Since 1846, pride and trust in Wamsutta's "finest of cottons" have been handed down from mother to daughter.

Wamsutta's famed Supercale® has long been the sheet women have prized above all others — a standard of excellence that has never been equalled. Good reasons are Wamsutta's specially-selected, long-staple cottons... combining that starts where most makers leave off... exclusive Equi-Tension weaving... unusually high thread count (over 200 to the inch)... and more. Taken together, they add up to the smoothest, finest sheet that ever lulled a tired body into refreshing sleep. Thrifty luxury, too — Supercale is lighter for laundering, longer wearing.

Imagine never having to cancel your golf in the spring...nor miss a football game next fall...to struggle with storm sash. Nor need you hire a man to do it. None to put up—none to take down.

That's one of the joys of having Thermopane*, the double-glass insulating windowpane.

Thermopane is built right into your windows...so that they open and close just like sash with ordinary single panes. Thermopane's double glass, with dry air sealed between, gives you insulation that makes a world of difference in comfort and fuel saving. Clearer windows, too—because there's freedom from frosted or fogged-up panes. Cuts window washing in half.

Whether your building plans call for casement, double-hung or picture windows—tell your architect or contractor that you want Thermopane for extra comfort and convenience the year 'round. Thermopane is the modern way to insulate all your windows.

Our free book tells all about it.

FOR SPARKLING BEAUTY of style, for perfection of taste in every detail of design, the 1949 Cadillac stands alone among motor cars. But this is hardly a new experience for Cadillac. Every car which has ever borne this distinguished name has, in its time, set the world's standard for automotive beauty. . . . The truly unique story of the 1949 Cadillac is a story of performance—performance which extends the world's conception of what an automobile can do. In large measure, this wholly new idea of motor car performance is the result of Cadillac's remarkable new power plant—a V-type, high-compression engine of completely new design. The effortless flow of power from this new engine is so silken smooth at any speed, so silent, so eagerly responsive in every driving situation that most people—even those who have driven it many, many miles—can compare it only to automatic propulsion. . . . We feel the 1949 Cadillac represents such a significant advance in motoring that anyone planning to buy any new car owes it to himself to see and examine this wonderful automobile. It affords an entirely new basis upon which to judge motor car performance, comfort, safety, beauty and value.
A new idea in furniture...

to change your
"some day" to "now"

You may have whispered it years ago, or said it wistfully only yesterday, "I wish we could afford really fine furniture. Maybe, some day..."

From now on, you needn't put off that wish till "some day." Perhaps you can afford the furniture you want—today!

That's because the makers of Heritage-Henredon designs had a wonderful idea!

Their plan was to construct pieces with the flawless proportions, the inspired craftsmanship of individual custom designs—yet to produce them by skillful new methods that would permit prices way below custom levels. And that plan is now at work!

You'll love the way Heritage-Henredon has translated the charm of 18th Century styling into contemporary living. You'll marvel at the completeness of the line.

And you who appreciate fine woods will instantly recognize the superior materials that go into this furniture. Genuine mahogany, carefully selected. Exquisite inlays, lavishly hand-rubbed.

Truly, Heritage-Henredon designs are lovely... created for today, built to last through many tomorrows. Yet, prices—though not in the "budget furniture" class—are far below what you'd expect to pay.

Beginning now, plan your home around Heritage-Henredon designs. Buy one piece today, more later on. Let your dreams of fine furniture keep on coming true!

Look for the proud Heritage-Henredon hallmark, at better furniture and department stores.

Key to a new era of easier, cleaner, Modern Living

This Rucoam label designates the material used in more and more distinguished, nationally known products.

Rucoam is 100% virgin vinyl—a film soft and smooth as skin ... yet easy to wipe clean as a lacquered surface.

Fast winning fame as a wondrous new material of modern living, Rucoam offers hundreds of ways to slick up and dress up your home. Its use in manufactured items runs the gamut from suave, dust-shedding, highly decorative draperies and upholstery for the living room ... to brisk, bright appliance covers for the kitchen. In bedrooms, bathrooms, playrooms, nurseries, it replaces the frayed, faded, bedraggled look you've coped with in the past.

A miracle for long-lasting wear, Rucoam will not crack, craze, peel, stiffen, turn brittle or gummy. Waterproof, it sheds liquids, stains ... is extraordinarily resistant to fading, scuffing, streaks, abrasions, acids, alkalies, alcohol, perspiration. Mildew can't get a foothold, dirt can't become embedded in its non-porous surface. Looks, feels luxurious ... yet bears up beautifully under youngsters' tugging hands and lively heels.

Many materials look alike. The Rucoam label opens the way to brightening your living, lightening your homemaking chores. Look for it when you buy.

A note of appreciation for hospitality enjoyed; one in acknowledgment of a gift or favor; a letter that marks a birthday or anniversary, or conveys congratulations on an advancement earned or honors well won—all single you out for your thoughtfulness and return a measure of gratitude far in excess of the effort expended. Paper plays an important part in all such notes and letters, for by its character and quality is the compliment fully paid. For all these occasions, we would nominate papers by Crane, for the character of Crane's was fixed at the establishment of our first mill in 1801; the quality of Crane's has been derived all these years from the choicest materials from which paper can be made—cotton and linen fibres. We invite you to write and to write often—to enjoy the satisfaction that well-written letters on Crane's always afford.

You won't blame me for getting Hopping Mad

—when you see how I took confusion out of wallpaper selection!

NORMALLY, I'm a very patient woman. But fighting with ordinary wallpaper books got my goat! Those clumsy, disorganized sample books never helped me find what I really wanted.

Throughout my years of professional decorating experience, they only confused me with endless clashes in pattern and color. They never helped me find what I wanted and forced me to be satisfied with papers that almost matched. Well, I wasn't! And that's why I lost my temper, to save you time, trouble and disappointments!

"I went straight to the world's largest manufacturer of fine wallpapers and told them my idea. Working together, we developed the most exciting, simple and accurate aid to interior beauty ever known to wall decoration.

"Now any woman can quickly, easily select harmonized wallpapers which 'go together' perfectly. Without professional advice you select thrilling new wallpapers, expertly related in color and design to complement your draperies, rugs and furnishings . . . whether period or modern."

Here's how it works...

The exciting Nancy Warren style selector shows you gorgeous new washable and fade-proof wallpapers, specifically selected and grouped in related patterns and colors.

You simply start with one basic color or pattern of your choice . . . then see up to 8 different wallpapers which blend or contrast perfectly! EMILY KIMBROUGH: Sanguine view (her latest best-seller is titled It Gives Me Great Pleasure) is focused here on brides (p. 104). Mother of twin college girls, she plans this summer to revisit with them scenes of Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, co-authored with Cornelia Otis Skinner. Richard Neutra, Vienna-born, ranking U.S. architect and author of How America Builds, is a specialist in community planning and the small house in particular, as shown by the two accompanying his article, p. 124. George Nelson spent two years abroad to discover that his love of the classic orders had made him a modernist, that his interviews with leading European builders had won him a job on the Architectural Forum. Today, industrial design (p. 116) competes with his architect's career.

On the day her engagement is announced, a sudden change overtakes the girl who is to be married. All at once she becomes the hub of a carrousel of activity that includes parties and announcements, shopping forays and plans. Presents, notes and lists by-the-dozen whirl around her. It is not easy to reduce these days before marriage to an orderly schedule. But it is very necessary. The pages which follow will serve as a compendium of information to be put to use when you give a party for a bride or buy her a present or go shopping with her. Here, too, are suggestions for the bride’s own entertaining, with a look behind-scenes at how she prepares for it. Taken all in all, these pages form a series of sensible clues to becoming that modern phenomenon “the competent bride” whom Emily Kimbrough describes admiringly on the next page.

Opposite:

Miss Margot Finletter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter, arrives at Saint Bartholomew’s Church, New York, for her wedding to Mr. John F. B. Mitchell, Jr. Her father, who is American Minister in London, is Chief of the ECA Mission.
I carry with me a list of the married children of my friends. “If your tour happens to take you near Fort Worth,” Katharine B. says over the telephone, and I reach for my list, “would you drop in on Priscilla?” I “drop in” by carefully telephoning ahead, setting a specific time as far as possible from the hour of my telephoning, because I know that every Priscilla, Dot or Betty, is going to scour everything inside and out except, possibly, the sidewalk, so that I will tell her mother that she is a good housekeeper.

She is, too, and it is no wonder that I am deep in astonished admiration. My mother, placing her first order with the butcher, observed sociably that she considered chops remarkably tender, considering that they came from the jaw bone. I, following in her domestic footsteps, cooked popcorn for dinner in the mistaken notion that I was preparing rice.

But not these young ones, and they bewilder me. Just because they know more about the facts of life than we did, is no reason for their knowing where lamb chops come from. They do, though. They are competent, knowledgeable, self-sufficient—and, they take it all so easily.

I fretted. I was anxious, uncertain, even though we started out with a German couple and a chambermaid. The butler, just out of the Navy, did have, while serving, a habit of hitching up his trousers, nautical fashion, with one forearm then the other. This made accepting food from him a feat of agility and required a sense of timing at which my husband and I, through practice, were more accomplished than our guests. The maid was their niece, a ripe sixteen, given to giggling and chewing gum. Nevertheless, such as they were, we had three (Continued on page 163)

DINNER

The bride above, like thousands of other American girls who will be married this year, wants her house to be pretty with things of which she can be proud. She may live in small quarters but her standards of taste are high. On these four pages are presents which live up to her ideas. (She is wearing a Ceil Chapman dress from Saks Fifth Avenue.) Stores listed are in New York unless otherwise indicated.

2. British Stourbridge cut-crystal decanter. Designed for Living.
As Emily Kimbrough discovered in talking to brides all over America (page 104), though they may have to live in small quarters and do their own work, when they entertain, they mean to do it in style. The presents here are handsome and useful as well, so they measure up to the bride's requirements.

In answer to a House & Garden questionnaire, this young couple listed the following wedding presents as their favorites:

- radio-phonograph
- bar tray
- casserole set

They knew what they needed

To help you choose the kind of present a bride really wants today, House & Garden asked some leading questions of young married couples. We wanted to know which of their wedding presents they used most and which they liked most. Among the couples, we queried Mr. and Mrs. Osborn Elliott, who are about to celebrate their first wedding anniversary. They told us they had asked for much of their living-dining room furniture as wedding presents. Of these, their prime favorite is their radio-phonograph, which they like to listen to in the evenings. Because they usually entertain at small cocktail parties, they listed a bar tray as their next choice. Of all their entertaining equipment, they prefer their casserole set, since Mrs. Elliott makes a specialty of this kind of dish and serves it at her small dinner parties. As they live in a small apartment with little storage space, place mats proved easiest to set the table with, easiest to store. The Elliotts bring out their wedding present silver for its festive look at parties. Their example shows that living on a small scale is no barrier to living with taste.
Indispensable for entertaining

According to novels of Victorian vintage, newly marrieds returned from their honeymoons to engage in the happy activity of “settling into their nests.” Today the space into which they are likely to settle is frequently more nestlike than comfortable; and as a consequence the activity is far from happy. The nascent housekeeper, faced with the problem of storing her belongings of linen, silver, china and glass, may wish that some wise friend or relative had given her one of the pieces of furniture shown here. Excellent gifts themselves, they serve as repositories for presents both useful and ornamental.

Cottons:
better behaved than ever

YOU CAN LIVE-AS-WELL-AS-YOU-LOOK with these new cottons that glow like damask, feel like silk, glitter with gold and vibrate with color. New finishing processes, new dyes, new methods of printing and fabricating have given cotton a completely new personality. Cottons today are a new kind of cloth; they have new faces, are varied in weave and design. They have new talents: they shed dust, resist sun, mildew and wrinkles. Some require no ironing, some won't even burn. To your house they bring the same look of fashion that they have long brought to your wardrobe. And they are yours at comfortable prices.

The fashion:
1. COTTONS with the soft, rich “hand” of silk (the “hand” is the “feel” of a fabric, has to do with its flexibility, compressibility, resilience).
2. COTTONS with damask effects, printed tone-on-tone (the result of dyeing the material a light shade and over-printing it with a darker tone).
3. COTTONS with the crisp rustle of taffeta, the result of finishes which actually transform the basic cloth.
4. COTTONS with moiré surfaces which can stand laundering.
5. COTTON MATELASSÉES, their patterns pressed into the surface (rather than woven).
6. COTTONS with gold threads that liven upholstery fabrics or slip-cover ginghams, weltings and trimmings.
7. COTTONS in new, brilliant colors which give a three-dimensional look, won’t fade either in the sun or in the washing machine.
8. COTTON VOILES, delicate and gossamer but sturdy in action.
9. HANDKERCHIEF COTTON, sheer and cool as sherbet.
10. COTTON PLAIDS, reduced to miniature tartans.
11. WIDEWALE SEERSUCKER COTTONS, pinwale corduroys, cords that won’t wrinkle, need no ironing.
12. TERRY CLOTH in blazing colors, with a new, absorbent finish.
13. PRINTED CORDUROY, patterned to resemble tweed.
14. IRIDESCENT DENIMS with the drapable softness of percale; pin-check denims, brilliantly hued.
15. COTTON CLASSICS, unglazed chintzes, soft as sateen and bonded for durability, permanently glazed chintzes which keep their starchly freshness,ickings and twills, tiny geometric dobby weaves and organies.

The news:
1. SELF-IRONING FINISHES that require only that cottons be hung up after laundering to regain their original lines.
2. CRISPNESS that won’t wilt in hot, humid weather.
3. CONTROLLED SHRINKAGE, so you know in advance just what measurements you may expect after laundering.
4. DUST-FREE SURFACES that shed dirt.
5. STARCHING which keeps cottons crisp.
6. MILDEW-PROOFING built into the finish.
7. FIRE-PROOFING as part of the finish.
8. RESISTANCE to wrinkles and creases.
9. A “DUST SEAL” solution you can apply at home, which immobilizes dust particles (and incidentally makes life pleasanter for people with certain allergies).

With sound planning, a small house can equal a large one in livability. On these 14 pages, HOUSE & GARDEN underlines new ideas in five small houses. Below, architect Richard J. Neutra explains the thinking behind one of his own small-house designs.

Focus on fresh ideas

1. Radiantly Heated Balcony (Page 126)

A small house for young marrieds must not be small-minded. For where space is limited, it is costly to plan in a niggardly way, foolhardy to cut up precious square feet into mean, awkward nooks and corners. Now that building costs are higher and houses smaller, every inch must contribute its full share of comfort. Long ago I worked out an "index of livability" to measure the hours of usefulness per day each part of a floor plan provides. It's surprising how many large houses have a very low index figure, and how high the yield can be for the plan of a small one, well done.

The house in Beverly Hills, shown here, which we designed for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sinay is a case in point. Because of limited funds, both the site and the house had to be small. But, of course, compactness could not be spread uniformly over the entire floor plan. The bedrooms were easily determined at the outset. Through the years, the space needed for the parents', and even the children's sleeping quarters, was not likely to change. Here compactness can be made rich if every square foot is useful and does not conflict with the simultaneous use of another square foot. But who can tell what future demands will be made on the living room? Perhaps one of the children, now a toddler, will develop into a pianist and invite other music-makers to this room of the house. So, we saved up every bit of space we could, in order to spend it in the living room. Another of our rules is to expand into the outdoors, making auxiliary living spaces out of terraces and balconies. In California this seems particularly natural, but it is also possible in other parts of the country. The balcony is comfortable even on cool evenings; radiant heating coils in the overhang help to keep it warm. Increasing informality in entertaining has taught us to provide many places where meals can be served. Here, two different spots in the living room, as well as the balcony, are just a step from the kitchen. In order to keep the children from tracking over the living room carpet each time they go to their rooms, the bathroom or the kitchen, they have their own entrance from the play yard. To save space, the children's washroom itself was made the passage. One of the ever-growing requirements of a young family is storage space. On this steep site, the half-story underneath insures ample overflow space for trunks, baseball bats and long-neglected stamp collections. A final word of caution, a small house has no room for eccentricity. Life is full of the unforeseen, and it may be necessary to sell the house and move. That is when you will thank your architect if he has designed a house which is not only good for you, but also offers an attractive investment for someone else.
NEW IDEA:

Radiant heating warms the balcony on cool evenings.

ECONOMY was a first principle, even the land was chosen with this in mind. The Sinays chose relatively inexpensive property; with Mr. Neutra's guidance, building on a slope presented no great problem.

A house in which every inch contributes its full share of livability.

THE PROPERTY is at the juncture of two hills, one of them parallel to the street; the other, about 60 feet back, forms a high natural wall behind the house. Because there is so little clear space, outdoor living areas were tucked in between the house and the cliff.
THE OUTDOORS determines the size of the living room. In good weather when the sliding glass door of the balcony is pushed back, the room is 9 feet longer. Even in winter, the broad areas of glass increase the square footage visually.

COPPER HEATING COILS, built into the overhang, convert it into one large radiant heating panel. It warms the balcony on cool evenings, increases by about one half the hours it is comfortable to sit outdoors. A similar system heats the house.

EXTRA STORAGE SPACE, right, is provided by a ground floor tucked under the down-hill side of the house. High transom windows light the laundry which, together with the garage, also occupies this story.

ON THE LIVING ROOM SIDE, a counter serves both the dining table and the outdoors. In addition, there is a door leading from the kitchen directly to the balcony and from there to the lower terrace. At an intermediate level, in the corner farthest away from the street, the children have a play yard handy to their rooms.

Building data on page 216
NEW IDEAS:

(a) Outdoor living on three levels

(b) A pass counter serves the three dining areas

A PASS COUNTER in the kitchen wall saves steps at meal time. Located strategically between the dining and sitting areas of the living room, it is handy for setting the dining table or serving tea. Between meals the folding doors above the counter are closed to keep the kitchen out of sight.

ON THE KITCHEN SIDE, the pass counter is level with work tops. Dirty dishes go directly into the sink, clean ones into the cabinets above.

GOOD VENTILATION carries off cooking odors, allows kitchen to be placed near dining areas.

TWO DINING AREAS were planned for the living room: in front of the couch (with the aid of a two-height coffee table) and at right.
PRIVACY is a problem on a small corner property. By stretching the house across the full width of the lot, half-way up the hill, Mr. Neutra makes the house itself serve as a shield for the terrace behind it. On the street side, the deck and windows are too high to be seen from below.

2. Indoor and outdoor rooms on various levels make excellent use of a sloping site

Here is another of Mr. Neutra's houses, also small and shaped to a hill, but a glance at its plan reveals a world of difference. With only four rooms, and the windows perched high above the town (Westwood, California), you almost seem to be in a tall apartment building. But few apartments could equal its privacy and the pleasantly intimate contact with the gardens. It is just what the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Maxim Van Cleef, wanted: a house small enough to be run easily, big enough to take in a lot of the outdoors. It climbs the hill with four different levels; the interior stairs serve to emphasize the separation between the major areas. The living room is partially outdoors. On one side is a small terrace notched into the slope; on the other, the roof of the garage forms a deck. At the upper tip of the property, 40 feet above the street, there is a small garden in the midst of a grove of cypress.

The deck, on the cool, eastern side of the house, has a view of wooded mountains in the distance. Mrs. Van Cleef often serves lunch here; dishes are passed directly from a counter in the kitchen through a small door cut into the wall. Garage is underneath.
NEW IDEAS:

(a) Privacy on an exposed corner lot

(b) The outdoor areas add two rooms

THE WEDGE-SHAPED PROPERTY rises a full 40 feet from the street corner to a clump of cypress at the crest. Mr. Neutra has curved the house up the hillside using four levels: (1) the master bedroom, (2) living room, (3) kitchen and dining alcove, (4) maid's room. The service wing has a stairway to the street.

OUTDOOR ROOMS add to the dimensions of this small house. The deck, which can be glimpsed on the other side of the living room, is often used for dining. The terrace, walled in by the house and the hill above it, is like an outdoor sitting room on the sunny western side. At night it may be illuminated by a band of lighting recessed in the overhang of the roof.
3. A flexible plan that fits the family, an exterior that suits a country setting

The Richard D. Greenes say that their Fayetteville, New York, house works very well indeed. Designed by architect Charles H. Umbrecht, it has several entrances (through the hall, the wood shed or another shed which serves as a mud room) so that the four children and their young friends can troop in and out without tracking up the rooms. A pine-paneled study is a second living room; as it adjoins the kitchen, it is sometimes a second dining room, too. Children’s parties can be held here without upsetting the house. The central kitchen is handy to every part of the house; it is only a few steps from all first-floor rooms, and the second floor is reached quickly by back stairs which are nearby.

CLAPBOARD WALLS, asbestos shingle roof, present a pleasant Colonial front to the village street. Surrounding trees, simple foundation planting, gravel driveway and rustic lamp post maintain the unassuming character of the house.
NEW IDEAS:

(a) Two living rooms give grown-ups and children separate space for entertainment

(b) Central kitchen and mud room make housekeeping easier

THE PIVOT OF THE PLAN is a wide center hall; it relates all the rooms to each other, connects first floor to the outdoors readily. From center kitchen, Mrs. Greene has easy access to the living room and the study as well as the dining room; can reach front or back door in a moment; can serve meals on porch or terrace easily. Two general rooms for living (both adjoin porch and terrace) enable parents and children to entertain, read or study without disturbing one another. The study is also an occasional dining room. Upstairs, each child has his own separate bedroom.

MUD ROOM AND WORKSHOP are in this one-story lean-to. In summer, children leave wet suits here after a swim in the pool; in winter, they park skates, skis, sleds, boots, etc. It prevents their tracking up the house, saves wear and tear on main rooms. Porch, conveniently near kitchen, is used for summer meals.

4. A small house which is roomy and easy to run

Architects Chiarelli and Kirk put convenience and livability into this Seattle house. Sponsored by the Revere Quality House Institute (founded by Revere Copper and Brass, Inc. to foster better design and quality materials in houses), it is only 1600 square feet in size, only 47 feet long, 26 feet wide. Without being cut into boxy little rooms, as many small houses are, it has three bedrooms, child’s playroom, workshop-game room as well as living room. The storage is exceptional, the kitchen well engineered. The house seems much larger than it is because of the open plan. Living-dining room and kitchen are one large 10-foot-high room with a glass south wall to add outdoor space to indoors. The kitchen opens into a dining area through a screening storage wall and overlooks the children’s playroom through a panel. In our servantless day this scheme lets the lady-of-the-house enjoy her rooms instead of being shut off in the kitchen. A partition folds back to turn two small bedrooms into one good-sized room.

NEW IDEAS

(a) Three-level floor plan gives bedrooms privacy

(b) Expert planning yields good storage
MAIN ROOMS are on two levels. Living-dining room and kitchen take half the space, create one large room with breakfast bar-storage wall as a dividing screen between them. Three bedrooms, a playroom-study, are six steps up.

FRONT ENTRANCE to house has flush door (wide glass panels adjoining it) painted white like the overhanging eaves which shelter it. Right side of house with wide window wall, faces south, where a terrace opens from the living room.

Radiant heating coils

KENNETH S. BROWN

CEILING-HIGH GLASS, left (bottom panes open), stretches across the whole wall and makes the living-dining room of this small house seem much larger than its 13'-0" x 23'-4" size. South terrace and garden are just outside. Room has copper hot-water coils in ceiling for radiant panel heating. Radiant heating warms wall surfaces evenly.

KENNETH S. BROWN

DINING SIDE of living room, with ample wall space for comfortable chair and table arrangement, is about six steps from kitchen door and pass-through counter (see picture at right). Terrace is almost equally accessible from kitchen for outdoor meals. Recess and overhang of window give shelter to terrace, prevent strong glare.

Additional photos and building data on page 186.

BREAKFAST BAR can be used for quick meals on either kitchen or dining-room side, is pass-through counter for food, too. Silver drawers open from both rooms for easy access. Sliding doors put dishes within handy reach of both rooms.
SUPERVISION OF CHILDREN is managed through open panel between kitchen and playroom, left. (The different floor levels between two parts of house make this possible.) This playroom can be used as study, sewing room, or for many purposes not always convenient in living room. There are more than 12 feet of wall cabinets along this wall, 10 feet more of cabinet space built in under the long window which lights the room.

CHILDREN’S BEDROOMS can be turned into one large room in daytime, separated as individual rooms at night by partition.

NEW IDEAS:

(a) Playroom for children, supervised from kitchen

(b) Folding partition creates two bedrooms
5. This house proves that a modern plan can have all the charm in the world.

ARCHITECT Henry L. Blatner was trained in the contemporary school of architecture, so naturally he designed his own house (near Albany, New York) along modern lines. Since Mr. and Mrs. Blatner recall with affection the traditional houses where they grew up, they wanted their children to live in surroundings just as homelike. The charm of their own warm and unaffected attitude toward life pervades all the rooms, from the plant-bordered, slate-paved entrance hall to the tall living-dining room with its gabled, beamed ceiling. Like most modern houses, this one reaches out-of-doors. Accordion screen doors pull open in summer to turn the living room into one large porch. Terraces lie under the pines. In winter, a small study with a low ceiling and corner fireplace is always cheerful. Since the photograph, above, was taken, a wing has been added to the house and the Blatners plan to build another later.
THE IDEAS

(a) The plan permits future growth.

(b) The living room converts into a screened porch.

(c) There are terraces for both sun and shade.

A SUNNY TERRACE wraps around a corner of the living room. Instead of a separate porch, the living room itself has accordion screen walls. When not in use, the screens fold into closets on either end of the window wall.

A SHADY TERRACE toward the north is tucked into the angle between the dining room and garage. With the kitchen just a step away, summer meals are often served here. Breezes from the north also cool the dining room.

THE ORIGINAL PLAN is shown in white. When it is completed, three wings will radiate from the house. The Blatners have added a wing for the children; guest and servants' rooms will be built in time.

Handmade in Puerto Rico

The furniture of exotic woods, the new wall and floor textures, the decorative pottery shown on these pages are all products of the Caribbean island, Puerto Rico. Though made of native materials, they are sophisticated, fresh and different. Their colors range from exuberant to subtle, with a basic undertone of warm natural wood, leather or fiber which goes well with traditional or modern furniture. The story behind them is interesting. In 1946, the Puerto Rican government invited to the island two experts on handcrafts from the United States. Their job was to establish centers which would absorb some of Puerto Rico's unemployed, as well as to encourage native talent which had never found outlet. Geraldine Funk was in charge of weaving and Hal Lasky of pottery. Both were given carte blanche, a workshop and a group of eager (if inexperienced) native apprentices. As for materials, they had to find their own. Inspired by the magnificent vegetation around her, Miss Funk began to investigate native fibers, talking to the jíbaros of the back country, getting them to contribute to a stock pile which consisted of everything from Royal Palm to roadside weeds. Textures and colors that would express the island, with its green-clothed mountains and spectacular coast line, were her main preoccupation. She kept the weaving technique as direct as possible, setting up the simplest kind of looms and working generally without a shuttle. For the pottery, Mr. Lasky let his apprentices mold the rough clay as they pleased, decorate it with any instrument that came to hand and improvise their own glazes. A furniture shop, called Arklu Industries, was also set up. Here the island's warm-toned tabonuco wood is worked into forthright, usable pieces. Thus in two years, a self-sufficient industry has developed whose products are now available through Lord & Taylor, New York, and Neiman-Marcus, Dallas, their possibilities in decoration are endless. On the left, we offer suggestions on how to use them to give your own house new livability.
LEATHER AND WOOD WHOSE FINISH IMPROVES WITH WEAR

Table ($69) has two-ply top and, like the armchairs, is of tabonuco wood. Leather-strung reclining armchairs cost $95 each. The Shulman Abrash Koo-Yung gold-colored fabric has a shantung texture, $3.25 a yard.

Opposite:

SIAS MATTING USED FROM WALL TO WALL

This is a textured room, ranging from rough, sturdy floor-covering to satin-smooth wood. The sisal floor matting is available in 12-inch squares which cost 95¢ a piece, and can be sewn together to any size. The chairs are of blond tabonuco wood lacquered with tan leather, price $49 each. The three-fold screen (price $110) consists of a plain wooden frame strung with natural Puerto Rican matting. All from Lord & Taylor, New York and Neiman-Marcus, Dallas. Seé-Mar of California made the table ($349) whose top is a well-fitted checkerboard designed in myrtle burl wood blocks.

A THREESOME IN WOVEN TEXTURES

The chaise, designed at an easy angle, is covered in handwoven maguey fiber ($137), the chair ($89) in bright webbing to match a maguey rug banded in bright red. All the wood used here is tabonuco.

Young marrieds at home

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin J. Schaffner choose records for their evening concerts, a welcome relaxation after busy days at their offices.

Listening to records is this couple's favorite entertainment

The young people you see on these pages both hold exacting jobs. Mr. Schaffner is television director for CBS, for which he has been conducting the United Nations programs and currently the "Tex and Jinx" show. Mrs. Schaffner's days are equally hectic; she works on a national weekly. Like many career girls, she does her shopping on her way home from the office, uses odd moments and week ends to complete the decoration of their apartment. We show them above on a typical evening. The record cabinet in front of which they are sitting is capacious enough to house a rounded selection of classical symphonies, chamber music and boogie-woogie. A finger on the selector is all that is needed to locate a record. The cabinet is a decorative addition to their apartment, its silver-elm veneer and simple lines are a good foil for their chintzes and ornaments he brought from Japan.
Her day

In the morning, Mrs. Schaffner inspects copy, discusses it over the phone in her office.

In the afternoon, she confers with one of the artists about illustrations for a feature.

In the evening, she shops on the way home. She buys at markets that stay open late.

His day

Before the program, Mr. Schaffner and an assistant director check over a final script.

During the program, he directs the telecast from the soundproof control room.

After the program, he discusses telecast with Mr. Quincy Howe, CBS commentator.

Storage for a musical library

This is the Drexel Precedent record cabinet. It measures 38" x 19" x 32". The solid parts are beechwood with silver-elm veneer. Inside its doors is an index of singly-stored records, which spring out automatically when selector stops at their number. Upper central space holds six albums of 12-inch records, bottom, 30 albums of 10-inch records. At McCreery's, About $130.
In a nation valiantly dedicated to democracy, the pattern of life is vigorous, the setting abounds in charm for travelers.

Despite Norway's delicate international position, the resoluteness of its national character and the beauty of the country combine to make this a fascinating place to visit. Living in Norway is threefold in character. It centers around a house in town, a mountain "hut" and a summer house. From an American point of view, the Norwegian pattern of living in any locale is unpretentious and forthright.

In Oslo, offices close at three or four in the afternoon; then follows the pleasantest part of the day. In summer, almost everybody goes to the beach or clubs, to swim in the sharp salt waters, to lie on the rocks warmed by the late sun. To sail idly among the thousands of islands, or to race across the windy reaches of the Oslofjord. In winter, the after-dinner hours are apt to be spent skiing on the heights of nearby Nordmarka. Then, at nine o'clock there is a supper of smørbrød, coffee and cake. (On page 202 you will find Norwegian recipes.)

Houses and apartments in Oslo are first and foremost bright, animated with fresh flowers, paintings and sculpture. Many of the houses are traditional, like the Niels Werrings' in Oslo and Sir Thomas and Lady Fearnley's just outside the city (see page 146). In them one finds a cosmopolitan flavor: French eighteenth-century furniture and paneling, English furniture, Venetian glass, along with Norwegian antiques, and peasant crafts: wood carving from Gudbrandsdal, fabrics from Hallingdal and wrought-iron work from Osterdal. Other houses are modern with sleek new furniture, designed perhaps by Tyge Hvas, Aage Vindelif or Oleg Wanscher, vases by Kari Bing, bowls by Scheel and Hvalstad, tureens by Von der Lippe.

The mountain "hut" may be a hut, or something considerably more elaborate, such as the Werrings', a copy of a seventeenth-century country house with architectural details dating from the Middle Ages. There the Werrings go to fish and shoot in the fall, ski during the Christmas and Easter holidays. The property comprises several thousand acres of mountain plateau covered with low-lying dwarf birch, gray reindeer moss and succulent blueberries.

The summer house, probably along the coast, may be modeled after the white wood, black-tiled houses of the fishermen and sea captains. Rudolf Olsen, a shipowner, has one on the outermost point of the small island of Tjøme, where the blue waters of the Skagerrak stretch on either side. There is a sheltered garden, guarded by the figureheads of sailing ships. Inside the nautical feeling persists: there are paintings and models of ships, beds that resemble bunks, huge deep-sea tortoises and albatross used as decorative accents in the upstairs hall.

Should you go to Norway, you will find that, for the traveler, there is no rationing of food in restaurants and hotels, or of accommodations and gasoline. Besides Oslo, you will want to see Bergen, a coastal city resplendent of medieval history, with quaint wooden houses lining its docks; Trondheim, with its magnificent cathedral; Lyngseidet. (Continued on page 215)
These Norwegian houses fit their settings:
in town, near town and at the shore

This house is one of the best examples of Norwegian timber construction. Every one of its huge logs was hewn and joined by hand. The property of a family which has lived in Norway since 1753, it sits in the middle of heavily wooded acres.

Sir Thomas and Lady Fearnley's house near Oslo

The Fearneys line the walls of the house with their collections. Here is a group of seventeenth-century faience, Norwegian and Delft.

The hallway with its banisters and neatly jointed corners illustrates the decorative effect of interior timber work.
Mr. and Mrs. Niels Werring live in Oslo

Yellow walls, white ceiling and a moss green rug make the library light and inviting. The settee is Louis XVI, the clock on the mantel is Louis XV, the chandelier of Venetian glass.

Mr. Rudolf Olsen summers on the coast

Modeled after the houses of fishermen and ship captains, the Olsen house is trim and white with a black tile roof, sits on the tip of a small island in the Skagerrak.

The round porcelain stove in the guest room is a practical and decorative accessory. Like the rest of the room, its tiles are in tones of blue and lavender.

Part of Mr. Olsen's collection of sailing ship portraits and an old Norwegian clock decorate a living room corner.
Unlike Mrs. Blanding's painter, you need not buy a pound of the A & P's best butter and match it exactly to get a very gay yellow. Nor, like the young lady on the left, rely on a posy to key the color of your living room. The guesswork is gone from paintwork. In California, the enterprising manufacturers of Fuller paints, with Elizabeth Banning as color consultant, have made the art of color planning easy for everyone. Beginning with 12 key colors, they have developed a range of 216 gradations and permutations, giving you a well-rounded gamut of tones from which to choose. This you can do by leafing through the kit of color chips which Fuller has designed for your convenience. On the back of each chip is the exact formula for mixing that particular color. There is virtually no effect that you cannot achieve.

Wallpapers follow the lead
Because W. P. Fuller & Co. have the wisdom to see decoration as a whole, they have allied themselves with James Kemble Mills to correlate papers and paints. A dozen Mills' papers, designed by experts, interweave the 12 Fuller colors. Each paper is made in three color combinations to give you a wide range of choice. What this means to you is that when you decorate with these elements, you know that you can use color with a high degree of assurance, and intersperse it with pattern to add interest to your rooms. The three pages which follow suggest the diversity of decorative and architectural effects which you now have at your finger tips. They are only a fraction of the resources offered by matching paints and papers. Wallpapers and correlated paints are available at W. P. Fuller paint stores in the West and Richard E. Thibaut Inc., in the East. Prices and a list of stores can be found on page 219.

Don't put your painter in a quandary
By asking him to paint the wall the color
Of a flower, hat, Mr. John;

Walls painted a light color throw the silhouette of dark furniture into bold relief, tend to make a room higher, airier. Match them to the long curtains for a monochromatic effect. Such a room is easy to vary from season to season: a change of curtains will alter its mood entirely, give you variety through the year.

Dark furniture, subdued against the dark background of “California Lime” wallpaper designed by Lanette Sheeline, tends to become integrated into the basic scheme. As a foil, high light architectural features: doors, cornices, baseboards, in contrasting colors. This helps to make the room lower, cozier.

Make a small room brighter with paint

Paint the inside wall of a small, dark bedroom, a soft yellow-green, to make it more cheerful. On an Old Colony tester bed, use two white “Minor” bedspreads by Morgan Jones, one as a cover and one as a canopy. At Marshall Field, Chicago.

Make a bedroom becoming with paint

Use Mountain Ash pink (1 part to 14 of white) for a bedroom. Carlin Comforts spread, valance are Victorian “Calico Rose” cotton by Amerlne. At Neiman-Marcus, Dallas.

Make a guest room dramatic with paper

To the dark background of “Wood Violet” wallpaper, key the lighter tone of a Needlentaft bed-spread made of washable pebble cloth. Spread at Hess Brothers, Allentown, Pennsylvania.

How they team up for you

Careful color planning is the clue to the close relation between Fuller paints and James Kemble Mills wallpapers. These two companies have joined forces to present a series of 12 wallpaper patterns (each in three color schemes) geared to 12 paint colors. 216 paint-mixing formulas yield variations on the original 12. Select your color from a paint chip, follow the formula given on the back of each one, and you will have the exact color.

Paved gardens are easy to tend

Grow your salad and spend your days in a modular garden
As precisely planned as a modern kitchen, this self-watering garden needs little care, fits almost any place.
Groundwork which underlies the modular garden

PROCEDURE

1. Strip good topsoil from the entire area and start composting it.
2. Excavate subsoil 8" below finished grade and trench to 18" for irrigation.
3. Lay water pipes in trenches.
   It is not necessary to go below frost line as pipes will be drained in winter.
4. Stake out beds and surround each with rough lumber forms to keep beds separate from paths in early stages.
5. Prepare individual beds with compost, manure, etc. Trees, hedges and seeds may be planted at this time.
6. Have sheet metal trays made by your local metal worker, 4" deep and use them for pools.
7. Remaining area may now be filled with 6" of cinder or gravel as a base to prevent concrete from heaving.
8. Prepare concrete paving.
9. Pour concrete, treating surface with stain or paint as desired.
10. Pour footings for upright wall posts and provide anchors.
11. Build or assemble walls, screens, trellises, etc., according to plan.

COST

A rough estimate of materials for the foregoing (including pipe, water jets, frames, Portland cement, cinders) is about $460.

The labor, if done by a foreman and a laborer, could be estimated very roughly at about $325. However, with precise instructions there is no reason why the owner could not eliminate this cost. Obviously, these figures will vary radically according to local wages and how much work you are prepared to contribute to the project. Cabinet and carpentry work (cabinets, shelves, etc.) may cost from $345. But you could use scrap lumber and your own labor, and reduce the cost to the price of materials plus paint.

Be sure to allow for trees, plants, vines, fertilizer, etc., when you make up your final garden budget.
Elevations of the garden

A. Woven fence for privacy

One great virtue of the modular garden plan is that it works as well on a suburban half-acre as on a larger country place. Complete privacy is insured by woven fence built high enough to screen off neighbors. This is an excellent support, as well, for vines or espaliered trees. Note how it holds a work bench at the right for repotting, etc. Wire mesh keeps out rabbits, varies the texture.

B. Louvers for ventilation

As contrast to the woven fence, the designer suggests using solid plywood panels, tops them with louvers which are both decorative and practical in that they admit breezes, add to the height of the shadows. Individual panels are the width of the basic modular unit used throughout, 3' 6". They are supported by metal posts sunk into the cement foundations of the garden, and are demountable.

C. Trellis for a shelter

An airy summerhouse is built of trellis, conforming to the standard 3' 6", so that its parts are interchangeable and it is capable of rearrangement. Important feature is the series of seats which double as storage bins for garden gear, serving accessories and, in winter, can be used as a root cellar. Here you can sit in shade, as it is simple to pull a canvas cover over the roof frame for protection.
Flower beds, silhouetted against brick and turf, bloom all summer

The Darlen, Connecticut, place of Mr. and Mrs. James Farrell, proves that even with relatively small grounds, you can achieve great diversity. The Farrells' house and its adjacent garden stand on a rise of meadow land. Walls and high hedges set the tidy garden off from the more rugged, natural surroundings. Here, in an area 121' long and varying in width from 30' to 48', are two gardens, one of bulbs and annuals, opposite, the other devoted to topiary, on this page. The first is primly set into brick paving which is a continuation of a living terrace beside the house, sheltered by an arbor of heavy timber, with roses trained up the posts. The brickwork measures 26' x 30' and makes for easy upkeep. A panel of turf links the two gardens, and an old apple tree on one side of it shades a second outdoor sitting place, hedged in by low, clumpy box and furnished with Victorian white-painted iron benches and table. The topiary garden, at the rear of the Farrell place, measures 35' x 40'. Its beds are laid down in oblong and wheel patterns of low-clipped box. Here grow roses. Along the sides are fat spirals of box, and perennials fill beds with spires of color from spring till fall. The end of each path is marked by a Chinese figure on a pedestal. These harmoniously related gardens and their adjuncts of terrace and lawn were designed for the small terrain (under 6,000 square feet) by Friede R. Stege, who succeeded in making them ideal for summer living, beautiful at all seasons and easy to keep.

BULBS IN BLOCKS

Because of its proximity to the house, the extended garden terrace, above, is formal. Tulips are grown in blocks of separate colors planted with mathematical precision. When they finish flowering, the bulbs are lifted and blocks of annuals in separate colors fill the space.

WINTER GREEN

The high enclosing hedge, the topiary spirals and low box-lined beds, opposite, provide a green terminus to the garden throughout the winter, a pleasant and promising prospect from the windows of the house. The hedge affords shelter for the earliest bulbs.

SUMMER FLOWERING

By mid-June, the topiary garden, opposite, is filled with color: blue delphinium spires, white Madonna lilies, bellflowers, erect and spilling over the edge, iris and peonies in variety. Roses, too, are at their height—floribundas and hybrid teas, in soft colors, flowering from June to frost.
Every inch has to count in a kitchen 7’ x 9’

Since space is at a premium in Mr. and Mrs. William Ward’s remodeled New York brownstone, architects Sanders & Malsin designed the kitchen as tidily as a gallery. They decided it should not be a room of its own, but an extension of the living and dining rooms. Communication for serving food and drink is through two panels: (1) a hinged panel in the living room conceals a pass-through cupboard; (2) a sliding door allows actual service to the dining room. You enter the kitchen by pushing back a “Temlite” hanging screen. Greatest space-saving feature is the white porcelain “Cabinette,” a 5’ wide combination of gas range, refrigerator, and wall cabinets. So that it will not clash with the living-dining room (into which it opens), the kitchen color scheme of blue linoleum, black Formica, rust floor tile and white walls, is closely related to it.

myself blushing when I think of it in the presence of these brides.

I approached the stove once a week on their day off with the wariness of a matador meeting a bull. These brides sometimes have a cleaning woman once a week, often not. Yet they whisk through three meals a day, bed-making and cleaning with the nonchalant of being able to do it with one hand tied behind the back—if that is any advantage. The furniture they clean, the china they wash and the silver they polish are beautiful, too, and they love them. Not for them a criterion of whatever is easiest to keep clean, or won’t break or will stand the hardest wear. On the contrary, invariably they say, “When the friends of our families gave us the china, they said what we wanted, with the notion that if I buy such china, glass, silver or a piece of furniture. Maybe that’s old-fashioned, but we figured that it would be a long time before we could afford things for ourselves, and we like the kind of things our parents have.”

They do not see anything incongruous about a piece of Chippendale or a Georgian tea service in a Quonset hut or an apartment over a grocery store. Some day they will have a more appropriate background; they are serenely confident of that. Meanwhile they are lucky to have found a place in which to live while Bob finishes law or medical school or college. Maybe Bob has got a job. It hasn’t been easy after three years or more, occasionally less, in the war, but you can’t expect a job and a house, too. A job and anywhere to live are a wonderful break.

Their conversation is seasoned with terms as unintelligible to me as those of a television engineer and I am, since those bridal days, no novice to the kitchen or to any other corner of my house. But mine is still the hand of a fumbler, theirs are the hands, eyes, tongues of experts. So I watch and listen, not daring to ask many questions lest I reveal myself too patently as a middle-aged doll. I succeed in not looking surprised when a friend’s bride-child tells me that she spent her wedding check on a washing machine in preference to a fur coat. After all, in my youth, I knew a girl who diverted the money for her trousseau to a carload of fertilizer. It’s simply a question of where your interests lie. But I am surprised when the washing-machine bride explains, “We could have used paper napkins and table mats and towels, and all the other things that don’t have to be washed—and I’d have had a fur coat. We do use paper things, but when we want to, not because we have to. If I want to use my best linen—and I adore it—I throw it in the machine afterwards. We happen to like, both of us, to live pleasantly. I really think we live pretty ‘swell.’ ”

When the telephone rang in my hotel bedroom in Shreveport, Louisiana, early one morning not so long ago, I thought, as I reached for it, “Not a newspaper, not a radio station, or a

New England Vacation Fever

Everything the New England pleasure-seeker requires for an unforgettable vacation is here... whether it be loafing in one of the many historic, picturesque, and hospitable towns and inhaling the succulent aroma of steaming baked beans and brown bread... or engaged in healthy recreation.

When the word "sport" is the clarion call to vacation moods, then here is your happy hunting ground for new adventure and thrills. The tang of an ocean breeze and the sting of salt spray on the gunwale introduces the seaside vacationist to New England's twenty-five hundred mile coastline... dotted with seaports and fishing villages... broken by coves, sandy beaches, precipitous headlands, and strewn with fir-capped islands.

Hiking presents a never-ending series of adventures for those with an appetite for sparkling clear, cool mountain air. With an assortment of more than one thousand mountains towering into the sunlight, and topped by majestic Mt. Washington, over a mile high, the foot-path and bridle-trail enthusiasts can explore to their hearts' content. Cosily nestled among these rugged peaks are some five thousand lakes and ponds.
Honeymoon ideas in North America and Bermuda

A newly married couple might consider a honeymoon as a song by Irving Berlin, as sentimental as a pressed violet. (It is often as corny as a sunset.) It should be like gliding down the Nile in a barge, flying above fleecy clouds in a private plane, sailing alone across a sun-drenched sea, or hiding away in that ubiquitous "small hotel." With what one tax and another, the latter is what most young marrieds will probably achieve. But which hotel? To answer this question is a thankless task. Romance, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder. The girl who has dreamed of a week end at the Ritz (Paris, New York or Boston) is hardly going to be satisfied with two weeks at a hunting lodge, reck though it may of "Mayerling." The same holds true for those who have their hearts set on a large resort. The Homestead, The Greenbrier, The Chateau Frontenac, The Banff Springs Hotel—such places provide plenty of opportunity for romance—not least of which is anonymity. They are well advertised, easy to reach. Some small hotel or inn is likely to be less famous outside of its region. We shall concentrate on them.

A Utah mountain honeymoon is both sturdy and romantic, and although it may not be quite as American as the West, it has its own peculiar charm. Whether you choose to rest your head at the Del Rio Motel or at the Logan Springs Hotel, your idea is correct but comfortable as a song by Irving Berlin, as sentimental as a pressed violet. (It is often as corny as a sunset.) It should be like gliding down the Nile in a barge, flying above fleecy clouds in a private plane, sailing alone across a sun-drenched sea, or hiding away in that ubiquitous "small hotel." and feed the bluejays and the bears. In the daytime, tour the countryside (the Mariposa Grove of Sequoia gigantea about an hour's drive away); in the evening dance under the stars. Rates obtainable on request.

In California, 100 miles south of Los Angeles, 25 miles north of San Diego and just five miles inland from the Coast Highway at Solana Beach, is Rancho Santa Fe. The Inn, like the rest of the architecture there, is California-Spanish. You can stay in the main building or in one of the many cottages stuck among tamboury flower gardens and under eucalyptus trees.
You can sunbathe on your private terrace, with studio clusters, breakfast rides and beaches and kitchenettes, European Plan, if goin by car, take U. S. Route 101.
Watch for the sign at Solana Beach, turn east, drive five miles and you're there. You can also arrive by way of Del Mar and Encinitas. If arriving by Santa Fe Railway, get off at Del Mar.
If coming by plane, the nearest airport is at San Diego.

Up the coast, 75 miles northwest of Los Angeles, lies the Ojai Valley in a vast amphitheater of mountains. The Ojai Valley Inn, again California-Spanish, but this time decorated in French Provincial by Barbara Barondess MacLean, is a splendid place from which to enjoy the kind of informal activities the valley invites; picnics with hampers of food and beverage packed by the inn, breakfast rides and boating on lakes and ocean, ride through citrus groves, or attend the races at Del Mar. The service is exceptionally solicitous; there are always fresh flowers in every room. Rates range from $12 a day for double room to $22 for a sitting room with studio couch, bedroom, and in the morning it is delivered without any further ado. It's easy to get down to Mexico from here, but you may prefer to remain among the tile-roofed houses, shrub-lined streets and flower-ornamented gardens of La Jolla. Rates begin at $7 a day for two; American Plan, La Jolla is 14 miles north of San Diego.

115 miles south of Los Angeles, from Los Angeles you take U. S. Route 101 until three miles north of La Jolla where the La Jolla road is well marked. From San Diego you take Routes 80 and 395.
Any transcontinental railroad line or air line will get you to San Diego.

We can also personally recommend San Ysidro, an inn owned by Ronald Colman in the hills outside of Santa Barbara—a charming, not-too-plain spot that affords privacy in individual cottages and is famous for its buffet meals. Fred Harbin, amiable hostelry in Santa Fe, New Mexico;
and Del Monte Lodge at Pebble
Beach, California, overlooking Carmel
Bay. Among the attractions around Pebble Beach are the well-known championship golf course, Inspiration Rock and the 17-mile ocean drive, encircling
the Monterey Peninsula.

The next best thing to a small hotel is a boat trip. The Furness Line's Queen of Bermuda whose name has been synonymous with honeymoon for years, returned to her Bermuda run this winter. She leaves New York every Saturday afternoon at three, getting you to Hamilton Monday morning.
Virtually rebuilt during conversion from her troopship status, she now hosts air-conditioning in all of the public rooms. The island, to those who like swimming, is better in summer than winter. You will, of course, ride cycles, picnic on the beaches, sail, visit the aquarium (a must), walk the ocean floor in a diving helmet, and sop up picture-postcard charm to remember for years and years. You'll have to decide yourself whether you want to club president. Not at this hour! This is somebody's child," it was, and she explained the call prettily.

"I was going to stop by to see you, but I was afraid it might be a little early." (It was a quarter to eight.)
"I've just driven Pete to work. I'd love to show you our house. We've just moved here, I'm Marjory Thompson's daughter. You know. From Philadelphia."

I did know, and I went out to see her mother and stepfather, at eleven. Both were shining and charming. I saw most of the wedding presents, too. Some had been left in Philadelphia, but not many.
It was a delight, I told her, to see lovely tings being used.

"Well," she said, "it seems to me that as long as you have to wash and scrub and polish anyway, you might as well get some enjoyment out of it and have something to show for it."

That is, I should say, both reasonable and indicative of the new outlook.
During the war, the bride's mother packed away the wedding presents after the bride and her husband had set out for motor court or furnished room. (But nothing would be different.) Living quarters are still hard to find, foods still harder, and that situation isn't temporary any more. It's apt to go on for a long time.

The bride today is a realist. She is not starry-eyed about a well-furnished cottage. Whatever she and her husband can get will be all right with her. She will make the best of it. And she will bring to it the best that she has.

More power to her.

THK FOLDS of the screen, right, mask the mechanical wall of the kitchen from the dining room. With screen closed, left panel is used for serving.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward's small kitchen works well because it is meticulously planned around a mechanical core. This is the "Cabranette," shown below, which groups all the large equipment into one space-saving unit, leaving every other available inch free for storage and the dozens of "odd jobs" connected with getting meals. It is tidy in action, tidy in design, with one continuous counter into which are sunk the gas-range cooking units, sink and drainboard (the top of the small refrigerator). This unit extends up the wall a little more than eight feet to include wall cabinets, where you can keep all the pots and pans, refrigerator dishes, etc. As the unit is finished in vitreous enamel on a metal base, it is easy to keep spotless.

The Murphy "Cabranette" is manufactured by Dwyer Products Corporation in Michigan City, Indiana.

The folding partition between dining room and kitchen is made of "Temp-lite" window shade manufactured by the Aeroshade Company of Waukesha, Wisconsin.

The floor of the kitchen is asphalt tile, tinted rust color, made by Tile-Tex which has offices at 630 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

MURPHY "CABRANETTE" combines a gas range, sink, refrigerator and cabinets to form one vitreous-enamelled unit 37" high, 60" wide and 26½" deep.

You can lure your friends with crystal gifts that excite their admiration. Or at the hostess hour, Fostoria's hand-cut Holly will lure them to fascination and fun. It's a gorgeous cut crystal of fantastic glamour. The tall, sleek stem is exquisitely crowned with a bell-ringing bowl circled by a lucent holly wreath. Brides of today, yesterday and every day love Holly to give or to get. And find it, or many other equally lovely Fostoria selections, at the better stores everywhere.

For the bride who likes to entertain, here are some hints for buying and for serving wine.
Just because some connoisseurs carry on as if wine drinking were an esoteric art for the initiate only, there is no reason why you should feel hesitant about either buying wine or serving it. If in any doubt as to the latter, stick to the following rules: 1.) appetizer wines: serve sherry at room temperature, (vermouth can be iced) before meals; 2.) red wine (preferably room temperature) with red meat or game; 3.) white wine (cold) with fish or fowl; 4.) sweet wine (chilled) with dessert; 5.) heavy, fortified wines such as port and Madeira (room temperature) with cheese or after dinner; 6.) champagne (as cold as ice) throughout meals or between them. When it comes to glasses, those for red wine are customarily somewhat larger than for white, so if you have one set, settle for a medium size equally useful for both. A tulip shape is preferable to a flaring one because it tends to hold the wine's aroma. Glass of plain pattern permits you to enjoy the wine's color. The standard sherry glass is funnel-shaped, but any classic martini glass fills the bill very well. As to champagne glasses, you can choose between the saucer shape and the one shaped rather like an ice-cream cone on a foot (called a flute) which some connoisseurs prefer because the bubbles escape more slowly.

In buying wines, choose a good dealer who is in touch with reliable bottlers and shippers. He can back up his suggestions by giving you a list of good and poor years in the various types of foreign vintages, and will be only too glad to explain the labels which state what each bottle contains.

THE OVAL TABLE, shown above and in the photograph of the bride's chafing-dish supper on page 106, is from Ashley-Kent, Ltd., New York. Although it closely resembles a Sheraton design, it is French, circa 1810, and was imported from Nice. The table is mahogany, its top veneered and inlaid with satinwood. The length is 70 inches, the width 51 inches and the height 29 inches. It costs $850.

Developments in cottons in the past few years have been so rapid that few of us can keep up with the new terms and qualifications of the fabrics now on the market. For your convenience, therefore, we print this glossary of trade names, together with the principal advantages of each finish. In running down the list, don't forget that they all share: a surprising ease of upkeep. Washday in a cotton household can consist of merely collecting things to be washed and laundering and towing them unceremoniously into the electric washer. No measuring against shrinkage, no separate waters for colors that are liable to run, no starching and, in certain cases, even no ironing.

GLOSSARY OF TRADE NAMES

"ABSORBENIZED," a method of processing terry toweling for greater absorption, so it holds more water and does not feel so wet to the hand. By Callaway Mills.

"EVERGLAZE" a resin impregnation applied to fabrics which produces a glaze or luster durable after repeated washings. It stabilizes the fabric to shrinkage, resists dirt and keeps colors bright. By Joseph Bancroft & Sons Co.

"KANDAR," a finish which gives permanent crispness, prevents soiling, removes lint. By U. S. Rubber Co.

"KOROSEAL," a synthetic coating which impregnates fabric to make it resist acid, stain, oil, sun and water. Does not crack or peel and is odorless. Valuable on cottons for outdoor use. By B. F. Goodrich Co.

Here is testimony about Webster Baseboard Heating from a nationally-known heating contractor. Wray M. Scott, is a leading Omaha, Nebraska heating contractor; he is also treasurer of the Heating, Piping & Air Conditioning Contractors National Association. He makes a practice of thoroughly testing new heating developments.

In 1947, Mr. Scott had Webster Baseboard Heating installed in the living room, dining room, four bedrooms, hall and stair landing of his Omaha home. Now he is enthusiastic about Webster Baseboard Heating in every room of your home! Less piping in your basement, too.

SCREEN OF WARMTH

In Webster Baseboard Heating, air circulating in the room, does in at the floor line, passes over the hot water heating element, is warmed and comes out at the top of the Baseboard, supplying a constant screen of warm air over walls, ceilings and floors.

Here is modern heat, uniform heat, it costs less than you think! No waiting for installation. Your local heating contractor can install it. Webster Baseboard Heating is a development of Warren Webster & Company, an organization with a record of more than 60 years leadership in heating systems.

PERFECTED HOT WATER HEAT

Webster Baseboard Heating is dependable, perfected hot water heating installed behind a specially-designed, attractive metal Baseboard around the exposed walls of the house. Floors and walls are warm, fuel costs are low.

Tests of room temperatures have shown less than 2 degree variation between ceiling and floor even in sub-zero weather!

Write for your copy of "Where is the Radiator?" and booklet, "Questions and Answers about Webster Baseboard Heating". Address Department HG-5, Warren Webster & Company, Camden, New Jersey.

AN INVITING BRICK PATH WINDS FROM THE HOUSE TO THE GARDEN

AN ANNUAL GARDEN

Planted in early spring, this garden blooms in August.

Tucked into a quiet corner close to Mrs. Alfred Anson's house at Bar Harbor, Maine, is this delightful snapdragon garden. It is approached along a winding brick path bordered with snapdragons, roses, petunias and salpiglossis and is entered through a vine-covered stone arch. The garden is small, composed of four crescent-shaped beds divided by a brick path. The charm of the garden is the way in which pink and white snapdragons, the only flowers in the beds, are massed. Along the wall there are low, thick-growing evergreens interspersed with clumps of Lilium regale which fill the garden with sweet perfume.

“Here’s how we got luxury without extravagance”

“It’s one thing to have grand ideas, but quite another to make them fit your purse. Because we always wanted a super-super bathroom, we chose Eljer Fixtures . . . and that’s how we got luxury without extravagance.”

Investing in dependable, quality bathroom fixtures is not an extravagance. You expect them to last a long time . . . even a lifetime. That is why more and more homeowners are choosing Eljer. The bathtubs, for example, have a rugged, rigid, cast-iron base that makes possible a smooth, extra-thick coating of glass-like enamel that stays sparkling clean with the swish of a damp cloth. And, Eljer Vitreous China Fixtures just naturally resist stains and the effect of all ordinary acids . . . because they are real china.

For beautiful Eljer Fixtures in white or pastel shades, see your plumbing contractor or write Eljer Co., Box 192, Ford City, Pennsylvania.

WHAT IS REAL VITREOUS CHINA?

Eljer Vitreous China is similar in texture to the finest table china . . . but with added toughness to withstand severe use over the years. Fired at more than 2000° F., the glass-like surface actually becomes a part of the base. The colors cannot fade.

Defies Flame and Water! CELLULITE is permanently flameproof! It won't flame or melt under the concentrated fire of a blowtorch. Sheds water like a duck and shows no mildew attraction. And here's more good news: CELLULITE is odorless, vermin-proof and sound-proof!

And Saves You More Money! CELLULITE saves up to 40% on fuel alone! And it's so easy to install, your home can be done in a jiffy. That means still more savings for you! When you insulate, be sure you give yourself the best of it: It always pays to insulate with CELLULITE!

SUNDAY SUPPER

3 large yellow onions
4 medium potatoes
1 pt. cream juice
2 cups milk, scalded
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. freshly ground pepper
pinch of leaf thyme
1 cup light cream, scalded
3 tbsp. parsley, minced

Either haddock or cod or a mixture is good. Have fish trimmed and filleted, take home the trimmings for the broth. (A 3½ lb. fish, trimmed, will yield about 2½ lbs. edible portions.)

Put fish trimmings (skin, bones, head) into a small saucepan, barely cover with water, add clam juice, cover saucepan and simmer 10 to 15 minutes. Meanwhile, cut fish fillets into large-sized cubes. Not strictly New England, but flavorful withal is the use of not-too-lean bacon in lieu of salt pork. Dice pork or bacon fine and sauté slowly until crisp. Drain on absorbent paper. Peel and slice onions very thin; cook onions in the fat until soft but not brown, stirring occasionally with a wooden spoon to separate into rings. Add pork crispings.

Peel and slice potatoes paper-thin, add to onions. Cover with fish broth strained through a sieve. Cook 10 minutes. Then add fish, season with salt, fresh-ground pepper and a good pinch of thyme. Add the scalded milk and simmer slowly until fish is tender, about 10-15 minutes. Cool, cover and store in refrigerator.

35 MINUTES BEFORE SERVING:

Reheat chowder very slowly, adding a cup of scalded cream. Serve from a soup tureen or casserole or ladle into deep soup bowls. The quantity is enough for second helpings. Sprinkle each serving with finely minced parsley.

GREEN SALAD
1 small head each of Simpson, romaine, chicory
1 bunch of watercress

DO AHEAD:

Trim and core the lettuce heads. Break Simpson (or iceberg) lettuce apart. Choose tender leaves of romaine, the heart of the chicory. Cut stems from watercress. Wash all greens. Store in the crisping section of your refrigerator or wrap in a clean damp cloth and chill. Make French dressing.

LAST MINUTE

Rub your largest wooden salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic. Break up larger leaves, add chicory and watercress. Pour 4 tablespoons of dressing into the bowl, add greens and turn leaves gently to coat them with dressing. Serve with extra dressing.

GARLIC BREAD
Long loaf of French or Italian bread
Garlic slices
Butter

20 MINUTES AHEAD:

Cut loaf of bread diagonally in 1½" slices to, but not through, the bottom (Continued on page 197)

Conferring with window manufacturers and dealers, I can fix those windows so they go up as light and easy as thistledown. Give me a chance, and I'll show you that I can save you as much as 1/4 of your fuel bill, too. You see, that old-fashioned window that you're fighting with is not weather-stripped. It has a wooden sash which fits tightly into a wooden frame. And you know what that does when the weather's a little bit damp — or even if it's not, if your house isn't new. I'll put your windows on metal tracks — wood to metal, the smoothest contact you can get. With two strong springs to pull that window up for you, all you have to do is get it started. It will go up like a balloon.

DINNER IN NORWAY

by FLORENCE BROBECK

Co-author of "Scandinavian Cookery for Americans"

WHEN you are invited to dinner in Norway, you will do well to fast all day before because the food will be rich, bountiful and so beautifully cooked you will want to eat and eat. In midsummer, when the vegetable gardens are at their best and the farm produce of all kinds ready for harvesting, the menu might be delicious asparagus soup, veal fricandeau, boiled potatoes, a salad of apples and celery, and a pudding rich with almonds and rum or sherry, and topped with a smooth and superbly-flavored sauce.

Or the menu could be a cold fruit soup, fish pudding with lobster or shrimp sauce, boiled potatoes, mixed green salad, ripe peaches. After dinner fragrant coffee and small not-very-sweet cookies make their appearance. And before these dinners you probably will sample the "koldt bord," much like the Swedes' smörgåsbord, and sip icy cold and very potent aquavit. (You will find recipes below.) If you stay on into the evening, you will probably be fed again, at 10 or near midnight, with a wonderful array of open-face sandwiches with hot coffee or cold drinks.

City families do not fare so well in these days of post-war scarcities and high prices. But wherever you are served in Norway, the flavor and quality of the food and the excellence of the cookery are proudly in the tradition which has made Norwegian food famous for centuries.

NORWAY'S OPEN-FACE SANDWICHES

On the afternoon coffee tray, with cocktails, on the table of cold drinks and as a midnight supper, small open-face sandwiches are popular everywhere in Norway. They are colorful, savory, delicious and filling.

When you make them, buy pumpernickel, sweet rye bread without caraway seeds, also the small oval sliden.

WINE SOUP
(Fin suppe)

A little wine is added to many Norwegian soups, but one popular favorite, which may be served hot or cold, is made with both sherry and white wine. (A Rhine wine is used in Norway.)

2 qts. water
1 small stick cinnamon
1/2 lemon peel, chopped fine
4 tbsp. sago flour or Minute tapioca
3 egg yolks
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup sherry
1/4 cup white wine

Boil the water with the cinnamon and lemon peel about 5 minutes. Remove the cinnamon and peel. Mix the sago flour with 2 tablespoons of water. Add this or add the tapioca. Stir and heat to boiling, and cook till the sago or tapioca is clear, about 20 minutes. Beat the yolks and sugar together till light. Stir into the hot mixture. Mix well. Add the wines slowly, stirring, and serve hot or chilled. Serves 6 to 8.

Boiling Water

Clean the fish, cut off head and tails, remove visceral; cut fillets from the backbone. See that no bones remain in the fillets. Cut the fillets in small pieces, sprinkle with the salt, put once through the food grinder, using the finest knife. Mix with the potato flour or cornstarch and nutmeg; put through the grinder four more times. Slowly add most of the milk, mix well; add the cream; add the rest of the milk if the mixture needs it. It should be just thick enough to shape into 12 to 18 very small balls. Cook them in rapidly boiling salted water 20 minutes. Drain and keep warm. Pour the rest of the fish mixture into a buttered mold or baking dish. Set it in a shallow pan, half-filled with hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 40 to 60 minutes. Turn it out on a warm platter; garnish with the fish balls. Serves 6 to 8. Serve with:

SHRIMP OR LOBSTER SAUCE

(Reescher Saas)

6 egg yolks
1 tsp. flour
1/2 tsp. sugar
1/4 to 1/2 tsp. salt

Juice of 1 lemon
1/2 cup cold butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped, clean celery root

Beat the yolks with the flour in the upper part of a glass or enamel double boiler over hot water. Slowly add the sugar, water, salt and lemon juice. Cook and stir until thickened; then add the cold butter or margarine a little at a time. Just before serving over the pudding stir the shrimps in. Makes 21/2 to 3 cups. Serves 8.

Note: A less expensive sauce is made by using 2 cups medium white sauce, seasoned with 1 tablespoon Madeira or sherry; add 1 tablespoon cold butter or margarine, then adding the shrimps or lobster.

NORWEGIAN FISH BALLS

(Fiskeboller i saus)

20 fish balls
2 cups fish stock
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup flour
2 cups milk
1 cup chopped, cooked celery root
1/4 to 1/2 tsp. salt
4 tbsp. sherry

Use fish balls as made in the recipes for fish pudding. After boiling them for 20 minutes in salted water, drain and let them come to boiling in the fish stock. Remove them, saving both balls and stock. Melt the butter in a saucepan; work the flour smooth into it. Add the stock and milk and stir. Let it boil 5 minutes, stirring continually, till it has thickened. Then remove from the heat. Add the celery root, the fish balls, salt and the sherry. Heat. Serves 5 to 6.

VEAL À LA TERRAPIN
(Kalvesstek à la skildpaddel)

6 tbsp. butter or margarine
6 tbsp. flour
3 cups veal stock (or canned hominy or consomme)
1/2 cup roast veal, cut in thin strips
1/4 tsp. cayenne
3/4 to 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 cup sherry
2 hard-cooked eggs

Brown the butter or margarine in a 2-quart saucepan or kettle; stir in the flour smoothly; let this begin to brown. Add half the stock; stir and cook 2 or 3 minutes; add the rest of the stock and stir and cook 5 minutes. Add the meat, mix, season with the cayenne and salt. Add the sherry. Let cook 1 or 2 minutes. Decorate the serving dish with quarters of eggs. Serves 6 or more.

NORWEGIAN CHICKEN WITH RICE

(Hüns med ris)

1 stewing chicken (3 1/2 to 4 pounds)
4 to 6 cups water
2 tsp. salt
2 cups stock
1/4 cup flour
1/3 tsp. allspice
1/2 tsp. grated nutmeg
2 tomatoes
1 cup rice
1/2 cups milk and water mixed
1 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. powdered mace
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds or hazelnuts

Cut the cleaned chicken into serving-size pieces. Place in a heavy kettle, add water and 1 tsp. salt and cook slowly until about half done. Then place in a large greased baking dish: a 2 1/4-quart casserole is about right. Heat the chicken stock; mix a little of it with the flour to a smooth paste; then add this to hot stock; season with 1/2 tsp. salt, cayenne, nutmeg and cook, stirring smoothly, till a little thickened. Skin the washed tomatoes; chop them and add to this stock. Mix and pour it over the chicken in the casserole. Wash the rice; drain and put in a large pot with the milk, water and 1 tsp. salt. Cover it and as soon as it boils turn the heat low and cook about 30 minutes until the grains are nearly dry. Use a fork and mix the sugar, mace, butter and nuts together; then mix carefully into the rice, using the fork to lift and mix the rice lightly. Let this cool. Heat the eggs, saving out about 1 tablespoon. Mix with the rice. Mound the rice evenly and thickly over the chicken in the casserole, leaving a vent hole in the center for the steam. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) till the chicken is tender, which should be half to three-quarters of an hour. Just before serving, brush the top of the rice with the remaining beaten egg, sprinkle with bread crumbs and paprika and brown.

in a 400° oven. Garnish the dish with parsley when serving. Serves 6.

Some families make extra gravy, when preparing the stock, to pour over the chicken before baking. This gravy is seasoned highly, a little minced parsley added, and it is heated and served with the chicken and rice.

GARDENER'S GUIDE

Routines and rewards for May

By May, gardens and gardeners hit their full stride. The hesitating blooms of late April have now grown more abundant. By May Day beauty appears not only underfoot but overhead as well, with flowering shrubs prodigal in their blooming; the ubiquitous forsythia, the earliest lilacs, the blossom-wrapped wands of the cotoneasters. Grass becomes a problem. Already that long drudgery to keep a shaven lawn has begun. And with the shaven lawn comes the necessity for well-edged borders. By May, then, gardeners should be completely "neatened up."

At the same time, the plots given to vegetables and cutting flowers have assumed a mathematical exactness—straight lines of seedlings easy to cultivate. We begin to note the vegetables that must be dusted or sprayed. There's the cutworm to slay, mildew to be dispelled with Bordeaux and pyrethrum to control aphids on lilies.

The rock garden is now in its glory but later the rampant growers must be cut back. This especially applies to the sprawling phlox and later, in June, to the spent pinks.

For the curious gardener there is no more collectable plant family than the pink. Start with the ordinary kinds: alpinus, deltoideus, neglectus, pluarius, and arenarius. What sweet music their names! But even sweeter their flowering. Of late a new race of larger-flowered garden pinks has been offered, and they are well worth while. Most of the diantus want lime in the soil and (Continued on page 214)
For the well being of your treasured trees... have them DAVEY-INSPECTED this spring

Do you know when your shade trees are beginning to fail? Few people do. Unintentional neglect is the cause of most tree trouble. Too often tree men are not called until a valuable tree's life is endangered or the expense of saving it is many times the cost of simple tree care in the early stages. Regular tree inspection every spring is the most important phase of tree care.

An experienced Davey Man knows what to look for in an ailing tree. A common check for example, is to measure twig growth. He may call on the Davey laboratory for scientific analysis. For the Davey Man in the field is backed by the entire Davey organization, its laboratory and its continuing research.

It is so unnecessary to neglect trees, when it is so easy to have them inspected. If the Davey Tree Expert Company is not listed in your phone book under "tree service," write direct to the home office for the address.

If you would like to be a Davey Tree Man or know someone that would write us today.

CANNAS: NEW VARIETIES

Danger from frost now well passed, all kinds of tender plants and bulbs can be set in the ground: dahlias, gladioli, caladiums and canna. Some gardeners still cling to their prejudice against canna. Memories linger of their rank growth and raw red flowers. These prejudices will dissolve when you encounter the new canna varieties that are being produced, plants of medium growth, having flower heads of subtle tones. They will find a place in the middle reaches of a perennial border. Watch for them.

Though all the books say that we should pull out the flowering stalks of rhubarb, we let one clump of them alone. It is close to a Paulus Scarlet hawthorn and the effect of the two is unforgettable. Besides, a Turkish cook years ago taught us how to dip the rhubarb flowers in batter and fry them in quick hot fat. Dusted with sugar, or daubed with honey, they make a delectable, crunchy dessert.

I hold to the theory that melons should be grown only by those stout of heart and accustomed to abrupt cultural frustrations may appear. In little, and a whole host of other horrid things happened too. Watch for them.

Did you ever go around your garden and figure what plants or plants give you the most for your money? My two are New Zealand spinach and petunias. After the third week the family usually is in open revolt against the spinach, and the last year a very toplofty individual, who specializes on difficult alpines, put his in my place by exclaiming, "How can you be so common as to grow petunias?" My common streaks slick out and figure what plant or plants give you the most for your money.

Put POWER behind your lawn and garden chores with its Lapps; Molde, the charming resort town; Merok, where you begin the mountain drive to Djuvasshyatta, and the fjords.

You can cruise through the latter all the way to the North Cape in the Stella Polaris, a Norwegian ship which departs from England at intervals during the summer. There are fjords accessible by boat and fjords accessible only to the eider duck and the eagle. There are fjords whose walls are treed less precipices, and others where the forest slopes from coast to coast. There are fjords whose floors are strewn with islands and inlets, and others whose margins are broken platforms of stone, and still others which widen into harbors or shelve back into terraces, flat into pastures.

The Sognefjord, longest of them all, is a great arterial channel confined by precipices diverging into lesser channels, isolated cabins cling like wasps' nests high on the face of its crags or, on the utmost top of a treedless promontory, brace themselves against the elements. Here, a half-dozen houses with hayfields, potato patches and a thimble-spired church, scatter themselves at all angles and elevations, according to the contour of the clearing. There, a town which has squeezed itself into a cruck between the cliffs, pushes its main street, its pier and its hotel down to the water's edge. Between many such communities the only communication is by boat. And all day long boats are busy on the Sognefjord; brown and white herring boats, gold and white motorboats, and gossipy ferryboats which exchange their passengers nonchalantly in midstream.

Nordfjord is a gentler fjord. Pushing inland 50 miles from the sea, it ravelers out at Loen where it shallows in shallow waters meander through tidal marshes. The mountains enclose but do not confine the villages, and their wooded slopes open widely to the sky.

The Geirangerfjord is best seen by land. One must climb up the back way to Grotli and Djuvasshyatta. In the 1800's, the English used to take a week or so travelling by pony cart and boat to get from Bergen to Loen. Now buses with tops specially constructed so that passengers can see the mountains and waterfalls, as well as private convertible motorcars, bring tourists every day. During the height of the summer season a seaplane covers the distance from Bergen in less than an hour.

From Djuvasshyatta the road winds like a thread pulled from a bobbin, twisting and turning in spectacular whiplash curves. Many of them are so sharp that the buses, though short, must stop and brake and back and cut down before they can start again and make the corner. Around and down they go, with waterfalls splashing above and below and the rowan trees crowding to the edge to display their clusters of white blossoms or red berries. Suddenly, at Flydalsjuvet, the mountains draw back; nearly a thousand feet below, the Geirangerfjord pushes its way through a steep and rocky channel, spreads out and comes to a motionless end. Across the glassy

There’s an aura of brilliance hovering over Broadway these days, and it doesn’t come from the electric lights. It emanates from the Moroco Theater, where they are selling tickets for Arthur Miller’s play DEATH OF A SALESMAN for 23 weeks in advance. A tragic drama of burying empires, it examines the case of a man faced with the realization that his life is a failure; and it presents his story with a mixture of insight, imagination and craftsmanship too often missing from the theater these days. It deals with the common man, but with an uncommonness of means that, like a magnet, draws from those associated with it the best they can give. Lee J. Cobb in the title role performs as he has never done before, and he has always been, even in Hollywood, a resourceful actor of uncomproresponsible for our rapid growth.

book settings and costumes by Lemuel Ayers) is as slick as a Cartier watch and just as glittery.

One of the stranger programs on New York concert hall stages this spring was an evening devoted to Stravinsky at Town Hall. Organized by an intense and talented young conductor, Robert Craft, it introduced the modern master's new Mass conducted by himself—introduced it not only once, but twice. The two performances were separated by an intermission and a session of poetry reading by W. H. Auden. The audience, appropriately musical and literary, included those veteran readers of their own poetry, Edith and Oshbert Sitwell.

The Metropolitan Museum which has been undergoing a mild frenzy of re-installations this winter has rearranged its Near Eastern room to include new acquisitions. Among these are a small Sumerian bearded bull's head with shell-inlaid eyes, and a small brown alabaster head of a god or demon from a statuette of Ur-Ningirsu, secular and priestly ruler of the town-state of Lagash in southern Mesopotamia. But the prize of the collection is a sublimely modeled head found in Azerbaijan in Northern Persia, possibly the portrait of an Elamite ruler. ... The same museum's costume exhibition is presenting a nostalgic show of American stage costumes and settings. The settings are represented by sketches and maquettes, but the costumes are the originals. There is one worn by Edwin Booth in Hamlet, Edwin Forrest in Hamlet and Macbeth, Ethel Barrymore in Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines, Katharine Cornell in The Barretts of Wimpole Street, Viola Allen as Julia in The Hunchback, Lynn Fontanne in The Taming of the Shrew and Amphitryon, Helen H. Corning as Violet and Ethel Gallienne as Juliet and Fanny Davenport as Lady Macbeth. ... There was nostalgia of another kind at the cultural center of the French embassy this spring. It was occasioned by an exhibition entitled L'imagerie Populaire, devoted to color woodcuts and lithographs of French artisans of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. These were meant to be displayed like posters on the walls of shops and buildings, or sold for a penny to the man in the street. Their aim was not merely decorative; they were used to express popular philosophy, to show aspects of daily life, or just to tell a story, illustrate a literary theme or legend. They represent a type of artistry, which disappeared with the machine age, whose products were rich in human values.

NOTE OF SPRING: In a recent exhibition of Chinese art C. T. Loo filled vases with pale pink dogwood and yellow forsythia. Ask your florist to show you the two together, you'll be surprised how well they look.

TURNTABLE

A new version of a grand and glorious opera does justice to music that needs no justification.

The performance of Aida recorded by RCA Victor in Rome and recently issued here in two volumes has many moments of glory. They are provided principally by the distaff side. Maria Callas and Eusebio Stignani are the principal singers. They are always rich, effulgent and geared to the dramatic values of the score. In the interests of the latter, Callas occasionally sacrifices the staccato but Stignani remains, no matter what she does, a pillar of rectitude. The entire performance is of a superior order, with the exception of Radames, Gino Bechi as Amonasro and Italo Tajo as the King, who much more than adequately. The chorus and orchestra are those of the Opera led by Tullio Serafin, a man able to draw out the grand excitement from the music, while hewing to a clean-cut course.

DM-1174-75; $27.) Accompanying the Aida release is a recording of TURANDOT, with Mascagni himself leading members of the Orchestra and Chorus. Gigli sings Turandot and Lima in Santuzza in what one presumes is a definitive performance, although he admitted that it is not strikingly better than other versions. (Album DM-1139; $14.75.) In both cases the recordings are:

Mozart, Mozart, Mozart.

Every month brings more MOZART. This time the gracefully serene compositions: a piano concerto, K. 482 by Gaspard de Grasse as the corr. No. 9 in E-flat major by the customary self-effacement. Despite a flawless understanding of the emotional implications of the music, there is always a suspicion of virtuosity. Ludwig van Beethoven: SYMPHONY NO. 4, Op. 60; $6.75. With Vladimir Horowitz it is exciting to hear how good all he is: this and last year, we find that he is almost invariably a pleasure. F.

E. K. 332, with its usual verve. (RCA Victor, in E. K. 339; $10.90.) - Mr. Horowitz appears again in two separate CD albums of music by CARLPHILPS, SONGS NO. 3. Operas, the operas of modern and alternative composers of modern and romantic music, apparently an "approved" composition.
