Jill Ridky-Blackburn's new book about her neighborhood, Coker Hills, chronicles Chapel Hill's early Modernist houses with many color photos. The book covers mid-century architects and builders in Coker Hills like Jim Webb, Arthur Cogswell, JP Goforth, Knox Tate, Sumner Winn, Anne Stevens, Brian Shawcroft, Toby Savage, CS Witt, Lib Lee, Werner Hausler, Joe Hakan, Sprinkle and Stanley, Joe Nassif, Gary Giles, Harriet Gordon, and Jon Condoret. We've got exclusive autographed copies available at the NCMH Store, just $33.95 including shipping anywhere in the US. Or join the Mod Squad for a better deal. Pay online or send a check to NCMH, 5409 Pelham Road, Durham NC 27713. Proceeds benefit the Chapel Hill Preservation Society and North Carolina Modernist Houses.

In a world where “smart” objects can talk to each other and a lethal gun can be produced with a desktop 3D printer, the conditions for contemporary design are nothing if not surreal, altering our daily lifestyles in profound ways more than ever before.

Neil Spiller's Architecture and Surrealism: A Blistering Romance (coming out November 22) is a celebration of the spatial and visual possibilities where architecture has met Surrealism. He explores such key architectural themes as “bodies,” “houses,” the “city,” and “the biomechanical landscape,” revealing how the fusion of these ideas is being put to use by contemporary architects in extraordinary ways.
