Years ago, master craftsmen made ceilings worth looking at.

Today, Armstrong makes ceilings worth looking at again.
Fall in love with our inlaid table. (After all, it's French.)

This is Chateau Provence—very French provincial, with that unmistakable "Thomasville look." And you can see why it's unmistakable. See how the bold grains have been selected for their beauty from the hearts of sturdy white oaks? See how meticulously the pieces have been fitted together in a parquet design for an interplay of light and shadow? See how the deep, rich carving acts as a foil for the dramatic top and the graceful curving legs? It's all part of "that Thomasville look." To see all the lovable pieces in our Country French "Chateau Provence" and many other collections, send $2.00 to Thomasville, Dept. HG 170, Thomasville, North Carolina 27360. The Wamsutta sheet has met its match.

The Wamsutta towel.

There's more to this match than looks. There's something called "luxury"—the kind that made Wamsutta sheets a tradition. The kind that goes into Wamsutta towels. This is why our towels are so soft and absorbent. Why they add a touch of luxury to even the most "hurry up" bath. The Wamsutta towel: in styles that coordinate with Wamsutta sheets. And in styles that stand alone.

Why don’t you become a professional Interior Decorator?

It’s a high-income field where a woman is in her glory. The demand for decorating services is at a peak, and opportunities are unlimited... even if you use only part of your time. You can train at home without interrupting your regular duties.

BY JANICE TRIMBLE

I don’t think there is another profession today that offers more pleasure or greater rewards to a woman than that of interior decorating. It is the ideal place to put your natural love of beauty to practical use. You can prepare for one of the many attractive positions available or decide to go into business for yourself. Do you enjoy doing your own decorating? Have you ever helped a friend solve a decorating problem? Then you have the makings for success as a professional decorator. Even if you’ve done no decorating, you may be one of many women with unsuspected talent in this direction—talent just waiting to be discovered.

You can now train for this work at home, in your spare time. No previous skills or experience are required for this training. What the LaSalle Course teaches you The LaSalle Course in Interior Decorating has been prepared by experts to give you complete and up-to-date preparation for this most exciting of modern careers. Lessons come to you by mail; they are as fascinating as the professional work itself. Much of the study material included is absolutely unique in a course of this kind. For instance, you get an attractive, simple-to-operate slide projector with color slides that show interiors as big as life on your wall. You also get professional sketching equipment, coloring materials, stencils that make it easy for you to draw room plans and furniture arrangements, and much more.

A tremendously expanded field It used to be that only wealthy people employed professional decorators. That’s no longer true. Increasingly large numbers of homemakers now rely on the services of decorators. They know that a decorator can provide beauty and individuality—and can often save them money, too.

Your work as a decorator is varied and interesting. It frequently takes you and your clients into plush showrooms and exclusive shops filled with treasures. You move in a world of fashion, creativity and ever-new challenge. Designing and furnishing even a single room can earn you hundreds of dollars; larger assignments can earn you much more. Many women do extremely well in just part-time work; their own homes often serve as showcases for prospective clients.

But decorators are busy in many areas besides homes. Their talents are employed in decorating hotel rooms, business offices, building lobbies, clubs and institutions. That’s why the profession has grown so enormously.

At each step, you are given practical assignments which are then carefully reviewed by your instructors and returned to you. You are coached with thoroughness for your work as a professional decorator.

The LaSalle Course in Interior Decorating is backed by more than half a century of leadership in the field of adult education. More than 1,000,000 people have trained for success through home study with LaSalle.

Some carpets just aren't made for butterfingers.

"Butterfinger" is a term of endearment used to describe those among us whose fingers are not, in any meaningful sense, connected to their brain. They drop things.

And if anything small enough is dropped on our carpet, forget it. It's lost.

On the other hand, where a rich, thick carpet might be bad for fumbling fingers, it's not bad for the feet.

A Jorge's carpet made of Encron polyester by American Enka, is so thickly piled, rich, soft, warm, and plushy, it's scandalous. Which, by the way, is the name. Scandalous. And to make decorating a pleasure, it comes in a beautiful array of House & Garden colors.

All in all, because a Jorge's Scandalous carpet of Encron polyester is probably the plushiest around for the money, it's a pleasure to have, to look at, and to walk on.

But if you happen to be one of the lovable people whose fingers we referred to earlier, beware. You may be spending an immoderate amount of time on your hands and knees, searching for the escapee of the moment. It's like looking for a tie tack in a carpet.

Enjoy this guide to true Italian cooking, for 10 days free

as a guest of Foods of the World

Mention Italian cooking to the average American and chances are he'll conjure up visions of steaming pizza pies and heaping platters of spaghetti. Actually, true Italian cooking is far more varied than pizza and pasta. In fact, it is probably one of the most varied and sophisticated cuisines in the world.

The tempting diversity of cooking alla Italiana is yours to enjoy in The Cooking of Italy—introd-uctive volume in FOODS OF THE WORLD, an exciting, beautifully-illustrated, cooking series by TIME-LIFE BOOKS.

From the region of Tuscany, you learn to cook bistecca alla fiorentina in the Florentine style... steak soaked for six hours in a marinade of olive oil and wine vinegar, with just the right herbs, then fast-broiled. From Sicily comes luscious cassata alla siciliana... pound cake layered with ricotta cheese, chocolate chips, cream, candied fruits, a dash of liqueur, and topped with chocolate-and-coffee-frosting. From Piedmont, you learn the secret of riso al limone... fluffy rice with fresh-grated parmigiano cheese and lemon juice added at just the right moment to insure perfection.

These are only a few of the culinary adventures in The Cooking of Italy. There are more than 100 recipes in all... from appetizers such as tangy caponata to desserts like the fabulous wine custard, zabai-Ione... from the hearty bollita misti (mixed boiled meats) to suppli al telefono (deep-fried rice-and-cheese balls).

Thanks to a unique series of full-color picture directions, you actually watch many of these celebrated dishes being prepared... see exactly how to proceed every step of the way... observe the special techniques that only native-born cooks could know and that recipes alone cannot show.

Besides marvelous recipes, The Cooking of Italy contains guides to the fantastic variety of Italian pasta and cheese, and to the world of fine Italian wines... plus more than 40,000 words of text on the food and eating customs of the country.

Learn from the world's top food experts

Three distinguished food experts collaborated with TIME-LIFE BOOKS on The Cooking of Italy: Waverley Root, authority on European grande cuisine; Luigi Carnacina, who managed Italy's restaurants at three world's fairs; and Michael Field, an outstanding cooking expert.

How to turn your house on with lighting

BY WILLIAM BALDWIN

Light is, first and last, for seeing. It’s what you are trying to see that dictates the kind of lamp you buy and where you put it. For reading, for instance, the worst possible light is unfortunately the most common: a big, tall lamp with a translucent shade so the light shines right smack in your eyes. A reading lamp should be below eye level, with an opaque shade that confines the light to your book. And not too strong a light, please—that bright white page can create almost as uncomfortable a glare as the light itself.

In the dining room, the primary source of light should not be, as so many people assume, the chandelier. A chandelier is a beautiful thing, but people ruin it by putting in the brightest bulbs they can find. Then it becomes garish and distracting and very uncomfortable. Even the light reflected by the silver on the table can be a pinpoint in your eye. Ideally, the chandelier lights should be just bright enough to make the prisms sparkle. Most of the light to see by should come from soft spots in the ceiling with perhaps a few candles—again, below eye level—to give all the faces a glow.

One of the worst evenings I ever spent was in a dining room entirely lighted by spotlights focused on four or five paintings on the walls. It was terrifying to eat at that dim table with those ghastly luminous pictures staring down. What the
I noticed her art collection. But the light was too strong—the paintings looked like cheap, lighted glass. Lighting pictures is tricky anyway. One of the best ways is to wash a whole wall with a very soft light. Then you can rearrange the pictures without worrying about readjusting the lights. But the lighting must be extremely subtle. You should not even be aware that there is a light shining on the picture—until you turn it off.

In a hallway or on a staircase, the most logical place for light is where your feet are—on the floor. In one of the most attractive halls I know—walls of rough wood, floor of the same wood but whitened and polished—the light comes from a narrow cove just above the baseboard molding. You are led forward by the light, and you almost feel as if the floor is warm, actually carpeted with light. Most staircases are so dark they are just a hazard. If they’re lighted at all, it’s with a bulb at the top of the stairwell, forcing you to flounder up and down the stairs in an atmosphere as spooky as a haunted house. Why not light the steps along the sides, like that baseboard-lighted hallway? Or light each step by a light mounted on the underside of the tread above.

Lighting the living room is the most fun because the function of lamps is really to decorate the room with light. That doesn’t mean that you run out and buy the most ornate lamps you can find. Nor does it mean having your favorite teapot made into a lamp. The great value of a lamp is as a giver of light, not as an artistic medium. Now there is a wealth of beautiful, almost architecturally designed lamps to be found. I applaud them—glowing shapes in plexiglass, chrome columns that throw light at the ceiling, wonderful sculptures with lights in them. They are beautiful in themselves, yet they begin and end as a means of giving light.

To me, the epitome of decorating with light is in a château in France where all the furniture is arranged as if it were objects on a table. All through the large living room are little groupings of chairs and tables and flowers lighted by slim silver lamps with the smallest possible paper shades. The light is softly spotted, silhouetting a chair against a table, casting lovely shadows. At the end of the room is a fireplace where a fire is always burning—the most wonderful light of all.
We used a computer to pull Pagliacci into Paducah.

RCA's new Computer Crafted Stereo Tuners are designed to pull in hard-to-get FM stereo stations.

Pagliacci, The Artichoke Hearts, Madame Butterfly.
Sometimes they begin to sound alike when you're trying to hear them on far-away FM stations.
They may be weak. Thin. And if you turn up the volume, you might get annoying interference.
So RCA engineers developed improved tuners that can pull in signals from distant stations with less interference than before.

Tuners so sensitive they often can pull in FM stereo stations even after they've been weakened by those big, signal-blocking buildings.

Tuners that are designed to separate crammed-together-on-the-dial stations.
And they did it with the aid of computers.

First, to design them. Then, on the production line, more computers help in testing each part before that part goes into the tuner.

If it doesn't measure up to the engineer's design specifications, the computer lights up and rejects the part.

No ands, ifs, buts, or excuses.

560 tests later—7 times as many as before the computer—the entire tuner is tested for optimum performance.
So the tuner you get not only pulls in stations from farther away, but also separates them better too. To bring you Pagliacci loud and clear.
Test-listen an RCA stereo with its Computer
Crafted Tuner at your RCA dealer.
Paducah will never be the same.

SOME NOTES ON

GOOD LOOKS & GOOD HEALTH

BY REBECCA WARFIELD

This Could Be

THE YEAR OF THE FACE INC.

Whenever the public eye—and it's a roving eye, always has been, always will be—settles on a certain portion of the female anatomy, that area flourishes. Women learn an infinity about it. Within recent memory, there has been the Age of Legs, of the Breast, of Lips—though all that was learned about lips in the thirties and forties was to smash on a huge blood-red mouth that wouldn't quit. But eventually it did quit, and the eye became magnetized by eyes, made a big thing of them and so, instead of lipstick, it was eye make-up that women wouldn't be caught on a desert island without. Then, of course, the Age of Hair mounted gradually, fountained up and overwhelmed the globe. Probably more has been learned about how to color hair, care for it, arrange it, adorn it, grow it, duplicate it during this period than in all the rest of history. Now finally the eye is wandering once more, and it seems that the face is going to be next. Not one little province of it—the eyes or the lips or the complexion—but the total conglomerate, The Face Incorporated.

Many signs point this way. Hair is going up and those concealing curtains may soon be brushed back to reveal the face as clear as day. There haven't been so many inventive creams and lotions, so many brilliant ideas for revving up the complexion, around in years. Even among the young there is a piling up of concern to hold on to the glory they have and by the not-so-young to recapture theirs (one expert who truly believes that any skin can be rehabilitated is booked solid for six months). Beginning here, a few of the developments that will be burgeoning in this Year of the Face. . . .

• Nothing stands still, everything has to change. So what's to happen on the face? Where to go? There are two areas of increasing interest: under the eyes, with much more lashes and wrapped-around eye shadow, and over the eyes, with color mounting to the brow—pale but surprising bands of color like the flags of all nations or three colors merged and muted to an iridescence.

• For impatient people who want and need immediate fresh complexion results, Kenneth's Under Make-up Lift is the reward for living right. When this pale apricot cream goes on over lines or all over the face, there's a gentle up—under the eyes, with much more lashes and wrapped-around eye shadow, and over the eyes, with color mounting to the brow—pale but surprising bands of color like the flags of all nations or three colors merged and muted to an iridescence.

• “I loathe anything powdery. Powdery places on the face always remind me of Dorothy Parker's sad Big Blonde.”

IN A SHORT EXPERIMENTAL MEMBERSHIP IN THE Book-of-the-Month Club

You simply agree to buy three additional Club Selections or Alternates within a year at special members' prices

A LIBRARY-BUILDING PLAN EVERY READING FAMILY SHOULD KNOW ABOUT

The EXPERIMENTAL MEMBERSHIP suggested here will not only prove, by your own actual experience, how effectually membership in the Book-of-the-Month Club can keep you from missing, through oversight or overbusyness, books you fully intend to read; it will also demonstrate another important advantage: Book-Dividends. Through this unique profit-sharing system members can regularly receive valuable library volumes—at a small fraction of their retail prices—simply by buying books they would buy anyway.

If you continue after this experimental membership, you will earn, for every Club Selection or Alternate you buy, a Book-Dividend Credit. Each Credit, upon payment of a nominal sum, often only $1.00 or $1.50—somewhat more for unusually expensive volumes—entitles you to a Book-Dividend which you may choose from more than 100 fine library volumes available over the year. This is probably the most economical means ever devised for building up a well-rounded personal library. Since its inauguration, $480,000,000 worth of books (retail value) has been received by Club members through this unique plan.

Speaking: Way Bandy, the new young make-up director of Charles of the Ritz Salons, who is overflowing with new thoughts. One of them, his special, ingenious way of using cotton and powder so that no more comes off on your skin than you could engrave on the head of a pin. Flexible, he can use his discretion to bring out the hidden potential in any face—or his training in the theatre for such sophisticated special effects as eyebrows to match eye shadow (even when that's mauve) or white-tipped lashes that seem to float on a sea of navy blue shadow. In New York, at 461 Park Avenue he passes along his secrets in a remarkable hour of instruction.

- Where has all the dark lid liner gone? As far as the eye can see, sunk without a trace.
- Why do so many eyes look younger and lighter? Probably because of the split-up in fake eyelashes. Everybody's feathering them out in bits—a little here a mite there—and using a lot more artfulness. They're already spaced out a dozen different ways in Max Factor's grab bag box of Lashlets.
- There's usually such a letdown from the wild, mythic eyes of High Fashion to the acceptable wearable eyes we all have to settle for. There should be some connection, some way of translating the wild to the only mildly wild. An impressionist painter—Lyle Roberts at Kenneth's—manages to find lots of them. Hung up on color but seeing it in the perspective of everyday, he's giving his clients soft impressionist eyelids now—a blend of mauves and pinks and silvers and yellows, all merged so they look like iridescence on a dove's feather.
- So what's the next interesting eye shadow color that hasn't been born yet? Maybe yellow all the way from faintest lemony sunshine to canary. On the continent they're enjoying a spicy Curry now.
- The gleam that's been around on lips and eyelids is beginning to power up for the whole face scene. It will glow on cheekbones, on the forehead where the sun strikes first, anywhere the newly aware eye finds it fun.
- "I love electricity." This thunderbolt falls absolutely naturally from the lips of Janet Sarlin, face-person extraordinary, scientist, inventor, optimist (she's the one who believes in the regenerated face). The treatments given are nonsuch. They involve tiny fingers of electricity for massage far more delicate than human hands, intensive periods of care and home follow-up with Miss Sarlin's own thoughty inventions. More about her later in this Year of the Face.
- Lips won't be getting any darker, but a new intensity of paleness gives them a definite thereness.
- Evelyn Marshall who's one of the most beloved skin-mavens around is a nut on cleanliness and clogged pores are her bête noire (her own Creme Wash made of a dozen rare oils has been more copied than the Mona Lisa but never duplicated). She has an explicit guideline for putting on night creams: Never on the eyelids—it can irritate those baby blues. Never on the forehead—no good can come of this since there's only bone to reach. Never on the nose. All counter-productive.
- Are the best things in life ever free? A make-up at Estée Lauder's Beauty Spa (located in twenty stores across the country) is free. If you like, you can call up ahead of time and make an appointment for it. No tipping, no catches. Sometimes you're just lucky.

A work of art made to be handled.
It's the new all-together pow of Springmaid. Printilism! A medley of pattern played against pattern, inspired by the print-mix sophistication of Art Deco: Fantasy and Mirage. In sheets, pillowcases, bedspreads, everything—right to the towel. To mix, to match or to do your own zing. Like this: a mix of famous Wondercale® percale sheets. Durable-press and no-iron. Blended of 50% Kodel® polyester, 50% combed cotton. With it, a fringed durable-press cotton bedspread and a dizzying dazzle of sheared-cotton towels. What a wonderful way to shake up a bedroom. Thank you, Miss Springmaid.

The Counter That Cooks.

Corning takes cooking out of the rut it's been in for over 100 years.

No coils, no burners, no grease traps. In fact, no crevices or ruts at all. Instead you cook on The Counter That Cooks.

A smooth, easy-to-clean PYROCERAM surface that brings you Counterspace Cooking. (Because it's sealed, grease and spillovers have no place to hide.)

Turned off, the entire Counter That Cooks is usable counterspace. When it's turned on, it's a cook-top.

Hidden just beneath the surface are four electric heating elements. Each cooking area is indicated by a handsome sunburst design.

When the heat is on, the sunburst glows yellow. (See it under the saucepan?) The others not in use stay cool and safe.

But the real proof is in the cooking. The Counter That Cooks comes with a complete set of PYROCERAM Cookmates which are flat and polished to provide perfect contact with the cooking surface. This means that on any of the four thermostatically controlled cooking areas, the heat is distributed so evenly you may never use a double boiler again.

Like any counter, a wipe with a damp cloth makes fast work of most spills and cooking spatters. (That's something to think about next time you try to clean your old-fashioned stove-top.)

And that's how The Counter That Cooks takes cooking out of its rut.

Corning promises that for one year from the date of purchase any deficiency which occurs will be corrected free of charge, including parts and labor. Free parts will be provided for an additional two years.

THE AGE OF ASTROLOGY. It had to happen. A young psychiatrist, Dr. Joan Shalack, dedicated to the better understanding of self, decided to merge the idea of the energies of the planets and the kinetic power of perfume to arrive at a new kind of communication system. She has worked with perfumers for a year, with other psychiatrists, too, and they have invented one overall scent, Tototo, that sounds like that funny talk from outer space but means Total Zodiac as well as a perfume for each of the elements—fire, water, earth, and air—so that three signs of the zodiac are expressed in one perfume. For instance, Tavica, the earthy element's own fragrance is for the signs of Taurus, Virgo, and Capricorn. All the perfumes have charm, are un­touch, and have a nice diplomatic quality. A quarter of an ounce is $32.50; a full ounce is $100, and they are at Henri Bendel's in New York.

THE ERA OF MAKE-BELIEVE. Does she or doesn't she? Is it or isn't it? Half the fun is not being sure. The Carolina Soap & Candlemakers have just invented a great little puzzler—Cake in the Oven house spray. Warm, delicious, enveloping, like the real thing, it makes people laugh out loud. Is it a white cake or chocolate? Was the imaginary dog that belonged to the Madwoman of Chaillot small and white or large and brown? Exactly. Cake in the Oven spray is $1.75. In New York at Nancy's Fancy, 900 First Avenue.

A Waste King dishwasher is a clean idea.

It's got what it takes to get egg off a fork, cheese off a plate, milk off a glass, or the oil-slick off a butter dish. Even when you're almost casual about how you load it. And you don't even have to pre-rinse dishes. Just scrape and load. A built-in Disposo-Drain eliminates tedious hand-rinsing. That's why a Waste King dishwasher is such a clean idea. Notes for the hostess

BY MARY MOON HEMINGWAY

Granted midwinter is not drear over all of the country, there is often a post-holiday letdown that begs to be lightened and brightened. No matter the climate, now is the time to give an elegant party, a formal dinner, an elaborate high tea. Now is the season to bring out fancy recipes. What better time to use a few orchids as a centerpiece, to fill a fireplace with light from candle globes (those fat wax-filled globes that come in dulcet colors and burn for hours), to pass cigars and brandy, to have an entertainer—pianist, guitar player, accordionist—and let everybody sing.

How often are you invited to a dinner party where fish is the main course? Not very. And more's the pity now that fresh fish is available all over the country all of the year. Even my husband, not a great fish aficionado, loves the Swedish fish dish we first enjoyed at the Faculty Club at the University of Lund. Basically, this is poached white fish—haddock does very well—handsomely set forth on a platter garnished with lemon slices and chopped parsley. Accompanying the fish are boats of melted butter, chopped hard-cooked eggs, grated raw horseradish. And you could, of course, include a mustard sauce. For vegetables, tiny boiled potatoes and wilted fresh spinach. In addition, I like thinly sliced cucumbers that have been marinated with sugar and vinegar. For dessert, something light: fresh pineapple chips, perhaps, or orange sections sprinkled with the grated zest of the fruit for zip.

Wintertime brings to my mind: glitter. Silver and crystal and sparkle wherever I can use it. Georg Jensen has brought over from Sweden some Bodaf glass delights—fat glass rings, mercury lined, and glass mushrooms, both mirrored and clear, that can be used lying flat or upended, in all kinds of silvery permutations. Wonderful alone, marvelous with flowers for a spectacular party table.

Have you thought:

Of setting out three punch bowls, suitably iced—one filled with Bloody Marys, one with daiquiris, and one with bull shots—as cheer for a large luncheon party instead of the complications of a bar? Surely everybody likes one of these drinks, and you'll have no bottlenecks.

Of serving cheese for company breakfast? Swiss, muenster, Gouda, whipped cream cheese—all are so satisfying with Swedish rye bread.

Of putting a few pretty glass canisters filled with nibbles in the guest room? For contents: nuts, raisins, tiny crackers.

Of the utter frivolity of filling glass bowls with a layer of blueberries and dollops of vanilla ice cream topped by cotton candy or homespun sugar?

BY LOUISE ADE BOGER

Please tell me something about the origin of my epergne. The figurines are marked "sterling," and the initials "WMF" are on the base. A jeweler suggested that a dagger belongs in the hand of the figurine holding only part of a handle. C.G.—San Francisco, Calif.

The design of your etched glass and silver centerpiece suggests German or Austrian influence, the "sterling" mark on the figures indicate it was made in America. It dates around 1870-1890. We have been unable to identify the maker's mark. Your jeweler is correct—the figurine should hold a small dagger.

I've spent fifteen years searching for information about my singing bird watch holder. You pull the side lever and a bird pops up, spins around, flaps his wings, and sings. The watch is removable. The case has the number 800 on the underside. Can you tell me anything about it? J.E.K.—DeKalb, Ill.

Your decorative case with the singing bird and timepiece is German in origin, probably dating around the end of the nineteenth century. The metal is silver—the 800 indicates that out of 1000 parts, 800 are silver.

Enclosed is a picture of my delft platter and the markings on its back. Is it possible to give me any information about it? V.V.—Rumney, N. H.

The mark is that of the faience factory De Porceleyne Fles (The Porcelain Bottle) of Delft, founded in 1655 by Wouter van Eenhoorn and Quirinus Aldersz van Cleynoven. Although the oldest delft pottery in existence, it first used a bottle as its mark in 1795 when Johannes and Dirk Harlees became the owners. Your mark is a modern one, less than one-hundred years old. Continued on page 44.

I bought these figures at an antique shop in Los Angeles. I have had many inquiries about their age and origin. Can you help me?
M.M.C.—Santa Barbara, Calif.

Your grotesque figures are of Italian origin. They derived from the blackamoors that served as candlestands. Figures such as yours were popular about 1880-1900 and were found in entrance halls of private homes. The tray was used for calling cards.

I can find little information about this type of chair except in the encyclopedia and even that doesn't fully describe it. What can you tell me?
A.C.L.—Rockville, Md.

Your chair is a copy of a distinctive type of sixteenth-century Italian Renaissance folding chair of X shape called a Savonarola. It is probably of European origin, perhaps Italian, and dates from the late nineteenth or early twentieth century when this style was revived for libraries and entrance halls.

EMPIRE LAMPS

We bought this pair of oil lamps twenty years ago in Mountainburg, Ark. The photograph shows the component parts. Can you identify it further?
R.O.—Shreveport, La.

The chimneys and bases of your oil lamps are typically continental, most likely of French manufacture dating around the time of the Second French Empire, 1852-1870.
"Hippy" Hips?

Do "HIPPY" HIPS SPOIL THE SLEEK LINES OF YOUR FIGURE? Does it take a tight girdle to control the lines of your waistline, tummy and thighs? The space age fashions of the 70's don't make allowances for these areas. No need for you to, either. Not when you can reduce the size of your hips, waistline, tummy and thighs with Relax-A-cizor!

Here's how it works!

Many women lack good muscle tone because they don't get enough exercise. Relax-A-cizor gives effortless, concentrated exercise to such figure areas as hips, waistline, abdomen and thighs. Regular use causes these areas to reduce in size measurably to the extent these muscles lack tone because of insufficient exercise. And the less the muscle tone the greater the degree of size reduction.

- Not Weight loss! Relax-A-cizor is different. Relax-A-cizor's effortless exercise tones and firms your natural girdle of muscles. Does it while you REST or read . . . at home! For men, too! Relax-A-cizor is great for reducing the size of his waistline and abdomen.

COLD or FLU?

Do what doctors say to do:
1. Rest.
2. Drink fluids.
3. Take aspirin for the aches and fever. You see, doctors know aspirin is the best pain reliever and the best fever fighter there is to help you through a cold or the flu. And what's the best aspirin you can buy? You know it's Bayer. Because Bayer is the only leading advertised pain reliever that makes all its own aspirin. With care and half a century of experience no one else can match. And Bayer is the only one of these pain relievers that’s 100 percent aspirin. No wonder Bayer works wonders.

LIVING WITH ART

How to collect primitive art

BY NANCY R. PIENE

Ever since I was a child, when I used to watch my father put together a small yet choice group of wood masks, shields, cult figures, ceremonial stools, and ceramics from African, Oceanian, and pre-Columbian cultures, it has seemed to me that collectors of primitive art are a uniquely enthusiastic breed. The gallery owners and private dealers who find and sell primitive sculpture and the museum curators who document and exhibit it are an obsessed lot, too. So much so, in fact, that unlike connoisseurs in many branches of art, they are democratic. If you do your homework, you are welcome into the club even if you have nothing or a few hundreds rather than thousands to spend.

One thing is sure: compared to modern and contemporary art, primitive art remains, despite recent rises, a bargain. Individual prices depend so much on quality, condition, rarity, and what may just have come on the market because an old collection was sold, that it is difficult to generalize. The range may be from $75 for a small, undistinguished carved hook from the Sepik River region in New Guinea to $50,000 for one of the six existing life-size, bead-encrusted royal figures of the Fan of Bekom, in the Cameroons. But works of excellent quality and considerable size can be obtained in the $1,000 to $5,000 range.

It is quite reasonable to begin by walking into a gallery and saying, “Look, my budget is $400 for something good. What’s available?” The enthusiasm—usually genuine—of a dealer may lead one to spend $800, but it can nearly always be paid in installments. Then as you build up a collection, perhaps specializing in the art of one tribe or region, it is more challenging to determine for yourself what is good.

In recent years, since primitive art has been recognized not only for its dramatic force but for its extraordinary quality and subtlety, there has been considerable squabbling among experts about the validity of the term “primitive.” Yet the misnomer hangs on. Usually it means the traditional art of primitive peoples before the time of continuous contact with Europeans.
The three major areas of primitive art are: Africa—chiefly the western half of black or sub-Saharan Africa; Oceania—for example, New Guinea and the islands of Melanesia and Polynesia; and North America—particularly the habitats of the Northwest Coast Indians and the Eskimo of Northern Alaska.

Usually pre-Columbian, the art produced in Mexico, Central America, and Peru before the voyages of Columbus, is categorized and collected with primitive art, too. But scholars also squabble about this. The highly sophisticated civilization of the Mayans, whose elaborately inscribed architecture rivals Egyptian accomplishments, can hardly be called primitive. Collected originally by eighteenth-century navigators and stored for decades in ethnological museums, primitive artifacts emerged as art thanks largely to Gauguin, then Kirchner, Picasso, Brancusi, and other pioneer modern artists who were fascinated by the nonnaturalistic forms. In the U.S. the status of primitive art was given a final leg up in 1957, when Governor Rockefeller founded New York’s Museum of Primitive Art at 15 West Fifty-fourth Street. Space is limited there, so in 1975 the Museum will be transferred to a new building at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Last summer’s exhibition at the Met, “Art of Oceania, Africa, and the Americas from the Museum of Primitive Art,” comprised of 1,000 pieces from the Governor’s collection, was a foretaste of the transfer. The heavily illustrated catalogue of that show is a good survey for beginning collectors.

Another excellent illustrated primer for beginners is a paperback, Primitive Art: Its Traditions and Styles by Paul Wengert (Meridian Books, $3.45). In addition to sorting out the characteristics of the art of major regions in relation to the social customs that inspired the works, this book contains a useful list of further reading.

Douglas Newton, Curator of the Museum of Primitive Art, advises beginners not only to read but also to look at originals as often as possible. In New York, in addition to the changing temporary shows at the Primitive, the best places to look are the Brooklyn Museum (particularly for African sculpture), the Museum of Natural History (for its large group of Northwest Coast Indian objects), and the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation.

Other important collections around the country include the vast Melanesian, Polynesian, and African holdings at the Chicago Art Institute, the Peabody Museum at Harvard, the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, which has great stores of American Indian material, the University of Pennsylvania Museum in Philadelphia, the Lowe Museum of Anthropology.

Dramatic changes in our world have affected manners. There is more equality between men and women, more traveling, moving, interest in other religions and customs, variety in available foods. There are more people. Money is more evenly distributed. There is less space and privacy, less service.

As a result, woman’s role today is more complicated and demanding than ever before. She needs a guide that is really modern and worthy of her, that can give her direction, acceptance, and—finally—distinction in whatever she undertakes as a wife, mother, career woman, hostess, cook, fund-raiser, tastemaker...and on...and on.

This brand new, entirely revised edition of Vogue’s Book of Etiquette and Good Manners concentrates on the attitudes and social procedures that have authentic value today, recognizing that to be worthwhile, manners must be useful and up-to-date. Notes of a happy housekeeper

BY MARY ELIZABETH FALTER

This is the season for candles, and I do love their warmth and friendliness. But none of the candles I buy ever seem to fit my candlesticks and candelabra. Some have holders too small to receive the candle (for this problem, I shave the base with a rotary potato peeler), and others are too big to hold the candle securely. I used to wrap the ends in messy strips of folded paper, but now I have a better device. At our local Candle Shop I found some candle adapters that are worth many times the twenty-five cents a box costs. These little cups of finely pleated foil about an inch deep fit over the end of a too-small candle and make it fit the holder. There is also a special adhesive that will anchor the candle to the base or can be used to stick a fat decorative candle to a saucer or plaque. Candle Shops, I've discovered, tend to be full of goodies, and they seem to be springing up all over the country.

I've just about decided that the only way to keep the refrigerator organized is to make permanent resting places inside for all the containers that are in constant use. I found a new tall one designed especially for celery and green onions and a smaller one for delicatessen dill pickles (both Freezettes made by Republic Molding Corporation). They're made of heavy, dishwasher proof plastic and match the pint- and quart-size boxes I use for leftovers. I keep them in action most of the time, but when they're empty I just wash them and put them right back in their places in the refrigerator—no hunting through the cupboard to find them or juggling things around in the refrigerator to make space for them.

Now that the panic over getting Christmas presents on their way has abated, I must call Emery Air Freight to pick up the extra clothes Mother has decided she needs in Florida. We've been using Emery for just about all our shipping during the past year—Christmas included—and with excellent results. Not only do they come to the door to pick up the shipment, they deliver to the door, and in most cases, the very next day. Emery claims to deliver anywhere in the world as fast as planes can fly, with no bogging down during the holidays. The cost is nominal if you bear in mind the great convenience, also that the bigger the shipment, the lower the proportionate cost. We even used Emery to ship our vacation luggage because we wanted to drive the little sports car instead of the station wagon. If you can't find Emery Air Freight listed in your telephone directory, chances are the main air carrier in your area will accept freight for them, since they have affiliations all over the world.

TEN YEARS AGO WE INTRODUCED THESE POTS IN RED, YELLOW AND BLUE. WE'VE JUST CHANGED THE COLORS TO RED! YELLOW! AND BLUE!

For ten years we've looked for ways to improve our famous pots. And all we could find to change was the colors. Only the pots have remained the same. There's not a curve or an edge we could change and in good conscience call an improvement. We seem to be stuck with a classic.

January, 1970. A new year, a fresh decade, bringing with it commemorative events and new concepts that will affect your living in the house and the garden.

Japan's Expo '70, opening March 15 with a panorama of diverse, avant-garde architecture and cultural exhibits—all connected, happily, by a foot-saving conveyor belt. In charge is Japan's leading architect, innovative Kenzo Tange. One highlight: the African village pavilion of umbrella-shaped tree forms unadorned with artificial leaves.

Embrandt's most significant works—sixty-nine of them—plus paintings and drawings by twenty of his followers have been gathered together by the Art Institute of Chicago in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the painter's death. You may see them at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts through February 1, then at the Detroit Institute of Arts through April 5.

your personal environment will be more and more under your control in the seventies. Ready you can clean it, scent it, regulate its temperature and humidity, reduce its more unattractive aspects. For instance...

portable air cleaner that says happily, unobtrusively, 'Hi. Smokeeter,' a plug-in, television-size friend, whisks air clean impurities. Models from $110 to $400 take care of a room or whole house. By Regal, Inc., 10 Race Street, Philadelphia.

An air scenter a foot long that renders your air absolutely perfumy. "Scentrol," a new electrically operated device from Honeywell, can be incorporated in a central system or mounted on the wall, contains a fan that distributes a chemical counter-actant to kill odor particles before they can annoy. With mint, orange blossom, floral bouquet, or mountain air scents, it costs $49.95 plus installation.

Acoustical perfume—the pleasant sound that drowns out unpleasant noise—now comes on a record called "Environments." On one side, the soothing roar of "The Psychologically Ultimate Seashore," on the other, the lulling twitter of "The Optimum Aviary," both playable at any speed. By Syntonic Research, $5.95 at your local record shop.

A sociable thermostat that can go wherever you go about the house because it's wireless. "SpaceTemp 100" is as big as your hand, makes you comfortable by sending electronic signals to a receiver attached to your furnace. About $90, by Kimco Labs, 5721 Eighteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, New York.

Putting down trash is the specialty of the Trash Masher, an electric compression device small enough to fit under a kitchen counter. In four minutes, it reduces the contents of four garbage cans to one, sprays them with an odor preventative. About $230, by Whirlpool, 460 West Thirty-Fourth Street, New York.

The calliroscope picture—a new union of art and technology. Brainchild of Paul Matisse, grandson of the famous painter, the calliroscope picture, framed and matted, resembles a painting, contains a pearly, crystalline liquid that transforms heat and movement into constantly changing patterns of light and shadow. In a choice of six colors, a 3-by-5-inch pocket viewer goes for $15, the stand for $10; a new 5-by-7-inch model will cost $50. At Brennato's stores across the country.

Pour it as you like it, the newest seamless flooring. You can have just about any color you want and a wide choice of marbleized or confetti designs. The prices are about the same as for good vinyl flooring, and the name is Desert Marble, by Research Labs, 2145 South Grand Avenue, Santa Ana, Calif.

Tabletops...an idea so fresh it comes from Quadrille, a small showroom in a brownstone at 720 East Fifty-first Street, New York. Off-beat color combinations, including almost sublime white-on-white and black-on-black, and unexpected design coordinates are what make Quadrille's creations special.
DECORATING IDEAS to make the most of your house

As one interior designer has put it so aptly, today everything “up tight” is literally out of sight—that is to say, fading fast from the scene. In sight is the relaxed, less rigid look in decorating, the no-holds-barred attitude toward mixing contemporary with traditional. Now you can try anything. Experiment with opposites: soft leathers with hard shiny metals, nubby textures with velvety surfaces, blaring colors with barely-there colors. Try using light to create a dark, rich room. Or compose a room like a painting. You’ll find these ideas and many more in the rooms full of decorating looks we love on the next seven pages. With all this new freedom of thought and the enormous wealth of things to carry it out comes the pleasant obligation of thinking for yourself. For you who are ready for a change, who want to make a personal statement, we have just two words: read on!

Living with the things you love... the flavor of an English country house in a New York brownstone... all put together by a collecting designer, Mario Buatta, in the sitting room in which he receives his clients. An eighteenth-century blue-and-white porcelain collection on shelves makes a pattern on glazed yellow walls. One-of-a-kind antiques mix happily with porcelain; bumpy cotton with striped sateen, glazed chintz, velvet. Together, the elements—put together by a man with his own idea of assembling furniture and objects—make a very personal statement.

Above: A dark, rich room that invites ease and pleasure, an environment that transcends tradition reveals this bright concept: decorating with light. Lamps, strategically placed in the dark, play on kinetic light sculptures; terra-cotta-lacquered tables connect magenta-covered banquettes to form an accommodating square. On tabletops, chunky collections of crystal shapes gleam like stalagmites in a cavern. By interior designer Barbara D'Arcy, at Bloomingdale's.

Opposite page: Silver, wrapping up a room like a shiny, new space-age present. Inside, interior designer Dennis Brockman has placed oversize furniture here and there like sculpture, covered in the natural suedes and velours, soft against more of silver's harder relatives: a chrome-and-leather chair by Marcel Breuer, plexiglass table-stools, a white sculpture of a table. All against brown carpeting.

The signature of interior designer David Hicks, muted for serenity's sake in a white bedroom that lets the big, beautiful bed predominate, permits the opposing textures of whipped-cream-rich embossed cotton and icy-white glazed tile floor.

Right: The same designer's feeling for graphics, strong and fully awake in the living area, shows in the use of bold geometric fabrics. Giving them full play, the neutral sensuality of brown tones in fur rugs and cork walls, in buttery leather-and-chrome chairs shaped in squasy squares. Over the fireplace—whose blue stone frame intrudes as a sudden, pleasing shock—hangs an oil by English artist John Rudge.

The overscaled, patterned ceiling brings drama to a large space and provides the exhilarating contrast of antiques in a graphic modern setting. Like chessmen carefully placed on a giant board: French Provincial cane dining chairs with brown alligator seats; two separate dining tables; a stone sculpture from Central America; a wallful of Goya bullfight engravings. Little else was needed in this large dining room in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ruttenberg to set off the strong checkerboard of charcoal gray and white wood over walls and ceiling—footnoted by a highly waxed, dark parquet floor.

A few bold brush strokes of color in an almost achromatic setting can create a room with the clarity of a modern painting. In designer Yann Weymouth's New York living room, the composition is straightforward and linear: massive, puffy banquets and sofas enclosed in shiny white-lacquered frames. Slashed against the white background—the snap of blue corduroy covers, the sun yellow of curtains. Tall greens are reminders of the outdoors. Painting, Helen Frankenthaler.

How architect and owner create
THE PERSONAL HOUSE

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cooper, the young parents of four daughters, are avid travelers, but their adventurous summer house on Cape Cod (pages 66-67) is constantly drawing them home. Says Mrs. Cooper: “Now that the girls are all in their teens, we wanted them to have a house that was fun. We like to move.

The architectural team of Gwathmey and Henderson, whose houses have won several architectural awards, explain their thinking in designing the Coopers’ house: “Principally, our idea was to make the very most of the incredible site—a rounded promontory jutting out into the bay. You’re

A sculptress herself, Mrs. June Foster Hass worked so closely with her architect that her house of curved walls and pointed arches overlooking the Pacific (pages 68-69) actually assumed the nature of sculpture. “I didn’t want a house of sticks that would rattle in the wind,” she says. “I wanted

The slow process of building on a precipitous site induced architect Mark Mills to design Mrs. Hass’s house for Gunite construction rather than stones and mortar. “With labor costs as they are,” he explains, “you can’t have men piling up stone and fussing with rounded corners. The basic design of the house

Today, houses are self-conscious.
ARCHITECT PETER WINKELSTEIN, of the firm of Marquis and Stoller, who was in charge of building and planning this house, explains that the family wanted it to look as unpretentious as possible. "It's their style to underplay and moderate," he says, "and the other houses on the block were small. Our only dispute was about placing the windows. They felt the view demanded total exposure. Our point was that if the view were wall-to-wall, it would soon seem commonplace. Now they're glad that the windows each frame a different vista. At some time during the day, direct sunlight comes into every room. Yet when the estimates started to come in, the rolling skylight in the roof of the courtyard was almost vetoed. The extra ventilation it supplies is helpful in keeping the very sunny house from getting too hot. The court is a natural sound amplifier—the family always has music playing and it is carried everywhere."

ARCHITECT WILLIAM TURNBULL, JR., of MLTW/Moore, Turnbull, outlines the design strategy: "The site was very steep, very small, triangular piece of land. With setback restrictions and other requirements there wasn't much land left for a house. To take advantage of the views of woodland canyons with Monterey Bay in the distance, we had to build up instead of building out horizontally. Then we had to put this height to good use inside the house by designing varied window openings at varied levels. Everything was done to expand the modest interior space visually. Apertures in interior walls lead the eye from area to area. All-white walls and a mirrored wall in the hall also make the rooms seem twice as grand. Large windows, slits of glass, and skylights (they roof the stair hall) add outdoor space to increase the illusion. The living room seems sky-high."

ARCHITECT I. W. COLBURN, who designed the glass pavilion, explains how the site inspired him: "It is my feeling that a pine grove is peculiarly characteristic of New England, extreme in light and shadow, and the most formal expression nature has produced. The house should be formal, too, yet be open to the pines' various moods. To my way of thinking, structure should always be expressed in strict geometric patterns. But to make a house significant, after you solve its function and economics, you get on with an expression of atmosphere—the character and personality of the owner. In this case, the family had a large collection of family treasures, which I felt should be housed in a timeless way. So the house is an effort to combine formal large-scale structure with the more intimate character of cherished family possessions."
Sheathed in cedar that creates a ruggedly casual air indoors and bleaches more silvery outdoors with each season, the Kenneth Coopers' summer house on Cape Cod is almost as much glass as wood, as much circle as square. The architects, Charles Gwathmey and Richard Henderson, achieved living spaces of great style and excitement by basing their design on the cylinder and the cube. At the back of the house, two curved sections face the ocean: on one side, the dining room topped by the master bedroom deck and on the other, a half-round extension of the main deck. Top left: At the entrance, a silo shape by the bridge contains a three-story spiral staircase. Center left: Two-story living room has glass wall facing sea. Left: Dining room's curved window is at eye level of seated diners.
2. Live-in Sculpture
For her house/studio that perches on a wild and windy ledge on the Pacific at Carmel, Calif., artist June Foster Hass had so many—and often contradictory—requirements that its shape became a free-form sculpture. She asked for a snug stone fortress on a wood budget. She asked for lots of light. She wanted to look up at sunset skies, out to the crashing surf, and down to tidal pools. Architect Mark Mills shaped her a sculpture the size of a house. He provided light and views with glass bays and skylights. He achieved a structure with the sense and strength of stone but without its cost by spraying a 3-inch shell of Gunite (a cement mix) on elastomeric webbing stretched over insulation—in much the same way swimming pools are built. A coating containing coarsely ground walnut shells was tossed on for texture. Opposite page, top: Pointed arches extend like sheltering eyebrows over the gently bayed windows. Below: The study's down-slanted window above the sea recalls one in Captain Nemo's Nautilus.
In a quest for light and to make the most of a spectacular San Francisco view, the architectural firm of Marquis and Stoller designed a hillside house for a family of five that stacks many levels for living around a central court topped by an automatic rolling skylight. The redwood house, screened by a wall at the end of a cul-de-sac street, has a brick-paved front play area for the young children. Inside, there is always a view—either out to the Mediterranean whiteness of the cityscape or inward to the lush semitropical foliage of the garden. Stairs to link the seven levels stitch back and forth across the house-high, light-flooded shaft of the central core. Opposite page: The music end of the living room; the dining room, seven steps higher; the balcony study on the master bedroom level. Above that are children's bedrooms; below the living room is space for a future room, below the dining room is a guest room.
To link the two simple, straightforward brick wings of the house he designed for a family of five in Massachusetts, architect I. W. Golbin arched between them a center pavilion of glassed-in ceiling vaults that send the spirit and the eye soaring. The rounded arches, sheathed in strips of pale fir, canopy the generous brick-paved living and dining areas, which are separated only by a free-standing, 6-foot-high partition that holds bar, silver, and china. Antique Spanish doors and a copper clad roof—just beginning to acquire verdigris—relate the modern structure to the family’s traditional furniture. Opposite page, top: At night, when warm lights glow through the great expanses of glass, and the graceful roof seems to be floating over the house, you remember that pavilion is derived from the French word for butterfly. The open terrace also emphasizes the al fresco nature of the house.

BUILD COLOR AND PATTERN INTO THE HOUSE
Rosemary Gilman of Gilman & Brown: "A pretty mix of tiny patterns and fresh colors gives a very young look to a traditional room."

Intermingled in a ruffled pillow-on-pillow concoction are Cannon's "Cameo Rose" floral, stripes, and solids, in combinations of pinks, blues, and white. The top sheet has a ruffle made from "Cameo Rose."

Ideas and things with DECORATING ZEST

Furniture is on a vibrant new wavelength. Tables are sculptured, lamps molded, chairs inflated, extruded, and stuffed into wonderful new shapes that inspire the human eye, coddle the human form. Sofas and shelves that once stood alone are massing into modular teams and built-ins that create nonstop comfort and miles of new space. Pattern goes supernova, exploding on painted chests, floors, and ceilings as often as on upholstered chairs. Textures were never so sensuous: the slick of old lacquer and new plastics, the nubble of nailheads and tufted leathers, the iciness of mirror and metallic fabrics, the warmth of suede and fun. Here and on the pages that follow, furniture and decorating ideas that combine into some of the great looks you saw on the preceding pages. According to the dosage, one or more of them, added to your present arrangement, can add a bit of pepper or zip it up like a bolt from the moon.

A whole new concept of living

THE SUPER BATH-BEDROOM

In just about the same square footage usually devoted to a master bedroom and its bath, dressing room, and closets, House & Garden has planned a new kind of room for round-the-clock comfort and privacy. Built for us by American-Standard, it is called the Super Bath—actually a bath with bedroom, rather than a bedroom with bath. In it are the newest bathtub made in the United States; a wealth of closets; equipment for exercise and beauty care; three private compartments—two for toilets, one for a bidet; and a king-size shower stall with its own steam bath. Of the wide-open sweep of space, less than half is given to the bedroom area—but with no scrimping on comfort. The rest of the room houses all the brand-new equipment and accessories that make feeling great and looking beautiful not only a pleasure, but easy. In no way, however, is the Super Bath clinical or laboratory-like. It glitters with mirrors that create endless "horizons" and reflect over and over again the wallpaper's geometric motifs—very contemporary, but printed, romantically, in subtle shades of apricot and lavender on a shiny white background. (Continued)

In the Super Bath (see plan, left), almost half the space is devoted to the bedroom area. Beyond it, the left-hand section of the bath area is masculine, the right-hand section, feminine. Across the back are three compartments—two for toilets, one for a bidet. Forming a central "wall" are the shower stall and American-Standard's Ultra Bath, right, with its Ultra Tower—a control that sets water temperature, shuts water off when tub is filled, runs water massager. Mirrors by PPG Industries; bi-fold doors by U. S. Plywood. Alexander Smith carpet of "Source" fiber by Allied Chemical. In the air, a scent—Xanadu by Fabergé.
In the sleeping area, above, an antique wrought-iron bed from Essex Gumming, piled with a battery of pillows and flanked by night tables, forms an island of comfort. Floralizers by Smith and Weigler were added to Springmaid sheets, covers, and towels. Floor is paved by a new ceramic tile American Olean. Toilet and bidet are in separate compartments, on the floor, Borg’s two-pound portable scale, masol’s steam bath-shower, far right, with doors by Alcoa Aluminum, produces steam scented with Xanadu.

More storage, more work space, in an efficient new kitchen created around a new piece of “furniture”—the kitchen locker

To prove how efficient a kitchen can be, House & Garden asked a group of important makers of equipment and materials to join in the presentation of a kitchen planned around a new locker. The basic locker, our design, right, is almost floor-to-ceiling—7 feet high, 3 feet wide, 15 inches deep—and so carefully planned that all kinds of utensils, china, glass, silver, and food supplies can be stored in it in different ways. The secret of this flexibility is the way the locker can be arranged to meet a variety of requirements with four different kinds of storage accessories. In the unit shown here: 1. At top, three U-shaped shelves to be used for glassware or canned goods—everything in front, no reaching behind for things you can’t see. 2. A chrome bar with metal hooks for pots and skillets. 3. A work shelf with its own drawer suitable for linen or silver, other small items. 4. A straight shelf the width of the unit to hold plates and platters.

Each locker can be outfitted with a few or as many of these rods, shelves, or drawers as needed; all surfaces, inside and out, are covered in Formica (the Super Kitchen units were all built by the Formica Corporation). The kitchen was planned around ten of these lockers for maximal storage, plus lots of walk-around space for a kitchen two people can work in together with everything in the right place for the kind of work they want to do. For example: In the plan, right, traffic revolves around an island work center. On right-hand side, a three-compartment Elkay sink with Delta faucet and In-Sink-Erator garbage disposal. Next to it, a Maytag dishwasher. Opposite sink, a Caloric gas range with self-cleaning oven. Near it, an extra water faucet to use without walking around the island to the sink. At far end, a chopping block. All lockers flanking the island house the kind of utensils, food, china, appropriate to the spot each locker occupies. For instance: Behind sink and dishwasher, lockers hold all the glass, china, and silver for both kitchen and dining room use. On the range side, most of the units store dry and canned foods as well as cooking utensils. And at the chopping block end, a wall of closets (not lockers) has been built as deep as an Amana refrigerator-freezer. In this wall, there is a closet for a Ronson food-preparation center, another for electric appliances. On the ceiling, paint by Tru-Test; on the floor, Armstrong vinyl that looks like Spanish tiles.
SUPER KITCHEN KEYED TO COLOR

Lockers opposite the work island’s cooking center, above and below, are lined with House & Garden’s Bittersweet—a vivid background for food, pots, and pans and a signal that they go here, nothing else. Each locker has its own special combination of U-shaped and straight across shelves and rods arranged so that every inch of space is used without stacking or crowding.
The personal garden of Margaret Willaumez

A MINIATURE HILLSIDE GARDEN

Flowers envelop a small whitewashed house built on three levels overlooking the sea. Left, the gardener herself at the doorway of the guest room on the first level.

Opposite page, baskets and tubs of flowers on the sunning terrace on the second level where a table and tray are set for lunch. On the next two pages, how beautifully her garden grows on limited time and land.
"From my topmost terrace I can look down and see the flower of the moment and always the morning-glory blue of the sea."

The garden at Margaret Willaumez's holiday house in Capri is minute—she has less than a quarter of an acre on a steep hillside. But the flowers blooming along a winding path and on three small terraces keep her house brimming with color throughout three seasons. The profusion, paradoxically, is rather more English than Italian. "It's a sloppy garden, but delicious," says Countess Willaumez. "Every inch has to count. I can't afford to have any plants that don't look like much when they're resting. But it is really a cutting garden, not a show garden. Cutting just happens to work out well because the more you cut the more you get."

From October to May when she is in New York or wherever her work as an interior designer takes her, she sends seed packets with letters asking that the boy who helps her please plant everything for next spring planning. "I may be lazy, but I was brought up in Italy and I know Italians take flowers so for granted—geraniums grow there like weeds. If I send seeds, he assumes I've taken a lot of trouble and spent a lot of money and he's sure to put them in the earth."

Arriving in May, she finds sweet peas, pansies, nasturtiums, calendula, larkspur, flax, pink. "I just go wild and start picking for my house and to send to neighbors." The trees are flourishing, too—orange, lemon, olive, oleander, mimosa, and two potted kumquats. She puts seeds in pots for summer flowers and by late June fills the borders with marigolds and zinnias—"soon as tall as I am, and I'm almost 6 feet." The whitewashed walls of her house are ablaze with bougainvillea, pink bignonia, hoya, hibiscus, wild climbing roses, six varieties of morning-glory, a moon vine, and on the middle dining terrace, fragrant night-blooming jasmine "so rich you'd run a mile if anyone wore it behind her ears." Under the pagliarella, an Italian reed awning that casts enchanting shadows, potted begonias, gloxinia, and primula bloom all summer.

As you walk up the path from the guest room to the middle terrace, you pass a natural rock formation with a pond. This is the flower arranging center where cut flowers are plunked in with the goldfish to await a vase from a nearby niche. Countess Willaumez takes care of cut flowers the way most people fuss only over plants—fresh water every day and a snip off each stem to keep them healthy. "Even if all its chums are gone, I will never throw away a live flower. I can't. I just find a place for it."

1. By a welcoming doorway, a streak of lilies and a pair of flower-furred cats. 2. Vases on a Florentine credenza and on the floor by a Ligurian iron bed. 3. Flower-filled dressing area—subject of the painting over living-room mantel (7). 4. Banking the window between terrace and living room, lobelias and begonias. 5. Geraniums on terrace where Moppet awaits lift to the beach in a basket. 6. Straw hats blooming on nails above pots on benches and floor. 7. Flowers real and painted on mantel and floor of living room. 8. Through the open door of the guest room, an inviting glimpse of a flowery path.

For calorie counters:

diet drinks

For those times when you're striving to keep on the diet rails but you would be an oddity without a glass in your hand, here is a choice of drinks that sip smoothly without swallowing up too many calories.

Bouillon on the rocks. Pour beef bouillon over ice and season with lots of lemon juice and a dash of Worcestershire.

Season clam broth with lemon juice, celery salt, and a dash of Tabasco. Serve on ice.

Combine, equally, clam and tomato juice. Season with salt or soy sauce and freshly ground black pepper, celery salt, lemon juice, and Tabasco.

Sip a sparkling Perrier water (James Beard calls it the champagne of dieters) with a lemon slice, or pep up with a dash of syrup of grenadine or cassis, and ice. Lemon juice and soda on the rocks is tangy with a dash of angostura bitters.

Try spiced iced tea; or sassafras tea, hot.

A cocktail isn't taboo if you choose from these low-calorie drinks that won't cut into your daily allowance too heavily. Light combinations of white wine and soda are good—spirits, too, if the shot is very modest.

Spritzer—the Rhine wine highball—2 ounces of dry white wine (approximately 40 calories) added to 2 ounces of charged water and a twist of lemon, on ice.

Pour 1 ounce of brandy over ice and dose with soda.

Make a Scotch, Bourbon, vodka or gin drink with ½ ounce spirits (100 proof alcohol has 100 calories an ounce: 86 proof spirits, 86 calories, etc.). Add soda and ice.

Peel a pear and soak it in white wine—drink the wine as an aperitif; eat the pear for dessert.

Simulate a lillet with 2 ounces of dry white Bordeaux, a dash of lemon or orange, grated peel and a squirt of seltzer.

A soda Campari—splash a little Campari over ice cubes, add a twist of lemon and soda for a cocktail with a blush and a tang.

Pour just 2 ounces of dry vermouth (approximately 50 calories) over plenty of ice. Add a twist of lemon. Or mix a tomato vermouth (4 oz. tomato juice, 25 calories, 2 oz. dry vermouth, twist of lemon).

Splash a dry white wine such as a Graves (2 ounces—approx. 40 calories) on the rocks with a dash of cherry essence or the juice of canned or frozen cherries.

Make a low-calorie (1 cup: 100 calories) spiced cider. Heat 1 quart of natural, unsweetened cider in a heavy saucepan with 1 cinnamon stick or ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, 4 or 5 cloves, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, a pinch of mace, and 4 or 5 thin slices of lemon. Simmer for ½ hour. For nondieters add a jigger of dark rum per glass.
Two great new reducing diets by two great doctors

Expert opinion on the wisest, safest, most effective diet for losing weight is currently divided between two schools—the Low Calorie and the High Protein. House & Garden has asked an eminent representative of each—Dr. Fredric J. Stare of Harvard and Dr. Edgar S. Gordon of the University of Wisconsin—to draw up specifications for the particular type of diet he advocates. On the basis of their recommendations, we have planned for each diet a week's menus that would add variety and zest to the paring down process, with recipes that might entice even those who have no need to lose an ounce. Which diet will work for you depends on your personal psychology. If you find it easy to be resolute about small helpings but difficult to forswear snacks and/or ice cream, you'll probably be more comfortable with Dr. Stare's Low Calorie diet. But if you suffer pangs of hunger the minute you start to cut down and cannot seem to live through the afternoon without a snack, you're more likely to be faithful to Dr. Gordon's High Protein regime. If you cannot decide which diet would be easier for you to stick to, show them both to your doctor, who would certainly be the best judge of the diet that is right for you as well as of whether you should diet at all and for how long.

The principle “Cutting up and cutting down instead of cutting out is the way to control weight,” says Dr. Stare. By “cutting up” he means using your muscles with frequency and moderation. He sums up his advice in five words, “Exercise more and eat less”—then calls attention to the fact that he puts exercise first.

“That we all need to exercise more is indisputable,” he says. “It is essential for those who want to lose excess pounds. Exercise facilitates the use of the stored caloric sources (that is, fat) by creating greater caloric demands. At the same time the body is demanding a larger amount of calories, the overweight person should eat less in order to cause his body to draw on more of the stored fat and hence bring about a loss of weight. Primarily, eating less means cutting down on portion sizes and second helpings. But this advice applies only to those who are eating a sufficient variety of food to insure good nutrition—that is, an adequate supply of proteins, vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates, and fats. We eat and need far more than calories alone.

As you might expect, “eating less,” in Dr. Stare’s book, especially implies eating less of the most concentrated caloric sources—pastry, desserts, candy, snack foods, sweetened beverages, and alcoholic beverages. But he does not object to the dieter’s substituting an occasional dessert—unfrosted cake or ice cream—for part of the daily requirements of bread (or other starch) and fat.

The guidelines he gave House & Garden are designed to supply adequate nutrition at caloric levels of 1,000-1,200 calories for women (about 800-1,000 less than the average woman ordinarily eats) and 1,400-1,600 calories for men (about 1,200-1,400 less than the average man ordinarily eats). This should lead to a weekly weight loss of 1 to 1 1/2 pounds. But the rate could be stepped up to 2 pounds by taking more exercise.

Meat—would include fish; poultry; lean, trimmed cuts of beef, veal, lamb, or pork; cheese; eggs. No fat should be added in cooking.

Vegetables—of the dark green or dark yellow variety should be included daily.

Fruits—vary widely in carbohydrate content, and servings should vary accordingly. Fresh fruit should be used whenever possible. (The syrup added in canned fruits will approximately double the caloric content.)

Bread group includes cereal, crackers, potatoes, and other starchy vegetables. Each of the following equals one serving: 1/4 cup corn; 1/2 cup dry beans and peas; 1/4 cup baked beans; graham crackers; 5 saltines.

Fat—may be butter or margarine—1 teaspoon per serving; 1 tablespoon of salad dressing or oil; or 1 slice of bacon; or 1 tablespoon of cream.
One week's menus

If you're dieting solo, you'll find that most dishes on these menus can be prepared in single servings. For family meals the menus would be perfectly adequate with the addition, for the nondiet t, of potatoes or some other vegetable, bread and butter, and perhaps a richer dessert. Numbers in parentheses beside each dish indicate approximate number of calories. If there are any items on the menu that you particularly dislike or have difficulty obtaining in your locality, substitute something else that will meet Dr. Stare's specifications, opposite page.

The High Protein Diet

based on the recommendations of Edgar S. Gordon, M.D.,
Professor of Medicine, University of Wisconsin Medical Center

The principle

"Cutting down on calories," says Dr. Gordon, "is only one and possibly not the most important way to reduce weight." Dieting always brings up the problem of hunger, he points out, but how hungry you feel depends on the relative restrictions of protein, carbohydrate, and fat. "A diet relatively high in carbohydrate or in fats tends to stimulate hunger very quickly after a brief sensation of satiety. A high protein diet, on the other hand, has three valuable attributes: 1. It can be made very palatable. 2. It has high satiety value, meaning that it satisfies the sense of hunger longer; it 'sticks to the ribs.' Small supplementary protein snacks at midnight, midafternoon, and bedtime literally keep you digesting protein almost continuously and greatly increase the satiety value.

3. Protein food has a high specific dynamic action—that is, it costs more calories to digest and use so that, in effect, a certain amount of the food energy is wasted as heat and is, therefore, unavailable for filling energy needs or for storage as fat.

On the basis of research findings, Dr. Gordon recommends to House & Garden a high-protein diet that provides 105 grams of protein, 65 grams of carbohydrate, and 50 grams of fat, for a total of about 1100 calories daily. It is nutritionally adequate and almost never attended by hunger, he says, and it may be expected to produce a weekly loss of between 2 and 2 1/2 pounds.

According to Dr. Gordon, the size of the portions is of vital importance to the effectiveness of the high-protein diet, so in many cases we have indicated the proper amounts on the menus. When not indicated there, you will find them in the lists of vegetables and fruits on page 104. Meat portions refer to cooked weight. Lacking a kitchen scale, you can judge according to the following rule of thumb: a 3-ounce portion of meat is approximately equal to 1/4 of a 2-3 pound chicken; 1/4-cup diced chicken; two 4-by-2-by-1/4 inch slices of any roasted meat; one medium loin chop 3/4 inch thick; a 1/2-inch-thick beef patty 3 inches in diameter; a 4-by-2-by-1/2-inch piece of steak or fish. When meat is stipulated for a between-meal snack, it might consist of some left over from a previous meal, or of beef balls tartare, which can be made up in medium quantity for just this purpose. If there are any items on the menus that you particularly dislike or have difficulty obtaining in your locality, substitute something else that will meet Dr. Gordon’s specifications.

Recipes

Artichoke Stuffed with Shrimp

1 artichoke, cooked
6-8 shrimp, cooked
Chopped celery
1 tablespoon herb mayonnaise
(recipe opposite, plus 1 teaspoon minced parsley and 1 teaspoon minced herbs [tarragon, dill, chervil] or 1/2 teaspoon dried herbs)

Carefully pull apart artichoke leaves and scoop out choke with a teaspoon. Mix shrimp with celery and mustard herb sauce, and fill artichoke with mixture. Serves 1.

Orange Roasted Game Hen or Chicken

2 game hens 1/2 pounds each or 1 chicken, 3/4 pounds
5 tablespoons minced green onions
1 cup fresh or canned unsweetened orange juice
1/3 teaspoon rosemary
1 tablespoon grated orange zest
Salt and freshly ground pepper

Preheat oven to 300°. Wash and dry hens or chicken. Place in a shallow oven-proof caserole and sprinkle with the onions, rosemary, orange zest, salt, and pepper. Baste frequently with the orange juice for about 1 hour or until the hens or chicken are brown. Garnish with watercress and fresh or orange sections. Serves 4.

Orange Ice

1 can frozen unsweetened orange juice concentrate 2 cups water

Mix together orange juice and water and freeze in ice tray. When frozen shave into slivers. Serves 4.

James Beard’s Garlic Hamburger

1 clove garlic for each pound
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
1 pound ground sirloin

Mince the garlic and combine with salt, pepper, and Tabasco. Form meat into cakes about 1 inch thick, and press cakes to desired doneness. Serves 4.

Alex Hawkes’s Zucchini à la Maude

Halve zucchini lengthwise and cook covered in beef bouillon flavored with lemon juice, Tabasco, and oregano until tender, about 10 minutes, over medium heat. Drain well, place in oven-proof baking dish, and sprinkle with a little freshly grated Parmesan cheese, run under broiler for 1 or 2 minutes.

Low-Calorie Mayonnaise

1 egg yolk
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
Dash cayenne
1 tablespoon vinegar
3/4 cup oil

Beat egg yolks and stir in seasonings and vinegar. Continue beating while adding oil 1 drop at a time. Mixture will thicken as oil is added. Chill until ready to serve. To reduce calorie count, heat in an equal amount of skim milk just before spooning over salad. Makes about 1 cup; 1 tablespoon = 112 calories. Diluted with an equal amount of skim milk, 1 tablespoon = 59 calories.

Diet tips

Diet time is no time to stint on the food budget. When you’re rationing yourself on quantity don’t skimp on quality. Pick the fanciest fruits and vegetables you can find on the market—the freshest seafood, the best cuts of meat. It will pay off by keeping your spirits higher.

The toughest hurdle in dieting is curbing your appetite. It helps to eat very slowly, take smaller bites, chew thoroughly.

The appearance of diet food is very important. Imitate the Japanese who have mastered the art of presenting small helpings attractively and imaginatively, to be enjoyed first with the eyes, then with the taste buds.

If you are following Dr. Gordon’s high-protein diet, the following seasonings or accompaniments will give you a little more variety: clear fat-free broth or bouillon; dill pickles or sour pickles; lemon juice; prepared mustard; vinegar; coffee and tea.

For those moments when you have an overwhelming urge to raid the refrigerator, stock up on raw vegetables. Celery and radishes are excellent midnight snacks because the energetic chewing burns up calories, too. Asparagus and cauliflower, raw turnips, and green peppers are also good.

Keep a chilled cooked artichoke in the refrigerator, and dip the leaves in mustard and lemon juice.

Raw vegetables are improved if they are soaked in salted water for an hour or two, then patted dry and chilled in plastic wrap. Nibble them with the addition of a little coarse salt and freshly milled pepper.

For an evening snack, celery with a dab of Gorgonzola or cottage cheese; a pickled beet with a dollop of Roquefort cheese; sliced tongue or very finely sliced ham wrapping a dill pickle.

Hors d’oeuvres traditionally weaken the dieter’s resolve, but here are some good party nibbles that are low in calories, high in nutrition: Spear chunks of smoked sturgeon, swordfish, herring, eel with cocktail picks, or season chunks of cooked lobster or shrimp with coarse salt, freshly ground pepper, lemon juice and chopped chives.

Serve smoked salmon on rounds of cucumber with capers or prosciutto or sliced ham around a sour gherkin.

Top radish flowerets with a dot of soft cheese or top a cube of Feta cheese with a black olive.

Roll pimiento strips inside thin salami slices, or roll salami around pickled onions, cauliflower flowerets, cucumber chunks, or bread and butter pickles. Secure with a pick.

Raw vegetables: Cut cucumbers in strips lengthwise and soak in ice water with mint. Slice zucchini thinly and sprinkle with seasoning salt.

Chilled cooked artichoke leaves, sliced raw, sour cream, dill, fennel, tomatoes, carrots, and raw mushrooms can be served the same way—or with a low-calorie dip of soy sauce, wine vinegar with hot mustard, and crushed pepper.
Recipes

Jellied Watercress and Radish Soup

- 1 cup canned jellied consommé
- 2 tablespoons lime or lemon juice
- 3 cups watercress leaves
- 1 cup radishes, sliced
- 1 chopped chives
- 1 hard-cooked egg white

Mash in a blender half the jellied consommé, watercress leaves, and radishes. Fold in the remaining consommé, lime juice and chill. Serve jellied, garnished with chopped chives and grated hard-cooked egg white. Serves 4-6.

Cold Roast Beef Salad

- 3 tablespoons hot mustard
- 1 teaspoon dried tarragon
- 1 tablespoon oil and vinegar dressing
- 1 ounce cold roast beef, sliced
- 1 cup cold cooked green beans
- 1 small tomato, quartered
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 3 Bibb or Boston lettuce leaves

Mix the mustard and tarragon into the dressing, and toss with the roast beef and green beans. Marinate ½ hour, then mix in tomatoes and parsley; serve on lettuce. Serves 1.

Egg Yolk Dressing

- 1 hard-cooked egg yolk (use white in salad)
- 3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- Pinch each of dried dill and basil
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard

Mash the egg yolk thoroughly or put it through a sieve. Mix well with the vinegar, salt, pepper to taste, dill, basil, and mustard. Makes dressing for 1 salad.

This could also be made with a raw egg yolk. Beat the vinegar into the lightly beaten yolk, and then mix in the seasonings.

Oatmeal Cookies

- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons soft butter
- ¼ cup finely packed brown sugar
- ¼ cup buttermilk
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 5 tablespoons honey
- 1½ cups quick cooking rolled oats
- 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts

Beat together the egg, butter, brown sugar, and buttermilk until thoroughly blended. Sift flour with baking soda and salt. Add to the butter mixture with honey. Fold in the rolled oats and chopped nuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated oven (375°) for about 10 minutes, until delightfully brown. Makes about 4 dozen. Calories per cookie: 30. In the freezer these cookies will keep for several months.

Oeuf en gelée

- 1½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin
- 3 cups well-seasoned chicken stock
- 12 tarragon leaves, fresh or preserved in vinegar
- 6 tablespoons finely chopped ham
- 6 chilled poached eggs

Lettuce

Soften the gelatin in half cup of the chicken stock. Put over low heat and stir to dissolve. Stir in remaining stock. Set aside to cool. Pour ¼ inch jelly in the bottom of 6 round or oval molds of ½ cup capacity, and refrigerate until set, about 30 minutes. Chill remaining gelatin until almost set. Drop tarragon leaves in boiling water for 30 seconds, plunge into cold water, dry, and chill. Dip in almost set jelly, and arrange in a cross on the jelly in the bottom of each mold. Sprinkle minced ham on top, pour in a little more jelly, and chill until set. Place an egg in each mold. Pour in remaining jelly to cover. Chill until well set, about 1 hour. To serve, dip each mold in hot water 3-4 seconds, unmold on lettuce on a chilled serving plate. Serves 6.
1. On the back wall of the super kitchen, a pair of closets, over twice as deep as the lockers, have extra-deep, built-in countertops, are closed off with folding doors. At bottom of left-hand closet are 24-inch-deep shelves for extra big items: above countertop, 15-inch-deep shelves for small appliances. A row of electrical outlets permits more than one to be used at a time. Right-hand closet is 3-feet-wide. Centered below its countertop is a cabinet housing Ronson's built-in food-preparation center. On either side, space for trays and cookie sheets.

2. Wonderful kitchen helper: an instant hot-water dispenser for soup or tea. National by Hobart. 3. Revere's copper crêpe pan with flame stand sits in appliance closet. 4. Tin mold holds a quart of anything delicious. 5. Pulled out from its cabinet, Ronson's food-preparation center with many attachments including mixer, grinder, knife sharpener, slicer/shredder, ice crusher, coffee mill, fruit juicer. 6. Presto's deep fat fryer. 7. Salton's brand new egg cooker.

at Berkeley, and the Wellemce Collection of African Art at the University of California at Los Angeles. Recently U.C.L.A. began publishing "African Arts," the only magazine in the field.

Like almost all kinds of art, primitive art has its fakes. There are numerous horror stories about the proliferation of fakes on the market today. My favorite comes from a dealer, who told me of a warehouse he saw in the Western Sudan that contained—impossibly—40,000 of the graceful and popular "antelope" headgear formerly worn by the Bambara tribe at its agricultural dances.

Many people learn to distinguish the real thing from both airport tourist curios and pieces made long after a tribe had been exposed to European culture by checking items like the following. Does the wood patina on a figure appear to come from oil, smoke and handling, or is it shoe polish that scratches off? Does a mask have "sweat marks" on the inside from being worn in a ritual dance? Does the handle of a carved spoon appear used? Does the bottom of a bowl or stool look vaguely shiny?

Ceramic pieces are nearly all restored in part, and the extent of restoration (over 50 percent shakes the value of a work) can be determined by ultraviolet light, however clever the job. Although museums rarely have the time to authenticate work for collectors, there are portable ultraviolet sets that can be used at home. But by far the best way to distinguish real from recently made, curators and dealers agree, is to develop an eye for the styles of a region or tribe by looking and more looking.

In addition to the museums, galleries, of course, are good places to look as well as to buy. Until you are an expert, auction sales—unless the catalogues indicate they are of famous collections—may be an unwise bet. In New York there are about twenty-five reputable galleries that deal in primitive art. The undisputed dean, who also exhibits antiquities, is John J. Klejman, 982 Madison Avenue. Mr. Klejman is such a connoisseur that he is perhaps an exception to the just-walk-in rule. But over a year or so, as you build up the knowledge and the courage to enter, you can enjoy the impeccable miniature exhibitions he mounts in his show window.

Other New York dealers of note include André Emmerich, 41 East Fifty-seventh Street, who shows only pre-Columbian art; Alan Brandt, who works from his apartment at 44 West Seventy-seventh Street; Merton D. Simpson, 1063 Madison Avenue, who specializes in African sculpture; and Aaron Furman, whose five-story townhouse at 26 East Eighteenth Street is crammed with work, particularly African.

In Los Angeles, the Stendahl Galleries have specialized for many years in pre-Columbian art, as does David Stuart, on La Cienega Boulevard. In Beverly Hills, the Harry Franklin Gallery has a fine stock, especially of Oceanic objects.

Margaret was found in a back lane of Calcutta, lying in her doorway unconscious from hunger. Inside, her mother had just died in childbirth.
You can see from the expression on Margaret's face that she doesn't understand why her mother can't get up, or why her father doesn't come home, or why the dull throb in her stomach won't go away.
What you can't see in that Margaret is dying of malnutrition. She has periods of fainting, her eyes are strangely glazed. Next will come a bloated stomach, falling hair, patched skin. And finally, death from malnutrition, a killer friendship.
Meanwhile, in America we eat 4.66 pounds of food a day per person, then throw away enough garbage to feed a family of six in India. In fact, the average dog in America has a higher protein diet than Margaret!
If you were to suddenly join the ranks of 11/2 billion people who are forever hungry, your next meal would be a bowl of rice, day after tomorrow a piece of fish the size of a silver dollar, later in the week nothing but a crust of bread.

Hard-pressed by the natural disasters and phenomenal birth rate, the Indian government is valiantly trying to curb what Mahatma Gandhi called "The Eternal Compulsory Fast."

But Margaret's story can have a happy ending. For only $12.00 a month, you can sponsor her, or thou­sands of other desperate youngsters.
You will receive the child's picture, personal history, and the op­portunity to exchange letters, Christmas cards — and priceless friendship.

Since 1938, American sponsors have found this to be an intimate, person-to-person way of sharing their blessings with youngsters around the world.
So won't you help? Today?
Sponsors urgently needed this month for children in Taiwan, India, Brazil, Thailand and Philippines. (Or let us select a child for you from our emergency list.)

From this . . . to this

Make this your "Zeigler year" and see for yourself what you can do for yourself! Special offer lets you use "Zeigler care" for 30 full days. A complete, medical facial care kit for tree literature and full details.

What's new about you?

Another year has just added itself to the way you look, as years have a way of doing. Like to try something new—for a change?

Until Zeigler facial care, there wasn't much you could actually do about certain age-signs, except bear them. Or try to cover them. (We're talking about the real age signs of fine lines, fine wrinkles, and sagging facial contours.) Then Zeigler care was developed, oh-so-carefully with medical supervision.

Now, thousands and thousands of women look younger (your competition too) — thanks to Zeigler. Zeigler is safe care, pleasant, produced by an ethical firm. We have clinical evidence it really works. Photographic evidence, too, in these unretouched photos where weight loss was not a factor:

It's wide. deep. beautifully made. "Do-it-yourself" and save money. It's all sanded, easy to assemble. Complete with glue, nail holes sealed and step-by-step directions. 15" H x 10" W x 15" D. $18.95 ea. For more—$17.95 each. Postpaid—add $1.50 each. West of Mississippi.

LADDERBACK CHAIR KIT

Authentic reproduction kit of an especially lovely, comfortable old ladderback—a product of finest craftsmanship and materials. Companies to finished chairs sell for $30 to $40. It's wide, deep, beautifully proportioned, something sized, carefully made. "Do it yourself" and save money. It's all sanded, easy to assemble. Complete with glue, nail holes sealed and step-by-step directions. 15" H x 15" W x 12" D. $18.95 ea. For more—$17.95 each. Postpaid—add $1.25 each. West of Mississippi.

A LOT OF THE PLANT DAMAGE WE MAY HAVE THOUGHT WAS CAUSED BY DISEASE, INSECTS OR MALNUTRITION ACTUALLY HAS BEEN DUE TO POLLUTED AIR. THAT WAS THE GIST OF A SYMPOSIUM ON "PLANTS IN THE CITY" AT THE AMERICAN HORTICULTURAL CONGRESS IN PHILADELPHIA LAST FALL. ALL OF THE EXPERTS AGREED THAT NOXIOUS GASES IN THE ATMOSPHERE MAKE THEIR EFFECT FELT NOT ONLY ON MAN BUT ON PLANTS, AND NOT ONLY IN CITIES, BUT IN BROAD AREAS AROUND CITIES, AND ALONG MUCH-TRAVELED HIGHWAYS. THEY CAME UP WITH A SMALL LIST OF POLLUTION RESISTANT PLANTS AND REPORTED SOME PARTIALLY SUCCESSFUL LABORATORY-TYPE MEASURES FOR PROTECTING PLANTS FROM AIR POLLUTION. NOBODY AT THE CONGRESS ASKED—NOT OUT LOUD, ANYWAY—WHY ALL THOSE ABLE PEOPLE WERE SPENDING THEIR TIME PROTECTING THE PLANTS INSTEAD OF STOPPING THE POLLUTION.

FROM FRANCE COMES WORD OF A NEW DODGE FOR ROOTING CUTTINGS: dipping into melted paraffin as much of the cutting as will be buried in the rooting medium. It must be whisked out again quickly, of course, to avoid cooking the plant tissues or picking up a too-heavy layer of wax. From that point on everything is done in the usual manner. As roots begin to grow out of the cutting, they simply break through the wax, which flakes off and disappears. The advantage of this treatment is that it reduces transpiration from the cutting and kills the spores of disease-causing organisms. No first-person reports from people who have actually tried this treatment in the U.S. are available at the moment, but it sounds as though it would work and as if it might be particularly effective on such soft-stemmed plants as geraniums.
THIS TIME OF YEAR, when plants are the only touches living green many of us can hope come in contact with, it is good know that a nationwide and very wire organization has been set to help city folk and plant lovers everywhere with their problems. We use the term "live-wire" ad- edly, since a moving force in the organization is the one, only, and com parable Phyllis Diller. The Diller King Exotic Plant poration, whose main office and gost shop are in New York City, ently opened a branch in Hous- and more are scheduled for Philadelphia, Phoenix, and several er cities throughout the country. is company grows all its own terial, which helps to keep the ces low and also helps to keep list of plants long and extremely ied. At its shops, you will be e to see demonstrations of every ect of plant growing indoors: tering, lighting, feeding, and perature control. And color ed labels will tell you at a glance ether a particular plant is suit ble for a sunny window, a dark ner, or any other spot where you hant want to grow a plant.

RICHARD W. LANGER would seem to be on the road to fame as the Johnny Appleseed of Chinese goose berries. His "After Dinner Gardening Book" (Mac millan, $4.95)—ostensibly written to further the waste not-want-not idea of growing fruit from the seeds of fruit you eat—is mostly an account of his adventures in growing such exotica as litchis, mangoes, and pineapples. Some of these adventures are hilarious. Others will dis courage any less-persistent gardener from trying the same thing. But all are recounted with the exacting detail of a highly knowledgeable window sill gardener.

A LONG, LIGHTWEIGHT POLE. PREFERABLY BAMBOO, SHOULD BE KEPT BESIDE THE SNOW SHOVEL IN EVERY HOME WITH EVERGREENS IN THE DOOR YARD. USED PROMPTLY AFTER OR DURING A SNOWFALL TO KNOCK THE SOGGY WHITE STUFF FROM EVERGREEN BRANCHES, IT WILL FORESTALL A LOT OF THE CROTCH SPLITTING, BOUGH BREAKING AND STEM BENDING THAT ARE OFTEN THOUGHT OF AS "NORMAL" WINTER DAMAGE.

ANY WOMAN WOULD HAVE TO BE OUT OF HER TREE EVEN TO CONSIDER USING A CHAIN SAW. SO WHEN THE HOMELITE PEOPLE TELL US THEIR NEW LIGHTWEIGHT SAW CAN BE HANDLE BY A WOMAN, WE SEE THIS AS THEIR SUBTLE WAY OF TELLING THE MALE SAWYER THAT THE E-Z AUTOMATIC IS NOT THE BONE JARRING, MUSCLE-STRAINING JUGGERNAUT HE KNOWS OF OLD. LIGHT ENOUGH TO BE USED FROM A LADDER, THIS NEW SAW MAY BE JUST RIGHT FOR TREE TRIMMING, UNDERBRUSH CLEARING, AND OTHER WINTERTIME JOBS.

OR SUMMERTIME COLOR, of course, annuals—petunias, zinnias, etc.—are dispensable. We sometimes wish, though, that American seedsmen would use bit more imagination in choosing the annuals they present to the gardening blie. Take penstemons—although usually grown as perennials, several kinds were soon enough after sowing to be classed as annuals, and lovely things they e. The colors are clear and bright, going from white through yellow to red, ep garnet, and violet. They grow in spikes like ultra-graceful foxgloves and ke excellent cut flowers.

So come early January, the really with-it gardener has sightedly ordered his catalogues and is spending his longer evenings shopping at his leisure. Most of these enticing lists of garden materials are free, but a few are so elaborate producers have to charge for them. They are worth every penny, however, and, in any case, you get your money back if place an order. In the pages of the catalogues, you will find this year’s newest varieties and hybrids rubbing elbows the plants you remember from the gardens of your childhood. And almost certainly you will have to consult the catalogues if you are looking for rarities. Today the seeds of all the enticing annuals and perennials are so well packaged that you can order now and have them ready for the very minute your garden says time for sowing. And the nurserymen sell plants by mail know precisely when to ship them so they can go into the ground at exactly the right moment. The nurserymen who want to earn extra cash in their spare time. Still another is that you have no competing gardeners bing down your neck as you often do in garden centers—petitions whose presence may panic you into over-hasty decisions. In the seclusion of your own home, you can decide you really want, and probably get better plants.

A few of the super fringe benefits

Leisure and storage

Almost always, it is the small, thoughtful details that make any room a nice place to come home to. In the Super Bath-Bedroom, a cushioned 13-foot-long window seat, above, makes a good place for morning coffee or watching television. Window, also 13 feet long, is hung with solid wood shutter covered in wallpaper. In bedroom area, an in-season closet, above, is stocked with pink and white garment bags and storage boxes made by Lasky Bros. & Elish of fabric by Cyrus Clark. Closets are covered with patterned wallpaper.

Exercise and storage

Macho side of the Super Bath makes provision for clothes and keeping fit. Fold-up and put-away exercise equipment fits neatly in the back of the closet. When in use, the slant-board works very well in the 4-foot-wide aisle. The white, 5-pound dumbbells are by Diversified Products. Along with hanging space, the closet has a semainier—a cabinet with a drawer for every day of the week. On the top shelf, the steam generator for steambath-shower takes up amazingly little space.
