As reported in the Architect's Newspaper, New York is on fire with a new design controversy: are renovation plans of the oft-hated, cabinet-

Saturday, November 18, 10-2pm, the Julian House Tour, Chapel Hill. Designed by George Matsumoto, and hated by the neighbors (where have we seen this before?), the 1954 Julian House fought for its life all the way to the NC Supreme Court! This is the first time the house has been open to the public in 63 years. Tickets and details. Want to volunteer and come for free? Contact topped, postmodern Philip Johnson AT&T building somehow worse than the original? Seems like over the decades the remarkably "ugh" building has grown on people, and not even Snohetta's masterful glassy plan, middle photo, can change their minds. There were actual protesters, last photo.

Attention LA Modernists:
Richard Neutra's Chuey House goes up for consideration as a Historic-Cultural Monument on Thursday, November 16th, LA City Hall, Room 1010, at 10am. Anyone may speak.

Rebekah Laney.

The City of Durham considers the fate of the Durham Police Department (DPD) building, designed by Mies-protege Milton Small, one of North Carolina's most celebrated Modernist architects. Latest news article. The City Council discusses the building at 1pm on Thursday, November 9. Want to show your support? Show up to the meeting!

Zaha Hadid's first residential property opens up in NYC, a stunning work of art right on the wildly popular High Line.

Hat tip to Catherine Cramer.

Here is an Archinect profile of the talented Kenneth Hobgood family of architects in Raleigh, doing incredible Modernist residences all over the world. Hat tip to William Dodge.

An Engineer's Eye: The Architectural Photographs of Gordon Schenck is now on view at NC State's DH Library Exhibit Gallery in Raleigh NC through March 5. Schenck, an engineer, took a turn to the arts in 1963, when he bought a Linhof camera and discovered Julius Shulman's recently published Photographing Architecture and Interiors (1962) and founded a photography practice. In 1973, the AIANC honored Schenck with its Collaboration Award citing "his personal involvement in each project and his efforts to capture, through photography, the spirit and soul of the designing architect's creativity."
