In this issue...

Santa Claus, who dominates this issue (see pages 171 to 191), is by all odds our oldest contributor. The object of a larger fan mail than Clark Gable, he is an expert teamster and steeplejack, loves children, bright red, cold winter nights and shuns only the Scrooges of this world.

Kurt Versen gives as much thought to designing a floor lamp (p. 208) as he gave in the past to such projects as illuminating the Pentagon Building and East and West Coast World's Fairs. Fond of serious music, his one pet aversion is the implications of the word "modernistic".

Paul Thiry's pioneering contributions to Northwestern architecture include factory and university buildings and such forward-looking houses as his own (page 196). After world-wide travels from Alaska, where he was born, to the tip of India, he has settled in Seattle, Washington, for good.

Friede R. Stege had her first garden at seven, has been planning them ever since for private houses (p. 224), public buildings, factories. Ex-member of the Merritt Parkway Commission, she loves dogs, photography and making flower arrangements which have a way of winning prizes.

Whitney R. Warren combines a flair for antiques and decoration, inherited from his architect father, with a true agriculturalist's enthusiasm for his land (p. 212). Widely traveled, brought up in New York and in Europe, he is now a confirmed Californian.

CREATED BY FARNSWORTH TELEVISION & RADIO CORPORATION, FORT WAYNE 1, INDIANA
People of the Northwest, at home in a rigorous climate, have been quick to foresee the decorating effectiveness of this airy California wrought iron. Here elegant design is enhanced by floral decorations of cast bronze. And, for a dramatic touch, sailcloth coverings in duBarry rose contrast boldly with frames in antique chartreuse. Beautiful, immensely practical, these gay pieces sing of year 'round summer—bring bright accents to the modern or traditional setting.

Dayton's own for the Northwest.
For your own happy blending of period beauty with the delightfully functional... combine these superb basic pieces, by White.

The stately Lord Exeter tester bed, authentic reproduction of a priceless Sheraton original circa 1790, recaptures all the charm of crinoline days. The Chippendale double dresser, White's most popular transition piece, provides abundant storage space with great elegance.

Ask your dealer to show you these and other White pieces. Look for the name White, permanently branded in the top drawer of each piece, symbol of the quality craftsmanship that has made White furniture famous for value since 1881.

Send 10¢ for your copy of the White Album of Fine Furniture: Dining Room, Bedroom, White-Hall Tables.
Again, a treasure collection of them, such as you might have found here in pre-war years... double damasks or rhapsodic compilations of linen and organdy. Here are linens worthy of Thanksgiving hospitality... or dutiful beauty for day-after-day use on your family dinner table.

On permanent finish organdy, rich harvest of Irish linen fruits, hand-appliqued in Madeira. 3-yard cloth and 12 napkins... $295.

Hand-hemmed double damask in chrysanthemum or scroll pattern, 72 x 90 inch cloth... $25. 22-inch napkins, doz... $26.50.

Hemstitched double damask, in morning-glory, tulip and rose patterns, 66 x 84 inch cloth and eight napkins... $29.50.

This view of Lake Michigan comes indoors in the W. A. Getzel home, Milwaukee... glazed throughout with Thermopane to afford clearer vision and complete comfort even near the windows. Architect: Ray Dwyer, Milwaukee. Glass installed by T. C. Esser Co., Milwaukee.

Enjoy murals that change with the seasons . . .

now that you can get Thermopane so promptly

You'll find new adventures in living when you frame your views through Picture Windows. As the seasons change, your own exclusive murals enrich indoor living with nature's ever-changing moods and colors.

Whatever the season, you'll experience greater comfort indoors... when your windows are Thermopane*. In winter, this insulating windowpane cuts heat loss and reduces downdrafts at windows... minimizes condensation and frost on glass, thus helping maintain healthful humidities. In summer, Thermopane helps protect your rooms from outdoor heat.

In all climates, Thermopane assures efficient, year-round insulation... because of the dry air sandwiched between the panes of glass. L-O-F's Bondermetic Seal* around the edges welds the panes into a unit, keeps dirt and moisture from entering the air space.

Before you build or remodel, ask your architect about Thermopane. It may be installed in fixed or opening sash... stays in all year. L-O-F Glass Distributors in principal cities can assure quick deliveries in over 70 standard sizes as well as made-to-measure units. For more information, write for our Thermopane book. For months Morgan-Jones' designers searched for the one bedspread that they could call "the classic example of early American hand-loom ing."

At last, in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, they discovered it...a handmade masterpiece from the days of a forgotten home craft. That antique counterpane inspired this magnificent reproduction—the "Minuet."

It can be yours now—a precious heritage from the past.

As Morgan-Jones has re-created it, the "Minuet" will make your bed a showpiece...whether antique, traditional or modern. It is a bedspread to cherish for years, and hand on to your children for their children. (Twin- or double-bed size, handsomely gift-boxed.)

Yours are the treasures that make life worthwhile, with a wonderful husband to make your anniversary a day of days!

But you also know that practical needs are important, too. And you’re prouder than ever that you chose for your home those luxurious Pacific Combed Percale Sheets... soft and white and welcoming— notable for their wearing qualities.

They’re today’s best value in sheets. It takes an extra manufacturing step to comb out the short cotton fibers and achieve such supremely fine texture; yet their price is almost as low as that of carded percales — actually lower today than under wartime price controls.

Identify Pacific Combed Percale Sheets by noting the Pacific label next time you shop. A prominent store in your community will be glad to show them to you.

Dad says Mother's always itchin'
To get the company in the kitchen;
Formica sink top is the reason
Her pride's stronger than his teasin'.

This is the end where Timmy sits
And does his best to pound to bits
Our fine Formica dinette table;
It's plain to see he isn't able.

Maybe somewhere there's an immaculate . . . but cold . . . house with perfect children, a never-careless husband, an always gentle cleaning woman, and a well-trained dog. Furniture and fixtures are treated like rare museum pieces.

But that's not our house and we don't think it's yours. If we're wrong, you're only half a prospect for Beauty Bonded Formica®. Heart-warming colors and beautiful designs are the only features we have for "museum dwellers."

But honestly, isn't yours more of a home than that? A place to enjoy real care-free living? Then you'll want to know that Formica's beauty is safe from harm of fruit juices, alcohol, boiling water, cleaning alkalies, and the normal wear of happy, active people. Beauty Bonded Formica cleans with the swipe of a damp cloth and it lasts for years and years.

Your Furniture Dealer and your Architect know Formica and respect it.

1. Fills with hot or warm wash water—automatically.
2. Washes clothes clean with amazing Live-Water Action—automatically.
3. Spins out the used wash water—automatically.
4. Fills itself with clean, warm rinse water—automatically.
5. Rinses clothes thoroughly with Live-Water Action—automatically.
6. Spins out first rinse water and fills itself for second rinse—automatically.
7. Rinses clothes a second time—automatically.
9. Cleans itself and shuts off—automatically.

NOTE: Dial may be set to lengthen, shorten, repeat or omit any operation in the above cycle.

Imagine washdays in which touching a dial with your finger-tip is about your hardest task! That's practically all you do, besides putting in soap and clothes, with the new Frigidaire Automatic Washer. Here is a washer that does more things automatically—and faster—than you ever dreamed possible.

Live-Water Action gets clothes really clean—safely. Live-Water Action carries clothes from water level down under, back to top, down again...over and over, flexing clothes all the while. Five and one-half water pulsations a second send cleansing currents of soap and water surging through every inch of fabric, searching out and carrying away soil and grime. And the same Live-Water Action that washes clothes clean rinses them bright! Live-Water Action is so thorough it gets grimiest work clothes clean. Yet so gentle, your precious things are safe through washing after washing.

Rapidry Spin Gets Clothes Drier. Once clothes are rinsed, Frigidaire's Rapidry Spin gets them really damp-dry—by spinning 2 to 3 times faster than most other washers. Clothes are nearly 50% lighter in weight, easier to carry. They're whiter, brighter in color; and many are dry enough to iron immediately.

2 Other New Frigidaire Home Laundry Appliances

Frigidaire Automatic Electric Dryer—for clothes, linens that need further drying before ironing. Dries clothes ready to iron in 15 to 25 minutes; towels, bath mats, blankets come out fluffy-soft. Eliminates work of hanging clothes; worries about weather, smoke, dust, dirt, insects.

Frigidaire Electric Ironer—so simple, you'll learn to use it in 10 minutes. Many outstanding ironer advantages, including Prestoe-Matic foot control.

A SURE-CURE for Cold Weather Starting... the new SHUR-HETE Motor Water Heater
Install a Shur-Hete unit on your engine—plug it into a 110 volt A.C. outlet and your car will start easily and quickly, even on the coldest mornings. Why? Because the water around the sealed electric element is heated, causing automatic circulation which keeps the entire engine block warm; therefore the oil in the crankcase and around the cylinder walls is always free-flowing.

Easy to install—Any garage mechanic can install a Shur-Hete in a short time. 1/4 connections into head block and into drain plug opening are all that are necessary. Fittings included—nothing else to buy.

Beyond the Gulf Stream's flying fish and phosphorous waves lie the most famous coral islands in the world, the Bermudas, or Bermuda as they are collectively called. They symbolize many things: relaxed living among friendly people, the unhurried charm of cyclists, the coveted ease of things synonymous with vacationing on this tiny archipelago.

Over one hundred and fifty islets divided into nine separate communities known as Parishes, each with its individual personality, comprise Bermuda. There is St. George, the first settlement, with the original seventeen century buildings; Paget, Warwick and Somerset with their private homes nesting in the cedars. The British influence is everywhere, in the shops that sell tweeds, English china; the little tea-houses; the bobbies. And cricket. The Harrington Sound area with the famous Bermuda Aquarium, stalactite caves, and the little perfume factories; Hamilton with its historic government buildings; and Mid-Ocean with one of the most spectacular golf courses in the Western Hemisphere.

In the pages of this issue, House & Garden brings you 600 Christmas gifts. They range from a 30-cent miniature heart-shaped basket for serving cream cheese to a $5,000 ebony and ormolu French desk. They are varied, beautiful, different, geared to people-of-all-ages and pocketbooks-of-all-sizes, available in stores all-over-the-country. This year more than ever, Christmas shopping in America is merely a matter of choice. Because the great majority of Americans have the necessities of life, we can afford to give a few luxuries—things that are gay and pretty, frivolous and fragile. Never have there been so many beautiful ribbons and wrapping papers. Tree ornaments are as plentiful as before the war. But in the midst of this abundance, try to remember what Christmas is like in other lands. In the first place, life is infinitely bleaker. There is less fuel for heat and for cooking. There are fewer garlands, because paper is still short. Instead of a choice of 50 presents, it is hard to find five to choose from. In England, older people never expect to see the end of austerity in their lifetimes. They will thank you for practical gifts such as shoes, gloves, a warm bed jacket. In Eastern Europe, the only Christmas that many people will enjoy will come in a CARE package. Europe's shortages are particularly poignant when you realize that the best of everything is being shipped to us to bolster currencies. England is exporting treasured tweeds and Scotch whiskey, Czechoslovakia toys, Italy linens, France fashions and perfumes. So when we Americans gather around our bright trees to give thanks for all we have received, it should be humbly—remembering the real needs of food, clothing and shelter which, in all but our own fortunate country, exist throughout the world on Christmas day.
Christmas

Christmas begins with a list: children, family, friends, the postman, the janitor, the paper boy... For each of them you want to find the perfect present, though it may take weeks of going from shop to shop, counter to counter. Your purse will tell you whether to be prodigal or thrifty, but even so there is a staggering choice. On the following pages are hundreds of solutions to your Christmas problems which will save you ten times as many steps. They have one constant theme and it is the soundest of all possible approaches to Christmas: everyone on your list loves the place where he lives. So select your gifts with this in mind; choose a present for the desk in the library of the man who likes to read; for the sideboard in the dining room of the woman who likes to entertain; for the cabinet in the kitchen of the woman who enjoys cooking; for the shelf in the tool shed of the gardener. In this way, you can be sure that you will add to the enjoyment of life... all through the house and garden.

Dining in the grand manner

On these four pages we present the tables of four well-known New York hostesses. These tables, which combine knowledge and taste, show a personal touch in their arrangement.

No two are similar, but all have in common great elegance.

AT MRS. EVANDER B. SCHLEY’S

This fragile and perfect ensemble is made up of: a place mat of point de Venise lace; a Lowestoft dessert plate; silver-gilt fruit knife, fork and bonbon dish; a French nineteenth-century crystal and ormolu fruit dish. Mrs. Schley always leaves both tiers of the compotier empty using it purely as an ornament. The table is mahogany with a rubbed-down gilt edge. Chairs are covered in yellow brocade.

AT MRS. WILLIAM WOODWARD’S

This festive table depends principally on Mrs. Woodward’s superb collection of Waterford glass. This includes an eighteenth-century temple, see opposite page, two pairs of candelabra and some early Waterford covered bowls on teakwood stands. Silver, in the King pattern, is placed on white and gold plastic mats. Around the eighteenth-century English mahogany table are Queen Anne chairs with tapestry seats.
In a dining room of great formality, right, Mrs. Harrison Williams introduces a personal touch in the silver-edged, crested, white parchment menus, the old gilt snuff box filled with cigarettes.

Place plates and centerpiece are famille rose Lowestoft. The silver is George II with green ivory-handled knives. Glass is modern Swedish, the chairs and table are Queen Anne mahogany.
Adapted to a small table, the white and gold Directoire urn is filled with lady apples. Candlesticks are eighteenth-century Irish. Mats are cream colored handkerchief linen, edged with Binche lace; the silver is Georgian. Directoire chairs in pale green leather are drawn up to the round table whose shape is repeated in a green and white marble floor.
Children make the plan

In the life of a child, the most predictable fact is change. So, if you are building or buying a house for children, look for an arrangement of rooms that can stretch at the points of greatest strain: play and storage space. For, though sleeping and eating remain much the same, there are four ages of childhood when play and storage areas need reorganization. The crib-child is at the mercy of his mother, and outside of quiet, sunshine and air, the space might as well be keyed to her convenience. The toddler has a larger world. He plays indoors and out, but can’t be trusted by himself. His curiosity will take him through the house, but mostly under your feet. If you do your own housework, you’ll be thankful for a kitchen which commands a view of the yard and an adjacent playroom or alcove. Other rooms, too, should have a corner for his toys, a couple of large, low shelves or drawers where he can chuck them in despite awkwardness. Of course, anything fragile will need a high shelf or will have to be put away for the duration. School age ushers in an era of slammed doors, muddy feet, skates, sleds and baseball bats. If you live in the country, consider having a sturdy and washable entrance area with space for outdoor clothing and sports equipment. It should be possible for the youngsters to reach their rooms without tracking across the living room carpet. School days also mean homework, and if a work counter was not built in with the storage cabinets, you’ll need to find room for a desk now. The teen-ager is sociable, sensitive and hungry. He wants to entertain his friends, but if he must share the living room with you, it will only make everyone self-conscious. Again a playroom is important; and if it is near the kitchen, you bow to raids on the refrigerator.

By adding a wing for the children, architect Paul Thiry converted his bachelor house in Seattle, Washington, into a house for the whole family

Twelve years ago, when architect Paul Thiry built his own house in Seattle, Washington, he felt sure it held everything a bachelor could desire: on the lower floor, a guest room, his own study, and a servant’s room; living-dining room, kitchen and bedroom on the main floor; and a large informal garden walled away from the street below. Ten years later he had a wife, a young son, a brand new baby and a house that couldn’t cope with the change. He didn’t want to build a new house—the old one was still fine for adults—but it was not suited to children, who needed quiet bedrooms, a safe place outdoors to play and an easy way of going in and out; all within view of their parents. Since the living room, dining room and kitchen overlook the garden, the part farthest away from the street was made into an upper level play court. The children’s rooms were placed next to the court, but away from the main house to cut out the noise of grown-up parties. The boys actually have a separate little three-room house at the end of a glassed-in passage, equipped with automatic thermostat and fire extinguishing systems. Although when the doors are open the children can be heard clearly from the master bedroom, a radio nurse hook-up has been installed. Later on, a few substitutions of furniture will keep pace with their growing needs.
In this town house, children are safe from traffic

As shown in the sketch, below, the children's play yard is in the farthest corner of the pie-shaped lot, protected from the street by the house itself. Here the boys (five-year-old Paul, Jr. and Pierre who is now two) have a sandbox, a shallow pool for boats or splashing, and smooth paving for tricycles and a fleet of toy cars. When they are older, they will use the stairway at the far edge of the property to reach their wing without going through the house.

The children's play court can be seen from all the main rooms of the house. The two large photographs, above, show the passage which connects the children's wing with the main house. Through these glass walls, Mrs. Thiry can keep an eye on her children from the living room or terrace. Both windows and doors in the kitchen and dining area open directly on the play court. At night, the two wings of the house are connected by radio nurse. Because he placed the children's rooms in a separate wing at the end of a passage, Mr. Thiry was able to leave the main house virtually untouched. Only a small section of the living-room wall was removed. The children's wing has two bedrooms opening on a playroom, a bathroom, and toy closet which can be used later on for linens.

continued

If you have two children, the plan of the Eric Sevareids' house will show you how a house can grow up with children.

Children's rooms are a step from outdoors

Because the twins are outside most of the day, their playroom and bedroom open directly to the outdoors. The playroom terrace, above, is one of four outdoor living areas ranged about the house. A part of it cuts under the house to form a covered drying yard. Wide doors lead to the adjacent laundry-utility room (see plan, opposite) and simplify delivery of bulky things like firewood, cases of food. The other storage spaces are for garden equipment, trunks and the children's outdoor toys.

CHARLES M. GOODMAN, architect
MR. and MRS. ERIC SEVAREID, owners

Twin boys are the reason for this house. Until they arrived on the scene, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Sevareid hadn't really thought about a house, as radio-reporting can be a peripatetic profession. But when Mrs. Sevareid left France with the babies in twin baskets on her arms, a house became an immediate problem. As soon as Mr. Sevareid was sent to Washington, they decided to make the capital their home base. It was impossible to build, and there didn't seem to be a house worth buying until, through sheer good luck and good friends, they found this house near Alexandria designed by architect Charles Goodman for a family just like themselves.

The house is a perfect fit. A part of it is for children: light airy rooms opening on a play court, washable walls and floors, plenty of low storage cabinets. And, since children are apt to explore every corner of a house, other rooms have sturdy, easily-cleaned surfaces as well. At different levels, the house opens directly to courts and terraces, a convenient arrangement where outdoor play is possible the year round. It was also realized that surroundings ideal for infants may be all wrong for active little boys, and that, in their turn, teen-agers will want something else. So the twins' wing is designed to change as their needs change. (See plan, opposite.) Looking ahead when they will give their own parties, the ground-floor playroom has a supply-line to the kitchen via a dumb-waiter.
A shelf was cut into the hill to create a level motor court and one-story service wing. On the other side, the house has two floors built against the slope.

Mr. and Mrs. Sevareid with one of the twins on the grass terrace below the living room.

When they were small, the twins lived in the room across the hall from their parents, and played in the walled court which has an insect-proof screen roof. Now the boys are eight years old and have taken over the guest room. In a few years, one of them will move back into the former nursery; and the play court, with a new window and solid roof, will become a room for his twin. Should they wish to have one room the partition between may be folded back.
Children are welcome through the house

Although their own rooms and the outdoor living areas were especially designed to hold the interest of children, they are not forbidden to use the rest of the house. Walls throughout are washable woods, the furniture doesn’t tip over easily and most of the rooms have acoustic tile ceilings to absorb noise. Mr. and Mrs. Sevareid’s rooms (the bedroom, a study for Mr. Sevareid, and a dressing room-study for his wife) fill a quiet corner of the upper floor.

Entrance court is an outdoor sitting room half-hidden from the drive. Sheltered by three walls of the house, it is comfortable 9 months of the year.

Instead of one formal dining room, there are several dining areas about the house. An alcove off the living room has a cabinet wall for glass, china, linens.

Mrs. Sevareid has a compact dressing room which is also fitted out as her study.

A part of the deck is screened off for dining. In winter the screen walls are replaced with glass.

From the kitchen it is easy to serve either dining alcove, screened deck, front terrace or (by dumbwaiter) the playroom. The twins like to eat at the counter.
Michael and Peter Sevareid perch on a garden wall outside the playroom.

The house was cut into a sunny slope to protect it from cold northwest winds. The main rooms have window walls on the lee side.

The deck is in the southwest corner, in the path of cool summer breezes. The dining porch is at left.

The master bedroom is placed between the two studies (see opposite and below). A wall-wide bay of windows reaches out to the view, adds three feet to the room.

The living room banks its windows toward the sun and looks out to a Virginia valley called Cameron. Cypress boards sheath the ceiling; walls are of oak plywood.

Mr. Sevareid's study is carefully organized for work. His broadcasts are written here.

For large parties, the living room is used with the adjoining study. Wall cabinet, left, also opens to kitchen as serving counter.

The playroom is a second living room impervious to hobbies and the boys' roughhouse.
Talking of tables

Hows and whys of setting tables; new accessories to give them individuality

Like the rising curtain which signals the beginning of the play, the big moment of your party is when your guests sit down at table. It is a moment of anticipation and appraisal—the moment which sets the pitch for the lunch or dinner. The hostess’ eyes move quickly around the board to see that everything is orderly, harmonious, appropriate. The fact that each place has been set correctly reassures her as to the performance of the untried maid. For the rules of where to put plates, glasses and silver are no whims of etiquette arbiters. They are primarily sensible, devised to facilitate service and keep the table neat. Take the rule for the placing of flat silver, from the outside in the order of its use. The same with the glasses, grouped so that the pre-filled water glass, which remains throughout the meal, is farthest left and well out of the waitress’ way, whereas the sherry glass (or glass for whatever wine is served first) is at the extreme right, its early removal clearing the way for the meat course. By salad time, the table setting has been reduced to a minimum. Dessert spoon and fork are not yet, because they would interfere with brushing up the crumbs. Like the fingerbowls, these are brought in on the dessert plates. If you serve fruit, it is a convenience to your guests to supply them not only with fingerbowls, knives and forks, but with a spoon as well, especially if the fruit is cooked. There are many other ways in which you can contribute to your guests’ well-being. First of all, avoid crowding. The extra couple that you can just squeeze in will not repay conversationally for elbows that overlap during the meat-cutting course, or ducking the platter from which your right-hand neighbor is helping himself. Though a big panache of flowers looks (Continued on page 276)

COUNTRY BREAKFAST TABLE, WARM WELCOME TO AN AUTUMN DAY

HOUSE & GARDEN, NOVEMBER, 1940
For Christmas:

a packaged kitchen-laundry

This Christmas, if you want to be abundantly practical, you can put a kitchen-laundry in somebody’s stocking. You can also put in just a kitchen or a laundry. But a recent survey by the American Gas Association shows that 31 out of 40 American women now prefer to have the two rooms combined. With them in mind, House & Garden and Roberts & Mander Company have designed a kitchen-laundry that can be ordered all in one package, and is adaptable to a wide variety of spaces. For those in the minority group, it can be divided in half. The prospective buyer need only take a floor plan to John Wanamaker, New York, The Boston Consolidated Gas Company, Boston, or Barker’s, Los Angeles; there he will be able to choose the pieces that fit his particular requirements. When installed, the room will not only be tailored to fit.

You can put this combination kitchen-laundry in a stocking for about $2,700.

Or you can give the packaged kitchen for about $1,600.

Or you can give the packaged laundry for about $1,113.
The designing of lamps poses two problems: they must fit into the many styles of decoration which are current and they must give good light. The purely decorative lamp is as obsolete as the one which sacrifices beauty to do its job. Reading lights are specially engineered nowadays to eliminate eyestrain. The old idea that the best light is the brightest has been exploded. Glare on the page of a book is very hard on the eyes. Hand-in-hand with the improvement in lighting has come improvement in design. Modern lamps are more graceful, less acutely functional, and the designs which stem from antique urns, vases, columns and the like show fine proportions and workmanship. You will find every material under the sun used for lamps, from a metal wallpaper roller to fine crystal, and they are finished in any color you like.
A TÔLE COLUMN and matching, opaque shade make this lamp perfect for a library desk or front hall console. It is made in any color, stands 31" high with 16" diameter shade, $67.50 complete. Newel-Hayes Company, Inc.

Week end in reverse

This California country house came about in anything but the usual way. After the First World War, Mr. Whitney R. Warren, much decorated but badly shaken up, wanted to rehabilitate himself by getting back to the soil. Son of the well-known New York architect, he had neither farming experience nor great capital to invest. So he bought a few acres in the Sacramento Valley, took courses at the California School of Agriculture and set out to prove to himself that he could make ranching pay. He hopes that his success will serve to encourage other veterans with problems. Out of the sale of peaches, almonds, walnuts, Mr. Warren soon tripled his acreage in the rich alluvial soil along the Bear River. The house itself came almost ten years later. It is a typical California structure, rough-beamed and white-walled inside, equipped with a swimming pool. Reversing the usual order of things, Mr. Warren spends his week ends in town at his San Francisco house which is formal, full of inherited mementos and well-chosen furniture, a perfect background for its owner in his other role of music-lover and host.
THE DINING CORNER OF THE RANCH LIVING ROOM

Meals are served on this dark walnut table in front of an oyster-white couch. The antique Japanese screen is black and gold, the centerpiece is of golden-yellow and dark red dahlias. Beams in this room are rough-hewn redwood stippled in whitewash with a dairy broom.

A CORNER FOR READING

Samples from his father's famous majolica collection decorate this window recess which looks out on the swimming pool.

THE RANCH GUEST ROOM

Fruit and flower prints look well on the severe white walls. Bedcovers are blue against pink toile headboards.
Mr. Warren's town house, to which he goes on week ends, is elegant and modern.

MANTELPIECE IN THE STUDY
Ornaments complete a fine French eighteenth-century ensemble.

THE MASTER BEDROOM OVERLOOKS SAN FRANCISCO'S GOLDEN GATE
Gardner Dailey, who planned the house on Telegraph Hill, gave his client a livable corner room.
Frances Elkins covered bed and chair with sea-green Dorothy Liebes textiles. Walls are celadon.
A GUEST BEDROOM

Photographs, mementoes give this corner personality. Mr. Warren is also interested in modern painting, owns works by Stuempsig, Truex.

A CORNER OF THE LIBRARY

Red velvet hangings give this room a quiet, intimate feeling. Here the owner's artist and musician friends often spend an evening.

DOOR TO THE MASTER BEDROOM

Once the entrance to an Italian confessional, these superb carved doors give on the stair well hung with maps and old pictures.

A BOLDINI FAMILY PORTRAIT

Mr. Warren's mother, as depicted by the fashionable painter of the 1890s, hangs over a French commode ornamented with crystal lustres.
A room that makes five decorating points:
1. Bright Navy Blue plus Copper add up to a lively background for traditional mahogany.
2. Subdued, all-of-a-color pattern dispels monotony, keeps the quiet mood.
3. A desk is more effective when it is set off by a crystal paper weight, an Empire lamp, antique globes, trophée panels.
4. A door in a deep reveal is elegant framed with books (left).
5. Opaque lamp shades make pools of light.

Make room for television in your life

In the old days, it was the box-shaped radio, unimproved and undisguised, which so often proved the decorative hurdle in the living room. Today, it's a whole group of mechanisms—radio-phonograph, record-changer, amplifier and, finally, television—which tend to raise hob with the furniture arrangement. But certain canny manufacturers are beginning to devise solutions to bring all these items under one lid and integrate them into standard styles of decoration. On this page is a good example, a distinguished eighteenth-century mahogany breakfront which can be bought in two sections, upper and lower, and whose good looks alone warrant its dominant position in this room. Its television screen (closed off by doors when not in use) has a logic in the over-all design. So have the dial panels, loud-speaker and compartments for holding albums. With the upper shelves filled with a library of musical books or a collection of objets d'art, this breakfront tells everything about its owner, his interests and hobbies, his good taste in furniture, his quiet evenings, his parties. For other ideas on how to fit either music or television in your home, see the rooms which appear on the two following pages.

How a wallflower can become the center of the stage

The floor plan, below, shows the room, opposite, set for conversation. The arrangement is circular; there are plenty of low tables for drinks and ashtrays. If guests want to watch television, the center of interest shifts. The two middle chairs, swung around, become front row seats, the audience is lined up facing the Magnavox Windsor Imperial ($1,645 at Lord & Taylor, New York). The lamp, by the Art Lamp Corp., costs $60 at Lord & Taylor, New York. Furniture in copper leather was made for House & Garden by the Upholstery Leather Group. Information on other accessories in this room, on page 273.
Sight and sound for every décor

In these two apartments, the problems were, respectively, to incorporate a television set and a large radio-phonograph into specific types of decoration. The owners of the room, right, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm L. Pearson, set a mélange of antiques against a Victorian wallpaper. Realizing that you can see television perfectly through an open door, they matched the adjoining library to their decorative scheme, centered their television set in it. Miss Marion Dorn, the designer, lives in a modern apartment, opposite page, which is limited as to space. So she bought the bleached Berkshire radio-phonograph, set it in the hall against a wall painted dark green in continuation of the living room’s rear wall, and now enjoys her music from around the corner.

HOUSE & GARDEN, NOVEMBER, 1948
A LONG ROOM, right, with a light-flooded window is treated to severe color contrasts. The end is pale gray with blond Robsjohn-Gibbings furniture, the hack wall, which becomes part of the hall, is hemlock green. Against it, below, is the bleached walnut RCA Victor's Berkshire radio-phonograph, also designed by Robsjohn-Gibbings, price $2,300 at Lyon & Healy, Chicago. The table, consisting of a polished slate disk mounted on a column, holds Miss Dorn's shell collection.

MISS MARION DORN, well known designer, lives in this pale, quiet room.
Gardens in three moods

Virginia, Connecticut and Maine which respectively produced the three gardens you see on these pages, stamped each with its form and character, gave each its special charm.

A romantic garden in Virginia

THE WIDE-SPREAD FIELDS near Warrenton, Virginia, rolling, dotted with great trees, make it superb country to landscape as well as to hunt in. Here, Mr. Sterling Larrabee and the late Mrs. Larrabee made a celebrated green garden, its scale and dignity a perfect setting for southern life.

Opposite: NATIVE VINES, such as Virginia creeper which shrouds an old tree, lend the garden a romantic charm well carried out by features such as a statue framed in a woodland glade, a small fountain in an outdoor room, a meandering stream, myrtle-edged, which cuts across the wide lawns. Box grows to enormous size in the soft Virginia climate and is used for maximum effect, some of the hedges of 20 feet or more having doors cut in them.

A rock garden in Connecticut

THE LAND ON THE HILLTOP which Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tison bought near Darien, Connecticut, is full of natural rock outcroppings. Rather than undertake the expensive job of clearing it, the Tisons' landscape architect, Friede R. Stege, suggested that they make the most of them. The result is a happy blend of architecture and nature which fits the site admirably.

Opposite: FOLLOWING THE CONTOURS of rock and soil, paths meander freely on either side of the central alley. They are bordered by native bushes such as laurel, and clumps or carpets of rock garden flowers which bloom till midsummer.

Later on when this section is uniformly green, the walled rose garden at the foot of the land becomes the center of interest.

Above: LOW STONWORK, resembling the native rock ribs, divides the central alley into a series of shallow grass parterres. Some of these are bounded by walls, others have irregular sides formed by the growth of shrubs and plants. This one has facing white iron benches which take advantage of the shade of large trees growing on the site. The house, which is also of stone, was built in 1930 by architect William Lawrence Bottomley. It commands a fine view of Long Island Sound.
A scented garden in Maine

IN A NORTHERN STATE, which has a short season, flowers seem doubly precious, bloom with a reckless profusion, their fragrance emphasized by the cool, salty air. The garden of Mrs. Alfred Anson at Bar Harbor, Maine, is planted with the sentimental, old-fashioned perennials whose colors make a brilliant showing against the cold blue of sea and sky. Surrounding a turreted stone house high over Frenchman's Bay, it is landscaped and planted to the very edge of the cliff.

Opposite: PINK AND WHITE SNAPDRAGONS are massed for maximum effect on this cliff-top site, which Mrs. Anson calls the "Hanging Garden." In the foreground is scented rose geranium, in the deep shade along the edges is nicotiana. The plot is at its best in August when the bay beyond is also at its bluest.

The plan of this garden is circular, with grassy paths in the form of a Greek cross leading to the central round, stone-rimmed pool. Of bronze, the fountain figure of a boy with a serpent, representing the infant Hercules, is by Paul Manship.

Above: WIDE SHALLOW STEPS, banked with ferns, lead down to the walled garden thickly planted with white stock whose scent drifts as far as the house on a breezy day. Entered by an arch, warm and sunny, it makes an effective contrast with the heavily shaded approach. Three textures are used here: the steps, smooth, shallow blocks; the arch and wall, rough stonework (the latter set at intervals with urns); the paths, old pink brick laid end to end. Serpentine paved paths which have a shallow, raised border wind through other parts of the garden.
They turn the tables to entertain

For the fourth House & Garden article about young marrieds with incomes between $3,500 and $5,000, we asked three young couples, who live in small apartments, how they entertain.

“We like to have our friends in often,” they said, “cook easy-to-serve meals. The clue to our parties is versatile tables which we set with serviceable china, pottery, silver and glass.”

Clapboard siding, a favorite finish for houses of Colonial style, suits modern design equally well. Walls gain texture through shadow lines cast by long horizontal boards. See how well they contrast with either plain modern window surfaces or small-scale window muntins and a paneled door. Wood siding such as this has the advantages of easy installation, good insulating value, the many colors it can take. Upkeep is necessary, however.

EVERYONE wants to own a house that is attractive. This is true whether it is built in a traditional way or in a functional way. The fact that good planning has been emphasized particularly in recent years does not mean that good looks are any less important now. The best designed houses have always and inevitably been those which not only worked well but looked well, too. The materials of which exterior walls are made have a great deal to do with this because they contribute form and color. This is evident in the clapboard and shingle walls of New England, the mellow brick walls of the South, the fieldstone of Pennsylvania. It is apparent, too, in California’s redwood, in glass and plywood panels, in concrete and stucco as well as in old adobe walls. These regional materials each help to create an individual kind of house. They illustrate what architects mean when they say “good building is always an expression of its structural materials.” For it is impossible to disassociate a good house from those materials which enclose it. In themselves, and in the way in which they are combined and contrasted, they create the texture, pattern, and scale which assure character and quality.

The pictures you see here indicate some of the varieties of texture and variations of scale which wood, masonry and other surfaces can create.

DURABILITY must be considered along with appearance in choosing materials. Summer sun and rain, winter snow, sleet, wind and frost will do their able best to penetrate and wear walls down. So don’t think only of how a material looks when a house is newly completed but consider how it might look a dozen years later if it is not well selected and well installed. In selecting the materials reckoning must be made of relative construction costs as well as the cost of the materials themselves. Figure, too, the cost of maintenance and upkeep through the years—the painting, staining, waterproofing which you may or may not have to do, depending on the surface you choose. In general your choice will fall between wood or masonry construction and between various exterior finishes which may be applied to either one. The outside finish you pick largely determines which way the walls of your house will be built. Clapboards, shingles, boarding, plywood panels, stucco, brick or stone veneer are usually applied as an exterior facing over a wood frame. The frame forms the load-bearing structural skeleton of the house. Masonry such as stone, brick, hollow tile, concrete block can be self-supporting and serve as the structural wall itself as well as the finish. In general, the wood frame house with a wood finish is less costly to build. But, since the cost of materials and the cost of labor to put them together, along with other relevant factors, differs in nearly every community in the country, there are relatively few precise figures which are generally applicable today.

Masonry materials such as stone and brick can be used as actual supporting walls of a house or as a facing veneer. These walls are solid and they show the pleasing textures which variegated surfaces and tones can create. Stone, which looks best laid flat, in horizontal courses, as it is here, and brick, which can be laid in various bond patterns, with many types of joints (Flemish bond, raked joints here), need careful, weatherproof construction.

Batten board walls, used traditionally, give an agreeable rustic effect. New patterns are possible also, as the adjoining modern house picture shows. This construction is made up of vertical boards set flush with each other. Their joints are covered with narrow batten strips. Such wood walls can be stained (redwood is used in this way frequently) or painted. Flush board walls without battens are attractive too.

WOOD FINISHES: in the familiar shape of clapboards, flush boarding, boards and battens, or shingles, wood has always been a most popular material for outside walls. (Continued on page 291)

Shingles and siding, used on the exteriors shown above, contrast old and new kinds of wall texture. The play of light and shadow, the irregular shapes and sizes of the wood shingles on the old house, left, give it a richly detailed texture. The broad bands of the large-scaled hardboard siding on the newer house, right, give it a sturdier, heavier look. Both materials serve as finish over frame construction.

Modern materials are fabricated materials new to residential use and old materials used in new ways. Corrugated steel on house above, left, is economical, sturdy and an interesting contrast to the flat roof and smooth, adjoining walls. Asbestos cement panel (right-hand wall of same house) insulates, is fireproof, durable, needs no painting. Vertical flush boards on house above, right, are narrow in width, present smooth surface. Of natural cedar, oiled, they require little care.

is lack of SLEEP keeping you nervous?

The battle of business, worry over the state of the world—such strains cannot help but wear you down. No use longing for the good old days of grandfather’s time, when living was simple.

You’re living in a modern world and its pace is brutal on the nerves. By the time you fall into bed you’re often “too tired to sleep.” You turn and thrash, your mind mills over the day’s problems, tensely anticipating the same mad scramble tomorrow.

What can you do about it? A tense body and sensitive, worried mind need special inducements to sleep. The most important thing is to have the right kind of mattress and box spring.

What is the “right kind” of mattress and box spring? What essential features should you look for?

Rule out the very soft mattress. It fails to give the sense of firm support so essential to sound sleep. A very hard mattress is no more helpful. A stingy thin mattress is little better than none.

Is there a mattress that overcomes the shortcomings of ordinary mattresses? Let’s examine the PIL-O-REST made by Karpen and see how it meets the requirements of living and sleeping in this modern world.

PIL-O-REST is neither too hard nor too soft.

PIL-O-REST is tuftless and smooth.

PIL-O-REST has a patented, exclusive sleep-inducing feature—channeled pillows attached to the top and bottom surfaces of the innerspring mattress. These channeled pillows are filled with 100% staple cotton to provide a soft, smooth top over the firm support of the innerspring unit. They are constructed to prevent shifting of the cotton.

The Karpen PIL-O-REST mattress (and box spring) help your body to relax easily—and to stay comfortable all night, in any position. While PIL-O-REST may not solve all your problems, it can help amazingly toward easing tension and inducing restful, healthful sleep.

Karpen PIL-O-REST mattress now $59.50.
Karpen box spring upholstered to match, with 72 coils hand-tied 8 ways and mounted on a hardwood frame $59.50. Other Karpen guaranteed mattresses from $39.50.

DISTINGUISHED DOORWAYS

The entrance to your house can make or break its attractiveness. Note how such good details and individual treatments can create a winning first impression.

This wide and welcoming double doorway dresses up the simple clapboard walls of a one-story studio. Elegantly thin pilasters, a neatly scalloped lintel frame it and big coach lamps flank it. Planting and stone flagging are of modest character. Studio is the music room of Mr. Albert G. Spalding.

In the Kendall Keelys’ house in California the patio doors are partly paneled, partly grilled. Note how a keystone ties the doorway to a tiny overhead window. Screens supplement doors.

Dark painted double doors are striking against light walls of Julio B. Sanchez house in Miami Beach, Florida. Diamond shape trim on door panels is picked out in a contrasting color.
French Renaissance — a beautiful pattern of heavier than average weight. Six-piece place setting with these four pieces, plus cream soup spoon and butter spreader, $27.00 (including Federal Tax).

This California ranch house has separate wings for parents, children, guests, service

The plan wings out along a shoulder of the hillside to catch welcome summer breezes. Every room opens directly to the outdoors, some of them on two sides. On rainy days the children play under the wide eaves which form porches and a walkway around their patio. Meals for the youngsters are often served in the playroom which is handy to the kitchen. The guest room has a splayed wall to borrow space from the entrance hall. The little hall outside the guest bathroom makes it usable from the living room and from the ranch office as well.
On a ranch, where independence is a part of good business, children soon learn self-reliance. So, the owners of this ranch house in Santa Cruz County, California, did not hesitate to give their three children a wing to themselves. Architect Hervey Parke Clark, of the San Francisco firm of Clark & Beuttler, angled it off from the rest of the house to bound a broad play-patio visible from the living room and just a step from the kitchen. The typical ranch fence keeps the cattle away from the landscaped living areas. On the opposite side of the house, separated from the children's court by the width of the living room, is a terrace primarily for grownups. With the living and dining rooms, it shares a view to the flat lands beyond through a canyon in the intervening hills. The parents' rooms are in a far corner of the house, for privacy. Because the paper work of ranch management is often left over for the evening, the ranch office was placed nearby. It overlooks the road up from the valley.

It's called the "American Colonial" and it has all the charm and beauty of weathered wood, yet it's made of asbestos and cement, two practically indestructible materials. "Here's how we got luxury without extravagance"

"It's one thing to have grand ideas, but quite another to make them fit your purse. Because we always wanted a super-super bathroom, we chose Eljer Fixtures... and that's how we got luxury without extravagance."

Investing in dependable, quality bathroom fixtures is not an extravagance. You expect them to last a long time... even a lifetime. That is why more and more homeowners are choosing Eljer. The bathtubs, for example, have a rugged, rigid, cast-iron base that makes possible a smooth, extra-thick coating of glass-like enamel that stays sparkling clean with the swish of a damp cloth. And, Eljer Vitreous China Fixtures just naturally resist stains and the effect of all ordinary acids... because they are real china.

For beautiful Eljer Fixtures in white or pastel shades, see your plumbing contractor or write Eljer Co., Box 192, Ford City, Pennsylvania.

WHAT IS REAL VITREOUS CHINA?
Eljer Vitreous China is similar in texture to the finest table china... but with added toughness to withstand severe use over the years. Fired at more than 2000° F., the glass-like surface actually becomes a part of the base. The colors cannot fade.

YOUNG ENTERTAINING

Today's young people
plan their parties with foresight, buy furniture and fixings for their get-togethers

FIVE-IN-ONE COCKTAIL TABLE IS SHOWN TO THE NEALONS BY SLOANE SALESMAN.
Mr. Nealon examines a Bridge Table which doubles in size for dining use.

To matter how tight their budgets or how small their apartments, the young couples HOUSE & GARDEN interviewed all agreed that it is fun and easy to have six or eight friends in for supper, an evening of music or cards, or just talk. The young hostesses like entertaining and enjoy their own parties as much as their guests do. Although these evenings are informal, their success is the result of commonsense planning which begins with the furniture and ends with the menu. There is nothing slapdash about the hospitality they have to offer.

As focal gathering point for the parties of all three of our couples is a table. Because of the compactness of the rooms where they live and the slimmness of their purses, their tables must play more than one role: for cocktails, supper, games. There are so many types of versatile cocktail tables in the shops today that it's really easy to find one in any decorating style you like and at almost any price.

Ann and John Nealon went shop-ing at W & J Sloane's in New York.
hunting for the perfect table for their remodeled Greenwich Village walk-up.
They were fascinated by the choice which confronted them: a square mod-eru model had snack tables tucked underneath; a circular one had pie-shaped wedges at the perimeter (which from the parent table to form chair-side units or stack up into a tiered service table); an oblong one had shallow drawers for silver or cards; a long narrow table could be raised to dining or buffet height. Because Mrs. Nealon, a hospitable Southerner, likes to give both buffet and sit-down dinners, they settled on a cocktail table which converts into a long dining table (see page 229). Next step in planning was to buy the right serving pieces: china, pottery, silver and glass for their parties.

Mrs. Nealon likes to serve spicy
but hearty food, especially Steak Creole. This is made from an inexpensive cut of beef tenderized in tomato sauce with green peppers, sautéed onions and mushrooms, and rimmed with saffron rice. For this she bought a large silver tray (which is also put to other uses, so it was not, they felt, an extravagance) and Stang pottery.

When a sculptor creates a statue he gives it "Third Dimension Beauty"... loveliness not only from the front but from every angle. When William S. Warren created these five Wallace Sterling designs, he gave them the "Third Dimension Beauty" of full-formed sculpture... beauty in front, beauty in profile, beauty in back.

Hold a piece of Wallace Sterling in your hand and turn it slowly around. You'll see that the pattern has beauty from every perspective... the "Third Dimension Beauty" found in no other sterling but Wallace. Before you select your silver, be sure to see Wallace's exquisite "Third Dimension Beauty" designs. Left to right: Grande Baroque, Sir Christopher, Grand Colonial, Stradivari, Rose Point. Six-piece place settings from $27 to $35, according to pattern.
Barbara Barondess MacLean, famous designer of homes and gowns for Hollywood stars, created this group for Schumacher's. 49'ers we call them—fabulous fabrics as gay as the Gold Rush days—all perfectly blended for supreme harmony in your home. The Schumacher Bond guarantees complete satisfaction. See 49'ers at your decorator's now.
Most recently married of the three couples we talked with, are Bob and Bernice Ayres (it was just two months since their wedding when this magazine went to press). Both work; both attend evening classes at the University of Chicago, have parties after football games and other college events, where their contemporaries rehash games, examinations and other undergraduate doings. Their parties center around the fireplace of their apartment, in front of which they have a large Lazy Susan cocktail table (page 228) from which guests help themselves. A light supper for late hours, prepared in a chafing dish, makes it possible for young Mrs. Ayres to be with her friends while she does most of the work. Copper chafing dish, Finnish pottery and Wallace "Stradivari" sterling are laid out on a chest in the living room, but all other service is from the Lazy Susan. A dish which they all like and which is inexpensive, has tuna fish or salmon as its base and a creamed sauce made by diluting a can of concentrated mushroom soup and adding chopped chives. With it she serves heated potato chips and plenty of black coffee.

The variety of cocktail tables and their roles in informal entertaining are almost endless. The adjacents in the way of china and pottery, silver and glass vary the patterns of informal entertaining still further. How you put them together spells the kind of party you will get, so decide what sort of menu you do best and what sort of evening you enjoy before you shop. If your specialty is Eggs Benedict, concentrate on buying the right dishes for them, instead of spreading your china budget so thin you won't have the proper plates for serving them. If you plan to have dinners, instead of suppers, for four or six, investigate the advantages of buying china by the set or here is table silver to add to your stock. If you do have a dozen. If you like punch (and make a good one) you'll find it really stretches your budget to invest in a punch set. A sterling or silver-plated warmth and beauty to your day-by-day living... to use and to cherish forever.

Theatre, music and bridge are just a touch of Worcestershire sauce to the cocktail table, while the game is on. Mrs. Beers starts preparing a casserole just long enough to cook to allow for a couple of hours drop in often for an hour of music or to talk over new plays. If the crowd dwindles to four, Mr. Beers up-ends the cocktail table so it becomes a bridge table, and while the game is on, Mr. Beers up-ends the cocktail table so it becomes a bridge table, and while the game is on, Mr. Beers up-ends the cocktail table so it becomes a bridge table, while the game is on. Mrs. Beers starts preparing a casserole, adds the vegetables and sets them in the oven, so they'll be hot when the scores are added up. Casseroles and a mixed green salad are set on the bridge table as soon as the cards and scores have been put away.

---TWO HOUSES FROM ONE---

By sawing an outmoded house at Old Black Point, Connecticut, in half, the architects, Clay and Corrigill, created two complete, comfortable houses

The original house, "The Soundings," was built in 1914 and had ten bedrooms on the second floor, many attic rooms, too many first floor main rooms. On the credit side of the ledger was its excellent, shore front location, its good landscaping, structural soundness. But it was far too big to live in or keep up.

After cutting the old house apart, two separate houses were created. New end wall had to be added, two entrance drives laid out on the property. The north house had to have a new electric service cable and a sewer connection. But the interiors of both the houses were largely undisturbed. See pages 266, 285.

but attractive to work in. Its appearance has been as carefully planned as its flexibility. From its Stone Gray floor to its Sweet Pink ceiling, every item has been chosen to look as well as it functions. The Meadowbrook printed, washable wallpaper, chintz curtains and apron are a pleasant trio which give a gay, personalized touch to the room. To complete the color scheme, the large pieces and cabinets are white, while the porcelain utensils we have chosen for our photograph are Flame Red. The manufacturers of large equipment have standardized the dimensions of their pieces and, at the same time, allowed for plenty of choice within that standardization. For example, Roberts & Mander’s custom-designed unit combines any size range—four-burner, one-oven; eight-burner, two-oven; eight-burner, one-oven and high-broiler—with the proper sized cabinets to fill practically any wall space. An entirely new and exclusive feature is the one continuous top. It covers the range and cabinets, doing away with the customary grease-and-crumb-collecting cracks or unsightly joints. In the case of the laundry heater, you can choose either the round Servel heater shown in the large photograph on page 206, or the Cleveland heater also shown on page 207 and below, depending on your preference. The price of your kitchen-laundry will depend on the size of the space you devote to it and the amount of equipment needed.

NEW FLOOR PLANS of the south house show how few changes were made inside the part of the house that stayed on its foundations. Greatest alteration was the addition of a garage wing and installation of a modern kitchen and pantry in space which was formerly the sun room. The rear porch, overlooking the Sound, has been completely enclosed and a fireplace added.

NEW GARAGE WING for two cars, added to the south house, provided two servants' rooms, a new laundry, service stairs and service porch. The addition used the same clapboard construction as the existing house to give the whole building a uniform appearance. Front entrance to house is at the far right of this picture.

FRONT ENTRANCE to the south house is through latticed porch at right-hand of picture. Well grown planting and plenty of ground in front of the house make it possible to use lawn as an outdoor terrace. Brick path leads to doorway. Except for new end wall, the remodeling did not change this part of the exterior.

If you feel that autumn is a time to change your style in decoration and in clothes, you might like to consider giving a new twist to your parties, too. Your dinner table will undoubtedly be swamped with political discussion. Allowed to continue far into the night, this sort of talk is more than apt to become acrimonious. Why don’t you plan an evening of games? There are a couple that are good not only for the evening itself but will also be fun for you and your husband to plan and work on when you are at home evenings.

For instance, there is the “How Good Is Your Memory?” game. Start with 10 or 15 large pieces of cardboard, say about 24 inches square. Then go through periodicals or newspapers of the last year and cut out not-too-obvious pictures of people in the news. Paste them on the cards, number the cards and also put a number on each picture. One card could be all musicians, another politicians, etc. Each player is then given a pad and pencil and told to write down the number of each picture and then the number of each picture on the card with the name which they have guessed opposite its corresponding number. Each player has a try at each card. A time limit is set. Then the players read out what they have written, marking themselves one point for each guessed correctly.

Another game that is great fun to work on at home is a form of quiz which, in order to make the competition keener, is called “The Battle of the Sexes.” It is based on the same general principles as the radio program of that name. Questions are either typed or written on slips of paper, then put in a bowl on a table. Host and hostess sit behind it. The guests are seated facing each other, the men on one side of the room, the women on the other. They toss for who will draw the first question from the bowl, and then the battle is on. The object is to get all the people on one side. If one side draws a question which it cannot answer, then the other side has...

GAMES FOR GROWNUPS

a chance. If they answer it correctly, their team wins the right to take one of the people from the losing team—finally getting all the people on one side. This game entails quite a bit of homework, as it means looking into reference books, encyclopedias, memoirs, etc. The questions should be well-known facts of history or about people, books, plays—anything of universal interest. For example: name the Prime Ministers under Queen Victoria, or the Nine Muses, or, what beautiful garden was the cause of the downfall of a French Minister? (Château de Vaux, which Fouquet built at such enormous expense for a fête which he was giving for Louis XV. But when Louis XV saw it, he decided at once that any man who could build such a costly garden could not possibly have done it with honest money, and so Fouquet was fired.) It is advisable in this game to have the source of your answers written down, as the questions are often hotly disputed.

Another game is called, for no reason at all, "Guggenheim." Each player is given a pad and a pencil and is asked to choose a subject. If there are eight people, there are eight subjects. There is great variety as anything can be named, according to the whim of the player. The subjects often range from such diverse things as historical characters, rivers, birds, proverbs, lakes to diseases! After each person has chosen a subject and it has been written down in the order of choice on the right-hand side of the paper, a four letter word is chosen—say a word like B E N T. A time limit is set and the players start. They must write down an answer to each letter for each subject, for example, a river beginning with B, one with E, one with N, and one with T, and so on through each category. When the time limit is up, each player in turn reads out what he has written, taking one category at a time. If two players have the same thing it is automatically scratched, and only the answers which have no duplicates are counted. In this game it is also advisable to have a dictionary and encyclopedia handy, as the strangest and most fantastic birds, animals, rivers and names of people are dreamed up, the authors claiming fiercely that they are as well known as the Hudson River or the robin. Only the printed word of Mr. Webster can down them.

A GAY 90'S GOURMET
by Marian O'Brien

Christmas eve was always my Grand¬ ma Leicester's own. The past days had been filled with preparations for the children's Christmas. But on this night, all of the great and near great who were her friends came from far and wide to sit at her table.

Months before, the huge fruit cakes, all rich and crumbly and festive with their crowns of glaze and stiff flowers of candied pineapple and cher¬ ries, had been completed and stored in their crocks on a shelf over the stove.
Every Monday morning, Grandma would give them their weekly sprin¬ kling of rum and port. As soon as Thanksgiving was out of the way, the plum pudding was mixed and partially boiled, leaving the house fragrant with a rich, winey haze of perfume.

For midnight supper on Christmas eve, Grandma always served two en¬ trées and two desserts. (In those days

Here are two of her best recipes, adapted to present-day requirements.

Mincemeat tart

3 lbs. stoned plums (or two 3-oz. pkgs.)
2 lbs. mincemeat
3 onions
2 bay leaves
1/2 lb. citron (or two 3-oz. pkgs.)
1/2 lb. glazed orange peel
1/4 cup brandy or red wine
1 double recipe rich pastry (4 cups

Make up the pastry recipe with milk instead of water, and set to chill.
Put the beef into hot water to cover leaves and salt to taste. Simmer gently until tender—it will take about 2 1/2 hours. Now you'll need a good-sized dish—a Pyrex utility dish is good or any baking dish that's generously deep about 2 or 3 inches. Line with the pastry rolled 1/4 inch thick. Carefully arrange a layer of the beef, sliced into the citron as thin as you can manage.

Spread a layer of these slices over the meat. Next add the mincemeat—of a quantity to make a layer about 1/2 inch thick, in your dish; then another layer of beef slices and a layer of the orange peel, also silvered. Pour the wine over it, and cover with a crust perforated in

NEW GRANADA MATTRESS IS ADJUSTABLE

This is a photograph of the most comfortable mattress in the world—the New Granada with the new Sleep Selector Control!

BRANDWEIN PERFECTS SLEEP SELECTOR

Permits Adjustment of Mattress to Any Degree of Firmness

CHICAGO — A new development in mattress making, designed to make sleeping an incomparable comfort experience, has been introduced by A. Brandwein & Co. of Chicago. The innovation is an adjustable mattress featuring a Sleep Selector that permits adjustment of the mattress to any degree of firmness.

NEW MATTRESS FEATURES OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

In addition to the Sleep Selector the New Granada has many other new features. Each tempered steel spring coil of the New Granada has six convolutions, or swirls, rather than the customary five, to provide longer service and greater comfort. Also, there is the Proteco Insulator—a sturdy, flexible steel mesh covering spread over the coils to prevent the soft padding from "cupping" into the springs. The Proteco Insulator also equalizes the coil action for more healthful body balance. There are pre-built borders to protect the edge and maintain the shape of the mattress. The smoothly t suffused, handsome damask ticking is long-wearing and attractive. New plastic handles make it easy to turn the mattress.

NEW GRANADA PASSES "TORTURE TESTS"

The New Granada mattress has proved its ability to stand up under severe tests which continued for many weeks. When it was introduced at the recent Furniture Show in Chicago, thousands of visitors sat on the New Granada subjected to a two weeks' ordeal of "torture testing." When the tests were finished the mattress was as strong and buoyant as before. This proves conclusively that you will get long wear and satisfactory service from the New Granada mattress with Sleep Selector.

NO PRICE ADVANCE

The price of the New Granada mattress with Sleep Selector has not been increased. It's still...$49.50 Granada Box Spring...

Permits Adjustment of Mattress to Any Degree of Firmness

Mattress authorities believe this the most important development since the introduction of the innerspring.

NEW SIDE OF MATTRESS ADJUSTED SEPARATELY

Some people like a firm mattress. Others prefer a soft or medium one. Each has his own kind of mattress in the double bed size New Granada, because the Sleep Selector provides a method to give each individual the firmness desired. Anyone who sleeps on a double bed will appreciate the restful, individual sleep comfort this makes possible. Now, with the Sleep Selector, each person can adjust his own side of the mattress easily—immediately—to the degree of firmness wanted. And once adjusted, the Sleep Selector locks automatically.

A. BRANDWEIN & CO.  CHICAGO
Following closely the basic line of tradition that comes down from the Stuart, Restoration and Commonwealth periods in England to the Pilgrim Century in America, Stickley-of-Fayetteville furniture is a distinct American style in the classical manner.

Strongly influenced by the regional designs and painstaking craftsmanship of pioneer artisans in New York State’s historic Cherry Valley, Stickley uses their choicest fruitwood—wild black cherry—to shape lovely furniture pieces that interpret the spirit and beauty of the past in terms of contemporary interest and demand. It is furniture that adds the worthwhile advances of modern science to the patient handcraft of ancient guild workers, producing a solid structure that lasts for generations.

SOLID CHERRY, Aged and Mellow

Stickley cherry furniture is famous for the gleaming warmth and deep lustre of its “aged” color. And it is aged by a special process that reproduces the handsome patina of treasured antique pieces found in the tree-shaded homesteads of Old Cherry Valley: A finish known by the pleasant name of “Old Mansion Antique.”

REAR OF NORTH HOUSE overlooks Long Island Sound. At bottom of the garden is private beach belonging to property. Though this is the section of the house which was moved, new window and door locations were the only structural changes made to the rear wall of the house after construction of new foundation.

FLOOR PLANS show that the new terrace behind north house was the most important addition to it. The side bay window, which opens on it too, is in the end wall where the house was cut apart. Fireplace in the present living room (former dining room) was moved intact, tile facing and all, but chimney was rebuilt. The new dining room is where the old and over-large kitchen was. New stairway separates five master bedrooms from servants'.

NEW HALLWAY OF NORTH HOUSE occupies space which was originally cut up into a storage room and a pantry. Bisecting the house, it connects front door and all main rooms with the large rear terrace. This picture is taken looking toward the terrace with the living room on the left, dining room on the right.

FOR SKIERS ONLY

This article was originally intended to be a survey of European and American winter sports resorts, but it has ended by being exclusively devoted to skiing, since the popularity of skiing is currently overwhelming. Today, the ski run is as indispensable to the self-respecting winter resort as the swimming pool is to the movie star. From Scandinavia to Chile, the winter air reverberates with the muted sounds of initiates going through the motions of the Slalom or the Schuss.

WEST VIRGINIA GLASS
Skiing in America has come so far in the past decade that one need not go to a European resort except for the piquancy of its atmosphere and the thrill of working out under a classic peak, reasons which should be persuasive enough to get you there. For while Europe has nothing to match the mood of Sun Valley, America has no peaks so tradition-steeped as the Matterhorn at Zermatt or the less showy, but still inspiring Jungfrau in the Swiss Interlaken area.

Every day it becomes easier to reach these spots. Swissair now offers direct service from New York to Geneva; the best French spots, Chamonix and Megève, are almost on top of Geneva, and all of the Swiss places are within a day's travel. For Italy, it will probably be easier to change planes at Paris, Amsterdam or London (Pan American, TWA, American Overseas Airlines, Air France, BOAC or Sabena will get you to them); then fly to Milan and head back north to Breuil, Sestrières or Cortina by Italian train or car. Last year Austria was pretty difficult, and so far there has been no indication that conditions have substantially improved, except that it is easier to get in. St. Anton-am-Arlberg, Kitzbühel and Zürs-am-Arlberg are functioning again, but food is short in Austria, whereas it is plentiful in Switzerland and adequate in Haute-Savoie.

Skiing at a European resort is a much more organized affair than it is over here. Although there are no smiling hostesses, no forcing, every resort has an endless program of races for all abilities, each carried out with the greatest seriousness.

If you have never skied in Europe and have only a week to do it in, you can hardly do better than at Davos, especially in March. The runs there are long and varied, the funicular is fast and large, and the snow manages almost always to fall at night, leaving the days bright and clear. If you have two weeks you might try one at Davos, and one at either Zermatt or one of the Bernese Oberland centers (Mürren, Wengen, Grindelwald, Scheidegg). Zermatt is still unspoiled. There is no motor road and you approach it by electric train. The village has the real old flavor, its chalets reeking with authentic antiques and peasant charm. There is a big Constan lift up to the Blauherd and the electric trains with new fast engines run up the 4,000 feet to the Gürner Grat. The Mürren-Wengen-Grindelwald triangle is well sprinkled with both lifts and trains.

If you don't really care whether your skiing is arduous, you would probably enjoy Gstaad in the Bernese Oberland, a lovely spot with the Palace Hotel rising from a knoll, and looking for all the world like an illustration for a fairy tale. Recently a num (Continued on page 293)

Its variety of form, its general availability, its comparatively lower cost, its excellent insulating value and the way it can be painted or stained to fit any color scheme give it continuous popularity. Its drawbacks are that it will shrink or expand and painting or staining it means maintenance and occasional upkeep expense. Plywood panels, made up of layers of wood bonded together under high pressure, are much used today too. They have exceptional strength, are quickly and economically assembled into walls, have insulation value and will take various finishes. Wallboards made of wood-fiber composition or other composition also provide durable panels and sidings with insulation value for exterior wall use. They can be painted and finished attractively in numerous ways.

MASONRY MATERIALS: BRICK makes the most popular masonry wall for houses. It can be laid up as a structural, load-bearing wall or as a facing veneer over wood construction or hollow tile. It needs careful construction and must be safeguarded against infiltration of water, but many textures, patterns and colors are possible with it. In addition to the many pink-to-red tones which come from the kiln, brick can be painted in beige, gray, yellow, black or white finishes if such upkeep is no deterrent to you. The irregular size, shape and finish of bricks, the various methods of laying joints and bonding the bricks together make them an exceptional material for creating varied textures and patterns. CONCRETE BLOCK can serve as the entire wall structure of a house. It can be both the weight-bearing wall which supports the roof, and the exterior wall surface. Its outer side may be faced with stucco or coated with a masonry paint. It is fireproof, vermin-proof, economical in cost and has good insulating value because of its hollow interior air space. HOLLOW TILE is also a load-bearing wall material and not just a facing. Baked like brick, its outside surface is usually covered by a stucco coating or by brick veneer. Because of its hollow form the tile is a natural insulator; its substance makes it both fire and vermin-proof. STONE is one of the most attractive and historically interesting wall materials used. But it is generally limited to the few sections of the country where its cost is not prohibitive since it is quarried locally. Stone needs the same careful installation as brick to be certain that masonry and joints are well laid and are waterproof, and requires thorough insulation. Stone veneer is also available as an exterior facing material over a wood frame.

STUCCO AND OTHER FINISHES: STUCCO in smooth finishes is used for many houses of modern design today. It has a more pleasing (Continued on page 292)
MATERIALS FOR YOUR HOUSE

character than it did some 20 years ago when violent texture was popular. It is purely a finish material applied over a frame or masonry wall. A Portland cement mixture can be colored while being mixed and has fire and weather resistance values. Its success as a durable material depends greatly on its proper installation and on the rigidity of the structure to which it is applied. Asbestos cement in the form of shingles, siding or in large sheets is a new and durable exterior wall finish. Its texture and tone are pleasant and it can be nailed to frame construction.

Among the advantages of this material, it is fireproof, stainproof, and, properly installed, exceptionally weather-tight and long-lasting. It does not require painting, though it may be painted. Asphalt shingles and siding are resistant to fire and are durable, too, and particularly economical. Metal is also used for house wall siding and shingles now. In addition to fireproof and vermin-proof properties, it is heat-resistant and practically indestructible. You don’t have to paint it to preserve it, though you may want to for decorative effect.

ber of lifts, including a "double chair," have been installed.

French resorts have come up enormously in the last 15 years. The French Alps have always been beautiful, and now there are a number of good ski lifts. Chamonix, in the middle of the Arve valley, between Brevent and the Massif of M. du Blanc, is the capital of them all. It has three large téléphériques (cable cars), an international skating rink and an Olympic bobbed run. A system of smaller téléphériques joins it to its competitor, Megève. The Chamonix season begins around Christmas time and lasts until March, but on the highest slopes spring skiing has lasted until June.

Situated between the Valley of Arve and Arly, Megève offers a great variety of snow fields. From December to March it is full of sun and abundant with snow because of its proximity to the glaciers and the Mont Blanc mountain mass. There are téléphérique lines from Rochebrune and Mont d'Arbois, and two ski-lifts at Rochebrune and Mont Joux.

Val d'Iserre is a beautiful high altitude resort. Situated at the bottom of the Arve Valley and close to the Isere Pass, it is linked to the Bourg-Saint-Maurice by three avalanche-proof tunnels. The snowfall is heavy and good from November 1st to May 15th, making for perfect spring skiing. Minimum December sunshine is four hours, from 10:30 in the morning to 2:30 in the afternoon. The equipment includes the Solaise téléphérique, two uphill cables and a connecting téléphérique known as Bellevards. Other French resorts worth your attention are Alpe d'Huez, Mont-Dore, whose ski tracks are the closest to Paris, and Beuil-Valberg, where from the highest slopes you can get a glimpse of the Mediterranean.

American skiers arriving in France by ship or plane will find special daily trains for themselves and their skis. Most of the great French ski centers can be reached by train and the others by buses plying between the railroad stations and the resorts. Alpe d'Huez, for example, can be reached from Grenoble by bus, as can Beuil from Nice.

NORTH AMERICAN SLOPES

If you can't get across the ocean this season, you need feel no compunction about remaining on this side. From Canada's Rockies and Laurentians to the Santa Fe National Forest in New Mexico, there are enough trails and runs to keep the most ardent enthusiast more than busy. The Laurentians are as alluring as ever. This highly concentrated development, dominated by Mont Tremblant, offers skiing with varying degrees of elegance and comfort all the way from Shawbridge up past Labelle. Mont Tremblant has the best downhill running in Eastern North America.

Canada, but some of you may prefer touring through the less frequented territory at Morin Heights or on the more accessible terrain around Shawbridge. Québec also has become a highly popular ski center in recent years, being within commuting distance of Lac Beaufort, Valcartier and Mont Sainte Anne.

Further south, in New England, is Mad River Glen, a 2½ mile area on the forested slopes and summit of General Stark Mountain, in the Green Mountains, with trails laid out by Robert Schwarzenback, assisted by Charles Lord of Stowe. Mad River Glen has been designed to complement the Mt. Mansfield area, considered tops in the East by pro experts. The mountain rears up high enough to trap a lot of snow in the pocket, and conditions are reliable. Covering the eastern slope is an extensive system of downhill runs and 14 miles of touring trails.

Just west from the big peaks of the Presidential Chain lies Cannon Mountain in New Hampshire with the only aerial tramway in America. It is comprised of a little car that holds 27 people and climbs 2,022 feet in less than eight minutes, servicing trails and slopes laid out between altitudes of 2,000 and 4,000 feet. The Coppermine Upper Trail is one of the most delightful runs for the expert in New England, and often when the more frequent runs are thoroughly beaten down, you'll find untracked snow.

High up on the mountain sits Mittersill, developed by Baron Hubert Pantz and modeled after his famous Club Mittersill in Austria.

Sun Valley, Idaho, is still America’s most glamorous ski resort. Its Swiss style chalets and lodges nestle in a broad valley with the foothills of the nearby Sawtooth Mountains rising on three sides. Its facilities are the best in this country and its ski school is under the direction of the famous Otto Lang.

If you prefer a Victorian atmosphere, there is Aspen, Colorado, where you can ski off Aspen Mountain right into the main street of town. The lift begins not more than a five minute walk from the center, and from its upper terminal 3,225 feet above, there are more than 20 miles of trails and unlimited slopes. There is also a 60-meter jump, situated on the dump of one of the Old West’s silver mines.

Alta, Utah, in the Wasatch Range, has probably the heaviest snowfall of any place in the West and is renowned for its “deep powder.” Within less than an hour you can ride from the center of Salt Lake City to the upper reaches of breath-taking canyons where high, sweeping, timber-free slopes are covered with snow to a depth of from 19 to more than 100 inches. There are both modern ski tows and chair lifts at Alta and nearby Brighton.

California's great ski region is the Donner Summit, above San Francisco, and its most popular resort the Sugar Bowl, developed under the guidance of the well-known Austrian skier, Hannes Schroll. The season lasts from five to six months, with March and April offering the most delightful weather. The chair lift, 3,200 feet long, takes you to the summit of Mt. Disney at 1,050 feet, and two adjacent rope tows are each approximately 1,000 feet long. The runs vary in length from ½ mile to 1½ miles.

East of Portland, Oregon, rises Mount Hood, an extinct volcano which spreads long smooth slopes down to the timber. On the open slopes, reached by a mile-long giant chair lift, you can ski for two days without repeating a run; and through the deep forest below the Timberline Lodge there is such an amazing variety of runs and some of them are so wide that the impression you get is one of open slope skiing.

In the Canadian Rockies, where the powder snow lies a foot deep, there are three-mile downhill slopes, a mile wide and with some stretches as steep as 40 degrees. You start pointing your skis downhill near the 8,500 foot level, which is not so appalling as you might think. The mountain town of Banff is where you'll probably stay, any time from March through April.

The railroads are co-operating again this year both by keeping close tabs on snow conditions in spots which they serve and by scheduling day and week-end ski trains. Since these trains are reserved for skiers, they allow you to stack equipment on the platforms, to shed snow on the floors and harmonize in the aisles. Groups of young people also get together and hire buses for winter week ends. With the many State-sponsored ski areas, skiing can be indulged in, all over America, on a budget.

SAVE FATS, to the last drop in the pan. Store them in tins or stone crocks, set in a cool place. Cook with them repeatedly and finally sell them to your meat dealer. In this way you can co-operate with the program of the American Fat Salvage Committee.

GARDENING GUIDE

The gardener's attitude toward win-ter depends entirely on the section of the country in which he or she lives. There's no use talking about win-ter plant protection to those in Alabama or South Carolina. To those who live north of the Mason and Dixon line, it is a definite problem. Moreover, there comes that night—a slight chill usually—which freezes and outdoor planting halts. Up to November 2, with us, it is safe to dig in tubers or "as long as the ground is open."

People stirred into activity after they are sound asleep may feel groggy the next day. Plants react the same way after they have become dormant and are awakened.

The purpose of all winter protec-tion is not to keep plants warm but to keep them cool—protect them from sudden changes of temperature that might affect both roots and top growth. Beside this, there is the covering of small evergreens against breakage by snow-weight, and of broadleaf ever-greens against sun seald, which can play hob with the leaves.

Flower borders are relatively easy to mulch. Leaves held down by heavier garden trash or chicken wire serve as a mulch for the soil. Rake the leaves down, over indoor plants is a delightful pre-

DUROEVS

Finger-shaped, or dwarf evergreens include a great array of materials as diverse in character as any group of plants in horticulture. With a few exceptions, these plants represent small, even midget forms of the taller conifers from which most of them sprang. A dwarf, or other variation of a plant, is called a sport or mutation. It occurs suddenly, and may happen in the seed or in the plant itself. These dwarf evergreens, with a few exceptions, are not capable of reproducing themselves from seed, in fact some are sterile and do not set seed. Where seeds are used, the seedling plants show considerable variation from the true dwarf form. Propagation, therefore, is principally effected by cuttings or by grafting on the roots of the evergreen. The true form, however, is reproduced only by cuttings. Grafs grow faster, yielding salable plants sooner; but later on, they frequently depart from their original form and, depending on the variety, assume tree-like proportions. To set a grafted dwarf plant in a site designed for a permanently dwarf one, will, in later years, necessitate its removal or periodical shearing, in which case the form is lost.

One problem the prospective buyer will have to face is conflict in names, for not only the nurseries, but even authorities in many cases are not in accord. The plants discussed here are all readily obtainable, their names in accordance with accepted usage. Plants are discussed from the standpoint of their garden and landscape use based upon form and effect.

The conical, spiny or pyramidal forms are formal and very positive in effect. They are best used as accent points in rock gardens; to emphasize corners, or other features in formal design. In so-called foundation planting around the house, use them only after due study of structural line. Specimens skillfully placed have an especial appeal, but too many are disturbing. They are unsuited to any naturalistic scheme.

Among the best of the dense-growing varieties is the spruce (Picea). P. abies clausatissima, which in time grows to five feet. However, this handsome plant is largely grafted and not too dependable as to the true variety. P. a. barryi, a narrow cone or pyramid, grows to about seven feet, produces a spiny effect, is also generally grafted. The variety P. remontis is another dense, narrow spire; the variety Pygmaeum comb.-shaped and extremely slow. Although mostly grafted, both are excellent plants. Perhaps the best of this group is the dwarf Alberta spruce, P. abies conica, also sold as P. glauca conica. It makes a dense, light green solid, tapering to a sharp point, attaining 12 feet in time. Among the junipers, J. hibernica, the Irish juniper, also a spike-like column, grows seven to nine feet. The more highly spiny Greek juniper, J. excelsa stricta, more conical and blue-green in color, is exceedingly slow-growing. It is one of the few of its kind suitable in foundation planting. Chaenomepis obtusa gracilis, the slender Haski false cypress, sometimes called Nana gracilis, is a small, compact, pyramidal-shaped plant with dark green fan-shaped foliage well suited to rock gardens; possible also for an entrance.

Rounded forms are less difficult to place. Very dwarf kinds make plants for a rock garden or can occasionally be used to border a narrow path. The taller kinds are good in foundation plantings where a contrast is needed with a vertical column; or they will scale down taller plants or form a hedge. They are somewhat tolerant of shade and wind. American arborvitae, Thuya occidentalis, offers several varieties. Little Gem and pumila are so much alike they are sold as either. Growing two feet high and more in width, with dark green foliage, these are the better kinds to choose for low effects. Three other distinctive forms give the same general effect, even if somewhat different in character. They are the Globe, Parsons and Woodward arborvitae. Parsons, four feet tall, is compact with foliage in vertical layers; Globe, dark green in color but more loose in texture, also grows four feet high. Woodward, sea green and upwards of six feet, is a substantial conical.

Mozart: Quartet No. 1 for Piano and Strings. George Szell at the piano and members of the Budapest String Quartet convey the strength and manly grace of this early Mozart work. Columbia Album MM-773; $4.75.

Wagner: Prelude and Love-Death from Tristan and Isolde. Rodzinski's recording with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra is sound and forthright, notable for the sonorousness of the horns. RCA Victor Album DM-1222; $4.75.

Brahms: Sonata No. 3. Mischa Elman, violinist, and Wolfgang Rose, pianist, capture every subtle nuance of this lovely piece, even at the risk of slowing up the second movement. RCA Victor Album DM-1255; $4.75.

Saint-Saëns: Concerto No. 2. Benno Moiseiwitsch at the piano and the Philharmonia Orchestra, Basil Cameron conducting, do a neatly articulated job with this turbulent score. RCA Victor Album DM-1252; $4.75.

Satie: Trois Morceaux en Forme de Poire. Simple yet exactly refined, sad yet somehow whimsical, Mr. Satie's three-piano score suits the urbane talents of Robert and Gaby Casadesus. Columbia Album MM-763; $3.90.

John McCormack Sings Again. Re-recordings of songs sung by America's favorite tenor include ones by Mozart, Handel, Brahms, as well as a duet from "La Bohème" with Lucrèzia Bori. RCA Victor Album MM-1228; $7.

José and Amparo Iturbi Play Music for Two Pianos. The most rewarding things in this album are Manuel Infante's Andalusian dances, but there is also "Three Blind Mice." RCA Victor Album DM-1246; $4.75.

Spirituals Transcribed for Chamber Orchestra. Adolf Busch, who did the transcribing, plays them with the Busch Chamber Players. Pleasant but they don't sound like spirituals. Columbia Album MM-746; $3.90.

Elio Pinza in Popular Italian Songs. The celebrated opera bass apparently had a good time singing songs from his native land, but one sounds a little too much like another for us. Columbia Album MM-768; $3.90.

Eleanor Steber Sings Favorites From The Firestone Hour. Songs of the quality of "Smilin' Through" are executed by Miss Steber with the requisite sentiment and good diction. RCA Victor Album MO-1243; $5.

Tommy Dorsey's Clambake Seven. This is a fine group of re-recordings of collection's items by Mr. Dorsey's famous little pseudo-Dixieland band; items that have been unavailable for years. RCA Victor Album P-220; $4.

Soft Lights and Sweet Music. A selection of romantic popular songs having to do with soft lights, nights and love is unctiously presented by Morton Gould. Columbia Album MM-765; $4.90. LP Record ML-2021; $2.85.

Johnny Mercer Sings. Abetted by the Pied Pipers, Paul Weston's orchestra and Jo Stafford, Mr. Mercer runs through a number of favorites, mostly by him, in his hail-fellow-well-met style. Capitol Album CC-101; $3.15.

The Pied Pipers: Harvest Moon Album. With Paul Weston's orchestra this vocal quartet pipe a number of songs appropriate to the album's title in that smooth, syrupy style popular today. Capitol Album CC-103; $3.15.

Margaret Whiting. The resplendent plainliness of Miss Whiting's voice is well suited to intoning the sad verses of "What Did I Do?" It doesn't go quite so well with those of "Heat Wave." Capitol Record 15209; 79c.

Benny Goodman Sextet. "Love is Just Around the Corner" and "Cherokee" are played in arrangements just as engaging as ever by a group that knows exactly how far to play with a tune. Capitol Record 15166; 79c.

Billy Butterfield. His trumpet not only sings, it enunciates, and on this record Mr. Butterfield devotes it to the dramatic measures of "Jalousie." Capitol Record 15189; 79c.
