns, and a book on Virginia's hot springs.

Finally, the flyer's spare, elegant presentation and economy of delivery projects a modesty one can't help comparing with Jack's own. Letters of recommendation, written for Jack by past winners of the Noland award, are filled with descriptors like, "...scrupulously ethical...", "...unselfish in the extreme...", "...a man imbued with the quality of humaneness..." One recommender wrote, "His modesty is legendary." Another put it this way: "Jack has always accomplished his life's work with grace and the highest degree of energy." Asked to describe aspects of his career he'd like to see reflected in this article, he talks instead of his respect for past winners and influential mentors to whom he feels grateful.

But the fact is his ongoing professional work and longstanding commitments to service represent an enduring legacy. Jack's practice, founded in 1969, has earned more than a dozen design awards to date, including AIA recognition at the chapter, state, and regional level. He has been involved in more than 20 projects and studies within a four-block radius of the Downtown Mall, reflecting his longstanding passion for preserving the city's urban fabric and vitality. He served as a Member of the Board, and later as Vice President of Downtown Charlottesville, Inc., as a Member and Chair of the Downtown Board of Architectural Review, as a Member of the Albemarle County Planning Commission, a Founding Member of the Albemarle County Rotary Club, a Member of the Board of Trustees for St. Anne's-Belfield School, Member of the Piedmont Environmental Council, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Board of Directors for SunTrust Bank (formerly United Virginia Bank) and much more.

Jack's decades of professional service within the Virginia Society AIA also reverberate today. Bill Atwood, who nominated Jack for the William C. Noland medal, credits his involvement with Virginia Record magazine for changes in content and delivery that paved the way for today's Inform. Atwood traces the evolution of Architecture Exchange East to changes in meeting structure and funding made during Jack's tenure as Chairman of the Programs Committee. And finally, his nomination links Architecture Week to a seminal exhibition of work by local architects at Charlottesville's Second Street Gallery and the McGuffey Art Center—an event “...initiated, developed and co-chaired,” by Jack Reinhart.

Rinehart's mark can be found on many of the Virginia Society AIA's current programs including Inform Magazine and Architecture Exchange East.

Leaving Jack's studio after our interview, winding back down the hill, it struck me that this year's William C. Noland Medalist is the kind of person everyone loves to see recognized—someone motivated not by love of recognition, but by love for the work itself. Theodore Roosevelt wrote, “Far and away the best prize life has to offer is the chance to work hard at work worth doing.” I think Jack would agree.

T. David Fitz-Gibbon Architecture Firm Award

As the highest honor bestowed by the Virginia Society to a Virginia-based architecture firm, the Fitz-Gibbon Architecture Firm Award recognizes a firm that has consistently produced distinguished architecture for at least ten years.

BCWH Architecture, Interiors, Planning

During its twenty-two years, BCWH has worked on a variety of award-winning projects including schools, non-profit facilities, courthouses, recreational facilities, private residences, and college and university facilities. The firm has been recognized with awards at the local, state, national and international levels.

The principals have created a culture of community service — from encouraging staff participation in high-school Career Days and volunteer service at non-profits, to assuming leadership positions on boards and serving on the Richmond City Planning Commission. The firm is also vigorously committed to professional development and has created an hierarchy-free model of operation.

In addition to incorporating sustainable design principles into all of their projects, the firm has created an in-house educational series on the topic that is open to clients, consultants, and other architectural firms. Members of the firm's staff helped co-found the James River Green Building Council and consistently work with clients to find ways to minimize the adverse impact a building and its operations may have on the environment.

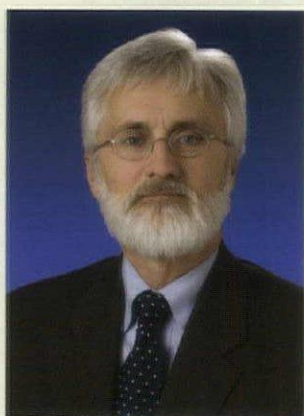

Architecture critic Edwin Slipek, Jr. says, "Their works show a respect for the past, but are built for the future." The firm principals are Robert E. Comet, Jr., AIA, LEED^{AP}, Roger D. Richardson, AIA, REFP, Charles W. Wray, Jr., AIA and Charles D. Piper, AIA, REFP, LEED^{AP}.

Distinguished Achievement Award

Robert S. Mills, AIA, CID

Mills, a founder of Commonwealth Architects, has actively promoted pedestrian-scaled, mixed-use urban architecture and adaptive reuse. In his years of service as chair of the City of Richmond's Commission of Architecture Review, the Virginia Commonwealth University Architectural Review Committee, the City Planning Commission and Urban Design Committee, he has worked tirelessly towards creating livable communities and updating the city's Downtown Master Plan. Virginia Governor, the Honorable Tim Kaine, Hon. VSAIA, says, "Bob has helped make Virginia a leader in the use of historic investment tax credits and in the revitalization of our urban cores... His work has helped save elements of Richmond's architectural legacy that surely would have been lost otherwise."

Donald L. Strange-Boston, AIA, PE

Strange-Boston, a registered architect since 1961 and a registered engineer since 1963, was the innovative pioneer of several structural systems and the first large-scale solar shutter operating system — for which he holds the patent. His dedicated work to strengthen registration laws, corporate law applicable to architecture firms, the State Construction Manual, the Statewide Building Code and the QBS process is a testament to his commitment to the profession. He has served on the Building Code Appeals Board in Henrico since 1975. Additionally, he has served as president of his local Chapter and the Virginia Society, and as chair of the AIA Mid-Atlantic Region Council. As chair of the Society's Government and Industry Affairs Committee since 1997, he has aggressively worked to ensure that the voice of the architect is heard by government decision-makers.

Society Honors

Samuel W. Daniel

During his thirty-year career, Daniel, Chief Executive of Daniel & Company, Inc., has developed a reputation for being a distinguished, responsible force in the construction industry. Known as an excellent collaborator, he has been called the “architect’s ideal contractor.” Especially noted for his sensitive work on historic structures, Daniel and his firm have been involved in the restoration of Virginia’s Executive Mansion, as well as work on the Virginia Supreme Court, William & Mary President’s House, Jamestown Archaearium, Charlottesville’s Downtown Transit Center, the Chrysler Museum, and the Henrico Theater.

Charles W. Yeager, Jr.

Yeager, a Richmond-based artisan and metal-worker, executes architectural commissions in metal. In residential commissions for firms such as W.G. Clark Associates Architects and SMBW Architects, his work has included decorative screens and scrims, counters, stair carriages and handrails, hardware, fittings and furniture pieces. His residential landscape pieces have been featured in Elle Décor magazine. Public commissions include sculptural pieces for Salem Mausoleum and the UNOS Organ Donor Memorial. He has been called “an artisan upon whose work architecture depends.”

Honorary Membership

Tom Crane

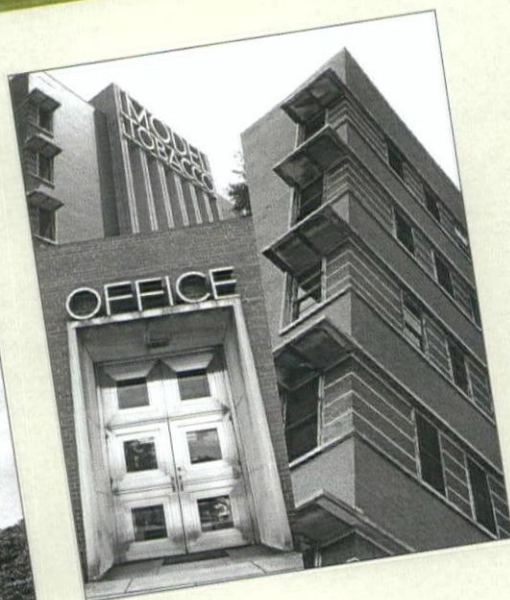

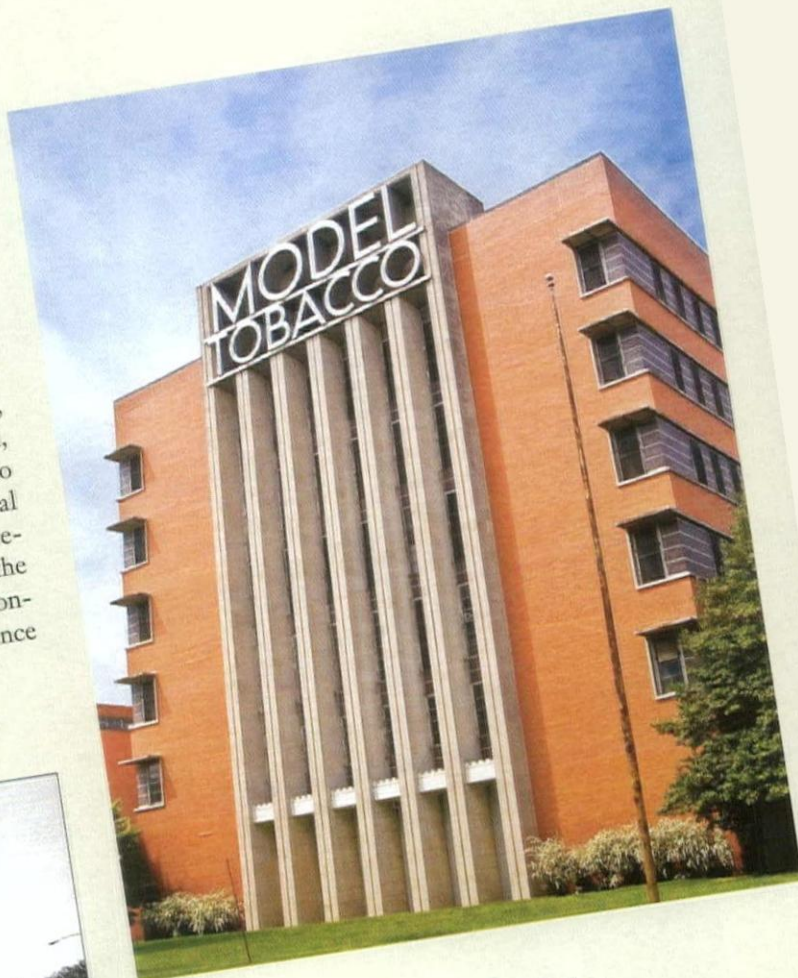

The Honorable Susan Clarke Schaar, Clerk of the Senate of Virginia and The Honorable Bruce F. Jamerson, Clerk of the House of Delegates

Both Schaar and Jamerson were founding members of the Capitol Square Preservation Council which undertook the development of a master plan for the historic Capitol Square — home to significant cultural and political events for more than two centuries. Both served on the Executive Building Committee and were instrumental in the efforts to preserve and renovate the Virginia State Capitol. They have exhibited an ongoing commitment to preserving the exceptional history and architecture of one of Virginia's most significant structures. Even after the successful renovation and expansion project was complete, they continue to raise funds for the Virginia Capitol Foundation in order to maintain the building and provide educational programming for future generations.

he Test of Time Award

Model Tobacco Building

Shortly after its construction the Model Tobacco Building was prominently featured in the 1941 issue of Architectural Record. Since then, it has repeatedly appeared on lists of Virginia's most architecturally significant buildings; from Williams and O'Neil's 1958 list The Old Dominion's Twelve Best Buildings to a 2001 poll of Virginia's 75 most significant buildings. Long considered a Richmond landmark, the dramatic Model Tobacco sign, with its nine-foot-tall, stainless-steel letters, furnishes an air of sophistication to a building which has been called a "triumph of industrial design." The Art-Deco influenced structure is a refined reminder of the importance of tobacco in the region and the building's horizontal ribbon of windows is an elegant contrast to the vertical orientation of its iconic sign, entrance and gateposts.

How to Use This

Directory

FIRST

If you are trying to locate architects in a particular area, but don't know the firm by name, look in the index that begins on page 63. That is organized by city and town.

SECOND

If you know the name of the firm you are trying to locate, simply thumb through the following pages and find the name listed alphabetically in the directory.

THIRD

Here's what you will find under the firm listing.

● Name, address, and phone number.

● Principals and firm personnel

If you want to talk about a possible commission, ask for the person listed as "client contact." If you want to talk to the firm about using a new product or service, ask for the person listed as "vendor contact." In smaller firms, these contacts will be the same person.

● Principal areas of practice

While architects pride themselves on being generalists, many firms develop particular strengths over the years. This listing includes the four most important areas of a firm's practice, though other project types aren't necessarily excluded from the range of work a firm is qualified to do.

● Recent projects

We have limited each firm to naming no more than five of their recent completed buildings. Take note: Many of the buildings may have been recognized for design excellence or other attributes. If you are considering hiring this firm, go take a look at some of the buildings first and ask the building owners about their level of satisfaction with the results.

LAST

A few words about this directory. Contained here are the architecture firms that have a member of the Virginia Society AIA as a principal. There may be other principals and employees at the firm whose names are not listed. The information published here is provided by the firms and we assume it to be accurate, but you may wish to verify data on a particular firm by calling directly to inquire. The companies listed have chosen to support the VSAIA and the building/design community through their paid participation in these directories. To list your company, please contact Cathy Guske at 804-644-3041, ext. 301, cguske@aiaa.org.

CONCRETE

■ Essroc Italcementi Group

3251 Bath Pike
Nazareth, PA 18067
Tel: 610-837-3713
Fax: 610-837-2563
Email: dan.schaffer@essroc.com
Web: www.txactive.us
Contact: Dan Schaffer

Essroc Italcementi Group, a leading producer of cement products, is the first manufacturer of photocatalytic cement within the United States. Otherwise known as TX Active, a photocatalytic cement will give concrete self-cleaning and pollution reducing abilities. The technology will resist the build-up of atmospheric compounds that tend to discolor concrete over time. More importantly, TX Active will absorb and reduce primary pollutants harmful to human health and the environment. Essroc Italcementi Group research teams were compelled to develop this breakthrough technology as a way to abate the ever-increasing air pollution affecting urban areas, to keep structures more aesthetically pleasing with less exterior maintenance and to contribute to a better quality of life.

EXTERIOR INSULATION SYSTEMS (EIFS)

■ Virginia Stucco Corp.

2716 Sonic Dr., Ste. 101
Virginia Beach, VA 23453
Tel: 757-468-2266
Fax: 757-468-3212
Email: curtiss@vastucco.com
Web: www.vastucco.com
Contact: Curtiss Woodruff

Virginia Stucco has been an installer of Exterior Insulation Finishing Systems (EIFS) Stucco for 20 years. Although most EIFS is specified to achieve a certain aesthetic look, the hidden benefits of EIFS is the thermal protection it provides to a structure, by placing the insulation of the building on the outside of the structure walls, the heating and cooling systems work less to meet interior comfort. When the structure is insulated on the outside, the inner structure does not have to combat the exterior temperatures, thus reducing mechanical requirements and monthly utility costs.

OUR SHEAR BRACE IS DESIGNED TO FACE HIGH WINDS, EARTHQUAKES AND A GUY WITH A CLIPBOARD.

iLevel® Shear Brace

Meeting wall bracing code and the architectural requirements of your home is no easy task. Our Shear Brace is 2006 IBC/IRC code evaluated solution, which helps reduce the risk of red tags and delays. It installs fast, and can be trimmed and drilled in the field. It's ideal in both high wind and seismically active areas, and available in 12", 18", and 24" widths. To learn more about the iLevel Shear Brace, or our entire Wall Bracing family of products, visit iLevel.com or call 1.888.iLevel8 (1.888.453.8353).
