• Even with "nagging caveats," Weinstein finds a new book about the history of "Architectural Graphic Standards" to be "a rare and valuable penetration into a slice of this architectural bible."

• An urbanist calls for Mumbai's largest slum is actually "a successful settlement with a vibrant community and economy" and should be a model that should be replicated, not redeveloped "as a weak cover-up for a land grab of the worst kind."

• King talks to Piano about his towering plans for San Francisco that will never be, and gives thumbs-up to award winners.

• Cheek gives thumbs-up to the thoughtful designs of Seattle's light rail stations (with pix to prove it).

• Dubai as a tabula rasa where architects "ply their craft, writ large" - including Canadians.

• An in-depth look at the "compelling ethic behind deconstruction" instead of demolition.

• Spring visits Corbu's "machine for living in" in Marseille.

• Bayley muses on what makes the perfect art gallery, and the "continuing appeal of the big white space."

• A Dubai architect has a fresh take on mosque architecture: "Whatever was done before is nice but do not keep copying it."

• Diamond + Schmitt and "the architecture of usefulness" (they don't do "crash architecture").

• Q&A day: McDonough on why designers have to stay optimistic.

• Lyn Rice on being an upstart and his strategy for lean times.

• Design/Philadelphia about to launch - including a prefab show of its own.

• In Pakistan, architecture can be a rewarding field for creative and hard working students, but there's a need for architectural institutes.

• Design/Philadelphia about to launch - including a prefab show of its own.

• Even with "nagging caveats," Weinstein finds a new book about the history of "Architectural Graphic Standards" to be "a rare and valuable penetration into a slice of this architectural bible."

• An urbanist calls for Mumbai's largest slum is actually "a successful settlement with a vibrant community and economy" and should be a model that should be replicated, not redeveloped "as a weak cover-up for a land grab of the worst kind."

• King talks to Piano about his towering plans for San Francisco that will never be, and gives thumbs-up to award winners.

• Cheek gives thumbs-up to the thoughtful designs of Seattle's light rail stations (with pix to prove it).

• Dubai as a tabula rasa where architects "ply their craft, writ large" - including Canadians.

• An in-depth look at the "compelling ethic behind deconstruction" instead of demolition.

• Spring visits Corbu's "machine for living in" in Marseille.

• Bayley muses on what makes the perfect art gallery, and the "continuing appeal of the big white space."

• A Dubai architect has a fresh take on mosque architecture: "Whatever was done before is nice but do not keep copying it."

• Diamond + Schmitt and "the architecture of usefulness" (they don't do "crash architecture").

• Q&A day: McDonough on why designers have to stay optimistic.

• Lyn Rice on being an upstart and his strategy for lean times.

• In Pakistan, architecture can be a rewarding field for creative and hard working students, but there's a need for architectural institutes.

• Design/Philadelphia about to launch - including a prefab show of its own.

• Editor's note: We're saddened by the news that the New York Sun is folding today; it was a particular New York voice. Lean times ahead for us all, it seems.
particular there is an urgent need for an architectural education institute that is capable of imparting quality education... - Daily Times (Pakistan)

Design Fall 2008 -- Rawsthorn; Viladas; Hagberg; Bellini; Cloepfil; etc. - New York Times Style Magazine

MoMA Conquers Curator-Devouring Second Floor, Makes Plans for Nouvel's Mega-Tower: "Here is Every" has fallen below the critical radar. But it's the best of the five deployments of its contemporary forces since the Taniguchi-designed museum expansion opened... By Lee Rosenbaum [links] - ArtsJournal

4th Annual DesignPhiladelphia October 16 - 22, in conjunction with National Design Week - DesignPhiladelphia

On Heels of MoMA Show, a Prefab Exhibition Opening in Philadelphia: ...a temporary prefab “neighborhood”...will offer an optimistic view of what a revitalized city might look like in the near future. “A Clean Break”...will be a central event of DesignPhiladelphia October 17 to 30 - Architectural Record

-- querkraft architekten: Museum Liaunig, Neuhaus/Suha, Carinthia, Austria
-- Book: MAD Dinner by Ma Yansong

Note: Pages will open in a new browser window.
External news links are not endorsed by ArchNewsNow.com.
Free registration may be required on some sites.
Some pages may expire after a few days.