"He says I'm 'Picture Pretty' in my Formica Kitchen, but Bob is the one who was framed."

Bob was strictly lukewarm on the idea of modernizing my kitchen with Formica. He kept putting me off until I had to fall back on every woman's best weapon—psychology.

Certain colors bring out the best features in a gal and others do less than nothing for her. I learned long ago I should stay away from blue.

I practically dragged Bob into a show room kitchen with the bluest Formica counter tops you ever saw. "This is it," said I.

"You must be out of your mind," he exploded; "you know darn well any setting we put you in has got to be green or red."

Before he knew what hit him he had "sold me" on the green Formica I picked out months ago.

In the wide range of Formica high style colors and exciting wood grains are the ones nature intended as the perfect background for making you look your glamorous best.

You can see these colors and get help with your kitchen planning if you'll look in your classified phone book under plastics for the name of a Formica fabricator near you.

DEMAND THIS CERTIFICATION

This mark certifies genuine Formica. Removal with soap and water. Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping. Pays in Performance.

Seeing is believing. If this wash-off identification is not on the product, it's not FORMICA.
YOUR CHOICE IS WIDE: In addition to the monthly Selections, the Club makes available as Alternates special editions of other widely discussed books. Thus your choice is wide—at least 100 books a year. You receive an advance description of each Selection and if you think it is a book you would enjoy, you send back a form (always provided) specifying some other book you may want. Or you may say: "Send me nothing."

WHAT YOU PAY ... AND HOW: You simply pay the special members' price for each Selection you buy, which is usually lower than the regular retail price. A bill is mailed with each book you indicate you want. (A small charge is added to cover postage and mailing expenses.) The retail value of such free books distributed among members never approximates one million dollars every month.

GOOD SENSE FOR READING FAMILIES: Why not buy from the Club the monthly Selections you would buy anyway? You will usually pay less for them, and you will share in the Club's Book-Dividend plan. And, not least, you will actually get and read particular new books, which you are anxious not to miss, but which you frequently do fail to read—through oversight or procrastination.

...come into your home with a STEINWAY

THE CLASSIC HEPPLEWHITE—A Steinway Vertical is the only small piano that has beauty of style, economy of space and the full golden tone of the Steinway. It can be delivered by your Steinway dealer for as little down as...$1575.

Most of the world's great artists use the Steinway. A typical example is Eugene List, shown at right, and outstanding musicians like Badura-Skoda, Casadesus, Curzon, Elman, Gulda, Myra Hess, Horowitz, Menuhin, Steinberg, Stokowski, Vromsky and Babin...also nearly all of the nation's leading orchestras, radio and television stations.

Our booklet, "How to Choose Your Piano," will be sent free if you write Steinway & Sons, Steinway Hall, 109 West 57th Street, New York.

Children learn naturally—on their Steinway—that life's deepest rewards are not inherited or bought, but worked for and won. Young years aren't wasted years, with the Steinway as their friend. They find companionship in music. Lessons on the Steinway teach lessons in living: that maturing takes doing; that strength is in giving. The Steinway, in this role, lifts a family above the push-button ease of the machine age, every day revealing the joy in creating, the fun of achieving. Depreciating so little over the years, the Steinway is an investment in life's inner values, needed in the home as never before.

Now you may have either of these $8 Gift Boxes Free

[each containing three beautiful, beautiful children's classics—for you to give some Lucky Young Person]

—if you obtain a Trial Membership in The Heritage Club & get beautiful books like these for yourself:

Yes, you may NOW—and for a period of five months—TRY OUT this successful cooperative plan by which you obtain a unique collection of the world's classics, especially illustrated by the world's greatest artists, planned by the leading book designers, and well printed on fine papers—for the same price as ordinary rental library fiction...

AND RECEIVE ONE OF THESE $8 GIFT BOXES FREE!

NEVER fear, there is a method in this seeming madness! There is a reason behind what may seem to some an unreasonably generous offer. This is it:

Grown-ups buy more books to give to children than they buy for themselves. That's a simple statistical fact and not only more books, but many times more.

Therefore, since there must be one Lucky Young Person to whom you would like to give some books, the directors of The Heritage Club have decided to turn over to you a wonderfully handsome Gift Box of three distinguished and beautiful books which you can use for just that purpose—because we hope the unselfish action will spur you and, if you have read this far, we do mean you! Into obtaining a Trial Membership in this Club for yourself.

You can't always do this! The membership roll of The Heritage Club is not always open to new members. When that does happen, as now, the opportunity is one you should not neglect. For you are invited to accept a Trial Membership in The Heritage Club, which will cover a period of just five months.

The members of The Heritage Club regularly come into possession of those "classics which are our heritage from the past, in editions which will be the heritage of the future." They come into possession of books beautifully illustrated and beautifully designed, printed on papers chemically tested to assure a life of at least two centuries, well bound and boxed.

You may find this next statement hard to believe; but nevertheless it is true, and it seems a principal reason for the continuing success of this cooperative plan: the members obtain these books for the same price that they are called upon to pay for ordinary rental library books!

If you try this system, you will in the coming five months receive five books, at a cost of only $3.95 each—or only $1.85 each if you pay for the books in advance! Then, when the members receive the Prospectus for the next annual Series, that Prospectus will go to you; and you can decide, after you have had five of the books, whether you want to continue.

DURING your Trial Membership, you will receive The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin, in his own original version, cleverly illustrated by William Sharp; and Jane Eyre, with actual lithographs in color by Barnett Freedman; and Caesar's The Gallic Wars, in a new "first person" translation and with engravings by the Italian artist Bruno Bramanti; and L'Allegro and II Penseroso by John Milton, the two poems in one volume designed dos-a-dos by Bruce Rogers; and Mary Shelley's Frankenstein...

Or, if for any reason you do not want to have one of these titles, you are permitted to make substitutions from a list of several dozen Heritage books-in-print!

This Trial Membership is offered to you now because the directors of The Heritage Club confidently believe that you will find these books rich treasures for your home. Five of them, and this is the opinion of the directors, will make you want to remain in the Club. However, to make your desire for this Trial Membership completely irresistible, we offer to present you with either of the two Gift Boxes pictured above: each containing three of the beautiful, beautiful Heritage books intended for children, each in a handsome Gift Box selling at retail for $8.

NEVER in the history of book publishing has a greater bargain than this been offered to wise buyers of books. The offer of a Trial Membership gives you the opportunity to put this statement to the test. Please fill out the coupon printed herewith and mail it to The Heritage Club promptly.

Reservation Coupon

To The Heritage Club, 595 Madison Avenue, New York 22:

Please send me a copy of the Prospectus in which are described The Heritage Club's cooperative system of distribution, and the books to be distributed to the Trial Members during the coming five months, and the contents of the two $8 Gift Boxes. I understand that you will in the meantime reserve a Trial Membership, awaiting my application.

YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN A CONCRETE HOUSE

Whatever size or style house you build or buy you'll get more for your money with concrete foundations and floors, concrete masonry walls and a firesafe roof. Such an investment gives you:

MORE BEAUTY. Concrete masonry is available in many textures. It can be laid up in an almost unlimited variety of distinctive patterns and finished, inside and out, in any of a wide choice of attractive colors with durable portland cement paint.

MORE COMFORT. A properly insulated concrete house is comfortable the year around even in severe climates. It is warm and cozy in winter, delightfully cool in summer, snug and dry in all seasons.

MORE PROTECTION. A concrete house gives your family and cherished possessions lifelong protection against the forces that destroy less durable materials. Concrete stands staunch against storms, decay, termites, vermin and fire. Concrete can't burn! With a properly designed basement and a concrete first floor you'll have a safe refuge from tornadoes, hurricanes and atomic blasts!

MORE ECONOMY. Yes, you get more for your money in a concrete house. Its first cost is moderate, it requires less upkeep and fewer repairs and lasts a lifetime. Result: low-annual-cost shelter. Write for a free illustrated booklet on attractive, long-lasting concrete houses. It is distributed only in the United States and Canada.

PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION
Dept. A2-20, 33 West Grand Avenue, Chicago 10, Illinois
A national organization to improve and extend the uses of portland cement and concrete through scientific research and engineering field work.

HOW TO GET A SAFE CONCRETE HOUSE

...and what will it cost?

Phone or call on your local concrete masonry manufacturer for the names of architects, builders and lending agencies experienced in concrete house design, construction and financing. Have the architect of your choice show you how your house—in any size or style or design—can be built economically with concrete foundations, walls and floors and a firesafe roof. He knows local conditions and needs and can tell you about costs.

Concrete masonry provides maximum protection against the attack of fire, decay and blasts.

TO HELP YOU UNDERSTAND MUSIC BETTER AND ENJOY IT MORE

A NEW IDEA OF THE BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB

ALL TOO FREQUENTLY, most of us are aware, we do not listen to good music with due understanding and appreciation. Our minds wander, and we realize afterward that we have missed most of the beauties of the work. There is no doubt about the reason: we are not primed about what to listen for. Music-Appreciation Records meet this need—for a fuller understanding of music—better than any means ever devised. They do it, sensibly, by auditory demonstration.

YOU HEAR MUSIC AS THE GREAT CONDUCTORS HEAR IT... On the podium they have in mind at every moment the various themes of the work, their interplay and development, and the main architectural features of the composition. This combined aesthetic and intellectual pleasure is what every music-lover can now acquire through Music-Appreciation Records. After hearing several of these records, all the music you listen to is transformed, because you learn in general what to listen for. This enjoyable form of self-education can be as thorough as the Music-Appreciation courses given in any university.

YOU SUBSCRIBE BUT TAKE ONLY THE RECORDS YOU WANT... A new Music-Appreciation Record will be issued—for subscribers only—every month. Ultimately all the great masterpieces of music will be included. The announcement about each forthcoming record will be written by Deems Taylor. After reading this descriptive essay you may take the record or not, as you decide at the time. You are not obligated as a subscriber to take any specified number of records. And, of course, you may stop the subscription at your pleasure—at any time!

TWO TYPES OF RECORDS AT A RELATIVELY LOW COST... All Music-Appreciation Records will be high-fidelity, long-playing records of the highest quality—33 1/3 R.P.M. on Vinylite. They will be of two kinds: first, a so-called Standard Record—a twelve-inch disc—which will present the performance on one side, the analysis on the other. This will be sold at $3.60, to subscribers only. The other will be an Analysis-Only Record—a ten-inch disc—priced at $2.40. The latter will be made available each month for any subscriber who may already have a satisfactory long-playing record of the work being presented. (A small charge will be added to the prices above to cover postage and handling.)

TRY A ONE-MONTH SUBSCRIPTION—NO OBLIGATION TO CONTINUE... Why not make a simple trial, to see if these records are as pleasurable and as enlightening as you may anticipate? The first record, Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, will be sent to you at once—at no charge. You may end the subscription immediately after hearing this record—and keep it with our compliments—or you may cancel any time thereafter.

A NEW HIGH-FIDELITY RECORDING BY THE LONDON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

As a demonstration WILL YOU ACCEPT WITHOUT CHARGE

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony

A NEW HIGH-FIDELITY RECORDING BY THE LONDON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Norman Del Mar, Conductor

Analysis by Thomas Scherman

YOU HAVE HEARD this great work countless times—what have you heard in it? And what may you have failed to hear? This demonstration will show you what you may have been missing in listening to great music.

ON ONE SIDE there is a full performance of a great musical work, just as on the ordinary records you buy. The records will feature orchestras and soloists of recognized distinction in this country and abroad. You listen to the performance first, or afterward, as you desire, and then...

ON THE OTHER SIDE is an illuminating analysis of the music, with the various themes and other main features of the work played separately with running explanatory comment, so that you can learn what to listen for in order to appreciate the work fully.

PLEASE RETURN ONLY IF YOU HAVE A RECORD PLAYER WHICH CAN PLAY 33 1/3 R.P.M. LONG-PLAYING RECORDS

345 Hudson Street, New York 14, N. Y.

Please send me as once the first Music-Appreciation Record, Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, without charge, and enter my name in a Trial Subscription to Music-Appreciation Records, under the conditions stated above. It is understood that, as a subscriber, I am not obligated to buy any specified number of records, but may take only those I want. Also, I may cancel this subscription after hearing the first record, or any time thereafter at my pleasure, but the introductory record is free in any case.

Mexico is South

Another world in the New World, part Spain, part ancient Indian, thrilling in its difference

Mexico is like an intricate, old and valuable rug that is constantly being mended and renewed. It is a combination of old Spain and older Indian civilizations: Aztec, Zapotec, Toltec and Mayan. It is a mélange of sun god and Saviour, pagan pyramids and modern engineering, neon-lighted cafés and cathedrals of silver. Behind all this lies its true spirit: the gallantry, the formal but friendly social life, the good-humored look in the eye, the ancient customs, the multiple beauty of the people and the land and a happy, sun-kissed way of life. In Mexico there are wild lilies in the hills, parrots in the jungles, pearls in the sea. And the market place is still the hub of life.

All roads lead to Mexico City, which natives refer to simply as “Mexico”, and from there you can follow the compass and your whim into countless worlds. In Mexico City itself you will find new skyscrapers pushing upward like glass volcanos. The National Palace has frescoes by Diego Rivera; the Palace of Fine Arts is the place for frescoes by Orozco, Siqueiros, Rivera and, lately, Tamayo. It also contains a collection of Mexican paintings and a theatre with an enormous curtain of glass made by Tiffany. Make several visits to the National Museum of Anthropology which covers all the cultures of pre-Columbian Mexico, and exhibits treasure after treasure. One: the great Calendar Stone of the Aztecs. The Cathedral on the zócalo, the great square with its surge of traffic, is the oldest on this continent. Drive along the wide Paseo de la Reforma to the forest park of Chapultepec with its zoo and lake, its band concerts and shady walks. There is a castle on a high hill built by the luckless Emperor Maximilian from which you can gaze down upon the city from a lovely roof garden. Bullfights take place at four in the afternoon on Sundays and holidays, November to March. Take a canoe through the press of floating gardens at Xochimilco, all that's left of the Venice-like Aztec city of Tenochtitlan on which Mexico City was built. Sanborn’s is one of those famous restaurant-meeting places (like Harry’s Bar in Venice or the Ritz Bar in Paris) where you will no doubt meet somebody from home and where Mexicans delightedly sip ice cream sodas while visitors taste something local. Without leaving the premises you can buy fine silver and tinwork, baskets or cloth brought from all over the country. Or you can pick up a copy of the air edition of The New York Times if you can’t bear not to know what’s going on back home.

Mexicans take their main meal between one and four, and dine lightly around nine. So will you. Eat tamales of course and mole de guajolote, turkey in a rich sauce; enchiladas, chicken or meat rolled in tortillas; Indian chile; tostadas, fried tortillas with chicken, beans and lettuce. Frijoles (beans) crop up everywhere. Try native pineapple, pomegranates, guavas, limes, bananas (wonderful fried), avocados, and mangoes. Try papaya and fresh figs. (Eat only peeled fruit and cooked vegetables.)

Take a bus or drive out of the capital to the unforgettable pyramids of the Sun and Moon at San Juan Teotihuacán. And let no one dissuade you from climbing one or both of them. At the top (especially if you are lucky enough to be the only ones) you can see for miles and miles and a strange silence surrounds you. Far off a train shrugs off silent smoke. Below, children play ball as though in a silent movie. Butterflies flit about your head. On the way you can stop at La Villa de Guadalupe, the famous shrine of the Virgin.

A few miles from the city the Jardines de Pedregal bloom amid lava, and the thrilling new University City covers a huge area with ceramic murals, walls of glass, pools, checkerboard plazas of grass and stone and a stadium as surprising and graceful as a model of a mathematical equation.

Cuernavaca is 46 miles away and a thriving resort favored through time by the Aztecs, Cortés, Maximilian and more recently American tycoons. Not much to see or do, but the Municipal Palace has murals by Rivera and the cathedral, Borda Gardens and Cortés’ former residence, Posada la Casona, are worth seeing. A perfect place for a real rest.

Taxco, another 50 or so miles, is familiar to anyone who has ever sat through a home movie or visited a local watercolor exhibition or thumbed through a fellow traveler’s photograph album. A town like an Italian hill town, it eases down a lovely mountainside: cobbled streets, houses built like stairs with balconies overhanging views. Chief attractions: the superb rose church of Santa Prisca, the silver and tinware, the delicious, mixed smell of wood smoke, aromatic trees and tropical fruits.

Two hundred and eighty-two miles from Mexico City (an hour by air), Acapulco suns on an oval bay surrounded by mountains. (Cont'd on page 15)
Arizona Sunshine

Arizona is a land of extraordinary scenic contrast; of brilliant sunshine; invigorating climate; of elevations varying from well over 12,600 feet in the pine-clad mountain areas in the northern part, to its lowest point of 100 feet in the vast saguaro-studded desert in the southern part of the State.

The “between-season” vacationist, seeking a spot to relax contentedly under a warm sun, will find no other land offers a more delightful climate (February, usually at a comfortable 72.5 degrees), nor more interesting things to see and do, or a more varied array of accommodations than in southern Arizona.

For the outdoor enthusiast, a pleasant form of holiday would be two weeks at a dude ranch, where there is unsurpassed riding over desert trails and mountain paths. The “housekeeping” at dude ranches is usually beautifully managed—hearth fires at eight in your cabin, cold drinks promptly at five—and the meals don't have to be planned. At your service are “good horses”.

There is swimming in beautifully tilled outdoor pools; golf on sporty all-green 18-hole courses. Polo, tennis, archery and badminton are other sports actively pursued. Should skiing be your pleasure, the slopes of the San Francisco Peaks will give you the best of thrills of this popular sport.

There is the Grand Canyon, nature’s supreme spectacle in scenic beauty and silent grandeur ... a fabulous sight that is a “must” for every visitor to Arizona. Also don’t miss a trip to the Painted Desert (aside from the extraordinary colors, there are Indian ruins, fields of lava twisted in fantastic shapes, even such ancient vestiges as “dinosaur tracks”), Hoover Dam and at least one of the Indian Reservations—you'll be in the country of the Hopi and the Navajo.

It is a glorious place, all sea, sky, and hills blooming with villas, hotels and nightclubs ranging from nice to unbelievable. There is warm-water swimming, sunning, shopping, fishing or just loafing.

Puebla, southeast from Mexico City past mountain pines and plains of organ cactus, is an extraordinary colonial city crammed with marvelous architecture. Everywhere you will see tile-faced buildings gleam in the sunshine. This is the first city in New Spain to manufacture Talavera tiles and they have been used lavishly on churches and palaces, towers and fountains. The dome of the great cathedral is bright yellow and green. One of the houses has portraits of local officials depicting their chief faults! Be sure to shop for darning eggs and cigarette boxes carved by hand with great skill from local onyx. Drink delicious Mexican beer in an arcaded café while a xylophone band serenades you. Visit the unpedigreed 16th century Capilla del Rosario in the Church of Santo Domingo with its cascade of plaster ornament covered with mica and polychrome, a mixture of baroque, Churriguereque, Plateresque and Byzantine.

By Puebla you can see the sleeping giants Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl to the west and Malinche to the northeast, Orizaba in the distant east. At Taxcala the Santuario de Ocotlan has a remarkable exterior of intricately carved white plaster and towers with bases of unglazed vermilion tiles. On the road south from Puebla the Church of San Francisco Acatepec looks like an engraved box with its multi-colored, tilted façade.

Further south, Oaxaca (228 miles by car, 1½ hours by plane) is a town suspended in time: a square with a Victorian bandstand, a covered market, houses with blank street-faces and interior gardens. Inside the Church of Santo Domingo, guarded by iron angels in perpetual flight, the ceiling is decorated by a baroque green and gold triumphal arch of the Blessed Virgin with saints peer­ing from between twisting branches, clusters of grapes and leaves of gold. Many buildings are made of lovely green-gray local granite. In the even­ing the townspeople like to walk or drive bright American cars around and around the zócalo to the tune of the talented local band. Market day is a must on any traveler’s list with its crowds of tiny, polite Indians down from the hills in their often-beautiful best. Try a famous native cheese called quesillo. Watch the rather dilapidated but quaint Duraz de la Plumas in the courtyard of an ex-palace. The little museum is superbly installed with relics and handicrafts of the region including some important gold and jade jewelry taken from Tomb Seven on Monte Albán.

Only seven miles away lie the ruins of the ancient and holy city of the Zapotecs, the city of Monte Albán. There are marvelously carved stone dancers in low relief, an observatory and a ball court, and the view of the town below is especially beautiful in the lavender-Lit evening.

4 Crystal Brandy Snifters to Serve Your Hennessy Cognac

Handy for Brandy!
LIVING WITH CHILDREN

Children can make these favors for February parties

Children don't need a special occasion to enjoy a party, but it's always more fun if there happens to be something special to celebrate. February, that month of fun-days, offers good reason for festivities with Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays on the 12th and 22nd respectively, and St. Valentine's Day in between. Why not let the small fry in your family make the most of these popular holidays? The decorations for the parties shown on these pages require only the simplest of materials and the knowledge to read easy-to-follow directions, but their effect is enchanting. They were designed by the Dennison Manufacturing Company to dress up a party of 10 to 12 for under a dollar.

Valentine parties need pretty trimmings

February the fourteenth is a holiday familiar to all of us: that special day which honors Saint Valentine, the patron saint of lovers. America in the mid-eighteenth century did not celebrate this occasion by having parties as we do today. At that time, a Valentine was practically a proposal of marriage, made by hand with great care, exquisite in detail, the verse composed by the sender, and usually delivered by hand to the lady or gentleman of one's choice. Today, with so many colorful cards available, people do not go to such pains to create unusual and original valentines, but we can still keep our hand in by making the trimmings for a party. The gay appointments shown here will inspire young people to share in party preparations, and they're simple and fun to make.

The place card favor above, for example, needs only a 4" heart cutout and cupid cutout (you buy these already cut to shape), lace paper doily, nut cup and white crepe paper to cover, and a small white card. For the double purpose mailbox at right (this also serves as a table centerpiece) you'll need a shoebox, Dennison white and light blue crepe paper to cover, a 4" heart cutout, small heart seals, lace paper doilies and gold dots. To announce the party, what could be more brilliant than a pretty invitation to set a party mood?

The invitation below (showing inside as well as out) is made with red construction paper, 5" lace paper doily and Dennison heart seals, with plain white paper and a cupid cutout for the inside. (You'll want to use white ink on the red paper, red ink for the inside where the time, place and date will go.) House & Garden will tell you how to make these things. See the bottom of page 43 for the address—and, have a good party, everyone!

An amusing pair: rooster and hen cream and sugar bowl. Made of highly glazed ceramic; white background with black polka-dots. Wattles and comb are bright red. The nursery set will love this happy little set. Each is 3" x 4½". $1 postpaid the pair. Order from Miles Kimball, Dept. HG., 100 Bond St., Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

Antique key to an English wine cellar was the model for this handsome reproduction. A twentieth century improvement: it’s a corkscrew, too. Made of solid cast brass, it is ornamented with repoussé grapes. Note the grape design brass hook to hang it on! 7½". $3.50 ppd. From Jeredth Manor, Box 130, Nyack, N. Y.

French bisque reproduction of a pair of antique candlesticks is shown here. Exquisitely decorated with cherubs, with leaves and berries, they are the perfect gift to give to the woman who has a traditional room. Chalk white, each stick is 8" high. $9.95 ppd. the pair. Jenifer House, New Marlboro, Great Barrington, Mass.
Mobile shade. You will love this lamp! Tripod base is made of black finished metal with rubber tips; shade is white parchment decorated with colorful fish. Shade balances on a spindle and rotates from the heat of the light. 16" high. $6.45. Add 75c east, $1 west of Miss. Twining & Buck, Salisbury, Connecticut.

Bijou for a lovely room: these reproductions of an antique French set. The urn and tray are made of opaline-like glass. The frames and engaging cupids are made of metal finished in antique gold or silver. Use them for cigarettes and ashes. $3.50 each; $6.75 the set. Ppd. Lee Wynne. 5446 Diamond Street, Philadelphia.

The grille decoration makes this wall cabinet distinguished. It is made of black finished wrought iron set into a mellow pine frame. Note the five drawers! These are lined with sturdy plastic which makes them suitable to use for growing plants. 20" x 9" x 3". $9.95 postpaid. From Jeff Elliot, HG., Statesville, N. C.

Exquisite jars faithfully reproduced from those antique jewels: drug store apothecary jars. We show two of a series of five. Background is white, decorations are multi-color, trim is gold. About 10 1/2" high x 4 1/2" in diameter. One or a pair make fine lamp bases. $10 for one. Ppd. Albin, 1401 West 8th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Talented Tammi Keefe has done it again! Designed a fresh and delightful frothily delicious Ice Cream Social Cloth just to set off your round table! "CLAY TILE...AN IDEAL MEDIUM FOR MODERN DESIGN...
OFFERS LASTING BEAUTY, EASY CARE"

Here, in clay tiles of contrasting grays and black, is architect Pietro Belluschi’s exciting, practical conception of a modern bath. Imagine how your bath could look with a dash of modern design—and clay tile!

The spacious clay-tiled countertop, which doubles as a vanity, can be easily adapted for dual sinks to ease “traffic congestion.” And through years of wear and tear, clay tile will remain bright and beautiful with minimum effort.

In a luxurious clay tile tub-plunge like this one, bathing becomes a delightful event... with towels within easy reach in the tiled storage space.

Picture these same lustrous expanses of glazed wall tile in your bath and stall shower area... the most enduringly beautiful of all wall surfaces—and the most practical. Remember, too, that clay tile floors come clean with a touch of a damp mop.

IMPORTANT: When building or remodeling, ask your tile contractor about the new adhesive method for installing clay tile. It may save you money. Be sure to see the wide range of sparkling clay tile colors, too!

Get clay tile remodeling and new construction ideas from colorful, new brochure “Ideas Unlimited,” plus a folder on ideas used in the Belluschi bath. Both for 10c. Write to Tile Council of America, Dept. HG-4, Room 3401, 10 East 40th Street, New York, N.Y. or Dept. HG-4, Room 433, 727 W. Seventh St., Los Angeles, Calif.
A KITCHEN BY St. Charles
CUSTOM-BUILT OF STEEL

bright with ideas... for a lady like you

This delightful kitchen, blending beauty and planned utility, suggests what true St. Charles custom-building of steel could do, to interpret your ideas of what your own kitchen should be.

Its bright personality is expressed in warm pink, aqua, and rich brown birchwood, chosen from 15 decorator colors and wood-fronts in two finishes offered by St. Charles. Its built-in convenience is quickly apparent in the refrigerator at the right, in the waist-high oven, in the counter top cooking units and in the sit-down sink with its shallow bowl allowing knee space. Additional usefulness can be found in the abundance of unseen convenience accessories hidden behind quiet doors and silent steel drawers. Its individual design is highlighted by the practical pass-through, from range-top to buffet beyond... and by the beautifully lighted, glass enclosed mid-way compartment.

Perhaps you have a more formal idea, a different color thought, a smaller room... or a larger one. Best possible reasons for seeing your St. Charles Dealer, today. Talk over your own ideas with this trained kitchen-planning specialist. And get his valuable advice, too, in financing your lifetime investment in a fine St. Charles Kitchen. He's listed in the Yellow Pages of your phone book.

Enjoy bathrooms your friends will envy with AllianceWare

- For bathrooms of rich distinctiveness and beauty for years ahead—bathrooms your friends are sure to envy—choose AllianceWare porcelain-on-steel bathtubs and lavatories.

Besides the eye-appealing beauty of line and color of AllianceWare, you'll ever appreciate the safety and convenience features built into these famous fixtures. Every AllianceWare tub has a "grab rail" construction—exclusive with AllianceWare—along the outer rim to make entering and leaving the bath easier and safer. The broad, flat bottom provides a firm footing when showering. Splash as much as you wish—an integral wall guard flange keeps water from seeping between wall and tub. A wide seating rim on all AllianceWare models is another feature designed for bathing convenience. The AllianceWare patented method of installation will keep your tub forever from settling at the floor line or separating from the wall line.

Your choice of color can be blue, green, grey, tan, pink or glistening, gleaming white—to fit any plan of decoration. The porcelain-on-steel finish is lifetime too, yet as easy to clean as a china dish.

But with all its advantages and beauty AllianceWare is not as expensive as you might think. Formed steel construction means lighter weight and a saving of unnecessary metal. AllianceWare in colors is only 10% more than white. So even the most modest building budget can include AllianceWare bathroom fixtures. Yet AllianceWare will beautify the most pretentious home with utmost charm. Tell your architect, builder, or plumbing contractor you prefer AllianceWare.

Beautifully pre-finished, easy-to-install wood paneling for as little as $60*

Weldwood Plankweld—a wonderful new kind of real wood paneling—goes up quicker than you can say “Do it yourself!” Comes in 6 fine woods—all guaranteed for the life of your home!

Just imagine your fireplace wall, or a corner of your dining room, recreation room, bedroom—or maybe your kitchen—paneled in lovely natural wood. The warm, rich texture of wood makes a superb background... wood walls help you blend different periods of furniture, and unusual colors and materials... fine wood adds that touch of visual excitement so sought after by professional decorators and designers.

And Plankweld’s so easy to put up, you’ll be amazed. Each panel is edge-grooved; starting in a corner, you put up the first panel against the wall and slip a special metal clip into the groove; the clip is nailed directly to your old wall (no furring strips, no nailing through the panel itself). Then you fit the next panel into the groove of the first (concealing the nails and clips) and so on. What could be simpler!

No staining—no waxing! Plankweld is already pre-finished by skilled craftsmen who blend and apply finishes with the expert knowledge that only the years can bring.

Guaranteed for life. Plankweld—like all Weldwood wood paneling—is unconditionally guaranteed for the life of the building in which it is installed.

Start this Saturday: give your home a decorative “new look” in a few hours. Do a wall in beautiful Plankweld—sit back and wait for the compliments!

Send today for free folder that shows 5 Plankweld rooms and gives installation details. Write to United States Plywood Corp., Box 61, Dept. HG-2-5, New York 46, N.Y.

See this birch Plankweld and the complete Weldwood line, including pre-finished and unfinished hardwoods, as well as Douglas Fir, at any of the 73 United States Plywood or U. S.-Mengel Plywoods showrooms in principal cities.

*Prices shown are to panel an approximately 8' x 12' wall. Plankweld package costs complete with clips and ten 16 1/4" wide x 8' high panels.
Is it possible for Fostoria's "Wedding Ring" to last as long as yours?

O'course. Like your finger, this lovely stemware is ringed with a precious metal (in this case platinum) which lasts approximately forever. Being fused right in, it's there for the life of the crystal. With care, you could well have the satisfaction of handing down your Fostoria to your daughter. But maybe talk of heirlooms-to-be is less important than the beauty of Wedding Ring right now. This is one of Fostoria's finest handblown crystal patterns. It's excellent with platinum-decorated china, and a host of other designs, of course. (You be the judge!) The hint-sized place setting shown above is $13.75.

In open stock because it's made by the Fostoria Glass Company in Moundsville, West Virginia. *Slightly higher in the West.

ENTERTAINING: Corkscrew

Mid-winter parties draw their spirits from champagne

No matter how often you've heard it, the sound of a popping cork does do something to charge the atmosphere around it. To a room-full of people, its music is far-reaching and persuasive: with a twosome, it can mean a sentimental moment, an anniversary, a toast to the future. The British frequently serve champagne throughout the entire meal, from soup to nuts, with no interference of other wines. Champagne makes the most glamorous of all cocktails and the irreproachable base for a party punch. It has inspired poets such as Byron, who wrote about "Champagne, with foaming whirls As white as Cleopatra's pearls."

Madame de Pompadour notes that "It is the only wine a woman who is careful of her beauty can drink. It does not turn your face scarlet. It makes you glow without an ugly flush. You can drink it and still be beautiful." In a more reflective mood, Talleyrand calls it "The civilizing wine par excellence."

It is curious to think that this symbol of gaiety derives from the residue of a long-dead prehistoric sea. The Champagne district, smallest of the wine-producing areas in France, not only sits on but is actually embedded in a chalk formation which is of interest to more than geologists. Without this calcareous root-base, without the soft underlying white rock which has made it possible to burrow some 120 miles of cellars, French champagne would be just another sparkling wine such as is made in South Africa, Czechoslovakia, or Australia. The champagne grapes, however, respond to these chemical conditions by yielding a particularly lively white wine; and the cellars with their ideal average 50-degree temperature make the perfect place for the three-to-five-year processes that build the bubbles in.

The discovery of champagne is attributed to a diligent monk called Dom Perignon, author of the apocryphal, quotable "Come quickly, I'm drinking stars" line. In any case, he was the first one to control the brew's exuberance by means of a tight cork instead of the existing top plug dugged in oil, a step that parallels the addition of the bit to the first horse harter. Dom Perignon was also an expert at blending local grapes, a practice which even today gives each mark and label its special character. That he evolved some process of clearing the resultant brew of sediment is probable. This is the big job connected with the making of champagne, done entirely by hand and requiring two to six months. The corked bottles are placed in a rack, head down at a 60-degree angle. Every day a worker gives each bottle a slight shake and a slight twist to the right. Should you discover white paint on the bottom of your champagne bottle, it is the work of this fellow keeping track of the 12 turns that it takes to get the bottle back into its original position.

In the course of this process, the sediment has settled forward and down against the cork. To get it out clean, the neck of the bottle is plunged in a brine solution that freezes this portion quickly. When the cork is drawn, there comes with it a lump of dirty ice plus a pop from the imprisoned bubbles which clears the brew once and for all.

Now comes another Perignon idea: to step up the second fermentation by the addition of a mixture of sugar syrup, cognac, and old wine. This, plus a new cork and writing against untimely explosion, leads into the ultimate aging which may be from three to 15 years. The dryness or sweetness of the champagne depends on how much of the lipper was originally added. The English, second among the world's buyers, prefer the driest and therefore get 1% per cent of the effervescence sweeter. For the Russian and South American market the dosage is sometimes 10 per cent. The United States, which ranks first as importer to the tune of over two and a quarter million bottles annually, likes semi-dry champagne. France herself, and this includes the tourists, consumes a little over half of the annual production and refuses to commit herself in the sweet-or-dry controversy. Belgium, a big customer for such a small country, is the third foreign consumer. Germany was brought into the picture in the Napoleonic Wars when her soldiers helped themselves to the best vintages and developed a taste which has made the Germans good customers ever since.

This was not the first occasion when wars ruffled the Champagne district. From Attila the Hun through the G.I.'s, the grapes of wrath have harassed it. Following the heavy trench warfare of World War I, nearly half the district was abandoned to potatoes or sheep. In 1940 there was no vintage for obvious reasons. Yet champagne has always held its own. St. Rémy offered a self-replenishing beaker of it to the early Christian Emperor Clovis, a considerable improvement over the Philemon and Baucis legend whose jug merely overflowed with milk. And General Eisenhower accepted The Surrender in the shade of Rheims Cathedral into whose Gothic capitals vine leaves are tenderly etched. To us, champagne means enjoyment of life, or, as Frank Schoonmaker says, "Champagne belongs to the world."

For Washington’s Birthday, a patriotic look

Perhaps George Washington didn’t celebrate his birthday with as much relish as we do today, and he’d no doubt be very amused at the incidents in his life with which we associate his name. Some of these events, however, lend themselves very nicely to party trimmings and decoration. The tree trunk and hatchet, above, for instance, is reminiscent of that ever-so-famous cherry tree legend, and it provides a charming place card and favor.

To make it, all you need is Dennison’s brown crepe paper, a roll of peppermints, red and blue ribbon and white construction paper. (You can even go further to carry out the log theme by having a long chocolate roll for dessert.) The little nut cup, below right, carries a true patriotic spirit with its bold red, white and blue crepe paper decorated with a George Washington seal in gold. You’ll notice, too, that the shape of the cup resembles the officers’ tricorn worn in that historic period.

Other materials needed to make the nut cup are a pipe cleaner for the handle and a paper souffle cup for the nuts. (Of course, if you want to be authentic, you could fill the cups with cherries instead of nuts!)

And, if the party is for very little folk, why not make individual patriotic hats to carry out the theme? You can be sure that every little boy and girl will wear one with pride, singing “Yankee Doodle Dandy” and waving a small American flag. But, as with any party, an invitation dictates the mood. Shown below is an invitation which captures the feeling of “I cannot tell a lie.” A pert cherry tree is the keynote, and to find the information regarding time, place and date of the party, you literally have to chop it down—for this information is hidden behind the green foliage on the tree. To make the invitation, you will need Dennison’s green gummed crepe paper and white lightweight cardboard for the base. The realistic cherries peeping from the tree are made of shiny red signal dots, and to permit the tree being felled, you’ll need wire shanks to stick through the top half of tree so that it is movable to one side. Now you have the basic ingredients for the decorations. Whether you have a masquerade (dressing in costume suitable to the occasion), a children’s party with games for prizes (you could give trading cards of the presidents, or even coins), or merely a small gathering, you’ll find that a few timely trimmings will help to make your party a rollicking success.

For instructions on how to make these party decorations, write to H&G Reader Service, 420 Lexington Ave., N. Y. C.

Healthful ventilation—plus safety with Curtis Silentite Casements

If there are young children in your family, you’ll appreciate the extra protection of Curtis Silentite Casement Windows. Their patented operating mechanism locks them securely in any position. Left partly open, with operating handle removed, they allow safe ventilation.

Silentite casements won’t swing or rattle in the wind. They are easily washed from the inside. They are up to 16% more weather-tight than ordinary casements—and they’re wood for lifelong satisfaction. They come as complete, ready-to-install units—like the many other Silentite styles, including double-hung, awning, convertible and panel windows. What your children can teach you

Most children operate on the theory that things are for people, not people for things. This is a very direct and quite sophisticated point of view. It means that the reason you have a fireplace is to toast your toes and pop corn. It means that floors are expected to withstand muddy boots, that fabrics are supposed to look pretty and be easy to clean (what normal child is going to believe that spilled milk is a catastrophe?), and that home is the best place to bring the gang after school.

In the case of a 10-year-old boy we know, it also means that everything at home should be as functional as a roomette on a train. Why, he asked, couldn’t he have a wash basin that would drop down from the wall next to his bed? This might not make the morning soap-and-water ritual more bearable, but at least it would save him a walk across the hall to the bathroom. HOUSE & GARDEN thinks that parents can profit handsomely by an occasional look at the world through 5-year-old, 10-year-old, or teen-age eyes. As you read this issue, you might try it. Imagine yourself a child again, growing up in a Cleveland suburb (see page 50) or in a California house (see page 54).

Then look at your own way of life and see whether you’d enjoy being a youngster in your household. If the answer is yes, chances are that yours is a happy home and that you rate “E for excellence” with your children.

In this house, youngsters are encouraged to put their talents to creative use

Elliot and Nicolas Osborn, aged 5 and 8, probably inherit their artistic talents from their father, well-known illustrator Robert Osborn, but the fact is that drawing pictures is spontaneous with all children. The Osborn boys are at work on an ambitious project, creating a huge mural on the wall of their playroom—each so intent on his corner as to be unaware of the other. This blackboard wall separates the playroom from the boys’ bedrooms. (The three rooms comprise a separate children’s wing of the Osborns’ home at Salisbury, Connecticut.) The stone floor, used throughout the house, requires little upkeep and is a boon to parents of growing sons. Elliot and Nicolas entertain friends of their own age in their playroom, without up-ending other rooms of the house. When they outgrow it, their parents plan to make it into a sitting room.

Painting can open up a new world for your child

Painting is a hobby that can add to a child's pleasure and increase his understanding of the world around him. The American Junior Red Cross, in an international school art program, encourages this hobby.

For any child, painting is a healthy form of self-expression. It captures his imagination, occupies his energies and helps him to see a world outside himself. As a child paints, his creative interest grows and his confidence develops. It makes little difference whether he seems to be particularly gifted or not. When he learns how to splash different colors and images on paper, he does it for the sheer joy of expressing himself, and the results are bound to be original.

With the encouragement of a teacher, a child will begin to sort out his thoughts and give them form and meaning. Then the most natural thing for him to paint will be the life around him. It may be a village green, a subway entrance, a family picnic, a school bus, a church steeple, a pony in a field. And another child, even in a different country, seeing his picture of school-yard activities, or snowy night on Main Street, U.S.A., may exclaim "We play the same way!" or "It's just like ours!"

Realizing that such paintings can be a powerful invitation to good will, the American Junior Red Cross, with the co-operation of the National Art Education Association, launched an international school art program. Any student in a junior or senior high school enrolled in Junior Red Cross can contribute to this program which circulates through schools around the world. On the opposite page are eight such paintings by American school children. Painted as an assignment in either elementary or junior high school art work, they reflect familiar everyday scenes that can be understood by children of all nations.

Since this program began in 1947, some 35,000 paintings have been sent to 31 countries and the territories of the Pacific. More than 6,000 paintings have come to America from school children in 18 different countries. In 1951, the Japanese JRC sponsored an international show of school art in Tokyo. In the same year 1,500 paintings by children of 36 nations were hung in the Palazzo Venezia in Rome and viewed by 50,000 people.

In all these children's shows, the scenes are different but the spirit of kinship is the same; for all children are fundamentally the same. They play, eat, sleep, dance together, sing, do homework, go to circuses, love parades, do kitchen chores. Some child, painting a local scene of sagging playground equipment, or a street scene in a crowded neighborhood, may even galvanize the Town Fathers to cut through red tape for better playgrounds or cleaner housing developments.

Staff observers, while they draw no conclusions from the children's pictures of (Continued on page 122)

Has your child room to grow in school?

Any parent in a new suburban community who is willing to accept the challenge can take an active part in solving local school problems. Here Norman Cousins of "The Saturday Review" suggests ways and means.

Recently my doctor telephoned to say that his eleven-year-old son had been held up in New York's Central Park at knife point by two teen-agers who stole sixty cents and told him not to inform the police or press or even his parents, because if he did they'd hunt him down and scar him for life.

Several days later at a dinner party in New York, a young editor of a book publishing house announced that he and his wife had just made a big decision.

"When we picked up the papers last night and read about the wave of stabbings and thefts, we decided that we had had about as much of the city as we could stand. Beginning this weekend we are house-hunting in Westchester and Connecticut. Emily and I believe that when you almost have to hire bodyguards to protect your children on the way home from school, or to protect us on a short walk from the corner bus, it's time to leave."

Unlike the book editor, my doctor is strongly established in New York City and would be unable to adjust his practice to the time requirements of commuting. And so his son now travels back and forth from school by cab.

These two incidents are by no means unique. In fact, many hundreds of thousands of parents are becoming increasingly apprehensive about city life. They fear the large city may be a security risk for youngsters. And when they add to this the fact of overcrowding in city schools they naturally turn away from the other advantages of metropolitan life and scout for a place in the suburbs or the country.

I don't want to make it seem as though it is worth one's life to wait for a street car in a large city. The worst thing that could happen is for the people in our metropolitan centers to become panicky about their daily existence. The actual incidence of city crime has not quite reached the point where our big cities have become open battlegrounds for gang warfare. And there is every indication that the police forces are being strengthened to whatever extent is necessary.

But it is true, nonetheless, that each time a newspaper headlines the beating of an innocent person on a city street, the effects can be directly measured in increased telephone calls to real estate brokers in the surrounding areas.

And when you add to this the growing apprehension over The Bomb, especially the stories which make it clear that civilian defense as we have known it until now is obsolete, you have everything you need for the largest migration to the suburbs and countryside in the nation's history.

As a parent all of whose four children have been brought up in the (Continued on page 124)
How well do you understand your child?

If you learn to appraise your child’s real needs, you will find the key to building a happier home and strengthening family ties.

Children need love

Better than all the child psychology books, a deep, unselfish love is inspiration for bringing up children. When all is said and done, nothing, not all the chocolate sodas nor the biggest playroom in the world, can take the place of it. Spending time with your child, smiling often, using soft words are all manifestations of your love. If a child feels that you love him and that you want him to be the kind of person other people will like, he will respond more readily when you try to teach him the importance of good habits and the Golden Rule. It is love that reinforces family ties, gives meaning to life, in short makes the world go round.

Children need playmates

The urge to flock together is instinctive with children. So if you want your home to be the place your children would rather be than anywhere else, you have to be prepared to adopt their friends. Since children are “living arrows,” darting in and out constantly, your house must be braced for wear and tear. This doesn’t mean that you must abandon all hope of good decoration. Just plan specific traffic areas that can take punishment. For instance, if possible give your children a separate entrance to the house through a mud room, where they can step out of their boots and wash up on their way indoors. If you have a large family, individual lockers for their coats and hats are an ideal solution. If the front door is the entrance that you and your children both must use, you’ll save work for yourself by using either hard-surface tile or hard-twist carpeting that doesn’t show dirt.

Children need play space

Ideally (and the best is none too good for your children), they should have ample play space both indoors and outdoors. Since children never seem to light anywhere very long, it’s important to have their play areas within easy reach of each other. The ideal solution is a light and airy playroom, or “clear room” as it is often called today, that opens directly outdoors. If it is well-planned, it will have storage space for toys, wall-size bulletin boards and blackboards to mark up, floor space for your children to run around in. Consider what an improvement this is over the dim, drafty attic and basement in so many houses of the past. To encourage outdoor exercise, more and more families are creating paved play yards with room for jungle-gyms and bicycles, even if it means giving up a rose bush for each additional square foot of play space. If you can also include a sheltered outdoor area in your plans, your children will have a place to escape the hot sun or a sudden shower without actually having to go indoors or lose even a minute’s precious play time.
Children are always hungry

In most households, it's routine to have fruit, cookies and milk on hand for snacks after school and before bed. If you provide a self-service bar in your kitchen, with refrigerator and pantry space within reach of your child, he will be able to help himself without making continual demands on your time. Moreover, since you probably do much of your own housework, you'll find it's easier to prepare, serve and clean up breakfast and lunch at a snack bar in the kitchen than to set a table in the dining room 21 times a week.

Children need supervision

Keeping track of children is apt to be a full-time job, but you can save yourself many a step if you set up a "control tower" in your home. The kitchen is the most likely spot. Since it has become the hub of the house, often combined with laundry, telephone-planning desk and dining area, chances are you spend a good deal of your time there during the hours the children are at play. A pass-through from kitchen to play area and a window overlooking the yard are wise ideas. Furthermore, little children like to be near their mothers and activity.

Children should study

Even a six-year-old child can read, so a desk and study space are one of your first concerns in planning a room for a growing child. One way to encourage a school child to do his homework cheerfully is to give him a special place for studying in his own bedroom. You can use either built-ins or unpainted units to organize bookshelves, cabinets for his collections, and desk space. The room should be colorful and well lighted. If you have a large family it's essential for each child to have a private spot of his own where he can think for himself.

Children need naps

Like adults, a child has to have quiet and privacy occasionally, so why not make his bedroom his own private world? Instead of giving him a bedroom that must be constantly tidied up, plan a good, practical room to grow in. All that a small child really needs in the way of furnishings is a bed low enough for him to sit on, a chair, stool, storage space for books, toys and clothes. As he grows older and develops special interests, you may want to let him choose the colors and decorations for the room. It should reflect his own interests and serve as a treasure house for his possessions.

Children love hobbies

Not only are they great collectors of everything from stamps to stray cats, they also have active interests that you can help to develop. A collection of toy soldiers may lead to an interest in history, post card pictures of great paintings to an interest in art. One way you can show you also are interested in your child's hobbies is to give him a place in his room to display his collection and books. You can help cultivate a child’s interest in gardening by giving him a little plot of his own. Father and son might have a workshop. Mother and daughter might cook together. A hobby can open up a whole new world of interests.

Children are noisy

Every child needs a place where noise is permitted, just as he needs a room of his own where quiet is available. Sound effects are part of play. And if you are to preserve your own nerves, you'll want to take advantage of the many durable new materials that will help to blot up noise in your home. There are handsome acoustical materials for the ceiling and resilient vinyl or rubber tile for the floor to help make a playroom as soundproof as possible. Also, if the indoor playroom is located near the outdoor play area it will save traipsing in and out of the rest of the house. Everything that makes it easy for children and parents to live smoothly together is good insurance for a happy home life.
Houses planned for the fun of growing up

Growing up is the main business of children. It is one which requires a fairly special environment composed of equal parts love, understanding and places to stow juvenile junk. To provide this kind of environment for your children and yourself, study the two houses shown on these eight pages. They are wonderful houses for parents, for children, for growing up.

In gently rolling country just outside Cleveland, Ohio, is a tiny community literally made to order for a happy childhood. It was started several years ago by architect Robert A. Little, who wanted to design modern houses for families with children of the old-fashioned, blue-jean-wearing variety. This he has accomplished, with flourishing results. Spread out over 30 acres of land live six families who have between them 19 children and a lively assortment of dogs, ducks, ponies, pigeons and bottle-fed sheep. Does this mean barnyard chaos? Harassed parents? It does not. On the contrary, life is fun for parents, children and pets. One reason is that the houses were designed to look handsome and live well without benefit of the constant parental “No!” Take, for example, the Charles Hickox family (five children, from 16 months to 10 years old), whose house is shown here. The children’s bedrooms and big playroom are on one side of the house; on the other side is the parents’ bedroom and living-dining room which open to a flagstone terrace. To see how it works (note the ingenious built-ins), and why it is such a wonderful house for both generations, study plans and pictures.
Big playroom is the center of the children's side of the house

One reason why this is a happy house for both parents and children is that the children have their own playroom, designed to take the most uninhibited rough-and-tumble play. It has a pass-through to the kitchen, a two-way fireplace, storage cabinets for toys, a big table for games and snacks; adjoins children's bedrooms, has its own outside entrance.

Children have their own front door

The Hickox children can ride their tricycles right up to their own front door, which is next to the main front entrance. Children's door opens into the mud room.

Why the children enjoy their home:

- The playroom is a fine gathering spot, has a fireplace, a pass-through to kitchen
- Their own rooms are strictly private
- They have their own entrance and outside play area, plus a shallow pool on the main terrace
- The whole house was planned to cut down on the number of parental don'ts!
Boys have individual bedrooms

GROWING UP IS FUN AT THE HICKOX HOUSE

Children's side of the Hickox house is a wonderful place for growing up. Entrance is through the mud room, top left, where boots, rubber, bats, balls are stowed away in lockers. The big playroom has a two way fireplace, top center, in frequent use for toasting marshmallows. Each child has his own private bedroom, top right, small and compact but with plenty of storage space for juvenile treasures. Accordion doors slide back to open these rooms to the playroom. The playroom, left center, never lacks for children, both the Hickox and the neighbors. Its strategic location, at the center of the house next to the kitchen, has many advantages: children do not feel isolated; whoever is in the kitchen can keep an eye on them; meals and snacks can be served quickly and easily via the pass-through doors. Detail: lower third of each door is a hardwood panel almost completely impervious to dents and scratches. Kitchen-laundry, bottom far left, has latest and most efficient equipment, besides a pleasant, homely look. Example: shining copper pots and pans in full view. It is in the center of the house with a pass-through to the playroom on one side, and to the living-dining room on opposite side. Note that both the kitchen and the playroom are bright and flooded with even light, from skylight in ceiling.
Parents' side of the house is for quiet family pursuits, for books, music, conversation, adult parties. The living room is 34' long, with a copper-hooded island fireplace, top right, and concrete bench as divider between living-dining and study areas. Beside kitchen pass-through is built-in storage cabinet, with shallow drawers for linens. Low bookcases on rollers can be pulled out, for extra seating space when there are large parties.

Music-study end of this room has a pegboard music wall that houses radio and record player. (The television set is in the parents' bedroom, can be viewed by the children only at stipulated times.) In ceiling framework are spotlights and rods for hanging plant containers. One wall is floor-to-ceiling glass, opens to flagstone terrace. Beige carpeting is cut out around fireplace and study where flooring is flagstone (see plan below).

Why the parents enjoy their home:

- The living-dining room can be reserved for quiet family pursuits, and for adult parties
- The master bedroom is secluded
- The playroom is the heart of the house; there children are free and happy yet easily supervised
- The whole house was planned for quick, easy upkeep, so there is plenty of time for family fun
2. House planned for hobbies and family fun

In their own house or swimming pool, on a knoll in the Hollywood Hills, is where the Maynard Woodard family would rather be than any place else. Reason: the house was planned to match the interests of Mr. and Mrs. Woodard, 15-year-old Maynard Jr., and 13-year-old Tommy, all of whom have hobbies and work at them. The playroom is the boys' special province and headquarters for family life. It is conveniently located between the workshop (where father and sons always have several projects underway) and the kitchen (from which frequent snacks are served via a pass-through). In the center of the house, with a south window-wall which opens to the terrace and pool, is the living-dining room. It is big and comfortable, has a fieldstone fireplace. Outdoors, a basketball-badminton court is popular with the boys; so is the concrete-paved terrace.
Why the Woodards enjoy their home:

- It has all kinds of hobby and sports facilities: swimming pool, darkroom, workshop, badminton court
- It has a playroom for music, TV
- It is built of natural woods and fieldstone, materials that wear well, are easy to maintain and look handsome
- It is zoned three ways: bedrooms, a big center living room, and a playroom between shop and kitchen
- It allows for the boys' interests, from hi-fi tinkering to collecting fossils

Playroom is the boys' special province, and headquarters for family life

Pass-through between kitchen and playroom is for snacks

Kitchen has window-wall above built-in cabinets

If you study the floor plan opposite, you will see one reason why the playroom is the most-used room in the Woodards' house, i.e., its strategic location between workshop and kitchen. Note also that its glass window-wall has a door to the concrete-paved walk (fine for bicycle riding) leading to pool terrace. Above, the boys play table games, watch television; frequently they are joined by their parents or a group of teen-agers. Wall at right is pecky cypress, storage wall (with built-in TV) is chartreuse, floor is cork. Two sofas form a sociable L, with record-player between them (lower right corner of picture).

Left: Snack bar on the kitchen side is always busy after school; drop-down cabinet-desk is where mother does household accounts.

Left below: From the kitchen, you see over pass-through to the playroom. Below: Small prefabricated fireplace and view to kitchen.
The living-dining room has a roof-high ceiling and south wall of glass facing the pool; 14 foot roof overhang keeps out winter sun glare.

Fireplace wall is stone, others wormy chestnut; furniture is arranged for conversation.

The living room, like the rest of the house, has a look of warmth and naturalness, and reflects the Woodards' many interests: books, music, plants and nature lore. To save steps and make meal-serving easy, one wall at the dining end is a pass-through to the kitchen (see drawing above and turn back to floor plan on page 54). The family always eats dinner together here, though quick meals and snacks are enjoyed in kitchen or playroom, or out on the terrace beside the swimming pool.

THE LIVING ROOM REFLECTS FAMILY INTERESTS
Each boy's room is his own to do as he pleases

Storage wall and floor plan
The wall between the boys' rooms is wardrobe and storage space. Its cork surfaces are fine for thumb-tacking up pennants, maps and pictures, and its top panel of obscure glass (out of reach, and therefore not useful for storage) gives a feeling of spaciousness. Plan shows furniture arrangement.

- Maynard's room is stripped for action
  Fifteen-year-old Maynard, the boy who likes to make things and tinker with hi-fi, has a room stripped down to essentials, to make space for his hobby activities. Both boys' rooms have redwood walls, hemp rugs, plenty of storage space, and double-decker beds so that a friend can stay overnight. Bedspreads are red and white.

- Tommy's room is stripped for collections
  Thirteen-year-old Tommy, the boy who sticks to nature lore and an assortment of live pets, has his room well stripped down to essentials to make space for collections (currently rocks, shells, fossils, leaf and flower specimens). Photograph above shows his double-decker bed; at left, storage cabinets that line whole opposite wall.

COOKING IS CHILD’S PLAY

To a child, the kitchen is just about the most enticing room in the house. There’s the tantalizing smell of cooking, the thrill of helping to mix a batch of cookies, the lure of being at the center of family activity. By planning small, easy chores for young children according to their age and capabilities, you can give them a sense of being part-and-parcel of this busy, intriguing world. A small child might help to set silver, napkins and other non-breakables on the table. An older child could pour the milk, prepare vegetables, squeeze oranges for breakfast. Thanks to today’s hard-wearing kitchen materials and ingenious safety devices (shown here and on the next two pages), a busy mother doesn’t have to be a habitual “nay-sayer” when small fry are about. Study this kitchen, for example. It is accident-proof and attractive. The cooking peninsula has smoothly rounded corners and self-locking burner controls (they must be firmly pressed down before they can be turned on). The wall oven controls are set high up, out of the range of small arms but within reach of a budding teen-age cook like the young girl you see on these pages (her name is Jessica Redway) whipping up a cake with a practiced hand. Like most good cooks, she cleans up as she goes along, and with such easy-upkeep materials as a vinyl tile floor, stainless steel and laminated...
DEBUTANTE IN THE KITCHEN

Children love to cook and the foods they like best aren’t hard to prepare. These recipes by Ruth Chier Rosen, author of “Wendy’s Kitchen Debut,” are a child’s introduction to the fun (and fundamentals) of cooking.

ROYAL CAKE

1 cup sugar
\( \frac{1}{4} \) cup butter
2 eggs
\( \frac{3}{4} \) cup milk
1 1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla

IMPLEMENTES: Measuring cups, flour sifter, mixing bowl, measuring spoons, cake pans.

Cream sugar and butter together in bowl. Beat eggs and add to sugar and butter with milk. Sift flour and baking powder and add. Add vanilla and bake in greased cake tin in 350° oven for 45 minutes.

Frost with jam frosting.

JAM FROSTING

4 tablespoons raspberry jam
1 teaspoon water
1 cup confectioner’s sugar

IMPLEMENTES: Measuring spoons, measuring cup.

Put jam in saucepan and beat over very low flame until melted. Add water and remove from fire. Add confectioner’s sugar and beat very well.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH PARSLEY

6 eggs
5 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

IMPLEMENTES: Mixing bowl, double boiler, measuring spoons, small knife, fork.

Fill bottom of double boiler halfway with hot water and put on stove over low flame. Break eggs into mixing bowl and add milk and salt. Mix well with fork. Melt butter in top of double boiler and add egg mixture. Stir eggs until firm. Divide into 4 portions and sprinkle each with chopped parsley.

RIBBON SANDWICH

3 slices of bread
2 teaspoons butter
2 teaspoons peanut butter
2 teaspoons jelly
2 teaspoons cream cheese

IMPLEMENTES: Measuring spoon, table knife.

Let butter soften. Spread on one side of each slice. Spread peanut butter on one side of one slice. Put jelly on a second slice and cream cheese on the third. Put the three layers together with plain un-spread side on top and bottom of sandwich. Cut sandwich into three ribbons. Wrap in waxed paper to be put in your lunchbox. Makes 1 sandwich.

DOODLE DOGS

4 frankfurters, plump
4 long strips American cheese
4 strips bacon
4 frankfurter rolls

IMPLEMENTES: Knife, toothpicks, grill or broiler pan.

Split frankfurters halfway and insert strip of cheese. Wrap strip of bacon around each frankfurter and secure with toothpick. Place on broiler pan and grill until franks are done and bacon crisp. Put on rolls and serve. Will make 4 franks.

PEARS A LA PYRAMID

1 large can pear halves
1 can prepared whipped cream
1 jar maraschino cherries

IMPLEMENTES: Can opener, spoons.

Chill whipped cream and can of pears in refrigerator. Open can of pears and put two halves on each dessert plate. Heap whipped cream on top of pears and top with a cherry.

TUNA AND PEAS MASQUERADE

1 can tuna fish
1 can peas
1 can condensed mushroom soup
1 bag potato chips
2 tablespoons milk

IMPLEMENTES: Can opener, saucepan, mixing spoon.

Wash tops and open cans. Mix contents together in saucepan. Add milk to thin mixture a little. Stir lightly. When it is heated through serve on each plate on top of a handful of potato chips.

FUDGE BROWNIES

3 squares bitter chocolate
\( \frac{1}{2} \) cup butter
\( \frac{1}{2} \) cups white sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup flour
1 cup nuts

IMPLEMENTES: Double boiler, measuring cup, measuring spoons, mixing spoon, cookie pan.

Melt chocolate and butter over hot (not boiling) water. Cool and add the rest of the ingredients. Spread very thin in pan and bake for 20 minutes in 350° oven. Cut while hot. (Continued on page 117)
How safe is your kitchen?

The old axiom that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure certainly applies to the kitchen. The majority of home accidents happen here (one survey shows 70 out of 163). To be on the safe side, check and correct your kitchen’s potential hazards, particularly if there are small children in the family. Much of the new equipment has built-in safety devices (see photographs below) and there are tested and approved safeguards, also shown here, that you can install yourself. Common sense precautions are the greatest single factor in making your kitchen safe. Check electrical appliances and have frayed cords repaired promptly. Keep appliances away from the sink and shorten cords so they can’t trail over work or floor areas. Never overload circuits. See that window curtains are at least 18 inches from stove burners and turn pan handles away from the stove edge so they can’t be tipped over. Wipe up floors immediately if grease is spilled, and tack down curled up linoleum. Keep kitchen knives in a wall rack or a drawer out of children’s reach. Simple safety measures such as these, plus good lighting over stove and work surfaces, skid-resistant floor covering, equipment arranged to give you maximum freedom of movement, will all help safeguard your kitchen.

New materials and finishes bring new convenience to the kitchen
THESE ARE THE INGREDIENTS
FOR A GOOD KITCHEN

1. Marbleized linoleum comes in 18 colors (Armstrong, 40c sq. ft.).
2. Mixing bowl is stainless steel (West Bend, $4.50).
3. Stainless steel and copper skillet has new square shape (Bridgeport Brass, $9.95).
4. Permalife vinyl tile in 11 gay colors brightens kitchen floor (Antico, $1.25 sq. ft.).
5. Enamelled iron casserole goes from oven to table (Trianon, $4.25).
6. Cafe curtains can be quickly laundered (Craig, 30"l, $6.50 pr.).
7. Vinyl asbestos tile is especially water-resistant (Sloane-Delaware, 17c per 9" x 9" tile).
8. Sputterdash asphalt tile won't show dirt, is economical (Kentile, 7-12c per 9" x 9" tile).
9. Lifetime vinyl tiles simulate marble, terrazzo (Robbins Floor Products, Inc. 90c sq. ft.).
10. Wooden cheeseboard will hang on wall (David Aaron, $3.95).
11. New linoleum pattern resembles basketweave (Armstrong, 40c sq. ft.).
12. Clay tile is fireproof, water-resistant (Gladding McBean, 64c sq. ft.).
13. Plastic vegetable washer is light, won't rust (Dapol, 90c).
14. Plastic wall plate and duplex outlet in pastels to harmonize with walls (Arrow, Hart & Hegeman, 29c).
15. Sonolace acoustical tile helps absorb noise (Owens-Corning, 40-45c sq. ft.).
16. Plasticized wallboard looks like marble, is simple to install ("Skyros" Marlite, 73c sq. ft.).
17. Porcelain enamel skillet, pretty enough to show off (Richard Delano, $8.50).
20. and 21. Laminated plastics in solid colors, patterns, wood grains for countertops (20, Newamar, 75c sq. ft. 21, Textoile, 80c sq. ft.).
22. Small-scale wallpaper adds warmth to kitchen (Katzenbach & Warren, $7.50 per roll).
23. Bamboo textured plastic wall covering (L. E. Carpenter, 54" wide, $5.44 yd.).
24. Aluminum Venetian blinds, H&G pastels (Lexcor Lorentzen, $7 for blind 28" x 61").
25. Plastic and wood slat woven shade diffuses light (Columbia Mills, 36" x 72", $17).
26. Wood cabinets finished in 8 wood grains, 18 solid colors (John Coppee's).
27. Plywood, 3/4", for countertop base (US Plywood, 39-41c sq. ft.).
28. Wood cabinets in 7 colors, 2 wood grains (Mutschler).*
29. Steel cabinets in 6 solid colors, 6 flecked (Capitol).*
30. and 31. Translucent fiberglas plastics; for partitions, can be self-installed (30, Span Lite, 81 sq. ft. 31, Corralux, 85-90c sq. ft.).
32. and 33. Laminated plastics, wide color and design range (32, Pionite. 33, Formica, 75-90c sq. ft.).
34. Washable paint, to match any kitchen color scheme.
35. Sampler-pattern wallpaper is stainproof ("Glendura" by Imperial, $5 per roll).

Make your child's bedroom a world of his own

Children, as well as adults, need to feel there is one room in the house to call their own. A child's bedroom is the most logical room to plan around his individual interests. Whatever furniture he needs should be arranged so that he can play, sleep and study in the privacy of his own room. You can encourage neatness by providing good storage space: in the early years, big bins for toys; as your child grows up, shelves for books and records, open-front cabinets for collections, desk space for spreading out maps or games, closets with adjustable rods for clothes. You can help develop his special interests by keying the decoration to a hobby, collection or activity, as was done in the rooms shown opposite. A favorite program on TV, a storybook character, a pet (or a secret ambition to hunt animals in darkest Africa) could be a theme for a room. There are any number of washable cotton prints and wallpapers to appeal to children of all ages and interests. On this page, you see furniture for children's rooms that is flexible and practical. Children's clothes and accessories at Macy's New York.
Young girl's bedroom keyed to a hobby

If you have a daughter interested in nature study, why not plan her room around it? For example, she might like to have the wall behind her bed papered in a butterfly print, as was done here. Table-desk is roomy enough for mounting a butterfly collection. There is another low table near the window for her potted plants grown from seed. Wrought-iron bed and small chair covered in turquoise cotton make the room look more like a sitting room than a bedroom. Bulletin board and built-in storage for books, clothes, records keep room tidy.

Young boy's room built around a collection of ships

Any young salt would like to be surrounded by reminders of the sea. Here, schooners, wharves and whales (wallpaper) decorate the wall behind the bed. On the adjacent window wall are built-in shelves and open-front cabinets to display model ships and books. Folding shelf at window-sill height takes the place of a desk. Seaman's chest at foot of bed holds bulky ropes, fishing tackle, etc. Simple, painted furniture, cotton twill bedspread, striped sailcloth curtains and spatterdash vinyl tile on the floor keep the room looking shipshape.

Small fry's bedroom doubles as a playroom

Things to move, things to climb, things to chalk up will keep a child of pre-school age contented for hours. Here, a long plastic shelf was built in at one end of the room at a height a child can climb safely when he wants to write on the blackboard. This gives him another level to play on besides the floor (covered in resilient rubber tile). Toy bins on casters roll under the shelf when not in use. Special toys and books can be left out on shelves above. Pink walls, pink chintz bedspread and gay cafe curtains make the room cheerful.

Children's room planned primarily for play

You can make a child's bedroom attractive to him if you decorate it in the spirit of fun. Here, the bed is built in, bunk fashion, to save space. It is covered in dark green cotton so that children can sit on it. The floor is cleared for action and, since it is covered in vinyl tile, bouncing and bicycling won't hurt it. In addition to a large play table with plastic top, there is a drawing counter beneath the windows. Large toy bins in the shape of blocks have painted letters to tie in with the alphabet chintz used for curtains and slip covers.
One good soup can be the backbone of a winter meal or the inspiration for a Sunday evening supper. Here is a collection of recipes by Ruth A. Matson from a forthcoming book, "Cooking by the Garden Calendar," to be published by Doubleday & Co.

Reputations have been built on a repertory of good soups and a repertory is easy to develop. A few basic ideas, a little imagination and a liking for tasting as you go along are all that is needed. That last is important. Good soups are built on judicious seasoning and the soup that has not been sampled from time to time betrays this neglect. A well-made soup does more than satisfy hunger, although it does that supremely well. A rich and hearty homemade soup served steaming hot from the hospitable tureen satisfies the creativity of the cook.

A flair for homemade soup is an invaluable aid to entertaining. With salad, interesting breads and fruit and cheese for dessert, a hearty soup is a meal in itself. In winter, for Sunday suppers or after-theatre parties, serve Italian minestra, bread sticks and pizza, with a mixed green salad, Bel Paese or Gorgonzola cheese and a big bowl of green, red and black grapes. For a summer supper in the garden, try smooth cold Vichyssoise with herb biscuits or brioches, a salad of cooked vegetables marinated with shredded ham and chicken, strawberries to dip in sugar. Or cold clear Russian bortsch with cucumber sandwiches, wedges of Cheddar cheese.

Soup can be simple. Take a potato and an onion, a chunk of butter and some milk, and you have a versatile soup that may be varied to suit one's taste and one's supply shelf.

HOT POTATO SOUP

1 large potato
1 large onion
1 tablespoon butter
1 (or more) teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon fresh ground pepper
2 cups rich milk

Peel the potato and the onion, and slice them into a saucepan. Barely cover with cold water. Add a generous tablespoon of butter and the salt and pepper, then let them cook tender—about 10 to 15 minutes. Mash the vegetables to pulp with a potato masher (you may purée them through a sieve, but our household likes the grainy texture achieved by rough mashing). Add the milk; heat to boiling; serve at once.

Time required: 20 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 quart

Or you may turn to the famous potato soups of France for inspiration. The simplest is that of the French peasant, a more frugal version of the recipe given above, made with water instead of milk, with perhaps a handful of sorrel chopped into it—and always with dried bread afloat in the tureen. The bourgeois favorite, potage Parmentier, calls for less onion, more potato, consommé instead of milk or water, with a good pinch of chervil for dash. La haute cuisine produces Crème Vichysoise (just as good hot in winter as chilled in summer—well, almost), rich with chicken stock and cream and speckled with chives.

CRÈME VICHYSSOISE

1 cup chopped onions
2 chopped leeks (the white part only)
½ cup melted butter
2 cups raw dried potatoes
1 quart chicken stock
Salt and white pepper
1 cup light cream
2 tablespoons chopped chives

Sauté the chopped onions and leeks in melted butter until they yellow—about 20 minutes. Add the potatoes; pour in the chicken stock. Add salt to taste, depending upon how salty the stock is, and also ¼ teaspoon white pepper. Cook until the potatoes are soft (10 to 15 minutes), then put through a fine sieve, food mill, or blender while hot. If

For a special-occasion dinner, bring out your loveliest linens and china and let their colors be the inspiration for the centerpiece. Here, pink candles, lily of the valley and pink-tinged lilies echo the pink-banded plates and white organdy cloth appliquéd with pink linen. For the menu, you might start with avocado cream soup, (see the recipe on page 66), Tiffany's "Flemish" pattern sterling, Castleton's "Shell Pink" china, Val St. Lambert's "State" goblets. Table setting from Tiffany's, New York. Shopping data on page 127.

PINK MAKES A PRETTY BACKGROUND FOR DINING
the Vichyssoise is to be served hot, return the soup to the stove after sieving it, heat to boiling, remove from the fire, and add cream. Heat again, but do not boil. Pour into the hot tureen and sprinkle the chives on top. For cold Vichyssoise, chill the soup thoroughly before adding the cream.

Time required: 60 minutes, exclusive of chilling
Quantity produced: about 2 quarts

It's a good idea to add the cream only to the portion likely to be eaten at one time. The cream in Vichyssoise may sour quickly even if the soup is kept on ice; minus the cream, it will keep for days in the refrigerator, or it can be frozen.

The flavor of the leek is what gives Vichyssoise its subtlety, and it always seemed that when I had craving for Vichyssoise, particularly on hot days in June or July, leeks were nowhere to be found in market. This frustration had a happy outcome: I found I could freeze the leek base for Vichyssoise. This is done in much the same way as celery: the leek is sliced, sautéed in butter for 5 minutes, then poured, butter and all, into a small container, to be chilled and frozen. Thus one can have a ready supply of leeks for Vichyssoise, complete with the measure of butter in which to sauté the onion. Chopped leeks, blanched for 5 minutes in boiling water with a little butter, may be frozen into ice cubes to be stored in the freezer, ready for soups or stews.

MINESTRA

4 carrots
4 potatoes
4 stalks of celery with leaves
A 2-inch wedge of cabbage
1 onion
1 leek (optional)
1 clove of garlic
1 small bunch of parsley
2 teaspoons salt
1 can kidney beans
2 tomatoes (or ½ can)
1 teaspoon minced basil (optional)
1 tablespoon olive oil
1½ teaspoon pepper
Grated Parmesan or Romano

Wash and prepare the vegetables: carrots, potatoes, cabbage, and garlic go into the pot whole; the onion, parsley, leek, and celery should be coarsely chopped. Put these with the salt into 2 quarts of cold water; bring to a boil and simmer for 1 hour. Now take a wire potato masher and mash up the whole vegetables. Add the beans, tomatoes cut up but unpeeled, the basil, olive oil, and pepper. Give the soup at least another hour's simmering and turn it into the tureen. With each bowl pass a dish of grated mild cheese, and let each diner take his own generous sprinkling.

Time required: 2½ hours in all
Quantity produced: about 2½ quarts

Minestra is well worth making in large quantity. It tastes almost better heated up the second day and can be varied with tidbits from the larder. A handful of spinach, a cupful of peas or string beans, broccoli or cauliflower, or a small turnip or zucchini may be boiled in it or added to it. Rice or barley, spaghetti or noodles may be added to make it even heartier. You may try it with a pinch of rosemary or marjoram. And a frankfurter, sliced very thin, or some shredded ham gives further variation. I've sometimes made the last of a minestra stretch from two servings to four by adding a can of chicken soup with rice.

The Italians have tricks with the soup pot which have an earthy simplicity we would do well to acquaint ourselves with. Garlic crostons, made by browning bread cubes in butter into which a clove of garlic has been grated, are delicious in clear soup. Tomato juice, celery salt, and minced basil, with a clove or two, simmered with meat stock make a provocative thin soup, served with the characteristic sprinkling of cheese.

HERB AND CELERY SOUP

1 tablespoon olive oil
1 teaspoon minced chives
1 cup finely minced celery
1 tablespoon minced parsley
4 cups beef or chicken broth
1 teaspoon fresh or ¼ teaspoon dried chervil
½ teaspoon fresh or ¼ teaspoon dried tarragon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
Salt, pepper
½ cup white wine
Dry bread, toasted
Romano or Parmesan cheese

Sauté in the oil very gently for 5 minutes the chives, celery, and parsley. Add the broth, chervil, tarragon, and nutmeg, and let all simmer until the celery is tender—about 20 minutes. Add salt unless the broth was highly seasoned, also a grind of pepper. At serving time, add the wine and reheat to boiling point. Put slices of toast in each bowl, sprinkle with cheese, then pour on the hot soup.

Time required: 35 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 quart

Another party soup, a bland, smooth, pale green concoction which will certainly fool many people at the first sip by its faintly herbal flavor, is avocado cream soup. This takes a matter of 10 minutes to prepare if you have a blender. If not, the avocado must be sieved into the hot stock and given a turn with a rotary egg beater after the cream has been added. Proponents of this soup claim that half clam and half chicken broth turn avocado cream soup into an epicure's delight. The soup is good served cold, too.

AVOCADO CREAM SOUP

2 cups chicken stock
1 cup cream
1 large, ripe avocado
2 tablespoons sherry
⅛ avocado for garnish

Set the stock to heat in a saucepan while you put the cream in the blender and add to it the avocado scooped out with a spoon. Blend it only 15 seconds; prolonged blending seems to take flavor from delicate foods like avocado. Pour the avocado cream into the hot stock (I save a little stock to dilute the cream left in the bottom of the blender, so that none of the blend is wasted), reheat just to boiling, add the sherry, and serve with thin slices of avocado for garnish.

Time required: 10 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 quart

Here is a favorite of mine. Suppa di Castagne, a rich and subtle dinner soup. This is a velvet purée whose delicacy of flavor requires careful planning of the course to follow. Duck or turkey or ham are too rich themselves to give contrast; something broiled: chops, squab, steak are ideal accompaniments; or, if you like it, smoked tongue in a ring of spinach and mushrooms. If you demur at the nuisance of shelling chestnuts, I sympathize with you. They are a nuisance to pre-

MAGIC FROM CANS

If you want a delicious quick soup try these 15 combinations of short-cut soups, flavored and garnished to please any palate

In summer, when chives, a few spinach leaves, a green pepper, a cucumber are readily available it’s easy to give that little extra style and flavor to canned soups. In winter it’s not quite so simple, but there are tricks. If the onions have sprouted in the bin, the green tips, minced fine, can do duty for chives in the consomme, and they can be floated on lime slices instead of lemon. Sliced avocado, plus minced parsley, dresses up hot madrilene. A little onion fried in butter in the saucepan you’re about to heat the vegetable soup in will give it body and flavor; if they’re onion tops, they’ll give color as well. A pinch of basil in tomato soup, of marjoram in split pea, of tarragon in green pea are taste-teasers.

There’s adventure, too, in trying out combinations of canned soups. Many standard cookbooks include sections describing fascinating concoctions that can be made with two or even three or four kinds of canned soups. A combination of chicken broth and clam broth, half and half, makes a delicious soup with celery, sliced paper-thin, simmered in it, and you may serve it sprinkled with chopped parsley or grated cheese. The following soup recipes are for all occasions, parties and family meals, in summer and winter.

CLEAR DINNER SOUP

| 1 can clear green turtle soup (13 oz. can) |
| 1 can madrilene (13 oz. can) |
| 2 tablespoons sherry |
| 1 tablespoon fine-minced parsley |
| Lemon slices |

Combine the two soups in a saucepan and let come to a boil. Add the sherry just before serving. Float lemon slices sprinkled with minced parsley in each bowl.

Time required: 10 minutes

Quantity produced: 3½ cups (4 servings)

PIMENTO BISQUE

| 2 cups milk |
| 1 tablespoon butter |
| 1 tablespoon flour |
| 1 can pimentos (4 oz. can) |
| ½ teaspoon salt |
| ½ teaspoon paprika |
| 5 drops Tabasco |

Garnish: whipped cream

Put all ingredients except whipped cream in an electric blender in the order given. Blend 15 seconds. Heat in double boiler until soup thickens and smooths. Serve in cups with a dab of whipped cream atop each. (If you do not have a blender, the pimento will have to be puréed, then simmered in a sauce made of flour, blended with butter, then with milk.)

Time required: 15 minutes

Quantity produced: 3 cups (4 small servings)

CREAM OF CHESTNUT PURÉE

| 1 can cream of chicken soup, undiluted (10 oz. can) |
| 1 can chicken broth, undiluted (14½ oz. can) |
| 1 can cooked chestnuts (14½ oz. can) |
| 1 tablespoon chopped parsley |
| ½ cup cream |
| 2 tablespoons sherry |
| ½ teaspoon salt |

Combine the chicken soup, broth and 1 cup of the cooked chestnuts in the blender with the parsley and salt. Blend for 20 seconds (otherwise, heat and then purée in food mill or through strainer), Heat in double boiler. When just at boil, add remaining chestnuts, diced, the cream and sherry. Reheat, and serve.

Time required: 20 minutes

Quantity produced: 1 quart (4 good servings)

POTAGE MONGOL

| 1 can green pea soup (10 oz. can), undiluted |
| 1 can tomato soup, undiluted (10 oz. can) |
| 2 cansfull milk |
| 1 teaspoon curry |
| 1 tablespoon chopped chives (optional) |

Combine all ingredients except chives in a saucepan and stir smooth. When at boiling point, turn into bowls, garnish with chives, and serve.

Time required: 15 minutes

Quantity produced: 3½ cups (4 servings)

They live with Taste

On these four pages, we take you into four homes whose owners live with individuality and charm. They have made their rooms as personal as their monograms.

Everybody is interested in the way that other people live. That is what draws so many of us to a Burton Holmes travelogue or an open-house tour. We are continually on the alert for new ideas we can adapt to make our own way of living more attractive and more comfortable. Here HOUSE & GARDEN takes you on a little tour of handsome rooms created by people who live with imagination and taste. Each room has the individual mark of its owner. Each is as personal as a monogram.

The way these people entertain is as much an expression of their taste as the way they decorate their rooms. As these examples prove, the dining room of an accomplished host or hostess is considerably more than just a setting for dinner. It is stamped with the owner's taste in linens, in silver, in glass and in flowers. The net result is a special mood for a special occasion. For example, the party setting of Mr. Paul Kent, New York decorator, proves that card tables set up in an entrance hall can be elegant as well as informal. He uses pastel tablecloths and sets his candles at the corners of the tables so (Cont'd on next page)

CRYSTAL AND PINKS
ADD CRISPNESS TO A TRADITIONAL DINING ROOM

Since Mrs. George Garrett's dining room in her Washington, D.C., house opens out into a sunny garden, she likes to emphasize its light, crisp look by using her collection of Waterford glass on the table, which is set here for terrapin. Her paneled dining room is pale pink accented by a pair of deep pink azalea standard trees and a carnation centerpiece. Diane Tate and Marian Hall were the decorators.

A DINING ALCOVE MAKES AN INTIMATE SETTING

Mrs. Abbott E. Lambert likes to serve small dinners in a dining alcove that was once a pantry. When the table (which can be extended) is set for two, she pushes the candles to one side and uses a simple centerpiece of field flowers that repeat the medallion print on the chairs. A handsome mirrored screen and white wallpaper with tiny gold stars make the small space seem larger. Melanie Kahane was the decorator.
DECORATING continued

(Continued) as not to interfere with conversation. Mrs. George Garrett, on the other hand, naturally relies on a long mahogany dining table to enhance the effect of her handsome collection of crystal. (Her husband served for many years as American ambassador in Dublin, hence her fondness for Waterford glass.) Still another kind of dinner, intimate and charming, is set by Mrs. Abbott L. Lambert in a tiny alcove next to her kitchen. In the home of Miss Bert deWinter, the French Provincial living-kitchen provides a cheerful setting for many a Sunday buffet supper. Miss deWinter has found that people gravitate to the kitchen, so she has made it a comfortable place to sit and talk while a built-in rotisserie takes over the meal. Regardless of size or location, each little dining scene shown here has a particular charm created by its host or hostess. These are the sort of rooms you might like to clip for your scrapbook.

On Sundays, Miss Bert deWinter of Dallas serves buffet supper for eight guests in her Provincial living-kitchen, using trays that are kept ready with individual place settings in drawers. At these suppers, meats cooked at a rotisserie-broiler occupying the traditional place of a sideboard share honors with French dishes, her own specialty. Because she had a clear picture of the effect she wanted in this room, Miss deWinter purchased zinnia-patterned chintz and wallpaper three years before she actually used them.
In his New York apartment, decorator Paul Kent sets up small tables in an inside hall for festive little buffet-style dinners. His own special signature is the pastel cloth (he uses yellows, pinks and blues together) with white napkins and bronze doré candlesticks placed in a diagonal pattern on the table corners. A simple white background sets off a 17th-century Dutch painting, handsome Meissen plates and black wrought iron chairs upholstered in white cotton, which alternate with stools.
Mistakes are the only real extravagance in decorating. However, you can avoid many a mistake if you start with an over-all plan. This is wise no matter what kind of home you are furnishing, but particularly if you have small rooms, because it’s harder to live with mistakes in small space. To begin with, your rooms will look larger if you paint the walls and ceilings white. With a white background, you can change the color scheme of your room whenever you like, by changing your slip covers and curtains. Here is a related group of fabrics ($2 to $3 a yard, 48” wide) from which you can choose a printed sheer for your curtains, a textured cotton in the same pattern (or in a solid color) for your slip covers. By doing this you will avoid the mistake so many people make of overloading a room with too many different patterns. When you choose furniture for small rooms, it’s always a good idea to choose small-scaled furniture and buy only as many pieces as you actually need. After you have lived in the room for a while, you will feel instinctively where you need an accent piece or accessory. This mahogany furniture, made by Stewartstown, is well scaled and reasonable, ranging in price from approximately $49.75 for the cocktail table to $169 for the buffet. "Roomaker Fabrics," designed by Raymond Loewy, at Macy’s New York; The J. L. Hudson Co., Detroit; F. & R. Lazarus, Columbus, Ohio. Shopping information, page 127.

1. Turn a guest room into a TV-Study

In a three-room apartment such as the one below, you’ll get more use out of a guest room if you plan it as an extra sitting room. Although this room is long and narrow and has an off-center window, it has been converted successfully into an attractive TV-study. Sofa-bed is placed horizontally to make the room seem wider. Window is curtained in an interesting pattern called “Shapes.” Hanging storage cabinets with ottomans beneath, TV set on coffee table help to conserve space.

2. Choose fabrics and furniture that are well scaled for a small room

If you like printed fabrics, choose a neat pattern. Here, two related materials, one sheer and the other textured, are used for café curtains and sofa slip cover. Sofa is grouped with lightweight open-arm chairs that double for dining. Its 66” length permits compact arrangement back-to-back with flip-top dining table. Three-drawer chest and buffet-server (it has cabinet on right-hand side) accommodate china, glass, silver, linens and accessories.

3. Use color and pattern sparingly in a small bedroom

Here, against an all-white background, a delicate pink and green sheer material keeps pattern at the window. Since too much pattern would be oppressive in a small bedroom, the bedspread is plain pink, the chair cushions white. Open-arm chairs can be used as extra seats in living-dining room. Chest is partner to one in living room, so they can be used together in a later bedroom. To save space, light fixtures are suspended over chests.
2. Medallion design on sheer and on textured materials gives a living room a signature of its own.

3. Feather-printed sheer curtains are inspiration for a delicate color scheme in a small bedroom.
Clever arrangement of furniture will improve a small 10' x 12' bedroom

Here are decorating solutions for making the most of every square inch of space

Because so many families face the problem of furnishing small rooms today, furniture is simpler in scale and more versatile. But where are you going to place it if much of the wall space is glass, as is so often the case in today's new homes? An unusual solution is offered in the bedroom above. The bed, instead of being placed in the most obvious spot against the long solid wall, is placed against the window-wall. Draperies draw open only as far as the bed to serve as a permanent backdrop. In the dining area of the living room opposite, there is wall space for only one piece of furniture, so the best choice is a fair-sized buffet with all the storage space you could possibly want. One wall is paneled in walnut plywood veneer to demarcate the dining area. In both rooms, the windows are curtained in sun-resistant Fiber-glas fabrics. Hanging light fixtures are used wherever possible to save space. Floors are covered in vinyl tile and accented by handsome area rugs. Furniture from “Oneida” collection by Keller.

To save space, bed with simple headboard is placed in corner of room. Matching draperies and wallpaper create attractive backdrop. Since room has good closet space (see plan), only storage pieces needed are small chest for accessories, desk-vanity with plastic-lined compartment.
Most families like to be able to sit down at a dining table for the main meal of the day. Even if the dining area in your home is part of the living room, you can make it feel like another room. Don't crowd it with too many pieces of furniture. This table, for example, takes up only 34" x 54" of space, although it can be extended to 82" for large parties. Extra dining chairs are near at hand, around a coffee table (foreground). Living area, underlined by 12' x 15' area rug, is arranged for conversation and TV.

The general rule of thumb is that the complete landscaping of a new place costs at least 10% of the total purchase price of the house and lot. That would mean that if the property shown in the bird's-eye view at right costs $25,000 (for a 6 room house on a quarter-acre 100' x 120' lot), the total cost of landscaping should come to $2,500. On the basis of a cost breakdown which we shall detail later on, and with you doing most of the work, here is what you may expect to pay: lawn, $200; boundary and service yard fence, $255; hedge, $55; front walk, tree well and low rock wall, $150; 12' x 36' flagstone terrace laid on sand or cinders, $230; small freeform pool and rock edging, $150; all foundation and basic shrubbery planting, $1,000; metal edging between lawn and principal planting areas, $25. The total is $2,065 which leaves you $435 for your flower garden. If you do all or most of the work yourself, it will keep you busy for a couple of seasons. So almost inevitably, the cost will be spread. If you have all the work done by landscape contractors, the job will cost about $1,000 more. That over-all cost includes the same materials you'd buy if you did the job yourself; the difference is in the cost of labor and equipment.

In addition to the bird's-eye view drawing, we show on these pages close-ups of particularly important parts of the landscaping, together with detailed costs of doing the work yourself, or having it done. The cost estimates are based on actual case histories in eastern suburban communities. Local conditions, prices and materials vary greatly.

A pleasant approach to your house is of first importance in getting your landscaping underway. Apart from the all-important driveway, which can be considered part of building the house, the things you will want to do first are: plant the basic trees and shrubs, and build a good lawn. The two operations are apt to be closely related, for both require a great deal of digging and soil preparation and may call for outside help. The sooner the basic plants (such as trees needed to supplement those existing on the lot, foundation planting, boundary shrubs)

HOW MUCH TO BUILD A FREE-FORM POOL?

Easiest kind of pool for an amateur to make well is probably saucer-form pictured with irregular outline. Assuming total area of 72 sq. ft. (equal to 5' x 10' x 6''), you would need 1 cubic yard of concrete at $12 to make or $25 bought ready-mixed, about $15 worth of heavy wire mesh for reinforcing and building paper to line scooped-out excavation. This allows a thickness of 6' for pool saucer. Irregular stones for dry wall in rear and to cover pool rim would cost about $75 as shown. To have same pool and rock work contractor-built would cost $300 up. Prices for lily pools, 18'' or more in depth, of other shapes and sizes would range upward to $1000 or more, depending on pipe connections, stone work, etc. Small electric recirculating pump to save water, produce cascade or fountain effect, costs $50 up.

HOW MUCH TO MAKE A GOOD LAWN?

A fair allowance for a good lawn that can be expected to last for years with a minimum of upkeep is about $30 per 1000 sq. ft. This allows for 3 bales of peatmoss at $3.50 a bale for added organic matter. A figure of about $40 per 1000 sq. ft., will include the cost of labor to build the lawn using machinery to plow or till an average soil to a depth of 4 to 6 inches. Equivalent organic matter would be 5 bags of cultivated sedge peat at $2.50 per 100-lb. bag, or 300 lbs. of leafmold at $4 per 100 lbs. Ground limestone is included, at $1.00 for the needed 60 lbs., balanced 5-10-5 or 6-10-4 plant food at $2 for 40 lbs. A good mixture of high quality, weed-free grass seed varieties in 10 lb. bags at $1 per 10 lb. is included; you need 5 lbs. for each 1000 ft. This mixture contains 5% of Merion blue as well as Kentucky blue, fescues.

HOW MUCH TO LAY A FLAGSTONE TERRACE?

Heavy flagstones laid on a 4'' sand cushion that is spread on a 4'' bed of cinders will give you a long-lasting terrace even in regions of snow and winter freezing. Such construction is fun for amateur masons. Square cut stones will cost 50¢ per sq. ft., (with lighter irregular flagging available at half that). Sand costs $3-$3.50 per cubic yard in loads of 6 yds. or less. Cinders run $4.50 per cu. yd. For a 12' by 36' terrace, allow $180 for heavy square cut stones, $20 for 6 yds. of sand, $27 for 6 yds. of cinders. Total, less than $230 not counting your labor. For contractor's costs, allow $1.25 per sq. ft., or $540 for same terrace. Brick paving would cost $1.50 per ft. or $648. Add 25¢ per sq. ft. to have contractor lay terrace in concrete. Irregular shapes, tree wells, etc., take more time, raise the over-all price.

HOW MUCH TO INSTALL FOUNDATION PLANTING?

The basic planting around the house walls and major boundaries is planned for handsome effect all year, for slow growth, for fine plant quality. Such plants are most often species of holly, yew, pieris, native rhododendron, mountain laurel and azaleas. The average cost is $5 each in well matched groupings. Cost of a 30-ft. bed such as shown in the drawing at left, deeply prepared and enriched and containing about 30 such plants properly placed, would be $4 per lineal foot. This cost includes a bale of peatmoss or equivalent organic matter, and plant food, but not shrubs or trees used for special accent. Greater lengths require greater width of planting to look well, hence cost per lineal foot will be larger. Add $1 per ft. or more for hired labor.
GARDENING

100 PLANTS AND HOW TO USE THEM

All the plants listed below have been especially selected for qualities that make them good garden buys. Each is an improved variety of a favorite type. Many have larger flowers, a longer blooming season, better color or greater hardiness. They adapt easily to a wide variety of growing conditions in different locations of the country. Under each flower listing we include season and color of bloom, plant height, requirements, and cost of quality seeds of plants. On the opposite page are plans of attractive ways to use the flowers.

26 EASY ANNUALS

Sow from seed packets when the ground begins to warm in spring. Annuals start blooming in early summer and, if fading flowers are picked, continue till frost. Most like full sun, dislike rich soil.

AGERATUM Blue Bell, deep blue, 6'-8'; Midget Blue, blue-purple, 3'; pkt. 25c.

ASTER El Monte, crimson, 2'-3'; pkt. 25c.

CALENDULA Pacific Golden Giant, golden orange, 24'; pkt. 25c.

CELERIA Flame of Fire (cockscob), scarlet plumes, 1'-2'; pkt. 25c.

CENTAUREA Jubilee Gem (dwarf double carnation), dark blue, 1'; pkt. 25c.

CLEOME Pink Queen, salmon, 4'; pkt. 25c.

COSMOS Fiesta, gold with scarlet stripes, 2'/3'; Sensation Purity, satiny white, 4'; pkt. 25c.

LARKSPUR Imperial Blue Bell, light azure blue spikes, 3'-4'. Sow in early spring while weather is cool; pkt. 15c.

MARIGOLD Limelight, creamy yellow, 3'; Yellow Pygmy, lemon, 6'; Galaun Gold, yellow-orange, 2'/4'; pkt. 15c-20c.

MORNING GLORY Heavenly Blue. Vine with flowers 3'-4'' across. Train on fence or other support; pkt. 20c.

PETUNIA Cream star, cream, gold throat, 10'; Fire Chief, red, 10'; Salmon Beauty, light and dark salmon, yellow throat, giant fringed; pkt. 25c.

PHlox Salmon Glory, salmon pink, cream eye, 10'; pkt. 25c.

SCABIOSA Heavenly Blue, tall double-flowered, 2'; pkt. 15c.

SNAPDRAGON Tetra Candlelight, clear yellow, 24'; Loveliness, soft rose-pink, 2'3'; pkt. 25c.

SWEET PEAS Cuthbertson strain: Coline, scarlet-cerise; Tommey, medium blue. Sow earliest spring, rich soil. Provide bush or net support; pkt. 25c.

ZINNIA Black Ruby, blackish maroon, 12'-15'; Lucky Stripe, crimson, yellow, violet tones, 3'; Polar Bear, white, 3'; pkt. 25c.

15 EVERBLOOMING ROSES

Varieties listed bloom in spring and repeat through summer and fall. Plant in deep (15'-20''), fertile, well-drained soil, where they get at least 5 hours daily sun. Prices are average for #1 grade bushes.

BLANCHE MALLEERIN (hybrid tea), frosty white, fragrant; long bud. $2.

BLAZE (climber), scarlet-red, everblooming; cup-shaped flowers. $1.50.

CHARLOTTE ARMSTRONG (hybrid tea), red, opening to cerise; vigorous. $2.25.

CRIMSON GLORY (hybrid tea), deep vivid crimson, very fragrant. $1.35.

ECLIPSE (hybrid tea), golden yellow, slender tapering buds. $1.50.

FASHION (floribunda), coral with gold overlay; pointed buds. $2.

GOLDILOCKS (floribunda), golden yellow clusters and buds. $1.50.

GOOD NEWS (hybrid tea), shell pink, coryperry center; deep coppery pink buds. $2.

HELEN TRACREL (hybrid tea), delicate pink petals, outside flushed apricot; apricot bud. $2.

NEW DAWN (everblooming climber), blush pink blooms on 12'-15' canes. $1.50.

NEW YORKER (hybrid tea), shell pink, coryperry center; deep coppery pink buds. $2.

ORANGE EVERGLOW (climber), copper-yellow blossoms, hardy in cold climates. $2.

PEACE (hybrid tea), pale gold edged blush-pink; long stems; glossy foliage; vibrant. $2.50.

RADIANCE (hybrid tea), rose-pink, 2-toned cupped blossoms; fragrant. $1.50.

VOGUE (floribunda), cherry coral blossoms; dark foliage; spicy fragrance. $2.

10 FLOWERING SHRUBS

These shrubs do well in average well-drained garden soil, are winter hardy in all temperate regions of the country. All may be safely planted in early spring.

B U D D L E J A Fortune, lilac with orange eyes; reaches 6'-8' height; summer and autumn. Old tops may die back in severe winters; $1.25.

CARYOPTERIS Blue Mist, powdery blue flowers in late summer, silvery green foliage; 18'-24'' makes 2' diameter mound; $1.50.

DAPHNE Somerstel, blush pink flowers, dark green foliage; 10'-12'; early spring; sweet smell; sun; 3' pot-grown plant. $2.50.

FORSYTHIA Lynwood Gold, deep yellow, reaches 5'-7' height; 3'-4' plants. $3. Spring Glory, pale yellow; 3'-4' plants. $2.25.

HYPERICUM Sundgold, golden yellow, 18'-24'' high, makes 2'/3'-3' diameter mounds; summer and fall; $2.50.

LILAC Edith Cavell, double creamy white flowers, suffused with palest yellow; spring; 2'-3' plants. $5. Marechal Foch, single carmine-rose, pink eye; 2'/3'-4' plants, $3.50.

VIBURNUM F. burkwoodi, pale pink spring flower clusters; 6'; survives acid soil, shade; 3'-4' plants; $6. F. carlesii/philum, blush-white clusters; 6'; spring. Likes moisture with good drainage; 2'-3' plants. $7.50.

WEIGELA Bristol Ruby, garnet crimson, 6'-7'; very hardy; blooms all summer and fall; 3'-4' plants, $3.50.

52 HARDY PERENNIALS

Deep soil preparation (12''), good drainage, fertility, plenty of sun insure best perennial flowers. Those that multiply rapidly, like iris, chrysanthemums, should be divided each year; most others every 3 to 5 years. Plant in spring except as noted.

ANEMONE September Charm, silvery pink, shaded rose, 2'; fall. Sun or part shade; 80c.

ANTHEMIS Moonlight, pale yellow, 6'-8''; early summer; 80c.

ASTER Survivor, rose-pink, 2'-4''; fall; 95c.

ASTILBE Fanal, frosty deep garnet, 2' early summer; sun or shade; $1.

CAMPANULA C. carpatica Blue Carpet, deep blue 6'-8'; late spring to fall; sun or part shade; 80c. C. persicifolia Wirral Belle, bright violet-blue, 2'/4'; June, July; divide every second year; $1.

Today's bathroom offers more comfort, requires less care, has more color and character. Here, and on the following 18 pages, you will learn

How to get the best bathroom

Three plumbing fixtures and a medicine chest can constitute a bathroom. It may cost as little as $400 and take only 25 to 40 square feet of space. (Incidentally, this was the usual bathroom in the average house built before the war.) But it is not the best bet for anyone's money today because the bathroom has changed and people's requirements have changed, too. First of all, home owners now want more bathrooms. This is partly because U. S. families are getting bigger and need more facilities. Even in a small house the minimum requirement today is 1½ to 2 baths. Second, home owners want bigger bathrooms to incorporate such features as dressing table-lavatory, space for drying light laundry, built-in storage cabinets for towels and supplies. Third, home owners want better bathrooms. Tired of chilly "off-on" heating, poor lighting, undersized lavatories, hard-to-clean floors and walls, they welcome new equipment and materials that eliminate these faults. They respond enthusiastically to the color, variety and usefulness of new fabrics and fixtures. To be sure, all of these features add to the cost of the average bath and will increase it to more than $1,000. But, if you are buying, building or remodeling, you want to get the best bathroom possible because an inadequate bathroom indicates an obsolete house and lowers its sale value. A good one adds to over-all worth and is perpetually satisfying.

How to budget your bathroom

There are ways and means of cutting costs and still gaining a good room. One method is to keep piping to a minimum to reduce material and labor costs. This is done by placing bath and kitchen back to back using the same pipes. Do the same with two baths or locate an upstairs bath over the kitchen. (See Plumbing Guide, page 98.) Another is to install all plumbing fixtures along one wall. Still another is to use prefabricated plumbing. (See page 98.) Features that add convenience but little expense are (1) a double medicine cabinet to give more storage. (You can hang and paint cabinets yourself.) (2) A shower head that lifts for use as a spray, lowers to fill the tub or bathe a child; it replaces tub faucets. (3) For extra warmth you can install a heat lamp. (4) For better ventilation, put an exhaust fan in the ceiling. In an inside bath, the fan takes the place of a window and gives better ventilation. (5) Add a laundry hamper or build a cabinet under the lavatory. You might do this yourself. (6) Laying wall or floor tile is another improvement you could tackle. Information on how to do it is on page 103.

Good plumbing requires a good plan

The minimum bathroom

Three fixtures placed against one wall so that piping is concentrated is the least costly way to install plumbing. 5 feet x 7 feet is about the smallest room space in which this can be done.

The compartmented bathroom

Double the usefulness of a bath by dividing it and adding one fixture; place tub and lavatory in one half so tub bather won't hold up others; lavatory and toilet in another. Set all fixtures back to back to save piping costs.

The family bathroom

A three passenger bath can break the bathroom bottleneck for families. Entered from a hall accessible to everyone, sliding doors can shut off a tub compartment and toilet compartment. Each of three sections can be used simultaneously, a boon in the morning rush hour.

How to give the bathroom glamour

Having shed its laboratory look the bathroom is a new room today, full of new features. You'll find many countertop lavatories, luxurious to look at and wonderfully convenient in storage and counter space. Lighting lets you see what you are doing. The colors, textures and patterns of materials for walls, floors and fabrics are as attractive as those in the living room. The bathroom may be both dressing room and bath, eliminating clothes closets from the bedroom. Or fixtures may be placed in compartments where they can be used with privacy by more than one person at a time, a great aid to most families. The bath may even be a plant room (plants thrive on sun and moisture) or a health room for exercise and lounging. The garden bath, joined by a window wall to a private terrace where you sunbathe or garden, is probably the most glamorous of all. See all these on pages 83-84 and 94-95.

How to face-lift an old bathroom

Modernizing an old bath has two advantages over building a new one:
1. The room is usually spacious, permitting you to add storage, a countertop, other improvements.
2. The plumbing is in place and, if the pipes are sound, modern fixtures may merely replace old ones. New fixtures come first, providing the convenience and easy care old fixtures lack. Investigate the new prefabricated dressing table-lavatories or have a countertop and cabinet built around a new lavatory. Look at the ready-made metal shower cabinets so easy to fit into closet space. Be sure to modernize lighting; you'll need strong, direct light on the mirror and general light in the room. There are a large number of durable and decorative materials available for resurfacing old bathroom floors and walls. You can apply many of them yourself. See pages 90-91 for remodeling ideas.

How to use new materials

For bathroom walls you can choose from laminated plastics, real wood treated to resist humidity or steam, clay tile, wallboard resembling marble, waterproof wallpaper and fabrics. For floors or countertops you can have vinyl and other plastics, rubber tile, clay tile, cork, marble, linoleum. All are hardy as well as handsome. See examples pages 86-91.
You can have a

BEAUTIFUL BATHROOM WITH STANDARD MATERIALS

Whether you coddle yourself in luxury or stay on a strict budget you have a wide and wonderful choice of equipment and materials for your bathroom. Fixtures have color, more shelf space, more convenience. For floor, wall and countertop there are plastics, plywoods, clay tiles in every color and pattern. (You can apply many yourself.) Best of all, these are standard, stock products available readymade for your particular use.

Color helps co-ordinate a compartmented bath

The lavatory cabinet can be as handsome as a Chinese K’ang chest. In fact, in this bathroom a twin-basined countertop-dressing table is the focal point of a striking color scheme. Sliding shoji-like panels of frosted glass link the bathroom to a tiny sapling-enclosed garden that is perfect for summer sunbathing. (In winter, the glass wall floods the bathroom with warm sunlight, creating a conservatory for potted plants which do well in the slightly humid atmosphere of a bathroom.) Note the use of hard-wearing and easy-to-clean materials: laminated plastic (#1 in floor plan at right) for the lavatory countertop (you merely wipe up spilled nailpolish and alcohol-based toiletries), clay tile (#2) behind the tub-shower, and vinyl tile (#3) for the floor. This bathroom follows the popular two-compartment plan. The tub and toilet close off from the dressing section by a sliding plywood door so that two members of the family can use the room at the same time. Note spacious recess along tub for towels, cosmetics. There is storage for linen and supplies above the lavatory, and separate closets for clothing. Fixtures by Universal-Rundle; clay tiles by American-Olean; Formica countertop; vinyl floor tiles by Dunbar Rubber; Cannon towels.

Plastics give practicality and style to any bathroom

The cold porcelain look, so often associated with bathrooms, can be dispelled by teaming bathroom fixtures with interesting textures. Here, a stone wall and wood paneling serve that purpose, and in this case, the wood paneling itself is a handsome disguise. It is actually wood-grained laminated plastic, which never requires refinishing. The pale blue fixtures, gilt framed mirrors and accessories personalize this room just as they would a bedroom. Since the bathroom is compartmented into two sections, the lavatory area can act as a separate powder or dressing room and you can close off the tub and toilet area when the room is shared. (This also has the effect of a natural sound barrier between the bath fixtures and the bedroom.) Twin lavatories placed with a plastic-surfaced shelf form a long dressing table that at least two can use. A built-in cabinet under the windows provides 2'4" of storage space. An exhaust fan ventilates tub room, draws steam out. Such practical materials as vinyl flooring, see #1 in floor plan, and laminated plastic (#2) for countertops, walls and doors make the bathroom easy to keep clean and add fresh color. Fixtures by Universal-Rundle; vinyl floor tiles by Uvalde; Formica countertop and wall paneling; Martex towels. Both bathrooms above were designed by Ving Smith.

WHEN PLANNING YOUR OWN BATHROOM

Most improvements in our American standard of living have come from raising our sights. That is how today's colorful, efficient kitchen emerged from drabness and drudgery. And, that is how the bathroom is changing from a cold, clinical, inadequate room to one which truly improves your health and comfort. You see this in the two rooms opposite. Counters give you space for make-up or shaving without juggling. Towel shelves are alongside of tub and lavatory. Floors are quickly mopped, counters are easily wiped. A plant window enhances the view and a terrace adds a spot for sunning. Such features make any bathroom better and justify their cost by added ease and enjoyment.

A counter lavatory big enough for elbow room, a tub to splash in

Tub, shower and countertop are usefully oversize in this bathroom. The tub is an exhilarating idea; it's built like a pool or plunge (custom-built), is 1½' wider but no longer than the average bathtub. It is faced in 1" square clay tiles like the floor and is radiant-heated by hot water pipes the same as the floor. As you steam luxuriously in it, you glimpse outdoors through a window of insulating glass which keeps out cold air and eliminates condensation. Note the plants which thrive in this humid atmosphere. The shower, 4' wide, gives ample space to move around without bruising elbows; walls are 4½" clay tile. Open shelves, in the wall near tub and shower, hold handy towels. Opposite the shower a stainless steel lavatory is sunk in the dressing table; the oblong basin is conveniently large, the counter is faced in small clay tiles and a mirror runs the length of it. This end wall, finished in birch plywood (waterproofed), has recessed shelves next to the counter. The adjoining toilet compartment is plywood. Designed by architect Pietro Belluschi. Clay tiles. Tile Council of America; lavatory fittings, American-Standard; Martex towels.

A bath to keep fit in, an outdoor terrace for sunbathing

This bathroom could double as a small gym to keep the whole family in trim. There's space enough to stretch a mat on the floor and do push ups and other exercises. It also has a sliding glass wall to let the sunlight in or let you out to a flagstone terrace (inset with tile mosaics) where you can work out or rest up. The terrace is protected by a high stone wall for privacy and a windbreak. Indoors, there are a number of ideas worth noting for either a large or small bath. One, an aid to languorous bathing, is the long shelf along the tub for bath salts, scent, soaps and creams, books and magazines. Another is the room-length counter; half of it is at a proper height for standing at the lavatory; the remainder is at dressing table height. Back of the sliding mirrors over half the counter are shelves for storing every kind of bathroom need. Because the counter is hung on the wall the clay tile floor can be mopped quickly or even hosed down. 1" squares are used on walls (in an irregular pattern of glazed and unglazed tiles) and on the 6½' x 3' tub. Designed by architect Marcel Breuer. Clay tiles. Tile Council of America; lavatory, tub fittings, Crane.
MATERIALS

that change the face of the bathroom

Mirrored wall reflects garden outside bath and shower. Capacious countertop of white plastic is easily wiped clean. Wall is white plaster, other walls and floor, gray terrazzo. Countertop has built-in storage drawers below. Draw curtains close the room for privacy. Opaque glass shower (between the two bathrooms) is reflected in the mirror. William S. Beckett, architect.

A Clay tile walls, floor and plastic countertop are hard-wearing and easy to care for. Ample storage is contained beneath countertop for medicine, cosmetics, towels, etc. Room is lighted by plastic ceiling dome, supplemented by bulb lighting above mirror. Eliot Noyes, architect.

Terrazzo floor in first floor powder room takes traffic imperturbably, needs only wet mopping to keep it sparkling. Marble countertop of lavatory also serves as dressing table. Concealed lighting overhead spreads an even light for applying make-up. Enclosed toilet is through the door at right. William Haines, designer.
Marble countertop which includes oval lavatory is easily cleaned with one swish of cloth. White lacquered cabinet beneath provides 7' of storage. Three medicine chests are divided by lighting strips, overhead panel lights the counter. William Haines, designer.

Clay tile is used for counter and for bench; moisture-proof fabric covers wall above them. Glass panel with sliding door encloses shower. Storage wall and drawers under counter hold bulky bathroom supplies. There are twin medicine chests over counter lavatory. Harper Richards, designer.

Pink travertine is used throughout the powder room of this New York apartment, on walls, floor and entire countertop including bowl. Sliding grille doors, below, conceal storage trays for towels. Dressing table drawer is marble-faced. Upholstered stool is made of brass and leather. Harold M. Schwartz, designer.
STORAGE
for bathroom needs should be in the bathroom (not the hall)

Storage on three sides of dressing room, right, includes drawers, sliding door cabinets beneath counter, full-length closets for clothing. All are of red birch, counter is vinyl plastic. Wall space between studs above the two lavatories is used for 5 cubby holes that hold lotions, soap, tooth paste, etc. The tub and the toilet are in an adjoining compartment. Patricia Prechick, designer.

Twin storage cabinet, above the double lavatory counter, also opens to laundry on other side of wall. Towels can be placed directly on the shelves from there. The cabinet is also a double medicine chest. Four ceiling skylights give bright light and a ceiling exhaust fan guarantees fresh air in inside room. John B. Lee, designer.

Bathroom closets, above, are duplicated on either side of room so two small girls have equal storage. Closets contain clothing, built-in drawers are for gloves, handkerchiefs, slips, etc. Shelves hold bags, hats. Room is between girls' bedrooms, and bathroom fixtures are located along inside wall. Twin dressing table has wide mirror, is well lighted by high upper windows. Tucker & Shields, architects.
GOOD LIGHTING

is a boon to good grooming

Lighted ceiling illuminates bathroom brightly and evenly, is vast improvement over usual single ceiling fixture. Fluorescent lamps are attached to ceiling but are screened from view by sheets of translucent plastic hung below them. Lavatory mirror is lighted directly by fluorescent tubes on double medicine chest. Toilet compartment, right, has its own ceiling light. Countertop and walls are splash-proof plastic in a small, over-all geometric pattern. Douglas Hannold and John Rex, architects.

Mirror over combination dressing table and lavatory, left, is lighted on four sides shadowlessly. Frosted glass, flush with mirror, conceals lamp bulbs installed all around it. Ceiling-high windows above mirror give good daytime light. Storage under marble counter includes drawers and pull-out cosmetic bin. Tucker & Shields, architects.

Plastic panel, below, suspended over a large mirror, counter and lavatory, floods them with light. Fluorescent tubes, installed above plastic are connected to each other so there are no gaps or dead spots when light is on. White plastic countertop surface helps reflect light. Daylight in this inside dressing room comes through the skylight. Gates and Ford, architects.

Spotlights over lavatory and dressing table light them directly. Fluorescent tubes under dressing counter light mirror. Skylight dome in ceiling floods room with daylight and high windows bring in fresh air with no loss of privacy. Closets on two sides of dressing room eliminate storage from master bedroom. Shower and toilet are in separate compartments off room. Bain & Overture, architects.
A practical bathroom can be the prettiest room in the house. This one started as a typical old-fashioned bathroom with plenty of space but no place to put things; now it has ample drawer, cupboard and countertop space for both husband and wife. Installed along left wall are twin medicine cabinets, twin lavatories are sunk in a wide countertop with storage cabinets below. The dressing table, center, hides the radiator grille, has twelve drawers. Tub recess, right, has walls of colored structural glass.

A powder room can be built into an ungainly old coat closet. This one makes use of a combination lavatory and dressing table with storage below, and a mirror bordered with lighting behind frosted glass. The marbleized wallboard panels come in several sizes, are easily installed, look handsome and clean easily. Vertical louvers hide outdated window.

REMODELING
New life for old bathrooms

You can sing as lustily in old ironsides as you can in a modern shower, but all singing aside, the real value of an old bathroom lies in the fact that it can be brought up-to-date without too much expense. The space is there, usually a lot of it, and so are the necessary plumbing pipes. It remains for you to put the space to good use, do over worn floors and walls, and have modern fixtures installed. All this is not too costly if (1) you have the new fixtures installed where the old ones were, so they can be connected to the same pipes, and (2) if you take advantage of the new bathroom materials and (3) if you do some of the work yourself. The five remodelings shown here suggest what can be done without costly plumbing changes and with stock materials and fixtures which can be bought through your local dealer or plumber. The results can be exciting and highly satisfactory. Lavatories are built in countertops as long as an executive’s desk. Tubs and showers come with sliding glass or plastic doors. Materials look glamorous, wear like iron.
All the comforts of home, even a magazine rack, are installed in this bathroom under the eaves. (The towel and magazine rack, which also serves as a room divider, is a staple wood frame with brass rods.) To put every inch of space to good use, there are drawers built in on either side of the dormer window, a shelf at the end of the tub, a lavatory with 4½ feet of countertop shelf space. The slanting wall is covered with a washable plastic fabric, other walls are painted. Over-all lighting is supplemented by fluorescent tubes on either side of the medicine cabinet.

For full enjoyment of the bath, towels are hung on a low rod, warmed by baseboard heating strip connected to existing pipe. This bathroom also has wonderful storage and countertop space to spread things out, and the luxury of choice of either tub or glass-doored shower. Plastic-coated wallboard cabinets built around the window hide a corner post and make the room seem wider. Shutter-doored cabinets on either side of the medicine chest hold large bathroom supplies. Floor, wall and countertops are clay tile; the window curtains are polka dot taffeta shower curtain material.

Natural plywood paneled walls (waterproofed) and a tub neatly recessed between built-in cabinets help to make an old bathroom as inviting as a study. Other aids to convenience: tub enclosure of sliding plastic panels (easy to install on metal track cemented to rim of tub); double medicine cabinet with tube lighting above; plastic wall tiles around tub; vinyl tile flooring laid in a bold, oversize checkerboard pattern. Important details are a combination fan and light in the ceiling above the tub, and, to cope with the tub-in-front-of window problem, curtains of waterproof fabric.

BATHROOM IN THREE PARTS

HOUSE & GARDEN's compartmented bathroom is a new concept in planning and design, but it has already passed the public test. More than 33,500 people saw it at the National Retail Lumber Dealers' exhibit in New York. They concluded that the usefulness of a bathroom need not be limited to daily ablutions. The first reaction, "It's wonderful, but it's bigger than our bedroom," was quickly changed to, "It's not only a bath-dressing room; it's like a cabin. You can read, relax, bask in the sun, step into a garden. It's healthful, glamorous and practical, too. It can even be used by three persons at once!" Wardrobe closets, storage cabinets and countertop space won applause for practicality. Visitors liked the color scheme, floor-to-ceiling mirrors, plant box. Study these points in the pictures on the next two pages:

- It has fewer fixtures than two bathrooms but two or three persons can use it in privacy because it is divided into three sections, has doors to master bedroom and hall.
- There are separate dressing and bath areas for husband and wife. Floor-to-ceiling wardrobes eliminate the need for clothes closets in the master bedroom, allow that room more wall space for better furniture arrangement.
- There is a lounging area with sun cot and lamp, and a cabinet to hold books, magazines, writing supplies, sun glasses, lotions, radio, pillows and a comforter.
- A sliding glass wall behind the sun cot opens to a small garden with louvered fence. This idea is as healthful as it is glamorous, provides fresh air, sunny warmth and light.
- Storage space adds up to 500 cubic feet of closets and drawers to hold the complete wardrobe of husband and wife, plus bath supplies and linens; also, 9½ feet of cabinets under counter.
- Plastic-covered countertop extends on either side of main lavatory, turns the corner with a plant box sunk in the L, and continues on to the edge of the bathtub.
- Shower has plastic sliding doors on two sides; these doors can be latched on the inside by the bather.
- Spot and over-all lighting includes spotlights above lavatory counter and above lounging area; dressing section is lighted by fluorescent tubes behind plastic ceiling; tube lights also flank lavatory mirrors.
- Mirrors are everywhere: on four floor-to-ceiling closet doors; in the toilet compartment; above lavatories.
- All fabrics can go into the washing machine. Examples: white terry cloth cot cover; pink, black and white denim slipcovers.
- Accessories and little conveniences are both smart looking and practical: big round towel rings, a portable battery radio to take out to the garden, thick thirsty towels, and wide-mouthed apothecary jars for soap, bath powder and bath salts.

Building materials and equipment are stock and can be bought at lumber dealers, hardware stores, or through plumbers.

Materials, Equipment: Fixtures, American-Standard; clay tile, Cambridge Tile; countertops, Formica; mirrors, Libbey-Owens-Ford; plastic ceiling, Alysrite; lighting, Lightolier; towel rods and rings, General Chrome; vinyl tile floor, American Biltrite; towels, Cannon.
THREE COMPARTMENTS,
AS USEFUL AS THREE BATHROOMS

This glamorous bath-dressing room, pink and pretty, is fitted with every creature comfort. You can suntan indoors and outdoors, splash merrily from a large tub, make up at the well lighted dressing table-lavatory. Yet the whole room is built of standard building materials and equipment; delicate as they look they will stand rugged wear. Walls are redwood boards painted in H & G carnation pink; pink and white floors are resilient vinyl. Tub walls are white tile, shower walls are pink tile. Countertop is white plastic, lavatories and tub are stock fixtures in gray.

Storage compartment

Right: Bird's-eye view looking into three-part bathroom. Room is divided into storage area at left, toilet compartment, top, left, and bath-dressing area with tub, cot, lavatory countertop.

Bath-dressing compartment

Above: This compartment has space for terry covered cot (to use for nap or sun lamp). Tub is in tiled alcove and shower is reached through sliding plastic door which latches. Extra-long plastic countertop (9½') includes oversized platinum gray lavatory and storage cabinets under its entire length. There is a 4-foot closet next to it for towels, dressing gowns. Window wall, with draw blinds, opens on small fenced garden terrace for sun bathing, lounging or exercise.
Window wall and terrace add sunny warmth, garden view to room, can be screened by blinds. Mirror doors, left, conceal storage wall. Lavatory is in countertop.

Gray lavatory is enclosed by wide counters.

COLOR SCHEMES
FOR YOUR BATHROOM

You can create a big effect in small space if you have the courage to mix colors, textures and patterns as freely in your bathroom as you do in other rooms.

1. Today, you have such a wide choice of colors in everything from tiles to towels that you can make your bathroom as gay as the rest of your house. Like any small room, it will look larger if you choose one color and range it up and down the scale. Here, tile, washable plastic wall covering and fixtures are beige. Stripping the floor with rubber tiles makes the room seem longer. Towels are H&G's mocha and Dresden blue. Shower curtain with butterfly motif adds a bright accent. L. E. Carpenter wall covering; Fieldcrest towels (bath size $1.98); Kleinert shower curtain ($4.95).

2. An all-white bathroom need not look stark if you know how to use a splash of color where it counts. For example, you could put cerulean blue vinyl tile with white inset strips on the floor. You can repeat the vivid shade of blue in the shower curtain, as was done here. Ribbed towels in H&G's emerald green and white complete the scheme. Ames saffron shower curtain ($8.95); Wamsutta towels (bath size $2.98).

3. If you are planning a bedroom with its own private bath, why not let them share the same color scheme? Here, the floors of both rooms are covered in vinyl tile, laid in a checkerboard pattern. Pink moiré-textured wallpaper is used in the bedroom and on sliding doors of the bathroom (coat it with plastic for water-resistance). The bath tub is framed by pink tile and a pink taffeta shower curtain. Pink towels with black borders, white towels with black monograms tie in. Amico vinyl tile flooring; Inkson shower curtain ($9.95); Callaway towels (bath size $1.98).

Shopping information on page 127.

Related designs: Shower curtain by Kleinert ($7.95); Cannon towels (bath size $2); Detecto scale ($7.95).

Contrasting patterns: Celanese shower curtain by Jackson ($7.95); striped towels by Martex (bath size $2).

Regency motifs: Harlequin plastic shower curtain, Para ($4.98); Martex crown-patterned towels (bath size $2).

A GUIDE TO GOOD PLUMBING

If you understand modern plumbing, you can save money when you build, cut down your repairs and maintenance.

Modern plumbing, one of the greatest conveniences of the present day home, still remains a mystery to the average homeowner. This is largely because the greater part of a plumbing system is buried behind walls and ceiling with only the fixtures exposed. The average homeowner is more often concerned with what he sees rather than with the mechanics which make plumbing work. In brief it consists of a network of piping, equipped with shut-offs and valves, which brings water into our homes and also removes harmful wastes. Nothing affects our welfare and health more than its efficient performance, and every homeowner, if he wishes to safeguard his investment and his family's well-being, should thoroughly understand it and know how it operates.

The average home plumbing system is quite a simple affair. It is made up of three distinct parts: (1) the water supply to the fixtures; (2) the fixtures themselves; sinks, bathtubs, toilets, washers and hot water tanks; (3) the drainage system that carries waste from the house to sewer or septic tank. Since all of these parts, if carefully selected and used, will last the lifespan of a house, the wise homeowner should know the exact duties of each. As most of us know what the fixtures look like and do, we will, in the following paragraphs explain the makeup and duties of water supply and drainage.

THE WATER SUPPLY SYSTEM

In most urban and suburban areas, water is brought into a house by tapping a main water line, provided by the community, and located below the surface of the street. To do its job well, the supply system should be able to deliver water to all fixtures at the rate needed. Many factors contribute to this efficiency: pipe sizes, water pressure, length and run of pipe lines and the number of fixtures that will be used at the same time. Most of us know the inconvenience of a shower that suddenly ebbs when the kitchen faucet is turned on, an indication that pipes are undersized for the water pressure within them and, so, cannot do a proper job.

The house service pipe which connects the house system to the city street main should be run underground where it will be protected against frost or traffic damage. It should never be placed below a driveway. For the average house, this service pipe can be galvanized wrought iron, 1" or 1½" in diameter, or copper, ¾" or 1" in diameter. Your local plumber will advise the right size for your specific needs. Control of the water flow through this pipe is by an underground shut-off valve, located at the property line. A vertical pipe extends from this valve to the surface through which the valve is turned on or off by means of a special long-handled wrench.

Directly inside the house, near the foundation walls, another valve controls the flow of water to the fixtures and allows draining of all water out of the pipes whenever the house is to be unoccupied over a long cold period. A water meter, which indicates to the local authorities the amount of water consumed over a certain period, is placed near this valve.

Pointers on cutting plumbing costs

Cut down on pipes by placing bath and kitchen fixtures back-to-back on common wall or directly over each other.

Save expensive cutting of joists and studs. Install plumbing lines and built-in fixtures first, build partitions around them later.

Prefabricated plumbing units (right) save cost of assembling and installing separate parts of conventional "plumber's tree", left.

Water softeners exchange minerals in hard water for sodium, cut laundry costs, help pipes and water heaters work efficiently.
Water supply piping inside a house should be carefully selected to withstand the corrosive effects of the water. It should also impart no color, odor or taste to the water. Your plumber will tell what kind is best for your locality. The most common materials used for bringing water from the inside shut-off valve to the fixtures are: brass (an alloy of copper in tube or flexible form), galvanized steel, and galvanized wrought iron. Most plumbing fixtures have their own shut-off valves nearby, which allow control of water to individual fixtures; these should be exposed.

DIGGING A WELL

If your house is in the country, away from a city water supply, you will have to dig a well to get water for your house.

Finding water can be expensive since you'll have to hire a well digger who will charge by the foot and his rates increase as he goes deeper. Get the advice of a competent geologist. His experience with topographical and geological formations will prove invaluable in determining where water is most likely to be found. This same advice can also be obtained, without charge, at the state or county Department of Health. A well close to the house will cut trench digging and pipe costs, but modern pumping methods can provide water, at the proper pressure, no matter what the distance. Since most pumps are apt to be noisy, locate yours outside the house protected by a small roofed-over enclosure. Never locate a well where contamination may occur. Stay away from barns, stables, dry wells or septic tanks. If possible, dig your well on top of a hill where the water will not be affected by rain or melting snow.

Wells, as a rule, are divided into two groups: those that go no farther underground than 22 feet are called shallow wells; those that go beyond this depth are deep wells. The water in a shallow well may vary according to season or rainfall and may even go dry during long periods of drought. They are also susceptible to contamination from surface water. For a continuous supply of clear water, free from pollution, a deep well is preferred even though the original digging costs may be more. Pumping costs will run about the same for both. When water is found, have it analyzed by a State Water Department expert and get his recommendations. Piping from well to house should be of the same material and sizes recommended above for city or suburbs.

THE DRAINAGE SYSTEM

When we consider that the average house disposes of 200 gallons of sewage and dirty water a day, the importance of a good drainage system becomes dramatically apparent. A breakdown may well affect the health of the occupants. Pipes for drainage are larger than those that supply water since, in the latter, water travels under pressure, whereas the flow in drain pipes depends entirely on gravity. They must also be carefully pitched for a steady, even flow. The drainage system is composed of three parts: (1) The traps which provide a water seal to prevent the back flow of air or sewer gas into the house. Often these are part of the fixtures themselves and must always be exposed and accessible. (2) The drainage lines to discharge from the fixtures to the sewer or septic tank. Vertical drainage lines are called stacks; those that run horizontally are called branches. Pipes which discharge from the toilets are referred to as soil lines; those receiving discharge from other fixtures are waste lines. Some building codes require a grease trap in the waste line from the kitchen sink to prevent grease or oil from entering the sewer. For efficient service these traps must be cleaned frequently. (3) The vent lines are pipes which extend up and above the roof. They equalize the pressure in the system and allow air to flow into or out of drainage pipes. They also protect the water seal in the traps.

We designed this small, pie-shaped garden for your child and his playmates. It is arranged in quarters so that each child can have a section of his own. From one to four children can work in it. The garden plot is only 3 ft. wide and about 25 ft. in circumference. In it there is a combination of fast-growing flowers and vegetables which are easy to plant, cultivate and harvest. If your child wants to plant only one quarter of the garden, he may. Each section is free-standing and has its own color scheme and plant list, as shown on the plan below. Whether one or all four areas are planted, your advice and helping hand will be needed when weeds, drought, crows or wet weather put a damper on the children's enthusiasm. At the start, the example you set your child as a good gardener is important, for children are quick to imitate by watching your planting tricks. The location of the garden should be a sunny spot, preferably near the play-yard, and if the sod is hard, take a hand in the digging as soon as the ground is workable in spring. Your child will need a crop list, a planting plan drawn on (Continued on page 122)

How to lay clay tile on walls and floors

Special adhesives have been developed for clay tile which make it easier to install. Formerly set in cement mortar which had to be carefully mixed and applied, it took several days to dry. The new adhesives are fast drying and make this undertaking much easier for the amateur. Clay tile, made in 200 shades of basic colors, is waterproof, fireproof, durable, easily cleaned, colorfast, stainproof. The most familiar tile is the glazed 4½" square but there are clay mosaics in 1" squares and other shapes. Floor tile is available in a wide range of patterns and color including quarry tile for both floors and terraces in 6" squares.

Use a carpenter's level to establish level line for the bottom row of tiles to be laid on wall over floor or tub. Draw level line on wall with a ruler. If the floor or tub is not quite level, it will be necessary to cut tiles to keep level line for succeeding rows.

Apply adhesive to the back of each tile in the bottom row with a putty knife or spatula. Press each tile in place with a slight twisting motion using sufficient pressure to spread the adhesive into a uniform ¼" thick adhesive bed. If you apply too much adhesive it will seep into the joints between the tiles. Clean joints before cementing.

After laying bottom row, spread a thin layer of adhesive evenly over several square feet of wall area to be tiled. Read directions on can for length of time adhesive will work. Apply the adhesive with the special notched trowel that can be bought at most hardware stores or from your tile contractor. Make sure that wall surface is cleaned of all grease, dust, dirt, calcimine and water before laying on adhesive.

CAUTION: Never smoke when you are working with inflammable adhesives.

Rich, gleaming walls are enduringly yours when you choose Tilemaster tiles. You can express your own good taste in America's widest range of decorator tile colors—40 varieties of lustrous pastels, pearlescents and warm, deep tones. Tilemaster's exclusive Bev-all* arched construction adds amazing brilliance and depth. And the patented Mastic-seal rib* seals out all water . . . locks tiles to the wall for a lifetime. Kitchen, bathroom, powder room or utility room walls are surprisingly beautiful when tiled with Tilemaster Styron Wall Tile. Equally surprising is the common sense cost that creates such luxury while increasing the value of your home. You can enjoy installing Tilemaster walls yourself, but for a superb professional installation see your Tilemaster dealer soon.

Toothpicks stuck in adhesive between tiles will maintain the proper half" joint which is later filled with white tile cement. You can remove toothpicks when adhesive has set. Many tiles are made with edge "lugs" which automatically space the tiles on the wall.

Soak joints between tiles with a wet sponge at least four times at five-minute intervals before filling joints with commercial white cement. Apply cement to tile joints with a fiber brush. Sketch shows small window squeegee being used to force cement into joints and at the same time clean excess from the face of the tile before cement is able to dry.

Remove excess cement from the tile faces with a damp sponge or cloth. Finish cement joints with the head of a clothes pin for neat appearance. Moisten joints with a sponge several times in the next three or four days so that cement will harden properly. Polish finished work with dry cloth.

Small, unglazed tiles are pasted to 1' x 2' sheets of paper for easy installation. Lay tiles carefully over a clean, level subfloor covered with a thin layer of adhesive. Let tile set for a day. Fill joints with equal parts waterproof cement and fine sand with a minimum of water.

About 25 miles southeast, the ruins of Mitla bake in the steady sun. On the way you should stop at Santa Maria del Tule (Holy Mary of the Bullfinch), with its huge cypress called the Great Tree of Tule, the largest tree in all Mexico, reaching about 160 feet into the sky and spreading outward 140 feet. It is supposed to have been standing 1,000 years before Columbus. The ruins of Mitla are among the finest in this hemisphere. The Hall of Monoliths has six porphyritic columns without capitals or pedestals, supposedly unique in the Americas. The exterior and interior walls are covered with extraordinary stone mosaic reliefs placed in abstract patterns and so perfectly cut and fitted that in most cases no mortar was used.

On the Gulf of Mexico is Yucatán. You can fly there in 2 1/2 hours from Mexico City. This is the heart of the Mayan civilization and is filled with architectural wonders: the great ruins of Chichén-Itzá, the nunnery, Governor’s Palace and pyramid crowned by two temples, and Izamal which is even older than Chichén-Itzá. The light is blinding and you must remember to keep your head covered. If you’re really adventurous, trips can be made into the jungle to Kabah, Sazil or Labna.

Two hundred miles north of Mexico City, through fields of maguey and corn, rests Querétaro in a region of semi-precious stones. On the Hill of Bells stands a memorial to Maximilian built by the Hapsburgs. One hundred and eighty miles beyond, Guadalajara, an easy, aristocratic city set amid gentle hills. A city largely unchanged and full of the feeling of colonial Spain. Its fantastic cathedral is a wedding of Gothic, Tuscan, Arabic, Corinthian, Byzantine, Mudéjar and Doric styles.

When you go to Mexico take along copies of Prescott’s Conquest of Mexico, D. H. Lawrence’s The Plumed Serpent and Mornings in Mexico, Covarrubias’ Mexico South and the Penguin edition of G. C. Vaillant’s The Aztecs of Mexico.

How to get there

By train: The Missouri Pacific from St. Louis to Laredo, then over the tracks of the Mexican National Railways to Mexico City. The Pennsylvania Railroad has a through service to San Antonio where you make a similar change. The New York Central and the Baltimore and Ohio require a change-over at St. Louis as well as the Sun Antonio transfer.

By car: There is not much automobile traffic and roads are generally good. Check your automobile insurance policy to see if it covers you in Mexico. Be sure to carry extra water and gas as distances between service stations are sometimes great. You will have to get a permit from the Mexican customs on entry. It is good for six months and is not renewable.

Protect your most precious possession with AIRTEMP YEAR 'ROUND AIR CONDITIONING

Ever since this little fellow's first breath of life was spanked into his body, he has depended on air. And like all of us, he will depend on air the rest of his life.

At the hospital the air in his incubator was carefully regulated. Now the air in his new home will be controlled by Airtemp Year 'Round Air Conditioning.

For this fortunate youngster's health and comfort are held as a sacred trust. His parents realize that air is more vital to his life than food or water. They also realize that ordinarily this vital air is filled with smog, dust, pollen, and germs.

So they want to protect their precious baby from this contaminated air and from excess heat and cold, humidity and dryness. With Airtemp they can keep him always in the 70-to-80-degree Comfort Zone. And everything about the air will be controlled—automatically—the filtering, temperature, humidity, and circulation of fresh, pure air to all parts of his new home.

So this baby is getting off to a fine start in an Airtemp air conditioned home—because he has parents who care.

Good plumbing is the basis of a healthy home

Like liberty, good plumbing demands eternal vigilance. The system must be kept in first rate condition to function well. Here are facts to guide you in maintaining it or making necessary repairs yourself.

The right tools for the job

Equipment you will need to repair and maintain your plumbing system includes: (1) spring steel snake; (2) plunger to clear clogged drains; (3) wrench to tighten and loosen pipe connections; (4) screwdriver to replace faucet washers; (5) friction tape to stop minor leaks temporarily.

A clogged drain is the most common plumbing problem.

The kitchen drain is the most frequently clogged because it is the most used and is often abused with grease and food waste. To clear the drain, first remove the strainer. If you can see the obstruction, pull it out with a long wire, knife, or screwdriver. If you can't, apply suction to the pipe with a plunger (plumber's friend) after pouring boiling water and ammonia down the drain. If the drain still will not open, remove the plug from the U-trap under the fixture and probe the pipe with a spring snake or wire to remove the clog. If there is no plug in the trap, you will have to remove the entire U-shaped pipe section before inserting snake. Unfasten plug or pipe over a bucket to catch waste water.

Basement floor drains often fall with dust, dirt and grease. To clean, remove the grating from the top of the drain and scoop out the clogging material. Use a long wire or spring snake to get through the U-shaped trap and further into the pipe. After you have loosened and dislodged the dirt, flush the pipe with boiling water. The U-shaped trap just beyond the drain opening acts as a water seal to prevent waste line odors from seeping back into the house. Floor drains that are not often used should be filled with water every month to keep the seal.

To clear clogged drainpipes, first place pail under trap beneath basin to catch waste water. Un-screw plug at base of trap. Probe pipe with wire or snake to dislodge clogging material. At U-trap does not have clean-out plug, remove entire pipe section.
Insulation protects pipes against condensation and heat loss.

WARM, moist air condenses when it passes over cold pipe surfaces. This is most likely to occur in the summer when air is hot and humid. The beads of water on the pipes do not mean that the piping in your house is faulty. You can stop the condensation by wrapping the pipes with insulation made for the purpose, available at hardware stores. If a toilet tank continues to "sweat" hours after being flushed, it is a sign that there is a leak in the supply valve, permitting cold water to circulate through the tank. This circulation cools the outside of the tank, providing a cool surface for condensation. A plumber will be needed to fix the valve. There are toilets made with a double tank cast as one piece, with an air space between the walls which eliminates condensation of moisture.

Pipes that provide hot water for heating and washing should be insulated to prevent loss of heat to surrounding air. Insulating pipe will save you money on fuel bills. There are special tubular forms made for this purpose that will snap over all standard pipe sizes 1/2" and up. (See sketch on the right.)

Frozen pipes will burst if not thawed slowly.

If a water pipe freezes, do not try to thaw it quickly with a blow torch or hot flame. The expansion due to the severe heat may burst the pipe. The best way to thaw the piping is to use heavy cloths or towels soaked in hot water and wrapped around the piping. Also effective is electrical heating tape wound around the pipe and plugged into an 110-volt AC circuit. The best solution is the precaution of insulating all pipes that might be exposed to freezing temperatures.

Leaks in pipes and faucets waste thousands of gallons of water a year.

If your piping develops a leak, turn off the water supply at the main valve and call a plumber. If the leak is minor, you can regain water service until he arrives by tapping with friction or rubber tape and re-opening the main valve.

A leaking faucet is an irritating distraction and a money waste. A leak at the rate of sixty drops a minute (not unusual) will waste 2,250 gallons every year. A faucet usually drips because the washer at the bottom of the handle stem is worn out. Before you begin to replace the washer, shut off the water. If there is no shut-off valve under the fixture, you will have to turn off the main valve in the basement. When the water is shut off, unscrew the nut around the stem of the faucet. Use a closed wrench to avoid marring chromium fittings. When nut is loosened, turn handle in "ON" direction and stem can be lifted out of faucet. Washer is at bottom of stem held on by screw. Remove screw, pry off old washer and replace with new one of correct size. Washers of long-lasting neoprene are made for use on both hot and cold water faucets. The valve seat, into which the washer lowers, should be cleaned with a piece of cloth. A badly nicked or worn valve seat should be replaced by a plumber. You will find it faster and more economical if you unscrew the fitting and Spring-steel snare or anger effectively clears clogged water closets. The coil is inserted in drain opening, worked past trap and down into pipe. Turning handle rotates spring wire that drills through obstruction in pipe. Use a lightweight, flexible wire about 10" long. Work carefully to avoid cracking the bowl.

Color, and "Lacey Ledge" matched bathroom accessories can make your bathroom truly the prettiest room in the house. Shelves, cabinets, tissue holders, Hampers, etc., keep everything in place and so beautifully convenient. The full-color, hand-painted floral designs echo or contrast with walls and equipment. Lacey-look pierced galleries give a dainty look to these most useful accessories. And what an inspiration for an impressive, economical gift! Crafted of durable metal, finished in chip-resistant, washable, baked enamel decorator colors. Wine, black, white, gray, blue, pink, yellow, lt. green, foliage green.

Pipe insulation for cold and hot water service lines, and steam and hot water heating pipes, is made in 3' lengths. 3' tube snaps over pipe and is held with metal clips. Insulation prevents freezing pipes; cuts heat loss from hot pipes to reduce fuel bills.

Cross-section of faucet shows where (a) water enters faucet from supply pipe; (b) valve seat and (c) washer on end of handle stem that comprise the shut-off valve of the faucet; (d) spout that supplies water to basin.

This is #2 in a series of articles to help you determine the right rug for you.

How to size up a carpet for your room

A good fit is just as important in carpeting as it is in a pair of shoes. It makes all the difference in the comfort and style of your room. There are three basic types of carpeting for you to consider: wall-to-wall, room-size rug, area rug. Each type has certain advantages that must be weighed in relation to the shape of a room and what you use it for, the condition of your floors, the style of your decoration and your own personal taste.

Contour carpeting

Wall-to-wall carpeting gives a room, hall or stairway what is often called the "unfurnished" look. Because it follows the contour of a room it looks as though it had been poured into it. For this reason, if a room is cut up by doors and reveals (as is the bed-sitting room opposite) wall-to-wall carpeting will unify it. It seems to erase irregular lines and soften sharp corners. It is also a good way to camouflage a floor that is badly gouged or scratched. Any room (and it doesn't have to be a problem room) will take on a feeling of warmth and luxuriousness when it's covered from wall to wall.

If you have several small, connecting rooms, wall-to-wall carpeting is an excellent color link. You can use it as the basis for a related color scheme. The same is true if you have an entrance hall that opens directly into a living room. Wall-to-wall carpeting has acoustical value, too. It absorbs the impact of heels and any reverberations from outside. For this reason, many families like to use it in halls and stairways where sounds are apt to plummet through the house.

Invisible seams and tacking

Old-fashioned methods of seaming and installing wall-to-wall carpets were anything but subtle. When you buy carpeting today, lengths are matched and invisibly seamed or taped together from the underside for a one-piece look. Instead of having your carpet installed by the turn-under-and-tack method, you can have it done without a tack mark showing. This "tackless" method works on the principle of a certain stretcher. Narrow strips of plywood, equipped with slanted steel pins, are nailed down (or in the case of concrete, glued down with linoleum paste) along the four walls of the room. The rug padding is laid next, and trimmed flush with the wood strips. Your carpeting is then hooked to the strip of nails along one wall, stretched, and hooked firmly along the opposite wall. You can have either a simple rolled edge or a sealed edge (the carpet is laid), or a central motif. If you prefer a plain color, choose a rug with a well-scaled, allover design or a central motif. If you prefer a plain color, you might consider a rug with a carved border. You have a wide selection of standard-sized (6' x 9', 9' x 12', 12' x 15') rugs today, as well as the 9', 12' and 15' widths in rolls that you can have cut any length you desire.

Room-size rugs

In a room of average proportions, it may be to your advantage to buy a good-sized rug that gives the effect of wall-to-wall carpeting. This is particularly true if you are renting a house or apartment. The practical virtues are that a rug can be switched around to save wear, rolled up and taken away when you want it cleaned or stored for a season. Not so many years ago, it was customary to select a room-size rug that slipped under the front legs of the sofa only, leaving back legs and end tables to retire on the bare floor. Today, however, larger lamp tables and even commodores are becoming popular, and pieces of this scale look awkward when they are half-on, half-off a rug. If you have such pieces in your home, you'll probably find it makes more sense to use a rug that either nearly covers the room (6' from walls) or is 2½'-3' short of the walls, letting your sofas and other pieces rest evenly. If your room can accommodate pattern you might like a rug with a well-scaled, allover design or a central motif. If you prefer a plain color, you might consider a rug with a carved border. You have a wide selection of standard-sized (6' x 9', 9' x 12', 12' x 15') rugs today, as well as the 9', 12' and 15' widths in rolls that you can have cut any length you desire.

Area rugs

The area rug is one of the most popular solutions for open-plan rooms found in, so many one-story and split-level homes today. When there are few solid walls to define your living areas, you can rely on decorating devices. The area rug is used to delineate a particular grouping of furniture (for conversation, dining, games, music). It enables you to create, in effect, a room within a room. An area rug will enhance a section of your room that might otherwise be beautiful but cold. There is a wide selection of patterns, including fanciful Scandinavian designs, bold geometric Moroccan types, American Indian designs, tapestries or hooked rugs that can serve as either traditional or contemporary accents.
Wall-to-wall carpeting smooths out any irregularities in the shape of a room and makes it seem larger than it is. In this bed-sitting room, a rugged, tweedy-textured carpet harmonizes with grasscloth walls. Decorator, Melanie Kahane.

This room-size rug leaves a 2' 1/2" to 3' strip of floor bare so that large pieces of furniture can rest evenly. Its carved border adds interest and is in keeping with the classic lines of the furniture. Photographed at Baker Furniture showrooms.

An area rug, if it is well chosen, will not only set off a particular grouping of furniture but serve as an accent for your room. Here, a fringed, white wool rug with arabesque design in two colors underlines a living room conversation area.

MAGIC FROM CANS

CRAB BISQUE

- 2 T green pepper, chopped
- 2 T onion, chopped
- 1 T butter
- 1 T flour
- 2 C milk
- 1 can crab meat (6½ oz. can)
- ½ t salt
- ½ t pepper
- 1 t paprika
- 3 T sherry

Garnish: minced parsley

Saute the green pepper and onion in the butter for 5 minutes. Put in an electric blender with the flour, milk and crab meat free of cartilage. Add salt, pepper, paprika and blend for 20 seconds. Heat in double boiler until smooth and thick. Just before serving, add sherry. Garnish the tureen with minced parsley.

Time required: 20 minutes
Quantity produced: 3½ cups (4 small servings)

SALMON BISQUE

- 1 can celery soup (10 oz. can), undiluted
- 1 canful of milk
- 1 can salmon (8 oz. can or 1 cup)
- 2 rings green pepper (optional but good)
- ½ t chopped onion
- ½ t paprika
- ½ t salt

Garnish: cucumber slices or minced parsley

Put all ingredients except the garnish in an electric blender, in the order given. Blend 20 seconds. Heat in double boiler until smooth and thick. (If you do not have a blender, simmer all together for 10 minutes, then puree through sieve or food mill.) Serve in tureen or bowls, with cucumber slices or minced parsley.

Time required: 15 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 quart (4 good servings)

SCOTCH BROTH DE LUXE

- 1 can Scotch broth (10 oz. can)
- 1 can water
- ½ can kidney beans
- ½ t rosemary
- 3 T sherry

2 T minced parsley

Combine Scotch broth, water, beans and rosemary in a saucepan, stir well and simmer 15 minutes. Just before serving, add sherry, parsley.

Time required: 20 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 scant quart (4 good servings)

BLACK BEAN SOUP

- 1 can black bean soup (10 oz. can)
- ½ can consomme diluted with ½ can water
- 1 T deviled ham
- 2 T sherry

FEBRUARY, 1955

Fry the onion, celery leaves and parsley, and the bacon, chopped, in one tablespoonful of the butter. Add clams, clam juice, milk, potatoes, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Simmer 10 minutes. Dump in a can of fastboiler, mashing them with a wire potato masher. Simmer another 10 minutes. Just before serving, melt the second tablespoonful of butter atop the chowder.

Time required: 25 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 1/2 quarts (8 servings)

CLAM COOLER
3 C clam juice
1 C tomato juice
Lemon slices

Blend the juices and chill thoroughly. Serve in cups garnished with slices of lemon. This is delicious served with saltines spread with Liederkranz cheese.

Time required: 3 minutes, exclusive of chilling
Quantity produced: 1 quart

GARDEN SOUP
1 quart spiced tomato juice
1/4 C grated carrot
1/4 C grated celery
1/4 C grated green pepper
1/4 t Worcestershire sauce
Garnish: sour cream

Have tomato juice thoroughly chilled. Add remaining ingredients except garnish and serve cold. Garnish each bowl with a spoonful of sour cream. (This soup may be made in a blender, in which case the vegetables need only be sliced, not grated. However, the grainy texture of the soup, one of its pleasant qualities, is lost in blending.)

Time required: 15 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 quart (4 servings)

CHICKEN CONSOMMÉ
1 quart chicken consommé, undiluted
1/4 C coarsely chopped raw spinach
1/4 C coarsely chopped lettuce
Few sprigs chopped watercress
1/4 C celery, sliced paper thin
2 scallions, sliced paper thin

Bring the soup to a boil, then simmer the vegetables in it, just long enough to make them tender without losing their crisp texture—about 5 to 7 minutes.

Time required: 10 minutes
Quantity produced: 1 quart (4 servings)

LUNCHEON TOMATO SOUP
1 can tomato soup, undiluted (10 oz. can)
Equal quantity chicken broth
1 T chopped chives
1 T chopped fresh basil (optional)

Stir soups together, heat to boiling. Serve sprinkled with chives and fresh basil.

Time required: 5 minutes
Quantity produced: 2 1/2 cups (2 good servings)

is often dictated by the local plumbing code. When no code exists, the following types are recommended: for the house sewer which connects the house to the outside sewer or septic tank, cast iron, vitrified tile, concrete or fiber pipe; underground piping inside house, cast iron; concealed piping within house, cast iron, galvanized wrought iron or steel, brass, copper or lead; exposed drainage piping, chrome-plated on brass. In suburban or thickly populated areas, the house sewer is connected to a main sewer provided by the community. Where this service is not available, a private sewage system must be built. Many local agencies, state or county health departments will aid in correctly designing such a system and their advice should be sought and recommendations followed since they are familiar with local soil conditions. A private sewage system is composed of two parts, the septic tank and the drainage field, both underground and located in any convenient spot, although never where they may cause the pollution of a water supply. For the sake of economy, locate the tank and field at the shortest distance from the house sewer on that side of the house with the largest yard area. A septic tank should never be closer than 5' to the house or less than 50' from source of water supply.

There are many commercial types of septic tank to choose from. It should be of adequate size, watertight and constructed of materials that won't be affected by the contents or soil conditions. The design should make it readily accessible for inspection and cleaning. In well-organized communities, inspection of the private sewage system is required before it is covered up. The absorption field which carries the liquid effluent from the septic tank is usually made up of a series of pipe lines designed for equal distribution over a large area and laid with open joints. They may be of agricultural tile, ball and spigot clay tile, perforated piping of bituminized fiber or other non-metallic materials and should slope away from the house and water supply source. The waste from all household plumbing, including kitchen and laundry sinks and washing machines, should be discharged into the plumbing system and then into the septic tank. Grease traps are not considered necessary for household sink discharges into a septic tank nor where a food waste disposer has been installed. Rain or melting snow, however, should never be drained into the septic tank since they disturb the chemical reaction; they should be directed away from both the tank and drainage field. Commercial products that aid the bacterial action in the septic system, prevent stoppages, and reduce the need for pumping out the tanks frequently are now available.
In essence the personal memoir of a remarkable career, Always in Vogue is also a fascinating account of the growth and development of the whole world of fashion in the last 60 years. With sure and intimate knowledge, Mrs. Chase takes the reader behind the scenes to meet the leading designers, artists, photographers, and fashionable women of our era. It is both her story and Vogue’s story, as only Edna Woolman Chase could tell it. The result is witty and penetrating social history, filled with lively anecdotes and wise comments on the world she has seen. With 32 pages of illustrations.

We are pleased to be able to offer our readers autographed copies of Always in Vogue at the regular price of $5.00.

Noisy plumbing has three sounds

Some plumbing systems make odd oises. The experts have divided the noises into three categories: Hammer, chatter, and whistle. Hammering caused by a lack of air absorption space in the piping, it can usually be stopped by installing a short length of pipe in the wall above the point where the supply pipe joins the fixture. This added air space takes the shock of the have to shut off water in an emergency. Label valve with tag.

Draining plumbing in a closed house is a necessity in cold climates

If you have a summer house or must leave your permanent home without hot water during the cold weather you will have to drain the plumbing so that it will not be damaged by freezing. To do this:

Close the main shut-off valve from the street water line.

Open all faucets on house fixtures to drain water to the level of the lowest fixture in house. After all faucets have drained, open basement main faucet and let water run into pail. Make sure that horizontal lengths and loops in pipes have drained. It may be necessary to apply air pressure or disconnect the piping in these spots to drain out the water. After the water supply piping has been drained, the U-traps under sinks, bathtubs and toilets will have to be opened and drained. The traps under sinks and basins are usually easy to get at, but traps in toilets and bat-tubs will probably have to be pumped out or siphoned. The water in toilet bowls and tanks will have to be si-

"¡Valiente!" cried the Spanish admiral

He cheered as his launch fished this man and seven more waterlogged American sailors out of Santiago Harbor, Cuba, on the morning of June 4, 1898. This was straining Spanish chivalry to the breaking point, for Richmond Hobson (right) and his little suicide crew had spent the previous night taking a ship into the harbor entrance under a hail of cannonade and deliberately sinking her in an attempt to bottle up the Spanish fleet.

Hobson, who planned and supervised every detail of the operation, from placing the scuttling charges to dropping anchor under fire, was actually an engineer, not a line officer.

In Santiago Harbor, he led his first and only action against the enemy. But his cool-headed daring made him as much a hero of the day as Admiral Dewey. And proved again that America's most valuable product is Americans.

These Americans—proudly confident of their nation's future—are the people who stand behind United States Series E Savings Bonds. They are the people who, by their spirit and abilities, make these Bonds one of the world's finest investments.

pure, and I've tried many ways. The method I dislike least is the French: gash them criss-cross, toss them with a little oil in a frying pan over a hot flame, and then dry them in the oven for a few minutes, hoping that the inner skin will detach itself easily.

SUPPA DI CASTAGNE

2 cups peeled chestnuts
1 large onion
2 carrots
2 leeks
2 stalks of celery
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 quarts veal or chicken stock
6 sprigs of parsley
3 cloves
Salt and pepper
1/2 cup cream
2 tablespoons brandy
Grated Parmesan cheese

Peel enough chestnuts to make two full cups. Chop coarsely the onion, carrots, leeks and celery and brown them for 10 minutes in the olive oil, in the bottom of the soup kettle. Then add the chestnuts, stock, parsley, cloves, a good dusting of pepper and 1 tablespoonful of salt (less, if the stock is already salted). Let the soup boil gently until the vegetables are soft, at least 1 hour.

Pick out a few whole chestnuts for the tureen, and purée the soup in a food mill, Idender or fine strainer. Prepare the tureen, and puree the soup in the tureen, with the glistening conifer supper party; bortsch steams or cold. For a February after-the-soup pot. When they are lightly browned, stir in the flour, lift the heels of the soup, and strain out the remaining broth into the vegetables; add the soup meat, sliced thick, and the lasagna, sliced thin. Scrape and grate the tenth beet, raw, into the soup to color it; add a tablespoon of the vinegar, and taste for more salt or vinegar.

Add 1/2 cup of sour cream to be spooned into the soup bowl, always served flanked by a dish of sour cream. Russian bortsch, epitome of beet soups, transcends, ruby-colored, is always served flanked by a dish of sour cream to be spooned into the soup bowl, and is superb, winter or summer, hot or cold. For a February after-the-concert supper party: bortsch steaming in the tureen, with the gleaming sour cream beside it, and platters of cheese and breads to go with it. In summer, chilled, with floating cucumber slices or, surprisingly and surprisingly good, served cold with a side dish of hot boiled potatoes, which you mash into the soup and smother with sour cream. Russian bortsch is easy to prepare and, like Polish bortsch, is worth making in large batches, since in the refrigerator it will keep for 3 weeks or more, and it also freezes well.

RUSSIAN BORTSCH

3 pounds beets
1 large onion
1 tablespoon salt
1/2 tablespoons sugar
6 tablespoons lemon juice
4 eggs
1 cup sour cream

Use these stains to give classic color to your exterior woodwork...without obscuring its texture. They're easy to apply by brush or spray. They give lasting protection...will not crack, peel or blister...and they cost less than half as good house paint.

Blend your home with the landscape...for you to enjoy...for others to admire. Choose from any of the 14 exciting pastel colors including Sequoia Red, Hacienda Gray, Mimosa Yellow, Spruce Blue.

Use 1 big onion
1 leek
1 carrot
1 stalk celery
4 sprigs parsley
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
6 peppercorns
2 bay leaves
1/2 smoked pork sausage (optional)
1 cup sour cream

Save 1 beet; scrape the rest and chip them into the vinegar mixed with 1 cup of cold water to soak for 3 hours. Meanwhile cover the soup meat with 3 quarts of cold water and bring to a boil, skimming as needed. Add 2 teaspoons of the salt and simmer for 3 hours. Slice and dice the onion, leek, carrot, celery, and mince the parsley. Fry all these in the butter in another soup pot. When they are lightly browned, stir in the flour, lift the heels of the soup, and strain out the remaining broth into the vegetables; add the soup meat, sliced thick, and the lasagna, sliced thin. Scrape and grate the tenth beet, raw, into the soup to color it; add a tablespoon of the vinegar, and taste for more salt or vinegar.

Add 1/2 cup of sour cream to be spooned into the soup bowl, always served flanked by a dish of sour cream.

of salt, sugar, and lemon juice recommended, and keep tasting as you add each so that you achieve a flavor just right for your palate. Now beat the eggs in a large bowl, and into them pour the hot soup very slowly to prevent curdling. The borscht is now ready to be reheated to serve hot with the sour cream. For cold borscht, remember that it must be cooled gradually before refrigerating. Set the kettle in a large pan of cold water and, as the water warms, change it until the soup is cool. Then pop it into the refrigerator.

Time required: 2½ hours

Quantity produced: about 5 quarts

Sister soup to Polish borscht is Hungarian chicken pot. This is really a soup stew, a hearty meal in itself. It boasts 10 vegetables and 8 herbs in the making. To enjoy it properly, it should be ladled from the tureen into big shallow soup bowls, and a "bone plate" should be at hand, for part of the delight of it is to pull off with fork and spoon (of course fingers are better if allowed) the tidbits of chicken from the bones of the wings with which the soup is made. I make Hungarian chicken pot in my big 2-gallon soup kettle for buffet supper for 12 or 14; if allowed I the tidbits of chicken from necks and backs go back into the tureen, to distribute all the delectable tidbits.

Time required: 4½ hours, overall; attention required intermittently

Quantity produced: 2 gallons

It always gives me a catch of surprise to find how often very good cooks shy away from making French onion soup, as if it were a specialty mysterious and difficult to achieve. This superb soup, perfect for cracking winter days and nights, is in fact of ABC simplicity. French peasants toss a simple version together in a few minutes: a couple of onions browned in a spoonful of fat, boiled up with water, and ladled out upon dry stale bread sprinkled with cheese. No fuss about brewing a basic stock, choosing a special cheese and melting it under the broiler. I sometimes suspect that those rituals which have come to surround onion soup derive partly from the fact that it is so good there must be some trick to it, and partly from the pretentious efforts of some hostesses to make a cult of this honest and humble potage.

French Onion Soup deserves better than that. It deserves to be at the spoon's tip of every discerning housewife, for the family supper, for company dining, for a hearty preamble to a light lunch, for midnight snacking.

Let's begin by dispelling some of the popular misconceptions about it: any kind of onion will serve, with ordinary yellow onions holding perhaps a slight edge because of their pungent flavor; any kind of stock or broth may be used, beef, veal, chicken, homemade, canned, or bouillon cubes (a rich home-brewed beef stock, if at hand, is to be preferred). Any mild dry cheese will do, Gruyère, Swiss, or Parmesan being the most popular with the French; any kind of light bread is all right, toasted or not, just so it be thoroughly stale. The French, of course, use French bread.

Three practical principles affect the success of your onion soup. You want it a rich dark brown for aesthetic value; any kind of stock or broth may be used, beef, veal, chicken, homemade, canned, or bouillon cubes (a rich home-brewed beef stock, if at hand, is to be preferred). Any mild dry cheese will do, Gruyère, Swiss, or Parmesan being the most popular with the French; any kind of light bread is all right, toasted or not, just so it be thoroughly stale. The French, of course, use French bread.

can be planted, the better. In reaching the figure of $200 for a lawn we estimated $5.00 square feet of turf (out of a total of 12,000 square feet for the whole lot) at just under $40 per 1000 sq. ft. This cost includes about $15 for outside labor and filling, for which special machines are best used to incorporate organic materials and to improve soil structure for long permanence. This figure also includes from 3 to 5 bales of peatmoss at $3.50 per bale, or an equivalent in manure (2 yards will do) or other human material locally available. Limestone and plant food are also included, together with the price of top quality seed.

Trees run into money if you buy large sizes and have skilled professionals plant them. But trees small enough for one or two people to handle safely cost anywhere from $10 to $25 for either shade trees or small evergreen specimens. In our over-all shrub cost estimate we allowed $250 for this kind of plant material—enough to get a good head start on future tree beauty. We estimated about $325 for foundation planing along the front of the house and $675 for planting along the three other lines. The latter figure assumes an individual plant cost of half that of the plants in front, which are mostly fine quality, slow-growing evergreens. If you hire outside labor, add $300, making the total $3000 for planting.

Boundaries, fences, gates

The actual boundaries on 3 sides are marked by about 230 ft. of privet hedge and by fencing. At the cost of 20c per lineal foot, you can buy and plant a good privet hedge; 200 plants would cost $50. (25c each for 2-3 ft. plants, set about 18" apart), with $8 allowed for a bale of peatmoss and 40c for a bale of 3" split chestnut. Four 10-foot sections of split chestnut post-and-rail fencing are used at the front of our picture lot, and 7 sections in the rear—a total of 85 estimated to buy and set yourself. Around the service area and rear, a 2 split chestnut post-and-rail and a little plant food. Four 10-foot sections consisting of 1 locust post (the longest lasting) and 2 split chestnut rails (the best type), allow at least $5, in lots of 10 sections, plus local delivery. Less durable woods and styles cost a great deal less. They can be delivered in many eastern suburban areas for about $4 or less per section. It is best to allow 50c a foot for such fencing, and at least 40c for 8-foot hurdle fencing panels (with self-contained posts). Sod or sod laying with fencing costs from about $1.50 to $2.10 per running foot for 6'-6" height, depending on closeness of spacing between sod or cleats. Deluxe forming and edging costs from about $1.50 to $2.10 per running foot for 6'-6" height, depending on closeness of spacing between sod or cleats. Deluxe fencing costs about $2.50 per bale. Gates for fencing, about $5 per bale at a cost of $150.

Trees, flower beds, ground covers

 Ordinary flower beds dig 12'-15" deep in fairly light soil will average $20-$25 per 1000 sq. ft. if you pay for labor. A good workman can dig that much in 8-10 hours. In tough or rocky soil, increase cost 50% or more. If you do the digging yourself, allow 12 hours time to dig 1000 sq. ft. In addition, figure on 3 bales of peatmoss per 3000 sq. ft. at $3.50 per bale; 20 lbs. of 10-10-5 plant food at $1. These prices do not include plants or planting. For suggestions as to what kind of plants you may want in your flower beds, see pages 78 and 79 ("100 Best Plant Buys"). Several types of galvanized steel curbing are available to preserve permanently the lines of lawn and border edgings. It will cost about $5 for edging 40 running feet, and is easy to install yourself.

Retaining walls laid by a contractor vary all the way from $1.25 per cubic foot for rod-reinforced concrete block, which includes a concrete footing, to $3.00 per cubic foot for stone masonry. Poured concrete averaging per cubic foot. Thickness of walls depends on height needed. For a single width (4") concrete block wall, four blocks high (3") above footing, allow $5 to $6 per running foot.

Cost of big shade trees range from $25 for a 15-foot tree, bare-rooted and unplanted, to $100 for a fine specimen tree set in your garden by a nurseryman. (See the October 1954 issue of House & Garden for "How to Plant a Good Tree"). (Continued on page 124)

commuters’ paradise known as Fairfield County, Connecticut, I extend a welcoming hand to my many new neighbors. At the same time I thought it only fair to caution them against total disfiliation of the suburbs. For the suburbs have their problems too, especially for large families.

To begin with, school overcrowding is no phenomenon of the large city.
Any parent who thinks his child can expect to have the benefits of classes averaging 20 pupils or fewer had better start revising his thinking now.
While school construction in the suburbs, generally speaking, has been proportionately higher than in the cities, suburban population growth in the past ten years has stretched school capabilities to the breaking point, and sometimes beyond that. The national teacher shortage hasn’t helped either.

Two houses down the road from us lives an architect and his family.
They moved up from New York in early September, they have just enrolled their two boys, ten and twelve, in the public schools.
Within four or five weeks the architect was scouting around for a private school. Some public school classes were even larger than they had been in the city. And the teacher load, if anything, was heavier. There were more classes and more activities per teacher. Conse-quentially, his youngsters had very little individual attention.

HYPONOX CHEM. CO., Gayton, Ohio, U.S.A.

And now my neighbor is planing his next move. He intends to enroll his children in the same country day school. I wish him luck; he’ll need it. The country day school is already beyond its capacity. Only one child is admitted for every four who apply. And even if the architect’s children be-squeezed into the country day school, there are other headaches ahead. The new public schools being constructed in the suburbs are not nearly large enough; and the city was required to take care of additional people will mean an increase in taxes before the year is out, with other increases yet to come.
This tax hike will hit my friend on top of a whopping big bill for private education.

Still another problem coming up concerns the zoning regulations. My architect friend has a four-acre plot in a two-acre zone by the local commu-
"nation builds up, it is all but inevitable that this section will be rezoned to one-acre plots. That means that the neighborhood would feel less crowded than its more suburban; and it was country my architect friend was looking for when he moved here in the first place.

I have a hunch, though, that my architect friend will adjust himself to the change, and that, in time, he will find compensations in the new scheme of things. For his new neighbors will add much to the community. They are young and vital folk; they have a strong sense of community responsibility; they are making a new life for their families and they want it to be as creative and as possible. This is America as it’s best.

Recently I had the pleasure of reading a manuscript of a forthcoming novel on American suburban life today. It is called “The Man in the Grey Flannel Suit” by Sloan Wilson.
It is, I believe, a major novel, for Wilson has caught hold of an important and powerful theme. He knows that the American center of gravity has shifted from the city to the suburbs, and that a whole new generation of Americans is coping with old problems in a fresh setting, problems of location, housing, and community responsibilities. And Wilson has brought all these problems into dramatic focus, sometimes the easiest way of danning a novel is to stress its importance. This creates all sorts of connotations of documentary techniques.
But I use the word “important” in its truest and most personal sense. It is important reading for anyone who is wondering about the challenge of change; and who sees this challenge as the prelude to the most productive and vital period in our history.

Apart from this, “The Man in the Grey Flannel Suit” is a novel of brilliant writing and with some of the finest writing and most enjoyable reading I’ve had this year.
Wilson knows there are no sure-fire solutions or cure-alls to all the problems of suburbia, especially for parents. But he also knows that the problems are not beyond the capacity of Americans. He believes not only in a growing America, but in an improved America. I think you’ll like this book.
"I believe, with the feeling that though you may see yourself in it; perhaps bacause there’s a spirit of adventure in it. You will come away

If I may preach a bit, let me suggest this:

Don't back into education. Don't just sit back and assume it will happen. Remember the words of old: In the kingdom of heaven, there will be no lack of work; the problem is to have enough workers. So send for your FREE catalog NOW!
Living with Children

At home with children's books

The current interest in children's reading is bringing parents into the picture as never before. For nowadays we are more likely to hear a question with a picture in it. "Can Peter read?" We are also asking "Does he read on his own?" and that immediately encompasses his out-of-school reading as well as his classroom reading. It also leads to questions of how parents can help their children enjoy reading and grow into mature readers.

For while a child's skill in reading is largely the responsibility of the teacher, his attitude toward reading is often shaped by his experiences at home. And that is where his parents come into the spotlight. For research studies show that in reading as in all things children usually follow the lead of their parents, and "reading children" come from homes where there are "reading parents."

In fact, the parents' influence begins long before the child enters the first grade or faces his first primer. The progress that he makes as a first-grader may be influenced by his preschool experience with reading and books. Children who have been read to and who have been encouraged to talk about the stories and pictures are frequently better prepared to get on with reading in school. Those who have not been read to and who have not explored the wonders of books are more likely to be slow in starting to read.

Older boys and girls who are on their own are apt to read more and with greater enthusiasm if they have access to books at the moment their interest is high—in school or out.

The fun of reading aloud

Lots of times grown-ups cut down on a child's "read-to-me" years by assuming that he is too young to enjoy them. But this is a mistake. As a matter of fact, most children enjoy being read to and very little in reading to be read to. And thousands of teenagers and adults still love having someone read aloud in the warm atmosphere of a child's bookshelf. A parents' reading aloud to their children is likely to be low in starting to read.

A bit more subtle, a bit more sophisticated, is another delightful reading aloud book—Charlotte's Web by E. B. White. Homer and Charlotte, a spider who spins messages in her web and devotes her life to her friends in the barnyard. Strange as it may be, Charlotte's gentle ways win even the noisiest of listeners.

In the same high level of fantasy is another favorite—The Borrowers by Mary Norton (Harcourt, $2.50). The Borrowers are remarkable little people who make a profession of borrowing the tiny things that humans need and so often lose: a postage stamp, the stopper of a perfume bottle, a match box, a safety pin or a thimble. The miniature world of the Borrowers is fascinating to young listeners, for it 1s a world of humor, adventure and suspense.

Reading such stories aloud, parents may often introduce their children to new kinds of books and thus broaden their tastes in reading while giving them great satisfaction and pleasure.

Making the most of children's interests

When a child is really interested in a subject, it is possible to find a book about the subject that he will want to read. And experience shows that he will often undertake more difficult reading material and push himself a little harder if the book is on his favorite subject. For parents and teachers, then, the job is to keep abreast of a child's interests and to guide him to the books that will make the most of this built-in motivation.

The ten-year-old who has just found a praying mantis and who is fascinated by the creature is a good candidate for All the Amazing Insects in the World by Dr. Ferdinand C. Lane (Random, $1.95). Children in the height of excitement over the first snowfall will revel in Snow by Thea Harrison (Viking, $2.50), which explains and illustrates amazing scientific information that they can understand and enjoy.

If a TV program has stirred up questions about early days of our nation, there are many wonderful books to recommend. Winter Danger by William O. Steele (Harcourt, $2.25) is a tale of frontier life in Tennessee in the 1780s that will be particularly appealing to boys from ten to twelve. The Pony Express and The California Gold Road, both landmark books (Random, $1.50), are non-fiction, packed with adventure and high interest. And especially for girls there is the ever-popular story of Caddie Woodlawn by Carol Brink (Macmillan, $3).

And if the great interest of the moment is space travel, there are many books to suggest from the fantastic tale Miss Pickeraloo by M. T. Miller and MacGregor (Whittlesy, $2.25), to the more sober You and Space Travel by John Lewellen (Children's Press, $1.50).

Finding the right book for the right child

With at least 1,000 new children's books being published every year, it's hard for anyone to keep up with the wealth of titles now available. But there are some books that have become so beloved in the past few years that almost every child should have the opportunity to meet them at home where reading means curling up in an easy chair and enjoying yourself.

Below are some of the books that children can enjoy year in and year out with deep satisfaction. Most of them have been published since today's parents were children themselves. Such books as these would make a good start for the child's bookshelf at home.

A child's garden of records

Recordings from Daffy Duck to Mozart for your child to listen to and enjoy.

In the strictest sense, there are no special recordings for adults, but children are privileged let with all sorts of recordings produced for them and then alone. Most of the recording companies issue whole series of albums of all-probable disc, featuring favorite characters from fiction or television.

One series pressed by Capitol Records is a privileged "Learning is Fun," In it there is a delightful story about telling the truth called The Truth Tonic (CASF-3211) in which Woody Woodpecker is the kind of bird because a missing ingredient has turned the truth tonic into a "fib tonic." Other discs in the series deal with such themes as one would expect, it is an exciting adventure story of a trip below the sea and there are pictures and text for your child to follow. And if he or she can't read yet, Snoopy the seal barks and toots as a signal when to turn the page.

One of the best of the Howdy Doody albums is RCA Victor's two 78 rpm records, Howdy Doody and the Magic Hat (Y-477, 78 rpm). There is even the story, "Hokey Pokey," one of the most wonderful recognitions of a child's feelings when he is going to sleep and reassures him about such sounds as a party in another part of the house, a crying baby and the chirp of crickets in the still night. What is an Opposite?, on the reverse side, features a song about opposites such as young and old, wet and dry, big and small, and asks the child to join right in.

(These recordings are also available in 45 rpm extended play version.)

FRENCH OON SOUP

4 medium-sized onions
3 tablespoons butter or drippings
4 cups stock or broth
Salt and pepper

Thick slices of stale bread

1 cup grated mild cheese

Slice the onions into the butter in a heavy saucepan and brown them thoroughly; some may be allowed to fry crisp. Add the stock to the onions and simmer for 30 minutes. See that the soup is properly salted and peppered. The bread should be well dried in the oven or toasted. When ready to serve, lay bread slices in the heated tureen or in individual bowls, sprinkle them generously with grated cheese, and pour on the boiling soup. This will melt the cheese instantly. (More cheese may be passed at table.) Serve immediately. Time required: 50 minutes. Quantity produced: about 1 quart.

The rich brown flecks of onion in onion soup remind me that well-browned onions make a superb flavoring and coloring for any meat soup. They can be browned when you have time, in as little fat as possible. Let them get crisp and crumly. Then store them in a jar in the refrigerator, ready when needed.
The Dazes make a bland and delicate cauliflower soup, an excellent dinner soup because, while thick, it is not too hearty to precede the roast.

DANISH CAULIFLOWER SOUP

1 large cauliflower (or 2 frozen packages)
2 cups meat stock (veal, beef, or chicken)
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon salt

Wash the cauliflower and boil it in 2 cups of salted water until it is just tender; drain; save the water, and cut off 6 or 8 of the most perfect flowerets for garnish in the tureen. Now.

For the child who loves The Nutcracker, Peter and the Wolf, and The Sorcerer’s Apprentice, there are such other treats as Angel’s fairytale-beautiful recording of Humperdinck’s Hansel and Gretel ( Album 3309B, two long playing discs) which stars Elisabeth Schwarzkopf and Elisabeth Gruner; Debussy’s ballet for children, Le Bolle à Jouet (The Box of Toys) waxed by Remington on one long playing record (R-199-159); Haydn’s tata tia Trumpet Concerto recorded with a big, bright sound by Vanguard (one long playing record, VRS-454); two thrilling concertos by Mozart: Concerto for Clarinet and Concerto for Bassoon recently recorded by Leopold Schlach and Karl Oehlberger respectively with the Vienna State Opera Orchestra under Artur Rodzinski; and Ravel’s enchanting L’Enfant et les Sorcières (The Child and the Sorcerers) with a story by the great French writer Colette which describes a bad boy who tears his books and hurts animals until they turn on him and he learns to behave. Some of the marvelous characters involved are a Chinese cup, a dragon-fly, a Louis XV shepherdess, a tree-frog, a puppy, and a squirrel. There is a fox-trot between a Wedgwood teapot and a Chinese cup in which the teapot sings in cockney, “I punch, sir, I punch your nose, I box you, I marmalade you,” and one of the most original moments in all music, a duet between two cats which Ravel marked “doux miracle musical.” The only recording is Columbia’s long playing disc, ML 4153, and it is perfect in every way.
