A San Francisco infill project sports a GreenPoint Rated label. — Stephens offers insight into he plight - and advantages - of "stepsister" cities. — Alberta decides it's time to change its "laissez-faire approach to planning." — Developers in boom towns like Calgary should down with books by Rybczynski and de Botton. — Q&A with SF Planning Director John Rahaim: it's time for everyone to get on the same page. — Can landscape architects help get kids walking again? — Gardner minces no words about missing the marble at 2 Columbus Circle: "new façade is so mind-numbingly dull as to lack even the posture of ambition" (ouch!). —Russell gives thumbs-up to Newseum that "displays journalism's better self." — Ritchie to be replaced in Potters Fields plan. — A stellar team picked for £1 billion regeneration of Euston Station. — Kamin on why Bertrand Goldberg's architecture still speaks to us today. — NYC's Storefront for Art and Center designed to put Gettysburg into perspective: $103 million Museum and Visitor Center designed to put Gettysburg into perspective: $103 million Museum and Visitor Center replaces a 1960s-era visitors center...has been fundamentally changed...and the city is much the poorer for that...new façade is so mind-numbingly dull as to lack even the posture of ambition. By James Gardner -- Edward Durrell Stone (1964); Brad Cloepfil/Allied Works — has been fundamentally changed...and the city is much the poorer for that...new façade is so mind-numbingly dull as to lack even the posture of ambition. By James Gardner -- Edward Durrell Stone (1964); Brad Cloepfil/Allied Works

D.C.'s Newseum Celebrates Highs, Lows of Journalism: ...gridded-glass cube...buffs journalism's battered legitimacy...the building's street-side D.C. politesse conceals the guts, glory and sassiness....displays journalism's better self in pleasingly airy, light-filled spaces. By James S. Russell -- Polshek Partnership; Ralph Appelbaum Associates; Jeffrey L. Daly; Kevin Roche John Dinkeloo — guts, glory and sassiness....displays journalism's better self in pleasingly airy, light-filled spaces. By James S. Russell -- Polshek Partnership; Ralph Appelbaum Associates; Jeffrey L. Daly; Kevin Roche John Dinkeloo

What about city improvement? Any of Rybczynski's books is worth reading, especially in boom times and boom towns like Calgary and especially by developers...Alain de Botton...comments on almost everything that human hands create in our urban environment for good or ill. — Calgary Herald (Canada) — What about city improvement? Any of Rybczynski's books is worth reading, especially in boom times and boom towns like Calgary and especially by developers...Alain de Botton...comments on almost everything that human hands create in our urban environment for good or ill. — Calgary Herald (Canada)

Q&A: SF Planning Director John Rahaim: Kenneth Caldwell finds out what's on his mind for San Francisco: "It isn't clear to me that people are sitting at the same table here. Yet." — The Architect's Newspaper (Los Angeles) — Q&A: SF Planning Director John Rahaim: Kenneth Caldwell finds out what's on his mind for San Francisco: "It isn't clear to me that people are sitting at the same table here. Yet." — The Architect's Newspaper (Los Angeles)

Most kids aren't walking to school anymore. Can landscape architects do anything to change that? How can we hope to make a dent in nature-deficit disorder when we can't even get kids to walk or bike through their own neighborhoods? By Bill Thompson — The Architects' Newspaper (Los Angeles) — Most kids aren't walking to school anymore. Can landscape architects do anything to change that? How can we hope to make a dent in nature-deficit disorder when we can't even get kids to walk or bike through their own neighborhoods? By Bill Thompson

Q: What are the big ideas that could get people to walk or bike, especially in cities like San Francisco? — Most kids aren't walking to school anymore. Can landscape architects do anything to change that? How can we hope to make a dent in nature-deficit disorder when we can't even get kids to walk or bike through their own neighborhoods? By Bill Thompson

Center designed to put Gettysburg into perspective: $103 million Museum and Visitor Center replaces a 1960s-era visitors center...has been fundamentally changed...and the city is much the poorer for that...new façade is so mind-numbingly dull as to lack even the posture of ambition. By James Gardner -- Edward Durrell Stone (1964); Brad Cloepfil/Allied Works — Bloomberg News — Center designed to put Gettysburg into perspective: $103 million Museum and Visitor Center replaces a 1960s-era visitors center...has been fundamentally changed...and the city is much the poorer for that...new façade is so mind-numbingly dull as to lack even the posture of ambition. By James Gardner -- Edward Durrell Stone (1964); Brad Cloepfil/Allied Works

Black-Tie Optional: 'Stepsister' Cities Flourish in the Shadows: Say you're a big city. But right next door is an even bigger big city. What do you do to stand out?...the unique plight of America's so-called stepsister cities...still lay claim to distinct local economies, urban character, and even urban sub-regions of their own. By Josh Stephens - PLANetizen — Black-Tie Optional: 'Stepsister' Cities Flourish in the Shadows: Say you're a big city. But right next door is an even bigger big city. What do you do to stand out?...the unique plight of America's so-called stepsister cities...still lay claim to distinct local economies, urban character, and even urban sub-regions of their own. By Josh Stephens - PLANetizen

Land-use blueprint alters how we work, live, play: More than a decade after Alberta abandoned regional planning...the government concedes development has reached "a tipping point"...quality of life will deteriorate, the report warns, if the province sticks with what it calls its current laissez-faire approach to planning. "Without planning, we have a tyranny of small decisions..." — Calgary Herald (Canada) — Land-use blueprint alters how we work, live, play: More than a decade after Alberta abandoned regional planning...the government concedes development has reached "a tipping point"...quality of life will deteriorate, the report warns, if the province sticks with what it calls its current laissez-faire approach to planning. "Without planning, we have a tyranny of small decisions..." — Calgary Herald (Canada)

Most kids aren't walking to school anymore. Can landscape architects do anything to change that? How can we hope to make a dent in nature-deficit disorder when we can't even get kids to walk or bike through their own neighborhoods? By Bill Thompson — The Architects' Newspaper (Los Angeles) — Most kids aren't walking to school anymore. Can landscape architects do anything to change that? How can we hope to make a dent in nature-deficit disorder when we can't even get kids to walk or bike through their own neighborhoods? By Bill Thompson

D.C.'s Newseum Celebrates Highs, Lows of Journalism: ...gridded-glass cube...buffs journalism's battered legitimacy...the building's street-side D.C. politesse conceals the guts, glory and sassiness....displays journalism's better self in pleasingly airy, light-filled spaces. By James S. Russell -- Polshek Partnership; Ralph Appelbaum Associates; Jeffrey L. Daly; Kevin Roche John Dinkeloo — Bloomberg News — D.C.'s Newseum Celebrates Highs, Lows of Journalism: ...gridded-glass cube...buffs journalism's battered legitimacy...the building's street-side D.C. politesse conceals the guts, glory and sassiness....displays journalism's better self in pleasingly airy, light-filled spaces. By James S. Russell -- Polshek Partnership; Ralph Appelbaum Associates; Jeffrey L. Daly; Kevin Roche John Dinkeloo

Marina City: Why Bertrand Goldberg's architecture still speaks to us today. — The Chicago Tribune (U.S.A.) — Marina City: Why Bertrand Goldberg's architecture still speaks to us today. — The Chicago Tribune (U.S.A.)

To subscribe to the free daily newsletter click here.
Pop over to 'Storefront's' L.A. outpost: Storefront for Art and Architecture reaches beyond its New York space with a temporary expansion. On display will be CCCP: Cosmic Communist Constructions Photographed until May 17. Pop-Up Storefront is also a prototype for experiments elsewhere. [Link] - Los Angeles Times

Nigel Coates comes in from the cool: The architect survived Cool Britannia to become one of the country's finest designers. Now he's showing in Milan: "I'm not back!...I didn't go. I just chose to...detach myself for a while."...[his] fruity style is in vogue again...This is provocation, not gimmickry. By Tom Dyckhoff [Link] - The Times (UK)

Starck Raving: ...for a designer of objects and things to announce that "we do not need anything material," that all we need is "the ability to love," makes for a delicious scandal. It also transforms Starck suddenly into the most unlikely of roles: an advocate for sustainability. All you need is love. And a good press release. By Allison Arieff [Images] - New York Times

Call for entries: World Architecture Festival Awards: best entries in 96 building types in 16 categories will compete for the first architectural Prix de Barcelona; deadline: June 20. World Architecture Festival

Perm Museum XXI competition winners -- Bernaskoni; Valerio Olgiati; Zaha Hadid; Acconci Studio; Asymptote/Rashid/Couture; Esa Ruskeepaa; Søren Robert Lund; McIl, Peter Architekten; A-B; Alexandr Brodsky, Tatan Kuzemaev Architectural workshop - Center of Contemporary Architecture / C:CA (Russia)

AIA recognizes 11 projects with the 2008 CAE Educational Facility Design Awards -- Leddy Maytum Stacy; Overland Partners; Occutt | Winslow; Perkins Eastman; LPA; VMDO; Dull Olson Weekes; Ryan Companies; Hanbury Evans Wright Viattas; The Collaborative; McCool Carlson Green - American Institute of Architects (AIA)

ASLA 2008 Professional Awards -- Gustafson Guthrie Nichol; Michael Van Valkenburgh; Andrea Cochran Landscape Architecture; Floor Associates; Grupo De Diseño Urbano; Van Atta Associates; Olin Partnership; MSI Landscape, Michael Vanpagon Landscape Architects: Ken Smith/Mia Lehrer: Mossop + Michaels; SWA Group; Hardewes Associates; ahbe landscape architects; SCAPE; etc. [Images, links] - American Society of Landscape Architects (ASLA)

Words That Build: Coping with chaotic communication challenges: Tip #1: Learn to enjoy communicating with your client. By Norman Weinstein - ArchNewsNow

-- Rem Koolhaas/OMA: The Brewery Site, Copenhagen, Denmark
-- Book: A Tribute to Jørn Utzon
-- Exhibition: Home of Finn Juhl, Ordrupgaard, Ordrup, Denmark

© 2008 ArchNewsNow.com