Today's News - August 19, 2002

Zaha Hadid makes an impression with her "fluid architecture" in a new exhibition at the National Building Museum. As we reported last Thursday, today is the day the LMDC is issuing a Request for Qualifications for a new design study for Ground Zero. As of the posting of today's news, the RFQ has not been released, but should be available sometime today at: www.renewnyc.com. New York City has issued RFP's & RQ's for projects in Brooklyn and Queens. And the GSA is looking to renovate its Washington, DC headquarters. There's an interesting take on the do's and don'ts of decision-making for projects of any size. The politics of design continue to rankle regarding the make-over of Arthur Erickson's concert hall. Can LA's "Cultural Corridor" of architectural wonders co-exist with the city's existing urban realities? Suburbs is learning lessons in urban planning - and making some smart decisions. Herbert Muschamp pays tribute to Conrad Hilton, and says "designers will be our new consular corps." Architect Shalom Baranes shows off his Washington, DC. A Japanese center in London will be culturally and environmentally respectful. Bonnie Raitt hits the road with a "green" tour. Will feng shui be the new way in retail design? ...and much more.

To subscribe to the free daily newsletter click here

Spatial Experiments: "Zaha Hadid Laboratories" at the National Building Museum- ArchNewsNow
RFP's & RQ's for Design Consultants for Brooklyn & Queens Projects:
Deadlines: 9/6 & 9/20- New York Biz
Presolicitation Notice: A/E Design Services for the Major Renovation of the GSA Headquarters Building, Washington, DC- General Services Administration
The elusive art of the decision-making process: ...the lesson arising from the rejection of the first six ground zero plans is clear for small towns, projects, big cities and mega buildings: A good process is an integral part of good design. By Blair Kamin- Chicago Tribune

Whose hall is it anyway? ...the politics of Toronto's Roy Thomson Hall makeover has been fraught with difficulties.- Arthur Erickson; Kuwabara Payne McKenna Blumberg- Globe and Mail (Canada)
A Core Dilemma: The Grand Avenue "Cultural Corridor" on Bunker Hill is aloof from the grittier but humanizing reality below. Can the two visions of downtown L.A. be reconciled? By Nicolai Ouroussoff [images]- Los Angeles Times

Suburban downtowns add dash of urban liveliness: the next stage of suburbia – a scenario where forward-thinking cities take cues from urban tradition... By John King- San Francisco Chronicle

Peace Lobby: Conrad Hilton's global empire was the world's first major architectural statement on the subject of jet-age mobility... By Herbert Muschamp [images]- New York Times

Plans for Japanese center in London unveiled: renovation of an old stable block ...will be environmentally friendly - Kisho Kurokawa- Japan Today

The Bionic Brownstone: stunning architectural details on many of the city's old buildings are made of faux material. Even some preservationists smile on this trend. [images]- New York Times

Green: A Thing Raitt Talks About: The blues rocker ...will provide solar and wind-generated power to the 42 cities on her current tour- Wired

The Architect of Happy Customers: Paco Underhill, guru of store design...getting hip to this scientific feng shui - Business 2.0

Residents of old Lapham Park welcome transformation: a lesson in what good design based on street-friendly New Urbanist principles can do... By Whitney Gould- Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

Note: Pages will open in a new browser window.
External news links are not endorsed by ArchNewsNow.com.
Free registration may be required on some sites.
Some sites may expire after a few days.

© 2002 ArchNewsNow.com