Northgate Mall's face-lift: Wow is me...: the freshness hasn't added any distinction to what debuted in 1950 as the nation's first mall... Like most old malls, it's an architectural mess, a chaotic collision of styles and look-at-me retail kitsch... The one flicker of design excellence is the 2006 Northgate Community Center, library and village green... -- By Lawrence W. Cheek -- Miller/Hull Partnership - Seattle Post-Intelligencer

Detroit's Latest Model: A Retooled Museum:... what was needed for a city with a reputation for dust and vacancy was a big, glamorous statement; an architectural event; a thrill... The Graves design is staid, cautious, almost self-effacing... -- By Holland Cotter -- Paul Philippe Cret (1927); Michael Graves - New York Times

Paulo Mendes da Rocha: in step with the cosmos: The Pritzker winner and raconteur makes buildings dance... His b.s.-detector is always in the "on" position, wary of obfuscating phrases, buzzwords, grand abstractions... -- even if they're his own... [slide show] - Los Angeles Times
Engineer Bill Baker is the King of Superstable 150-Story Structures: More than the notable projects he has already built, [his] main contribution has been a completely novel way of constructing them. By Andrew Blum – Skidmore, Owings & Merrill (SOM) - Wired magazine

Educating the Next Wave: Are the deans up to the task? Though the deans like to talk about educating citizen designers, it feels empty to me, and apparently to the students too. By Susan S. Szenasy - Metropolis Magazine
