

Today's News - January 21, 2003

Gaudí at Ground Zero - what a concept! – Airports/Ground Zero land swap still a possibility. – Downtown countdown, but any new visions? – Libeskind a front-runner. – Not very high praise for Warsaw mall and Cleveland convention center. – Atlantic City casinos to fund FLW housing project 85 years later. – Three teams vie for Boston project. – British study focuses on sustainable initiatives in the U.S. – Plans for farmland gives lip service to smart growth. – Big names with small budgets give big look to campus. – Exhibitions in New York and Washington, DC: Le Corbusier and sustainable architecture. (A non-architectural but sad news item: Al Hirschfeld, 99, died yesterday.)
