A HERITAGE FROM THE OLD REGIME

One glancing through the current magazines published in the interest of Interior Decoration will notice the ever increasing number of fine interiors in which French XVIIIth Century furniture is shown. This phenomenon is caused by a growing realization that French furniture of this period conforms more closely to our modern standard of beauty than that of almost any other period. For this reason Brunovan’s authenticated reproductions are being used more and more by decorators to create the gracious and livable interiors demanded by a fastidious clientele.

Brunovan’s reproductions are exact copies of beautiful pieces found in the famous French museums or in the foremost private collections. They are produced in Brunovan’s Paris ateliers by French craftsmen whose art is a direct heritage from the old Guilds. Those desirous of seeing at first hand the availability of French XVIIIth Century furniture for the fine home of today may do so through their decorator or architect.

DECORATORS FOR HOMES, BOATS, PLANES—SEVENTH FLOOR
The experience and resources of nearly a century bring to this House, from world-wide sources, rare gems of unusually fine quality. These lovely creations are representative of a collection of great importance.

Interesting and beautiful variations of the circle brooch. Left—emeralds with diamonds; center—a pearl, diamonds, and carved sapphire leaves; right—a charming effect in diamonds. Carved rubies, emeralds and sapphires furnish the color motif for this new bracelet.

A jeweled clip of carved rubies, emeralds, sapphires and diamonds. These new clips serve as brooch, jabot pin or hat ornament.

Two sapphire rings—one emerald-cut, the other lozenge shape—of cornflower blue color, in mountings of modern tendency.

ANY MAN who has ever caulked his own boat, any woman who has ever embroidered a centerpiece, knows the warm affection which Danersk craftsmen hold for the chairs and tables they have built with their own hands. Often it seems as if this paternal regard were passed on to the purchaser, for usually the owner of these heirlooms-to-be holds them in deeper esteem with each satisfying year of possession. Not merely tables to eat upon, not merely chairs to sit on, but endowed with personalities as likably sincere as those of the sturdy Scotch and English cabinetmakers who fashioned them, these mellow pieces play a definite part in filling the home with a spirit of kindly cheer and friendliness. You are cordially invited to visit our showrooms and to inspect the hundreds of interesting Danersk pieces for every room in the house. Erskine-Danforth Corporation. ADELINE DE VOO

It is positively astonishing, as Miss de Voo suggests, how much you can accomplish in beautifying your home with a few dollars invested in tables. Tables, comparatively, are so inexpensive—even when created by a master like Imperial. And so many lovely things can be done with them, when properly selected and arranged! They brighten nooks and corners—add smartness and hominess to your chair and davenport groupings—lend dignity and charm to the halls—provide exquisite settings for lamps, ornaments, books—and serve numberless other practical needs while winning the admiration of your friends and guests.

To illustrate these points, Imperial has created a special group of 12 charming tables. Tables for every room and of all sorts, from the strictly formal to the daintiest colorful novelty. And all priced under $50! Many for much less. Three are illustrated on this page.

Leading dealers everywhere are now featuring the entire group. See them by all means! Like every Imperial creation, they are stunningly new, fashionable and well made. And each, for your protection, bears the famous trade mark Imperial on the green shield—for 27 years an accepted guarantee of superior design and quality in this special field.

An interesting booklet, "Tables in the Home" will be sent on request.

2000 Continental Patterns in this Fascinating Wall Covering!

SALUBRA—the fadeless, washable wall-covering—offers you the most unusual Continental styles and patterns imaginable. From Paris, Berlin, Vienna—Europe's leading style centers—come the inspiration for Salubra's beautiful designs, created by famous decorative artists. Many of Salubra's patterns are exclusive designs by that organization of decorative artists—the Wiener Werkstätte. Though applied to the wall like ordinary wallpaper, there Salubra's similarity to it ceases. Salubra is entirely different from the wallpaper to which we are accustomed—in design, color, texture and composition. It is really "paint-by-the-roll"—specially compounded oil colors applied on parchment paper. The technique of its manufacture creates a distinctive texture which gives depth and character to color and design—warmth and softness to the walls. Sunlight has no effect on Salubra. It is absolutely fadeless—and since Salubra can be SCRUBBED CLEAN with SOAP and WATER—thus removing all spots and stains—you may use the most dainty and delicate patterns with complete assurance that they will always retain their original colorings. For years Salubra wall-coverings have graced the finest homes abroad. Now Salubra is being used in fashionable homes and apartments everywhere in this country. Let your architect or decorator tell you about Salubra or write us direct.

HERE is new distinction for your walls

Permatex is a startlingly new fabric. It is offered as a permanent covering for your walls—in living room, dining room, bedrooms—in fact, in the "show" rooms of your home.

Its beauty of pattern and color, its variety of modish styles, both modern and conservative, its soft enduring lustre—combining with these qualities an absolute sun-resistance and washability—are giving Permatex an undeniable vogue among those whose taste inclines them to the distinctive in home decoration and fitments.

Permatex is like no fabric you have ever known. Its very "feel" is a new experience in the sense of touch. Its sheen is permanent—crackless, sun-resistant, waterproof, indefinitely cleanable with a damp cloth, and as softly pliant as the satin it so closely resembles. There is no stickiness, no brittleness, no "peel," no greying of color.

Correctly styled to the moment, Permatex wall covering is being selected increasingly by leading interior decorators. It is obtainable at better wallpaper houses the country over.

Permatex wall covering is produced by the great Aspinook Mills, established in historic New England 35 years ago. It is an exclusive product. Ask for it, therefore, by name—Permatex. If your dealer does not carry Permatex, write us and we will send you an assortment of sample patterns and colorings.

The Permatex pattern here shown—but one of many—was designed in the famous Kunstgewerbelschule, in Vienna, in the class of Prof. Hoffmann and in collaboration with RICHARD E.THIBAUT, INC., 20 West 40th St., N.Y., sponsors and distributors of Permatex wall covering.

Permatex is being widely used also as drapery and as upholstery. It can be had in three weights—the medium weight for walls, the light weight for drapes and the heavy weight for upholstery.
THE EXTRA VALUES of Body by Fisher are available to motor car purchasers in every price field, from $565 to $10,000.

This is an economic fact of first importance in the choice of a motor car today. It means that no one need any longer compromise with less than Fisher Body quality, comfort, convenience, safety and durability.

With this satisfying fact in mind, appraise for yourself the extra values of such body features as the Fisher adjustable driver’s seat, Protecta-lok door handles, the non-glare vision and ventilating windshield, the richer and costlier upholstery and fittings, and the quieter, more durable wood-and-steel type of Fisher construction. To make certain of these Fisher Body extra values, choose one of the General Motors cars—the only cars with Body by Fisher.
Caught in the swirling eddies of a mountain stream, a leaf was tossed from whirlpool to ripple, yet it went on steadfastly as though to some appointed place. The leaf caught the eye of an artist and became a Planatile design... "Leaf and Ripple", one of the new series created by Leon V. Solon, distinguished ceramic designer.

More room for originality in the Smallest Room in the House

Since there is no more intimately personal haven than one's bathroom, where is there a better place to express freely one's decorative fancies? Designs in tiles now inspire unusual decorative possibilities. Robertson Incised Planatile combines new designs with a color gradation which permits variable tonal values, emphasizing the design in color relief while keeping the surface relatively smooth. There is also the new satin finish— and new tile shapes. All of these distinctions make you wish that your bathroom in Planatile was more conspicuous.

The same beautiful Planatile may be used to express very effective decorative ideas in foyers, recreation rooms, sun porches and kitchens, affording more obvious opportunities for conventional display.

Let us send you a beautiful and useful hot-plate made from Planatile.

It will give you the opportunity to admire one of the new incised designs and the satin finish. Send 25c to cover mailing costs. Along with it we will send you our newest brochure, reproducing the new Robertson designs as shown in a number of attractive bathrooms and other settings inspired by them... also the names of tile-contractors in your vicinity who display Robertson Planatile.

Away at school, a gift can mean so much...

It is a source of gratification to a student at school or college to realize that good friends, perhaps a thousand miles away, still take an interest in him. A word of encouragement... a note from one who understands... a gracious remembrance... to a young man or woman alone for a time, these things may well be priceless.

With many, it has long been the custom to give some gift to those about to leave for school. And among people of taste and judgment, such gifts are frequently of fine leather. A collar case, in ostrich... a Florentine book-cover... a desk set or a diary... there are many lovely things from which they choose.

And in the great majority of cases, their selection is governed by the presence of a tiny golden keystone R. That imprint, placed upon every piece of fine leather manufactured by C. F. Rumpp & Sons, Inc., is an infallible warrant of quality.

It comes with a sense of pleasure to many of these people to reflect that the same House which now supplies the exquisite gifts they buy, has furnished articles of fine leather to their families for several generations... This establishment was founded eighty years ago. The fair and honest principles responsible for its growth are still steadfastly upheld by members of the family.

C. F. Rumpp & Sons, Inc., manufacture fine leather articles of every description, excepting luggage. At leather goods and department stores, jewelers, haberdashers and stationers.

A... A dressing case, in black or brown goatskin, in pigskin, or in smooth cowhide, equipped with fittings in either black or brown to match the color of the leather.

B... A writing portfolio, cocoa lined, containing an indexed address book and stamp case of leather, a tablet of paper, a pocket for envelopes, a holder for a pen, and a blister-covered writing surface. Especially acceptable for a young girl, the portfolio may be had in many beautiful colors of ocrac finished leather.

C... A diary, for five years, equipped with lock and key. It may be had in a wide variety of leathers and colors.

D... A bill-fold, designed to accommodate the new currency; there is, as well, a pass compartment and a section for cards. A slide fold permits the carrying of any quantity of money without buckling. Other wallets hold bills of either size.

A Mantel from Leeds Castle, held by the Crown from 1280 to 1553

By its distinguished antecedents, as well as by its design and proportions, this regal chimney-piece from Leeds Castle, Kent, England, offers the collector and antiquarian an objet d’art extraordinaire.

Removed from Leeds Castle but a few years ago, by special arrangement with the owner, this massive and magnificently carved mantel achieves, through its unique historic associations, an unusual significance to all who are familiar with the life and traditions of that famous monument to England’s past... the Castle of Leeds.

Leeds Castle, amazing as it may seem, is of such antiquity that its very origin is obscured. It is said that the present site bore a fortress or castle as far back as 857, during the reign of Ethelbert II, King of Kent. Subsequently destroyed and rebuilt—we first find this ancient stronghold the subject of accurate historical record some 400 years later. For Leeds was so greatly favoured by England’s rulers that it was retained as a royal possession from the time of Edward I (1280) until Edward VI (1553).

During this period in the hands of the Crown, which covers nearly three centuries and spans the lives of thirteen of England’s rulers, Leeds Castle was so intimately identified with the stirring events of these times that to relate its story would be to retell the History of England, herself.

The dignity and beauty of this superb mantel reveals its royal heritage from the past. Rarely is a piece of such importance and historical traditions offered to the public.

Our ability to bring it to this country is a significant commentary on the scope and importance of our foreign connections... and the diligence and enthusiasm with which we search the far corners of the world for the rare and unusual fireside fittings which fill our Galleries.

If you cannot visit us in person, may we send you a booklet describing the activities of this house?

made more beautiful with this Modern Paint

INEVITABLY they attract and hold your attention... Homes of real distinction. Intensely white, richly lustrous, they stand out among their neighbors. Painting with Outside Barreled Sunlight has given them new personality... new charm.

Owners are delighted. Never before have they seen such beautiful whiteness. Painters, too, are enthusiastic. Not only does Outside Barreled Sunlight enable them to do a more satisfactory job, but the result often brings unsolicited orders.

Outside Barreled Sunlight is made by an adaptation of the exclusive Rice Process which perfected Interior Barreled Sunlight, the famous paint enamel used on walls and woodwork of thousands of fine homes.

Outside Barreled Sunlight costs a few cents more per gallon than “just paint,” but the difference is amply justified by lasting beauty and durability.

YOUR FLOORS CAN BE AS MODERN AS THEY ARE BEAUTIFUL...WITH ZENITHERM!

ZENITHERM is the smart new vogue in floors — and in walls, too! It is the modern decorative basis for fine interiors — and is being used with outstanding success by leading architects and decorators all over the country.

Zenitherm expresses individuality! Its colorings (and there are twenty-one to choose from) are soft, vivid, or contrasting — as the decorative plan may demand. Another feature of Zenitherm’s versatility is its easy adaptability to Old World designs or Modern Motifs.

For, while Zenitherm looks like some rare Italian marble, it is a fabricated material which may be sawed, nailed, and worked like wood! Zenitherm is also weatherproof, fire-resistant; and can be kept spotlessly clean with soap and water. If used for outer walls or terraces, it actually toughens on exposure to the elements.

If you are thinking of building or remodeling — ask your architect or decorator about Zenitherm. Or, write us direct.

White sheets that gleam like rippled silver.

"WAMSUTTA Percale sheets are whiter as they come from the mill and whiter after use than other cotton fabrics" . . .

"Ordinary soap and water keeps them white without the use of chemicals . . ."

These are the matter of fact statements of a laundry superintendent and a hotel manager.

The gleaming whiteness of Wamsutta Percale sheets and pillow cases was never more perfectly shown than in this painting by Elizabeth Paxton . . . and, with it, the exquisite fineness of their texture that can make your bed not only a thing of beauty but the most deliciously comfortable place in the whole wide world.

One century is too short to test the endurance of Cypress

HUNDREDS of Early American houses, built of Tidewater Red Cypress (Coast Type) before the Revolution, are still in sound and serviceable condition.

Their successful battles against 150...200 years of attacking weather testify to the great endurance of this rugged lumber.

As an ever-increasing number of home-owners recognize the long-run economy in such durability, architects are enabled to increase continually their specifications of Tidewater Red Cypress.

Architects have long favored the Wood Eternal, especially for exterior use—not only because of its lasting qualities, but also because of its easy workability, even surface, and tight coherence with paint.

For an exquisite interior

Many prominent architects are using large quantities of Tidewater Red Cypress to achieve beautiful interior finishes, for its exquisite grain enhances the beauty of any room.

Illustrations of their work have been compiled in "A Book of Interiors" to show you the different ways the Wood Eternal can be used to attain delightful effects.

“X marks the spots” where

rust can invade your home!

In building or buying a home, there are so many things to consider that it is easy to overlook important items of construction: fundamental details that will mean so much to the comfort, appearance and economy of the home you are to own. The purpose of this advertisement is to remind prospective homeowners of the importance of durable metals, particularly when concealed or installed in inaccessible places, and to point out some of the places where Anaconda Copper, Brass and Bronze save unnecessary upkeep expense.

Gutters, Rain-pipes and Flashings provide roof drainage. When made of rustable metal leaks are inevitable. Repairing and replacing are necessary. Flashings being inaccessible are particularly expensive to replace. Roof metal work of Anaconda Copper, which cannot rust, is as permanent as the house itself and costs less in the long run.

Hardware: The metal of which the hardware is made may seem an unimportant detail, yet no item of home building is subject to harder use. Plating of the hardware is only temporary protection. When it rusts, no detail contributes more to a run-down appearance of the home. This can never happen if solid brass or bronze hardware is used.

Water Pipe: Discolored water in your morning tub ... rust-stained laundry ... only a thin trickle of water when the faucet is turned on ... costly repairs and replacements are all inevitable results of rust's attack on water pipe. Anaconda Brass Pipe cannot rust and leak, nor clog with rust deposits. Its use is an important economy.

Hot Water Tanks: Rust can seriously impair the hot water system if the storage tank is made of rustable metal. Tanks made of Copper or Everdur (strengthened Copper) cannot rust. A tank made of either of these durable metals used with Anaconda Brass Pipe will assure a full flow of clean water always, and is cheaper in the end.

Washing Machines: You and your laundress know how ruinous rust spots are to clothes. No one wants fine silks and linen to be subject to this damage. Washing machines with copper tubs, plus brass pipe and a rust-proof tank in the water system, eliminate the danger of rust spots. Many leading manufacturers make the tubs of Anaconda Copper.

Among other places in the home where copper, brass and bronze eliminate rust and save upkeep expense are lighting fixtures, sash chains, weather-strips, roofing nails. Complete details on the economy and durability of Anaconda metals in the home are embodied in the free booklet, "Rust-Proofed". Write for your copy to The American Brass Company, General Offices, Waterbury, Conn.

STONE'S BEAUTY NEVER CHANGES
BUT COST IS NOW FAR LESS

Write for literature on use of Indiana Limestone for residences

NOT only has the cost of building a house of natural stone been reduced, but greater beauty can now be secured.

From our vast quarries we select pieces of Indiana Limestone of such varied color, texture and pattern that a wall surface of unusual beauty is assured. To lessen cost, this stone is sawed on four sides into strips by machinery. Then shipped direct to the building site.

There it is broken into lengths and laid up in the wall just as brick is laid up. This stone and this method of use we call ILCO Ripstone. You can be surer of satisfaction by using ILCO Ripstone than if you use local stone. And because of the labor of making local stone ready for the wall, our stone will probably cost less.

Never before has there been such an opportunity to build enduring beauty into the small house. The soft color-tones of ILCO Ripstone become more beautiful with age. The stone exterior needs no attention. It will prove an economy in the long run.

We should like to show you beautiful houses built of Indiana Limestone the ILCO way. Send for our literature. Please mention your architect's name. The coupon will save you time.

KERNERATOR has abolished the last great housekeeping INCONVENIENCE

Progressive improvement of household utilities has, long ago, wiped out even the memory of most old-fashioned items of home equipment. The dust-pan, the cistern pump, old-style heating and lighting, primitive laundry equipment are just history.

The domestic incinerator is an accomplishment among modern "wife savers". It is demanded in the better home and apartment and its presence is more and more the usual thing in even the modest cottage.

The Kernerator is the modern way. It does away with the inconvenient, unsightly and unsanitary garbage can, and solves the problem of rubbish disposal that is so serious with modern fuels.

Ask your architect about Kernertors or send for attractive booklet.

WHEN September frost probes your memory of last winter's heating troubles—ouch and double ouch! That nasty twinge is a warning that if your boiler troubles are to be banished before next winter, you had better be about it. Can you laugh at these probing questions? Did your cost of heating last winter make you groan? Was your boiler exasperatingly slow to heat the house on cold mornings, and did the family have to shiver until mid-morning? Did your boiler let you down completely on extra cold days and flatly refuse to make the house comfortable no matter how much fuel you burned?

Fundamentally all heating troubles are due to a lack of efficiency in the boiler used. The only remedy is to get rid of the inefficient boiler and install an efficient one in its place. That means a boiler with plenty of Fire Surface. Economy and comfort alike depend upon it.

The New Smith "16" Boiler for small-to-medium size homes has more fire surface than any other boiler made of the same grate area—enough to absorb economically all the heat your house will ever need. It makes available for small-to-medium homes the same welcome comfort and economy that the H. B. Smith Mills Boilers Nos. "24", "34" and "44" have been giving owners of large houses and mansions for over fifty years. Burn coal, coke, oil or gas as you please. The results are the same. Don't take our word for it. Ask your Architect, Engineer or Heating Contractor about H. B. Smith Boilers. Only, do it now before winter begins. Meanwhile, send for free copies of our two books, "The Smith 16" and "Does it Pay to Install an Oil Burner."

You can give your home a freshness and a beauty that it never had before—simply by putting Creo-Dipt Stained Shingles right over the side-walls and roof.

No expensive structural changes are necessary when you use Creo-Dips. That's one reason why the first cost is so low—usually no more than two repainting. And once Creo-Dipts are on your house, they save you enough in reduced upkeep and fuel bills to pay their entire cost in 5 to 7 years. That is because genuine Creo-Dipts are made only from selected red cedar, stained under pressure by a patented Creo-Dipt process which forces preserving oils and 35% more color deeper into the wood. Red cedar shingles themselves are a natural insulator—and when they are protected by the Creo-Dipt process, no wonder Creo-Dipt owners pay 15% to 25% less for fuel.

You can choose almost any shade or color you like. The home shown on this page, with Creo-Dipt silver white on the side-walls and No. 232 brown on the roof—shows only one of the many charming color combinations.

Ask your architect, lumber dealer, or builder about refinishing your house with Creo-Dipts. Your Creo-Dipt dealer can make you a definite price for the whole job—and you can pay for it in convenient monthly installments, if you like. Meanwhile mail the coupon with 25 cents for interesting photographs and a color chart. Leading lumber dealers everywhere stock genuine Creo-Dipts.

or the UTILITY BASEMENT
there should be just one standard for the heating plant. It should give you complete cleanliness and absolutely automatic operation and control, without fuel storage or deliveries. To accept anything less modern, is to start your new home under a heavy handicap.

Don't be satisfied merely to select the type of heat you prefer — steam, vapor, hot water or warm air. See to it that you get a heating plant which will supply the heat amply, uninterruptedly and with an irreducible minimum of human attention. Remember — the finest possible installation of piping or ducts is at the mercy of the heating plant in the basement. Nothing can make up for a faulty furnace.

Fortunately for home-owners, the finest heating plant available costs relatively little — more than an inferior furnace. Bryant Automatic Gas Heating has been called "the greatest single convenience ever offered the American home." And you can afford it.

With Bryant Gas Heating you can — throw away your coal shovel — junk your ash can — eliminate all fuel storage of any kind — make a single match your winter's kindling — tend furnace by the calendar, not by the clock — lighten the daily housework — save rugs, paint and upholstery — postpone redecorating — do away with dangerous ups-and-downs of inside temperature — hold temperatures constant within a single, thermometer-measured degree — live in a warm house, sleep in a cool one — laugh at blizzards — enjoy winter — and let your pup be your furnace man!

Use the coupon, or phone any office listed below, to secure complete information in regard to Bryant Heating. If you desire, we can then arrange to supply you with a dependable advance estimate of the cost of BOTH installation and operation in your particular home, old or new. And without obligation on your part.

A word of caution ...to those about to build or buy a home

Yesterday has passed. Don't accept yesterday's standards in the furnace room.

The day of hand-fired heating is nearly over. Beware of a house that is "1930 upstairs, 1890 in the basement."

Be sure to install automatic heating, both as a constant comfort and delight to your household and as a necessary protection to your investment in case of resale. Modern America has passed beyond the stage of accepting the inconvenience, dirt and irregularities of hand-fired heating.

Don't tie up your money in a house that is out-of-date before you move in. The easiest way to insure yourself against the depreciation which results from an antiquated furnace room is to install

A NUMBER of interesting style tendencies are apparent in the new fall fabrics for interior decoration. Chief among these is a return to elegance, with a decided feminine influence evident in both designs and types of material. Fine brocades, damasks, satins and silk velvets are in demand, particularly satins and brocades in antique finish. While 18th Century English patterns continue to predominate, there is a strong trend towards French motifs, particularly of the Directoire and Empire Schools. Early American and Federal patterns are still a large factor but the vogue for Spanish designs seems to have completely passed. This does not mean, however, that fabrics of Spanish design should not be used where they are the logical medium. Patterns, in general, are smaller and there is a noteworthy demand for rough surfaced materials and fabrics in which there is a feeling of texture. In the matter of color, blue is present, white is important, several well-known decorators featuring white rooms. Many charming fabrics are available for the white decorative scheme—damask, brocade, taffeta, satin and moire in all shades of white, ivory, cream and biscuit. Green, while still important, has given place to blue. Next in demand are the coral, henna and peach tones, peach being particularly favored for bedroom decoration; raisin and plum shades are also coming to the fore. Printed linens and glazed chintz curtains lead as curtain fabrics. Dark ground chintz curtains and linens in such colors as eggplant, tete de nègre, dark wine red, plum, green and deep sapphire blue are more popular than the neutral shades.

JOHNSON & FAULKNER, now in their beautiful new quarters in East Fifty-third Street, are meeting the demand for greater elegance in decoration by featuring an excellent collection of brocades, damasks, silk velvets and chintz, authentic in design and of great richness and beauty. In addition, this firm, which has long been famous for its glazed chintz curtains and lovely block printed linens, is.

offering a new line of inexpensive brocades in silk and cotton mixtures, as well as moderately priced tapastries, linens and chintzes in charming designs and splendid color range. Among these is a quilted tapestry with a small flower pattern; suitable for Early American rooms. Then there is a fifty-inch linen with a small, all-over flower pattern in henna or green that would make effective bedspreads or slip covers combined with curtains of Jacobean linen featuring the same flower motif here and there in the design. Among the higher priced damasks, there are some gorgeous yellows, a number of lovely apricot shades, and a new pale amber tone so usable that it is certain to prove popular.

THE fall fabrics featured by F. Schumacher & Company will make every woman want to pull her house to pieces and start all over again, so attractive are the new designs in both curtain and upholstery materials. Outstanding among the chintzes are some lovely Directoire patterns, one with a classic design of swans and sheaves of wheat in beige and mauve on turquoise blue being particularly decorative. Also there are several patterns featuring feathers, one by Paul Poiré being shown on page 113 of this issue. Plumes were a favorite decorative motif in the 18th Century and these designs could be used appropriately with any furniture of that period, as well as in a room of modern inspiration. For a man's room or library, there is a new English design with a strong Victorian feeling. A stag and doe at rest in a leafy covert set in a medallion of arabesques, with a shell motif at its base, furnish the main theme which is developed in an interesting color range. Among the moderately priced Waverly prints is an engaging design for a child's room showing scenes from the immortal childhood classic Tom Sawyer. This print is soon to be used for the cover of a special edition of the book. It would make amusing curtains or slip covers, and diamond shaped motifs could be cut from it and used for appliqués on pillows.
This firm is also stressing rough surfaced materials and fabrics with a feeling of texture. Among these are some heavy linens in plain tones or woven in stripes to simulate old-fashioned rag carpeting. Other novelties are a new block printed damask on a fine mercerized cotton warp satin with linen back, a moire made entirely of rayon and developed in sixteen colors, and cotton velvet now available in white.

THE Permatex fabrics for curtains and upholstery handled by Lehman-Connor grow increasingly popular due to their well designed and practical qualities. A decorative pattern illustrated on page 112, designed in the manner of German wall paper, is excellent for winter sunrooms as well as for outdoor porch or terrace use. This firm also sponsors a new heavy linen in plain tones with a rough strié surface that gives an antique hand-made look. This comes in green, tan and brown and combines well with some new figured linens in modern designs by Donald Deskey. Also

Beauty in Kentshah carpets

This beautiful plain seamless carpet differs entirely from any machine-made carpet, and will give the same glow to the room as an Oriental rug. It is in fact and in weave an Oriental, but plain in color—either neutral or colorful tones. In its darker shades it is particularly suitable for the living room, while the lighter pastel colorings are desirable for the bedroom. Soft and lustrous under foot, its high lights eliminate footprints. It is made seamless up to twenty-one feet wide available on prompt delivery.

This carpet can be seen at any of our showrooms or at our Architects Samples Exhibits in New York, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Los Angeles.

Only by seeing and feeling Kentshah can one appreciate its lovely quality; a sample will be sent upon request. In writing kindly specify color tone desired.

Wednesday—Manila. Nobody laughs now when the waiter speaks to me in Spanish! I already know 50 words. Manila's a great place. On the go every minute since we arrived last Friday. Plenty of Spanish atmosphere! We took a two-wheeled, four-footed "Calésa"—the native taxis of Manila and jogged over to Intramuros—the old Spanish walled city. Built in Magellan's time. 1500 something. Moorish type houses with grilled windows, of translucent oyster shells instead of glass. Fragrant acacia trees and magnolias shade the courtyards. The great Cathedral is as inspiring as any we saw in Italy. Visited the University of Santo Tomas—founded before anybody ever stepped on Plymouth Rock. That's a long time... Even the Aquarium is built in an old stone vault. Interesting, too. Black crocodiles, wicked sharks and green-eyed turtles wink at us.

The outside walls of Intramuros are 8 feet thick. Concealed iron-spiked gates ready to drop on the enemy... but no enemy now. Everybody smiles. Black-eyed native girls with balloon sleeves made of pineapple cloth. Their favorite fruit is a long black cigar. They lure us into their hat shops. Didn't know there were so many hats in the world. Many are woven by hand under water—so fine. And only a few pesos apiece. (A peso is 50 cents in our language). Then we shopped at all the lace and linen places. Fine things. Handsome carved chests and furniture.

Thursday—Bacolod. Only one church in the world... saw where Admiral Dewey made a name for himself. Drove to Fort McKinley for tea and stopped at the ruins of Guadalupe. Enormous monastery built in 1601. . Came back by way of Bilbilid prison. Saw them weaving wicker things. Handsome carved chests and furniture.

Tuesday—One more feather in our caps! Now, we've shot the rapids of Pagsanjan. The hectic tourist traveler doesn't know what he's missing. What luck that we stopped over two weeks. That's a grand advantage of the President Liners. Early in the morning we motored to Pagsanjan. Through deep tropical forests with monkeys chattering in the trees. Wild cockatoos. And bunches of bananas hanging upside down, to our surprise. Passed jumbled native villages. Down at the river we climbed into little dug-out canoes called bonitos.

Then up the narrow 3-mile gorge. 500 feet deep. To the falls. Now, down we go—with a whirl and a splash. Zoom! At times completely lost in spray. But not a canoe topples. Another cataract—and another. What thrills. The fastest ride of my life. A fitting climax for a high-week-end. (We're certainly having a lottier gayer time in the Orient than we had in Europe last summer).

On the President Liners you have the same freedom as on a private yacht. You virtually write your own ticket and see the world as you want to see it. The fastest ride of my life. A fitting climax for a high-week-end. (We're certainly having a lot gayer time in the Orient than we had in Europe last summer).
In full autumn beauty... Historic Quebec

Five miles of gold... that's a hard-maple woods. A mountain-side of blazing scarlet... that's red-maple out-blazing a forest fire. Yonder is crimson of oak... shimmering pale yellow of birches... deep-green gravity of pines. Through it all runs the great St. Lawrence seaway to Europe, flowing between two ribbons of harvest, the Norman river-farms that took their title-deeds from King Louis of France and are farmed by the same families today. A lovely land, Quebec in harvest time... perfect all through September and October. Nowhere on the eastern seaboard will you find a motor-run to equal the Quebec trip... 600 miles from New York, and grand roads all the way.

QUEBEC FOLK-DANCE AND FOLK-SONG FESTIVAL

At the end of the run, you slip under a stone archway into the mediaeval courtyard of Chateau Frontenac, baronial castle-hotel. The famous Quebec Folk-Dance and Folk-Song Festival is held here, October 16, 17, and 18... a week-end of picturesque peasant carnival, drawing the most celebrated habitants singers, dancers and fiddlers of the province... a fête like nothing else on the continent... the perfect time to see unspoiled Quebec at its best.

Full information and reservations at any Canadian Pacific office, or write to Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, Canada. New York, 344 Madison Avenue... Chicago, 71 E. Jackson Blvd... Boston, 405 Boylston Street... and 32 other cities in the U. S. and Canada.
Legends...gripping Sagas of the South Seas aglow with the eerie light of crackling koa logs, pounding with the pulse of great gourd drums and the ominous chant of crouching warrior bands, yield up their bronze-skinned heroes in Autumn Pageantry to recall and make real again the Festal Days of old Hawaii.

Festive Time in Hawaii is November, a month of mellow glory set apart in ancient days for tests of valor and recital in vivid drama of stirring tales of frail canoes on trackless seas...of gods and goddesses who painted Hawaiian skies or turned slumbering mountain giants into fiery lava forges...of epic Autumn nights woven of the wonder of rippling velvet waters touched with the gold of a rising tropic moon.

Time has not stilled the voice of Old Hawaii. It spans the oceans with the winds and lures in Fall a definite class of followers eager for a glimpse into Hawaii's historic past...for living pictures of regal splendor...for the staccato beat of split bamboo and the shuffle of bare brown feet...for a succession of exotic pageant events spread over idyllic weeks when the Isles of Unbelievable Beauty borrow the peace of a placid ocean and radiantly bask in their rainbow tints.

There will be no regret for Summer's passing if you plan your Fall in Hawaii...November and December are bright with the verve of Spring. There is no reluctant leave-taking of fading flower or blossom...no autumnal chill to dull the zest of splashing spray or dim the sparkle of the morning round of golf. There is no icy threat of winter in the caress of fragrant South Sea breezes...just the whispered lure of a lovely land that bids the traveller "Linger!" Hawaii is just a few days away. Liners as proud as any that float make the voyage over sun-smoothed seas in four to six days from the four gateways of the Pacific.

SWEDEN

A lifetime’s experience in 140 days! A vast and vivid panorama of the world’s scenic wonders—a gorgeous pageant of different peoples, contrasting customs—on “The Voyage of Your Dreams.” 33 strange lands—Egypt and the Holy Land—Somaliland and a Tour Across India—Indo-China and Siam—Angkor Wat and the Island of Bali—Ceylon, Java and Borneo—China, Japan and Hawaii. Drink in their mysterious beauty—gather their exquisite silks, carvings and curios. And all the time you are enjoying the luxury and cool comfort of the “Queen of Cruising Steamships.”

Rates, $2000 and up, include an extraordinary program of shore excursions to innumerable points of scenic and historic interest.

EASTWARD FROM NEW YORK JANUARY 6, 1931

Visiting each country at the ideal season.

Mediterranean and Adriatic

On the luxurious S.S. HAMBURG Here is The Mediterranean Cruise de Luxe for 1931. Never has there been any to equal it! Every country bordering the Mediterranean and Adriatic will be visited. The cruise follows the seasons—outward along the Coast of Africa, homeward along the European Coast. 70 days (New York to New York). The price, including a great program of shore excursions, is $1900 to, with return passage from Hamburg, Cherbourg or Southampton by any ship of the Line up to Dec. 31, 1931.

FROM NEW YORK JAN. 31, 1931

Also short cruises in the Mediterranean by S.S. Oceana, from European ports.

West Indies

Another season of those far-famed “Pleasure Pirate Pilgrimages,” from New York: Special Christmas Cruises on the ever-popular S.S. RELIANCE and RESOLUTE, 16 days, $200 and up; four other Winter cruises on the famous RELIANCE, 16 to 27 days, $200 and $300 and up.

Write for descriptive literature of the cruise in which you are interested.
... and Italy, the perfect vacation-land, offers variety in abundance. The jewel-cities of the world are here: graceful Venice, proud Rome, medieval Florence... and when you tire of their treasures, there is the beckoning gleam of the vast Mediterranean, sunny hill towns with their colorful life, the lofty Dolomites, and the famous Italian lakes which reflect a sky unbelievably blue and bright. This time, come to Italy!

De luxe hostelries, and hotels at moderate rates. Motorbus service and connections with fast trains. Sleeping car accommodations. Information gladly given at any Travel Bureau.
The path to achievement is lined with the headstones of men who couldn't stop work. Earnest, unselfish martyrs to the modern fetish of material success.

In the hall of achievement are seated the men whose wives made them rest; who were quick to detect the signs of incipient breakdown, who demanded a respite from the relentless, health-destroying grind of modern business.

Wives must do this, for their husbands' welfare—and their own. A winter cruise via Red Star or White Star lines is ideal for rest, relaxation; for paving the way to new interest, new zest, new romance in life. The following cruises are packed with health and recreation—and the price of these all-important rest periods is surprisingly moderate. Let us send you the booklet, "Watch Your Husband." It may be worth thousands of dollars to you and your loved ones.

Around the World—Life's grandest travel adventure! Red Star liner Belganland, most famous world cruising ship. Sails westward from New York, December 15. Duration, 133 days. Over a six-times-tried and proved itinerary. $1750 (up) including shore excursions.

Mediterranean—Great White Star liner Britannic (new) and Adriatic. 46 days, calling at the principal points of tourist interest. Sailing: January 8 and 17, February 26, March 7. Rates: $695-$750 (up) 1st Class; $420 TOURIST Third Cabin—both including shore excursions.

Address your inquiry for descriptive literature and for the booklet "Watch Your Husband" to Desk F, I. M. M. Company, No. 1 Broadway, New York City.

Living Investments

Real Estate is one of the few investments that you needn’t put in a safe deposit vault and worry about! You can live on it... build on it... plant it—while it increases enormously in value!

The real estate advertisers in this magazine will help you find just the property you want... at the price you want to pay. If they don’t serve your interest, write to this Department and we will gladly put you in touch with a reliable broker for the locality you are interested in.

Why not write today to a few of these agents for a list of their prices and holdings?

If the property you want to sell, or lease, is the kind of property that would appeal to the discriminating taste of the readers of House & Garden, then obviously the place to advertise it is in these pages, where it will meet the eyes of thousands of prospects who will appreciate its fineness. Advertising rates will be furnished, or your agent, promptly upon application to Garden, 1930 Graybar Bldg., Lexington at 44th, New York City.

THE FIRST ANNUAL

HOUSE & GARDEN EXPOSITION

AT THE GRAND CENTRAL PALACE, NEW YORK CITY

MARCH 30TH TO APRIL 4TH, 1931

Conducted by The American Arts Exposition Corporation—George W. Harper, Managing Director—under the auspices of House and Garden Magazine

• To offer the American people a clear, concise and captivating vision of all that modern art, modern science and modern industrial genius have contributed to achieving perfection in the planning, building, equipping and decorating of the home of today is the purpose of the House and Garden Exposition.

The sponsorship of the event is distinguished. The management is the same that has conducted the extraordinarily successful Antique Expositions in New York, Boston and Philadelphia. It has now arranged an appropriate and brilliant setting for a series of notable displays illustrating every aspect of the arts and crafts that enter into the making and maintaining of the home and its environment.

All sections of the public, whether to them home means a tiny suite of rooms, a suburban dwelling, or a far-flung estate, will find in the House and Garden Exposition a new revelation of comfort, convenience and beauty, a fresh stimulus to the enjoyment of life. Their attendance is most cordially invited.

Individuals and firms whose activities as designers, manufacturers, distributors or assemblers of things that add to the practical utility or the aesthetic value of the home entitle them to participate, are invited to become exhibitors in the House and Garden Exposition. Three floors of the Grand Central Palace have been reserved for their accommodation.

Growing realization of the nation-wide significance of the event, however, implies the advisability of making immediate reservations of space to insure adequate area in a satisfactory location.

All inquiries concerning the House and Garden Exposition should be addressed to—

It is in the hall that everybody gets the first impression of your home—the impression which may mean so much you cannot afford to let shabbiness threaten it.

Floor beauty, halls must have. Permanent floor beauty they should have. If you can get all this at a cost more reasonable than you had believed possible (as you can with Sealex), so much the better. Your reflooring worries cease to be a burden to you at all.

Refloor with Sealex Linoleum for lasting satisfaction

You will welcome the speed, ease and lack of muss with which Sealex is laid. Gone in a few hours unsightly floors, and with them a room decoration problem. For whatever preference suggests, decoration demands or pocketbook dictates—you will find in stain-proof, spot-proof Sealex some pattern, some color effect, some design, that you will linger over—and joyfully make your own.

It may be a richly marblized inlaid, an embossed tile, or a duotone jaspé. But it will be lovely. And it will last. How much in pleasure, pride, added leisure and permanent satisfaction this enduring linoleum will mean to you, the passing years alone can tell. Time is in partnership with Sealex!

"Since most halls are not large enough for elaborate furniture groupings, decorative interest centres on walls and floors. Wall paper in hunting scenes, red taffeta curtains, and Sealex Linoleum No. 2621 in black and cream squares make a striking background." From Color & Charm in Home Interiors pp. 1.

Send for the delightful book, "Color and Charm in Home Interiors"

It includes many color illustrations—each a definite suggestion for the woman interested in doing over rooms in good taste. A feature is the "Color Harmony Guide," which makes it easy to choose furniture, hangings, walls and floors—in harmony with one another. Sent postpaid for 25c. Address: Congoleum-Nairn Inc., Kearny, N. J.
Our new neighbors are the nicest people

When the home that was planned so carefully is really open—you realize as never before the significance of all its refinements. Pleasant people drop in to welcome the newcomers, and go home to discuss them. Your tastes and living habits are local news of first importance.

Quality tells—quality shown not so much by the coat you wear and the car you drive, the things the grocer's boy can see, but in the more intimate evidences of training and insight. In the vital corners of the home that expose your whole philosophy.

No room in the house is more expressive than the bathroom. This truth has always inspired Kohler craftsmen. Kohler baths and lavatories and closets are graceful in form, pleasing in color, flawless in finish. Their masterpiece quality goes straight through, to the inner details of water flow, to all the hidden particulars that mean so much in efficiency, safety, permanence.

Many of the big advances in fixtures and fittings were made by the Kohler Co. Color in the bathroom was a Kohler development. So were the one-piece built-in bath, the one-piece lavatory, the electric dish-washer sink, the Duosstrainer for kitchen sinks, and other innovations of equal importance.

An all-Kohler bathroom... without extra expense Kohler fixtures, in color, with Kohler fittings to complete their beauty and usefulness add little to the price you might have paid for ordinary design and temporary service. Whether you plan a $500 bathroom or a $5000 one, Kohler quality costs the same to own and saves money later on.

You will find Kohler bathroom and kitchen fixtures in the finest new homes you visit. If you plan to build or remodel, a talk with your architect will confirm your high opinion—and your plumbing contractor's figure will show the good sense of an all-Kohler installation. Meanwhile, write for free Booklet A-9, which has a number of attractive groupings and various bright ideas on home plumbing...

Kohler of Kohler

ELEVEN IMPORTANT POINTS

1. Kohler designs are decorative, purposeful, correct.
2. Enamel—fused with an everlasting bond... keeps its smooth, glistening surface.
3. Vitreous china—armored with a flat, lustrous, lasting glaze.
4. Kohler colors are soft, livable pastels. The white is a perfect white.
5. Metal fittings match the fixtures in style, character and quality.
6. Made of finest materials... show craftsmanship and care.
7. This year's Kohler products are next year's new ideas in plumbing.
8. Kohler quality extends to kitchen and laundry.
9. Kohler quality costs no more... and saves money later.
10. Handled and installed by qualified plumbers.
11. Backed by an entire community... beautiful Kohler Village.
The royal potteries at Tell-el-Amarma had been turning out some beautiful tile about 1000 B.C., but Rameses was a progressive individual himself. The whips of his slave drivers cracked. The huge columns rolled into place. Just outside of Memphis he stood and gazed critically down his hooked yellow nose at the beautiful tiles so treasured by the Egyptian monarchs—sky blue backgrounds inlaid with fishes and birds...white daisies and blue thistles, delicate greens, brilliant reds.

These royal Egyptian tiles are discovered today with their beauty unaffected by the centuries. And now you can have even greater beauty in Pardee real tiles...and the same wearing qualities, thanks to Pardee's exclusive screening and high-firing process. You have a real and lasting satisfaction...a welcome freedom from repairs in Pardee tiles...economic installations for every budget.

Pardee tiles deserve a BONDED installation which is guaranteed by a large indemnity company. Architects consider this a remarkable tribute to Pardee tiles and their tile contractors. Pardee supplies whatever you need in tile.

Pardee Tiles and Matawan Ceramics, both famous for their quality, are now sold by the Pardee-Matawan Tile Co.
Your Architect says:
"You'll get better results and pleasanter rooms by installing concealed heat."

Your Heating Contractor says:
"I can give you a more satisfactory heating job if you OK concealed heaters."

Your Decorator says:
"By all means, get concealed heat and your rooms will be much more beautiful."

And the guardian of the budget says:
"Concealed heat will save us quite a bit on cleaning and redecorating. It will save fuel. And we certainly can afford this modern kind of heating, since they brought the price down to the level of old-fashioned radiators."

Why not give your new home MODERN HEATING Without Radiators?

"Thumbs down" for radiators. "Thumbs up" for concealed heaters.

That's the verdict of the men who help you build your home. And it is rapidly becoming the unanimous verdict of home owners, since Trane brought the cost of modern, efficient concealed heat down to the price range of old-fashioned cast iron radiators.

Here, in quick outline, are the reasons why thoughtful home owners are installing Trane Concealed Heat:

It multiplies your hours of solid comfort. There are no stabbing radiant rays. The air indoors is invigorating, because Trane heaters circulate the air. The floors are warm. The heat is turned on or off in an instant—no uncomfortable minutes of waiting for radiators to get hot or cool.

Trane Concealed Heat brings a renaissance of true interior beauty. It does away with bulky radiators, the despair of the decorator. And it says goodbye to the days when drapes and curtains became streaked soon after cleaning, and rooms had to be redecorated every year to hide the radiator smudges.

What's more, these remarkable heaters save fuel. The average in Trane installations is a 10% to 15% reduction in fuel bills.

So, while you are making your new home modern in every respect, don't overlook the heaters that will keep you comfortable most of the year. Be sure you get the best—efficient, low cost Trane Concealed Heaters. The coupon brings you a booklet which tells the whole interesting story of modern heating without radiators. Send for your copy today.

Cockers of Today

Robert S. Lemmon

EVERY now and then, even in the life of one who has written so long about dogs that he sometimes wonders how many more years he can keep it up, there comes up for attention a breed of such outstanding appeal that its chronicler feels like starting all over again. Having tried to interpret just about everything canine from Schipperkes to St. Bernards, he draws a breath of relief when it comes to a dog like the Cocker Spaniel.

For there is so much to be said about the Cocker, and you can say it so easily! Indeed, when you have come to know one of these dogs well you get the feeling that he says a good deal of it himself, for of all the breeds I know, with...

the possible exception of the Setters, there is none which is so frank, so clearly expressive, so wholly open-hearted and obviously eager to be understood. A typical Cocker's character has nothing to conceal and you can read it almost at a glance.

To say that this cheerful little fellow is honest, intelligent, devoted, utterly dependable and very easy to look at is quite inadequate. It is entirely beyond my powers of word-juggling to give even half an idea of the sort of attachment which develops between such a dog and his owner; that is one of those things which, like the new Ford, you can't realize until you've tried it. Furthermore, to try and put it in print would be too much of an exposé of the English language.

The Cocker of today is a real dog, a workable dog, a sturdy fellow capable of giving a good account of himself in the hunting field, even as he did generations ago. There was a time when he seemed in danger of becoming a mere, although immensely appealing, bench-show dog, but certain breeders stepped into that breach and re-established in him the strength of bone and muscle and the ruggedness of constitution which had formerly been his. Today he is more to be desired than ever.

You really need have no reservations about deciding on a Cocker Spaniel. He is small enough for the city, big enough for the country and companionable enough for anywhere. His beauty is not just skin-deep; it goes all the way through to the soul. If you are looking for a really fine dog for showing or breeding, for working or just as a companion and guard, Kencroft can supply you with the ideal specimen.

“The Perfect Pals”

Kencroft Collies are called “The Perfect Pals” because they are bred not only for beauty, but also for the wonderful qualities that have made these aristocrats of dogdom famous.

Freshen Your House

with House & Garden's Second Book of Interiors

You carry a mirror-compact in your purse, don't you? You peep at yourself in it...powder your nose...tuck in a curl...of course!

How long is it since you've done that little critical service for your house? Would a caller see how shabbily your comfortable couch is?...that your curtains are not-so-bright?...that your wallpaper is outmoded? Has your house's nose gone a bit shiny without your noticing it?

House & Garden's Second Book of Interiors will show you what needs to be done, and how to do it with the least possible expense and the minimum of mistakes.

700 pictures of interiors that cost thousands, yours to study, free...tables of color-schemes...an outline of period furniture...addresses of the foremost decorators...a catalogue of reference books...a list of brochures issued by manufacturers of household equipment...the "how-to" sort of thing in all house problems...the cream of House & Garden skimped six years of publishing. And all for only $5...less than the cost of refreshing a single chair.

Vogue's Book of Schools

JUST PUBLISHED

After fourteen years of investigating private schools . . . fourteen years of intelligent study along educational lines . . . fourteen years of helping parents to find the best schools for their children . . .

After fourteen years of knowing schools, Vogue’s school experts have published an authoritative book—Vogue’s Book of Schools.

This book covers in detail every type of private school that exists today—nursery schools . . . primary schools . . . schools for exceptional children . . . military schools . . . college preparatory schools . . . finishing schools . . . junior colleges . . . vocational schools . . . European schools.

Vogue’s Book of Schools discusses each kind of school with reference to the important features that should be investigated before deciding on which type of school to select for your child.

We will be glad to send you a copy of Vogue’s Book of Schools—it may be of great value to you as a reference book when you are investigating the fine schools that advertise in these pages.

Let us know if you would like to have this book, or if we can be of personal service to you in solving your school problems.

TO one who has noted how completely Nature changes the decoration of her home each autumn there can be scant surprise that human houses should go through annual transformations sometimes quite as great. The summer curtains of the trees are stripped away, the slip-covers of lawn and flower border are taken off and stored until such time as warm weather shall return. Why should not we, too, alter the inward appearance of our abode? Whether in Nature or in Man, there is need of this periodic change. The tropics, green from year's end to year's end, grow deadly monotonous. Colors and forms can pall no less than foods. Let them not become too habitual.
Sea-going chocolates

A favorite package of Whitman's for all forms of sports is the SALMAGUNDI.

Put up in metal boxes holding one pound or two pounds.

Out of doors they combine quick energy and quiet enjoyment in your search for "where the blue begins." Chosen as companion by experienced travelers by land, water or air.

In summertime when you crave chocolates look for the Salmagundi's cheerful tin, decorated by Mucha.

Salmagundi and other Whitman specialties are sold by selected stores all over the country, and at every resort.

Any telegraph office will take your order and cash for any Whitman package; purchase the package at any distant point and deliver by uniformed messenger.
The Boundary God

_Inscription for a country place_

The vanished Golden Age

Rear'd shapes of stone and wood

To warn where friends might pass,

And where none other should.

This is our spot of flowers.

Our choice, luxurious sod—

We've left the latch-string out,

Yet reared a boundary god!

The latch-string's for our friends

To offer hospitality, round the heart:

Who come with kindly thoughts,

With kindly thoughts, depart. . . .

We stroll here with the dawn

And hear God's voice walk still;

And watch the dusk's first star

Close at our window-sill:

Hand folded into hand

Before the evening fire.

We house a private bliss

That hurts no man's desire!

_Harry Kemp_

Servicing Furniture. May it be accounted for grace to the credit of one New York furniture maker that his interest in a chair or table does not cease when it is sold. A year after it has been in your house, along comes a representative of that firm to inspect it. Is it standing the wear and tear of children? Is its upholstery in good shape? How about the springs? Perhaps it needs a wax rub to keep the wood in condition. These things are noted, repairs are made. And you realize that under such care an honestly-built piece of furniture has a chance of becoming an heirloom. We recommend this service to other furniture dealers.

Photographic Records. The Library of Congress is now undertaking to collect photographic negatives of our ancestral architecture that may, in the course of time, be doomed to destruction, and thus to afford at Washington a research center for students of Early American homes and buildings. Costumes, furniture and utensils of the past generally find a safe repository in museums, but so far no photographic record exists covering the architectural past of the entire United States. The Library of Congress is now soliciting negatives for such archives. They will be carefully indexed, the owner's name recorded and no prints furnished without his consent. These negatives may be sent to Leicester B. Holland, Division of Fine Arts, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.

The Need for Design. Many people labor under the notion that because a garden has an obvious design it is formal. Somehow they have caught the idea that informality means absence of design. Anything with straight lines and the slightest touch of architectural trimming in the way of walls, pools and garden shelters, is immediately set down as formal—and to be avoided like the plague.

For a matter of fact, very few good gardens, however naturalistic or informal they may be, have been made without a plan. It is often more difficult to plan informally than formally, because the latter type of garden is easy to scale out from hundreds of examples, whereas the informal type depends on the lay of the land for its design, and no two lays are the same. "Slovenly carelessness" was the term applied by Humphrey Reptron, the great English landscape architect, to the kind of informal garden that was made without plan.

One great difference between the formal garden and the informal is that in the formal the design is obvious, in the informal it is less pronounced.

Bedroom Schemes. This era of thrift has made fashionable the exercise of domestic talents. We are all too apt to see sewing and embroidery as mere diversions among women. Certainly it would be a relief to the eternal rounds of bridge and the haunting of country clubs. To encourage this revival the House & Garden has sponsored schemes for bedroom decoration. In July we showed how to drape a dozen and one dressing tables, in this current issue the bedcovers to accompany these tables are described, and in subsequent numbers other accessories will be explained. Some of the schemes simple, some are more ambitious, all can be made—in fact, the dressing tables have already been produced for display by one New York department store.

The Civic Annual. This past summer saw the second appearance of the Annual of the American Civic Association, a volume replete with information on the movements going forward in this country to make it more beautiful, more healthful, more at the service of all the people of this and succeeding generations. The diversity of effort being made today is truly amazing. Old prejudices are being overcome and, it is hoped, more popular support is being gained as towns and cities authorize and the citizenry realize that these idealistic improvements and regulations make for better living and for an improved land heritage. We recommend this service to other cities.

Lettre. They order those things better in Soviet Russia. To the cigarette butt on the pavement, and you're seized by the police, throw a paper into the street and they clap you into jail. In the parks and highways of this supposedly more enlightened republic, waste boxes are provided and the tourist who doesn't know how to use them soon learns. Would that some of this sanitary sense might be used here! The condition of our parks after a holiday is beyond belief. Throwing paper seems to have become the all-American method of expressing exuberance and democracy.

Autumnal Fires. September is the ideal month for checking up the heating apparatus. See that your chimney is clean and smokeless and that the stove or the fireplace is in good working order. By now the coal bins should be filled. There is still time to install a new heating system if the old one is unsatisfactory. With these domestic jobs finished, one can face the winter with an easy mind.

Grouping Furniture
In Living Rooms For Comfort And Effect

Margaret McElroy

The manner in which furniture is placed in a living room has as much to do with the ultimate effect as the intrinsic beauty of the pieces themselves. The first requisite of a room of this kind is livability; livability in the way furniture is used as much as the type of pieces selected. While a certain degree of formality is both restful and pleasing to the eye, comfort and convenience are essential and it will be found that the logical positions for chairs and tables are usually the most effective ones.

There are three centers of interest in a living room, whether it be large or small. The fireplace claims first attention as it is the point towards which people naturally gravitate. Seating furniture should be grouped about it comfortably and may consist of a pair of small matching sofas at either side, with tables at the ends. Or there may be a small sofa and end table, or two overstuffed chairs, on one side opposed by a large overstuffed chair and table, or two armchairs, one overstuffed and one wooden with a small table between, on the other. This grouping takes care of three or four people comfortably. If the room is small, a facing easy chair on either side of the fireplace, with convenient small tables nearby, provides seating space and creates a nicely balanced group in this section of the room.

In a room of good size, a sofa may be placed in front of the fireplace, with a table behind it and two easy chairs at either end slightly in front. This livable treatment requires a fairly large room but is an excellent solution for the winter months. The essentials of a successful fireplace arrangement are adequate chairs for a group of people to sit comfort-

Fortunate is the room which is blessed with a fireplace, for here is the focal point of interest without further ado—the spot towards which people naturally gravitate. For this reason, the arrangement of the furniture surrounding the hearth should be invitingly hospitable, providing ample room in which a group can dispose itself comfortably. The illustration above, for instance, shows the use of two matching small sofas, placed at right angles to the fireplace and supplying space for four people to sit comfortably by the hearth. This old English pine room with its exquisitely carved Georgian mantel, 18th Century furniture and softly toned fabrics is in Southampton, L. I., the home of William R. Simonds. Thedlow, Inc., were the decorators. At the right is a suggestion for a furniture arrangement in a room where the fireplace is not centered but near one corner as so frequently happens. When this is the case, the sofa and end tables should not be placed close to the hearth, as in the room illustrated at the top of the page, but back against the wall in order not to waste space. In this arrangement a bergère with small table beside it faces the sofa and together with an oval rug, chair and small tables forms a charming group
Slightly less formal than the fireplace arrangement illustrated on the opposite page is the one shown above. Here, the small sofa standing on the left is approximately balanced by the two armchairs on the right—a pleasant grouping which is, at the same time, sufficiently elastic to be adaptable to the needs of the moment. In this sitting room, which is in Bertha Schaefer's New York apartment, lacquer red leather, apricot and terra cotta silk, and an aubergine marbled chimney piece are effective notes against silvery green walls.

Similar in the livable disposition of its individual pieces is the fireplace group illustrated at the right in the living room of R. E. Lasater in Winston-Salem, N. C. The Louis XV provincial sofa on the left has a walnut frame with upholstery of red and cream linen. Facing it to form a nicely balanced effect are a large overstuffed chair with slip cover of green floral chintz and a small beech armchair with seat cushion in yellow quilted percale. Between these a small table for books and smoking accessories is conveniently interposed. Walls in this room are old pine and the curtains are of cream grounded chintz with large bouquets of brilliant flowers. The W. E. Browne Decorating Company were the decorators.
Frequently space can be gained by placing furniture in front of a wide window. Care should be taken in this arrangement to center the main piece. If smaller pieces are used at either side, they should be selected to form balanced groups. An example of this treatment appears in the English living room above, where a large sofa stands in the center of a shallow bay, flanked by balanced tables and chairs. The curtains are of red brocché silk, sofa is in red ground ed figured linen and the chairs have coverings of olive green wool damask. It is in the home of Mrs. Sigmund Stein, Scarsdale, N. Y., Bertha Schaefer, decorator. In the English living room below, a window forms a background for a desk group. Here the walls are of old pine and the hangings figured linen with brown ground over yellow silk draw curtains. Carpet is brown; greenish blue damask and yellow striped satin cover the furniture. In the New York apartment of George Siedenburg, Walter Johnson, decorator.

As the window is one of the three centers of interest in a room, there should be comfortable seating facilities: upholstered chair or chairs, sofa or long bench nearby. The sketch above shows furniture arranged in a room where the window is off center—too frequent occurrence in many of our modern apartments. This unbalanced effect may be partially overcome by furniture placed at the same distance from the window on one side as the wall group on the opposite side, with a screen behind to serve as background.

When Windows Are

The Backgrounds
A long, side wall is the logical place for a sofa group which should contain, in addition to a four-foot or six-foot sofa, flanking tables for lamps, and two easy chairs placed conveniently at either end to provide comfortable seating space for a group of people. Two excellent examples of this type of wall group appear on this page. Above is a room in Winston-Salem, N. C., the residence of N. V. Stockton, showing a wall arrangement as well as a desk group in a window. Here an old paper in natural colors, with woodwork painted gray blue, forms the background for an English Empire sofa in green figured moire, a Louis XV armchair with copper and blue brocade and a Louis XVI bergère in powder blue velvet. Curtains are daffodil yellow taffeta and the rug is aubergine color. W. E. Browne. Below is practically the same arrangement in a room with silvery green walls, green carpet, bergères in yellow faille and a sofa in dull red damask. Bertha Schaefer, decorator.

A piano is the most difficult piece of furniture to place effectively on account of its size and distinctive shape. If it must stand in the living room, it is most successful when placed in a long wall space with the curved side towards the room, and it will seem less large if important pieces of different character are placed at either side. The sketch above shows a group for a side wall using a piano, matching cabinets, wall bracket, painting and bench. This group of unsymmetrical units is so spaced that the effect is balanced and pleasing.

Three Suggestions For Long Wall Spaces

A. A sofa group with flanking tables and easy chairs.
B. A wall arrangement with a desk group.
C. A piano group with matching cabinets, wall bracket, painting and bench.

Trube & Knoll
From Lace Curtains And Back Again

Tides Of Taste In Home Furnishing

The other day someone asked, "Do you think that lace curtains will ever come back into popular favor?"

The question conjured up visions from the past—front parlors with ornate walnut furniture, carpets encrusted with huge roses, marble-top tables, Roger's groups, tidies, whatnots, pier glasses and, at the windows, hung beneath ponderous carved wooden valance boards, cascades of the machine-made lace that gave Nottingham its crowded hour of glory and employment. With these in mind, off-hand one would reply, "No, never."

Then, looking around at the fashions of the day, and considering how fashions come and go, one would be safer in answering that lace curtain question by saying, "Why not?" For if you care to make them so, lace curtains can be a symbol and a sign of an era to which we are no longer ashamed to turn our attention. windshield on dowdy Victorian times strangely fail to raise the hilarity they did before the war: indeed, we are on the verge of another Victorianism, and those with eyes can see it.

Already it has affected women's dress—the longer skirt and the gloved and mitted hand are commonplaces today. Even coiffures threaten the chignon and the waterfall. At dances it is now customary for ladies, both young and old, to take the arm of their escort. We look for a revival of gallantry, for a revival of respect for the opinions of one's elders. And when we arrive at the point where we can respect the opinions of one's grandmother, then we are approaching a new appreciation of the surroundings in which one's grandmother took delight. It is not difficult to imagine taking from a respect for the opinions of one's elders to a revival of the furnishings those elders employed. It is no far cry from the lace mitts on contemporary debutantes to lace curtains on contemporary windows.

These sentiments, of course, are anathema to the Modernist. Between the tubing furniture and functional houses of Modernism and the lace curtains and whatnots of the Victorian era is a vast gulf fixed. They stand at opposite poles. The one fairly oozes tradition and sentiment, the other refuses to acknowledge that such things exist. And however fresh and amusing and stimulating Modernism may be to some, one is doubtful if it will make much headway in the American home.

For its own information House & Garden sent out a questionnaire to several thousand of its readers asking, among other things, their opinion on Modernist architecture and decoration. These were the heads of average high-class American families, people who travel and study and keep up with the styles in clothes, in decoration, in sports, in civic developments, in cultural affairs; in short, people who are not immediately prejudiced against anything new. A little over a third, 37%, evinced keen interest in the Modernist movement; most of them, however, expressed the opinion that for commercial buildings, clubs, restaurants and perhaps powder rooms and home playrooms and bars the Modernist style was better fitted than for general domestic work; 63% stated in no uncertain terms that they had no sympathy with this style and considered it unsuited to the average day-to-day life of the American family. Many expressed the opinion that it was a passing phase of taste from which we would doubtless retain some few vestiges, but adopting it wholly was absurd and uneconomical.

No new and radical movement can ever expect to be taken up in its entirety: it can only add a jot to the philosophy of living and then pass on. Perhaps this is the best we can hope for from Modernism.

In its time Victorianism was no kinder to the past than Modernism is to tradition today. Glorious furniture of Chippendale, Sheraton and the other masters was discarded without a pang; some to the junk man, some to the oblivion of attics and store rooms, there to await resurrection with the coming of another taste and era. Our present attitude toward antiques seems to be saner and kindlier: we are vastly indulgent about them, we are more intelligent about their artistic values. In fact, never before have we shown so much interest in antiques of all kinds. The Antiques Expositions in New York, Philadelphia and Boston are gaining almost as much popular attention as is being given flower shows in those cities. Scouring the highways and byways of the antique belt of New England is one of our most popular outdoor sports today. Peripatetic citizens and their families from the Middle West, the Southwest and even the Pacific Coast show no diminution in their taste for old things; it gives them a touch with the traditional past of America. To some this acquisition of antiques may appear only the cluttering up of their homes with old junk; to others it spells a vivid reminder of our national beginnings.

Tides of taste in home furnishing rise and fall very slowly. Yet the past twenty years have seen the following—the tag end of the 1900 Modern movement that went in for oblong curves; the craze for peasant furniture and colorings in fabrics and ceramics that was at its peak before the Great War; the interest in French Provincial which may be said to have been produced by our participation in the war; a sort of "Lafayette, here-we-are-for-your-furniture" sentiment—which is still enjoying lively appreciation and support; the engulfing wave of interest in all kinds of American antiques, from the homeliest kitchen utensils to the masterpieces of the Federal Era. Meanwhile there have also been evident sympathetic leanings toward late 18th Century French and Italian furniture and in the West and Southwest and lower Pacific Coast, a natural adoption of Spanish furnishings which coordinate with the indigenous and transplanted architecture of the early settlers in those parts. For the past five years—since the Exposition des Arts Décoratifs in Paris, 1925—we have shown a mild interest in the Continental Modernist movement; many of its leaders, alive to our monetary advantages, have settled here and become the flaming spirits of contemporary taste.

These are the tides we can remember as washing around the American home in the past two decades. Consequently, when someone asks, "Do you think that lace curtains will ever come back into popular favor?" we answer, "Why not? Apparently everything else has."

Richardson Wright
Down The Woody Glen

As though to guard its slender loveliness from the wind’s boisterous play the White Birch seeks the sheltered slopes and swales where, daintily aloof, it can lift its gentle curves to a crown of shimmering light. Here, as autumn turns the green to gold, is the abiding contentment of a world fulfilled.
A fine example of Regency decoration is this library at Beech House, Worthing, England, the home of Edward Knoblock, Esq. Walls are painted gray touched with blue at bottom and ornamented with gold lion masks at top from which hang the painted curtain folds. Round-topped pedestal tables are from designs by Thomas Hope as is also the mahogany bookcase. (Left) Regency circular pedestal table, circa 1820, black with gold decoration. The Diversities
Of Regency Furniture

Harold Donaldson Eberlein

ONE of the most agreeable characteristics of Regency furniture is its diversity. In the preceding periods, in spite of the great number of articles that made up the list of household equipments, and in spite of the many minor variations of structure, contour and decoration they often exhibited, there was a certain uniformity of manner they all shared. If a dozen console tables of the same date were not all "as like as two peas," nevertheless they were all unquestionably peas.

In the Regency era it was different. Though there was an unmistakable family resemblance running through all the furniture of the day, there were also a degree and kind of diversity unheard of before. There were, in fact, two cross currents. On the one hand, there was the continuation of tradition that grew out of the past and gradually assimilated new forms in accord with the temper of the times. This tradition was embodied in the work of Hepplewhite's successors in his business and the more familiar designs of Sheraton. On the other hand, there was the direct adaptation of French Directoire forms, along with an unadulterated infusion of Greek and Roman elements immediately derived from archaeological studies. Of this latter phase Thomas Hope was the leading exponent. Thomas Hope was a man of means, an architect, a painter, an author and an accomplished archaeologist.

George Smith, "upholder extraordinary to His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales," and Smith’s fellow tradesmen of lesser fame who also designed, made and sold quantities of furniture, kept one eye on Hope, as their social better and an accepted arbiter of polite popular taste, and the other eye on the latest phase of French fashion. Meanwhile, the more conservative types evolved from the traditional background retained their hold on public favour.

Consequently, the Regency manner became the melting-pot in which these various elements were more or less fused. The process of fusion was carried far enough to create an amalgam, the component items of which all bore a family resemblance; it did not extinguish the individual characteristics of the several elements nor destroy the plain traces of their origin. The family resemblance is hard to define in so many words, but at the bottom of it was a vital directness of form and simplicity born of a

French provincial styles continue a favored medium for country house decoration, as well as for the small city apartment that stresses informality. Furniture of this type predominates in a living room shown on this page in Lake Forest, Ill., where the outstanding pieces are an old Normandy clock, oak cabinet, armchairs in varied designs and an overstuffed chair, standing in front of the bookcase, covered in wool tapestry. The fabrics have the informal quality characteristic of this style, the curtains being checked percale in coral and cream, the slipcover on the wing chair by the table a green flowered chintz, and the upholstery of the wing chair by the bookcase coral, brown and cream quilted cotton. Gray plaster walls and dark oak floor form the background. Earl Hart Miller is the owner and decorator. Harry Howe Bentley, architect.
The dining room illustrated on this page shows again the effectiveness of the French provincial style when used in country house decoration. In this interior, which is in the home of Mrs. Douglas Bomeisler in Greenwich, Conn., the painted background of French landscape scenes, together with the architectural details of panels, doors and recessed shelves, forms a delightful setting for the old tables and chairs made of fruit woods. The murals are painted in full natural color, the country scenes being in soft faded reds, blues, yellows and greens, the moated castles gray-white with red roofs. Doors, wood trim and dado are painted gray-green. The curtains in this room are golden yellow to pick up the numerous yellow tones found in the murals. Leigh French, Jr. was the architect of this house. William C. Palmer painted the panels.
White Rooms In A
Berlin Apartment

Adeline de Voo

The charm of the white room is rarely understood on this continent. Here we are so used to the dulling influence of antiqued or glazed walls, of painted surfaces and wall papers, that we do not realize that the very life and vitality of pure clear color has been taken out of them. Apparently in New York and in all large cities, we are so accustomed to constant accumulations of dust and soot that we forecast their effects by spreading over everything a so-called mellow or antique tone before age does it for us! In smoke ridden cities where the servant question is enough of a problem to make one satisfied with even a semblance of cleanliness, there is some excuse for this tendency. But for those who live in the country, or even in cities where the smoke nuisance is under control, there is no logical reason for the dull backgrounds against which most of us set our lives.

Since time immemorial, in the lesser homes of England, the walls have always been given their yearly coat of white-wash. And often, even in the great baronial houses, the walls are white—an excellent background for the tapestries and warm colored embroideries that are used for hangings and upholstering. In Germany, too, the white wall is found in peasant houses as well as in aristocratic homes, and in each it has its own peculiar charm. But it is of the latter that I have the most persistent memories. I wonder if I can give you even an inkling of the sheer beauty of the white rooms in the lovely home which has been chosen for illustration? They are in an apartment in Lichterfelde, a suburb of Berlin, and belong to Herren Möhrke and Hartmann, two of the greatest artists in interior decoration that I have ever known.

The apartment is in an immense attic which had formerly been used for storage by the tenants of the building. During the war, when the shortage of housing space made it almost impossible to find a building in which to live without taking in another family, my friends found this unoccupied attic. They saw its possibilities, put up partitions dividing the loft into three apartments, and proceeded to make the most of the many dormers and angles in the high, irregular roof. Every room and hall in the entire apartment was painted in tempera, a dead white. Yet in no room was there a feeling of coldness or monotony.

The entrance hall set the keynote of the scheme. The stairway was painted white except for the treads and rail which were lacquered black. Leaded windows on a line well toward the ceiling had sills wide enough to hold large white porcelain vases, one filled with white Petunias allowed to hang down the wall in great profusion, another with masses of white Dahlias and Gladioli. In the corner of the landing a small triangular commode held another white porcelain jar filled with gray-green foliage. This made a delightful approach to the little entrance hall where again everything was finished white—even to the floor of wide boards.

Under the windows was a half round console painted old white, with fine carved wood ornaments of the Louis XVI period done in mellow gold leaf. The window sills held two white urns filled with white Hortensias interspersed with charming little white porcelain birds. Over the door a delightful wood carving in gold formed a shelf for more white porcelain. Curtains here were of oyster white rajah silk. The other console in white and gold had a gold and white mirror above it reflecting a Majolica statue and a low bowl of white, pale blue and mauve Hortensias. Elsewhere in the small room were beautiful bits of pewter of the Louis XV period with white tapers used in the candlesticks. Thus the whole scheme was one of white, silver and gold—a beautifully worked out experiment in values that made me question if this room were not more beautiful and distinguished than a more colorful one.

Passing from the entrance hall to the other side of the house we came to another white room, a little sitting room whose charm and mystery were magnified by an ingenious treatment of architectural irregularities. The photograph at the bottom of this page gives some indication of the way these odd attic corners and angles were utilized and made beautiful. Even such a handicap as a square pillar was used as a base around which to build a tea table, with a cover cut to fit around the post.

The furniture in this room was painted white and gold, the settee, being upholstered with an old linen having a white background and a design in pale blues and tans, so delicate and softly faded that it gave the impression of white. The cloth on the tea table was coarse linen finished with white.

Even Time Now Comes Over
The Wire For The House

Florence R. Claus

This is an age of convenience, of modernization. Homes are planned to give the greatest possible amount of comfort with a minimum amount of effort in maintenance. Automatic operation and control of all household equipment is demanded. The heating system is automatically controlled; the radio is turned off by an unseen but very active force; bread is toasted automatically, without watching, and waffles are baked and coffee percolated without the supervision these operations formerly demanded. The home has gone automatic.

One of the features electricity can bring to the home is time-telling—a 24-hour service. The electric clock which gives this service is not a particularly new device; it has been used for some years in offices, schools, factories and institutions. But it is comparatively recent that this application of electricity has been made available to homes.

An electric clock, like any other clock, is made up of two distinct parts—the mechanism and the case. In electric clock cases the selection is as wide as that of the non-electric group and you can pay less than ten dollars for one, or more than a thousand, depending upon the state of the pocketbook and the size of the house. As to mechanism, three different types are available—the synchronous clock, the electrically-wound and the battery clock. All three have enthusiastic followings.

SYNCHRONOUS TYPES

The synchronous clock is driven by a small synchronous motor. This clock is synchronized at the power station with official time and, once set, will keep perfect time without further regulation unless some break occurs in the power line, from accidents occasioned by lightning storms or through unavoidable breakdowns of the generating or distributing equipment. Connected as it is to the modern power station, there is small likelihood of interruption in the current supply.

This clock operates on alternating current only. In alternating current, as most of us know, the electricity flows first in one direction and then reverses, constituting a “cycle.” In the typical alternating current system, there are sixty cycles a second. The synchronous clock contains no springs, escapements, bearings or pendulum, the small motor directly operating it. A “master” clock, installed at the power station, enables operation of the turbine generators at a speed which checks with U.S. standard observatory time.

Electric time, romantically speaking, journeys to us from the stars through the great telescope of the U.S. observatories, then by wire or radio to the power plant and from there to the home.

CHECKING TIME

In one type of synchronous clock, operation is begun automatically after an interruption in the electrical supply, while in other varieties operation must be started by hand adjustment. Some people believe that this starting feature is convenient and desirable, while others prefer clocks which remain inoperative until checked for time. In all synchronous clocks, however, some warning signal is given on the face to indicate that it must be checked for time. It is advisable to check clocks daily with the correct time broadcast by radio. In checking up my own electric clocks with radio time, I have found that they have varied not more than a second or two in the course of several months.

The synchronous clock is made in practically all the desirable sizes and types—Grandfather, Grandmother, Ship’s Clock, Tambour and Cathedral, boudoir and bouillen with illuminated dial, wall and even in alarm models. They may be had, too, with chime and strike.

In the electrically-wound clocks, which are similar in construction to the hand-wound clocks, except that the spring is wound by a small motor, there are those with lever escapement and those with pendulum movement. The lever type, like the non-electric of similar construction, is recommended for use where the clock is to be moved from time to time; the pendulum type is best suited to use on a mantel or other level surface where it will be seldom moved, as for perfect operation it must rest on a truly level surface. These clocks are independent of fluctuations in the electric lines for they will operate from six to twenty-four hours without electrical supply. They must be regulated for time, however, just as the non-electric clock is regulated, and will gain or lose if not correctly adjusted. The synchronous clock requires no such regulation, for once plugged into the circuit, the hands will move at a constant, definite rate of speed unless stopped by an interruption in the line. A daily check with radio standard time will ensure correctness.

While the majority of electrically-wound clocks on the market are intended for use on alternating current, models for direct current operation are available, although the choice is limited as to case design.

Cherished old clocks that may have been in a family for years can be fitted with an electric mechanism and put to work again. This in no wise changes the appearance of the clock case and a beautiful old clock becomes useful as well as decorative.

Battery clocks are independent of any house current or electric line as they are operated by a small battery or dry cell similar to those in flashlights and lanterns. They are made with charming little cases and are very ornamental indeed. Change of battery, it is declared, is not necessary more than once a year at the most.

AVERAGE COSTS

The average cost of operating an electric clock of the synchronous or electrically-wound types is approximately 10¢ a month, or about $1.25 a year. This cost is estimated at the average residential rate of slightly over six cents a kilowatt hour. The rate in some communities is slightly lower or higher than this figure but it is a good average from which to ascertain cost of operation. The consumption of the clock is about 20 kilowatt hours a year, which, multiplied by the cost per kilowatt hour, will give the annual operating expense.

Clock cases, as mentioned before, are as beautiful as anyone could wish, and, as in any other piece of furniture, you can pay (Continued on page 129)

French Styles In A

New York Penthouse
A barren slope has been transformed into an exceptionally pleasing wild garden area for Mr. and Mrs. William H. Albers of Cincinnati, Ohio. The composition at the left, as seen through the arch of a naturalistic footbridge, shows the lower portion of the garden where the stream widens to a pool bordered with flat rocks behind which flourishes a wealth of shrubbery and trees. Below, a view of the slope which, once unproductive, now is clothed with luxuriant and varied growth. Particularly successful is the balance which has been maintained between rocks and planting, both types of material being kept in excellent relative proportions. A. D. Taylor was the landscape architect.

Cincinnati Shows Naturalism In A Pleasant Garden
A Dozen And One Ways
To Make Your Bedcovers

Designed By Agnes Foster Wright

The beds are 3 feet by 6 feet 3 inches, the drop 18 inches. Bedheads are covered in the material of the cover or painted, and conform to lines of the mirrors of dressing tables in the July number. Yardages are in 30-inch material and include the bed and pillow cover only, not the headboard.

CORDED

Apricot taffeta with a drop corded at the top with an inch heading. A 3½ inch corded ruffle is applied to the bottom of the drop. The drop is quite full and the ruffle scant. The pillow slip has a corded ruffle at the ends. The headboard might be painted blue green with an apricot edge. 6½ yards

BEADED

Blue taffeta trimmed with wooden or glass bead fringe. The drop is slightly filled and the hem turned up at the bottom on the right side about 2½ inches and curves up at corners. A shaped swag of alternate widths is applied around the top. The pillow sham has a swag with beads at the end. 6½ yards of material are required

PUFFED

TUCKED

Blue chints with plain top and very scant drop. At the bottom are three tucks, 2 inches, 1½ and 1. The drop is attached by a double fold and is laced at the corners with a cord and two tassels. The pillow sham falls over to the end of the drop and its edge has similar tucks. The headboard should be painted. 6½ yards of material

GATHERED

Figured chintz gathered at the top of the drop. A cord of red attaches it to the plain green top. The drop is banded at the bottom and up the corners by a 2 inch binding of green and a piping of red. The bedtop is covered with the chintz and the wooden border is painted red. 3 yards plain material, 5 yards of the figured chintz
Ruffled And Balled

Quilted And Embroidered

RUFFLED

This spread is made of green organdie or voile lined with green sateen. The drop is slightly fulled and has, at the bottom, a 3 inch ruffle plisse with a half inch heading. The ruffle is put on to the top with a 2 inch ruffle. The pillow sham has a 21/2 inch ruffle all around. The headboard is green with green glass stars. For this are required 7 yards organdie or voile and 5 1/2 yards sateen.

BALLED

The material for this spread is yellow chintz, with drops edged at bottoms and up the corners with red ball fringe. Drop is slightly fulled. The top has a double row of balls attached by pulling them through the chintz. The sham matches and is fringed on the ends. The bedhead is yellow with a red band, and corresponds in form with the mirror over the dressing table in July. 6 yards chintz.

QUILTED

Lavender chintz quilted in deep plum can be stitched for this cover either by hand or machine. The drop is slightly fulled, put on with a large cord and has a 3 inch binding of plum. The top of the bed and the fold-over for the pillow are diagonally quilted. The bedhead, the same shape as the mirror frame on the dressing table in July, can be painted plum to match. 6 yards material.

EMBROIDERED

Use pale yellow taffeta for this spread. Apply to the top a band of embroidery in chartreuse, salmon and green. The pillow case also has a narrow band of this embroidery and a plain edge. The drop is plisséd and bound at the bottom with a finishing band of salmon colored taffeta, is attached to the top by a piping of green and salmon. The headboard is painted and then antiqued. 7 yards of taffeta are required for the bedcover.
In Lace, Smocking

Bandung And Tufting

LACED

Cream moire of a soft quality makes the foundation of this bedcover. With it is used a heading of pale yellow velvet ribbon and black thread lace applied in a simple design. On the bed top the insertion is laid on 3½ inches from the edge. The pillow slip matches, the ends being slightly fulled. The headboard is painted in an antique white with dark grey border. 3½ yards of moire

SMOCKED

Magenta taffeta smocked in emerald green stitching comprises the material for the spread to the right. The drop has a 1½ inch binding of the green. A panel of a box pleated ruche is applied to the top of the bed. The pillow cover has a box pleated ruffle. The headboard is green with diamond shapes applied to match the mirror frame of the July issue dressing table. 7 yards taffeta

BANDED

A more difficult cover to make is banded. For this use plain tan chintz with a drop of tan applied at the top by a narrow band of blue. At the bottom of the drop are a 3 inch band of blue and a narrower band of peach. A shaped piece of the peach is applied to the top as a border. The pillow case matches it. The headboard may be painted blue and tan. 6½ yards of material required

TUFTED

For a bedroom in which some French pieces are used, this cover will be in perfect harmony. Use French blue silk. The drop has no fullness but is tufted and the sewing points marked by rosettes in blue and white with red buttons. Corners are pleated and each has a rosette with long ends. The pillow cover is boxed and should be very tailored. The headboard can be painted blue in a swag design. Provide 6 yards of blue silk SHEER columns of gleaming black glass may rise from floor to ceiling. These can be topped with interesting lighting devices. There is, perhaps, no better material with which to accent modern beauty in an interior than black structural glass. The vogue for black in decoration brings need for just such a material as this new product.

Its beauty is permanent. The glass is easy for workmen to handle and for housekeeper to clean; the non-porous mirror-like surface does not stain or lose its polish. Fireplace facings, shower enclosures, ceilings, bathroom walls, shelving, wall inset panels and trim are a few of the possible applications. It is obtainable from one quarter to an inch and a quarter in thickness and may be procured in sheets as large as 120 inches square. Not easily shattered or cracked, special decorative effects may be produced, if one wishes, by etching or from applied metal ornament. This is not a fire-finished glass, but is ground and then polished; it has an absolutely true reflecting surface.

TO REMOVE ASHES

FOR the countless homes depending upon coal for heat the task of removing ashes from the ash pit is solved by an automatic device. This unit does away with muss and dust, saves unpleasant labor and injury to clothing. It insures more efficient combustion, bans the fire risk of handling hot ashes, and avoids serious and expensive damage due to the grate warping, a condition very apt to develop when ashes are allowed to accumulate in the ash pit. This unit is an ash receiver and is not to be confused with an automatic stoker.

A regulation ash can is placed on an elevator device and lowered into a sheet steel pit under the heater. When grate is shaken the ashes fall into the can. After the can is filled, a few easy turns of the elevator handle will raise it to the cellar floor level. Raising a full can, removing it from the elevator and lowering an empty can into place requires about three minutes.

All lifting equipment is attached to a steel pit which extends 14 inches under the heater. Heater foundation is in no way disturbed by the installation. There is no interference with draft, whether natural or forced. When not in use the elevator mechanism folds beneath a hinged metal door which forms the floor in front of the heater. Installation is simple. A child can operate the unit.

A small hand truck for handling cans filled with ashes and an automatic coal feeder are offered by the maker of this ash handling equipment. The feeder delivers coal directly from the bin to the hopper of a stoker or to the magazine of the boiler; it eliminates all coal shoveling.

COLORED CODE WIRES

WITH electric entertainers and servants coming into the home in ever-increasing numbers and varieties, the matter of wiring to service them assumes added importance. Circuits are multiplying to take care of photo cells, microphones, glow tubes and the apparatuses they control, as well as the standard and the newer appliances. Need for quick and positive circuit identification becomes more and more imperative.

One firm that has given much study to home wiring is introducing a complete line of colored code wires which permit easy identification of all circuits and ensure convenience in testing. Eight colors are furnished: black, red, green, white, blue, yellow, brown and white with a tracer. These form an integral part of the domestic wiring system developed by the engineers of this firm. The wires are available in several grades and may be easily installed in the house that is being electrically modernized.

NEW FLUSH VALVE

ELECTRICITY has been applied to a valve which allows water at line pressure to flow into the toilet bowl for the flushing operation. This flush valve, we are assured, operates efficiently, silently and economically. Push-button control is conveniently located in the wall, usually above and to one side of the bowl.

Use of this valve permits bowl to be set close to the wall, thus saving floor space. The valve can be installed in the wall immediately behind bowl, lower than the bowl, or in some remote point.

Valve operation cannot be heard. The valve eliminates need for a tank which, in turn, does away with "sweating" in warm weather, the singing noise as water refills the tank after the bowl has been flushed. The valve can flush the bowl again, immediately after the first flushing is completed. The entire bathroom or lavatory is made more neat, trim and modern by the installation as the chromium-plated switch plate is the only exposed equipment.

The valve has a wide range of working (water) pressure. It operates on the regular home electric service at an infinitesimal cost. Simply constructed of long wearing materials, it is easily installed and may be quickly dismantled should sediment in the water make cleaning necessary. No special fittings are required.

ELECTRIC MIRRORS

AN electric mirror, so-called, throws a soft, indirect light upwardly on the face, giving ideal illumination for make-up, dressing the hair or shaving. Light from the two 25-watt lamps behind the mirror is gathered by a reflector beneath the mirror and projected outwardly.

One type is designed for the dressing table; it has an eight by eight inch bevel mirror set in an adjustable frame of polychrome dull silver finish. Another type has an eight inch round bevel mirror on a graceful stand; it comes in white, ivory, brown, green, dull nickel and silver plate.

There are four models for wall mounting, with mirrors six by six inches, open back, six by six closed back, eight by eight and 12 by 12 inches with closed backs. With three shelves each, these come in white, orchid, delft blue and sea green. Recessed types have heavy pressed steel cabinets, white or colored, with bevel mirror and three glass shelves.

Unlike other expositions, the present Stockholm Exposition dedicates itself to the working out in tangible form of a thesis. This thesis concerns itself with a problem not peculiar to Sweden but one of world-wide interest: "creating an attractive and pleasant home for the average man, especially for an urban population". While the age-old heritage of craftsmanship exerts a strong influence on Swedish products, designers have taken into consideration the machine-made inventions now an essential part of home equipment. To reconcile the industrial charm of old handicrafts with the stark efficiency of the machine made, and out of it all evolve furnishings which shall be attractive, comfortable and at the same time limited in space and cost, is the most important activity of the Stockholm Exposition. The house shown on this and the following two pages is designed in the functionalistic style which prevails throughout the exhibition. It is intended for a family of seven. Materials are stucco with red tile roof. The architect is Carl G. Bergsten, the designer of the modern décor on the beautiful Swedish American liner "Kungsholm". (Right) Bedroom with yellow walls, furniture lacquered yellow and gray, and textiles carried out in terra-cotta, yellow and brown.

A House In The Stockholm Exhibition
Simple lines, beautiful cabinet work and the use of contrasting woods distinguish the furniture in the dining room, designed by A. E. Hjorth. The sideboard is lemon wood with lines of rosewood, the wall cabinet polished lemon wood and birch in checkerboard design, and the chairs, birch with walnut inlay and brown calf seats. The table has a practical top of back linoleum inlaid with terra-cotta color. Walls are white, the wood trim and ceiling dark brown; flooring is dark gray parquetry with a hand woven rug in brown, coral and blue. Plant stands under windows are of metal tubing with black tops and the curtains are brown velvet over coral velvet, bound in silver. (Right) An interesting feature of the living room is the curved recess at one end painted pale blue, the remainder of the wall space being white. The furniture here, designed by Carl G. Bergsten, is of sycamore, with inlays of rosewood and lemon wood. The rug is rose and terra-cotta, the curtains henna, yellow and green striped silk. In the other end of the room, shown opposite, furniture of sycamore is covered in striped silk shading from henna to tan. Here the striped rug is chartreuse, blue and tan. Irises Of The Orient Whose Beauty Is Winning The West

Franklin B. Mead

THE customary Iris of our gardens has been well described as the "flower of chivalry with a sword for its leaf and a lily for its heart." It thus breathes the spirit of medieval chivalry as it does also of western civilization even from the classic days of Homer. It likewise springs from the midst of the seat of that chivalry as it is, for the most part, indigenous of Central Europe. Happily, the great wealth of beauty of these western Irises, as well as their season of bloom, may be still further extended by those of the Orient, exotic in color and form as well as origin. Like their kin from the West, these latter are reminiscent of the civilization from the midst of which they spring, not so much of its story and song as of its art. Weirdly and fantastically beautiful in color and form are they, in color like unto the ceramics of Rakka and Rhages, the tiles of Damascus and the textiles of Persia and Afghanistan and, in form, unto the Near-East art in general. Curiously enough, many of them are etched by line or dot in a manner suggestive of much of the ornament of Byzantine architecture. Fortunately, too, their season of bloom precedes that of the Irises of the Occident and, contrary to a somewhat common belief, the culture of many of them is not more exacting than that of the Dahlia or the Gladiolus.

These Irises of the Orient belong to three sections of the Iris family, the Juno, the Regelia and the Oncocyclus.

Of these sections the earliest to bloom are the Juno varieties, which are in fact the earliest of all Irises. They are characterized by a root stock which is a bulb and to which are attached several thick, fleshy roots, which must not be broken in transplanting. The bulbs should be dug in midsummer after the foliage has died down and stored in a dry place until time to set them out in early autumn. A further unique characteristic is the extremely beautiful leaves which are gracefully arched and curved, furrowed V-shaped and alternately set tier upon tier on a stem that is tall for a Juno. The flowers appear from the axils of the leaves.

The yellow species Orchideae is quite commonly seen, but this has been dis-

In Iris susiana is found a pleasing combination of pale yellow, olive and maroon. It blossoms very early and very freely, combining well with Allysium satureja compactum

A recent addition to the Regelia section is Hoogiana, from southern Turkestan. It is uniform, clear pale violet with electric blue sheen, showing no dots or veining.
A group of choice Irises which places this great plant family in a light which will be new to many gardeners. (Top row, left) Iris korolkowi is the mother parent of the Regelio-cyclus strain. It has curiously long, pointed standards. (Right) Bactis, a Regelio-cyclus, shows the form influence of its parents. (Second row, left to right) Hecate, another Regelio-cyclus, has rose standards and falls of mahogany and cream. The Oncocyclus Artemis is raisin purple on a silvery gray ground, giving a rich purple-claret effect. Sofarana, another fine Oncocyclus, has a creamy white ground on which are veining of dark purple. (Bottom row, left to right) In a yellow, the Oncocyclus section offers Iris urmiensis, a flower of excellent form. The Regelio-cyclus Polyhymnia is a hybrid resulting from a cross between korolkowi and iberica. Iris paradoxa, var. Ghoshab, has standards of white veined with faint violet and black-purple falls—most lovely, like the others on this page.
New Color Schemes

In The Garden

Louise Beebe Wilder

GARDENERS have become color conscious only in fairly recent years. Our grandmothers and great-grandmothers disposed their plants about their beds and borders with happy indifference to the din set up by warring hues in juxtaposition. Magenta and scarlet, rose and yellow mingled as unhappily as in Czech embroidery. In formal regions the Victorians supplied some need in their consciousness by the use of crude contrasts; the scarlet of Geranium, the blue of Lobelia, the yellow of Calceolaria, often bound about by a hem of Dusty Miller, were repeated over and over from every parterre and park, and even quite small gardens affected this uncompromising quartette. It was Mr. William Robinson, Dean of English gardeners, and Miss Gertrude Jekyll, who freed us from this strongly entrenched tradition. Mr. Robinson showed us the folly of abject formality and turned our attention once more toward an appreciation of hardy plants used in a more or less natural setting. Miss Jekyll made us believe ourselves artists in embryo with a color box to our hands, and a canvas rather than a small garden. The New Color Schemes that gardens though painstakingly harmonious in their color arrangements were almost as artificial in effect as in the old bedding out days. This was particularly the fact in England where the color-schemers reached a high degree of proficiency. We Americans, for want of exact knowledge of our materials and the cantankerousness of our climatic conditions, rather lagged behind our British brothers of the soil in this respect, but we did the best we could. Nice minded ladies shuddered at the sight of a scarlet Oriental Poppy and the very word magenta was enough to cause goose flesh to rise upon anyone who was anyone at all. All strong color was banished from polite puritans—though it kept up a low muttering in the outlands—and we became chaste and chastened in our color predilections. Frigid mauves and buffs, shadowy blues, soft pinks and salmons, lavenders, heliotropes and saffrons, with an admixture of fleecy white flowers and gray foliage, were the only hues suffered in our garden.

And it must be confessed that the effects thus obtained were charming, gracious, But were they not a thought unsatisfying, a trifle weak in the last analysis? Did the eye not now and again become restless and cast about in search of a flash of scarlet, a glint of honest yellow?

In any case the pendulum has again begun to swing, propelled doubtless by a perhaps unconscious need for greater strength and vitality, more warmth and gloss. Less aloof refinement in our gardens. The world is full of color today as perhaps never before. Artists splash it recklessly upon their canvases, workers in applied design use it lavishly. Pottery, glass, fabric, woods, embroi- deries, all show brilliant hues and bold associations of crude hues. We are color thirsty and may be in danger of becoming a little drunk with our new liberty—but gardens I think are going to be distinctly the happiest effects than they have ever been before.

Sir Herbert Maxwell, a great English gardener, believes that the happiest effects are brought about through irregularity and the concealment of premeditated effort, and this good principle takes us away from the crudeness and rigidity of the Victorians as well as from the too careful, if more artistic, associations of more recent times, and leaves us plenty of scope for originality and the expression of our personal enjoyment.

One of the manifestations of this new color freedom is that magenta is no longer hall-marked as a vulgarity, but has arisen from its Victorian grave and is invading the realms of draperies and women’s belongings, thinly camouflaged by such titles as hall-marked as a vulgarity, but has arisen from its Victorian grave and is invading the realms of draperies and women’s belong-

Fuchsias and Amaranth. Into gardens, too, it is boldly making its way worn, by the fine new varieties of Rhododendrons, Primulas, Michaelmas Daisies, herbaceous Spiraeas, Pyrethrums and other flowers, and no one is pointing the finger of scorn at them. As a matter of fact pure magenta, especially when combined with a velvety texture, is one of the most lovely of hues and shows itself friendly enough in association with other hues provided the reds and salmon-pinks—its inalienable enemies—are kept at a proper distance. With cream (Galtonia), with the low-toned corn-yellows (Digitalis ambigua), with the deep maroons such as are found among the Sweet Williams, with the lavender and silver of Catmint, with the cool blues (Campanula), with some shades of pure purple it is not only admissible but highly effective. Try Phlox Le Mahdi with pale yellow Gladoli, or Loosestrife with the tall, creamy mullein, Miss Willmott. The old Mullein Pink (Agrostema) is lovely with Nepeta and some of the new rich-toned Sidalces are fine enough with the cold blue and silver of Eryngiums. One could multiply examples indefinitely.

Some tones of magenta are frankly bad, that is to say unpleasing to the individual eye. Personally I object strongly to that of Spiraea Anthony Waterer, but I think it is here more a matter of texture than of tone. Many fine flowers that cannot be classified as purple, pink, mauve, red or lavender come under the magenta standard. Outstanding among these are varieties of Sidalcea, Phlox, Geraniums (especially Endressi), Lavateras, Viscarias, Spiraeas, Lupines, Japanese Anemones, Erigerons, Incarnellas and so on. Last summer I saw in Massachusetts a very beautiful garden planted wholly with flowers of this color scale and was proud to learn from the owner that the scheme had been suggested by a chapter in one of my books defending magenta. Careful and extremely expert use had been made of offsetting and softening hues and the effect of the whole was extremely rich and interesting.

Of course in gardens or at seasons where the reds and scarlets are to play an important part magenta must be reduced to a minimum, though it need not be wholly

This residence is an excellent example of the tendency in present-day domestic work toward segregating the various divisions of a house. Here we have the central house proper which cares for the living and sleeping requirements of the grown-up members of the family. The left wing is quite detached from the main portion of the house, although it is entered from the living room. In this unit the designer has made use of the idea of another well known New York architect in reference to providing a place where the young daughters of the family may entertain without disturbing their elders. The right hand wing is given over to service uses.

For A Family Whose Children Are Growing Up

Francis Keally, Architect
Admitting that a house should be architecturally interesting on its front facade, yet feeling that the real interest of the occupants is toward the gardens and landscaping at the rear, Mr. Keally has worked out this ingenious and thoroughly practical design. The garage, framed as it is by the two-story living room unit rising behind, makes a novel center of interest. The entrance to the house is at the right of the garage, and directly off it is a guest room. A passage leads down past the dining room to the living room—certainly a place to be envied by any householder. This room is two full stories high, has windows on three sides and a semicircular solarium above jutting to the rear. On the outside, the living room is completely surrounded by a paved terrace. Both these renderings were executed by H. R. Bishop.

This House Recognizes The Motor A Domestic Necessity And Makes Garage Doors Its Feature
The two residences on this page are indicative of the general high architectural quality of suburban small houses being constructed today. By intelligent combining of stone and shingles and by designing after recognized precedents the architect has achieved interesting, practical and home-like exteriors. The home of George H. Hubiner at Greenwich, Conn. is shown above. Floor plans are given to the right.

Two Houses Combine Stone And Shingles For Informal Effect

(Below) A stone façade with deeply revealed doorway always conjures up a picture of a warm, cozy interior, and this was the appearance desired in the residence of Frank S. O'Reilly, also of Greenwich, Conn. The small bay windows are well proportioned to the exterior. Plans at the left show a well studied layout, with rooms arranged in a practical, convenient manner. C. C. Merritt was the architect of both houses.
Artistry in planning is exemplified by the home of Maurice Fatio, at Palm Beach, exterior photographs of which are shown on page 103. Using a one-story, rectangular living room unit as nucleus, the other rooms have been grouped into two two-story dependent wings, one at each end. From the hall rises a circular stair to the master’s suite. In the wing connecting with the other side of the living room are a sitting room, a bath and a large porch. Above are the guest rooms. Mr. Fatio’s living room is at the top of the page. The door to the right of the fireplace leads to a hall between porch and sitting room.

The Italian Residence
Of A Florida Architect
In all respects the dining room of the Faith house at Palm Beach follows the true Italian manner. Interestingly carved beams terminating at a heavy cornice create decorative ceiling panels. Slightly trowel marked plaster walls are a characteristic background for the well-chosen Italian provincial pieces with which the room is furnished. The floor here is of tile. The long casement window shown in the picture at the left opens to a loggia; the door leads to the stair hall.

To the right is the garden face of Mr. Fatio's residence. Walls are stucco and the roof is of Spanish tiles. The position of the living porch is indicated by the two large arches—smaller ones front the loggia outside the living room. Below is shown the front of the house. The principal entrance is centrally placed in the left hand unit. An entrance to the sitting room in the right hand wing is concealed by shrubbery. Treanor and Fatio were the architects.
In this residence we see a fine example of the dignified Georgian style set, as it should be, into an adequately although not over-developed plot. The customary symmetrical treatment of the front facade has been followed. Over the centrally placed entrance a heavy scrolled Classic pediment rests upon carved brackets. House walls are entirely of red brick; all wood trim is painted white. Concrete keystones and window sills add accents. The roof is of slate. Opening from the drawing room and overlooking the gardens is the porch shown at the left. The deck above may be used as a sleeping porch on fine nights. At the near end the porch terminates in a paved terrace; the other end abuts on the service wing. The home of D. A. Morton, Knoxville, Tenn.

Georgian Houses Still

Dominate In The South
The interior of the house has been carefully carried out in the spirit of the English period its exterior reflects. A delicately detailed Georgian mantel sets the tone of the living room, shown at the right. Both this room and the dining room, below, are furnished with well selected 18th Century pieces. Scale plans of Mr. Morton’s house are given below. On both floors all the rooms used by the family and guests are in the rectangular house proper. The service rooms are located in the rear wing. Baumann & Baumann were the architects of this residence. Decorated by The Interior Shop.
Pennsylvania Architecture
In An Ohio Residence

Because the first settlers of Ohio modeled houses after those they were accustomed to, portions of this state seem transplanted from Pennsylvania and New England. Still following tradition, Ohio architects today build upon the self-same precedents. And so in its details and the handling of stonework the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walser Brooks in Shaker Heights Village is reminiscent of Philadelphia and Germantown. The central section, taking in dining room, library and hall is of stone while living room and service wings are clapboarded. Dunn & Copper, architects.
Draperies of gold brocatelle under wrought iron cornices are effective against English oak paneling in this living room in New York where the furniture is a mixture of Spanish and English styles. The large sofa is in green velvet with multi-colored fringe; chairs are in salmon velvet and gold brocatelle, and the covering of the fireside sofa is green and yellow brocatelle combined with crimson velvet. The carpet is tête de nègre. The New York Galleries, Inc., decorators.

Furniture Of Two Styles In An Oak Paneled Setting
Shrubs For Banks And Other Steeply Sloping Places

E. H. Wilson, V. M. H.

By way of commencement, let us consider what is probably the most difficult of all sites to deal with, namely, a steep sandy or gravelly slope such as is found here, there and everywhere throughout this broad land but more abundantly near the seashore and in regions where a sandy soil predominates. As often as not on an estate and occasionally near the house is an old sand or gravel pit. Also it frequently happens, if the estate abuts on a river, that the bank is of loose soil and constantly moving under the pressure of the river's current. Such places are known to most of us and present problems of no mean order.

Where bare sand and gravel are exposed and movement is frequent or intermittent the first thing to do is to find ways and means whereby the sliding can be stayed. Some people resort to terracing by means of palisades, but this gives an artificial appearance until overgrown with plants.

In the warm temperate regions near the sea, sand dunes, for example, may be kept in place by the planting of Marum Grass (Ammophila arenaria) which acts as a sand binder. This, however, while splendid for holding the outer bulwarks of sand hills in place, is of little value to the garden builder, except inasmuch as it protects the land behind. Inland where salt is absent from the sand this grass has no value and other material must be used. In the Lake Forest region and elsewhere on Lake Michigan there are problems of this nature and the same is true in the neighborhood of Newburyport, Massachusetts, on Cape Cod, Long Island, New Jersey and in a hundred and one other places. Those familiar with the native vegetation when making a motor tour or even a railway journey up and down or across the country and using their eyes can recognize a number of native plants valuable for binding sand and gravelly banks. Unfortunately, so few who garden have intimate knowledge of the native woody plants and so are unable to take advantage of the lessons Mother Nature demonstrates on every hand.

It is for those not well versed in a knowledge of the country's flora that this and following articles are intended. One other phase must be mentioned; owing to the vast size of these United States it is impossible for any one writer or any one article to deal exhaustively with any one subject, climate more than soil being the dominant factor. I remember some thirty years ago being driven over the Golden Gate Park by that grand old nestor of California horticulture, Mr. John McLaren. On the sandy seashore and dunes that face the waves of the Pacific he was then busily engaged strewing farmyard manure over the sand and ploughing it in for planting Eucalyptus. It seemed impossible—nay, ridiculous—to attempt to make a park worthy of San Francisco in a site so arid and barren, but Mr. McLaren knew his business. Within ten years he had a magnificent grove of Eucalyptus, forming an excellent sand break, and behind its shelter a rich collection of miscellaneous shrubs were thriving.

I know of a place in northern Massachusetts abutting on the Merrimac River where the owner had what appeared an insuperable difficulty inasmuch as the site on which his house stood dipped sharply to the Merrimac River, the bank being of moving sands. As the current set that way hundreds of tons of sand were washed away each year and the problem before him was, would the river succeed in eating away the bank so as to endanger the foundation of his home? Thoughtfully considering the matter, he hit upon a practical and ingenious solution. He cut Willow staves, each six or eight feet long and of the thickness of the wrist, and drove them into the bank at an acute angle. They were thickly and irregularly placed. The result was that while many died, a sufficient number took root, made growth and stayed the shifting of the sands. As soon as this was done other material was planted among them. This was done some twenty years ago and today he has a bank covered with bushes and low trees which hold the sand firmly in position. What this thoughtful and determined gentleman did can be done by others who have similar problems to solve.

The White Willow (Salix alba) is particularly useful for such a purpose, since stout sticks driven into the ground take root readily and grow rapidly. The branches may be pollarded and kept within prescribed.

The more prostrate forms of the Cotoneaster form an effective and handsome binder for slopes. Other good woody plants that will accomplish the same double purpose are Rosa multiflora, Rugosa Roses, Lepedeza and Juniperus conferta.

Among the smaller flowering trees are several which succeed well on slopes and, besides helping to hold the soil with their roots, make a brave display in their blossoming season. Especially worthy in this group are the Flowering Crabs.

EDITOR'S NOTE

It rarely happens that garden builders have ideal sites wherein to plant all their fancy desires. In almost every garden there is some place or other that presents a problem calling for special treatment and for special material. Sooner or later the problem is solved, since there is material suited for virtually all conditions and any and every position. To help its readers House & Garden will present a series of articles, of which this is the first, discussing particular material for use in special and peculiar places.
In rooms where there is little chance for interesting furniture arrangements, some form of decorative wall treatment should be used to give life and interest to the scheme. This method appears in the ballroom in the London residence of Mrs. William Payne Thompson where the outstanding feature is the background painted to represent a Venetian fête. All architectural elements with exception of doors and fireplace frame are painted in a manner to simulate gray stone, green bronze and rose marble. Gardner Hale was the artist.

New upholstery materials show a pleasing roughness of texture. Fine brocades, satins and damasks predominate, particularly in antique finish. Linen in rough coarse weaves is also outstanding. Eight New Materials To Cover Chairs And Sofas Chintz continues the outstanding material for curtains. Dark grounds predominate. Six new chintzes, as well as a brocade and glass curtain net, are shown on this page.

1. Brocade in pale yellow, rose and silvery blue, suitable for modern or 18th Century furniture. Frances T. Miller. 2. Fine glazed chintz with 18th Century pattern in natural colors on blue, red, eggplant, green or peach grounds. Walter Johnson. 3. Tiny shuttle-cocks pattern a moderately priced glazed chintz with plum, brown, black, green or yellow grounds. Delightful for Early American or French Provincial rooms. 4. Floral glazed chintz, Victorian in feeling, red, blue, gray and tan on cream. This and number 3 from Hammond & Taylor, Inc. 5. Decorative cotton lace for glass curtains in Provincial French or Colonial rooms. McCrery. 6. Plaid design on glazed percale for curtains, covers, or dressing tables. Mauve, orange, blue, yellow, green, rose or red on white. Chintz Shop. 7. Graceful plumes in pastel tints decorate a semi-glazed percale with dotted peach, blue, citrine, Nile, gray or orchid ground, a charming design to combine with 18th Century decorations. 8. Glazed chintz, delicate wreaths in soft colors on wine or off white grounds. This and the feather design are from the Chintz Shop.

How Fine Chrysanthemums Are Grown

(Above) The newly cut stems should be immersed in water and kept in a cool place for ten hours or more to insure their lasting properly when arranged in vases for the house. The type shown here is the Pompon, adaptable to many different decorative effects alone or in combination with other kinds of flowers. (Left) Another method of insuring straight stems is to train the stalks on individual cords suspended from the roof of the greenhouse and secured by short stakes thrust into the soil. The photographs on this page were taken in the greenhouses of Mrs. George W. Perkins, Herbert N. Straus, Payne Whitney and W. L. Ward. It is by these methods that the magnificent Chrysanthemums of many colors and forms in the florists' autumn windows are produced.

(Above, center) Chrysanthemums are handled in various ways depending on the blossoming effect which is sought. In this case sprays of moderate sized flowers were desired, so the tops of the growing cuttings were pinched out to induce numerous side branches. Little or no disbudding was done, so even each small branch carries several blooms. (Above) Other methods are to grow the plants to single stems, each bearing a single large flower, or to allow each plant to develop several blooms. In both cases, of course, the results are secured by varying degrees of pruning and disbudding while the plants are making their growth. The height to which such Chrysanthemums grow, and the weight of their blooms, necessitate staking of each plant (Top, left) Early in the year the stock plants which were saved from the preceding crop are started into growth in the greenhouse benches. It is from these that the cuttings are taken which, in the following autumn, produce the supply of bloom. (Top, right) As soon as the new growth has become sufficiently firm the cuttings are made and assembled according to variety. The next step is to set them in the propagating bench where they root quickly.

Questions Readers Have Asked
And Our Answers To Them

I WOnder if you will help me select and locate shrubs, garden and garden decorations on the 50' x 127' lot as shown by the enclosed sketch. We have made no decisions regarding location of sidewalk to the front entrance nor around the house and to the garage, feeling that its location would depend on the style of landscaping used.

Off-hand I think the walk should go around the north side of the house with an entrance to the front door coming from the side, as the light pencil line shows on the sketch. It appears to me that if a walk was put on the south of the house it would leave a very narrow strip of lawn between it and the neighbor's hedge.

L. G. G.

A plan for the development of your property is enclosed herewith, made after a careful study of your inquiry and sketch. In the matter of plant material we would advise the use of flowering shrubs, with a few Pines where height is needed to screen out an objectionable view or feature. Such plants as Forsythia, Viburnums, Spiraea and Durazia would serve admirably for all planting indicated. The layout is self-explanatory and should be quite simple to execute.

We would advise planting the Pines during August and the shrubs during October or early November. All stock should be kept well watered until the ground freezes.

You might paint the walls and wood trim of your little kitchen robin's egg blue, with furniture and inside of the cupboards painted red. Use red checked gingham curtains with this scheme trimmed with white rick-rack braid, red and white oilcloth and black and white linoleum. Cooking utensils are now available in red enameled ware and there are charming paper shelfings printed in red on white.

Another interesting combination is primrose yellow walls with apple green woodwork; green painted furniture, and curtains of plain yellow linen, edged with green cotton tape. Or you might cover the walls in an oilcloth fabric which is now developed in excellent designs in all the wanted colors. These were shown in the January issue of House & Garden. There is a particularly effective pattern of large modernized flowers in yellow on white that would fit in well with this green and yellow scheme. Use deep green linoleum for the flooring and aluminum cooking utensils.

I AM sending you a rough drawing of a little cottage into which I am going to move and I wonder if you can give me some suggestions for decorating it as I want it cheerful and individual.

I have the following pieces:

For Dining Room
An old drop-leaf dining table in walnut
Old walnut chairs with needlepoint cushions
A walnut chest of drawers
An old walnut corner cupboard

For Bed Rooms
One old hand-carved maple four-poster bed
One walnut chest of drawers
One walnut three-quarter poster bed
Two hooked rugs

The landscaping for a suburban property measuring 50' x 127', as developed by House & Garden's Readers' Service on the basis of a sketch and information sent in by a subscriber. The inquiry and the answer are both given in the adjoining text.

For Living Room
Several old walnut chairs (straight)
A walnut drop-leaf table (small)
Two end tables (one tilt top and one spooling table)

I have to buy rugs and more furniture, as you can see, and I should like suggestions for each room for furniture, curtains, rugs and color scheme.

L. H. M.

We think your cottage can be made charming and unusual with the old furniture you now have as a starting point.

You have enough furniture for the dining room as the chest of drawers can take the place of the conventional sideboard. It would be interesting to use a reproduction of an old-fashioned wall paper in rural scenes, in yellow, soft greens and pinks. Use curtains here of plain yellow glazed chintz or linen bound in deep rose, and either a plain green rug or hooked rugs.

One bedroom might be furnished in the Early American manner, using your maple four-poster bed and hooked rugs here. You will have to add a maple chest of drawers, one or two straight chairs, a small overstuffed chair, and, if there is room, a draped dressing table. Use an old-fashioned paper here with a leaf ground and small motif in apple green. There are many such papers on the market but care must be taken to select one with a design in the informal cottage spirit. A paper of this type was shown in the April 1928 House & Garden. Curtains might be green organze to the floor, trimmed with wide pleated or fluted ruffles. Drape the dressing table in green and peach chintz and use this material also on the overstuffed chair. Hang the four-poster bed with the chintz, using a spread of peach sateen scalloped and bound in green.

The walnut furniture might be used in another bedroom where you also should add a straight chair and an overstuffed chair. Paint the walls a light tan or putty color, with a line of red in the moldings. Curtains of chintz with a putty ground and flowers in soft greens, reds and pinks, are effective against these walls. Use the chintz also for valance around the top of the bed. The spread can be of tan sateen or poplin bound in red. Use a plain dark tan Wilton rug.

In the living room you need a six-foot overstuffed sofa of the Lawson type, one or two overstuffed chairs, and a desk or secretary. The walls here might be pale gray-blue, with hangings of peach colored chintz. There are many chintzes with peach colored grounds, as well as plain peach colored glazed chintz. Cover the sofa in the chintz or a copper colored ray, one chair in a deeper blue material than the walls, another in yellow and use an egg plant colored rug on the floor.

I AM considering decorating my bedroom and the more I have thought about it, the more I am in a quandary. I can't buy everything new at once, so I am coming for help.

The room is a northwest bedroom, twelve by sixteen feet and has three windows and two doors. It is papered in a small striped gray and white Colonial paper, the trim is in egg shell white.

The Gardener's Calendar For September

This Calendar of the gardener's labors is planned as a reminder for taking up all his tasks in their proper seasons. It is fitted to the climate of the Middle States, but may be made available for the whole country, if, for every one hundred miles north or south, allowance is made for a difference of from five to seven days later or earlier in the time of carrying out the operations. The dates are for an average season.

Regency Furniture

Classic impulse toward elegance. The individual differences and the frank combination of mixed precedents gave the furniture its freshness; the freedom from stereotyped sameness made it stimulating.

The Regency era was a period of rapid change and new material conditions, and the furniture reflected it. It was an era of experimentation and of meeting new requirements. It was modern, it was unafraid, it was ambitious. It was restless, it was keen for novelty as well as beauty, it had to make the most of limited resources, it had to devise new expedients, and it attacked the task with a confident and blithesome ingenuity savoring of our present age. Its modern outlook and the fruits of its attitude create a bond of sympathy with our own day.

One of the most fascinating examples of this new spirit in furniture design is the mahogany bureau-bookcase whose drawer fronts and frieze are inlaid with narrow bands of ebony. The era had a keen appreciation of the decorative quality inherent in the color and texture of natural materials. It likewise recognized the effects to be had by combining and contrasting varied materials. The mahogany of the bureau-bookcase is its natural mellow golden brown in color. The cabinetmaker omitted red stain from the finish, let the wood speak for itself and then used the ebony inlay as a foil. For sparkle he depended on the burnished brass mounts.

The Regency era was also a period of assimilative cosmopolitanism and much of the furniture showed it. The ebony inlay is Graeco-Roman in character; the circular pulls on roseleaf plates are 18th Century French; and the Sphinx-head capitals of the side columns are Egyptian—a pleasant "modern" tribute to the newly awakened interest in Egypt through Napoleonic agency. The designer saw no propriety in combining the different elements in one piece. Incidentally, his work is thoroughly English as well as thoroughly charming in appearance.

Amongst the materials whose diversity of color and surface appealed so strongly to Regency furniture makers were metals. They saw what a valuable accent or foil metal could be in conjunction with wood. Rosewood had just come into favor as a cabinet wood and their brass inlay on a rosewood base was a thing that still delights us. Their metal combinations with other woods were no less successful. The little mahogany veneered magazine table with burnished brass edges, legs and pineapple finials betokens an absolutely modern appreciation of metals' place in furniture design. The mahogany, be it noted, is a rich golden brown in color and not stained red.

When metal was not available, the furniture makers did not hesitate to approximate its effects by paint and gilding. They realized, too, the pleasant results derivable from a combination of metals. Some of the tronchières and other decorative accessories were painted black to resemble wrought iron—even the construction and proportions were imitative of iron—and

The distinguished new 1931 Sterling inspired by the traditional elegance of the Hunt Breakfast

In the sparkling elegance of the Hunt Breakfast, Gorham artists have found inspiration for this suave, distinguished new Sterling—the "Hunt Club."

Already, masters of the smartest hunts in America are using the "Hunt Club" pattern in entertaining at their magnificent country estates.

Masters of these Famous Hunts

Harford . . . Middleburg
Norfolk . . . Onwentsia

... are now using the "Hunt Club"
Sterling in their beautiful country estates

Like the ceremonial of the hunt, Gorham's new "Hunt Club" is in the high tradition, inheriting from the elegance of silver created in the days of great manors and princely hospitality. Yet its clear, cool simplicity of line is as unimpeachably modern as the smart men and women who today ride to hounds.

When you see the "Hunt Club" Sterling at your own jeweler's, you will appreciate the elegance of decorative detail—notice in each lovely line the mark of the master... in subtle, long curve of knife handle... lovely contour of spoon bowl... delicate fluting of stem.

Yet Gorham's "Hunt Club" is quite within your means, for a complete service for eight may be bought for only $227. Beautiful hollow ware to match is also moderately priced. Each piece is identified by the name "Gorham" on the back or base.

Your own jeweler will gladly give you a beautifully illustrated 16-page booklet, "The Hunt Club," showing all the popular pieces in the new 1931 Gorham Sterling. Or send this coupon to The Gorham Company, Dept. J-2, Providence, R. I.

the carved embellishments were gilded to resemble brass or gold. Nor were they blind to the beauty of old bronze. The Thomas Hope mahogany bookcase, seen in the far end of the library of Beech House, has bronze griffins supports and mounts. But, if they could not have the bronze to make sofas and tables and chairs—as did the old Pompeians—and gold to deck them with, they could paint their wooden sofas and tables and chairs dark gray-green, like antique bronze, and enrich the carved ornament with gilding. Witness the painted and gilt chair with broad upholstered toprail. The Regency era, in spite of its material refinements and the polish of its manners in certain respects, was marked by a broad streak of coarse vulgarity. Some people affect to see a reflection of this trait in the furniture of the period. Perhaps they can. They could certainly find intrinsically bad and vulgar furniture in every episode of furniture history, just as certainly as they could find vulgarians in every walk of life, in every epoch. But it is sheer nonsense, and grossly unfair, to brand the whole furniture production of an era because it included a few extravagant aberrations. As convincing proof of typical Regency refinement, what better evidence could be desired than the bureau-bookcase already mentioned; the mahogany bookcase with reeded corner columns and veneered doors; the caned window seat with splayed ends; or the black and gold music stand, either a relic from Holland House or a contemporary replica?

as much as you may happen to wish. The very loveliest designs, reproductions of the work of old clock-makers, have been chosen by manufacturers to house the electric mechanism. Even the lower-priced models are copies of authentic designs. In the selection of electric clocks reproductions of such famous old cases as the "Simon Willard" kettle clock, the "Ellsworth", a reproduction of an original in the famous Ellsworth collection, the "Act of Parliament", so named from the five-shilling luxury tax placed on clocks by Parliament in the 18th Century, and other old cases have been included. Chime and strike features, too, are offered in a wide group of electric clocks. There is the same variation in chime and strike construction in the electric clock as in the non-electric clock of similar quality. The most beloved chimes are those of Westminster. Canterbury and Whittington chimes, too, may be had. In some types, both Westminster and Canterbury chimes may be had in one clock, either of the chimes being put into operation by the flick of a small lever.

Many features enter into the decorative quality of a clock, adding to its beauty and, incidentally, causing the price to mount. These decorative details, like the setting of a jewel, the carving on a piece of furniture or the etching on metal, lend great beauty.

This Wheel Chaise-Lawn

Luxurious Comfort

This appealing design presents a new and very distinctive type of Solarium furniture which can be rolled easily to the lawn. It is all-rattan construction, natural finish, decorated with bands of French enameled cane in contrasting colors. The upholstery is an imported fabric chemically treated to resist water. Light of weight, but sturdily built—the curves are so designed that it is absolutely impossible for one not to relax in perfect comfort.

The arm chair illustrates a new suite which we have named Sleepy Hollow and demonstrates again the Sons-Cunningham preeminence in style design. The materials and decorations are similar to those employed in the chaise-lawn, and the comfortable cushions are likewise channelled. Such a suite will give your Sun Room an irresistible smartness and charm.

FREE WHEELING! The sensation of 1930!
Studebaker's epochal contribution to motoring

STUDEBAKER'S seasoned, champion Eights have literally captured America with the thrill of Free Wheeling, Studebaker's newest and greatest contribution to motoring pleasure and economy. Only Studebaker, in the new President and Commander Eight, offers Free Wheeling with positive control. It is manufactured under Studebaker patents.

You use the clutch only to start or back up...you shift at any speed—forty, fifty miles an hour—back and forth between high and second, and never touch the clutch!

You find nothing new to learn—nothing to un-learn. The full braking power of the engine is always available, when desired. Free Wheeling saves 12 per cent of gasoline, 20 per cent of oil—even more in heavy traffic or on hills. Tires wear longer. Chassis strains are far less, hence chassis life is greater.

Free Wheeling performance is matched by coachcraft of arresting grace — by greater power, longer wheelbases, and richer, more spacious interiors.

Try Free Wheeling with positive control—an achievement of Studebaker's 78 years of manufacturing progress. Nobody can tell you but one ride will sell you Free Wheeling.

furnished by an old brass stove and brazier, and a white Venetian commode lightly decorated with gold, red and yellow. Above the commode an old mirror framed in carved, gilded wood was hung upon a square of white Chinese silk painted in the same delicate colors as the commode, while grouped around the mirror were many little gilded brackets holding rare pieces of porcelain.

When the decoration of the rooms had progressed thus far, the owner found that the plain, narrow doorways seemed too bare to be lovely. He did not want to build castings around them, but he did want them to contribute to the background. So he placed at either side of the door frames long, slender poles of gold carved wood and over the casings he mounted sprays of carved wood lightly gilded, an original treatment quite in keeping with the spirit of the room.

The third white room in this interesting house was as severely simple in its treatment as the former were elaborate. It was the bedroom of Fridhelm Harmann. Here, against the white terry wall stood a delicate four-poster bed with a canopy and side curtains of old white satin and silk striped material and a sheet of antique silk in pale reseda green. The bedside table was white and gold, the small bedside stool was covered in reseda taffeta embroidered in chemise and the carpet a plain neutral gray.

As to furniture, I have a full size antique maple tester bed, a dressing table made from a half round console table, two mid-Victorian rosewood chairs and a wicker arm chair painted a very delicate robin's egg blue. This, of course, can be changed to any desired color. Please tell me what I should hang the dressing table in? I am very fond of flowered chintzes, particularly a chintz with a swag design, and thought I would like something on that order. Will you suggest a color scheme for the room? I prefer the bed covering and tester in lawn white—a hint that is just definite (and indefinite) enough to intrigue us and to make us eager for a personal introduction to more beautiful white rooms.

We expect to make a front walk, the style of the house being English Cottage. We have some old cement pieces that we thought might make a walk similar to the one illustrated at the bottom of page 101 of the last House & Garden, but we do not know just how to go about making it.

Should these cement pieces be placed on a bed of soft cement and dirt filled in between? Or should some other plan be followed? We would appreciate receiving this information as promptly as possible, for we are anxious to commence.

M. R. E.

Not knowing how large your cement blocks are, it is rather difficult for us to give really definite information as to the placing of them. However, as a general rule we would say that you should have approximately two cement blocks in each block. This may be planted with grass seed if no turf already exists.

Georgian Elegance is Truly Expressed in Orinoka Draperies of Rich Brocade... Guaranteed Colorfast

Mount Vernon's broad lawns roll to the Potomac still, and Monticello crests its "little mountain."... In these and many other famous Eighteenth Century houses we have a faithful picture of a romantic and a decorative age. It is not surprising, then, that the Georgian style in architecture has become the most popular in America today!

But the complete beauty of the Georgian or Colonial interior depends on more than paneled walls and classical detail... much more. Hangings and upholstery, too, must reflect this spirit of cultured elegance. And Orinoka gives you fabrics in charming harmony. The wide, deep windows of the drawing-room may be curtained with rich brocade which will fall to the floor in stately "organ-pipe" folds. Graceful Queen Anne chairs will take an Elizabethan damask, patterned attractively with birds and branches, or antique velour in a soft, old shade. Case ment curtains may be of the sheerest Raylawn gauze.

It is reassuring to know, as you plan your decorations, that Orinoka colors are enduring. However subtle or brilliant the tints, they will keep their original depth. Your carefully considered color values will be permanent, for these materials are woven of hand-dyed threads, treated by a special process. They cannot fade. And every purchase of Orinoka Colorfast Fabrics is protected by the guarantee which you will find attached to every bolt. The Orinoka Mills, 183 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Back of every yard of Orinoka Sunfast Fabrics you buy stand The Orinoka Mills with this assurance: "These goods are guaranteed absolutely fadeless. If the color changes from exposure to the sunlight or from washing, the merchant is hereby authorized to replace with new goods or refund the purchase price." Look for the guarantee tag on every bolt.

will easily and naturally step from one block to another. For each block we would dig out a space slightly larger than the block itself and four or five inches deep. This can be filled with steam cinders or coal ashes to the extent that when the block is placed it will protrude only slightly above the surface of the ground. Of course, the cinders or ashes are to be packed down before laying the concrete slab.

Try to obtain a rather picturesque, but not too theatrical, effect in the locating of the slabs. The space between slabs may be planted to low-growing flowers if you prefer them to grass.

I AM very anxious to obtain all the information possible concerning log cabins, construction, material, etc., and would greatly appreciate any data you might have regarding same or if you could inform me to whom I should write for those particulars.

R. J. B.

The best piece of literature that we would suggest for information on the construction of log cabins is a book called The Real Log Cabin, by Chilson D. Aldrich, published by Macmillan.

WITH a few changes the plans of a house published in House & Garden some months ago will coincide with my requirements for a new house. At first, a considerable length of time will elapse before I shall be in a position to build, I do not yet wish to put myself into an architect's hands. Can you, therefore, give me an idea how I may approximately estimate how much the building of the house I have in mind will cost in my locality?

M. C.

The method in general use for obtaining the approximate cost of building a house from scale plans is by finding the total cubage in cubic feet of the proposed building and multiplying this by the cost per cubic foot of residences of that particular type in the neighborhood desired to build in.

Cost per cubic foot will gladly be furnished by any local architect or reputable builder without obligation.

To estimate the volume of a proposed house, carefully compute the area of the main building to the outside of the walls and multiply by the height in feet from cellar floor to the average height of the roof. Add volume of ells, wings and enclosed porches, if any; one-third the volume of open porches. Detached garages, unfinished inside are taken at two-thirds their actual volume in cubic feet. The total volume as it is shown by the adding of these figures may be used for estimating the approximate cost of building.

The cost of small houses of good quality is apt to vary from a minimum of 40c per cubic foot in the low cost areas to a maximum of around 60c in extreme high cost districts.

Figures obtained in the fashion outlined above are, of course, very approximate and should be checked as soon as final plans and specifications have been obtained by submitting these to a builder for a complete estimate.

I AM very much interested in the Modernist House, pictured and described in the January issue of House and Garden.

I understand that this theoretical house has no definite cost, but I should like to know the minimum price for which it can be built in Nashville, Tennessee, a minimum that would, however, include standard materials, and that would not necessitate the eliminating of any of the vital factors of this modern house. I should, at the same time, appreciate your opinion as to the fitness of this house for Nashville, considering the climate and the landscape.

Our lot, which rather unfortunately we already own (if we further consider this house) is in the suburbs of Nashville, but on a main thoroughfare. Its dimensions are, approximately, 400 ft. x 100 ft., and the two sides face South and East. We considered the advisability of building this particular house with what is intended as the front facing north—which in this case is the inside of the property. It happens that the corner part of the property is the choicest, that is, it has more trees and shrubbery (which might be an advantage in this kind of a house). But, supposing this were a satisfactory solution on our particular plot of land, what would be the cost of building this house further? (The house, I know, should face north, in order to have the principal rooms face south.)

The editor of House & Garden has referred your letter to me for reply, inasmuch as I am the architect who designed the Modernist house for House & Garden. We are pleased to learn of your keen interest in this layout.

The cost of building a house depends so much on local building conditions, as well as the individual requirements of the owner, that, without having this necessary information, I am only an approximate one.

I have a case on record where two bids were taken on the same house for different localities widely separated, which varied something like thirty percent.

In a case such as yours, where you are seriously planning to build a distinctive house and one which is suitable to its location, the wise procedure is to go over your housing problem, both in your home and at the site, with a competent architect whose individual style appeals to you. After the architect studies your general requirements in conjunction with the character of your site, he will then be in a position to make definite recommendations. The usual method is to prepare preliminary sketches for the Electrolux maintains constant steady cold, freezes ice cubes, without making a sound.

A "sound picture" of the Arctic regions would reveal plenty of ice, but no sound. For there would be nothing to make sound.

And that's exactly the way with Electrolux. Plenty of ice cubes, constant steady cold, but never any noise—either when the refrigerator is new or when you've had it for years.

The silence of Electrolux is only one of its exclusive advantages. There are many more.

The operating cost of this modern refrigerator is unbelievably low. As little as 50 cents a month in some localities. And no matter where you live, the cost is usually far less than with any other automatic refrigerator—about half what you pay for ice.

All because Electrolux has no machinery. Not a single moving part to wear, to vibrate, to grow noisy. There's no stopping and starting. The cold is constant, steady. Ice cubes freeze quickly.

And the operation is so simple. A tiny gas flame and a trickle of water do all the work. There's not a thing to fuss with or worry about. The refrigerant is sealed for life inside a rigid, one-piece steel unit. It never needs renewal. Even the tiny gas flame is safeguarded by an automatic shut-off. And you can use Pyrofax Gas where there are no city mains.

All these features have made Electrolux the choice for fine new apartments and homes the country over. Yet prices are only $195 to $430, f.o.b. factory. Liberal purchase terms. Many models to choose from. See your own gas company or other Electrolux distributor. And for complete illustrated information, write: Electrolux Refrigerator Sales, Inc., Evansville, Ind.

A tale from the Arabian Nights relates how the Sultan's son, Prince Houssain, secured for a fabulous sum the Magic Carpet which transported its owner wherever he might command.

Throughout the centuries — since before the dawn of history — man's imagination has ever conjured up new and more luxurious modes of travel. But it has remained for the last thirty years to provide a vehicle so silent, swift, luxurious and beautiful that the modern reality surpasses the most miraculous flights of fancy the ancients knew.

Today the man of moderate means may easily own a finer personal conveyance than kings and emperors, with half the world their slaves, could command in ages past — finer than wealth could buy even a generation ago. Packard, after thirty years, has made today's most luxurious transportation available to all who appreciate the finest — who know that in the end it is the best investment.

For Packard builds nothing less than a Packard. And its world-wide reputation for supremacy has created a demand which makes the price of excellence now but little more than that of mediocrity. While long life and unchanging design make Packard ownership cost no more.

PACKARD
A MODERN IDEA FOR MODERN KITCHENS

CONSOLE—This little clock, which appears to be sitting on its own shelf, fits flush to the wall. 8-day lever (no pendulum) movement. In old ivory porcelain trimmed with green, blue or yellow, 8 1/2 inches high. . . $6.00

CENTURY—Three “step-backs” and a raised dial. 8-day movement. Yellow, blue or green porcelain, 8 1/2 square . . $5.25

CRETONNE—Electric movement; no winding. Yellow porcelain; blue and green figures. Fits flush to wall, 8 1/2 square. . . $9.50

TRIANGLES—A modern two-tone “check” design with 8-day lever movement. Of washable “Evernol” porcelain in blue, green or yellow, 8 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches . . . . $3.75

So dainty are these tinted clocks, many women consider them aptly suited for colorful sun porches and breakfast nooks, bright nurseries and “dinettes” and the less formal type of bedroom.

MILLER KITCHEN CLOCKS

Vividly in tune with the Vogue for color

To the casual observer, today’s smart kitchens seem perfect in their charm. Gay, sparkling, they are a whirl of matching color . . . harmonious in every detail . . . except the offending clock! Sometimes a crude, ungainly alarm. Often a makeshift relic of other days. But all too seldom the vivid, modern timepiece that belongs there. Every pretty kitchen has a right to a clock all its own and MILLER has created an enchanting array. Clocks, bright as butterflies . . . perky-fresh and in perfect tune with the kitchen scene. Designed in a cheerful “cottage-y” mood, these delightful timepieces are of gleaming porcelain . . . so charmingly right for the kitchen, so easy to keep twinkling and clean with a soft, damp cloth. Either with the 8-day lever movement (which does away with the pendulum nuisance) or the new electric movement (which need never be wound or regulated) a MILLER Clock may be counted upon for long and loyal performance. Always faithful to the minute it will be, and impressively true to the traditions which have made it a symbol of reliable timekeeping in over a million American homes. Accompanied by a guarantee, MILLER Kitchen Clocks are to be found at the better department stores, jewelers’, and house furnishings shops. Eight-day lever movements, $3.50 to $6.00. Electric movements, $9.50 to $11.00.

“STRIKING THE FINAL NOTE IN KITCHEN COLOR HARMONY” . . . a delightful little folder, beautifully illustrated in color and extremely interesting to all women who are proud of their pretty kitchens. Send us your name and address and we shall be glad to mail you this booklet FREE OF CHARGE.

IRVING MILLER & CO., 1150 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, N. Y.
Alluring in its gracious simplicity is this new glass by Heisey, motivated by the lilies that knights of France bore into battle for ladies fair. To your table it brings a new beauty, delightful, indeed, for the autumn days, when the tempo of entertaining goes into swifter rhythm. Colorful, too, for you may have this glass in rose of Flamingo, green of Moon Gleam, gold of Sahara and orchid of rare Alexandrite; or clear crystal if you prefer. And though charmingly voguish it is yours at a moderate expenditure, even in complete table services. At leading department stores, gift shops or glassware stores.

A. H. HEISEY & CO., Newark, Ohio

Glass Perfected Through the Secrets of 4,000 Years

In the days of King Louis the Ninth, whom they called Saint Louis, the glassworkers of France had reached such heights in their art, that glass was in vogue for the royal table. The French cherished the old, old secrets of glassmaking, many of which had come to them from the ancient Romans. The wonder of centuries-old secrets is reflected in fine, modern glass by Heisey.

French Provincial and Early American are cousins. Each is the beautiful product of a simple people, working with the simplest materials at hand. The leading decorators are creating charming rooms by combining French Provincial and Early American. The effect is much more individual than a strictly one period room.

Above is an ensemble of pieces of both periods, made by Kanne & Bessant, the leading producers of authentic reproductions of lamps, lighting fixtures and occasional furniture. The better shops in your city probably have reproductions of lamps, lighting fixtures and occasional furniture. The idea of a corner lot stimulates one's imagination, but the description in question could be adapted very well indeed to this site. On the other hand, after an examination of the property it might be more advisable to recommend a design with an entirely new layout, which, however, could possess all the charm and beauty of a modernist house which you seem to like, and at the same time contain all its modern and convenient features.

Although I have never been in Nashville, other than having passed through it on the train, I am more convinced than ever that this type of house would harmonize beautifully in such a locality.

I should be glad to go over your problem in a general way in Nashville, at a time mutually convenient, if you wish. Should I be engaged as the architect to design your house, you would be credited with my preliminary investigation fee, whatever it amounted to. This investigation could probably be done nicely in a day or two. I should be pleased to hear from you further in regard to your proposed plan. I regret very much that I cannot give you more definite information at this time.

"CHARMING, EVEN IN THE COLD, RAW MIST OF A HUNTING MORNING"

"Even as a youngster she took all the hardest fences. And do you remember how hard she was when we rode point to point without her? She's as keen as ever—grown up to be a beauty too. ... Amazing, isn't it, how charming an English woman can always look, even in the cold, raw mist of a hunting morning?"—From the letters of an English traveler at home.

One Soap.
One Cream, One Powder hold the secret of the English Woman's fine Complexion

In her active, strenuous life, the English woman of position has no time for the elaborate beauty ritual. Simplicity, above all, must be the keynote of her cosmetic rites. Yet, through sensible daily care of her skin she has achieved a reputation for the loveliest complexion in the world.

Three famous toiletries comprise her only treatment: Yardley's English Lavender Soap, Yardley's English Complexion Cream, and Yardley's English Lavender Face Powder. And now they may all be yours. First comes the soap, with its generous, mild lather—a stimulating shampoo for your face and neck. Then the cream, to complete the cleansing. It will loosen all imbedded impurities and lift them gently to the surface. Wipe the accumulation away with a pad moistened first in water and then in astringent (Yardley's Cleansing Lotion is excellent). A second layer of English Complexion Cream is left on all night, to nourish and refresh the skin.

In the morning, use English Complexion Cream as a powder base. Smooth on a liberal coat, allowing the skin to absorb as much as it will. Wash off the surplus in water, with an ordinary face cloth; a thin, invisible film remains, to which Yardley's English Lavender Face Powder will cling for hours. Yardley & Co., Ltd., 33 Old Bond Street, London; 452 Fifth Avenue at Fortieth Street, New York City; also Toronto and Paris.

rich the ground until better material takes hold. These are for temperate regions and so, too, are such plants as the fragrant Sumach (Rhus canadensis) and its relative, the Varnish Sumach (R. capellina) of which there are no more brilliantly autumn foliaged plants. If a tingled effect is desired, the well known Calceolaria articulata
Can be employed. This is a mass of rich green throughout the summer and in the autumn a wealth of fruits; the orange-yellow capsules opening to display scarlet (jacketed seeds. Another splendid plant for this purpose and one that will grow in almost pure sand is the common Beach Plum (Prunus maritima), whose naked stems intricately arranged are densely laden with white, scented flowers in the spring and are followed by ample foliage and round, plum-like fruits red in color. The Blackborouh of Europe (P. spinous), similar in habit and in flower but with smaller leaves and black fruits, will also serve.

LOW BUSHES
If it is desired to have the bank furnished with low growing bushes a more rigorous selection is necessary.
The task, however, is not difficult.
The Cotonesters such as Cotoneaster horizontalis and its several forms (C.
adpressa, C. acutipeta, the evergreen
C. Dammeri and others) are particularly well adapted for the purpose.
There are quite a number of Rose species and varieties that can be used for planting such banks as we are discussing. The common Rosa multiflora and its pink flowered Chinese form (calthayenoid) grow naturally in the sandy, gravelly beds of rivers. Likewise the lustrous leaved R. eichhormania is essentially a maritime plant in Japan and will grow in brackish soil or in soils where no salt is present.
Similarly upright in habit is the Seashore Rose of eastern North America (R. virginiana) which has handsome pink, fragrant blossoms in June, scarlet hips in the autumn and crimson somewhat in the winter.
Then there is Rosa rugosa, than which no Rose is better suited for sandy areas, especially near the sea and near lakes in the colder parts of this country. The white (alba) and pink (rosa) have as lovely blossoms as any hardy Rose. In addition there are the Rugosa Hybrids which I consider one of the greatest gifts to northern gardens. These Roses do not require great attention, all that is necessary is the cutting away after flowering of the three- or four-year-old canes, enriching the plants with farmyard fertilizer each year and allowing the growth to come up from below.
Lepedezas in variety may also be used, including L. formosa, better known as Desmodium floriforme.
Such Indigofera as I. Kirbiki with upright racemes of pink, Pea-shaped flowers and its white flowered relative L. decora alba, are also splendid for the purpose.
Among narrow leaved evergreens apart from the Pines already mentioned there is a species of Juniper which ought to be widely planted—Juniperus conferta. This maritime species is widespread on the coast of Japan, growing in situations where at high tide it is often submerged. This plant can be used and used to advantage from the tip of Cape Cod south to Savannah, Georgia. I know of no other narrow leaved evergreen so useful for such purpose. The foliage is a bright green, sometimes gray-green and always attractive.
Where acid soils prevail the Heather (Calluna vulgaris) in its many forms may be planted and planted abundantly. As a curtain over pure sand the Bearberry (Arctostaphylos uva-ursi) is an excellent drapery. Its white or pinkish urn-like bells are attractive in spring and precocm crimson berries.
Indeed, there is no dearth of material. The following list of fifty-two bushes and trees is indicative of the variety available to those who have to face in their gardens the problem of holding in place and furnishing a gravelly or sandy bank. We have crimson rocky areas since they are ten best left as a feature in themselves.

Even a Queen couldn't get away with it

Never more would Nahid, loveliest of the Ruman princesses, see the face of Darab, King of Kings.

He had stormed her Father's Province to woo and wed her. Now, by his command, she was leaving the great palace, a cast-off.

Oh, the ignominy of it, the disgrace, the heartbreak. For in the brief months that followed their marriage she had come to love this bold, relentless warrior who had swept through Persia, bending Province after Province to his power, to make her his Queen.

With saddening clearness the memory of her wedding day came back to her... it seemed but yesterday... the golden litter in which she rode, a jeweled crown upon her head... the great nobles that escorted her, each with a gift... the camels weary beneath their burden of rich brocades and carpets... sixty bridesmaids in her train, each with a golden goblet in her hand filled with the royal jewels...

How happy she had been. Now like a criminal scourged from the city, she was being sent back to her Father. For Darab had found her breath not sweet. It was the one flaw in her loveliness. But it was the flaw Darab could not overlook or forgive.

CHAPTER IV OF THE SHAHNAMA, FERDOWSI'S GREAT EPIC HISTORY OF PERSIA, DESCRIBES NAHID'S TRAGEDY THUS:

"She was sleeping..."
All genu and colour, scent and loveliness.
But verily her breathing was not sweet,
And gave disquiet to the king of kings,
Who shrunk and turned his head away from her
Upon the couch because her breath was foul.
The monarch of Iran was grieved thereat,
His mind troubled, and his soul all care.
They summoned skilful leeches to Nahid,
And one of them, a shrewd and prudent man,
Examined till he found a remedy—
A herb whereby the gullet is inflamed,
Called in Ruman tongue 'iskandar.' This
He rubbed upon the palate of the queen,
And caused her eyes to water lustily.
The fetor fled away, her palate burned,
Her face shone like brocade; but though the Fair
Was sweet as musk, Darab had ceased to love her.
The monarch's heart turned coldly from his bride,
And so he sent her back to Failakus..."

That was in 120 B.C.—two thousand and fifty years ago. Today, halitosis (unpleasant breath) is still the unforgivable social fault, the offense extraordinary.

"And so he sent her back to Failakus..."

The insidious thing about it is that its presence is usually unknown to its victim. Furthermore, halitosis is widespread; indeed, few escape it for the simple reason that conditions capable of causing halitosis are likely to arise at almost any time in the mouth.

Among its commoner causes are decaying or poorly cared for teeth, pyorrhea, catarrh, temporary digestive derangements caused by excesses of eating or drinking, and minor infections of the nose, mouth or throat.

The one way of making sure that your breath is beyond suspicion is to gargle with full strength Listerine every morning and every night and between times before meeting others. Because of its germicidal power, Listerine first strikes at the cause of odors, then overcomes the odors themselves. Even such hard-to-efface scents as those of onion and fish yield quickly to it. Keep Listerine handy in home and office. And carry it with you when you travel. It puts you on the safe, polite, and acceptable side. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Though non-poisonous, safe and healing in action, full strength Listerine is at the same time a swift and powerful germicide. Repeated tests show that it kills even such stubborn organisms as the Staphylococcus Aureus (pus), the Bacillus Catarrhali (cataarrh), and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) in counts ranging to 200,000,000 in 15 seconds (fastest killing time accurately recorded by science).
The same lighting principle has been applied by the maker of these electric mirrors to a recessed wall light which may be used in place of a projecting bracket. This unit, which is flush with the wall, lights floors, steps, vestibules and so on, may also be used as an exit light. The three by five-inch light panel is finished with ground glass, colored or ornamental glass may be substituted. Box is six by six by three and five-eighths inches; the adjustable face plate is eight by eight inches, in white, old brass or statuary bronze.

A MAGIC POWDER

A NEW molding powder is being offered in every rainbow tint and all manner of things may be made of it including cups, saucers, fruit and salad bowls, cosmetic containers, bath-room golden, and fixtures, buttons, lamp shades, electric switch plates, door and furniture knobs, umbrella handles, tips, manicure implements and telephone parts, to mention but a few.

By means of this powder we will shortly be able to secure appealing colors in delicate pastel tints or artistic mottled effects. The products are non-inflammable, tasteless, odorless, non-warping. And very portable, they are not breakable. Hot water, alcohol, organic solvents, oil, fruit juices or weak acids or alkalines will not affect the material or the colors, when they are sun-fast.

Unlike other synthetic resins, this material contains no phenol. Hot water and soap or rubbing with liquid metal polish or furniture cream will easily clean it. Never before, we are assured, has such a range of light, translucent colors been available in a material of this kind.

COLORED LEATHERS

LEATHER as a cover for upholstered furniture is regaining favor. In the January market no less than 58 manufacturers showing in Grand Rapids had leather upholstery in their lines. In the May market the trend was equally pronounced. The reason is not far to seek, for tanners have discovered color. Top grain steer hides, Morocco from the finest French and Spanish goat skins and veal skins made from imported calf skins, hand-crushed and hand-grained, are now available in scores of rich tints that will harmonize with any interior decorative scheme. Architects and decorators are specifying specially colored leathers to add the depth to the development of interior effects.

The custom department maintained by the largest tanners of fine upholstery leathers in the world, an American firm, is prepared to make leathers, hand, machine or deep buffed as well as top grain, in any color or any grain to complement any architectural or decorative motif. Top grain natural molded leathers, showing fine lines resulting from the hides falling on one another as they are received in a drum, offer additional possibilities.

White leathers, white patent leather, leather finished with a silver sheen, in gold or old gold, in smoky two-toned effect, or in "art moderne" finishes with their illusion of depth, are offered as well as the colored leathers. Hemlock tannage, plus a finish that is guaranteed against sticking, cracking or eing in any climate, gives these leathers the softness, pliability and durability which are essential. Use of various skins, various cuts and various finishes gives a wide range of prices.

SECRET DOOR LATCH

THERE is a secret latch for the door of that hidden closet you may have or desire. When the door is closed no hardware is visible. No push button is necessary. A light push closes the door; a harder push opens it. The door moves less than an eighth of an inch. Application is simple. Shrinking or swelling will not affect operation as long as the door is small. This latch, made of wrought or cast brass, comes in five sizes for doors from two feet square or less to doors 15 feet square or more.

There is also a friction catch that may be used on cupboard, cabinet, closet, drawer, screen or exterior doors, or casements, that prevents warping or draws warped doors back to normal position. This catch is said to prevent rattling or the entrance of dust by holding doors tightly shut. It remains effective even after door or window has shrunk considerably. It is made in three sizes, in brass or other finish, for doors ranging from five-eighths of an inch to one and three quarters inches in thickness.

CARVED MOLDINGS

THE American representative of a European wood worker is releasing to architects and decorators a richly illustrated catalog of new moldings and ornament. Few firms indeed have been able to produce these items in so-called stock designs. It has been largely a business of custom made products. In May there are in three sizes, in brass or other finish, for homes ranging from five-eighths of an inch to one and three quarters inches in thickness, a complete development of interior architectural effects there is real need.

That INDESCRIBABLE SOMETHING.

POISE... personality... lithe loveliness... from out their deft and delicate blending comes beauty. And how inadequate are words to picture it in staid and stolid paragraphs!

Nor can we portray a tantalizing taste or describe elusive flavor with these same unwieldy words.

And since upon the printed page we cannot recreate deliciousness, we can neither translate nor tell the thrilling goodness of Schrafft's candies.

We can only tell you that it is there—a vivid, fascinating goodness, a flavor delightful—a delicious, incomparable, indescribable something.

Rare
cream-white
—this is the cedar revered in Japan and now prized for America’s finest homes

Towerings towards the heavens, standing guardian for generations, the magnificent cedars of Japan have inspired the reverence and worship of a nation. Shrine and temple, palace and home were built of it. Scarce it grew. More must be found.

Emissaries of the Japanese searched far. Along a narrow strip of the Oregon Coast, they found Port Orford Cedar—a smooth, finely grained, cream-white species worthy of taking the place of their sacred wood.

As it is revered by the Japanese, so it is prized in America. The palatial residences of Southern California are revealing to owners of fine homes throughout the country, the dignity and beauty which this rare wood imparts to fine interiors.

Port Orford Cedar adapts itself to practically every interior. Satin smooth, it enamels to a beautiful porcelain-like finish. Cream-white, it stains to great warmth and richness. Homogeneous of texture, it is machined easily to special designs. Because it resists decay, Port Orford Cedar is ideal for entrances, porch columns, garden furniture, pergolas. Non-warping, it is selected by leading decorators for Venetian blinds. Consult your architect about this rare wood today.

Port Orford Closet Lining, satin-smooth, cream-white, has a delightful fragrant cedar aroma. It possesses all the easy-working, non-warping qualities of Port Orford Cedar interior trim. In convenient packages containing 144 lineal feet, 1 inch by 3 3/4 inches net.

You’ll find our booklets exceedingly interesting: “Fine Interiors with Port Orford Cedar” by Wade Pipes, member of American Institute of Architects and “Venetian Blinds, a New Note in Interior Decoration” by Margaret McElroy, authority on interior decoration, New York. Mail the coupon for them today. Port Orford Cedar Products Co., Marshfield, Oregon.

In Venetian Blinds, leading decorators are finding a beautiful and decorative way to control light and ventilation. Home owners appreciate the mellow, diffused light they cast throughout a room. Made of cream-white, enduring Port Orford Cedar, they are eminently satisfactory. They never warp, and may be stained, lacquered or enameled to any shade. Enjoying Exceptional Vogue

There is something significant in the persistently growing vogue which the Chevrolet Six is enjoying among those of acknowledged taste and discernment. For such motorists demand more than simple economy in the car they select for personal use.

It must have the qualities of smoothness and restfulness to which their costlier cars have accustomed them. It must be smartly styled. It must be tastefully appointed.

And to insist on these fundamentals of luxurious motoring in a low-priced car is—inevitably—to choose a Chevrolet Six. Because Chevrolet alone in the low-price field combines the inherent superiorities of six-cylinder engine design with the advantages in coachcraft everywhere associated with Body by Fisher.

IN COLORS AS GENTLE AS AUTUMN'S CHANGING TONES
THIS NEW BLANKET DOUBLES ITS VALUE IN YOUR BEDROOM

Chill nights, when an Old Town Blanket is indispensable; warm nights, when an Old Town Blanket stays on the bed in readiness for a chill night's coming ... in these indeterminate nights of early fall, the Ensemble proves its double value. It is a blanket different from any you have known. Alluringly warm. Decoratively helpful. It is imbued with the very spirit of bedrooms — with loveliness and restfulness. And imbued with the spirit of one's own particular bedroom, for its two colors fuse together the main colors of the other furnishings.

The ends of the blanket are complementary in color to the central portion of the blanket. A rose blanket has green ends. A gold blanket has blue ends. Twelve combinations—all as soft in tone as the blanket is soft to touch.

Use the Ensemble as the top spread. Then its colors have full value. It launders lightly, easily, retaining its extreme fluffiness. Like other Old Town Blankets, it is woven securely of long-wearing pure wool. Other Old Towns are reversible and solid pastel colors; singles and doubles, all-wool and camel's hair and wool. They resemble fine imported blankets in all but price. The Old Town Label is their perfect guarantee. The better shops have them. If they are not at your dealer's, write to us, mentioning his name. COMFORT TO ORDER

JUST as we may switch on a light so we may now switch on comfort, be the weather what it may. By means of a unit a little electricity is made to warm or cool and ventilate a room or a home. One pays only for the heat or cold desired. There is no dust or dirt. The air is not burned, but flows into the room containing all the vitalizing elements. The atmosphere is purified by air motion. Healthful cleanliness, comfort, convenience and economy are all achieved.

The device uses electricity for fuel or may be connected to hot water or steam pipes. An electric model is made in portable form. A motor-driven fan draws air into and passes it through the heating element, projecting it into the room again. Either style may be concealed within the walls. The portable electric model is a convenient auxiliary heater.

Both styles operate silently. Neither interferes with radio reception. No one nor anything coming in contact with these heater-ventilating units can be burned.

In the electric types one turn of the switch starts the motor, creating a circulation of air, cooling a room as would be done with a fan. Another turn puts half the heating element into operation. A third turn activates the other half and causes the delivery of full volume of warm air. Cooler air is drawn from the floor and after warming is returned to the room at slightly higher level.

Distribution of hot water or steam heat by this equipment provides active circulation, which increases heating plant efficiency.

The passing of a Lincoln anywhere, on shadowed asphalt or sun-swept country road, is a smoothly beautiful event. For this motor car, even in the moment in which it flashes by, wears surely its own characteristic air of mechanical fitness and clean grace.

And this impression which the Lincoln creates is a fair symbol of the motoring excellence it brings to those who own it. Its effortless power and style, its safety and luxury, find an accepted place in the routine of their days, and lend an added grace to their comings and goings.

The deep satisfaction of owning a Lincoln is the natural result of the sound engineering skill and experience which go into its making. Built with unhurried craftsmanship in one of the famous precision plants of the world, its enduring stamina and smooth power are assured. And it is, from the first to the last of as many miles as you choose to drive it, an inspiring possession... "as nearly perfect a motor car as it is possible to produce"... the Lincoln.

Lincoln motor cars can be purchased for as little as $4200, f.o.b. Detroit. This price includes full equipment.

Blending fine traditions of design with demands of modern living

Perhaps, like many other persons with vision, you have your eye on a little old farmhouse miles from town, the sort that seems just waiting to be done over. Floors of broad uneven planks, fireplace huge and blackened, beams that are weathered with the years—such treasures will be guarded carefully. They will guide each step of restoration into the atmosphere of another century. Here will be installed all the comforts of present-day living—fixtures, plumbing, locks and hardware that hold to all the traditional beauty of the past but add a perfection of manufacture unknown even to our grandfathers. Sargent Hardware is of great assistance to all who do over an old place sympathetically, as well as to the careful builder of a distinctive modern home.

Designs that seem to picture the quiet living of Colonial days, or the splendors of the Louis's, or the Moorish influence of the Mediterranean—or if you wish, the extreme severity of line of our own industrial age. Sargent designs offer a wide choice for every architectural style. And with this artistic craftsmanship of the expert metal-worker goes a smoothness and a wearing quality produced only by precision methods of modern manufacture. Sargent Hardware, of solid brass or bronze, is beautiful, easy and quiet to operate, and lasting. If you are thinking of building, you will be interested in our illustrated booklet, "Hardware for Utility and Ornamentation." It will be mailed you on request. GAS... real gas for cooking... Pyrofax... no matter where you live

Even if you live ten or twenty—or a hundred miles beyond the city gas mains, you can cook on a real gas range—with Pyrofax. Pyrofax—the old reliable compressed-gas-for-cooking service—is available to every home. Complete installation, including gas range, can now actually be had at a price less than that of a good coal or oil stove.

Pyrofax is real gas (obtained from natural gas) and burns with an intensely hot, blue flame. It is brought to your house through a gas pipe and is as easy to use as electricity. It is the most economical and convenient fuel for cooking or heating. Pyrofax is the standard gas for cooking in nearly every home in America.

Pyrofax has thousands of satisfied users throughout the country. "Pyrofax service is excellent and the gas is marvelous," states one voluntary testimonial. Another: "My wife is infinitely pleased with Pyrofax and is spreading its virtues among our neighbors." (Names may be had on request.)

NEW LOW PRICES

You owe it to yourself to learn about the new prices at which Pyrofax is now offered. You can buy the complete Pyrofax outfit, including a gas range, at an amazingly low price. Convenient terms—small down payment. Look for the name Pyrofax. It protects you against untried imitations. Send coupon for literature.

OFFICES IN PRINCIPAL CITIES—TREMENDOUS STOCKS—UNFAILING SERVICE—NATION-WIDE DISTRIBUTION

PYROFAX Gas Service

Pyrofax has the unique feature of being able to adjust the temperature of the flame to suit the needs of the cook. This feature is extremely useful in cooking delicate foods. Pyrofax is also the only gas that can be used for both cooking and heating. It is a versatile fuel that offers a wide range of temperatures, from a soft flame for delicate foods to a strong flame for broiling or roasting meats.

Pyrofax gas is clean and free from impurities, which helps to preserve the flavor of food. It also has a high BTU value, which means it provides more heat per unit volume than other gases. This makes it an efficient fuel for cooking and heating.

Pyrofax is the ideal choice for those who want a clean, efficient, and versatile fuel for their home. It is easy to use and requires no special equipment. It is also cost-effective compared to other fuels, making it an excellent choice for those who want to save money on their utility bills.

THE HYBRID POGO CYCLES

Sir Michael Foster and others have also crossed Oncocyclus Irises with bearded Irises, producing hybrids which are sometimes designated as Pogocycles. These are not only rich in color but they inherit the fine fan-shaped flowers of the Oncocyclus. Many of these have proved tender in the writer's garden and practically all of them have been found to be shy blooming to such a degree as not to deserve "house room". Consequently they have all been discarded except Zwanenburg, a cross between Sintina and the dwarf bearded Isis Lutea, and a very lovely Iris in shades of pale yellow, olive and maroon. It blooms very early and with extreme freedom and is very striking grown in combination with Clematis armandii compacta.

The culture of the Regelia and the Regelia-cycle hybrids has proved to be most satisfactory in the writer's garden, for they have shown them...
IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO BUILD A LODGE THAT'S UP BEFORE YOU KNOW IT

This is a message for the man who has wanted a shooting lodge, or a fishing lodge—and never had time to build.

Even now, with the fall sporting season upon us, there is still plenty of time to erect an attractive, comfortable lodge, and use it this year. After you've picked a floor-plan, we make your Hodgson House in sections, ship it ready to erect. In a few days it's up, and ready to occupy. You can erect it yourself, or we will send a construction foreman to supervise details.

A Hodgson lodge is comfortable summer or winter. Lined with Celotex for insulation, it defies extremes of heat or cold. Well-planned fireplaces or a heating plant can be installed to afford generous warmth. And it lasts for years! Hodgson Houses everywhere have withstood the severest storms. Weather-proof cedar and Douglas fir are used in construction.

All the fuss, delay and unexpected expenses of building are eliminated. You can have a lodge as simple as the one pictured above, or a very elaborate vacation home. Send for booklet G. It gives pictures, plans, prices, and also shows furnishings and lawn and garden equipment—bird houses, dog kennels, arbors, picket fences, poultry-houses, etc. Write to E. F. Hodgson Co., 1108 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass., or 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

Back of the beauty of hundreds of homes right in your community—back of the paint protection that shields the dollars and cents investment in them—is Dutch Boy White Lead. For eight painters in every ten use Dutch Boy. Use it because they know it couples beauty with protection for a longer period of time—because it makes possible a wide variety of attractive tints and colors—because Dutch Boy never gives a home owner cause to complain about scaling and cracking and, for the same reason, it does not demand burning and scraping at repaint time. And, finally, eight painters in every ten use Dutch Boy because in every sense of the word it gives a custom-made paint mixed to order for your particular job. Bartlett has established a new order in tree hygiene—the dominant principle that protective control measures are the key to sound, healthy, beautiful trees.

Such a safety program is more satisfactory than the periodic repair work necessary where trees are left to shift for themselves against the ravages of diseases, parasites and starvation. It is more economical, too, particularly when based on the definite principles of practice developed by the scientists who conduct the famous Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories. For consultation address the home office at Stamford, Conn., or branch office nearest you.

Many a home is judged by its garden—and many a garden gets its beauty from concrete. Garden walls of masonry units in odd shapes and rugged surfaces—pergolas, with sturdy concrete columns—ornamental walks and grass-bordered flag stones—lily ponds and pools, of concrete.

In almost every community there is a concrete contractor who will gladly work with you in designing and constructing the furnishings for your garden. Very likely he will have many interesting ideas to offer which will add much to your garden, and to the value of your property.

STAKE THE COSMOS. Along toward the early part of September a good many gardens the country over begin to serve as good object lessons of a perfectly human failing: familiarity breeds neglect. The high enthusiasm of the spring have passed, the dutiful attentions so characteristic of July are over. Much flower beauty still remains to be enjoyed in the borders, but ife-guarding it has suffered from the knowledge that in a few weeks the most of it will be over for another season.

The widely and justly popular Cosmos is especially likely to show evidence of this slackening off. September gales and tall stalks topped with abundant, albeit lacy foliage, are not good companions unless the plants are well staked. As a result, countless lovely displays of Cosmos which should last well into October are blown down so badly that they can give but a very poor account of themselves indeed.

So stake, and stake strongly. Let the supports go at least a foot into the soil and extend four or five feet above it. Use raffia grass or strips of cloth to encircle both stake and stalk; such soft tying materials will not injure the tissues of the plants, although holding everything firmly enough to serve their purpose.

MADONNA LILIES. The earlier in the season these excellent bulbs are planted the better it will be for them—and for the future beauty of your garden. Whenever it is possible to obtain them during September the opportunity should be grasped with both hands and a good spade wherewith the ground can be prepared a foot deep;

Most Lilies should be planted deeply—some as much as ten inches. But the Madonna is not of these; you will make no mistake if you put the tip of its bulb but a couple of inches below the surface. Let the spot be well drained, though, and rich in leaf mould into which the roots can strike deeply. If the bulbs are tilted a little on their side there will be less chance of water collecting among the scales and possibly causing trouble.

Madonnas make a good leaf growth in the autumn—frost-resistant foliage which need not be covered with a mulch until the ground is frozen hard. Then a light layer of stiff dead leaves, such as those from Oak trees, will keep everything ship-shape until spring.

As with all members of the Lily tribe, plan to leave Madonnas permanently in the places where you first set them. The least disturbance Lily bulbs receive the better the results they will give, provided they are planted right and in the right place in the beginning.

NARCISSES. September, too, is the best month for putting in new plantings of Narcissus or resetting old ones which have become too crowded for best results in the way of bloom. The same sort of soil that is recommended for Lilies does well for the Narcissi, especially if it is fairly well enriched with ground raw bone. While we are on the subject of those long-favorite bulbs it may be of interest to note that here in America we are well on our way toward producing a highly satisfactory stock of many excellent varieties. Commercial growers in favorable localities, notably the Pacific Northwest, have accomplished much in the years since our old friend Quarantine 37 went into effect. This fall it will be possible for amateurs the country over to profit by the enterprise of these men, for many wholly lovely and healthy products of the American fields are coming into the market. It will be worth your while to watch for the story of achievement in the October number.

As a matter of fact, just about all available spring-flowering bulbs can be planted to advantage this month rather than later, with the exception of Tulips, Scillas, Crocus and Grape Hyacinths are among them.

APPLE AGES. Those who hesitate to set out young Apple trees because of the time which must elapse before a crop of fruit can be gathered will find encouragement in the list of early-bearing varieties which resulted from tests made by the New York State Experiment Station. Investigations carried on there showed that the following kinds, properly grown, will bear within five years.

Summer Varieties. Primrose, Oldenburg, Williams Favorite, Early Harvest, Maiden Blush, Yellow Transparent and Red Atrauchan.

Autumn Varieties. Fantasia, Pomme Grise, Twenty Ounce and Wagner.

INDOOR GERANIUMS. Of all the flowering plants which are adaptable to the winter garden in the house—and indeed, to house culture throughout the year—there is probably none which is more sure-fire than that old standby, the Geranium. For more years than most of us would try to remember it has held its own, often withstanding conditions of heat, stale air and drought which most other flowers would make but feeble resistance. Nowadays, to its long record of honorable service is added the distinction of such improvements in color, form and size of bloom that not by the greatest stretch of the imagination could the adjective "common-looking" be applied. Verily the modern Geranium is a plant of true beauty as well as bravery.

If you have any young Geranium plants in the garden this is the time to cut them back hard and pot them up for winter bloom indoors. Even the old ones, treated thus, sometimes give a fine display of bloom a few months hence. So, too, will slips taken now from strong-growing plants and kept moving along under favorable conditions.

BUGS BEWARE. The approach of the indoor flower season lends special interest to a recently developed spray material as well. Formulated by a professor of horticulture in one of our large colleges, is outstanding (Continued on page 152).
FROM time immemorial poets have sung the garden beautiful . . . Since the days of ancient Greece and Rome, marble has been used to enhance the natural charm of gardens and to delight the eye with its cool, crystalline contrasts against the loveliness of growing things.

So today, in formal gardens as well as in gardens of simpler beauty, Vermont Marble finds a setting of rare charm and harmony. Mellowed by the passing years, but otherwise unchanged, garden furniture and decorative pieces carved in Vermont Marble accentuate the infinite variety of light and shade, and bring to their background the beauty and dignity of permanence.

We shall be glad to send you illustrative material showing how leading architects have used Vermont Marble in garden seats, bird baths, and more formal types of indoor and outdoor accessories to the well-appointed estate, as well as in the design of mausoleums and other cemetery memorials. Or write for the free booklet, "All That is Beautiful Shall Abide Forever." It gives helpful information on the problem of selecting appropriate memorial designs. Our Department of Plan and Design will gladly co-operate with a Master Craftsman in Marble in your vicinity — without obligation — in submitting sketches and estimates for your special requirements . . . The Marechal Niel Rose

WHEN this brilliant yellow climbing Rose appeared it created such a furor that it is still enshrined in our hearts. To many of us it is a reminder of some romance of bygone days and has family associations rivaling only in colder climates by “General Jack”. These two Roses will always remain part and parcel of the Victorian Era. They were symbols of love and affection, and their very names evoke tender memories, legends and narratives of our missing forbears.

While we now hear less of Marechal Niel in the Northern States, it is every rosarian’s ambition to grow it as a rose for a few flower arrangements that it has always been devised and I have a friend in the black Rose climate of Cleveland, Ohio, who built a hinged trellis which was wired and plastered and the whole plant covered with leaves and straw. In the southern gardens it can be found covering summer-houses, tall fences and pergolas. In England it is still quite common, although it generally requires a cold greenhouse, the roots (Rosa canina or Dog’s Briar) are planted in the ground in an airy place under tall shrubs, usually Loniceras, close to the spot where they are planted year after year, which grow with safety and are protected from the north.

No further care, other than ordinary mulch and fertilizer, is needed after the foliage begins to turn yellow. The Rhizomes with the roots attached should then be lifted and kept in a warm, dry place where they will remain dormant until planting time. The writer has successfully propagated it on the subject of storage by merely leaving Rhizomes, after digging, on the ground in an open sunny place until planting time. As a result he usually stores them in piles on the ground in an air space under tall shrubs, usually Loniceras, close to the spot where they are planted year after year, which grow with safety and are protected from the north.

The Marechal Niel Rose

warm climates of Southern France, Northern Africa and Western China which had become widely cultivated in the southern American States, with a bluish China Rose recently introduced from Southern China (no exact record exists to define which of the Chinese Roses it was, whether Bengal or Tientsin, or the winter tenderness of the breed would indicate Tea). From the seeds of this hybrid, Philippe Noisette, a florist of Charleston, obtained a Rose which was afterward distributed as Blush Noisette by his brother Louis Noisette of Paris. From this emerged the first of climbing Roses different enough from anything in existence to form a class by itself, which at one time was numerous. But these Roses were tender to frost and unsuited where the temperature goes below the freezing point, so the class has almost disappeared from cultivation. William Allen Richardson is another notable of the group.

One of the early Noisettes was the base on which Marechal Niel has been built, but the other material used has always remained nebulous. The form of the bloom, the intense yellow, the perfume, the light green or glaucous foliage, does not exist either in the Musk Rose or the Tea. In the days when the cross that produced Marechal Niel was made, the yellow coloration of Roses came from but one source, the Tea Rose of which there were two strains, one yellow and the other bluish pink. The Tea yellow is held with a reddish hue, a fair specimen of it being Lady Hillingdon. The sunflower yellowish, or more precisely “Dandelion yellow”, derived from Persian Yellow, was not yet known and was not to appear in garden Roses for at least forty years, but Marechal Niel is still of a deeper yellow than the rich- est Pernetiana. Many theories have been advanced as to the source of this pigmentation but no light had been thrown on the subject until I believe I discovered last spring the father of Marechal Niel: Rose Hermaphroditica (Herrm.) or Sulphurea (Ait.), the Sulphur Rose, which has bloomed in my garden for the first time.

This is the rarest of all Rose species, and I do not know of any other plant of it in America. Miss Willmott in her masterpiece Genus Rosa speaks of Rosa sulphurea with great reverence. It is the most beautiful of the Asiatic Brian, the bloom rather large and full of petals opening irregularly and imperfectly, often curling. The color is of a glimmering deep yellow even richer than the color of a well-grown Marechal Niel. The calyx has the same odd shape and, like Marechal Niel, not merely nodding. The foliage is pale greyish green which seems to indicate also the origin of Marechal Niel's light green foliage.

Rosa sulphurea was brought from the Orient in 1629 and was for many years a collector's plant, being extremely difficult to grow, in the forefront of the 19th Century, when under the influence of the Empress Josephine a Renaissance of the Rose took place, the culture of R. sulphurea was taken up, and just because of its woodiness and difficulty it was considered an accomplishment, a chef d'œuvre, to make it grow and bloom. So few succeeded that it was again abandoned and only rare specimens can now be found anywhere. We were fortunate enough in 1925 to discover two small plants in a little English nursery specializing in historical Roses, for which we paid $25.00 a plant. One died the first winter; the other, barely two feet high, bloomed this spring—true Marechal Niel bloom in all particulars but the size, which is much smaller.

There is doubt in my mind that Pradel in the wonderful climate of Provence was able to grow R. sulphurea and used its pollen in his hybridization work and one of those seedlings became Marechal Niel. Several early English Rose authors have mentioned an extinct yellow Centifolia Rose once cultivated in Provence. They refer undoubtedly to R. sulphurea, which in petalage is surely Centifolia (hundred petals).

From the experience I had last spring, I am quite sure that R. sulphurea pollen is potent; at least, hips fertilized with it show unmistakable signs of fecundation at the present writing. Using the modern Roses we have today as seed parents (R. sulphurea is sterile as a seed bearer) we may visualize a new strain of colors. Verily we have only scratched the surface of Rose novelty!

House & Garden's Bookshelf

EVERY now and then there appears a book which all but defies classification. One cannot in fairness give it a specific label such as fiction or biography or history, for it combines several characteristics in more or less successful blend. Such a volume is this one by a great plant explorer, a former head of Foreign Plant Introduction for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and an able writer whose breadth of outlook is exceptional.

Dr. Fairchild has done a difficult job and done it well. While he is a man, he nevertheless invests his pages with enough of the scientific attitude to establish them indubitably as the valuable records of an expert. Herein, as well as in the strongly human, personal touch which marks the entire book, lies no little of the distinctiveness of his accomplishment. To write a book which can stand either in travel or botanical merits is
September Is The Best Month To Plant Rock Plants

Here’s Why

They bloom among spring's earliest. By planting them in September they become established in the soil and next spring you are sure to get all their bloom abundance.

FURTHERMORE, in September Rock Plants are at their best. They are resting and more or less dormant after the summer's heat. By transplanting them now, you give them the least set back shock. They have time to become happy in their new home before winter sets in. It insures their being ready to start growing the first warm spring days.

To help you in your Rock Garden's success we have a special booklet which will gladly send you for 25 cents. You'll find it quite the most helpful thing on the subject. Much more so than some of the expensive books. The 25 cents will be credited on your first order for plants. To the Rock Plant Catalog you are of course most welcome.

because it has been proved by extensive tests that it will kill the toughest of "sucking" insects without injuring the most tender plant. Meaty bugs, red spider, scale, aphids and all the rest of that destructive group have no more chance against a good dose of this modern mixture than has the traditional snowball of surviving the climate beyond the south bank of the Styx. It is even so exceptional that it can kill the bugs from the wallpaper, leaving the latter and all other delicate materials with which it may chance to come in contact quite unharmcd. It will even (whisper it!) make your rooms smell like the Great Open Space instead of inviting them with the Gloucester fisherman atmosphere which follows the use of whale-oil soap, for example.

Levity aside, this spray is good. We can't give you its patented name here, for this is a news note and not an advertisement. But if you should ask us by letter we would be more than glad to tell you what to ask for the next time you go into a garden supply store.

SAVING WILDFLOWERS. It frequently happens that the opening up of hitherto wild areas for building projects or the extension of highways sounds the knell of many, many fine wildflowers. Even though some of the plants themselves may escape direct destruction, the change in conditions of exposure, soil drainage and so on dooms them to ultimate failure, usually within a year or two.

Under such circumstances one is more than justified in taking up the plants before they vanish forever, and trying to establish them in the home garden, fields or woodland. Even such choice things as Trilliums, Bloodroot, Columbine, Laurel and Fringed Gentian, ordinarily to be touched only under pain of instant condemnation by the ultra-conservatists, may be thus moved with a clear conscience. Provide them with the most congenial home you possibly can, of course, and use the greatest care in digging, transportation and replanting.

Should some of them fail to thrive, do not feel that you have been a vandal. Having done your best, there is nothing to be nervous about. After all, it is more desirable to die in a private sanatorium, if you must die, than under the caterpillar wheels of a road tractor or within the iron maw of a puffing steam shovel. Though as far as that goes, you are more likely to succeed, at least in part, than to fail ignominiously.

NATIVE ASTERS. September in the Eastern States brings the full pageant of the wild Asters, than which no page in Nature's whole book is more lovely in its color work. Countless lovers of the outdoors little at all hardy flowers to grow, as well as the most recognized standard insecticide.

Peterson's Perfect Peonies

EASIEST of all hardy flowers to grow, as well as the most permanent, the modern varieties of the Peony will prove both a revelation and rare delight to the flower lover.

The large, undivided roots, for which the House of Peterson has long been headquarters, will "come through" triumphantly next Spring. But they must be planted, preferably by September 1st, for best flowering results.

The whole story of Peterson's Peonies is told in the 26th annual issue of "The Flower Beautiful" sent free upon request.

This new issue presents the Peony in such a manner that both the beginner and advanced amateur may profit by reading it.

Our Peonies, like our Roses, are recognized by experienced planters everywhere to be the very best that a lifetime of skilled and loving effort can produce.

SPRINGFIELD, NEW JERSEY

less thousands of acres, most of them unnoticed save by the discerning, will rise this month to an unmatched climax of lavender, purple, blue, gold and white as the New England Aster, the New York and the other members of their varied race come to their high moment of the year.

Many of these wild Asters are desirable plants for the border and odd nooks and corners around the place. They are easy to transplant, too, if one waits until their bloom has passed. The best plan is to mark especially desirable specimens while they are in full flower, picking them for their individual color and all-around excellence of bloom. Then, toward the end of October, take them up with root systems intact and put them where you will, so long as the general growing conditions are fairly similar.

PLANTING EVERGREENS. In most sections of the country September is the very last call for planting evergreens, whether coniferous or broad-leaved. To put them in later in the autumn is to court a disappointingly amount of winter loss. Even with September planting, great care must be exercised in providing abundant water right up to the time of actual hard freezing weather. Otherwise, winter evaporation from the leaves or needles may exhaust the plants' supply. Early spring planting, however, rarely fails if the stock and the methods of handling it are right. The same is true of certain deciduous trees which are often considered difficult to transplant, such as the Dogwood and the Birches. The time for them is immediately after the frosts out of the ground sufficiently to permit free digging.

In point of actual fact, spring planting of most kinds of trees can be continued much later than used to be thought possible. They can even be moved, when nursery grown and well rooted, until their leaves begin to expand. Let them be out of the ground no longer than absolutely necessary.

BITTERSWEET. Every year now and then one hears complaint that some perfectly healthy and well developed vines of Bittersweet (Celastrus scandens) never bears any berries and consequently misses its greatest charm. It grows well and climbs like unto Jack's beanstalk, but it just simply won't come through with any fruit.

In a great many cases the trouble lies in failure of the blossoms to become fertilized. Bittersweet flowers are self-sterile and must be pollinated from those of another plant. Consequently the best results in the way of berries are obtained when several plants are growing near together, enabling insects to carry pollen from one to another.

Bittersweet likes well drained, fairly rich loam and full exposure.

To people with short tempers

People who travel with Oshkosh Trunks enjoy a peace that passes understanding—at least the understanding of anyone who is not an Oshkosh owner.

Oshkosh Trunks are not equipped with radio sets, fireplaces, or putting greens. But they do offer many conveniences that are a blessing to short-tempered travelers.

Properly constructed hang-ers, for instance, that simply cannot damage your clothes. Drawers that always slide smoothly in any climate. Locking devices, both inside and out, that do their stuff instantly and without balking. And a long line of minor blessings that the average trunk does not offer.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE AN OSHKOSH TRUNK

"Chief" Oshkosh Cord Duck, the strongest and toughest trunk covering made, is found only on Oshkosh "Chief" Trunks. It is recognizable anywhere by those two bands of red and yellow stripes woven into the fabric. Oshkosh Trunks can also be had in the less expensive fibre covering. The Oshkosh trade-mark identifies them.

A useful descriptive booklet, "Your Home Away From Home," will be sent upon request. For a copy, address the Oshkosh Trunk Company, 453 High Streets, Oshkosh, Wisconsin.
THE NATURAL BEAUTY OF PINE

ADDS CHARM TO ANY HOME.

Just beyond the porch, a garden with trees and small rock plants, and a sheltered corner in which to meditate. Within, rooms that you have carefully planned... How much their success depends upon the natural beauty and the friendly atmosphere of the woodwork!

Pondosa Pine may be used for almost any interior purpose... a cupboard, some bookshelves for the den, an additional closet... or knotty pine paneling for the dining-room and entrance hall. Intricate carving, too, can be executed on Pondosa Pine with a fine degree of accuracy. And for all trim, inside and outside, Pondosa is both serviceable and economical.

The charm of the wood is still in evidence after years of use. Paint retains its freshness and luster. Stains still accentuate the delicately figured grain. Joints stay tight; nails and screws hold their place. Cupboard doors swing smoothly and fit their frames without binding. Windows open quietly. Careful seasoning and grading, added to its natural qualities, have made Pondosa unusually satisfactory for most building purposes.

Pondosa Pine is imprinted with the familiar pine tree trade-mark, which makes identification for you, or for your architect, as simple as choosing plumbing, heating, or electrical equipment. Lumber dealers can supply Pondosa quickly. Western Pine Manufacturers Association, Portland, Oregon.

"The trouble with us oldsters is, we criticize youngsters for slap and dash and forget the long seasoning we've had. Take this piece of Pondosa—when it was young and green it wasn't dependable. But now it's cured an' kiln-dried, it'll stay put without warp or crawl."—From the philosophy of the boss-carpenter.

The book, of some 335 pages, is generally divided into three sections, described under the headings, "The Pageant of Rose Progress," "A Year in the Rose Garden," and "The Rose Workshop." In the last-named section, the title of which may be less descriptive than the others, are assembled chapters on hybridization, budding, pot culture and color description.

If the author of the Manual very strikingly writes as he talks, the reader is not likely to "skip" many early pages. The inclination is to begin at the beginning and read right through to the end. That is just what we did. But to read the table of contents first is likely to upset such consecutive reading—for the index is suggestive of the many good things in the book.

Useful pictures illustrate the text, but it is the text which interests the reader most. That good if overworked word of common parlance, "practical," seems to be the one indispensable adjective to use in describing the Rose Manual to one who knows the author knows for a certainty that the book just had to be of that kind.

The book might well have had the title "Monarchs of the Trees," since the author has embellished the text with superb illustrations of the outstanding individual specimens of notable trees gathered from all parts of the world in his travels. Here we have a Classic volume into which have been gathered all the known technical facts about the finest outstanding trees of all the world and, within running through it, a vein of practical horticultural information that gives the tree lover an entirely new insight and appreciation of the sterling qualities and merits of each kind under discussion.

It is hard to classify the book because of the combination of poetic sympathy, practical cultural information, botanical exactness, and general appreciation of the part that trees play in the evolution of nature, to say nothing of their economic importance, and often there are casual and interesting references to the parts they have played in the fields of politics and religion. The purpose of this work, as the author himself says, "is to show the intimate connection, the bond of companionship, as it were, between ourselves—mankind in general—and certain groups of plants. Animal life, in all its higher forms at any rate, is dependent for its very existence on the vegetable kingdom. Man draws much of his bodily sustenance from the products of plant life, and trees will yield, to all who heed their beauty and study them, mental enjoyment and healthful recreation."

Profiting by the travels and camera that Mr. Wilson took with him, we are enabled through this volume to make a world travelogue with highlights of interest constantly cropping up with rich diversity. I do not know of another book with which Aristocrats of the Trees can be compared either for style or method. In a prologue, the author perhaps gives the keynote of his underlying emotion about trees in their horticultural sense: "Plant native trees in preference to exotics wherever possible." This is the crystallization of his observation and experience.

Exotic trees have an appeal because of the very fact of their strangeness and curiosity. It would be well indeed for those interested in Arbor Day celebrations all over America would take seriously to heart the message conveyed in this volume: "Norway Spruce, English Oak, and Scots Pine should not be planted unless the passing moment suffices to please the fancy."

Trees are the nearest things to permanency with which the planter has to deal. Before undertaking any great operation that is hoped to have any endurance, a study of the message that Aristocrats of the Trees expresses will save hundreds of thousands of dollars on American estates alone.

We are slowly becoming tree conscious, realizing that permanency is worth much more than the cheap transitory picture. It takes more than a lifetime to acquire a full acquaintance with trees. Therefore, the message of one who has made trees a lifetime study, has had unusual opportunities to balance the evidence, is surely worth while to the rest of us who can only take on a fragmentary study of trees.

Aristocrats of the Trees is a de luxe volume, 9 x 12 inches, with sixty-six full page half-tone illustrations of the famous trees of all the world, and a color frontispiece of an autumn scene in the woods of Japan.

IRON FIREMAN
AUTOMATIC COAL BURNER

“Here is a great Fireman”

at home... no more jumping up to feed a hungry fire”

“Bill, this home is a different place since we installed an Iron Fireman. You wonder why we’re so enthusiastic about it? Here’s why:

1) “It saves money. They showed me a survey of Iron Fireman owners reporting yearly fuel savings of 45.61 per cent and my experience is right in line with theirs. My fuel bill is about $90 a year less.

2) “It works automatically. I fill the hopper and lift out some ashes occasionally and that’s all. We’re rid of the old job of coming down here several times, day and night, to feed the fire.

3) “It supplies uniform heat no matter how the weather changes outside. When the house gets below seventy degrees the thermostat starts the Iron Fireman and when it gets above seventy degrees the thermostat stops it.

4) “We have a warm house when we get up in the morning. That early morning nuisance of building a fire is ended. Set the thermostat for six o’clock and at seven the family gets up and dresses in comfort.

5) “It is absolutely safe. We know that coal is the best and safest fuel we can buy.”

Write for complete information on the advantages of automatic coal heating, or get in touch with the Iron Fireman dealer. He will be glad to check over your heating system and submit a report on what Iron Fireman can do to give you better heat for less money. Iron Fireman Manufacturing Company, Portland, Oregon. Branches in Cleveland - St. Louis - Chicago - New York. Dealers in principal cities throughout the United States and Canada.

Modern Temper-Saving Heating Service. The many advantages of Bryant Gas Heating are set forth in this booklet. In addition to providing efficient heating, the gas heater eliminates coal dust, ashes, smoke and fuel storage, thus making a livable room out of the basement. Technical illustrations show how the Bryant Gas Boiler operates. THE BRYANT HEATER & MFG. CO., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

• BOILERS
Lesson You Forget. This booklet tells the way to get the most out of your boiler with the least work and least expense. How to start the fire, how to bank it at night and start it up again in the morning, and the care of the boiler are among the instructions given. The square type and round type Burnham Boilers are both illustrated and described. BURNHAM BOILER CORP., IRVINGTON, NEW YORK.

• OIL BURNERS
Modern Cellar Designs. The "Elite" Boiler was designed by Thatcher particularly for installation in the modern cellar. It is concealed in an attractive steel jacket painted in a durable red enamel, and it is doubly insulated against the loss of heat. Color drawings show how the cellar can be made into a livable and attractive room. THE THATCHER CO., 39-41 ST. FRANCIS ST., NEWARK, N. J.

• BOILERS
Ideal Oil Burning Boilers. These boilers are described as the final embodiment of details that have been perfected through experience spread over a period of years. Illustrations and sectional views show the appearance and mechanism of the burner. There are special Oil Burner Installing Plates which can be instantly removed for inspection or cleaning. AMERICAN RADIATOR CO., 40 W. 40th ST., NEW YORK CITY.

• OIL BURNERS
Insulating Plaster Base
When You Insulate Your Home. The product described in this leaflet is called "Bi-Flax," a new type of insulation. It is an insulating plaster base combining a painted metal lath with Flax-i-num, which is the name of the insulation material itself. An illustration of a cut-away section of a wall shows the appearance of Bi-Flax beneath the plaster. PLAXIMUM INSULATING COMPANY, ST. PAUL, MINN.

• INSULATING BOARD
It Saves, It Builds, It Insulates. The various uses of J-M Insulating Board are set forth in this illustrated catalog. In addition to its value as an insulator it has great structural strength and rigidity. One of the pages lists nine advantages of J-M Insulating Board when it is used as sheathing. Sketches show how rooms are remodeled with it. JOHN-MANVILLE CORP., 292 MADISON AVE., NEW YORK CITY.

• SHINGLES
The Weather Can't Budge Them. Sketches and photographs in this catalog show Genesee Lamine Shingles and how they are made to look on the roof. They are fire resisting and weatherproof. These shingles can be laid right over old worn out, weather-battered shingles, thus saving the expense of ripping off old ones. They are made in four natural colours. THE BARRER ASPHALT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

• CEDAR SHINGLES
Building A Home in Serenity. Among the many advantages of Red Cedar shingles which are mentioned in this catalog are the natural beauty, though the shingles can be stained or painted if desired, the value as an insulator and the natural oil in the cedar which prevents rot. Furthermore, the shingles will not warp. BROOKS, STEWART & WELCH, LTD., 1114 FOURTH AVENUE BLDG., SEATTLE, WASH.

• STAINED SHINGLES
Cresco-Dipt Stained Shingles. In a special envelope a number of photographs of residences are reproduced on loose leaf sheets. Each residence is either shingled or walled with Cresco-Dipt Shingles. These illustrations show how an old house can be reconditioned or repaneling with Cresco-Dipt Shingles. This collection of photos sells for twenty-five cents. CRESCO-DPT CO., INC., N. TONAWANDA, N. Y.

• BRICK
The Story of Brick. This booklet tells the story of brick construction and use from the early ages up to the present time. There are special Oil Burner Installing Plates which can be instantly removed for inspection or cleaning. AMERICAN RADIATOR CO., 40 W. 40th ST., NEW YORK CITY.

• CEMENT
Pressthile Velo Cement. The product is described as being both fast and safe, it will flow well around steel reinforcing and it requires no admixtures or accelerators. A particular instance is cited in which a job was finished two months ahead of schedule because Pressthile Velo Cement was used instead of an ordinary cement. MISSOURI PORTLAND CEMENT COMPANY, ST. LOUIS, MO.

• LIGHTING FIXTURES
Horn and Brannen Lighting Fixtures. Many attractive examples of Early American fixtures some of which were reproduced for the Ford museum, and others from the Henry Ford collection, are reproduced in this booklet. They will appeal particularly to those who have a keen interest in the Early American Period.

• CASEMENT WINDOWS
Your Windows Through a Decorator's Eye. In an illustrated booklet on Lipton Casement Windows a color scheme is offered for each room in the house. All the rooms are equipped with Lipton Casements. The windows will not warp these casements or make them stick, Lipton metal screens, and shade and drapery brackets are available for the casements. DAVID LIPTON'S SONS CO., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

• BATHROOM FIXTURES
New Beauty and Utility. One of the special features of this booklet on Kohler plumbing fixtures is a series of illustrations showing groups made up of pieces particularly designed to be used together. This will assist the home owner in choosing the bathroom equipment. Special lavatories to be installed in the boudoir is also illustrated. Fixtures are available in many soft pastel colors. KOHLER CO., KOHLER, WIS.

• TILES
Kraftile Faience. A collection of color illustrations shows interiors attractively floored and walled with Kraftile. This tile is made by the monolithic method which is described in full, and because of this method of manufacture Kraftile can be guaranteed against cracking, crazing and spalling, or lifting the glaze. KRAFTILE COMPANY, 55 NEW MONTGOMERY STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
