Austrian architects bring the spirit of Holl in Biarritz, and Starck in Denmark. — "A quaint and affordable alternative to FEMAvilles," the mayor is pushing for "Katrina cottages." — A vision of what's to come: Jepson Center for the Arts establishes key role of the arts in city's future. — A temple of Suburbland: This is a nightmare of town planners, makers of new national and municipal master plans. While they are busy fighting uphill battles to save urbanity, Airport City is the horse that has already escaped the stable, perhaps never to return. — "The Client Did It" could be the title of an architectural murder mystery, but in this case, it's the simplest answer. — San Francisco architects see lessons in disaster relief and affordable housing offered by "Katrina cottages." — A call for zoning reforms to address inefficiencies as an instrument of urban design. — A look at the "towering influence of the Bauhaus" in Chicago. — \documentom{\textit{Australia} finding its voice in a call to save Melbourne's Modernist buildings before they disappear. — In Israel, Airport City is "Suburbland" and "a hallucination that has taken on flesh and sinew." — In Milwaukee, a new school suggests that "learning can be a delightful journey." — Savannah's new, big, and bold arts center pleases most, but not all. — A new theater for Georgetown University disappoints on the outside, but standing ovations for the interior. — A splendid and almost invisible greenhouse for the 21st century. — a call to save Melbourne's Modernist buildings before they disappear. — In Israel, Airport City is "Suburbland" and "a hallucination that has taken on flesh and sinew." — In Milwaukee, a new school suggests that "learning can be a delightful journey." — Savannah's new, big, and bold arts center pleases most, but not all. — A new theater for Georgetown University disappoints on the outside, but standing ovations for the interior. — A splendid and almost invisible greenhouse for the 21st century. — A "quaint" and affordable alternative to FEMAvilles: Fearing trailers would lead to blight, the mayor is pushing for "Katrina cottages." — A "quaint" and affordable alternative to FEMAvilles: Fearing trailers would lead to blight, the mayor is pushing for "Katrina cottages." —

Town Sets Sites on Quaint Alternative to "FEMAvilles": Fearing trailers would lead to blight, the mayor is pushing for "Katrina cottages." — could probably be had for about the same price as a trailer. The problem was that the cottage would be permanent — and FEMA is not in the business of providing permanent housing. — Marianne Cusato

The little house that roared: A tiny cottage designed for Katrina survivors offers the Bay Area a few clues about disaster relief and affordable housing — Marianne Cusato; Eric Moser; Ratliff Architects; MKThink; Neal Schwarz

Working Toward a New Understanding of Zoning: Urban design thinking and practice have greatly advanced over the past 30 years... Given the need to transform land-use planning and development, why is it so difficult to transform conventional zoning? By Roger K. Lewis

'Slow Growth Has Come at a Cost in Santa Barbara': ...now this bastion of "slow growth" is learning that it comes with some steep economic, social and even environmental costs... — Los Angeles Times

The Suburban Solution: How do you build affordable housing without federal money? Hitch on to a rising real-estate market and let the private sector do it for you. — New York Times

Developers pay €22m to avoid pledge on social housing commitments: Only 830 out of nearly 80,000 new homes built for councils... — Irish Independent

Swimming upstream: ...most of the housing being designed and built in Chicago... is downright tacky. But that doesn't mean residential architecture is a dying art in Chicago. It's been kept alive, and even rejuvenated of late, by an intrepid group of architects... By Kevin Nance — Brininstool + Lynch; Booth Hansen; Dirk Denison and Zoka Zola; Studio Dwell; Wheeler Kearns; Perkins + Will; Helmut Jahn

When the sky was the limit: Chicago prides itself on being America's architectural capital - so why were so many of its greatest buildings the work of Europeans? ...the towering influence of the Bauhaus — Bertrand Goldberg; Mies van der Rohe; Josef Albers; László Moholy-Nagy; Ron Krueck

City's concrete monoliths find friends in high places: Melbourne is falling behind other international cities by ignoring its modernist architectural heritage.

The Suburban Solution: How do you build affordable housing without federal money? Hitch on to a rising real-estate market and let the private sector do it for you. — New York Times

Developers pay €22m to avoid pledge on social housing commitments: Only 830 out of nearly 80,000 new homes built for councils... — Irish Independent

Swimming upstream: ...most of the housing being designed and built in Chicago... is downright tacky. But that doesn't mean residential architecture is a dying art in Chicago. It's been kept alive, and even rejuvenated of late, by an intrepid group of architects... By Kevin Nance — Brininstool + Lynch; Booth Hansen; Dirk Denison and Zoka Zola; Studio Dwell; Wheeler Kearns; Perkins + Will; Helmut Jahn

When the sky was the limit: Chicago prides itself on being America's architectural capital - so why were so many of its greatest buildings the work of Europeans? ...the towering influence of the Bauhaus — Bertrand Goldberg; Mies van der Rohe; Josef Albers; László Moholy-Nagy; Ron Krueck

City's concrete monoliths find friends in high places: Melbourne is falling behind other international cities by ignoring its modernist architectural heritage.

The temple of Suburbland: This is a nightmare of town planners, makers of new national and municipal master plans. While they are busy fighting uphill battles to save urbanity, Airport City is the horse that has already escaped the stable, perhaps never to return. — Esther Zandberg — Geoffrey Thorpe; Mann-Shenar; Yossi Friedman; Ha aretz (Israel)

Playful architecture makes this a good place to be a kid: In a period when all too many schools look like factories or fortresses... the Educare Center suggests that learning can be a delightful journey. That's half the battle, isn't it? By Whitney Gould — RDG Planning & Design (slide show)

A vision of what's to come: Jepson Center for the Arts establishes key role of the arts in city's future. — What no one expected was a museum as big and bold as this... — Moshe Safdie

Little Cause for Applause: Georgetown University Theater Hits a Brick Wall, but Its Interior Merits a Bow: "...The Client Did It" could be the title of an architectural murder mystery, but in this case, it's the simplest answer. — By Benjamin Forgey — Hugh Hardy HK Hardy Collaboration Architects

Now you see it... So delicate that it's almost invisible, the new Alpine House at Kew is a greenhouse for the 21st century. — By Steve Rose — Wilkinson Eyre

To subscribe to the free daily newsletter, click here
The Real Estate Issue: What the story of one 400-year-old house in Amsterdam can tell us about today's housing market; Après Le Deluge, Moi: How Patrick Quinn is trying to become the Donald Trump of New Orleans; How to Build a Low-PVC, Reduced-Plastic, Polar-Bear-Sensitive House; etc. - New York Times Magazine

Green Design as Great Design: The Architecture of Sustainability: A design competition and conference seek to merge technical ingenuity and compelling design. – Bruder, Gang, Mazria, Timberlake; etc. [images] - ArchNewsNow

Note: Pages will open in a new browser window.
External news links are not endorsed by ArchNewsNow.com.
Free registration may be required on some sites.
Some pages may expire after a few days.