The NCMH MODTriangle Architecture Movie Series opens at 730pm on Wednesday, October 1 at the Full Frame Theatre, American Tobacco Complex, Durham, with Fully Awake: Black Mountain College. Introducing the movie is Bauhaus in America author and NCSU Adjunct Assistant Professor of Architecture Margret Kentgens-Craig. $10 per person, Mod Squad members are free. But -- there are only 100 seats, so get there early. Details.

Hidden in the mountains of Western North Carolina, Black Mountain College (1933-1957) was an influential experiment in education that inspired and shaped twentieth century American art. This is a documentary film that explores the college's radical approach to arts education. Learn how the confluence of this diverse community came together to create a unique educational model. Through narration, archive photography, and interviews with students, teachers, historians, and current artists, the movie investigates the development of this very special place; the site of Buckminster Fuller's first geodesic dome, John Cage's first 'happening', Gropius and Breuer, the Black Mountain Review, and how its collaborative curriculum inspired innovations that would change the very definition of "art." Details.

Before the movie, have dinner at one of the ATC's many restaurants: Cuban Revolution / Ed Mitchell's QUE / Mellow Mushroom / Moe's Southwest Grill / OnlyBurger / Saladelia / The District / Tobacco Road / Tyler's Taproom / Which Wich
