BRINGING WIRELESS INDOORS

Today's fast paced wireless world demands our devices and services work, anywhere.

To some, "wireless" means Wi-Fi enabled laptops, but it's more than that. We rely on mobile and smart phones, BlackBerry devices, PDAs, and two-way radios to communicate, and we need them to work, especially indoors. Efficient access to resources that enhance our experience is a must, and Vision Technologies can design, install and maintain a custom Distributed Antenna System (DAS) just for you.

Distributed Antenna Systems

To make wireless work indoors, our in-building DAS wireless system will distribute wireless signals throughout a facility.

1. a signal source (outdoor Cell Tower, BTS, FemtoCell or Bi-Directional Amplifier) provides wireless signal to facility through an antenna or wired landline connection
2. receive and condition signal for distribution throughout facility
3. wireless signal transported via cabling throughout the facility to network of discrete antennas
4. antennas receive and radiate coverage for end users

Regardless of industry, wireless service needs, or the number of buildings that need coverage, Vision Technologies offers a suite of products and services to meet your needs. Call us today to get wireless working indoors for your facility.

Building or renovating a house?
Here's how to find the right

Architect

ARCHITECT:

Formwork Design, LLC

PROJECT:

Kerner Dee House

LOCATION:

Charlottesville, VA

Each architect has an individual style, approach to design, and method of working. So it's important to find an architect who is compatible with your personal style and needs. To help in your search, follow these few steps to success.

Build a list of possibilities. Ask around. Find out who designed projects in your community that you like. Get recommendations from friends, relatives, and acquaintances who have worked with architects. Check to see if the architect is a member of the American Institute of Architects (AIA). Membership in the AIA means that the architect subscribes to a high professional purpose to advance standards of practice and service to society. This includes having a code of ethics and access to a variety of professional and technical resources.

Contact your local AIA chapter. Many have lists of member-owned firms that are interested in doing various types of projects. The most complete statewide list is published in this directory, but you can also search for firms on the internet at www.aia.org.

Call each firm on your list. Describe your project and ask the architects if they are available to accomplish it. If so, request literature that outlines the firm's qualifications and experience. If the office is unable to handle your project, ask if they can recommend another firm.

Interview each firm. Interviewing a firm gives you a chance to meet the people who will design your project and to learn if the chemistry between you is right. You may be working with your architect for a long time, so choose someone with whom you feel comfortable. Allow at least an hour for the interview, preferably at the architect's office where you can see where the work will be done. Some architects charge for the interview, so ask if there is a fee involved with the consultation.

Ask questions. How busy is the firm? Does it have the capacity to take on your work? Who will handle the job? Insist on meeting the person who will actually design your project. What is the firm's design philosophy? Talk about a project budget and the range of fees that the architect would anticipate for your project. Before you select an architect, ask to be taken to at least one completed project. Also ask for references from past clients. These are invaluable. In addition, you might want to obtain an Architect's Qualifications Statement (form B431) from the Virginia Society AIA offices. This standardized document may be used to verify an architect's credentials and other information prior to selecting an architect for a project.

Making the final cut. Unlike buying a new car or new appliance, you can't see the product and test it out. The architect provides a professional service, not a product. The right architect will be the one who can provide the judgment, technical expertise, and creative skills — at a reasonable cost — to help you realize a project that fits your practical needs as well as your dreams.

This brief introduction was excerpted from "Home Delivery," a guide to how an AIA architect can help you realize your dream home. Copies of the publication can be requested by calling the Virginia Society AIA at 804-644-3041.

For the Virginia Society AIA's 2010 Awards for Excellence in Architecture program, a San Francisco jury of architects reviewed 164 projects by Virginia-area firms in the categories of Historic Preservation, Interior Design, and Architecture. The following pages feature the results of that process: 18 winning projects that represent the highest degree of design and building craft throughout the mid-Atlantic region and beyond.

The objective of this annual awards program is to encourage design excellence. All entries are the work of licensed architects who practice in Virginia or are members of the Virginia Society AIA. The location of project entries is not restricted and built works are no older than five years. Unbuilt works were welcomed as long as they were commissioned by a client, as opposed to theoretical or hypothetical works completed in the mode of research or academic training.

The Virginia Society AIA would like to thank the members of the 2010 Award for Excellence in Architecture Jury:

Cunningham | Quill Architects

Mother & Child
Washington, D.C.

A jury favorite, Mother & Child—an addition and restoration project for an 1893 Georgetown house—was about drawing together elements of the property in a coherent way after years of questionable renovations. “The firm clearly restored what they had evidence for and contributed to the house in a sensitive and contextual way,” noted one juror. Proportion, finish, and craft needed to be right and the design team at Cunningham | Quill Architects succeeded in every way.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION

Davis Buckley Architects and Planners

Stephen Decatur House Museum
Washington, D.C.

Designed by Benjamin Henry Latrobe and completed in 1818, the Stephen Decatur House will remain an important architectural landmark in Washington through this careful restoration. Speaking about Davis Buckley Architects' design team, one juror noted, “here, they are uncovering the layers and doing real conservation.” One notable element of the project is a reconstruction of the original kitchen, which had been used as a bedroom, office, and parlor for the last 100 years. The priority to articulate Latrobe's original intentions while preserving as much of the original fabric as possible came through clearly, the jury observed.

Oak Grove Restoration Company, contractor
Dan Redmond, photographer

Glavé & Holmes Architecture

Newcomb Hall Renovation for Washington and Lee University
Lexington, Virginia

Mediating an 1882 academic building and a 1937 addition (listed on the National Register), the Glavé & Holmes design team achieved a “nicely done and detailed, sensitive modernization,” according to members of the jury. Even with across-the-board upgrades and energy-efficient fixtures, Newcomb Hall’s iconic image and historic character remains uncompromised. “It’s nice when you can start with good bones in a restoration,” said one juror, “and this is the strongest university project we’ve seen.”

Kjellstrom & Lee, Inc., contractor
Virginia Hamrick, photographer

Guernsey Tingle Architects

Henrico Theater Renovation and Addition
Highland Springs, Virginia

Given the challenge of converting a cinema to a live performance venue, the jury agreed that the Henrico Theater Renovation and Addition by Guernsey Tingle Architects is a particularly well done renovation in which new and old are easy to discern. Listed on the National Register, the 1938 Henrico Theater required a general upgrade that included a larger lobby and prefunction spaces. But, painstaking attention to detail in the Art Deco landmark’s restoration, jurors observed, defines the rebirth of an important, historic community anchor.

Daniel & Company, Inc., contractor

Gensler, Baltimore

Gensler Baltimore Office
Baltimore, Maryland

As a typology, office space can seem limiting. Gensler Baltimore's unique site, strong creative culture, and commitment to sustainability allowed Gensler's design team the flexibility to re-imagine not only a modern work environment, but a new home. As a showcase, the project's regionally-reclaimed materials and energy-saving systems helped set the bar higher for clients and other design firms. "It definitely passes the 'I'd love to work there' test," agreed all members of the jury

Gensler, Washington, D.C.

Cassidy Turley
Washington, D.C.

"Exquisite detailing and elegant solutions," noted one juror, define this office space for the Washington real estate firm Cassidy Turley by Gensler (Washington, D.C.). Black reveals, sustainably-harvested wood, and a flexible set of spaces enhance the workday for a range of users. "If there's an award for beauty," said another juror, "they'd get it for this project's public spaces."

Rand Construction Corporation, contractor
Benny Chan, photographer

David Jameson Architect

Record House Revisited
Owings Mills, Maryland

Forty years after this house appeared in Architectural Record as a notable design, its interior has been gracefully transformed by David Jameson without compromising the building's character. Walnut casework defines the new elements and a native truss roof system allowed interior walls to be removed. The effect is an open and warm series of spaces. "It's immaculate," noted one juror, "and the purity and simplicity of the added elements do not detract from this Record House at all."

The Ley Group, contractor
Paul Warchol, photographer

18

Gensler, Washington, D.C.

Smithsonian Institution Collections and Support Center
Landover, Maryland

The task of bringing together no less than five Smithsonian divisions under budget and within a timeframe presented enormous challenges. The design team at Gensler (Washington, D.C.) is commended for creating a clear, orderly, and humane environment to achieve its larger logistical goals for the Smithsonian Institution Collections and Support Center. "Design is more than the fixed image of a client," noted one juror who observed that this project reflects the true nature of a dynamic and important cultural institution.

Ayers Saint Gross Architects and Planners

Thomas Jefferson Visitor's Center and Smith Education Center
 Charlottesville, Virginia

Designed to welcome nearly half-a-million Monticello visitors a year, the Thomas Jefferson Visitor's Center and Smith Education Center by Ayers Saint Gross consists of a series of pavilions arranged on three levels above a challenging hillside site. "The landscaping and spaces between buildings are as strong as the buildings themselves," noted one juror. Locally-sourced materials, recycled materials, and green roofs define the project, which draws out Jefferson's interests in environmental stewardship.

Robert M. Gurney, FAIA, Architect

Lujan House
 Ocean View, Delaware

Organized around a central garden, Robert M. Gurney's Lujan House modestly contributes to a neighborhood of larger, boom-time homes. Simple materials like concrete and oak for the floors, plastic laminate, and oak millwork are rendered elegantly and without pretense throughout the house. "It's a skillfully done project," noted one juror, "plain and simple and it raises the bar for the entire neighborhood."

Hopkins Architects and Hanbury Evans Wright Vlattas + Company

McMurtry and Duncan Colleges for Rice University
Houston, Texas

To the historic Cram, Goodhue, and Ferguson campus, Hopkins Architects and Hanbury Evans Wright Vlattas added seven buildings to Rice University, including McMurtry and Duncan Colleges. "It's a place of respite in the Houston heat," observed one juror of the dining hall's central space, "and their strategy to link quads and pavilions is a good one" to address the campus plan's legacy.

Crystal Plaza 2
Arlington, Virginia

Starting with an outmoded 1970s office building, the design team at HOK with Dorsky Hodgson Parrish Yue Architects partially adapted Crystal Plaza 2 in this 20-story residential tower for Arlington's fast-growing Crystal City neighborhood. A high-performance curtain wall will improve solar shading, energy efficiency, and reduce ambient sound from a busy commercial and industrial corridor. "It's commendable and there are some really smart things about this project," noted one juror. Among them is the design team's effort to integrate the building's Metro connection, street-level retail, and an unimposing approach for pedestrians.

Luck Stone Corporate Headquarters
Manakin Sabot, Virginia

Occupying the brow of a hill and overlooking the Boscobel Quarry below, Luck Stone's 85,000 square-foot headquarters by SMBW balances high design with a focus on site and context. A generous array of team work spaces and an airy work environment anchor an innovative plan. "The rambling, Wrightean plan is done well," said one juror, "and yet it's a tightly focused concept that's consistent with the client's intentions."

Rick Mather + SMBW Architects, P.C.

Virginia Museum of Fine Arts Expansion
Richmond, Virginia

Rick Mather and SMBW's 100,000 square-foot McGlothlin Wing for the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts is a bold stroke of confidence for the 74-year old institution. New galleries, gift shop, lecture hall, offices, and conservation facilities will ensure the museum's continued success into the 21st century. Creating a connection from the Boulevard to the museum's inner campus, the elegantly sculpted atrium serves as the museum's—and Richmond's—newest grand public space.

New York Law School
New York, New York

Among the things this design team at Smith Group did well, observed the jury, is create a sense of transparency for the New York Law School project in Manhattan's Tribeca neighborhood. "It was skillfully done," noted one juror, "and transparency is obviously to the advantage of the building's users." Academic engagement here is about the core academic program as much as it is about the city beyond. Nine stories contain all of the necessary functions of a contemporary school program and the firm's focus on clarity, visibility, and community is expressed throughout the building's 200,000 square-feet.

Train & Partners Architects

Inger and Walter L. Rice Education Building
Charles City County, Virginia

As a field station for Virginia Commonwealth University, the Inger and Walter L. Rice Education Building occupies part of a 343-acre site on the James River. Commending Train & Partners' site plan, members of the jury were impressed with the education building's grace and engagement with the landscape. Phase one of the project includes offices, classrooms and laboratories, and a multi-purpose room for events and meetings, all of which will one day overlook restored tidal wetlands. Phase two will ultimately include additional offices and laboratories and unify the entire site with naturally-weathered wood and abundant glazing.

VMDO Architects, P.C.

Jefferson Fellows Center
Charlottesville, Virginia

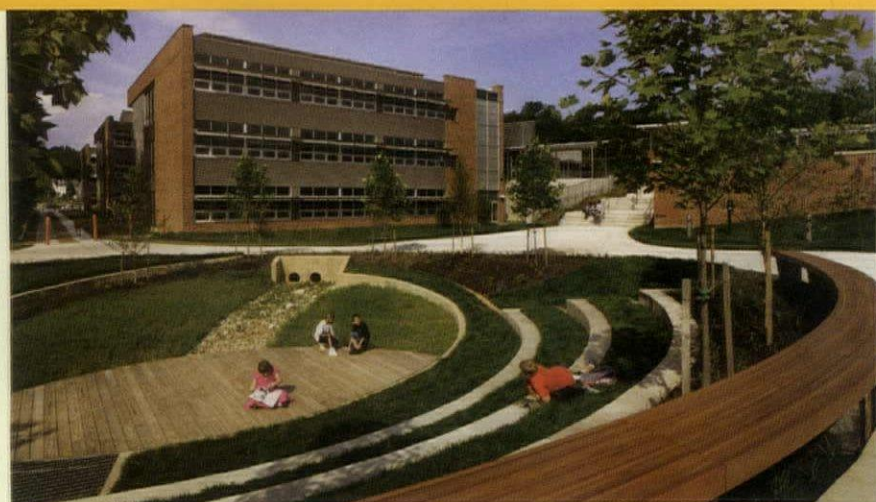

Citing an outward sense of permanence and grounding on the site, the jury commended the design team at VMDO for both the architecture and landscape design at the Jefferson Fellows Center. "The public spaces are nicely done," noted one juror and, in concert with the building itself, the outdoor areas are integrated to form a small campus identity. Bluestone paving, soapstone columns, local slate shingles, bio-retention swales and native plants help sustain a project that is sensitive to its Charlottesville context and the local ecology.

VMDO Architects, P.C.

Manassas Park Elementary School
Manassas Park, Virginia

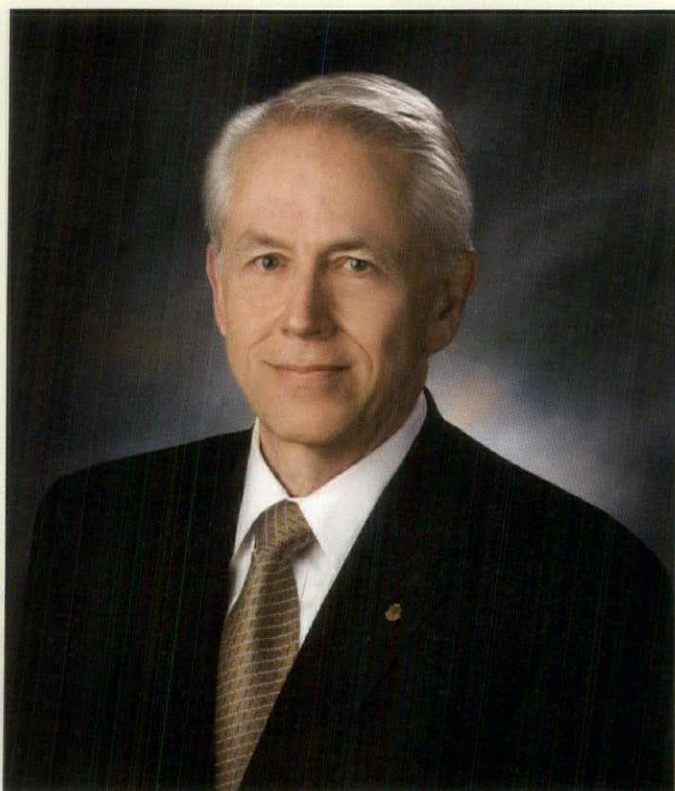

Everything is a teaching moment at VMDO's Manassas Park Elementary School, from the classroom to the courtyards. Aiming to meet the 2030 challenge, the design team created a low-impact building within a landscape that reinforces a curricular focus on the environment. A bio-retention area that doubles as an amphitheater, a rainwater cistern that doubles as a classroom, and a building that uses 50% less energy than a typical code-compliant school contributes to the project's focus on context and ecological awareness. This is a different kind of school, the jurors noted, that will serve as a model for the next generation of school buildings.

Peyton Boyd, FAIA

William Churchill Noland became a prominent figure in Virginia architecture after a Grand Tour in 1895, establishing his practice in Richmond, joining with four colleagues to establish the Virginia chapter of the American Institute of Architects in 1914, becoming the first AIA Fellow from Virginia as well as its first licensed architect. His legacy is inextricably tied to Virginia's Capitol city, yet it was briefly working in New York City and Philadelphia that inspired him to create a more cohesive design culture—one that uses architecture to engage both local and international communities.

Architect Peyton Boyd, FAIA, who explains his approach as, “investing as much into your community as you invest in your practice,” has been described by his colleagues as someone who is bringing an understanding of design excellence to Southwest Virginia, just as Noland did for Richmond. For his devotion to accomplished service, Boyd received Noland’s namesake award—the William C. Noland Medal—at the annual Visions for Architecture gala in November 2010.

Though Boyd has gained national acclaim, most recently as a Fellow of the AIA and as Virginia’s champion for the AIA’s 150th anniversary (AIA150), his work is centered in his hometown, Bristol, Va., and his adopted home, Abingdon, Va. Beyond typical architectural practice, Boyd’s interests in art, classical music, gardening, and community involvement have shaped his varied career.

“What I’m able to do is a synthesis of my life and my education,” explains Boyd. A graduate of the University of Virginia’s School of Architecture, Boyd noted that the architecture program of the 1960s was not as cross-disciplinary as he envisioned, so he self-taught and benefitted from a few influential older mentors in fostering these interests. “In my teens, I developed an interest in classical music and art. It was like this fantasy of being exposed to this wealth of knowledge, and I was living it." Upon graduating, Boyd took a Grand Tour through Europe, brought those lessons back to Abingdon, and, in time, opened his own practice, Peyton Boyd Architect.

Boyd's knack for self-teaching extends to the numerous ground-up efforts he helped create in Abingdon and Bristol. A nominator for the award noted, "Boyd has distinguished himself beyond the bounds of customary architectural practice. That he [practices] outside of the urban centers, where much architectural activity takes place, is a testimony to what a single person can do who dedicates himself to advocating the value of good design, wherever he is."

Boyd's career is even dotted with forays into fine art. "Architecture is nothing without the other arts," he explains. "That's the best of civilization, whether it's the written word, or the painted brush stroke—it's all related." In the early 1980s, a group of volunteers converted a condemned high school in Abingdon to create the William King Regional Arts Center (now the William King Museum). Boyd designed its graphic identity, which is still in use today, helped assemble a staff, and, later, curated a traveling architectural exhibition, Frank Lloyd Wright: Architect for America.

At the Virginia Center for Architecture, Boyd is the Chair of the Programs Committee. He recently launched an exhibition called Livable Communities for Virginia in honor of AIA150. To establish a state-wide understanding of responsible development, the exhibition explores the AIA's 10 Principles for Livable Communities, and is supplemented by SOL-correlated lesson plans and student materials. The main theme of the exhibition—that "communities recognize their own unique identity," and grow from that—can be seen in his achievements in Abingdon and Bristol.

In Abingdon, Boyd recognized its historic fabric as unique, and as a member of the Board of Architectural Review, he re-surveyed historic properties and later applied for Certified Local Government Status under the Virginia Department of Historic Resources. Boyd admits, "Abingdon is a long way from doing what Europeans do. They're prepared to have a glass box placed next to a historic building. So I've accepted that you follow the Secretary of the Interior's standards. Even if a project is not in an historic district, I try to approach it as if it were."

After implementing these standards in Abingdon, he focused his attention on Bristol, Va. and Bristol, Tn. In some parts of these state-line-straddling twin cities, sprawling developments have grown rapidly, creating what Boyd described as a "conglomeration of places that have no relationship to one another." To bridge the divide inherent in having two separate city governments, he and other civic activists created Believe in Bristol (BIB), an organization that brings together stakeholders from both states to facilitate discussions about revitalization.

BIB is now part of the National Trust's Main Street Program, and made the Bristol Design Symposium possible. Boyd chaired the two symposia and chose historic preservation and downtown revitalization as their respective themes. Their lasting influence has been the establishment of an elevated awareness of the value of design excellence among volunteer activists and city government officials.

While supporters of Boyd's nomination noted the contrast of Boyd's decidedly quiet demeanor and his high level of achievement, Boyd says, "I don't acquiesce, but I don't like being in the spotlight. I like being in quiet places." Boyd admitted that, more than an appreciation of architecture alone, it's an interest in place that has driven his work as a volunteer and as an architect.

Test of Time

The Test of Time award recognizes architectural design of enduring significance. The structure must be no less than 25 years old, and while building use may change over time, the overall design must be cherished as a significant contribution to the community and the built environment.

26

The Central National Bank Building, Richmond

designed by John Eberson

Listed on the National Register of Historic Places, it has been called “one of the most spectacular spaces in the city” by architectural historian Richard Guy Wilson. “The interior,” he continued, “was richly ornamented with a multicolored and patterned terrazzo floor and a ceiling of intricate plaster panels with floral and geometrical patterns.”

When the 24-story Central National Bank Building was completed in 1929, it was the tallest building in Virginia and Richmond’s first skyscraper. Its Art-Deco-influenced design set it apart from Virginia’s more traditional architectural vocabulary. The building features irregularly applied setbacks and a limestone and granite arched entrance which extends nearly three floors. Spandrels between the windows accentuate the vertical lines and draw the eye upward toward a multicolored terra cotta crown.

Society Honors

Society Honors are bestowed upon organizations or citizens who have inspired, influenced, or complemented architecture or the architecture profession in Virginia.

The Building Goodness Foundation

By bringing together volunteers from throughout the construction industry to design and build structures for communities in need, the Building Goodness Foundation has made a significant impact in Virginia. From work on the Mattaponi Tribal House, Community Center and Medical Clinic, to the Volunteer Medical Staff Housing, to the 10–15 homes renovated each April during Building Goodness April, countless citizens of the Commonwealth have been positively impacted by the organization's work. The Foundation's efforts in Mississippi after Katrina, in Haiti, and in Guatemala expand upon regional efforts to bring relief to our larger human community.

Daniel A. Gecker

Dan Gecker's impact on Virginia's architectural heritage will be long-lasting. He was deeply involved in crafting the regulations that implemented the State Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credit legislation. This contribution has helped preserve many historic buildings while breathing new life into the communities where they're located. His role in the establishment of the Maggie L. Walker Governor's School and the Appomattox Regional Governor's School serves as a prime example of how his efforts to preserve the built environment also enrich the community. Gecker holds a degree in economics from Princeton University and a law degree from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at the College of William and Mary. In addition to serving as the Chair of the Chesterfield County Board of Supervisors, he manages a tax credit business he founded to participate in the rehabilitation of historic structures.

Honorary Membership

Honorary Membership may be bestowed upon individuals not eligible for membership in the Society, but who exemplify the interests and the values embodied by the profession of architecture.

Kathleen S. Kilpatrick

For over 15 years, Kilpatrick has worked to protect Virginia's architectural heritage by providing thoughtful, dedicated leadership of the Virginia Department of Historic Resources. She has worked tirelessly with the General Assembly to influence the passage of tax rehabilitation incentives, to support owners' donation of protective easements, and to protect threatened battlefields. She has succeeded in developing or expanding programs not only encouraging historic preservation activity, but also raising the awareness of Virginia's architectural heritage as an engine for economic development. Through her efforts, she has elevated the understanding of the significance of historic buildings and sites by strengthening open communication with Virginia's diverse population. For her passionate advocacy to preserve and protect the built environment in Virginia, the Society confers Honorary Membership upon Kathleen Kilpatrick.

Richard F. Sliwoski, P.E.

A registered professional engineer, Rich Sliwoski's career in public service has spanned nearly four decades. His extensive leadership experience managing major projects has demonstrated his commitment to adhere to the highest architectural ideals. A hallmark of his tenure in his current position as the Director of the Virginia Department of General Services has been his outreach to the architect community. He has worked to strengthen Virginia's commitment to Qualifications-Based Selection and has championed this initiative before the General Assembly. Also noted by the Committee is his support of sustainable building practices for the state. Sliwoski was also recognized for his guidance of the project teams involved in the renovations of Capitol Square. "He was instrumental in getting people to see the need for some of these award-winning renovations," said a Committee member.

Distinguished Achievement Award

The Award for Distinguished Achievement signals especially noteworthy achievement by an architect in any one of the following categories: design, practice, education, service as "citizen architect," and service to the profession. This award may serve as an accolade for the work of an entire career or recognize the current accomplishments of a younger leader.

T. Duncan Abernathy, AIA

A 14-year veteran of government advocacy on behalf of Virginia architects as the Society's Director of Government and Industry Affairs, Abernathy has worked on countless issues important to the profession. From copyright protection and issues of procurement, to unlicensed practice and contract enforcement — he works diligently to ensure that creativity is protected, qualifications, not price, are paramount, and that contracts can be enforced. His work with "Good Samaritan" laws helped to ensure that pro bono efforts made on behalf of communities in need are not subject to legal liability. The effect his regulatory and legislative work has been called "inestimable" by his peers. "The whole profession benefits from his work," said one Honors Committee member.

James R. Boyd, AIA

Jim Boyd has made lasting contributions to protect and sensibly regulate the profession. During a career spanning more than 30 years, he has worked on the VSAIA PAC as a Trustee and fundraiser, served as the Virginia Delegate to NCARB, and currently serves on the APELSCIDLA Board. He has been described as "totally committed to doing whatever he can to push the profession forward and defend practitioners." During his time as the Society's Vice President for Government Advocacy, he earned the moniker "watchdog" for his diligent work to crack down on unlicensed practice. Also commended by the Honors Committee was his work as an award-winning designer. Called the ideal "citizen architect," Jim Boyd is a partner at Heyward Boyd Architects.

Robert W. Moje, AIA

A founding principal of VMDO in Charlottesville, Bob Moje leads the firm's K-12 school projects. Under his leadership the firm has been honored with 38 awards in the past five years alone, including prestigious AIA/COTE Top 10 Green Projects and AIA/CAE nods for Manassas Park Elementary School. "Bob has an unbelievable passion for bringing people together to develop exceptional concepts for educational environments" says Jack Rinehart, FAIA. "They not only have a sense of community, but seem to stimulate the highest performance by their occupants," he continues. As one committee member noted, Moje's "buildings are all about the occupants. I was just blown away."

T. David Fitz-Gibbon Architecture Firm Award

The David T. Fitz-Gibbon Virginia Architecture Firm Award is the highest honor bestowed by the Society to a Virginia-based architecture firm. It recognizes a firm that has consistently produced distinguished architecture for at least ten years.

Ritter Architects

Founded in 1974 by James W. Ritter, FAIA, Ritter Architects has amassed more than 50 design awards at the local, state, regional and national levels. The twelve-person firm offers architectural, interior design and planning services and specializes in ecclesiastical projects, private schools, libraries, commercial office spaces, urban design and both single- and multi-family residential design. "The firm's design approach and creative process," says Gregory Hunt, FAIA, "has repeatedly produced buildings and interiors of unique spatial drama, material richness and true memorability."

The firm has been very active in the community since its foundation. Ritter and his fellow principal Derek M. Norton, AIA, are active volunteers. They serve on numerous architectural review committees, and pro-bono work includes support of the D.C.-based non-profit Action to Rehabilitate Community Housing. Members of the firm have lectured for a wide range of institutions including the Smithsonian, Virginia Tech, the Torpedo Factory, and Catholic University. "Ritter Architects has exhibited enormous generosity in sharing its experience in contributions to education and the community," says supporter Carlton Abbott, FAIA. In addition to service to the community, the firm has staunchly supported the AIA, with Ritter serving as president of the Society and the Northern Virginia chapter.

Particularly noted by the Honors Committee was the consistent high quality of the design. "This is architecture for architects, architecture for clients, and architecture for the public," says one supporter.

Architecture Medal for Virginia Service

The Society's most prestigious public award, the Architecture Medal for Virginia Service, honors an individual who has made an unusually significant contribution to our understanding and awareness of Virginia's built environment.

Hunter J. Smith and the late Carl W. Smith

The Smiths' support of education, fine arts, history, and affordable housing programs has had a profound impact in communities and on individuals across the Commonwealth. Particularly noted by the Committee was their work with the Habitat for Humanity and Shelter for Help in Emergency programs. Hunter Smith has been called a visionary leader in affordable housing and community design. "She has been particularly interested in encouraging mixed income development and affordable housing with architecture that fits in with and enhances the surrounding community," says Overton McGehee, Executive Director of Habitat for Humanity of Greater Charlottesville. Her viewpoint has served as an example in communities throughout the state. Their support of Shelter for Help in an Emergency has benefitted more than 7,000 individuals in crisis.

The Smiths are well known for their generous support of the University of Virginia, Monticello, and the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. Their efforts were critical to the preservation of the historic Paramount Theatre and the conversion of a turn-of-the-century historic Victorian home into the Hospice of the Piedmont. Carl Smith chaired the Jefferson Restoration Advisory Board at UVa. "The restoration of the Rotunda's interior and much of the preservation and restoration work on Jefferson's pavilions all benefitted from their work," says UVa President John T. Casteen, III.

Search by Firm Name

The architecture firms listed in this directory have a principal who is a member of the VSAIA. There may be other principals or employees of the firm who are not listed. Firms are listed alphabetically beginning on this page.

This listing includes the four primary areas of a firm's practice, although other types of projects aren't necessarily excluded from the firm's range of work.

Each firm has selected up to five of their recently completed projects. If you're considering hiring a firm, consider visiting some of the buildings listed. Ask the building owners about their experience with the firm and if they're satisfied with the project.

In each firm listing you'll find:

- Name, address and phone number
- Firm principals and personnel levels
- Principal areas of practice
- Recent projects

A201™-2007

General Conditions of the Contract
for Construction

Build with an added layer of protection.

PLUS download the all-new Guide for Sustainable Projects, FREE at aia.org/sustainableprojectsguide

Take peace of mind to the next level with AIA Contract Documents. We are pleased to announce the new D503™-2011, Guide for Sustainable Projects, including Agreement Amendments and Supplementary Conditions. This guide provides users with a valuable reference tool when using key AIA standard contracts like A201-2007, the most widely used Owner/Contractor agreement in the industry, to help address the unique concerns of sustainable construction. This includes information on certification systems, codes and legislation affecting sustainable design and construction projects. It also includes model language to assist all project participants in appropriately allocating risks and responsibilities. AIA Contract Documents are easy-to-use, widely accepted, and fair and balanced for all parties involved.

Download the new Guide for Sustainable Projects and learn more about our full library of Contract Documents at aia.org/contractdocs or call 800-242-3837.

The face of research.

Prairie Stone®

-Project: The Huntsman Cancer Institute, Salt Lake City, UT.

The face of masonry. No matter where you are, chances are we're somewhere close by. In fact, you've probably seen us many times before in the places you shop, work, play, learn, and live. We manufacture the brands and products used in the interiors and exteriors of civil, commercial, and residential construction projects across the nation. We leave our mark with satisfied customers and clients who have chosen North America's largest manufacturer of building products to simplify the process of making buildings happen. We're Oldcastle Architectural. We are the face of masonry.
