For the perceptive.

Cabin Crafts makes the carpet that makes the home.
Your bed is jealous of your toes.

Your toes get to wear green silk and black satin and now and then a bit of grosgrain. Your feet get to winter in suede and summer in linen, while your toes get a passel of beautiful things to angle around in.

And your bed gets only one. Don’t you know a bedspread is now a wildly beautiful thing you can afford to indulge in? When the mood strikes you? We’ve made it as easy to take care of as a pair of shoes. We’ve made it go from washer to dryer to bed in less than an hour. With no ironing, to boot. Aren’t you tempted? Your bed hopes so.

This is Windsor Crewel. In linen, celadon, plum or brown. Twin, $22.50; Double, $25. (Prices a bit more in the West.) For free illustrated style brochure, write Bates, Dept. G-5, 112 W. 34 St., N.Y. 10001.
THE $60 DIFFERENCE

The Heritage craftsman guides the dowels into place, extends the curve of the arm to the back and sets the basic design. When a chair, or any piece of furniture, takes its shape from its frame and not just the bulge of its padding, only more money can buy it.

You might be able to buy a chair that looks like one from this pair for about $275. But you won't be buying the same chair or one that's even close. As time will tell when the springs go their own way, the fabric pulls away from a welt and your chair loses the comfort and the looks you bought in the showroom.

Upholstered in this elegant cut velvet, one of these Heritage swivel base lounge chairs will cost you about $335. Or $60 more than its look-alike.

Cut to form the basic design of this chair alone, the parts of the frame were carved or cut and locked into one solid unit. The springs it supported were tied to the frame and to one another. Then the Heritage upholsterer stretched, shaped and stitched layer on layer of batting over the lines set down by the frame. By the time the fabric was fitted, the contours of the chair were true to the frame, the final repeat of the basic design.

The higher price on this chair, or any other piece of furniture we make, buys something that only more money can buy. Whether it's our concern for the support that holds the lines and ensures the look of a chair. Or the way we'll take the time to bring a wood to its fullest beauty by hand... because no machine or shortcut method can match it.

When you see work like this, you'll find the Heritage name sitting on the platform under the cushions of this pair of Heritage chairs. Burned inside the drawers of a mahogany Heritage lowboy. Hiding under the cushions and swinging on a hangtag from a crushed velvet Heritage sofa.

If you would like to know more about Heritage and see how it could fit into your home, send two dollars for a Heritage catalog collection and room planning kit to Dept. HG4-68, Heritage Furniture Company, High Point, North Carolina.

GEORGE III TEAPOT

The loan exhibit at this year's University Hospital Antiques Show in Philadelphia will consist of some exceptionally fine pieces handed down by several generations of the family of Joseph Wharton, the eminent Philadelphian who lived from 1707 to 1776. One of the highlights will be this teapot, a wedding present to one of Mr. Wharton's descendants. Inadvertently its date-tag was lost and family members cannot agree on its age. Our committee would like to know the date of the teapot, if possible, from the photograph and the inexpertly sketched marks. B.D.—Gwynedd Valley, Pa.

The London silversmiths Anne and Peter Bateman made the Wharton silver teapot in 1794-95. The bright cutting which decorates the piece first began to appear around 1790. The Bateman family—Anne, Hester, Jonathan, Peter, and William—were all well-known silversmiths in the George III era, and among the most brilliant and popular craftsmen of their time.

Editor's Note: The University of Pennsylvania Hospital Antique Show will be held in Philadelphia at the 103rd Engineers Armory, Lancaster Avenue at Thirty-second Street, April 23 through April 27.

Although I have made an intensive effort, I have not been able to learn anything about the background of this Parian bust that I acquired in Maine some years ago. The inscription reads: W. H. Kerr & Company, followed by an insignia of the Crown and below that "Worcester." I would like to know the bust's age, background, and, if possible, of whom it is a portrait. E.R.L.—Mineola, N.Y.

In the nineteenth century the Worcester Porcelain Company of Worcester, England added earthenware and Parian ware to their production. The mark on your bust was used during the period of 1856-1862. If you write directly to the company, now the Worcester Royal Porcelain Company Ltd., they can perhaps identify the subject.
It speaks eloquently about you, yet barely whispers. Wherever Cadillac goes it makes complimentary remarks about its owner. Its distinctive styling, for example, says nice things about his taste. His sound judgment is reflected by Cadillac's many advanced features and its spacious, beautifully appointed interior. A totally new 472 V-8 engine speaks authoritatively, but softly, about his determination to drive the finest performing luxury car ever built. Nothing more need be said if you have personally experienced Cadillac's new spirited performance. If not, a few words with your nearby authorized Cadillac dealer may be in order. See him soon.

Can you give me any information on the period and style of this chair? It was given to me recently, and the previous owner said it is at least 150 years old.

M.T.—Wood-Ridge, N.J.

Your parlor chair is not quite as old as its previous owner supposed. It is in the Victorian Renaissance style popular around 1850-1870. Incised ornament was typical of that period.

Your demitasse cups were made by the porcelain factory of Richard Ginori which was founded in 1735 by Carlo Ginori at Doccia near Florence, Italy. In the latter part of the nineteenth century the Ginori factory was incorporated with the Società Ceramica Richard of Milan, and became known as Richard Ginori. Your mark dates after this incorporation. The firm has a store at 711 Fifth Avenue in New York City, and you can perhaps obtain more positive identification there.

Your drop-leaf table with rope-turned legs is in the American Empire style and was made around 1830.

The ABC's of selecting casual furniture.

(A) Look for a design that will be unaffected by the whims of fashion ... such as this Conquest design by Scroll. (B) Pay close attention to workmanship and construction. You'll find Scroll's fine craftsmanship and Uni-Frame® construction make an excellent basis for comparison. (C) Determine if the furniture will last. Scroll will. It's solid aluminum. It has heft. It's nick-proof, children-proof, and rustproof. Look at the label on the underside to make sure it's genuine Scroll. (D) Consult your interior designer. Write for our new color brochure. Scroll is on display in design showrooms and in fine stores.

BOOKWORM'S BOUTIQUE

A selection of fact and fantasy

TO BEGUILE THE PINT-SIZED READER

It is never too soon to launch a toddler into the wonderful world of books. National Library Week (April 21-27) is a good time to instill an interest in books in your child or lead the laggard back to the joy of reading. Here are some books to spark this excitement.

For the kindergartener

What a Fine Day For by Ruth Krauss, designed and illustrated by Remy Charlip, music by Al Carmines (Parents' Magazine Press, $3). A nonsense verse beginning "What a fine day for a mouse and a cat a ball and a hat." The complete text is put to music simple enough for a youngster to master.

Eric and the Little Canal Boat by Lillian Bason, illustrated by Anne Rockwell (Parents' Magazine Press, $3.50). About Eric, the youngest employee on a very small canal boat who tries to live up to his captain's admonition, "The boat must always be on time and the passengers must always be happy."

The Adventures of Tommy by H. G. Wells (Knopf, $3.50). How Tommy rescued a rich gentleman and the truly gargantuan gift that was his reward. The redoubtable novelist and journalist illustrated his book himself—and a perky little charmer it is.

The Cat in the Hat Song Book by Dr. Seuss, music by Eugene Poddany (Random House, $2.95). Nineteen outrageously whacky songs to delight tiny vocalists and instrumentalists.

For the pre-teenager

Sophisticated, and never patronizing, the new books of fact and fiction include works by two of our finest authors.

The Fearsome Inn by Isaac Bashevis Singer, illustrated by Nonny Hogrogian (Scribner's, $4.50). A Gothic tale of a witch, her evil husband, three maids in bondage, and three stalwarts who ingeniously rescue them and thwart the villains.

Over the Blue Mountain by Conrad Richter (Knopf, $3.75). The exciting adventures of two little boys who go to the mountain to test an old Pennsylvania German legend about the Virgin Mary.

Tales of India by John W. Spellman, illustrated by Jerry Pinkney (Little, Brown, $3.50). A collection of piquant folk tales told to children in India but with universal appeal.

Archaeology—Exploring the Past by Edith Whitney Watts (N. Y. Graphic, $2.95). A succinct explanation of the work an archaeologist does. Winner of a Children's Book Committee Award.

For the inquisitive child, there are books which are both instructive and entralling.

One way to keep the children amused when you're driving somewhere is to present them beforehand with a copy of To Grandfather's House We Go, written and illustrated by Harry Devlin (Parents' Magazine Press, $3.95). Subtitled "A road trip tour of American homes," this book describes tersely the various architectural styles of American houses and each is concisely illustrated. Let the children play a new variation of "Beaver" by seeing who can recognize the different kinds of houses (1 point for whoever spots it first), and who can find the greatest number of each style. The prize for the winner: A painless education in American architecture. (The losers get the same thing!)

Sour Drapes

You may suik, too, if you entrust your precious draperies to anyone but America's professional drapery cleaning specialist: COIT! America's largest gives you the facilities, unmatched knowledge of fabrics, exclusive processes that mean guaranteed perfection...regardless of your draperies' condition, if cleanable. Never "sour drapes"—and they're guaranteed not to shrink, and to boast perfect pleats and hems! COIT is as near as your Yellow Pages, for cheerful estimates. Why settle for less?

It's a shame more women don't take up writing

Faith Baldwin

It's very unfortunate that many with real writing talent bury themselves in a mountain of dishes. Writing is an ideal profession for a housewife. You don't have to go out, you don't have to be away from your mind on your housekeeping, if it rains, did you windows? And for the woman who's tied down to her home, a wonderful emotional respite is nothing of the extra income she could write if you hadn't.

There are many things only a woman can write. That's why—unlike many men—she's the welcome mat is really women in writing. Take the No man could have written a book about women writers...every woman writer keeps her own house, and her own mind on her housework, and her housework is wonderful emotional release. If it rains, did you your mind on your housework, and your housework is wonderful emotional release. If it rains, did you

You are a "class of one"

When you return an assignment, one of these writer-instructors carefully reads it. He goes over your work, line by line, word by word, blue-penciling his changes right on your manuscript, just as if I'd edit it. Then he returns it to you with a long, personal letter of advice and guidance on how to improve your writing. While this writer-instructor is appraising your work, nobody else competes for his attention. You are, literally, a class of one.

After you get the basic principles, you move on to specialized training in the field of your choice: Fiction, Nonfiction, Advertising or Business Writing. You learn step-by-step.

Because we are twelve who started the School have very definite ideas about the teaching of writing, we regularly visit the School and work with the instructors on the staff.

Students break into print

This training works well. Our students have sold their writing to more than 100 publications, including the Reader's Digest, Redbook, Parents' Magazine and Good Housekeeping.

Doris Staebs, of South Coventry, Conn., writes, "Your Course made it all worthwhile." Margie Zimmermann, a Philadelphia housewife, sold six children's books to Little Gems, plus a series of animal stories. "You taught me to write professionally," she says.

"Since beginning your Course," says Sharon Wagner of Mesa, Ariz., "I have sold some 40 stories, several novelettes and a novel."

Doris Agee of San Mateo, Cal., says, "The view from this part of the world—the top—is indescribable. I've just received a big, beautiful check from the Reader's Digest for a 'Most Unforgettable Character' piece. There's no question about it, without the Famous Writers School, the article would never have been written."

Eileen Thompson Panowski, a Los Alamos, N.M., mother of four, has had four young people's books published by Abelard-Schuman. One was recently nominated "best juvenile mystery of the year" by the Mystery Writers of America. And Dorothy O'Quinn of East Point, Ga., writes, "Pardon me if I 'bubble'. I've just sold an article to Good Housekeeping."

Have you the urge to write? If so, get busy! It's a wonderful feeling to see your name in print. And that first check, no matter how big, is a tremendous thrill.

But the greatest reward of writing professionally is something much less tangible...the feeling of communicating with your readers. If one sentence you write opens a door for another human being...makes him see with your eyes and understand with your mind and heart, you'll gain a sense of fulfillment that no other work can bring you.

Writing Aptitude Test offered

Faith Baldwin and the other Famous Writers have designed a revealing Aptitude Test to help you determine if you could benefit from professional training. The postpaid card will bring you a copy of the Test, along with a brochure describing the School.

When you return the Test, it will be graded without charge by a member of our staff. If you show aptitude, you are eligible to enroll in the Famous Writers School. However, you are under no obligation to do so. (If the card is missing, write to Famous Writers School, Dept. W-7312, Westport, Conn. 06880. Please give your name, address, age and ask for writing Aptitude Test.)

Do you have art talent worth developing? Take our free test and see

If you have ever wondered whether you had art talent, here is your chance to find out. The founders of Famous Artists School have put together what many artists and educators consider to be the most revealing test of art ability ever devised. It is offered to you free.

Designed for people uncertain of their ability
The people who take this Art Talent Test are of all ages and occupations. Most of them have little or no previous art training. By professional standards, their drawings may be awkward and amateurish. But the ones who possess the gift of art talent reveal it in many ways. Through simple little exercises, they show the inborn sense of design, the ability to observe, and the lively imagination which are such important ingredients of art talent.

The reliability of this method of screening, as well as the effectiveness of the training, has been proven again and again by the success of our students and graduates.

Detach and mail this postpaid card today for your free Talent Test

First, you will be shown ten pairs of simple designs and asked to pick the one in each pair that has a "feeling of rightness" about it. Then you will see twenty pairs of pictures, and check which completion in each pair is more pleasing. You'll be asked to do original sketches to demonstrate your imagination. And in similar ways, your feeling for mood, form, movement and so on will be tested.

So if you love to sketch or dabble in paints—and have often wondered if you "have what it takes" to become a well-paid commercial artist or spare-time professional painter—why not seize this opportunity to find out? All you need is a pencil and a half-hour of your time. With your special interest, it will be one of the most enjoyable half-hours you ever spent.

What the Talent Test covers

First, you will be shown ten pairs of simple designs and asked to pick the one in each pair that has a "feeling of rightness" about it. Then you will see twenty pairs of pictures, and check which completion in each pair is more pleasing. You'll be asked to do original sketches to demonstrate your imagination. And in similar ways, your feeling for mood, form, movement and so on will be tested.

When you complete the test and mail it back, it will be graded free by a member of the School's staff. If you receive a passing grade (a "yes" or "maybe"—we must warn you that many don't), or can offer sufficient evidence of art talent, you will then be eligible—though not obligated—to enroll in the Famous Artists home study course of your choice.

If you do decide to enroll, 16 famous artists on the Guiding Faculty will show you their lifelong secrets in a series of unique lessons. And each assignment you do will receive constructive criticism by professional artist-instructor. It almost like private tutoring.

You will receive an interesting brochure about our School and methods along with your free Art Talent Test. If you have ever dreamed of success in art, and wondered if it were possible, why not mail the card at left for both the test and brochure right now?

JUST EVERYDAY THINGS FOR THE HOME MADE BEAUTIFUL BY Stevens
THIS IS WASH-AND-WEAR FURNITURE.
(And you thought it was only beautiful.)

You've never seen furniture like this before. It's finished with a remarkable new kind of grained vinyl veneer, called Tartan-Clad®, a product of 3M research. You'd swear it was rosewood. Even feels like it. But the authentic wood image lies under a tough, easy-care vinyl film. We call it wash-and-wear because it needs practically no upkeep to keep beautiful. Spill almost anything—from alcohol to bleach. No stain. Let last night's glasses sit around. No white rings. It never needs wax. And if it should get soiled, just wash lightly with detergent. And that's it.

We've named this collection, Uptown. But a flowing, contemporary design like this goes anywhere. Like to see all our thru-the-home collections in color brochures? Please send 50c to Carolyn Langley, Dept. HG-468, American of Martinsville, Martinsville, Va.
Notes for the Hostess

By Mary Moon Hemingway

It unreasonably, cut flowers are rarely thought of in more or less casual arrangements. But once flowers become plentiful again, they can be used even more dramatically on the horizontal: small vases ringing the bases of candlesticks, for instance, or a chafing dish placed in the center of the table, or greens and flowers laid singly or in parallel ropes. For all intents, a buffet table, covered with floor-length white damask, might have swags of greens and flowers pinned to its skirts. Single flowers may be floated in shallow water, crystal, or china dishes. A variety of exotics such as camellias, gardenias, hibiscus, clematis, eucharidilies are very effective for this.

When I think of Waterford crystal, I have a tendency to think big—glorious chandeliers, great centerpieces, magnificent candlesticks. This is manifestly unfair and one-sided, for Waterford glasses are also superb—brilliant, glittering, impressive without being ornate. The “Sheila” pattern in particular, with its simple oval fluting, has a singular affinity for almost any style of china or silver. It is made in all manner of sizes—poblets and tumblers, red and white wineglasses, champagnes, liqueurs, cocktails, and sherry—plus finger bowls, which are elegant for serving desserts as well. Above and beyond its beauty, Waterford crystal is solid and functional enough for everyday use—something to point out to a bride-to-be.

The European idea of serving a vin ordinaire at every dinner, a custom I highly endorse, requires vin ordinaire decanters, unpretentious, sensible, and attractive, in keeping with their contents. At the Greek Island Shop, they have two sizes of wine bottles that fit the need admirably. They have a handblown look, are easy to grasp, pour well, and are charming in a nonsensical way. The smaller one might also be used for salad dressing or syrups, and both sizes could double for flowers.

The Custom-made Ready-mades. About $70.

Burlington House ready-made draperies and co-ordinated bedspreads are tailored with fine custom details. Draperies have individually sewn pinch pleats, mitered corners, generous blind-stitched hems. Bedspread, here, has free-floating panel of pleats for perfect fit at corners. Both in decorator-styled Burlington House fabrics (the kind you would select for custom-mades.) That is why we call them custom-made ready-mades. How can Burlington House give you this magnificent bedroom ensemble for as little as $70? Because we spin the yarns, design, weave, dye and finish the fabrics, tailor them in our own workrooms like custom-mades. Since we do everything, we can afford to give you more. For less.
... newest focal point in today's home

It's the family room with the fresh face — the live-in, play-in, dine-in, sit-in, party-in, dance-in, work-in, study-in room — the center of family action and re-action.

Today's expanded leisure time demands more of the Live-in Room and its furnishings than ever before. Now through the efforts of major manufacturers of furniture, upholstery, and wall covering, everything needed to "live it up, liven it up," can easily be obtained. Modular units topped with plastic laminates to resist spills. Spring-bright colors in upholstery fabrics with soil-retardant finishes. Repeat of the color beat in reversible sliding door panels, drawer fronts, and wall paneling.

... The Live-in Room has never before been so liveable.

The notes of a happy housekeeper

BY MARY ELIZABETH FALTER

A home freezer can be a housekeeper’s best friend but it can also be a costly and wasteful trap if it is not properly organized and inventoried. Not long ago I discovered ours full to the brim and in wild disorder, so I set about making some long delayed reforms. First I emptied the freezer, sorted the contents, and made a list of everything, including the dates whenever I could remember them. Then I loaded the box, arranging the packages so that each kind of food would be easy to find. Whenever I came across three or four packages of the same thing, I put them together in a plastic bag so they wouldn’t get separated. Having thus transformed the freezer into a marvel of neatness, I typed up my inventory on a few index cards and taped them above the shopping list pad I keep by the telephone in the kitchen. That should make it a lot easier to note before each shopping trip what should be used up, what should be replaced, and what single packages of vegetables or prepared foods will have to be matched up with a second to make enough to feed our family. I’ve firmly resolved to hold back on building up the inventory until we’ve used up a good bit of it, and to date each new package with a marking pen.

I’m jubilant about a brand new liquid self-polishing floor wax and applicator that I found the other day. It’s made by Bissell and the bottler of wax, the applicator, and the handle are all in one piece so you don’t have to cope with two things at once, and there is no chance of tipping or spilling the wax. In fact, the whole thing can be hung on its own hook in the broom closet, ready for instant action, which makes it great for quick touch-ups on spots that get extra wear.

One of my favorite lampshades has a gold edge that occasionally rubs against the white wall, leaving ugly black marks. After months of periodically wiping off the marks, it suddenly occurred to me to cover one section of the gold trim with a six-inch strip of transparent Magic tape. I keep that part of the shade turned toward the wall where it doesn’t show and now, no more marks.

We don’t care if you’ve never had a lesson in your life. With “Show-Chord” it doesn’t matter. You play the melody, “Show-Chord” plays the chords that make the song complete. Soon you have the assurance to play the notes yourself as “Show-Chord” lights the way. That’s the beauty of Conn’s “Show-Chord.” It never hampers your progress. It encourages it. “Show-Chord” it doesn’t matter.

We created “Show-Chord,” the magical expression. . . . and watch your musical inhibitions “get lost!”

On our last trip to our favorite antique shop, we found a pretty pair of cut-glass cruets, but they were filthy inside and out. Faced with the old problem of how you wash the inside of something with a narrow neck, I tried a new method I’d heard about not long ago—filled each cruet with a solution of detergent, water, and ammonia and borrowed a handful of BB shot from Tommy as use as the scouring agent. I put some shot in each cruet and swished them around. As the BB’s rolled back and forth they loosened the caked dust and it all came out with several rinsings of hot water. But you have to be generous with the BB’s.

Of all the different kinds of paper towels I’ve used, the new Scott Viva towels seem the best yet. They are as soft as cloth and will do all sorts of delicate jobs like drying and polishing fine china and silver, yet they are strong enough to stand up to heavy jobs such as cleaning the stove and mopping away messy spills. I like the big 148-sheet roll and buy it in white with a pretty patterned border in yellow.

If you have a balky or even slightly temperamental electric can opener, it pays to make a point of picking out perfect cans when you buy canned goods. Of course this is good practice anyway, but the slightest dent or imperfection in the can is apt to throw off the can opener, I’ve discovered. It also operates more smoothly when you’re opening extra heavy or extra large cans, if you tip the can slightly toward the can opener and be sure the weight is firmly supported from the bottom.

We'll soon be hard at work in the garden and I'm all ready for it with a brand new pair of Green Thumb stretch gloves. These are an improved and updated version of the famous Green Thumb work gloves and I think they are sensational. Because they stretch, the fit is vastly improved and the cotton backing helps them to pull on easily. Tiny openings in the fabric let the air circulate so your hands won't get hot and the palms of the gloves won't get slippery.

You would hardly think that anything as antediluvian as a cockroach could be wandering around in these days of modern sanitation, but Jill Taylor suddenly had a plague of them in her new downtown studio. Seems that the contractor who remodeled the building had hitched up a pipe to an ancient sewer line, and in no time at all roaches were invading her shiny new bathroom. Horrified and bewildered, Jill was afraid she would have to use a strong insecticide, or some kind of poison, until she discovered Copper Brite's new Roach Trap and Powder. It's a clean-looking white powder, only mildly toxic to humans and animals, and can be sprinkled around all the cracks and corners where the roaches might lurk. Having followed all the directions carefully, Jill wound up her assault by baiting the empty container with a little powder and bread cubes which turn it into a highly effective trap the roaches can't get out of. A week later they were all gone or trapped and have not reappeared.

The only thing better than one sponge, I've decided, is two sponges. I buy them in packages of two, each a different color, and keep one for use with soap or detergent and one for clear water jobs. The soapy one, I've learned, always has to be thoroughly rinsed to cut down the accumulation of soapy residue. But both will stay clean and fresh for a long time if they are boiled occasionally with a little soda and vinegar in the water, then left to dry where there is good air circulation to keep them from getting musty.

I'm telling everyone I see these days to hasten to the nearest gourmet shop, department store, or major supermarket and invest in a Melitta coffee-maker. Ours was sent to us by a thoughtful friend and we are most enthusiastic. The one-piece drip-method coffee-maker looks quite like a large coffee cup and fits over any beverage server or coffee pot. You line the container with the filter paper especially designed for it, add fine ground coffee, and pour boiling water through it. The whole process takes three minutes or less, the papery grounds are quickly and neatly disposed of, and the coffee is great. I particularly like this coffee-maker because I can use it with any of our coffee servers including our favorite blue and white Meissen. Though the Melitta coffee it was designed for is superb, any finely ground coffee may be used.

One of the things I could never get weaned away from is a good old fashioned dishcloth. I like the kind that are made of a heavy cotton knit—they are the most absorbent and wash and bleach clean after the dirtiest jobs. I always use one to line the bottom of the sink so the pots and pans won't mar it while I'm scouring them. And I've discovered a dishcloth is great for creating a little steam in the oven while you are roasting a turkey or chicken. I just saturate the cloth with water, set it on a pan in the oven, and the heat produces a gentle steam.

We have a big clear Swedish glass vase that I like to keep filled with magnolia leaves and, as soon as I can get them, pussy willows. Most greens, I've found, stay fresh longer if the stems are newly cut when they are put into water. If I am using glass or china containers, I also add about half an ounce of Clorox to the water to keep it clean, clear, and fresh. When there is no magnolia around I use rhododendron or even the huckleberry greens that most florists keep on hand in their workrooms for making flower arrangements.

To revise a wilted fence
post

Frost is the great enemy of wooden fence posts. Even those that have been properly dunked in preservative, or pressure protected, will eventually give way—always at the ground line
first. Often there are several good ter years left in the top after the “crown” has rotted. A useful makeshift, one that will cost you considerably less in money and labor than replacing the old post with a new one is to drive (with a sledge behind or alongside the old post, a steel fence post provided with a broad anchoring fin that acts as a two-way stabilizer when it gets below ground level. The steel units will cost from $1 to $2 each, depending on length, and will become surprisingly inconspicuous even in the eyes of the fencebuilder who takes slightly shamefaced advantage of their practicality. The steel posts are supplied with built-in hooks, so that if necessary the whole weight of a fence section may be supported by a simple wir-ning job (soft iron wire around post and over hook). This remedial device is especially adaptable to hurdle-fence sections, which are extraordinarily decorative but very vulnerable to ground rotting, and are quite costly to replace.

Before you climb a fence bounding a pasture to pick field flowers
(see pages 88-93), have a mind to

This is how The Live-In Room looks after it's been lived in. After it's had the stuff of life dumped, dripped, ground, sloshed, spilled and tracked all over it.

Exactly the same, that's how it looks. Shiny, neat, clean as a berry.

Naugahyde vinyl fabric helps. It keeps chairs and sofas looking great. Doesn't stain, won't crack. Cleans with the wipe of a sponge, in fact. (Which is probably the reason Kroehler used Naugahyde on this sofa and chair.)

You can choose a Naugahyde upholstery fabric from nearly 492 colors and patterns. Linen, tweed, silk, brocade, burlap, more varieties than you can imagine. (Thanks to the imaginary Nauga, who sheds his hide in 492 beautifully indestructible varieties.)

When you drop in at your favorite store and find the Nauga hanging around, take a good look at the furniture he hangs on. That's exactly how that furniture is going to look. After.

Pasadena Art Museum's triennial exhibit of work by California artists and craftsmen is fast coming the most significant design show in the country. This year's exhibit, California Design Ten, is the flowering of a little show the museum put on in 1954 of crafts and products everyday use designed or manufactured in Los Angeles County. The exhibit was enormously successful, and, like everything else in California, grew. Every three years a highly selective jury moves thousands of handcrafted one-of-a-kind objects from every corner of the state and about the same number of manufactured items. From these accepted for Design Ten, H&G chose the objects on this page which include handsome signs to add beauty and comfort to public places; furniture with a slim, spare elegance; anything with imaginative gaiety. The entire exhibit will be on view at the Pasadena Art Museum March 31 through May 12, and then go on a longer stay at the state fair at Sacramento.

Street furniture

Important in the California Design Ten collection are objects to beautify the public environment, such as this group of bright, white sidewalk embellishments. At the left is a covered bus-stop bench in Fiberglas, designed by Douglas Deeds for Architectural Pottery. The street lights—ellipsoid acrylic globes on tapered poles—are by Wayne Compton for Kim Lighting. Inc. Between them are two planters Elsie Crawford designed for Architectural Fiberglas. (Her squat, round seater-planter also won an American Institute of Interior Designers award this year.)

Art on art

Beautiful enough itself to stand as sculpture, is a 6-foot-high adjustable rack fashioned in walnut by Eupenet for displaying etchings, serigraphs. A portfolio may be slipped into space between back supports.

Swings and sailors

What else would you call the marvelous contraption for drifting and dreaming under the tree, above left, but a swing chair? Its designer, Roger Dupzyk, found a tree branch, shaped and polished it into a primeval form that resembles the trunk of a wooly mastodon—then added a stout ample cross bar to support securely a fledgling Tarzan. The dune buggy, above right, whose sail catches enough breeze to propel it across hard-packed sand, was designed by Don Rypinski to be easily disassembled. By undoing 5 bolts, wheels, sail and all make a tidy 130-pound package that fits into a car trunk. (Land yachting, new here, has been a sport in Europe since 1905.)

Pace setters and people seaters

Any style of furniture—Louis XV, Queen Anne, Victorian—is most easily identified by its chairs, perhaps because designers seem to lavish their greatest talents on them. The chairs chosen by California Design Ten all share a debonair slimness. 1. Armless lounge chair of cane, rosewood, and aluminum, put together without glue or nails. By Maurice Martine. 2. Polished aluminum bar-frame sofa slung with chain mail. With it comes a one-piece, reversible quilted cushion to line its back, sides, and seat. By architects Gordon Bird and William Rietkerk. 3. Mass-produced non-collapsible camp chair, with polished chrome frame and black vinyl seat and back. By Virtue Manufacturing. 4. Slanting armed lounge chair of aluminum, leather, and laminated wood in a modified Z-line. By Maurice Martine. 5. Rocking chair on sturdy wishbone-like frame of birch with suede sling seat. By Roger Collins.

Just across the border from Connecticut, at a point about midway between Hartford and Boston, where the landscape suddenly thickens with pine forests and turns even more deeply and unmistakably New England, Old Sturbridge Village nestles in a great swath of forests and meadows ribboned with a quiet river. Not far away, traffic whizzes constantly on the Massachusetts Turnpike, but in the Village in the township of Sturbridge, Mass., the twentieth century is very remote indeed. No cars are allowed in the village itself. Oxen plow fields, water power turns the stones in a grist mill, candles and firelight brighten rooms on dark days.

Stately Greek Revival meeting house dominates village green.

MUSEUM VILLAGE:
OLD STURBRIDGE VILLAGE

presents a picture of life in the rural New England of 150 years ago

The focal point of this elegant “Fitzhugh” pattern is the Chinese symbol for good luck, surrounded by representations of the four seasons. Named after Thomas Fitzhugh, a “supercargo” for the British East India Company in Canton, circa 1780, it is another historic Lowestoft original design by Spode. The distinctive blue-gray Lowestoft body, originated by Josiah Spode II in the first decade of the Nineteenth Century as replacement for wares previously imported from China, is about as chip-proof and unbreakable as a dinnerware can be. Don’t wait to inherit Spode.*

The sight and smell of a steaming apple pie pulled from the fireplace bake-oven in the farmhouse kitchen; the sound of water tumbling from the wooden wheel at the grist mill; the murmurous summertime sound of a folk singer under a tree on the village green; the winter sight of a costumed guide in a long, scarlet wool cloak hurrying along a snowy path; the smells of broom corn in the broommaker's shop, of bayberry in the candlemaking shop, of clove in a room where a woman sits making pomander balls. Pleasingly, at OSV (as Old Sturbridge Village is sometimes referred to) all these activities are carried on not only with great skill but with self-consciousness.

Starting at the Village Green

When you arrive at the village, you leave your car in a large parking area and proceed on foot past the toll booth (admission is $2.50 for adults, $1 for children) and up a path toward the village green. The layout of the village is simple: most of the houses and major buildings are grouped around the green; other small buildings and craft shops are on paths and country lanes branching off to the sides. Facing each other across the length of the green are the two largest buildings in the village—the slender-spired mill and a handsome Georgian mansion, both immaculately white with green shutters. Before getting down to particulars, you might stroll around the green to get the feel of the village. I always find this more rewarding than listening to the long, easily forgettable orations inevitably given by the building hosts in museum villages about what was made where, when, and how.

Once you’re ready for specific sightseeing, there are four furnished houses to visit. The most elegant of the lot is the Georgian mansion, known as the Salem Towne House. It was built in 1796 by a General Salem Towne, a man who obviously liked and could afford the luxury of a generously proportioned, downright comfortable house. Two large chimneys allow every room to have a fireplace, and a wide front hall running from front to back of the house, plus lofty ceilings everywhere, give the whole interior great airiness. There are even, curiously, four entrance doors, one centered in each side of the house. Some of the special pleasures: fine examples of Sheraton, Queen Anne, and Chippendale furniture; in the parlor, a needlepoint rug with delicately faded colors; in the dining room, an unusual floor covering made of hand-stitched panels of sailcloth painted several coats of brown and stenciled with a red, green, and white pattern. Upstairs, the whole front of the house is a long, stark room once used as a Masonic meeting hall. The walls are still covered with oil-on-plaster paintings of trees thought to be cedars of Lebanon.

Also on this floor, in the bedroom for the daughters of the family are the painted window shades popular in the early nineteenth century. They are made of sized lawn with pastoral scenes painted on the outside of the shade; in the daytime, backed by light, the paintings stand out richly; at night, with light within the room, the shades turn a pure white.

Next to the house is a large formal garden, a peaceful, pretty spot with a trellised grape arbor, a summer house, flower beds, and a fine view toward the river and the covered bridge. The cheeriest building on the green is the Richardson House, a bright red saltbox built about 1740, its front yard enclosed with a white picket fence. Inside, a huge timbered kitchen is dominated by an immense fireplace, panes of amethyst-tinted glass color many of the windows, a bed frame is painted to look like rosewood. In the dining room, a glass­-doored bookcase holds a portion of the village's "society library." The books were acquired with the dues paid by the community—a system that grew into today's public libraries.

Directly across the green is the unpainted clapboard 1735-37 Fitch House. It probably started as a one­room, two­story structure, was later stretched to a four­room plan, and last of all had a wing added for a summer kitchen—a sensible and delightful idea that not only kept cooking heat away from the main part of the house, but also, since it opens straight onto the garden, cooled off the cook. In this kitchen, nowadays, you can watch candles being made by the old-fashioned dipping and molding methods. Before leaving, you should be sure to notice the stenciled floor in one of the two downstairs parlors: An all­over black-diamond pattern bordered around the edges of the room with a tulip motif is painted right on the pine boards.

PANEL IT WITH WELDWOOD AND YOU’VE GOT SOMETHING WORTH TALKING ABOUT.

Nobody looking to buy your house is going to pay one cent extra for a painted or papered wall.
It’s even money they won’t like the color or pattern anyway.
But did you ever see anyone... anyone... pass up a paneled wall?
Particularly a Weldwood® wall?
You bet you didn’t.
They’ll stand about 18 inches from it. Just staring.
Then they’ll reach out and touch it.
They’re thinking about how great their furniture would look with all that real woodgrain as a background.
Now’s the time to nudge your real estate agent.

He mentions price. A couple hundred up from what you’d figured on getting.
They buy.
Beautiful.
You don’t think Weldwood can do that?
All right. Slosh on some paint or paper instead.
The female half of that hot prospect will end up being more interested in how clean it is behind the refrigerator.
Why give her the chance to look?

... known as the Fenno House, that belonged to one John Fenno, a yeoman farmer in Massachusetts. Extremely modest, the house is a joy inside, filled with light from many windows (the parlor and the bedroom above it each have five windows—unusual at a time when window glass was expensive). The plaster walls are spanking white and upstairs all the woodwork in the bedrooms has been stripped of paint down to the natural honey tone of the wood, a lovely warm contrast to the white walls.

More buildings remain to be seen around the green. You can browse in the two beamed rooms of the general store, well stocked with such items as cookie molds, cans of maple syrup, smoked cheese, bags of beans, pincushions, peppermint sticks, stone-ground flour from the village gristmill, jams, jellies, and relishes, wooden butter paddies, herbs grown and bottled in the village, gingerbread, candy—all for sale. You should take note of the stenciled walls in the president’s office of the columned Greek Revival bank and look in at the meeting house, a cool, serene beauty with creamy walls, white ceiling, huge windows, three delicate chandeliers, and pews, benches, and pillars painted mustard yellow with graining to simulate oak. You can see a weaving display in the Mashapaug House close by, before heading on to the Tavern. Upstairs at the Tavern are rooms full of Early American art and a display of stenciling and furniture with painted wood graining, plus such assorted oddments as the rot-rem paintings, old valentines, carved eagles, painted fireboards, gravestones. Downstairs, there is a dining room and a bar.

A swing through the woods

Two country lanes lead from the village green through the woods to one of the most appealing places to visit in the whole village—a small, early-nineteenth-century farm. One of the lanes takes you on foot (about a five-minute walk) from near the meeting house past a little boot shop, a barn full of old carriages, a one-room schoolhouse (with a floor sloped on three sides like a tiny amphitheatre), and a pottery where the potter and his apprentices turn out reproductions of redware. From the other lane beside the Tavern, you can take a ride on a horse-drawn wagon known as the “carry-all” that rumbles along in a broad, looping circuit through the woods, across a covered bridge brought from Vermont, past the mill pond, and along a string of craft shops. In winter, when the snow is packed hard enough, the carry-all is a sleigh. You can get off along the way or sit tight until you get to the farm.

The enclave of buildings that make up the Freeman Farm—barn, sheep shed, cow pens, work shop, farmhouse—sits on a low hill surrounded by fruit trees and overlooking the fields. In the farm yard and the corn barn, chickens, ducks, and geese skitter from underfoot, and from time to time a pair of oxen (called Peter and Paul I was informed solemnly by the ox driver) plod out to fields planted with sample crops of flax, corn, cereal grains, broom corn, and so on. The trim farmhouse has a flower garden in front, bounded by a picket fence and a kitchen garden for herbs at the back. Inside, an energetic, apple-cheeked woman dressed up as the farmer’s wife works in the kitchen... Continued on page 50.

White trim emphasizes clean strokes of Richardson saltbox. Since roof swoops so low, door to timbered kitchen is on side of house.

Take the parts. We choose each one as carefully as you’d choose the ingredients for your best recipe.

Every part of every KitchenAid dishwasher is checked and inspected. From the wheels on our portable models to the push buttons on our built-ins.
If it’s a working part, we make sure it works.
We test the timer. We test the motor.

We test the water pump.
In fact, we test everything that can be tested.

Before a KitchenAid dishwasher leaves the assembly line, it’s put through its paces. Every cycle—washing and drying—is checked on every single dishwasher.
Then there’s the KitchenAid torture test. We pick dishwashers off the assembly line—at random—and run them continuously, night and day. So that we’ll have a good idea how the dishwasher will work years later.

Why do we go to all this trouble? It’s simple. We don’t want you to have any trouble after you buy one.

And for many people, this is one of the very best reasons for buying a KitchenAid.

Since you probably can’t visit our factory, why not visit your KitchenAid dealer? (Check the Yellow Pages.) He’ll give you more reasons why a KitchenAid dishwasher is such a good buy.

(as she has for eleven years), cooking in the huge fireplace. Her tools, methods, and recipes are all those of 150 years ago. The other rooms of the small house are modest but lively with red and green stenciling on the yellow walls of the parlor, white linen curtains edged with wool embroidery, simple chests and tables with imitation painted graining. For in old New England, even the humblest of houses would be brightened by the cheerful tradition of stenciling walls and floors and painting furniture with faux finishes.

Leaving the farmhouse, you can walk along a road past the fields and drop in to see the tinsmith making cookie molds, scoops, sconces, and lanterns, and the broommaker binding broom corn into small stiff brooms. Farther on, a blacksmith turns out wrought-iron objects at his forge, and near the mill pond, there is a carding mill, and a grist mill that produces stone-ground flour.

When you get back to the village green, if you are still game for more, you can take the path that runs past the general store to the printing office and the shops of the pewterer and cabinetmaker. Most interesting of all in this area is a simple frame building that houses a dazzling collection of all kinds of glass—blown glass, molded glass, pressed glass, looking-glasses, early lenses, glass door pulls, enamelled glass, sandwich glass, Bohemian glass, silvered glass doorknobs, all sorts of curious bottles for everything from medicines to pickles, an amber glass rolling pin which could be filled with cold water for keeping pastry firm, and dozens of shimmering, colorful paperweights from France and England including a sumptuous 1847 Baccarat náguem miléfori. Next door to the glass exhibit is a bakehouse where you can buy fresh New England cookies—spice, raisin, graham, walnut, hobnails and more. And at the Museum Gift Shop close by you can purchase the wares put out by most of the craftsmen who work in the village.

When to go: The village is open year-round except for Christmas and New Year’s Days. Two of the pleasantest times to go are early June, before the summertime hordes descend, and when the fruit trees and lilacs are in bloom, and October, when the woods are fiery and the air has a brisk nip. If you like the idea of a traditional New England Thanksgiving, you can make reservations (six months in advance is the recommendation) for a great feast served in three sittings at the Tavern. In winter, snow piles high in the village, smoke curls from all the chimneys, and the little community seems even more remote and romantic.

Where to eat: On the village green, a hot buffet lunch is served on the main floor of the Tavern between the end of May and mid-November, or you can go to the cafeteria in the basement. In summer, box lunches are sold at the Gazebo near the covered bridge, and hamburgers, ice cream, soft drinks, and such at the Farmer’s Noon ing, which has outdoor tables on the banks of the millpond. If you want to take your own food, there are several picnic areas.

Where to stay: Closest to OSV, and in fact operated by it, is the Liberty Cap Motel, a group of pretty, old-style, well-kept buildings with large restful rooms. A few miles away from Sturbridge Village on Route 131, there is a comfortable Treadway Inn, the Publick House, with a good restaurant. A sampling of other nearby motels: Carriage House Motor Lodge on Route 20 West, Colonial Motel on Route 20 East, American Motor Lodge on Route 20 East.

How can I have antique fabric reproduced?
My husband and I are restoring a house, and we would love to use a pattern we found on a chair that the original owners of the house bought about 1820.

The Cloth Company of Nantucket, Nantucket Island, Mass., duplicates old woven or printed patterns by the yard, enlisting the skills of Nantucket weavers, silk-screen artists, and needlewomen. The company will also give guidance on authentic patterns and fabrics to be used on restoration projects where there are no records or samples to work from. For cost estimates, send a detailed description of fabric and include photographs if possible. If you want advice, send a summary of your decorating plans. If you are in New York City, you can visit the Cloth Company’s new shop at 1045 Madison Avenue.

Where can we get material for our club programs?
Our organization is interested in the subjects covered by House & Garden—gardening, travel, table settings, and the like—but we have a meager budget for speakers and program materials.

Modern Talking Picture Service, with libraries listed in most major city telephone books, distributes color-and-sound movies on a variety of topics, filmed for such companies as Corning Glass, Lenox, Onelida Silversmiths, Reed & Barton, International Silver. There are also films available that were made for state travel departments and for associations such as the Fine Hardwoods Association and the Colorado Flower Growers. The films are free (groups pay only the return postage) and are described in a booklet that you can obtain from the Modern Talking Picture Service headquarters at 1212 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y., 10036.

Can you order old barn siding by mail?
My wife and I love the look of weathered wood and have spent many weekends trying in vain to find a dilapidated barn we could buy and take apart. We want the boards to panel a large kitchen-family room.

Vintage siding from barns at least fifty years old is collected, matched, cleaned, fumigated, and shipped by Decor Materials, Inc., R. 2, West Broadway Drive, Appleton, Wis. 54911. If you send specifications or the dimensions of the room to be paneled, wood will be pre-cut and packed in cartons for easy installation. Barn siding, at $1.20 a square foot, comes in random widths of 6 to 12 inches and in lengths of up to 12 feet. If you are interested in creating the look of old barn siding you may also want to investigate the new wood fiber “Sturbridge Paneling” by Armstrong Cork, the hardboard paneling, “Barnboard” by Abitibi Corp., and Formica’s laminated plastic “Barnwood” which can be found at design centers and lumber companies throughout the country.

Can sooty carpeting be cleaned right in the house?
A fire in our neighborhood has left our year-old carpet grimy and lifeless, but I’m afraid our loss will be greater if we rip it up.

You can avoid the expense and inconvenience of taking up nailed down carpeting by having absorbent foam applied at home by a Duraclean representative. This foam works on soot, grime, and dirt of all kinds. Duraclean’s trained specialists are listed in most telephone books, or you can write directly to Duraclean Dealers of America, Dept. GHB, Deerfield, Ill., 60015.

Going places, finding things in DENMARK'S COUNTRY INNS

You can sample the cuisine and enjoy the traditional furnishings of Denmark by "Kro-hopping"—an unhurried progression from one unique inn to another

BY BARRY EDGAR

EDITOR'S NOTE: British journalist Barry Edgar, former editor of Denmark's English language newspaper, The Scandinavian Times, is now a freelance writer. He is also an accomplished cook—his "On-the-Move Cook Book" appeared in H&G in June, 1963.

If you are the sort of shun-the-big-cities type of traveler who seeks out woody surroundings and charmingly primitive architecture, you will find that several days spent in Danish country inns, or kros as they are called, will provide you with a holiday to cherish. Centuries ago the kings of Denmark granted charters to a number of these inns, and since they were to be used by the kings' own couriers, as well as any weary traveler who happened along, the licenses were granted sparingly and only on the basis of honesty, clean lodgings, and good food. The kro is first of all a Danish institution, only secondarily a tourist attraction, and each one is the personification of hyggelige (pronounced who-ga-leel), a special Danish word that describes a special Danish way of life. No precise translation exists in English—it is more a state of mind than a definable condition.

Roughly, hyggelige is that delicious atmosphere and sense of well-being that exists after a fine dinner with old friends, as you sit before an open fire—a state of blissful contentment, half-way between snugness and smugness.

Kros commonly take their names from the towns in which they are located—the Hornbaek Kro in the town of Hornbaek, the Kongensbro Kro in Kongensbro—and a glance at the map will show you that any kro on the island of Zealand is a maximum half day's drive (usually far less) north or south from Copenhagen. It is only in Jutland, the peninsula that sticks up from Germany, that you will really need to book overnight accommodations.

The best way to do your kro hopping is, of course, by car. Denmark has excellent roads, both primary and secondary, but if you are driving your own car into Denmark, it is well to be certain that all of your automobile papers are in perfect order. Denmark has a horrendous purchase and import tax on automobiles which can total 150 per cent, and should your papers not be in order, you may be asked to pay it. If you rent a car...

it pays to shop around for rates. There have been two price standards in the past, so if you can, get a Danish friend or your hotel porter to call and make your reservation. It may save you money.

Castles and Kings

If you would like to include some sightseeing in your travels, you might begin with a visit to the Store Kro at Fredensborg in North Zealand, the “Castle Country” of Denmark. Store means big and this is quite the largest and most elaborate of all the kros, perhaps due to its situation near a residence of the king. When the palace was built by King Frederick IV, he also built two small kros nearby—one for workmen, the other for guests. The latter has burned several times, but the workmen’s kro still stands intact. The present larger hotel section was built in the nineteen thirties and the workmen’s kro is now the annex. I recommend reserving a room in the annex, particularly the first-floor corner suite, if you can get it, with its old beamed ceilings, oriental rugs, and delicate Czechoslovakian crystal chandeliers. The large dining room serves Continental food, as good as you can find in a 500-mile radius, and of course, Danish specialties, although these are, perhaps, more to be sampled at some of the smaller hyggelige kros. At the Store Kro you should revel in fondue à l’Europe or tournedos flambé Atlantique, and sip your after-dinner coffee and cognac in the exquisitely feminine pink-and-white Queen’s lounge, or have a more masculine brandy and cigar by the roaring birch fire in the Great Hall.

The Store Kro is not cheap, substantially lower. Dinner for two usually comes to under $10, while rooms run about $5 per night. A smaller North Zealand inn is the Marianelund Kro at Gurre (one hour north of Copenhagen) which dates back to 1528. It stands at the very edge of a birch forest, and, with its white stucco walls, red tile roof, and weathered natural wood shutters looks for all the world like a cross between something out of Hans Christian Andersen and an early MGM movie. The ancient blackened wood staircase in the vaulted entrance hall and the Danish antiques in the public rooms will give you your first real feeling of hyggelige.

My favorite spots in the dining room are the two booths set into window bays that nuzzle right into the birch forest. Sandwiched between these two booths is the Marianelund Kro’s wine cellar with its heavy brass grilled doors. A roaring birch fire burns snappingly in the big brick fireplace, and on the walls under a black beamed ceiling hang the horn-re- splendent heads of buck deer taken by local huntsmen. Candlelight is a hallmark of hyggelige, and the main dining room of the Marianelund Kro blazes with it—a perfect setting for the exemplary cuisine that includes very, very fresh salmon sauced with a delicate hollandaise and filet de boeuf à la maison served with mushrooms and a sauce heavily laced with cognac.

Why do some Gorham knives have short blades and some have long blades

Study the knives in the picture, above. Notice how the sterling handles are about the same length. But the blade on the Chantilly knife is considerably longer. Why?

The Chantilly design on the knife handle has smooth, flowing lines. The longer blade allows this feeling to continue the length of the knife. It gives the knife an overall balance.

The shorter blade on the La Scala knife provides a better balance with the basic detail of the design.

That's why Gorham doesn't just design knife handles. Or fork handles. Or spoon handles. They design the entire piece from one end to the other. And from front to back.

Do you own a Gorham Original?

Price for a 4-piece place-setting: La Scala $54.50, Chantilly $46.00, Strasbourg $49.50, Gossamer $50.25, King Edward $48.75

Sterling prices subject to change without notice.

Every Gorham Original is perfectly balanced in both design and feel.
When you’re buying living room carpet, make sure there’s an Indian behind it.

Like Rhythm Lane, made with 100% pure wool pile. You don’t look for carpet every day. And you don’t want to replace it next year.

So here’s how to be a carpet expert:

Look for Mohawk Tommy on the label.

Our little Indian is your assurance that the Mohawk Carpet you select is the product of generations of carpet-making experience.

Mohawk Tommy doesn’t have to tell you how great pure wool is: that it means endurance, beauty and lasting elegance. As an added distinction this carpet bears the wool mark label—the mark of the world’s best... pure wool pile.

Rhythm Lane also comes in a dazzling range of colors. Bronze Green, shown here, is just one. Mohawk Tommy won’t scalp you on the price, either. Look for Mohawk Tommy when you buy living room carpet. If he isn’t there, just say “Ugh”, and keep looking.

what the proprietor calls a Danish answer to Swedish smörgåsbord. This dreamy assortment, dubbed laksassmorgåsning (literally, luxury meal), is lovingly arranged like a collage on one huge silver platter. There is caviar, chicken, salads, shrimp, salmon, smoked eel and herring (several varieties), duck, and that wonderful Danish cold roast pork with very special crackling. The Mariangelund Kro lies only a few minutes drive from almost anything you might want to do in North Zealand, such as horseback riding, golfing, or lolling on a mile-long stretch of beach. Best of all, there are silent birch and pine forests in which to tramp for endless hours of quiet reflection.

A nearby Elsinore is the fa- buled Kronborg castle. You can check to see if one of the periodic performances of Hamlet is taking place in the castle courtyard. Or if you are in Denmark during the summer, two concerts of medieval music, played on ancient antique instruments, are held in the castle’s candlelit tapestry hall.

Along North Zealand’s “Rivera,” which runs roughly from Elsinore to Husedsted, are numerous fairy-tale fishing villages. Nearest to the Mariangelund Kro is Hornbaek, the most fashionable Danish summer retreat, which has not one but two kros, the Store Bjorn, right on the sea, and the Hornbaek Kro. The Store Bjorn, or Big Bear, is, without doubt, one of the most charming country restaurants I have ever visited. You cannot stay overnight there, but you can dine in one of the four small dining rooms or, in summer, on the terrace. The charmingly subtle display of traditional Danish furniture here is well worth studying, for while the pieces are extremely simple and plain, they show what transformations can be made by the talented use of paint. Scandinavian traditional furniture was based on the French styles of Louis XV, Louis XVI, Directoire, and Empire, but it bears approximately the same relationship to French eighteenth-century design that American Colonial does to the English. Local craftsmen simplified the style and introduced their own clean lines and painted finishes. The furniture, large in scale but not massive, is almost always painted, usually in white, light gray, or eggshell with molding picked out in gold over a red underlay. Walls were often painted the same shade as the furniture with oriental rugs, accessories, curtains, and upholstery in strong, clear colors—from scarlet and nasturtium to blues and yellows—to provide the accents. This was the more formal furniture of the aristocracy. There was also a peasant style, again painted, but in brilliant colors such as Christmas red and green, and smaller in scale to fit smaller rooms. Combined with rustic oak furniture, in the Scandinavian manner, these country styles can be quite engaging.

You can see this blending of Danish traditional furniture in the dining rooms of the Store Bjorn, which always looks as if a thoughtful host has just finished setting the tables for a very special dinner party. Each is arranged differently, with bouquets of fresh country flowers and napkins folded into towers and fans. The furniture varies from room to room and table to table—here a Queen Anne or gold-painted Scandinavian dining chair, there a mahogany settee for two, banquets, and old oak chairs. The food, served on Royal Copenhagen deep-blue Tranquebar china, matches the individuality of the surroundings. Baked cod and brisket of beef, country style, are house specialties, but whatever is ordered, the silver platter on which it arrives makes it a visual delight.

For Charles Addams devotees Stricker Hotel, located in Christiansfeld, on the main road (E to Germany) is a must. We know a charming young lady from Connecticut who calls her decorate relatives.

Of course you were grateful to receive this furniture, but where do you start decorating — or re-decorating — with stuff like that?

From the bottom up, that's where.

Just remember that the floor comes first in home decorating. And that means carpeting, because carpeting does something for a room that nothing else can: it unifies. Carpeting makes everything work together. Beautifully. Colorfully. And with style.

And if you think really fine carpeting costs too much money, you're wrong. Haven't you ever heard of Cumuloft®? It's continuous filament nylon. Sturdy, easy-to-clean, beautiful nylon. And Masland makes three different carpets in 35 colors of 100% Cumuloft nylon pile.

Go see your Masland retailer. You're certain to find the right color, the right pattern, and the right texture. At the right price.

And tell your Masland retailer what you're up to. He may have a few ideas of his own about Aunt Emily's sofa.

Room 14 houses a rare treasure—an old Danish four-poster bed, its original paint, a deep rich green edged with traditional lines of red, carefully preserved. Red damask draperies are swagged about a huge gold sunburst on the ceiling. This is a Christmas bed, if there ever was one.

By way of contrast, a short hour-and-a-half drive will take you to Odense in the heart of Hans Christian Andersen land. In the suburbs of Odense lies one of the most picturesque of all Danish kros—the Sortebro Kro adjacent to Fynske Landby, an open air "living museum" of a Fyn village in which everyone and everything from the cobbler to the smithy is actually working in the ancient manner.

The dining rooms of the Sortebro Kro faithfully represent the two styles of old Danish hospitality—one formal, the other quite informal. The more casual one has a very low beamed ceiling and walls hung with antique Danish farming tools and old musical instruments. Tables covered with blue-and-white checked tablecloths are set with candles and fresh flowers. Even though this room is actually quite large, it retains a feeling of great intimacy.

In the formal dining room, the subtle colors of the peach-panelled walls and dove-grey woodwork and ceiling are echoed in the tablecloths. Two large, elegant mirrors hang at either end of the dining room, reflecting the pinpoints of candlelight from the large heavy silver candlesticks on each table.

Being on the site of a museum, the menu lists dishes appealing to a wide variety of European tourists, but there is also a hearty assortment of true Danish specialities, such as Danish caviar and hvidbryn a på a la Sortebro, a succulent Danish mixed grill with beef, chicken, liver, tomato, mushrooms, bacon, served with a sauce and pommes frites. Desserts, in the rich Danish tradition, run from a wide assortment of cheeses to poire belle Helene. And this is only a soupcon of the delights and delicacies to be found in the Danish kros, for their names, while not quite legion, are plentiful enough to keep a determined kro-seeker busy for weeks in this tiny, hygienic country.
The FDR Commemorative Decanter

Number Two in our Limited Edition Presidential Series honors Franklin Delano Roosevelt... and commemorates his twelve memorable years as our 32nd President. The beloved FDR profile sculptured in relief on the bottle is familiar to millions around the world... and etched on the back of bottle is that stirring phrase from FDR's first Inaugural Address: "We have nothing to fear but fear itself." This second Commemorative Decanter, fashioned of green artisan glass with a unique iridescent finish, follows the same graceful watch fob styling as the first one on John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Definitely a Collector's item. The Roosevelt bottle is sure to increase in value in a short time... judging by its predecessor, the Kennedy bottle, which now sells for twice its original price, although introduced only last November. A distinguished tribute to one of our great American Presidents! In green and white gift box $5.00. Wheaton Available at stores listed on facing page.

A reflection of the Past, Present and Future.
Traditionally, there are two kinds of table manners: casual and formal.

Traditionally, both have had a hard time getting along with the same dining set.

Now Brody combines beautiful traditional styling with casual modern convenience. Which is why we call this unique five-piece furniture grouping an elegant new set of table manners.

Your most particular dinner guests will admire this Brody beauty. Especially for its magnificent look of hand-carved wood and the graceful sweep of its lines.

And for once you won't have to remind the children to stay off the furniture. Because the entire set is completely washable and virtually kidproof.

Anyway you look at it, this sensibly priced Brody dining set is a matter of good taste.

The ritual of opening your house to spring can lift your spirits, but only if your windows work smoothly.

Curiously, after centuries of cutting holes in houses to let in light and air, no one has yet invented the perfect window. The modern choices have been boiled down to four basic types (if you rule out that truly revolutionary invention, the floor-to-ceiling sliding glass unit, as being a wall instead of a window). The four are: the double hung window, the casement, the awning, and the hopper. Each has its advantages and drawbacks in more or less equal degree; and each, in order to function reliably, needs to be understood and given a modicum of attention now and then.

THE DOUBLE HUNG SASH is a window whose obstinacy on occasion can unseat the discs in a delicate back. A mighty upward thrust and snap! The window may not budge a whisker, but a householder’s back can go clean out! Of waning popularity, this type of window is nevertheless familiar to millions of families. Its operating principle is simple enough: the upper and lower sash slide up and down, counterbalanced either by a weight attached to a cord or by a metal channel in which the window slides, checked by built-in springs. A double hung window in an old house occasionally will fail to function when the cord breaks on one side of the window. The only solution is to remove the wood strip that keeps the window in place and perhaps to remove the side jamb too. Then you, or your repairman, can replace the worn cord with a new one. But the failure of a double hung sash to slide freely can be traced to a paint problem. The window will stick if paint has hardened or, paradoxically, if wet and humid conditions have caused it to soften and become sticky. In either case, easy does it. Applying brute strength may loosen the horizontal framing piece from the side pieces, and it will almost certainly dislodge the calking compound that holds the glass firmly in place. Instead, where paint has hardened, run a knife blade between the window unit and the frame, all the way up and down, on both sides. You may also use a special little tool that resembles the many-toothed wheel of a cowboy’s spur; it costs about a dollar in hardware stores. If the window sticks because moisture has swollen it, you may be able to get it moving by applying paraffin in the groove on either side of the window. Then, if it still won’t budge, it may be necessary to remove the whole unit and plane the edges of the offending upright frames. While you’re at it, you should give the edges of the window a generous coat of linseed oil.

Since paint, hard or sticky, causes most of the trouble with double hung windows, the moral is obvious: be careful when painting not to slosh into the fine crack between sash and frame. A final tip: never paint a window when it is closed tight. Raise it several inches before the job is started; then you’ll have up-and-down maneuvering room to unseat the sash after the paint has dried. (Continued on page 70)
At the window, a Kirsch "Chateau" double rod set—silk sheers on a draw rod, printed silk overdraperies on stationary side rods.

In the foreground, a part of the selection of decorative rod styles and finishes from Kirsch.

But your window treatment becomes more lovely on it is graciously accented by the addition of a Kirsch decorative traverse rod. Even the most modest drapery fabric can become the marvelous focal point of any room.

The large variety of Kirsch decorative rod signs and lovely finishes makes it easy for you to enhance whatever style or treatment you have in mind. There's smart square-edge Atavio that hints of yesterday, yet looks just as well in contemporary settings. Or, distinctive new, in classic Chateau fluted styles, that beautifully highlights more formal treatments. And gleaming brass Traditional rods, so perfectly suited to today's fashions.

All styles now in adjustable sizes to fit windows up to 22½ feet wide. With coordinated cafe rod stylings, too. And in such attractive finishes: glowing bronze or antique brass; satin black; or luxurious white and gold. Nearly all good stores carry Kirsch. In Canada, too.

Hundreds of decorating ideas. Just 50c.

Our 1968 edition of "How to Make Your Windows Beautiful" is bigger and more beautiful. 100 full-color pages of new decorating ideas, color schemes and lovely window treatments. Only 50c from your Kirsch dealer or Kirsch Company.

THE CASEMENT WINDOW is hinged on the side jamb and swings outward from its opening in a horizontal plane. Many new houses rely on it because it is so convenient to open and close. A casement window does have one serious drawback: when it is open, the entire window inside and out, becomes exposed to the weather. If the frame is wooden, this means there is the threat of both swelling and warping. Your best countermove, of course, calls for painting the frames often enough to discourage moisture from penetrating them. Casement windows, like their hinge-type cousins, the awning and hopper windows, are manipulated and locked by a wide variety of mechanisms. Whatever type you have, make sure that it draws the frame securely against the window weather-stripping—and holds it there; otherwise, the window will admit unwelcome drafts and cold air.

THE HOPPER WINDOW hinges at the bottom and opens inward. This, of course, is fine for the window itself. When it is open, it is removed from the weather altogether. Therefore, maintenance is normally limited to periodic painting. The only possible source of difficulty centers around the hinges. Being anchored at the bottom of the window, they can be sprung if, when suddenly closed, a pebble or stick gets lodged between the window frame and sill.

Like so many other components in today's houses, most windows manufactured by national firms are the beneficiaries of meticulous quality control and precise fabrication. They are beyond question better than ever before. Keeping them in tip-top condition is mostly a matter of letting them do their job without abusing them, and applying a coat of paint or stain when needed.

THE AWNING WINDOW, as its name implies, hinges at the top of the window and swings outward from the bottom. It, like the casement type, seldom fails to function satisfactorily since the hinge principle is virtually foolproof. One special problem, however, comes with the awning window. Since the window closes and locks at the bottom, it is essential to keep foreign matter from accumulating on this sill. Particular care should be taken when painting to make sure that leaves or dirt particles are not allowed to collect and pile up in the still-wet paint. They may interfere with the seating and locking of the window.
David and I had decided to remodel our upstairs bathroom—and we didn’t know a thing about remodeling. What materials should we choose? Which workmen should we call in first? Should we schedule the work of plumber, electrician and others or have a contractor do it for us?

We knew that the Franklins next door had faced the same problems last year when they remodeled their bath. “Wendy, this little booklet was our lifesaver,” Mary Franklin told me. “It’s Pomona Tile’s How to Buy a Bath, and it answers questions about remodeling a bathroom—where to begin, how to organize the job, how to work with a contractor.

“It even tells you how to select materials—and that’s probably your single most important decision. Tom and I investigated them all—wood, vinyl, wallpaper, carpeting. We chose ceramic tile by Pomona.

“We had dozens of beautiful color combinations to select from. And there are so many exciting kinds of Pomona tile—colorful decorated tiles, subtle ceramic mosaics, even tiles with a textured surface. But we chose ceramic tile by Pomona for more than just its good looks. It never scratches, stains or discolors, for instance. With that kind of durability, we’ll never have to paint or refinish our bathroom. And all it takes to keep it clean and bright looking is a fast wipe with a damp cloth.”

Well, that was a month ago. And now David and I have a spanking new ceramic tile bath. We just love it—and so does everyone else who sees it. I’m so glad we found out about Pomona tile and How to Buy a Bath. The tile made our bathroom beautiful, the booklet made our remodeling easy.

Write for your copy of Pomona Tile’s How to Buy a Bath booklet.

It tells you what to look for in a quality bath and includes helpful tips on how to go about remodeling a bath. You’ll also receive a full-color Decorating Guide that’s filled with imaginative tile design ideas.

MUSEUMS TO CHERISH #2:

THE HOPITAL SAINT-JEAN MUSEUM

Tucked away in the ward of a hospital is a dazzling collection of paintings by one of the great Flemish masters

BY JOANNA LITTELTON

When traveling, I have found, you should never underestimate the advice of a concierge. Certainly if I had done so when I was in Belgium, I would never have discovered the marvelous little Hospital Saint-Jean Museum in the enchanting city of Bruges.

I was in Brussels to meet some American friends who lived in Geneva and who had proposed driving home through the Rhineland, with me as their passenger. With a day to spare before our scheduled departure, we decided to go to Ghent to see the Van Eyck Altarpiece in the Cathedral. Like most people who had only seen reproductions of the work, we called it "The Adoration of the Lamb."

In the course of checking my concierge for the best road to take out of Brussels, I mentioned our plan for the day. I was not only told the route but given the name of a restaurant in which to have lunch and instructed to go on to Bruges in the afternoon to "see the Memlings."

My friends were willing to do as we had been told, so after reaching Ghent, mingling with the considerable crowds who, like us, had come to feast their eyes on Van Eyck's masterpiece, and lunching in the delightful ambiance of a family-style Belgian restaurant, we drove contentedly the 45 kilometers to Bruges.

That was the year of the golden summer in which all Europe basked in sunshine—people in London were calling it a heat wave—and that July day could not have offered a balmer atmosphere in which to do some leisurely sightseeing. So much so, that after we had parked the car in the marketplace at Bruges and set out, guidebooks in hand, to find the museum in Mariestraat, both my friends were diverted to other pursuits.

One of them, beguiled by the stalls full of hand-made lace for sale, proceeded in search of Mariestraat, meanwhile saying "Memling Museum?" to anyone who thought might conceivably be able to direct me. It was probably a good thing I added the word Memling; according to the guidebook which proudly calls Bruges the "City of Art," there are at least nine museums in this city of 52,000 people.

In any case, my technique worked and I was directed to the right building—even though the museum is called the Hôpital Saint-Jean Museum, because it is situated in St. John's Hospital, a gabled group of buildings part of which date back to the thirteenth century. As it is still run as a hospital, I could hardly believe I had reached the museum until the moment I actually found myself in the old ward where the collection of jewel-like paintings by Hans Memling is housed.

By official count, there are only six Memlings in the museum in Bruges. But earlier that day in Ghent we had learned that a trip to Ghent can be made up of nearly twenty panels of varying shapes and sizes, and the Bruges collection, including as it does three triptychs, a diptych, one portrait and the marvelous Shrine of St. Ursula, makes "six Memlings" somewhat misleading.

St. Ursula in miniature

This great fifteenth-century Flemish painter delighted in perfect reproduction of precious materials, gleaming jewels, and paradisal gardens. But his paintings are quite small, and a real examination of their fascinating details and the multitude of tiny figures with which some of them are filled, requires time and—for any but the sharp-eyed—a magnifying glass. This is especially true of the Shrine, a miniature church, gilded and pinnacled, into which more than a dozen exquisitely painted panels and medallions are set like stained-glass windows. The six major panels on each side, entitled the "Legend of St. Ursula," form a kind of medieval storybook, revealing the history of the sainted Ursula, who allegedly left Cologne

For every woman: the second deodorant™ you may need whether you know it or not.

Norforms®, the internal deodorant, kills germs to stop feminine odor before it offends.

No woman wants to offend others. That's why she uses an underarm deodorant every day. But internal feminine odor, caused by germs, can be an even more serious problem.

What to use? Douching is time-consuming, awkward, and unpleasant. And doctors may say you shouldn't douche daily. Now, thank goodness, there's something as safe and pleasant to use as your underarm deodorant . . .

Norforms, the second deodorant™

Norforms are tiny with an entourage of 11,000 virgins to make a pilgrimage to Rome, and, with her companions, was massacred by Huns on her return.

It all sounds very tragic, but after a detailed examination of the pictures I came to the conclusion that Memling's greatest talent was to delight the eye, rather than chill the blood. For the panels are charming, filled with the most delectable colors, and with a stylized arrangement of figures that is utterly decorative.

Details like the billowing sails of the curved wooden boats, the turrets, and the winding road of the city in the background, the graceful folds of the scarlet and mauve mantles of the voyaging virgins, make up a series of lovely patterns. And St. Ursula herself is so pretty and calm through all her tribulations—raising only an admonishing hand to the armor-clad crossbowman who menaces her—that her death is more like a pictorial lesson in how a well-brought-up young saint faces martyrdom than the re-creation of a tragic event.

For me, there are few portraits of the Madonna and Child in the world of art that match the gentle charm of "The Virgin Mary with the Apple" in this museum. Oval-faced, with a porcelain complexion, red-gold hair flowing over her shoulders and her mouth curved in an expression of sublime content, Mary holds a rosy apple close to the baby's out-stretched hand. The model for the Madonna must have been the most innocently beautiful girl in Bruges when she posed for this vignette, and there is a tenderness about the glowing painting that makes it unforgettable.

"Mystic Marriage of Saint Catherine"

Equally, once having seen it, I could never forget the rich beauty of a larger work, "The Mystic Marriage of St. Catherine," where stained-glass colors—reds, greens, russets, golds—illustrate a scene full of simple tranquility. This time the Madonna and Child, superbly enthroned yet quietly contemplative, are served by angels and flanked by saints, receive homage from a marvelously gowned Catherine. Through the colonnade behind the group one glimpses fields, minute figures, the roofs and towers of a town. Without faltering, Memling has fused the myst world and the everyday world in touching, poetic unity.

This same kind of unity pervades the "Adoration of the Magi", a work generally considered to be one of the loveliest Memling ever created. Here the Holy Family is shown very much as an ordinary family—despite the presence of the pair of seraphim, minute and exquisitely painted in the quiet, joyful Nativity panel, and of the splendid Kings in the sumptuous center panel.

To my eyes, Memling achieves this realism by the attitudes which he depicts the figure of Joseph. In the Nativity scene, he is the proud father; in the third panel, the Presentation at the Temple, he is watchful, standing by rather anxiously, as though to be sure that everything is being done as it should be.

But the most delightful expression of human emotion which the artist portrays is in the main panel, in which Joseph stands behind the Virgin and Child, holding the gift of gold from a kneeling King. Marveling at the shimmering colors and the meticulous detail in the painting, I leaned forward for a closer look, and was fascinated to find that Joseph's own gaze is wondrously directed towards the beautiful, erect young prince from Africa who is just entering the manger, his tribute in hand, his short, white-borded tunic a glitter of gold and blue brocade. It is almost as though Memling felt that the humble carpenter wanted, but did not quite dare, to ask these fabulous visitors why they had come to pay their homage to his child.

Just behind the figure of Joseph, the head of a bearded man can be seen looking at the adoring Kings through a narrow, stone window. Checking the work in my guidebook, I found this was a self-portrait; when Memling finished the painting in 1479, it was doubtless his unmistakable signature.

Another painting that particularly charmed me is the artistic portrait of a young Flemish woman, Maria Moreels, the daughter of the Burgomaster of Bruges. Although she cannot be compared in beauty to the lovely girl who is depicted as the Madonna, the portrait has a rare quality of thoughtfulness, and I found that it drew my eyes back from the magnificently decorative triptychs and the elaborate gilding of St. Ursula's Shrine to its homely simplicity. In its way, like wholesome bread on the banquet table, it completes the feast given by this small collection.

YOUR EXPanding PERSONAL WORLD

The boundaries of home, as H&G pointed out over three years ago, no longer stop at the periphery of a family’s house or lot. While the outer world has been steadily intruding within our walls, our personal world has been expanding outward. What we used to call home has now become an environment. H&G contends that an intelligent awareness of that environment—and an active relationship with it—is essential to the enjoyment of living.

Some aspects of your environment you can create and control. Color, for instance. Color costs nothing, since you spend no more to be surrounded by the colors you love than you would spend anyway for simple comfort and convenience. Significantly, our man-created color environment today has overflowed the house walls to the adjacent outdoors where it not only enhances outdoor living but, visible through glass walls, indoor living too.

Some aspects of your environment are natural, asking only to be enjoyed—or to use a harsher term, exploited. They cost no money either, but they are precious to people who have a true talent for living. The flower fixer, for instance, who rambles the fields and woods for bouquets to enliven her rooms. Or the couple who cart to an architect’s office a small sack of stones, bark, lichen and grasses gathered from their newly purchased site, and ask for a house “that will go with these.” Or the family so keenly aware of the land around them and its fruits that harvest is the cue for their entertaining, and home grown bounty the cue for their menus.

Other aspects of your environment call for drastic correction. As our environment expands, its flaws are proportionately inflated, and for the privilege of putting up with these nuisances we pay a great deal of money. Yet depressing as the facts may be to think about, they can be corrected. As Albert-Bush-Brown observed in last month’s H&G (“Your right to a fine city”), they are being corrected where people really care. In this issue (see page 106), you will learn what you can do right now to correct air pollution. In coming months we will outline facts and solutions for other corrigible flaws in today’s living environment—both physical flaws and those which are no less real because they are intangible. For H&G believes the expanded personal world that makes up your environment for living can be only as satisfying and delightful on the whole as every aspect of it is delightful.
People who love color and live with it, learn in time that its excitement is sparked by effect, rather than quantity. A room saturated, say, with bright red, can be electrifying for a while, then like a fire, burn itself out into dull monotony. But a limited quantity of the same red (or blue or green), splashed against white or near white, takes on a sparkle that never palls. Visually and psychologically, less color becomes more.

It was with this magic in mind that H&G undertook the furnishing and decoration of a new house in Houston, Tex., planning it for a hypothetical, travel-loving, fond-of-music family of four—parents and two daughters, ten and fifteen. Roger Rasbach, who designed the house, calls it “one-third Mesopotamian, one-third Mediterranean, one-third Texan.” Built mostly of brick in a big U around a central patio with a plunge pool (there are also four little peripheral patios: see plan, page 87), the house covers every foot of its plot that the law allows, shows nothing to its neighbors but its Pongee-colored walls, and would make perfect sense on the Riviera. Once past the front gates, however, you are in American clover, for this is a house designed for hospitality, comfort, coolness, and easy maintenance—the “one-third Texan” that spells home base. Most of the furniture is from Tomlinson’s Apropos collection in which Regency, Empire, Louis XV, and Louis XVI styles have been rescaled and reinterpreted in a wide variety of materials in rapport with the demands of today’s living.

If you were to look into a very special kaleidoscope, one in which numerous bright patterns of fourteen H&G Colors were inlaid in creamy whiteness—the fourteen framing the opposite page—you would have a picture of most of the house. In some of the rooms, color is concentrated in bright bouquets, in others it is more widely diffused. But going from almost any room to any other, you take with you one color link. The Persian Blue, for example, that sparks the kitchen, you find again in lamp bases in the adjacent family room. Also a bridge between indoor and outdoors, the colors in each patio echo those of the room they serve. So, through this trick of iteration, you meet one familiar friend after another as you walk along, and you think how very nice, I have been here before.

THE POOL PATIO facing east is the core of the house and is flanked on three sides by the kitchen, the living room gallery, and part of the bedroom wing (see plan, page 87). Completely walled, the patio is treated exactly like a room—the first in which a bright bouquet of color glows in a neutral setting. The background is very gentle: Mushroom concrete tiles underfoot (a material that flows right into the house to pave all floors except the bedrooms’), Pongee paint on the shingles and the tongue-and-groove siding of the inward-sloping, upper side-walls. Because this side of the house gets all the morning sun, the gallery’s glass wall is hung inside with white louvers, 20 feet high—a brilliantly snowy background for the patio’s one vivid hue: Persian Blue. It finishes the louvered doors to the kitchen and bedrooms and reappears in the nylon webbing on the white metal chairs and chaise longues. Greenery—the foliage for this “bouquet”—fringes the entire patio. Furniture by Brown-Jordan; all exterior and interior paints by Colorizer.

One end of living room, above, opens to a little fountain-patio; the other, opposite page, to the big lower-screened pool-patio. In the dining room, left, all the colors in both rooms converge in the table setting.

In the living and dining rooms, which link the two arms of the U-shaped plan, the strategy of color-bouquet-in-a-neutral-setting is carried out in two different ways. In the living room all the bright colors are concentrated on the upholstered furniture in a print vibrant with Azalea, Tangerine, Purple Anemone, Parrot Green. In the dining room, which is completely open to the living room, most of them are repeated, but individually—Parrot Green on the chair frames, Azalea on their seat covers, Purple Anemone in the vinyl covering a luscious soft-edge sofa. Painting by Lawrence Calcagno from the Houston Galleries. Steinway grand piano; rug by Karastan; floral fabric by Connaissance. With the exception of the French cabinet in the living room, all the furniture in the main rooms is from the Apropos collection designed by John May for Tomlinson.
THE FAMILY ROOM, a relatively small room between kitchen and dining room, is extended by its own little patio. Trophies, animal prints, and travel books make the room more masculine than gardenish—a quality underscored by the colors indoors and outdoors: black, white, and Mushroom, all concentrated in a linen fabric against a pale neutral background, and accented by one bright color, Persian Blue. In the bookshelves, a portable jukebox helps make the welkin ring for the two young girls in our hypothetical family. At the window wall, a curtain of permanently pleated fabric accordions into very little space, or pulls out on its specially designed track into a series of precise folds that come back from the cleaners unscathed. Family room furniture by Tomlinson; Brown-Jordan patio furniture; Connaissance linen; Permaneat curtain fabric and track by Isabel Scott.

IN THE KITCHEN, opposite page, one quiescent but rich color, bronze, was chosen for the bulk of the background—cabinets, refrigerator, freezer—then spiked with mosaic tile countertops and splashbacks in blues carried indoors from the patio and pool—Persian Blue, Ultramarine, Bluebell, Blueberry. The copper hood over the cook counter was antiqued to a splendid verdigris and framed with strips of silver leaf. Across the aisle is a triple stainless-steel sink low enough to work at sitting down. In the bedrooms that H&G decorated for the hypothetical family's two daughters—one ten, one and their parents and guests, there is quite as emphasis on pattern as on color. Off the balcony over the living room's gallery are the girls' twin rooms, fundamentally alike. But a sharp switch in patterns and colors gives them each an entirely different character. All the elements in both rooms appear in the striped sheets on the si and again in the bathroom they share. Downstairs, the double guest room is dominated by a formal pattern, smaller guest room by one that is florally informal. Parents' bedroom (see page 87). Pattern runs quite

HE EXTERIOR of H&G’s House of Color owes much of its Mediterranean aura to sand and sea colors—Pongee-sponsored brick, shingles, and horizontal siding, peacock’s tail shimmer of blue in the tiled mingling pool. Since the house, in a sense, a walled oasis, greenery is as important as order. Each patio is lush with shrub-filled inters and potted trees—moss-green, yellowen, emerald—to cloak the enclosures in a dancy that is cooling by day, ineffably romantic at night, when the patios and the car court—a marvelous spot for big parties—are lit like stage sets. By day, sunlight enters house indirectly and softly—first down into patios, then into the rooms through their east walls. Only the girls' rooms have conventional windows that catch direct light.

Night lighting, most of it recessed in the paving, makes the pool patio an irresistible spot for after-dark sitting and sipping. When big parties spread out to the car court, lowered doors are opened to relate it visually to the house.

U-shaped plan of main floor includes almost the entire house. Only the girls’ bedrooms are on upper floor above living room, part of family room, and master dressing room, as indicated by shading on main floor plan.
In fields and woods and along the roadside, you will find the makings of enchanting WILDFLOWER BOUQUETS.

From the first wild violet that lifts its purple head to the spring sunshine, to the last berry that turns to flame in the fall, wildflowers and grasses and branches are waiting for you to find them, bring them home, and compose them lovingly into bouquets. The pristine cousins of florists' hybrids and cultivated garden varieties, found flowers diffuse the refreshing charm of bright innocence and mirth. You can find them anywhere—in fields, forests, and city lots, on beaches and bordering highways—sometimes in breath-taking blankets of color, sometimes in miniature woodland oases peeping out from among ferns and brackens (on page 38 you will learn which flowers you may expect to find in your climate zone). But in many ways they are frail, as any child knows who has wept over a tenderly plucked buttercup withering almost instantly in his hand.

When you go gathering wildflowers, one simple precaution will assure a more lasting bouquet—a bucketful of tepid water, in which to soak the entire length of each stem just after it has been cleanly cut with a very sharp knife or scissors. And as you wander across the countryside, resist the temptation to transplant a whole clump of natural beauties to your own yard, for wildflowers when taken captive all too often languish. Since most found flowers are freely yours right where they are (local conservation laws may protect certain species), better to take a few cut blossoms gratefully home, and appreciate their loveliness while it lasts.

When you fix the bouquets, there is only one fast rule: never try to force the flowers into haughty florist arrangements. They will look strained and stilted. Instead, remember nature's casual harmony—the spiky grass that grows near angular bladdernut; the lacy meadow grasses you see beside golden buttercups; the tangle of trees and vines at the edge of a field full of asters and goldenrod; fuzzy thistle tufts near fuzzy millet grass. Florists' Oasis works better than needle holders for supporting casual natural-looking arrangements. You can guide fragile stems with rigid toothpicks or hibachi skewers.

The unexpected delight of seeing a wildflower bouquet amid man-crafted furnishings and objets d'art can be multiplied by a surprise container. If you want to emphasize the flowers' rustic innocence, arrange them in a demure basket. Or take the opposite tack and glorify their beauty by setting them in a container of precious porcelain, silver, or gold. Some bouquets also lend themselves to pithy touches of wit—a jeweled insect perched on a stem, for instance, an exquisitely carved frog crouching near a bowl of ferns, or two silver eggs nested in a basket.
A tousle of red and white clover, in a golden basket just big enough to provide breakfast for a pair of honeybees, gives a bedside table the exhilarating air of a meadow abloom and buzzing.
The gauzy green bladdernut’s stark angularity is sharpened by spears of wild grass in a narrow-mouthed watering can (this one happens to be silver from Tiffany). Blossoms can be left to dry into a lasting bouquet.

When we decided to build our mountain weekend house," says Mrs. Frank Wyle, "I went for a walk on the property and collected a basketful of moss, granite, fungi, leaves, and such. Then I took it to our architect, John Rex, and put it on his desk and said 'Build us a house that looks like that.' We think he did.

The North Fork land on which the Wyles, a couple with three grown children, maintain about 400 head of registered Black Angus cattle, is a kind of California Garden of Eden. The 3.20 acre virgin tract abounds with wild life—streams and lakes, mountains and canyons, a rich variety of trees and wild flowers, and a view of the nearby Sierra Nevada. Designing a house for such a panoramic site is not a simple accomplishment, and behind the poetry lie hard facts. One is the concentration on local materials: the 500 tons of granite quarried on Wyle land and built into a massive platform, and pylons that give the house its solidity; the wide use of indigenous woods—oak, cedar, and redwood; the staining of the one native wood—the fir of the structural posts and beams—to match the deep black-brown tree barks outside the house. Another element that brings nature indoors visually is the vast expanse of glass wall, left uncurtained in a two-story living room, since isolation provides privacy. The 1,250 square feet of deck on three sides also joins it to the outdoors. Probably the most subtle evocation of the forest within the house is the completely exposed branch-like framework of the ceiling supported by fifteen tree-like posts. (Continued)

Indigenous woods and granite quarried on the land give the house a close affinity with its spectacular site.

HOUSE & GARDEN, APRIL, 19—
Aero-space engineer Frank Wyle, painter wife, Edith, their married son, his wife, and their two college-age daughters all love mountain life and share it with as many guests as possible. The two men find superintending cattle raising and operating graders satisfying weekend occupations, but they often join the residents of the company for hunting, fishing, back riding, and water sports. Wyle particularly likes “just being out and looking,” but she is an agriculturist, too—collects rocks and natural wildflowers and plants a large fruit orchard and wildflower garden.

Indoors, the Wyles enjoy friends, food and firelight, and idleness in a two-story room, despite its size, affords, in the hearth-centered pit, a deep-seated enclosure in contrast to the open space of the dining area. (Continued)

Above left: Dining furniture, rock chairs, and other pieces were especially created for the house by Sam Mal,p who executes his own designs.

The conversation pit, built into the hearth, is lined with low leather couches backed by bookshelves. “No shoes on the walls” is a house rule; the Wyles have a collection of soft slippers for guests.

Opposite page: The deck surrounding the house is protected from the annual 42 inches of rain by generous overhangs.
HOW YOU CAN BE A WIZARD WITH FABRIC

One of the surest swiftest ways of giving a room the fresh contemporary look of today is to lavish it with printed fabric, used in imaginative new ways that come as a titillating surprise. Hopefully the fabric's design will come as a surprise, too, but this needn't mean space-age hieroglyphics or psychedelic distortions. Motifs as old as the Sphinx can inspire patterns as fresh as spring's first blooms.

A case in point is the newest series of cotton prints by Everfast. The source that sparked these unhackneyed designs were both venerable and eminent—the collections of antique fabrics, ceramics, and carpets in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. Yet none of the patterns is simply a documentary copy; all were newly created with motifs selected because of their delightful affinity for the way we use fabric today. Since most of them derive directly or indirectly from the great Islamic arts that spread during the Middle Ages from the eastern Mediterranean to India (the arabesque style that H&G highlighted some months ago), the group as a whole is called "East of the Sun."

The colors, too, are of today, many of them coinciding with hues in H&G's 1968 palette. And happily the price is modest enough to encourage lavish use—about $5 a yard. Practicality is also assured by the fact that these prints are stain protected with Zepel and backed by the Everfast color guarantee.

Wizardry with fabric, however, is more than a matter of generous yardage. How and where you use it is quite as important as how much, as you will see in these rooms, which were designed by H&G in collaboration with B. Altman & Co. In each of them an East-of-the-Sun print creates a different ambiance.

FOR A GARDEN ROOM, we chose Dynasty, a strong simple floral pattern with a crisp contemporary look that quite belies its origin on a thousand-year-old Sung Dynasty vase, left. Having spread the print over a loveseat and the seats of two Chippendale-style chairs, freshly painted white, we covered a table with it, then used it again to upholster the tall screens that stand in for overcurtains. Vinyl floor and brass and glass étagère meet the needs of indoor gardening. All furnishings in this and next four rooms from Altman's.

Decks on three sides of the house (see plan below) increase the living space by 1,250 square feet, are much in use day and night. Front deck, above, overlooks man-made lake.

Each of the fifteen pyramids of the umbrella roof is 15 ft square. Posts and beams are dark-stained Douglas fir, in contrast to redwood roof decking of much lighter tone.

The plan is a simple long rectangle with a mezzanine over one half. Two stone pylons punctuate each long facade, are exposed indoors.

UMBRELLA HOUSE

The two-story living-dining room occupies a little more than half the house. The other half consists of a kitchen, master bedroom, and bath downstairs, and two bedrooms and a bath off a big gallery above. The gallery, overlooking the living room, is large enough to serve as a sleeping area for young people when the Wyle daughters have extra guests. Six more guests can sleep in a nearby trailer-guest house which is disguised by a deck and grape arbor.

The stone pylons that give so much drama to the exterior of the house are equally important indoors, giving each room a wall of great textural interest. But neither they nor the walls obscure the top branches of the tree-like roof supports.

The gallery bedrooms do not interrupt the sweep of the umbrella ceiling because their partitions stop a few feet short of it.

A corner of the front deck, opposite page, illustrates the Wyles’ serendipitous way with a house: a ceremonial umbrella from India, via the UCLA Thieves Market, stands atop a telephone company winding cable spool found on the property and immediately recognized as a possible table. Ceramic wind chimes on the tree branch are the work of a local artist, Pat Casac.
IN A TURKISH CORNER, vintage 1968, we dressed a luxurious line-up of sofas in Chaldee, a pattern inspired by an eighteenth-century Indian export cotton. To set it off with contemporary snap, we covered the walls and a pair of ottomans with a stripe that combines the print colors—Red Apple and Azalea—with sharp Parrot Green. Bright red vases and lacquered tables step up the sizzle, but the temperature of the whole is kept within bounds by the white ceiling and floor, white accessories, and a white-painted wood screen, carved and cut out in a lacy design with a romantic arabesque flavor.

IN A FUN AND GAMES ROOM, we created a tent worthy of an affluent nomad by lining walls and ceiling with Shiraz, a two-tone print in Zinnia and Lemon Peel taken from a medieval Indian cotton. Wall curtains are shirred on rods at the ceiling line, hang free at the floor. Overhead, the fabric is in four sections, each gathered on a rod at the ceiling’s edge, then pulled to a wooden block at the center. For accent, we used lots of white—upholstered furniture of white leather and steel, white table, white rug, an op art print on white plexiglass. Story & Clark piano; print from Multiples Gallery.

For shopping information, see page 140
FOR A DINING ROOM, we decided on Kashan, a rich arabesque design in browns, Zinnia, and Maple Sugar spiked with Persian Blue. Adapted from an old Indian rug in a Persian style, it looks as up-to-date as the morning paper. To show off its intricacies to full effect, we stretched the fabric on shoji frames to screen the windows instead of curtains, and spread it over the walls of a niche. Then we carried the pattern to the center of the room on the slip-on seats and backs of director's chairs, where it is always in clear view through the glass top of the dining table.

IN A ROMANTIC BEDROOM-SITTING ROOM, we covered almost everything with companion fabrics derived from an Indian bedspread made for the European market 200 years ago. For the walls we chose Sadko, a vertical stripe that made the ceiling seem higher—and for everything else, Khamsa, an all-over pattern composed of the same motifs in the same colors—Ultramarine, Bluebell, Forget-Me-Not. So large a motif in such profusion might seem too busy if it were not held in check by sizable areas of plain positive color—the Ultramarine of the bed curtain lining and Parsons table: the strong blue-red of the rug; the sharp white of the paneled dado.
"If you visit American city, you will find it very pretty," sings satirist Tom Lehrer: "Just two things of which you must beware. Don't drink the water and don't breathe the air. Pollution! Pollution!"

For many millions of Americans this is extremely sage advice, for we have contaminated our atmosphere so recklessly that today almost all cities over 50,000 in population, and many much smaller ones, suffer from an urgent air pollution problem.

Some mornings you wake up with your eyes burning and your nose stinging and you know it is going to be one of those days. Perhaps a fierce, burning haze hangs in the sky. Or a malodorous fog blots out buildings and hills. Or you can almost see and surely feel the gritty soot descending. In some cities, women's nylon stockings have disintegrated on their legs from the chemical garbage in the air. Trees planted along streets have sickened and died, choked by air-borne rubbish. Cattle on Florida ranges have lost their teeth from poisons spewed out by industrial chimneys. Denverites, long proud of the crystalline clarity of their air, on many days can no longer see the peaks of the Rockies from downtown streets. Cleopatra's Needle has suffered more erosion in the last few decades in New York's injurious air than in several millennia on the Nile—not surprising since Manhattan endures a sootfall of 80 tons a month. Planes crash in skies laden with man-made fog. Coastal ships lose their way, and second and third class air turns whole neighborhoods into junkyards.

"We have the number one air pollution problem among nations," Vice President Hubert Humphrey told a recent national conference on air pollution. "It's nice to be first—except when it comes to being first in misery."

How did we get into this fouled up state?

You and I did it—unintentionally, of course, while achieving the good life. For air pollution is the fall-out of affluence. We arise in winter in a comfortably warm house, in summer in a pleasantly cool one. Either way, smoke has belched out of the chimney of our own furnace or of the local power plant. We flip on electrical appliances—radio, toaster, razor, percolator—more pollutants from the power plant. We get into a car or bus to go downtown. Fumes pour out of the exhaust. When thousands of cars come to a near standstill in a traffic jam, the only thing that accelerates is the noxious outflow from the tailpipe.

All across the land, factories turning out the million and one things we buy, refineries processing our fuels and raw materials, emit befouling materials upwards. Into incinerators and burning dumps that operate with criminal inefficiency, are heaved our beer cartons, old newspapers, garbage. A typical apartment house incinerator spews out 25 pounds of waste for every ton of refuse it burns.

Up into the air across the nation, into our once invigorating and pellucid air, soar 390,000 tons of pollutants every twenty-four hours. When this was a sparsely populated continent and most of us lived on farms, our gaseous leavings were wafted away and dispersed. But now that we are a highly industrialized country of 200 million, with half of us packed together in cities that occupy less than 1 per cent of the land mass, we find increasingly that what goes up must come down. Or as Dr. Walsh McDermott, Chairman of the Department of Public Health at Cornell University Medical College, puts it, "As a whole nation, we seem to be kicking around the refuse products of our highly industrialized society in an innocent hope that they will get lost." They're not getting lost, as you can tell simply by opening the window and sniffing.

The four worst offenders

But before we find out what to do to make our air more breathable, we must pause for the briefest of cram courses in the chemistry of pollution. To pinpoint blame we must look at causes. The air we breathe is mostly a mixture of nitrogen and oxygen gases in a thin band of atmosphere that envelops the planet and is no thicker proportionally than the skin of an apple. We each breathe about 35 pounds of air a day. The dirt in our air comes from four main sources: moving vehicles, industry, households, and municipal installations. Most of the polluting chemicals are the result of incomplete burning.

The single worst offender is the automobile. Some 10 billion gallons of gasoline are estimated by experts to evaporate from cars during the year—burdening the air with hydrocarbons. The U.S. Public Health Service says imperfect combustion inside the engine turns out 66 million tons of lethal carbon monoxide. Exhaust fumes also contain harmful nitrogen oxides. On a warm day when the sun hits the invisible hydrocarbons and nitrogen dioxide in automobile.
air, it cooks them into a dangerous substance called ozone. It is ozone along with other chemicals such as PAN, formed by the photochemical action of sunlight, that burn your eyes and cause vers to topple over on their stems. Photochemical haze is the aging smog you get in Los Angeles and other cities that are oriented directly into the sun. Air pollution is less newsworthy but even more deadly. Air pollution is usually referred to as respiratory disease.

Most factories and power plants burn heavy fuel oil and coal to give off sulphur compounds. Sulphur combines with oxygen to form poisonous sulphur oxides, among them sulphuric acid. In many industrial areas the sulphur oxides turn the sky a dirty whimsical, ruin crops, erode buildings, and make breathing a horror. So out of factory chimneys, refuse incinerators, and backyard incinerers escape millions of tons of fly ash—gritty, sooty particles that become window sills, blacken furniture, and clog your lungs.

In addition, anyone living downwind of a paper factory, an oil refinery, a phosphate plant, or a cement works is aware of the specific pollutant that each technology calls its own.

As if all this weren't enough, every so often nature pulls an ecologically dirty trick. It's called an inversion. Much of the time you can draw a semi-decent breath, because that garbage in the sky is sooner or later blown away by the wind or carried upward over the warm air close to the earth rises through the cooler air over it. But sometimes a warm air mass clamps down like a lid over a city or a valley. The junk under the lid stays trapped and the days we breathe and rebreathe a steadily mounting concentration of choking pollutants. Not all of us survive this experience.

The air is killing us story's first documented inversion—in the Meuse Valley of Belgium in 1930—took 60 lives and filled hospitals. The Donora, Pennsylvania, inversion in 1948 made half the community's 14,000 inhabitants ill and killed 20 of them. London's "killer smog" in 1952 followed in five days an estimated 4,000 deaths that would not have happened otherwise. In 1963, New York City had more than 400 cases deaths during two weeks of exceptionally intense pollution.

Air pollution disasters cause headlines. The daily health reports tell us that the death rate from bronchial disease faithfully follows the air pollution curve. Short of death, coughing, wheezing, headaches, dizziness, sore throat, eye irritations, and a generalized feeling of wanting to crawl into a hole and get away from it, are the health price we pay for dirty air.

The dirt is costing us money

The money price is something else. A recent study in the heavily polluted Ohio River Valley calculated that the extra expense for house painting, cleaning windows, curtains, rugs, upholstery, and clothing, more frequent shampoos and manicures can reach $200 a year a person or over $600 for a typical family. Congressman William F. Ryan of New York puts the cost at $600 a family for city dwellers. Sulphur in the air, by attacking stone buildings, raises city budgets for cleaning and repairs. It blackens house paint, tarnishes copper and silver, corrodes metals. Automobile tires wear out from the action of oxidants. Agricultural losses in California alone are estimated at $100 million a year. Truck farmers near cities have had to give up crop after crop as spinach, beans, tomatoes sicken and die in the vile air. The cost to the consumer runs into millions. U.S. government figures set the property damage cost at $11 billion a year, but some experts jack their estimates up to $20 billion.

One of the least visible cost items is the waste. Some $300 million in sulphur goes up in smoke. About 10 billion gallons of gasoline—nearly 15 per cent of total sales—evaporate from our cars without moving us forward one foot. New York now recaptures the fly ash in its incinerators and sells it as cinder block at an $800,000 a year profit. But in most places it ends up on your carpet.

Wantonly, we toss 140 million tons of pollution into the air a year—greater tonnage than our steel production.

What should we do?

The fight against air pollution is already well underway but not going fast enough. Congress took its first action back in 1937 with a modest research and control program conducted chiefly by the states, and its most recent action last fall with the Air Quality Act of 1967, which sets a $428 million blueprint for dealing with pollution programs on a regional basis, and permits strong federal action if the states sit with folded hands. Most states and many cities have statutes on the books, but do little until vigorously prodded. Los Angeles is one of the few major cities that has effective controls, although you'd hardly know it from breathing the air. But without its tough approach, it is entirely possible that L.A. today would be altogether uninhabitable by the human animal. Chicago has an aggressive program and New York is trying hard to clamp down on offending utility plants and on apartment incinerators.

If you want to do something constructive about air pollution where you live, here are the steps to take:

1. Make sure your own house is in order. See that your heating plant is in good repair. Do not burn garbage or leaves. Make sure your car is burning its gas with maximum efficiency. Federal law requires all new 1968 cars to be equipped with an exhaust control device that suppresses some two-thirds of hydrocarbon emissions. But careful maintenance is the only way to control older cars.

A talent for living

remodeled eighteenth-century barn painted bird's-egg blue is the heart of a three-acre domain in Stanwich, Conn., that provides the Robert B. Cadwalladers with most of the delights to be found on any poet's checklist for the good life: A warm, snug, but unpretentious house that rings with the sounds of children and dogs. Rooms rich with color and filled with well-loved, carefully chosen, personal treasures. A vegetable garden overflowing with the bounty of the earth. Masses of flowers blooming all year either in the fields or the greenhouse. For the three Cadwallader boys, a clubhouse hidden high in tree branches. And for another mood or a rainy day, a former sheep shed, stocked with paints and plenty of paper, where there is room to stretch out on the floor to draw a masterpiece.

Whenever you walk into the Cadwallader kitchen you are likely to find the oven going, either to bake a batch of pies filled with fruit from home trees, or to hasten the drying of papier-mâché whimsies due at a church bazaar the next day. For in this well-ordered setting, Robert and Laura Cadwallader, along with their three sons, Brooke, sixteen; Hayden, thirteen; Davis, ten, and their three-year-old daughter, Leah, have applied their numerous and varied talents to creating a lovely clutter of living.

In a sunny kitchen window sill is a collection of glass bottles that are kept filled with snippings of fresh herbs from the garden, and just for fun, a flower.

Surrounding the kitchen clock is a mural composition of old gadgets, including ancient keys, a fish scale, a cigarette roller, and among them, a giant daisy in stitchery by Laura Cadwallader.

The master bedroom upstairs is really a second living room, where the family gathers after dinner, country fashion, to read, write, listen to music. Through its large window, cut to follow the peak of the roof, comes a glow of leaf-filtered sunlight to banish any shadows that might lurk in the corners of such an immense space.

CHECKLIST FOR THE GOOD LIFE

It is easy to see the Cadwalladers’ love of the land and its fruits from the lushness and abundance of the growing things they live among, indoors as well as out. Laura Cadwallader pickles, preserves, or freezes the lavish harvest of their sizable vegetable garden. “I’m always playing hide-and-seek for space in the freezer,” she says. “On the day the beans ripen, we have the bulkiest item in the freezer for dinner—no matter what it is.”

But the Cadwalladers are much more than gentlemen farmers. They are experimenting, continually expressing their lively and abiding devotion to design and art. Mrs. Cadwallader is widely known as a master crafts­woman for her big, bold stitchery (see HaG, May, 1967). Her flower-patterned embroideries bloom throughout the house as chair seats, cushion covers, wall hangings, even as the upholstery on a Victorian settee. She teaches classes in the technique, and recently formed a company to sell her designs and instructions by mail. Mr. Cadwallader, who is the world­traveling Director of Marketing for the furniture and fabric firm, Knoll Associates, is chief curator of what goes into the house and sometime carpenter.
into the brick terrace the Cadwalladers added at the side of the house is an old millstone. They found it one day while poking through the woods down by their lake, suspected it came from the mill on the property but long since disappeared. The original huge-hasped barn doors, big enough to drive a loaded hay wagon through, were nailed shut after a smaller arched doorway was cut through them.

Laura Cadwallader cannot seem to lay down a pot or a dish towel without composing a pretty still life, and the house is full of sudden delightful surprises. A jaunty bouquet of dried flowers sprouts in the old-fashioned match holder by the stove. A clump of ceramic mushrooms nestles in the cross hatch of the living room beams. But almost as impressive as her impeccable eye for design and delicious touch of whimsey, is the couple's talent for “getting organized.” Every month they have a little project, every year a major one. Robert Cadwallader ticks them off: “The first year, of course, we spent on the inside, but we did get the terrace built, so. Last year it was the turn-around in front, landscaping the hill and planting the lawn. This year, it is a rock garden,” and he adds ruefully, “We sure have the rocks.”

Most of the carpentry is his handiwork and he is a perfectionist. “What took the most time was going all over the countryside to find matching boards of old wood to box in the mess of overhead pipes in the living room. No luck. We ended up making twenty combinations of stains to get the woods to match.” (Continued)
The brick terrace that stretches along the side and around to the rear of the house is the Cadwalladers' favorite place for informal entertaining. Beyond the garden is the former sheep shed with its satellite greenhouse. Down the hill to the left is a bass-filled lake, and a turn to the right leads to the edge of a state-preserved woodland that gives the family extra acres of wilderness to roam through.

CHECKLIST FOR THE GOOD LIFE

The old brass bell on the side of the house tolls frequently to round up the boys, or the dogs, or Mr. and Mrs. Cadwallader, who are more often off in some corner of the property than they are indoors. The land around them is such an all-pervasive force in their lives, it is not at all surprising that it should influence the nature of their entertaining. Harvest is always a joyous time and a natural occasion to gather friends around to share in its abundance. Guests are invited to come early enough in the day so they will be inspired to help gather the ripe fruits or vegetables. Then large tables that seat fourteen are set up on the front lawn, where they overlook the tall corn in the vegetable garden (and are nearer the kitchen, too), and dinner is like a Pilgrim feast. For her menus, Laura Cadwallader tries to stick to their own produce and, with the exception of the meat course, she usually succeeds. She serves steaming squash and onion casseroles, mounds of corn bread, platters of sliced juicy tomatoes, and bowls of her own delicious cucumber relish.
the slate-floored dining room, antiques are mixed with bentwood chairs, a modern table. The dark-stained linen-high cupboard holds all the dishes and table linens. In closet at right, Mrs. Cadwallader keeps beautiful or amusing things she uses to create constantly varied centerpieces, such as an armful of black-eyed Susans thrust into a crock labeled “Home Made Preserves.”

One of the Cadwalladers’ guidelines for a good party is to keep it moving. So with fingers crossed to placate the weather, they either serve cocktails on the terrace before moving into the dining room to eat, or have drinks in the living room before moving out to a barbecue on the terrace. Their farthest love from the house was for a party they once gave in the old sheep shed which, with its attached greenhouse, was on the property when they bought it. Since this was to be a frankly arty party, the invitations were written on French postcards that Mr. Cadwallader had mailed from Paris while on a business trip. Paper socks, brushes, and paints were laid out in the sheep shed and unending rolls of paper tacked around the walls. Drinks were served from a bar in the greenhouse.

In the Cadwalladers’ well-ordered life there is always time to play as well as a time to work, a time to g, or time to watch the mist rise over the meadow, a time to stitch and time to let the sleeve of care unravel.

Bookshelves in hiding

In a small apartment, storage space is where you find it. That may not be in the room where you normally use the possessions that need safekeeping, but if they are not used constantly, the location is secondary. In a New York apartment bedroom we found space on each side of the windows for a hoard of books and bound magazines that had overflowed the living room—plus extra stationery and a bulky postal scale. For shelves, we stacked unpainted bookcases, placing the top one upside down so the base made a cornice, and to mask the library look, we added pretty wall-to-wall sliding screens of fabric and wood. Hung from ceiling tracks and kept in line by floor guides, they also stand in for curtains. The fabric panels, held taut by rods at top and bottom on the frame backs, are removable for cleaning.

Kitchen cabinets disguised

Among the inducements often spotted in advertisements for houses and apartments is "ampl clsts"—surely a phrase with a utopian ring since everyone in this world always seems to need just one more hiding place. In a bite-size dining area, right and opposite page, we found extra space for dishes, glasses, linens, and such—items as an ice bucket and wine storage rack, to supplement inadequate storage in the kitchen. Along one wall our space sleuths discovered just enough room (and no more) to install four kitchen wall cabinets. We used wall cabinets both above and below because standard base cabinets would have been too deep. And between the upper and lower tiers, we left enough space for a combination storage ledge and serving counter. The cabinets are ready-built of steel, and come with unfinished doors that are easy to paint or cover with paper as we did.

Four new solutions for your storage problem

Chipmunks maintain underground storerooms for their worldly possessions; squirrels have all outdoors in which to keep theirs. Man alone relies on boxes, cabinets, and closets to safeguard his accoutrements. And we never seem to have enough. We are ready to build another closet at the drop of a hat from an overcrowded shelf. But building yet another permanent closet is not the best or even a feasible answer for every storage need. It is not, for instance, if carpenters are unavailable. Or if your quarters are temporary and you do not want to give your landlord a present of a costly built-in. Or if your need for extra storage is an occasional one, such as where to put twenty guests' coats after the last sliver of space in your hall closet has been allocated to the dog's leash. To cope with a variety of storage problems, H&G has designed four fresh solutions. All are relatively easy to come by. None sacrifice a room's good looks. Two you can take with you when you move, and another is made up of components that can go in the van, too—bookshelves that look built-in but are really ready-made.
An instant party coat rack

Storing party guests' coats can be a problem, especially if the foyer's only closet is filled with the family's own outdoor gear. A familiar pre-party solution is to form a family brigade to remove all coats from the hall closet and squeeze them into various others throughout the house. But there is a better way. H&G has designed a device that is easier on the family and all coats concerned: a pop-out hanging space you add to the front of your existing closet without disturbing even a scarf inside.

If your closet has one door, your first step is to replace it with double doors that open at the center. Now all you need is a shelf, a hanging pole, a bit of hardware, and a window shade the size of the closet opening (we had ours made to match the closet lining). To prepare the scene: open the doors so that they are at right angles to the wall, and measure the distance between them to get the length for the shelf and pole. Inside the right-hand door, about 15 inches from the top, drill a shallow hole for the pole. About 4 inches above that, attach one end of the shelf, using piano hinges. Inside the left-hand door attach a strip of C-shaped aluminum trim to support the shelf and hold it securely, and drill a hole to take the other end of the pole or buy a pole support from your hardware store. Hang the window shade inside and just above the closet opening. Between parties the whole thing is a well-kept secret: the shade remains rolled up, the shelf is barely noticeable in the down position inside the door, and the pole stays in a corner of the closet (surely there is room for that).
Go-anywhere closets

Sometimes a room obligingly affords a chunk of space just right for the extra closet you need, but you may not want—or be able—to build a permanent closet there. A built-in is not the best answer, for instance, if yours is a family that is often transferred from city to city, or if the space in question is in a weekend house and you cannot find a carpenter willing to work when you can be there. A happier solution may be a new knockdown closet that comes in a box: all you have to do is unpack it and assemble the works.

We used two of these ready-made closets as the basis for a commodious general storage center in a weekend house. Since they have flush insides, a pair standing side by side fit smoothly together, and each has a crowning piece that adjusts the top to the room's height. At the front are bi-fold doors that require minimum swing-out space, but there is no back since the closet is designed to stand against the wall (and to fit snugly over a baseboard if there is one). The basic closet includes a hanging pole and two shelves. You can buy drawers and more shelves to organize the interior as you like.

The simple setting-up exercise goes like this: you set the pre-hinged front-and-sides unit upright and unfold it about 20 inches from the wall. This lets you get at the back to insert the fittings wherever you may want them in holes that have been pre-drilled at frequent intervals. To dismantle the works, say to get it ready for the moving van, you simply reverse the procedure.

New roles for party carts

Prologue: The first course enters the living room, bringing welcome warmth. A cart with a built-in heating tray and a handy shelf below, offers a choice of a delicate cream soup or coquille St. Jacques. Both stay temptingly hot so your guests can finish their cocktails, then start the first course when they like—a graceful transition to dinner in the dining room. The setting: a terrace. From off-stage are heard voices of three couples about to enter. Ready for the action is an expandable wagon that accommodates everything for a buffet, including the hot dishes. You can set up all the courses on this cart, wheel it where you like, then stay happily with your guests. Sterno burners warm the bain-marie and its food pans. Cart of brass, stainless steel, and a wood-grain synthetic, by Maxwell-Phillip.

Pretty interlude at a dinner for four. A cart as sparkling as an ingenue, right, shines in a salad-tossing scene. With all the makings on stage, you can add ingredients on impulse, cater to individual tastes. (Glass containers create such a light effect, the salad seems to toss itself.) Sides of cart are swan-shaped; two big wheels make for easy entrances and exits. Cart with leather-covered wood frame, glass shelves, from Bonwit Teller.
Party carts have become so versatile, their performance goes far beyond whisking away the pesky when you entertain. Because a number of these trouper have new facets and capabilities, you can cast them in many wonderful supporting roles on the party scene. Some carts, equipped with swing-out shelves, can carry all the props for an entire dinner. Many are sturdy enough to be helpful in the carving act. Several even have the means to keep hot foods hot and help you keep cool. And all, of course, provide a serving surface wherever you need it, so you do not have to clear a coffee table to set down canapé trays, or run offstage so often for provisions that you miss many of your guests' best lines. Here are four diverse party scenes in which four different carts artfully play inspired roles that make them veritable Arthur Treachers-on-wheels.

Time: Afternoon. Sunlight at the window. A hush. Nostalgia comes on stage, quietly. A cart with expansive talents, below, is beautifully cast in a charming tea-time drama. Top and four shelves hold all the pretty accoutrements you need and an enticing array of delicacies too, so you do not have to move anything. In America, vodka is a relative newcomer to the drinking scene. It didn't really catch on here until the late Forties. But in Europe, it ranks as one of the oldest of liquors—and one of the most versatile. Vodka originated in Poland, where it was sipped in medieval times for its supposed medicinal qualities, which inevitably led to the practice of consuming small shots of the spirit at all hours of the day, or throughout a meal with appropriate dishes.

Vodka has no taste of its own. This tastelessness is due to the refining and filtering processes the spirit goes through to make it clear and sparkling. But vodka easily acquires a taste, according to what is put into it—or what it is put into. One of the most venerable of the Polish vodkas is Starka, which is made from rye grain, aged in wine casks, and finally blended with wine and bottled at a potent 100-proof. The color is reminiscent of rye whiskey, but the flavor is distinctive and unusual. Zubrowka, another of the great flavored vodkas of Poland, is superb when served icy cold with smoked fish or caviar. Zubrowka derives its slightly sweet pungency and delicate perfume from the blade of buffalo grass that nestles in every bottle. You can buy buffalo grass (or sweet grass as it is sometimes called) in various parts of this country in either art and needlework stores (it is used in basketry) or specialty gourmet shops. If you sip a blade or two into a bottle of plain vodka and leave it there for a couple of months, you will have an excellent approximation of the drink that was originally offered to thirsty hunters returning with their bags from the great forests of Poland. Zubrowka should always be served very, very cold. Keep a bottle in the freezer (or, better yet, freeze it in a block of ice, as you would aquavit) and serve it in chilled glasses.

If you are drinking any of the plain vodkas straight, either alone or with such natural accompaniments as caviar (with or without blinis) or smoked fish, you should also have them ice cold. There is a wide assortment of these unflavored vodkas on the market, made in Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, France, and right here in the United States as well. Unless you are a true connoisseur of subtle variations in spirits, it makes little difference which one you drink for all of them are, by definition, tasteless.

How to flavor vodka

Given this neutral spirit to work with, you can have a fine time inventing your own flavorings. Flavored vodkas make interesting bases for long drinks and summer punches. I recently experimented with lemon, orange, tangerine peel, and caraway seeds, and found that the lemon-vodka combination was wonderful in a Screwdriver—or in an orange sauce, for that matter. The caraway vodka, which tastes rather like aquavit, makes a pleasant aperitif or a delicious Danish Mary (a Bloody Mary with spicy overtones).

This is the procedure I follow for flavoring vodkas: For lemon vodka, add the rind of 2 large lemons to one fifth of the spirit; for orange vodka, the rind of one large orange; for tangerine vodka, the rind of one tangerine; for caraway vodka, 3 tablespoons of caraway seeds tied in a cheesecloth bag (or less if you want a fainter flavor). Cork the bottles and allow them to stand for two weeks, test, by sniffing and sipping, to see if they have infused enough. If they have, you can transfer the vodka to another bottle and throw away the additives, because the flavor will intensify the longer they are left in. If you don't want to use a whole bottle of vodka for your experiments, fill a small jar with the liquor cutting down the additives proportionately.

Vodka-soaked fruits

You can also soak dried fruits in vodka, using the liquor-drenched fruits for desserts or purées and...
Although the gastronomic tradition of the hors d’oeuvre varies is an integral part of the French cuisine, its counterparts can be found in Italy, Scandinavia, and Russia. A sampling of all manner of delicious concoctions of raw and cooked vegetables, smoked and cured fish, shellfish, salads, and sliced meats and pâtés has universal appeal. Hors d’oeuvre varies, which are always eaten with knife and fork, make a wonderfully varied luncheon, supper, or buffet meal. Accompany them with good bread and sweet butter, a light white wine, and follow with cheese and fruit or a light dessert. The preparation is simple. By combining canned and delicatessen foods with fresh, anyone can produce an hors d’oeuvre table of originality.

PRESENTATION OF HORS D’OEUVRE VARIÉS

For presenting hors d’oeuvre varies you need a mobile collection of raviolis or similar small dishes. These need not be identical in design, but should be sufficiently alike to establish continuity in the arrangement.

For serving, provide one plate per person, or, if the hors d’oeuvre are to be a main course, allow a change of plates for fish, salads, and meats, in the manner of smorgasbord service. The hors d’oeuvre may be served at the table, laid out as a buffet, or eaten at small tables equipped with silver, napkins, and wine glasses.

VEGETABLE HORS D’OEUVRE

Vegetables à la Grecque

Vegetables à la Grecque are poached in a high-flavored sauce until tender but crisp, and are then left to cool in the sauce. Here is a list of vegetables that lend themselves to this type of preparation:

- Whole artichokes (small French variety)
- Artichoke bottoms
- Jerusalem artichokes
- Asparagus
- Green beans
- Brussels sprouts
- Carrots
- Cauliflower (divided into flowerets)
- Eggplant (in cubes or whole small ones)
- Leeks
- Mushrooms
- Small white onions
- Zucchini

Vegetables a la Grecque Sauce

2 cups water
1/2 cup olive oil
1/2 cup wine vinegar or 2 tablespoons lemon juice, plus 1 or 2 lemon slices
1 teaspoon salt or more to taste
1 teaspoon crushed coriander seeds
1 teaspoon thyme
1 bay leaf
1 or 2 garlic cloves (optional)
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Combine all ingredients in saucepan or skillet large enough to accommodate vegetable to be cooked. Add vegetables, bring sauce to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer uncovered until tender. By no means allow the vegetables to become soft and mushy.

Variations:

1. Substitute white wine for water.
2. For white onions: Add a good pinch of saffron, 1 tablespoon tomato paste, and 1/2 cup small white raisins for the last few moments of cooking.
3. For mushrooms: Reduce the water to 1 cup and increase the oil to 1/2 cup.
4. Add herbs to taste. Tarragon, dill, rosemary, and basil are most commonly used for this sauce.

Vegetables Vinaigrette

Any of the vegetables listed above right may be poached in broth or salted water (peppers are best sautéed), then drained and dressed with a well-seasoned vinaigrette sauce. Make this in proportions of 3 or 4 parts olive oil to 1 part wine vinegar, with salt, freshly ground pepper to taste, herbs of your choice, and a generous portion of chopped parsley. Garlic is optional.

For asparagus, use basil-flavored vinaigrette.
For artichoke bottoms, use thyme-flavored vinaigrette.
For green or wax beans, use dill-flavored vinaigrette.
For beets, use bay leaf-flavored vinaigrette and onion rings.
For broccoli, use garlic-flavored vinaigrette.
For cauliflower, use tomato-flavored vinaigrette.
For celery hearts, use garlic-flavored vinaigrette.
For white kernel corn, use basil-flavored vinaigrette.
For leeks, use tomato-flavored vinaigrette.
For green onions, use parsleyed vinaigrette.
For onion slices, use tarragon-flavored vinaigrette.
For sautéed green, red, or yellow peppers, use garlic-basil-flavored vinaigrette.
For whole small zucchini or sliced zucchini, use thyme- or oregano-flavored vinaigrette.

Sauced and Marinated Raw Vegetables

Most of these raw vegetables are delicious when served with a well-herbed vinaigrette, and in certain cases, marinated for an hour or two in the vinaigrette before serving. Others are excellent with different sauces.

- Fava beans, serve with salt, or with a sharp basil-flavored vinaigrette.
- Cabbage, shredded, serve with a vinaigrette flavored with mustard and celery seeds; or with a mustard mayonnaise.
- Red cabbage, shredded, serve with a well-spiced vinaigrette.
- Carrots, grated, serve with salt and freshly ground pepper or with a vinaigrette.
- Cauliflower, sliced, serve with a vinaigrette or with a mixture of mayonnaise and yogurt.
- Celery, sliced, serve with a mustard-flavored vinaigrette.
- Celery root (celeriac), Blanch for 1 minute, cut in fine julienne, and dress with a mustard mayonnaise or a mustard sauce.
- Cucumbers, (1) slice thinly, or seed and cut in long strips, and serve with a tarragon-flavored vinaigrette. (2) slice thinly, combine with thinly sliced onions, and dress with oil and vinegar. (3) slice thinly and toss with a Swedish dressing of salt, sugar, water, vinegar, and fresh dill. (4) slice thinly or cut in strips and blend with yogurt and fresh dill. (5) slice thinly or cut in strips and blend with equal parts of mayonnaise and yoghurt, flavored with fresh mint, a touch of vinegar, and a scraping of garlic. Garnish with chopped fresh mint.
Mushrooms, marinate for 1-2 hours in a vinaigrette flavored well with tarragon. Onions, sliced, crisp in ice water for several hours and serve with a garlic-flavored vinaigrette. Sweet peppers or sweet and hot peppers mixed, thinly shredded, serve with a garlic-flavored vinaigrette. Tomatoes, sliced (unpeeled if they are ripe), serve with a basil-flavored vinaigrette; or with dill, parsley, onion slices, and a vinaigrette. Cherry tomatoes, serve in a dilled mayonnaise.

Canned Vegetables

Artichoke bottoms or whole small artichokes, serve in vinaigrette sauce. Asparagus (either whole heavy spears or tips), serve with a well-flavored tarragon vinaigrette; or with a sauce Griliches; or with mayonnaise. Whole green beans, serve with a vinaigrette; or with a vinaigrette, thin onion rings, and chopped parsley. Kidney beans, serve with a vinaigrette and onion and pimento slices. White beans (or cannellini), serve with a vinaigrette; or with tuna, onion rings, and a basil-flavored vinaigrette. Beets, serve with a vinaigrette; or with grated onion and sour cream. Whole kernel corn, serve with a basil-flavored vinaigrette. Celery hearts, serve with anchovy fillets and a vinaigrette sauce. Celery root, sliced, serve with a vinaigrette. Mushrooms, serve with a vinaigrette flavored with white wine, celery seeds, and mustard seeds. Hearts of palm, serve with a vinaigrette; or a vinaigrette, anchovy fillets, sliced boiled potato.

SALADS

Salade Russe

Salade Russe is a universal favorite for hors d'oeuvre varies, either served as a salad by itself or as a filling for tomatoes, artichoke bottoms, or peppers. It is made by blending cooked diced carrots, tiny peas, finely cut beans, and diced potatoes with a homemade mayonnaise. For a quick version of Salade Russe, canned vegetables may be substituted for fresh.

French Potato Salad

Pour oil and vinegar over sliced hot potatoes or hot quartered new potatoes. Season with salt and pepper, add chopped parsley and a bit of onion. Cool and serve. Variation: To French Potato Salad add anchovy fillets and sliced hearts of palm.

Salade Nicoise

Arrange artichoke hearts (either canned or frozen ones that have been cooked and cooled), tomato quarters or cherry tomatoes, black olives (preferably the variety from Nice), and anchovy fillets in a ravier. Dress with a garlic-scented vinaigrette and garnish with onion rings and capers.

Lobster Salad

The finest lobster salad is merely a combination of cold lobster and a well-seasoned mayonnaise blended with the tomato and the coral (if there is any) which has been previously pounded in a mortar. The following recipe is for a heartier, if less elegant kind of lobster salad.

Canned Vegetables

Artichoke bottoms or whole small artichokes, serve in vinaigrette sauce. Asparagus (either whole heavy spears or tips), serve with a well-flavored tarragon vinaigrette; or with a sauce Griliches; or with mayonnaise. Whole green beans, serve with a vinaigrette; or with a vinaigrette, thin onion rings, and chopped parsley. Kidney beans, serve with a vinaigrette and onion and pimento slices. White beans (or cannellini), serve with a vinaigrette; or with tuna, onion rings, and a basil-flavored vinaigrette. Beets, serve with a vinaigrette; or with grated onion and sour cream. Whole kernel corn, serve with a basil-flavored vinaigrette. Celery hearts, serve with anchovy fillets and a vinaigrette sauce. Celery root, sliced, serve with a vinaigrette. Mushrooms, serve with a vinaigrette flavored with white wine, celery seeds, and mustard seeds. Hearts of palm, serve with a vinaigrette; or a vinaigrette, anchovy fillets, sliced boiled potato.

Ratatouille

This traditional Provençal dish of steved vegetables may be served either hot or cold. If you are serving it cold as a salad, let it cook down slightly more and add a touch more oil and a little lemon juice or wine vinegar. Freshly chopped parsley sprinkled on top makes a colorful and pleasing garnish.

1 large or 2 medium eggplant, unpeeled, and thinly sliced
1/2 cup olive oil
2 medium onions, thinly sliced
2 cloves garlic, thinly sliced
4 or 5 small, or 2 large zucchini, thinly sliced
1 red or green pepper, thinly sliced
4-5 tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and chopped or 1, 30-ounce can Italian plum tomatoes, drained
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon or more basil
1/2 teaspoon ground coriander

Soak the eggplant in ice water for 1 hour. Drain and press. Heat the oil in a large shallow pan which has a cover, add the onion and sauté until just soft and wilted. Add the garlic, the drained and pressed eggplant (if large, cut into smaller pieces), and the zucchini. Mix well together and cook over medium heat for 5 minutes. Add the red or green pepper and mix with the cooked vegetables. Cover and cook for 15 minutes, removing the cover once or twice to stir the mixture. Add the tomatoes and mix in. Simmer uncovered for 20 minutes, or until the vegetables are well blended and cooked down slightly. Add the salt, pepper, basil, and coriander and cook a few minutes longer. Taste for seasoning. If the ratatouille is to be served cold, cool and chill, and garnish with chopped parsley.

Variations:
1. Add sliced mushrooms during the last 10 minutes of cooking.
2. For a cold ratatouille, add thinly sliced fennel with the red or green pepper.
3. Arrange cold ratatouille in a ravier and top with anchovy fillets and capers.

Sauces for Hors d'OEuvre

Sauce Gribiche

1 cup olive oil
1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chopped capers
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper.

Place sour cream in a bowl. Combine the mustard, vinegar, salt, and pepper, and gradually blend into the cream with a whisk. This is an excellent sauce for cooked vegetables, or for certain fish hors d'oeuvre.

Cream Mustard Sauce

1 cup commercial sour cream
1/2 cup Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons wine vinegar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper.

Place sour cream in a bowl. Combine the mustard, vinegar, salt, and pepper, and gradually blend into the cream with a whisk. This is an excellent sauce for cooked vegetables, or for certain fish hors d'oeuvre.

FISH AND SHELLFISH HORS D'OEUVRE

Sauce Ravigote

For a centerpiece, bivalves garnished with seaweed strands on a three-tiered oyster dish.

Oysters

Choose from these varieties: Chincoteagues, Petit Points, Olympia, Lynnhavens, Malpeques, Quillenes, and Cape Cods from the Western Hemisphere; Rock oysters from Australia; Belons, Marreens, Portugaises from France; Whistables and Goleheaters from England; Galway Bay oysters from Ireland.

Clams

Cherrystones, LittleNecks, and other small varieties—the smaller the better.

Shrimp

Cook shrimp about 5 minutes in boiling salted water, drain, cool and serve with a remoulade sauce, a cocktail sauce (homemade, by all means), an herb sauce, or a cream mustard sauce.

Mussels

Cook, cool and arrange on the half shell, dressed with a rémoulade or ravigote sauce.

Crab Meat

Arrange mounds of lump crab meat or shelled legs of Dungeness crab around rémoulade sauce.

Lobster

Cut chunks from freshly boiled and cooled lobsters; or split small lobsters, remove meat, cut into pieces, and return to the shell, transferring claw meat to the body section. The tomaclly may be blended into mayonnaise or mustard mayonnaise and served with the lobster. If there is coral, pound it in a mortar and add to the mayonnaise.

Smoked Fish

Smoked fish should be served thinly sliced. Either have it sliced to order or buy a large piece and have someone on hand who is deft at carving. Salmon must be cut in long, thin diagonal slices that are practically transparent. Sturgeon should be sliced medium thin on a slight diagonal. Smoked eel should be filleted and then cut. Whitefish is best when skinned, with head and tail intact, and served on a garnished board.

Salmon

Swedish, Scotch, and Nova Scotia salmon are the best available, in that order, although Norwegian and Columbia River salmon are also excellent. If you wish to buy a whole side, you will find that sides vary greatly in size and cost. If you buy it sliced to order, be certain to sample it beforehand for saltiness and moisture. Salmon is usually served with capers, oil, and freshly ground black pepper and lemon wedges, tied in gauze or cheesecloth to hold back the seeds. Some people like to serve salmon with chopped onion; others fill it with fresh caviar and roll it, or serve it with a tin of caviar separately.

Smoked salmon of a less choice quality can be improved by the following treatment: Cut it into strips about 1” wide, place the strips in a ravier or serving dish, alternating the layers with thinly sliced onions, capers, chopped parsley, and fresh or dried dried. Cover with sour cream and allow to mature for 3-4 hours before serving. Garnish with capers and black olives.

Whitefish

Remove the skin from a whole smoked whitefish and serve it with a mustard mayonnaise, or with a sweetened dill and mustard mayonnaise.

Trout

Smoked trout has grown in popularity in the last twenty years, and an especially delicious, less common variety known as Winnipeg Goldeneye is found in Canada. Both Winnipeg Goldeneye and ordinary trout are wonderfully suited to the hors d’oeuvre table, served whole or skinned and filleted with freshly grated horseradish blended with whipped sweet cream or sour cream.

Eel

Smoked eel, distinctive in flavor and texture, is one of the most appetizing of all fish for hors d’oeuvre. It should be skinned, filleted, and served in long slices or strips. It should taste fresh and have moist, and somewhat soft, oily flesh.

Sturgeon

Sturgeon should be very moist and fresh tasting. If it has been stored too long in an open showcase, it can become dry and thoroughly uninteresting. It is expensive, so you might as well buy the best the market affords. Serve it with oil, pepper, capers and, if you like, sour cream and chopped chives.

Sturgeon Sandwiches

This novel treatment of smoked sturgeon was invented for a great dinner at The Four Seasons in New York. Spread fresh caviar between two thin slices of choice sturgeon, top with paper-thin half slices of cucumber, and serve with lemon wedges.

Herring

This universal favorite may be prepared and served in many different ways. In Sweden, for example, as an hors d'oeuvre it is always accompanied by hot new potatoes and fresh dill, a delicious combination of flavors.

Salt herring can be bought packed in brine or already soaked and pickled. If you wish to freshen your own, here is the procedure: Soak 4 or 5 herring in cold water for 24 hours, changing the water at least twice. Remove from the water, slit each herring, and remove flesh from the bones with the aid of a sharp knife. If some small bones remain in the fillets, they can be removed with a pair of tweezers, or they will disappear eventually in the pickle.

Pickled Herring

8-10 salt herring fillets
1 large onion, sliced
1 tart apple, diced
2 bay leaves
12 peppercorns
1 lemon, sliced
1 cup wine vinegar
½ cup white wine
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard

Arrange the herring in a flat dish with the onion, apple, bay leaves, and peppercorns. Blend remaining ingredients separately in a saucepan, and bring to a boil. Cool slightly and pour over the herring. When thoroughly cooled, cover and refrigerate for several days before serving.

For Marinated Herring: Omit the mustard from the pickled herring recipe, but otherwise proceed as directed.

Herring in Sour Cream

Prepare Marinated Herring. After it has been refrigerated for several days, remove the fillets and cut them into pieces, or leave them whole if you prefer. Arrange in a dish with the onions from the marinade and additional onion slices. Cover with heavy sour cream.

Rollmops

3 fresh dill pickles, quartered lengthwise
6 salt herring, freshened and fileted but unskinned (12 fillets)
4 medium onions
1 cup vinegar
1 cup water
¼ cup sugar
2 bay leaves
1 clove garlic
4-6 whole allspice berries
8 peppercorns
Fresh dill for garnish

Place a piece of dill pickle on each fillet, roll the fillet around it, and fasten with a toothpick. Arrange in a deep dish or bowl. Combine the remaining ingredients in a saucepan, and bring to a boil. Pour over the rollmops and allow to cool. Refrigerate for 48 hours. Serve with a garnish of fresh dill. Makes 12 rollmops.

Smoked Herring in Oil

This type of herring is filleted before being smoked. It is quite dry and needs a long period of marinating in oil to renew it.

Soak 6-8 herring fillets in water for several hours. Remove and dry well. Alternate layers of herring in a dish with slices of onion and parsley. Add 2 bay leaves and 12 peppercorns. Cover with olive oil and marinate for several days. Serve with the marinade, or serve small pieces of the fillets on a potato salad, surrounded by a garnish of hard-cooked eggs, onion rings, and anchovy fillets.

Note: Rollmops, pickled herring, marinated herring, marinated herring in sour cream, and served, packed in jars or other containers, can be purchased in delicatessens and supermarkets. Although they may be served directly from their containers, they look more appetizing if transferred to ravioli and garnished with fresh dill or parsley and perhaps onion rings.

Sardines

Sardines are not a species of fish, but simply the young of a herring-like fish. There are so many different sizes, flavors, and styles of packing in sardines that it is difficult to choose among them. This, however, is how I have come to rate them over the years, in order of excellence.

1. The plain French sardines.
2. Fine Portuguese sardines, especially those packed in olive oil.
3. Spiced sardines, usually French, packed with a lemon slice, bay leaf, and herbs.
4. Small French sardines packed in an oval tin with thin slices of truffle and remarkably fine olive oil.
5. Exceedingly small Norwegian sardines packed in olive oil. (These are quite good, but they do not have the distinction of the others.)

In addition you can find sardines from nearly every country that has a fishing industry. They come in large or medium sizes, boneless or bone-in, skinless or unskinned. Although boneless and skinless sardines are considered to be more delicate, I find they lack the richness of those left intact. Some people like to store their sardines for several years in a cool cellar, turning the tins twice a year, which is supposed to mellow the flavor of the fish and enrich the texture.

To serve sardines, remove them from the tin to a ravier and garnish with a little chopped parsley and lemon wedges. They may also be served surrounded with hard-cooked egg halves and topped with onion rings.

Anchovies

Except for the herring, there is no other fish so widely used as the anchovy. The fillets appear on the hors d'oeuvre table in a variety of ways, ranging from a simple presentation in their own tins widely used as the anchovy. The fillets appear on jars and lemon wedges. They may also be used twice a year, which is suitable to mellow the flavor. I find they lack the richness of those left intact.

Skinless sardines are considered to be more delicate, but they have very much the same quality. Both are quite refreshing. Because of their jelly, they must be sliced rather thin, and the slices are often cut in half. Serve in a ravier with or without a sauce vinagrette or an herb sauce.

Brawn and Head Cheese

These differ in texture and in meat ingredients (head cheese is made of pork), but they have very much the same quality. Both are quite refreshing. Because of their jelly, they must be sliced rather thin, and the slices are often cut in half. Serve in a ravier with or without a sauce vinagrette or an herb sauce.

Tiny Pickled Lamb's Tongues

Arrange in a serving dish. Grated horseradish may be used as a garnish.

Pickled Pigs' Feet

These should be cut into small pieces. Serve with a vinagrette sauce. Occasionally you can find stuffed halves of pigs' feet, a delicious and unusual item for hors d'oeuvre.

Cold Beef Salad

Less frequently found in shops than other prepared meat dishes, this consists of cubes of cold boiled beef, celery, onion, potato, parsley, and hard-cooked egg, tossed with a good herb vinagrette sauce.

Anchovies with Eggs and Tomatoes

Alternate, in a ravier, layers of thinly sliced, unpeeled ripe tomatoes, sliced hard-cooked eggs, and anchovy fillets, arranged in criss-cross fashion. Garnish with capers, chopped parsley, and black olives, and dress the hors d'oeuvre lightly with a vinagrette sauce.

Anchovies with Tomatoes

12 large ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and chopped
2 teaspoons olive oil
1 teaspoon finely chopped fresh basil or 1 teaspoon dried basil
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
Salt to taste
Anchovy fillets
Capers
Black olives
Chopped parsley

Cook the tomatoes slowly in the oil with the basil, garlic, pepper, and salt. (Be sparing with the salt as the anchovies will be salty.) When the tomato mixture is thickened (more a fondue than a purée), taste for seasoning. Allow to cool, and spoon into a ravier. Top with anchovy fillets, capers, and black olives. Add olive oil if needed. Garnish with chopped parsley.

Tuna

Tuna is a classic part of all good hors d'oeuvre collections. Best for the hors d'oeuvre varies are the brands packed in oil and imported from Europe. These contain either solid-pack meat or sliced fillets. If imported tuna is not available, use tuna packed in brine or a solid-pack white meat, draining it well and anointing it with good olive oil ahead of time so that it absorbs some of the oil flavor. Serve tuna in a ravier with nothing more than capers or parsley for a garnish.

Variations:
1. Serve with artichoke hearts, anchovy fillets, and black olives.
2. Surround with hard-cooked egg halves, capers, and anchovy fillets.
4. Scoop out the seeds and pulp from small ripe tomatoes. Fill with flaked tuna that has been dressed with olive oil and tossed with finely chopped garlic, capers, and parsley. Garnish with black olives and anchovy fillets.
5. Split rather small cucumbers, remove seeds, and stuff with flaked tuna fish blended with a mustard mayonnaise. Top with capers and black olives.

MEAT HORS D'OEUVERE

Although an extensive variety of meats may be served, the choices for hors d'oeuvre are ordinarily confined to hams, pâtés, and such sausages as salami, thinly sliced; mortadella, sliced paper thin; saucisson d'Arles, thinly sliced; and cervelat—the European type—thinly sliced or prepared in a salad. The sliced meats should be nicely arranged in ravioli or similar dishes.

Cervelat Salad

This is made with thin slices of cervelat, thin slices of onion and, sometimes, sliced cooked potatoes, tossed with a mustard-flavored mayonnaise. Other highly seasoned local sausages that lend themselves to this treatment may be substituted for cervelat.

Hams

The types used for hors d'oeuvre are the imported dry-cured varieties, such as prosciutto, jambon de Bayonne, or jambon d'Ardennes. These are sliced paper thin and arranged in ravioli.

Certain prepared meat dishes found in delicatessens can be used with little or no adjustment for the hors d'oeuvre table. Some of those most generally available are:

Oechselsmann Salaz or Salade de Museau

This is a salad of beef mousse found in most good German delicatessens and Wurstgeschafte. It is boiled, sliced very thin, and marinated in a rather sharp vinagrette sauce. It should be arranged in a ravier or serving dish and garnished with perhaps a few cornichons or sliced pickles.

ADDING FLAVOR TO VODKA

Mixed drinks with vodka

The earliest of the vodka mixed drinks was the Screwdriver. It is the invention of two nostalgic Californian soldiers, who combined vodka and orange juice just after World War II in the bar of the Negresco in Nice. After this came the Moscow Mule, the vodka Martini, the Bloody Mary, and the Salty Dog—all of which have their devotees, although the Bloody Mary is probably most popular.

It is worth noting that the perfect Bloody Mary is more than just the sum total of vodka, tomato and lemon juices, seasonings, and ice. It needs to be carefully compounded and shaken, not stirred, to a perfect blend. Nor will any old ingredient do. Bottled lemon juice is anathema, and the right kind of tomato juice is essential. I personally prefer College Inn tomato juice cocktail, which has the added advantage of not separating from the liquor when it stands. If you like a fairly highly seasoned drink, the Snappy Tom mix is excellent.

The best restaurant version of the Bloody Mary I have ever tasted is the one made at The Forum of the Twelve Caesars in New York City. This is their recipe:

FORUM BLOODY MARY

Juice of 1 whole fresh lemon
4 ounces College Inn tomato juice cocktail
1½ ounces vodka
Dash each: Tabasco sauce, Worcestershire sauce
Salt, pepper, celery salt to taste

Combine all ingredients in a cocktail shaker and shake until thoroughly blended.

Vodka can also be blended with other spirits in a cocktail or a long drink. In fact, vodka might be said to be the experimenter’s best friend, for there is almost no limit to its potable possibilities.

The vodka martini is made in the same manner as its gin cousin, substituting, of course, the vodka for the gin. Here are recipes for the Moscow Mule and Salty Dog.

MOSCOW MULE

1½ ounces vodka
6 ounces ginger beer (never ginger ale)
Ice cubes

Pour the vodka and ginger beer over ice cubes in copper mugs.

SALTY DOG

4 ounces vodka
IV2 ounces grapefruit juice
Salt

Dip chilled glass in salt. Mix vodka and grapefruit juice together in shaker with ice, or mix together and pour into glass over ice.

During the last few years, beef bouillon spiked with vodka (known as a Bull Shot) has found a welcome at many bars. You might try your own variations on this, combining vodka and other clear soups or consommés with a soupcon of Tabasco, Worcestershire, and a twist of lemon or other zest to flavor the basic mixture.

Vodka can also be mixed with various liqueurs to decrease their sweetness. The Black Russian is the best-known example:

BLACK RUSSIAN

1½ ounces vodka
1 ounce Kahlúa (coffee liqueur)
½ ounce Crème de Cacao

Shake vodka, Kahlúa, and Crème de Cacao together and pour over ice into a 4-ounce glass.

THE KNIFE FOR THE JOB

THE BONING KNIFE

In the cook’s treasury of knives, none should be more zealously guarded than a boning knife. To keep its razor edge, it must be used only for boning, and sharpened regularly with a butcher’s steel. The classic boning knife, below, can be recognized by the distinctive shape of the slim, slightly curved blade, contoured to cut around awkward angles and slide easily between bone and flesh. The duck-boning technique, demonstrated here by H&G’s food consultant James A. Beard, may be used for other birds. Instructions for boning a leg of lamb and chicken breasts are included in House & Garden’s New Cook Book (Simon and Schuster, $12.95).

Classic boning knife by Henckel has contoured handle for non-slip grip. $4.25.

HOW TO BONE A DUCK

Lay the duck breast down and make an incision from the neck end down the length of the backbone with boning knife.

With your fingers, loosen the flesh and skin from the carcass on one side of the backbone.

With boning knife, cut away skin and flesh around the rib cage, pulling with other hand as you cut. Be careful not to slit the skin or leave any of the flesh on the bones.
Continue cutting until skin and flesh are completely separated from rib cage on one side of duck. When cutting, always keep knife edge near bone.

Cut skin away from backbone on second side of duck.

Repeat boning procedure on second side, then cut away flesh around breast bone.

Pull carcass free from skin in one piece, leaving only legs and wings attached.

Lay boned duck flat and cut away wishbone which will be attached to skin at top.

Remove fillets of breast meat from each side. Duck may now be stuffed, reshaped, and sewn up ready for cooking.

In progressive communities across the country, a new system of garbage disposal is eliminating the clatter and clang of early morning pickup, and at the same time doing away with the unsightly spectacle of row upon row of overloaded cans or curb-strewn remnants of trash left by careless garbage men after they have halfheartedly emptied the can. The method is simple: disposable paper bags replace the standard metal cans.

But these are not ordinary bags. They look like grocery sacks, but they are larger (30 to 48 inches, depending on the manufacturer) and inestimably stronger (made of 2-ply extensible kraft paper) and can be left outside exposed to the elements, full of trash, broken glass, and other household refuse, and never tear.

How the system works

You start by putting your garbage into a fresh, clean sack which, in its trim holder with a tightly fitting hinged lid, keeps your trash insect- and odor-free. No ordinary garbage can comes anywhere near to this method on sanitary grounds since even the most fastidiously cared-for cans are breeding grounds for fly larvae. The paper sack, on the other hand, is simply emptied back will appreciate the fact that a full paper sack weighs only a tenth as much as a full can.

Why paper?

Some people have suggested that a plastic bag be considered as a replacement for the can. But plastic bags are easily punctured, do not stand upright by themselves, and need to be tied or fastened shut. They neither incinerate completely, nor decompose in a landfill. Paper sacks, on the other hand, fulfill all of these requirements. And since, in the foreseeable future, the problems of disposing of our solid waste will complicate, to almost insoluble degree, the hazards of air, water, and land pollution, the fact that a paper sack is so completely absorbed into the land takes on great relevance (see "Don’t breathe the air," page 106).

The major companies that sell the paper sacks (St. Regis, West Virginia, International, and Union Bag-Camp) say that cities now using the system with curbside collection have cut their collection time in half, since the garbage truck never stops. It just zigzags down the road, while a collector on each side grabs full bags from the curb and tosses them over his shoulder onto the truck. This means that as the population increases, there will not be any need to add more sanitation men. And with garbage collection ranking third highest in municipal cost, this advantage is passed on to the community as a saving to the overburdened taxpayer.

There are two systems that a town can adopt. It can (1) require everyone to use the sack system, or (2) leave the choice up to individual householders. In either case, the municipality acts as the distributor for the paper company, reselling the sacks and holders, at cost, to the townsperson.

These refuse sacks are good for other things, too: to store win-cellar-garage cleanups or leaves from a morning of raking.

How you can get this system in your town

Your garden club or other civic groups can obtain statistics and cost estimates that may help persuade your own town government to try the system. Information is also available on how to use the system yourself, as the companies will sell to private individuals. Write to the National Refuse Sack Council, 60 Fast Forty-second Street, New York, N. Y., 10017.

To prove that Harvard is the strongest bed frame made, we ran a test. One bed-buster after another climbed aboard a Harvard. The tension reached a breaking point. But the frame didn't. And there were eighteen...count 'em...eighteen piled high!

We stopped. After all, we don't know too many families who sleep more than eighteen in a bed. That's why only Harvard can fearlessly guarantee its frames for 36,600 kerplunks* or 10 years (whichever comes first).

Don't settle on less. Insist on the bed frame that won't let you down.

At 4 1/2 she’s reading 3rd grade books

Prove it to yourself…with this 10 day free trial!

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four and a half, she’s already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find “hard going.” Yet she won’t enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with “Listen and Learn with Phonics”—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

“Listen and Learn with Phonics” will help your child, too. Young “pre-schoolers” actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective phonics method of words, pictures, and records.

FOR EXAMPLE:

• Slow or average readers show sudden, often spectacular improvement in reading, in spelling, in understanding.

• Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age levels.

• Young “pre-schoolers” actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective phonics method of words, pictures, and records.

• Slow or average readers show sudden, often spectacular improvement in reading, in spelling, in understanding.

• Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age levels.

• Young “pre-schoolers” actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective phonics method of words, pictures, and records.

These “Learning Tools” Simple to Use! You don’t need special teaching skills to use this program. Nor do you need any special knowledge of phonics.

In fact, your child needs no special supervision on your part. This set is so simple, so fascinating, he can learn “on his own” without help.

10-DAY FREE TRIAL—PLUS 4-MONTH MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE! Results are so dramatic, the publishers will make the complete kit available to your child with an equally dramatic FREE trial and guarantee.

Under the terms of this unusual offer you can test the kit free of charge for ten days. Moreover you may use the kit for four months and then return it for full refund if you’re not completely satisfied with your child’s progress!

See for yourself how fast your child can learn to read. Just fill out and mail the coupon attached. There’s no obligation, and six teaching games are included free—yours to keep whether you buy or not. HOUSE & GARDEN
Get That Weight Off Quickly!

You can lose 5, 10, 15 or more pounds the first week! Dr. Irwin Stillman's Quick Weight Loss Diet debunks the myth that the only way to lose weight is to lose it gradually. He proves with facts not theory that rapid weight loss is the most effective reducing method.

IN JUST ONE WEEK you can see the weight on the scale drop rapidly, and the fat melt away. Dr. Stillman's records show that...patients averaged a loss of 6 to 7 pounds in the first 3 days on the Quick Weight Loss Diet. IN JUST ONE WEEK you can get rid of the pounds suddenly gained from too much "good living." Sudden slimming is yours with the Quick Weight Loss Diet. IN JUST ONE WEEK you will be delighted and impressed by your decided drop in weight. If you have failed with other diets, the big loss of weight the first week from the Quick Weight Loss Diet will give you the confidence you need to continue.

INSTANT ACTION

Read on this "must-slim" basis
Send for the book...read it...put the Quick Weight Off Diet to work for you. If you aren't 100% satisfied with your weight loss—and satisfied that the loss is permanent—return the book and get your money back. Give it a 10-day trial. Mail the coupon today. You have everything to gain—better health, greater vitality, a slim, young-looking figure. And nothing to lose but fat!

HAILED BY REVIEWERS

For example, the medical reviewer for King Features Syndicate, himself a physician, writes:

"This is a non-nonsense approach to losing weight: it cannot help but work if you follow the [author's] directions...this book is probably the best medicine as well as the best friend a fat person could ever have...it also offers encouragement along with exercises. These two factors are as important as diet; the three together, written in such a pleasant style, set this particular book apart from being just another diet plan."

"This diet saved my life."

The author, Dr. Irwin Maxwell Stillman, was a "fatty" once himself when he suffered a severe heart attack. Realizing that his life depended on losing 50 pounds fast, he used the Quick Weight Loss Diet to do it. His reducing method saved his "own life and has kept him slim and vigorous ever since."

--Dr. Stillman is a Diplomate in Internal Medicine, has been Clinical Instructor in Medicine at Long Island College Hospital, and is a Fellow in both the American Geriatric College and the American College of Angiology.

NEW! You can have the most beautiful lawn and garden in your neighborhood... with the PROGRAMMED COMPUTER AUTOMATIC SPRINKLER

World's first ... and introduced by Alexander Sales—Amazing new water sprinkler. Set, just once, and then it automatically waters every inch of your lawn and garden without missing a single blade of grass, every flower in your garden . . . every tree and shrub no matter how your lawn or garden is shaped. Yet . . . it never wastes a drop of water on steps, sidewalks, patios, or even lawn furniture.

THIS IS THE SPRINKLER WITH A BRAIN

That takes all of the work and guessing out of watering your lawn and garden . . . and does a better job than a full time gardener. Look what it will do for you: You can have a lawn that is thick, lush and green every day of the year regardless of how hot or dry it is. Your flowers will blossom bigger and more often. Your trees and shrubs will have new vitality. Your fruit trees will bear bigger and juicier fruit.

YOUR LAWN AND GARDEN WILL BE THE ENVY OF YOUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

You will be proud of your gorgeous lawn and garden. Everyone will wonder what your secret to success is . . . yet you will spend less time, less effort and less money than ever before on your lawn maintenance. This is all possible with our PROGRAMMED COMPUTER LAWN SPRINKLER, the sprinkler with a brain, because the secret to a beautiful lawn is proper sprinkling. All the chemicals, seeds and mowers in the world won't help if you don't water properly.

SCIENCE HAS INVENTED A NEW TYPE OF LAWN SPRINKLER THAT GIVES YOU THE FINEST LAWN AND GARDEN YOU HAVE EVER HAD

You program your sprinkler much like a computer is programmed so that your lawn and garden is perfectly watered. It takes just a few minutes to set the program . . . it's easy to do. SET IN JUST MINUTES . . . FORGET IT — COMPLETELY AUTOMATIC It even turns itself off when it is done. The sprinkler with a brain! Put the sprinkler in the middle of your lawn. Follow the simple instructions and set the 16 black knobs on top of the sprinkler. Just adjusting the knobs sets the amazing "computer brain" mechanism inside this round 10" sprinkler. This almost unbelievable mechanism rotates the three gear driven nozzles concealed inside the sprinkler so they water the exact area you have programmed . . . or even steps on your lawn or garden is shaped. Yet . . .

YOUR LAWN AND GARDEN IS PERFECTLY WATERED. IT TAKES JUST A FEW MINUTES TO SET THE PROGRAM

Every hour, every day of the year your lawn and garden is worried and hugging the ground. After the sprinkler has completely watered your lawn and garden for you IT SHUTS ITSELF OFF! THE SPRINKLER ITSELF NEVER MOVES Just the three hidden nozzles rotate within it. Best yet . . . you don't have to lift a finger . . . it sprinkles a vast area reaching out as far as 40 ft. on each side . . . so it will automatically cover an 80 ft. lot. Saturates up to 5,000 sq. ft. of any possible shape.

TRY IT YOURSELF FOR ONE FULL MONTH WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY

You have nothing to lose. Try this amazing new sprinkler for one full month. If it doesn't do everything we say it will . . . and even more, return it for a full refund.

COMPUTER PROGRAMMED SPRINKLER

Heavy duty construction built to last for years by one of America's leading manufacturers of sprinklers for golf courses. One year guarantee.

EXECUTIVE file-drawer table

Hand-made in our own workshop from seasoned woods. Holds years of files.

Who'd ever guess that this fine, handsomely crafted and table is a double file? It looks like an elegant end table but it is a design aid for the executive in residence!

One file drawer (or two) slides open to receive a full bank of alphabetical files. Deep and long, it can accommodate years of files—correspondence, policies, and other important documents.

Drawers ride on non-sick nylon glides. Dovetailed for flush fit. Mounted with antique hardware. Every inch handmade in our Carolina workshop, where craftsmanship is traditional and values old-fashioned.

Thousands of executives use it! Why buy an ordinary file cabinet when a double-duty Executive File-Drawer End Table serves you—at no extra expense? Use it in your home and other important documents.

Bobby and Sally Tomorrow will send your child a letter every month for one year.
The Tomorrow children are from the wonderful world of the future, in the year 2068. Think of it, 100 years from now.

Actually, these thought-provoking and educational letters are written by experienced children's writers and a separate letter is prepared for each age group: 5-6, 7-8, and 9 to 11.

The Young People's Science Center takes a no-sensel approach to your child's ideas about the future. All material is fiction based on a projection of present scientific fact.

As new friends Bobby and Sally will take your child on a meaningful trip into the world of the future, via their continuing experiences.

Also, in addition to the letters, Bobby and Sally will send a personal birthday card and dish off a giant 2" x 3" map of the world as it might be in 2068 A.D.

Little Su Ying was abandoned in the alley behind our Babies’ Home in Formosa. She was frightened, cold and hungry. But as you can see in the picture, someone had tried to make her look pretty. Her hair was combed and her dress, even though torn, was clean. In her hand she clutched a note written by her brother: “Please take care of my sister.” Our parents are dead for many weeks. I am twelve and can no longer find food for this small sister. To my ears came news of your House, so I bring Su Ying to you.”

Will you help us give Su Ying—and youngsters equally as needy—a chance to grow up in an atmosphere of love? For only $12 a month you can sponsor such a child and receive his or her photograph, personal history, and the opportunity to write letters. Your child will know who you are and will answer your letters.

Correspondence is translated at our overseas offices.

Sponsors urgently needed this month for children in Korea. Taiwan, India, Brazil. (Or let us select a child for you from our emergency list.)

I wish to sponsor a child in (Country). (And if you want your child to have a special gift—a pair of shoes, a warm jacket, a fuzzy bear—you can send your check to our office, and the entire amount will be forwarded, along with your instructions.)

Since 1938, thousands of American sponsors have found this to be an intimate, person-to-person way of sharing their blessings with youngsters around the world.

And your help is desperately needed. Overseas, our staff reports boys and girls still search garbage dumps for food . . . babies abandoned in the streets . . . blind children locked in cellars . . .

Little Su Ying and children like her need your love. Won’t you help? Today? Thank you.

Fine Italian server

Enhance your dinner table or embellish your bath with this outstanding Italian marble server. Accompanying knife is serrated for very hard cutting, 5½" by 5" by 3". Server makes an unusual gift for that hard-to-please person. $8 plus 75c post. Sawdust Gallery Inc., HG4, 83 East 56th St., New York, N. Y. 10022.

Extra steps

To be thankful for—stairs to climb so that you may never have to extend your reach. The graceful piece of furniture is an ebony wrought-iron stand whose hardwood steps are finished in walnut. Besides supporting you, platforms serve as stand-in for the occasional table: place thereon a bouquet.

Jeff Elliot, HG4, Statesville, N. C. 28677.

East meets west

When the sun goes down, it's dress up time. Entertain at home in a bewitching Daharra from Morocco. Shimmering, silky white cotton with black stripes and embroidery could be the most enchanting way imaginable to greet the guests. One size fits all—washable, sheds wrinkles. $19.98 ppd. Horch, Lake Success, N. Y. 11040.

FRINGED CURTAINS

COUNTRY STYLE

A little like those adored windows in the Country Style Picture Book, Colonial originals are hand made.

- Many of natural undyed or surat-dyed Muslin. They're trimmed with a 2-inch fringed trim and are EXTRA-EXTRA-EXTRA-EXTRA in the pair.

BATTLE—hang on: Tier pair Tier, 54" x 90"; Valance or one pair Valance 65"; (as illustrated). Two matching fringes less (in pairs, including with every 2 pair.)

The La Cotta Roaster
...no fat, no water, no spices, no tenderizers — and no basting whatsoever.

Successful results that make pork roast taste like prime ribs!

You'll say unbelievable in every other roasting method for meat, poultry, fish. Traditional roasting in metal cooks at too high temperatures—toughens, seals in fats and trimmings. La Cotta, the product of an exciting development in ceramics (world-paint-grading), is an imitated earthware roaster which cooks and tenderizes without basting. Preserves natural juices and flavor you've never dreamed were there! Nothing goes up in smoke—meat never shrinks—even fats and unappetizing solids are healthfully dissolved. Oven stays clean.

Now you can make world-famous delicacies such as Roast Duckling or a La Cotta . . . the Prompt shipment.

Satisfaction guaranteed.

STATE OF THE GARDE
MESSAGE, 1968

April, which really starts the garden year, seems a good time to take stock. Where do important aspects of gardening rest at the moment? Which ones are on the rise, which on a plateau, in a temporary or permanent decline? What is new in landscape design? What of plants? What are we doing about pests and diseases? Whither the machine? Where is the gardening dollar most productively spent? What are the trends, the major objectives? Here a few suggestive areas:

DESIGN is improving. This dogmatic judgment means simply that home owners are seeking something more than the mere insertion of a few dollars worth of trees and shrubs in holes hacked out of the rubble around house walls. There is a new insistence on a reasonable diversity of plants, disposed about the site with the total picture in mind—from within the house looking out as well as from the street looking toward the house. "Foundation planting," the old and one-time disdained term for a row of plants hugging the house walls, finally seems to be accepted rather as a basic planting—the kind from which a full landscape effect may be elaborated as seasons pass or that may hold its own if left untouched except for regular maintenance. Turf has by no means lost favor, despite the fact that it probably causes more distress in those who would nurture it than almost any other numerically comparable assemblage of plants. But pattern in turf and ground-covers seems to be achieved not by obscuring windows but by scaping the whole site. This integration of the whole house-lot complex, no matter how small it may be, is especially rewarding (see left and opposite page left).

Nor is landscape design these days relented solely to the outside. Garden rooms and patios, often little at one end of a scale join massive in displays such as that completed for the Benjamin Jefferies' Foundation's new Marian Manor headquarters (see opposite page). A basic new concept that is carried out on a regal scale, it has great promise as an adaptable idea.

Increased interest on the part of both landscape architects and the public in large-scale landscaping—the layout of "new towns," of urban community developments, of industrial complexes, is also a sign of things to come.
for red would-be uranian planners, who must take an apprenticeship on small domestic I, to take the human condition into greater inclusion. The condition of a single family single house on a single lot in a single street, all very much to the good.

TRACTION, handmaiden to design, is increasingly important as a means of expressing the more permanent aspects of living into the open. Terraces, pergolas, pools, pergolas, walls and steps, walks, sculpture paves are becoming, by something akin to consent, relevant to the design of a livable place. Picnic areas, once relegated to the back along with children’s play space, have the family and now may be decorative as functional landscape adjuncts. New paving slabs, new machine-made ceramics, fresh (if used) wood in new finishes, have all contributed to the structural renascence of the land-total livability.

TS are changing, too. That, of course, is a oversimplification. What is changing is the ability of certain plants as opposed to others, reconditioning methods by which plants are grown, and consequently the nursery methods by which they are grown, and public evaluation of those plants. A zinnia is still a zinnia. But a fifty-cent shrub, handsome in all weathers and all seasons over many years. Most significant today, perhaps, is the fact that all but large sizes of landscape shrubs and trees are offered for sale by garden centers and suburban nurseries in tin cans that permit transplanting at any time during the growing season. The plants are grown in cans, distributed in cans, retailed in cans. And while the variety available may be narrowed thereby, the quality and transplantability at the planting site are both enhanced.

Plants by mail—especially shrubs and trees—may be permanently on the decline. But plants by station wagon, at least within reach of metropolitan and suburban distribution points, are on the increase. Many “trash” seedlings that never were worth their price have disappeared from the market entirely, which is all to the good. Many landscape plants, particularly the broadleaf evergreens, such as hollies, rhododendrons, barberries, and some of the choicer deciduous plants, such as magnolias, dogwoods, stewartias, flowering fruit trees, are now staples instead of rarities.

PESTS AND ILLS, once swords of Damocles over the gardener’s head, are now best taken in stride. They will always be with us (short of Utopia), and we have come to the conclusion that their control should be in the category of mindless routine that can be dealt with on a relatively simplistic basis. Gardening being today the avocation of busy and involved people, you can bow to the expertise of the chemists and the (Continued on next page) exigencies of the clock and spray your plants with "all-purpose" pesticides, in general, once a fortnight, or in special cases once a week. It is quite possible to spray almost all garden plants regularly without harming them or endangering either people or other important warm-blooded animals that feed on cold-blooded organisms. A lot of the control material will, of course, be wasted. But at a cost of a few dollars a season, who will fret? New pesticides such as malathion and Sevin are effective and safe to use in the garden as are fungicides, commonly supplied in all-purpose formulations. Even some of the newest systemic pesticides (those that are applied to plants or soil to be taken into plant tissues and thus poison insects that suck or chew on them), have been brought under reasonable control at last and seem to prove effective when used for roses. Stay away still from such virulent chlorinated hydrocarbons as parathion and such systems as sodium selenate. These are for professional use only. Herbicides should be used only when and where needed (see directions on the container). Chlor dane-bearing material, including many of the pre-emergence crab grass killers are still suspect in the eyes of some gardeners and many conservationists. Derivatives of 2,4-D, used carelessly, may damage or kill valuable ornamental plants. Most compounds must be properly timed. So moderation is still watchword.

EQUIPMENT nowadays in machines more often than not tools—tractors, lawnmowers, ers, cultivators, snow blowers—silently avoid entirely the use of automotive or powered tools because gasoline engines sometimes balk and electric mowers sometimes blow fuses. At least that is what happened in 1968 the horse race seems to be over. Most gas engines in garden have leveled off at two to three horsepower. Large engines in usually directed mowers vary from three to five horsepower. Self propelled mowers and some snow blowers may boast six or seven horsepower. Small home tractors, riding mowers, after a furious calation for half a dozen years may put out as much as two horsepower. But the emphasis is on power and more on one of starting, handling, and performance.

Self-starters of one kind another are increasingly available with gas engines, and will become universally popular once light weight, long-life batteries are economically feasible. Cords, in electric mowers of any power, really a first-class nuisance. Come the day of the lightweight relatively inexpensive battery it will operate a mower for at least

Timers actuate the best lawn-watering systems

No matter how well planned the piping (nowadays usually plastic) and sprinkler head distribution, even the best of installations must be operated at the proper times to be worth its cost. Simple timer controls four areas.

Moisture sensing is a vital part of a completely automatic system, control may be set to operate multiple valves to remove all guesswork.

hours without needing refilling, and there may be a real surge of electric-powered mowers, one or two of which, such as the late excellent Scott, were heavy duty mowers, but so expensive that they simply did not sell.

Hand tools of stainless steel and rust-resistant alloys are constantly being improved. So is the design and performance of such implements as trowels, secateurs, pruners and the like. Costs are ill and probably will remain, relatively high, but it takes more than an economy to make a tool efficient. On the other hand, no one yet invented a tool more satisfactory for its purpose than a clean steel spade, an iron rake, an old-fashioned garden hoe, a sturdy pick-mattock.

AWN CARE is a multifaceted object, requiring, first, a lawn worth caring for, second, good fitting and trimming tools, and, third, proper pesticides and herbicides. The lawn seed problem is under control, what with the availability of constantly improved strains of good turf grasses. There is no longer any excuse for buying poor grass seed—not even innocence. And if seeding a lawn is too much trouble, you can produce turf overnight with nursery grown sod by recourse to a host of growers and distributors within a wide circle around every urban area (and many not so urban). The turf weed problem can be taken are of, safely and temperately, by chemicals. Mowers and trimming tools are better than ever, if not ideal.

That leaves watering devices for increased attention this year. In some cases, improved synthetic garden hose and good sprinklers will do the trick. Increasingly, automatic watering is coming to be recognized as an important aid to really good turf keeping. Happily, most of the early do-it-yourself kits are on the decline and the do-it-with-real-competence outfits are gaining ground. Best of all, for those to whom cost is not the primary impediment, the newest in professional installations, with automatic controls (see below) are the hottest news in turf care. Prevailing drought conditions may restrict their use at times. Low pressure in the mains may require booster pumps. But the overall economy of operation in terms of turf satisfaction may make automatic watering systems eminently desirable.

DOLLARS—where to spend them? The old truism—quality pays—still holds good. Good design, good plants, good tools, faithful, even loving, care can still make the difference between gardening with pride and simply tolerating the outdoors. Generalizations are useless, beyond saying that without good plants the rest doesn't amount to much. One man's tractor is another man's reflecting pool, and what Solomon would render final judgment?

TRENDS? We have touched on most that seem important to us as spring unfolds: better grown plants more readily available without regard to seasonal timing; better planning, in part by the professionals, in part by homeowners themselves; more practical equipment, of better quality and less frantic design; safer chemicals, for every prophylactic and curative garden purpose; and of course the momentum of gardening itself.

Perhaps this last is most important of all. If the old-fashioned portrait of the dedicated plantsman is becoming blurred around the edges, the new practitioner of the arts of living with his whole individual environment is emerging ever more clearly. More power to him.

Mourn not their passing.

As for the most prized—and most often forbidden—flowers: include the trailing arbutus, mountain laurel, all trilliums, all native orchids, the gentians, cardinal flower, bird's-foot violets, most "state flowers," and a dozen others in isolated regions. Best procedure, if you crave blossoms on the protracted regimens. Best procedure, if you expect any weekend to be anything to do with the fact that a contractor’s bulldozer may uproot as many wildflowers as are in its path, with no one except the landowner to say it nay.

Some of these rules may seem silly to you, but the core of the idea is to prevent the destruction of prized species and the depletion of natural beauty—both worthy ends. The law aside, thoughtful flower pickers as well as gardeners will surely not snatch flower stems indiscriminately, nor destroy plants just to have the flowers. And it is a fact that only careful transplanting, based on knowledge and experience, will insure that most transplanted wildlings will survive in your garden.

Introducing: The Kid-Cushioned Floors.™

What do we mean by Kid-Cushioned? It's that's more-than-skin-deep. Kid-Cushioned Floors are just plain, ordinary vinyl.

Improved: Congoleum-Nairn cushioned vinyl.

Extra vinyl to cushion its beauty at the beating floors take from kids over other floors.

Kushioned Floors™ just cushion vinyl.

Like have-the-cushion-in-the-middle. When your children jump-up-and-down, bang, bounces back to original beauty.

Scratches? Marks? Get 'em! Vinyl is tougher & thicker.

Spills? Dirt? Accidents?

Forget about them, too.

Kid-Cushioned Floors come clean fast!

Household spills can't be absorbed on our textured surface.

Accidents wipe up quickly & easily. (No special cleaning techniques are needed!)

"My, what a warm, quiet room..."

It's true. Kid-Cushioned Floors insulate. Help make rooms warmer and quieter.

Yet Kid-Cushioned Floors never cost more and usually much less than their imitators.

How's 130 for choice?

Kid-Cushioned Floors come in 130 color-pattern combinations that can take a beating... without showing it. 130 fashionable floors for families. Far more than any other brand.

What makes Drexel furniture so special?

Drexel’s Deep-Cut Wood Carving: one more example of Drexel’s never-ending effort to anticipate your pleasure...of the added thought and care that make Drexel the most trusted name in furniture.

See what makes all Drexel furniture styles so special for you. Send 50¢ for a booklet collection or Drexel Furniture Company, 862 Huffman Road, Drexel, N.C. 28619.

Things like real wood carving. As in Di Moda.

You look at this handsome Della Robbia swag...you think—it has to be a costly import or antique. And you’d be justified, considering all the substitutes that are passing for real carving on furniture today. Why? Cost—pure and simple. You see, very few people have the woodworking facilities and skills—not just to carve...but to do it without sending the price sky high. Fortunately, Drexel has both. So you can have the real thing. And have it realistically.
