You are invited to:

Raise a Glass to George Matsumoto: An Informal Memorial

Monday, March 13, 4-5pm, Players Retreat, 105 Oberlin Road, Raleigh, North Carolina. Hosted by: David Hill, Interim Head of the School of Architecture, NC State College of Design; and George Smart, Executive Director, North Carolina Modernist Houses.

George Matsumoto FAIA (1922-2016) served on the original faculty of the School of Design at North Carolina State University from 1948 to 1961. During his time at NC State, Matsumoto won more than thirty awards and created some of North Carolina's most well-known and respected Modernist houses. In 2012, NCMH created the Matsumoto Prize in his honor to encourage young architects and prospective clients to continue the Modernist movement in North Carolina. George spent time with his students and fellow faculty in Raleigh's much-loved Players Retreat - and it is here we raise a glass to his life and legacy. Parking is available along Oberlin or the lot across the street.

The Aluminaire, designed by Albert Frey and A. Lawrence Kocher in 1931, was recently called the "most hated house in New York" by the New York Post. But New York's loss is Palm Springs' gain. After getting disassembled, rejected for rebuild, narrowly missing demolition, and languishing in storage in Ronkonkoma NY for many years, it is now on the road to Palm Springs in time for Modernism Week. The first stop will be the Tramway Gas Station/Visitors Center, also designed by Frey, then it will be on display for the 11 days of Modernism Week. After a brief return to storage, Aluminaire will be reassembled directly across the street from the Palm Springs Art Museum and opened to the public with funds raised by the Aluminaire House Foundation. Follow the truck on Instagram and Twitter. Watch the video of the departure, narrated by Paul Goldberger. As a special bonus, check out the original 1932 MOMA press release!

It's Mies the Movie! Jeff Bridges and Maggie Gyllenhaal will star in a new movie about the Mies Van Der Rohe, Edith Farnsworth, and the Farnsworth House. Hat tip to Alva Horton.

From Curbed: Congratulations to Denise Scott Brown as this year's winner of the Jane Drew Prize for Women in Architecture, jointly bestowed by The Architect's Journal and The Architectural Review. Scott Brown's recognition comes four years after a firestorm about her lack of recognition from the Pritzker Prize committee, who awarded her husband, architect Robert Venturi, the prestigious prize in 1991 without acknowledging her contributions to the couple's joint practice.

From Curbed: 19 beautiful US Libraries, like this one.
