New: #141/Modernist Week 2020: Marilyn Monroe. Other than Frank Sinatra, there are few people who are so tightly woven into the spirit of mid-century culture than 1950s Hollywood star Marilyn Monroe. In her day, Marilyn was as big as any celebrity you could name. She was involved with some of the most well-known men in the world: baseball great Joe Dimaggio, playwright Arthur Miller, and generally accepted nowadays, John F. Kennedy. And she has a connection to a very famous architect. Hosts George Smart and Tom Guild talk with three people who keep Marilyn’s legacy alive for the 21st century. First, it’s Sunny Thompson, who has been channeling Marilyn in her live shows and completely brings her back to life. Next, Greg Schreiner, who has one of the worlds largest collections of Marilyn’s costumes and also leads the annual memorial service in Los Angeles, and finally, Joshua Greene, son of photographer Milton Greene, who took some of Marilyn’s most memorable photos. Marilyn was, for a time, Joshua’s babysitter! New to podcasts? You can listen to USModernist Radio through any computer. USModernist Radio is sponsored by Modernist realtor Angela Roehl and Nichiha.com. See past shows.

Judith Gura, a well-known editorial and educational expert within the design world, died earlier this month in New York at age 85. The valued New York School of Interior Design lecturer was perhaps most widely known thanks to the exhibitions, books, and articles she helped produce. Gura taught about a variety of topics, from what it takes for an interior to earn landmark status, to decorators’ growing interest in textile art. From 1998 through 2005, she served as associate professor of design history at New York's Pratt Institute. It was during that time, and specifically in the year 2000, that Gura started working at the New York School of Interior Design. Serving as a coordinator for the school's design history program and a consultant for exhibitions and public programs, she ultimately lectured on a range of topics—from the Art Deco period to Scandinavian design to design theory to female designers—for roughly 20 years. She recently published a book on post-modernism.

There are so many ways you can be part of USModernist!

1. Connect us to collectors/libraries of architecture magazines in their attic, basement, or storage unit. USModernist is collecting and scanning almost 3 million pages and making them available to the public. We need certain ones and we'll pay for shipping.

2. Have you got an iconic mid-century chair, table, or clock (Eames, Nelson, Barcelona, Bertoia, etc.)? Donate it and get a great tax deduction!

3. Donate a collection of Sunset Magazine, a great chronicle of Western architecture.

4. Want to research Modernist houses from home? USModernist's crowd-research project needs volunteers to scout the internet, as we more fully document 8,000 iconic Modernist houses across America. It's incredibly fun to put together clues to find America's rich legacy of Modernist design. Email carie@usmodernist.org.

5. Explore our Masters Gallery, featuring nearly every iconic house in America by the great masters of 20th century Modernism. Warning: highly addictive!

6. Twenty-five percent of support for the documentation, preservation, and promotion of Modernist residential architecture comes from our members called the Mod Squad! Through May 1, a spouse/partner gets a free year's membership with your paid membership. All you have to do is email their name and email address after you join! Mod Squad members get first priority for tickets for tours and special events, plus discounts for many of those tours and events. Details.
