This week at ArcSpace: Hadid in Rome and three reasons to visit New York. -- Fox & Fowle in name only. -- WTC competition an open process that exposed "the egos of architects and the potency of public opinion." -- We lose a master of open spaces in urban centers. -- The Guggenheim to go underwater in Rio. -- Intangibles like atmosphere and character in urban place making makes concrete sense. -- Plenty can happen when 80 architects volunteer a weekend to design housing for nonprofit organizations. -- AIA Housing Awards offer inspiration. -- Commercial projects getting greener - but still have a ways to go. -- The architecture correspondent of The Times of London says there's a message from England in recycling Long Island psychiatric hospital campus. -- No high marks for Chicago's newest high-rise. -- AR+D Emerging Architecture awards offer "real hope for an enlightened future." -- Mixed review for San Francisco's newest museum. -- Cincinnati's newest museums almost ready for prime time. -- Keynoters at RAIA conference include Japanese architect Wataru Kishi and American architect Rick Joy. -- Archigram exhibit a big hit in Taipei. -- Just what are all those tunnels under Tokyo?

To subscribe to the free daily newsletter click here.

- Zaha Hadid Architects: Groundbreaking for MAXXI: centre for contemporary art, Rome, Italy
- Richard Meier & Partners: Restaurant 66, New York City
- Polshek Partnership: Rose Center for Earth and Space, American Museum of Natural History, New York City

Fox Departs Fox & Fowle - ArchNewsNow

City Observed: WTC: An Open Blueprint: ...a beauty pageant, a pie throwing contest and an architectural equivalent to a poetry slam. Wam, Bam. And you can call me Dan. By Sam Hall Kaplan - KCRW.org (Los Angeles)

Guggenheim goes to Brazil: Rio de Janeiro that will see the construction of a $150 million underwater Guggenheim museum by Jean Nouvel [image] - The Art Newspaper

Allure of living the dream: As they explore the potential of 'place-making', regenerators are discovering the power of image, atmosphere and character. - Regeneration Magazine (UK)

Architects team up on nonprofit housing designs - Minneapolis Star Tribune

American Institute of Architects Announces Nine Recipients of 2003 Housing PIA Awards - AIA

Earth-friendly offices could be greener still: If anyone is going to be assigned the job of saving the Earth, it's architects, builders and developers. By Inga Saffron - Philadelphia Inquirer

The Case for Treatment: In deciding what to do at Kings Park psychiatric, let's look to England. By Marcus Binney - NY Newsday

"Towers on a podium" deaden cityscape: River East Center. By Blair Kamin - DeStefano Keating Partners - Chicago Tribune

The light stuff: A bright, airy car park? A church with glass walls? New buildings that break all the rules. By Jonathan Glancey - Sean Godsell; Overdiek and Partner; Jensen and Skodvin - Guardian (UK)

New Asian Art Museum intrigues, disappoints: modern architects need to develop a more imaginative bag of tricks when they are working alongside the ornate architecture of the past. - Gae Aulenti; HOK; LDA Architects; Robert Wong Architect - Mercury News (California)

In 2 months, 2 big openings: Rosenthal Center for Contemporary Art and Cincinnati Art Museum, Cincinnati Wing - Zaha Hadid; KZF Design [images] - Cincinnati Enquirer

Tapping into architect's concerns: Ian Moore of Engelen Moore has been appointed creative director of the Royal Australian Institute of Architects' (RAIA) annual conference May 24-28 - Infolink (Australia)

Archigram: looking back at yesterday's future: Before there was the World Wide Web, a British architectural movement envisaged urban mobility as inflatable houses and cities with legs [images] - Taipei Times

Seven riddles suggest a secret city beneath Tokyo - Japan Times

WTC Proposals: Who's Saying What Worldwide (updated 03/14/03) - ArchNewsNow

Note: Pages will open in a new browser window. External news links are not endorsed by ArchNewsNow.com.
Free registration may be required on some sites.
Some sites may expire after a few days.