Ojai: A Postcard History
SAH/SCC Lecture & Book Signing
Saturday, February 5, 2011, 1PM

Join SAH/SCC on Saturday, February 5, 2011, at 1PM at the Santa Monica Public Library (Moore Ruble Yudell, 2006) for a lecture and slide presentation on the architecture of Ojai. Craig Walker, former SAH/SCC Board Member and co-author of the new book Ojai: A Postcard History (Arcadia, 2010), will share images and insights about the architecture of Ojai, past and present.

The presentation will draw heavily from Ojai’s legacy of Mission Revival architecture and feature the work of such architects as Mead and Requa, Wallace Neff, Carlton Winslow, Arthur B. Benton, Robert Stacy-Judd, Arthur C. Martin, Roy Wilson, George Washington Smith, Julia Morgan, and J. Cleveland Cady. Emphasis will be given to rarely seen or lost commercial and institutional buildings documented through postcards.

The book project was organized by the Ojai Valley Museum, with many of the postcards coming from its own extensive collection. Collectors living in the Ojai Valley also donated to the project.

Craig Walker is a life-long resident of Ojai and the son of Case Study House architect Rodney Walker. His lecture is sure to offer an insider’s view of this very special California community. The new book, Ojai: A Postcard History, will be available at the event for sale and signing by the author.
SAH/SCC President’s Letter

Another New Year, another 365 days on which to experience architecture! For more than 20 years, SAH/SCC has been creating opportunities for members and the public to learn about and experience the built environment in Southern California. With so many active educational institutions, preservation groups, and historical societies in and around Los Angeles, it seems the architectural enthusiast can always find something interesting to do.

To this end, SAH/SCC has historically prepared a bi-monthly calendar of events for its newsletter. This curated selection of talks and tours focusing on architecture, design, photography, and history was culled from museums, historical societies, schools and universities, libraries, and public and private organizations. SAH/SCC News’ editors—from Richard Rowe to Julie D. Taylor—sorted through calendars, press releases, newsletters, and websites to select activities that would be of interest to our members and complement SAH/SCC’s own schedule of events. With the advent of the Internet, groups are able to organize and promote events on the fly without relying on old-fashioned editorial deadlines. As a result, we have found that our members are using the calendar less often. Simultaneously, there has arisen a number of Websites that aggregate events and provide more up-to-date information.

To better serve our members, we are now directing you to www.laforum.org for the latest information about architectural and arts-related events. Links to the Los Angeles Forum for Architecture and Urban Design calendar will be provided in our bi-monthly e-news and from our Website, www.sahscc.org.

LA Forum will also send you weekly emails with the “Delirious LA Calendar” of upcoming LA Forum and other design community events. Email lists@laforum.org with the heading “Add me to the Email List” and you’ll be on your way to automatically receiving one weekly email with information about LA architecture events.

As always, you’ll be able to access a printable .pdf copy of SAH/SCC News from the bi-monthly email you receive from us. Simply click on “Printable PDF of Newsletter” in the “Quick Links” column on the left of the E-News.

You can also check out the new SAH/SCC Facebook page and “like” us, so you and your friends can keep up with the latest news and events for 2011. We look forward to seeing you in the coming year!

Preservation on the Edge

CPF Conference
Santa Monica, May 15-18, 2011

Historic preservation will take center stage in Santa Monica, May 15-19, 2011, as the 36th Annual California Preservation Conference explores provocative topics with the theme “Preservation on the Edge.”

Organized by the California Preservation Foundation (CPF) and supported by local groups, such as SAH/SCC and the LA Conservancy, the conference features dozens of sessions—from seminars and panel discussions to mobile workshops and study tours—that will redefine traditional notions of historic preservation and engage new audiences in setting its course for the future. Specific tracks include:

- Peering Over the Edge: The Future of Historic Preservation
- Redefining the Edge: Conserving Community Character
- The Cutting Edge: Partnerships, Development, and Incentives
- On the LEEDing Edge: Sustainability, Preservation, and Rating Systems
- Gaining the Technical Edge: Innovative Preservation Practices

“While preservationists have always seen the critical role historic preservation plays in economic development, sustainability, community well-being, and other areas, this conference seeks to bring this message into the mainstream and engage the many people who may not think of their efforts as related to preservation,” says Cindy Heitzman, CPF executive director. “Our cultural heritage belongs to all of us, and we all have a role to play in preserving our heritage.”

Check www.californiapreservation.org for more detailed schedules and registration information in the months ahead, or call 415.495.0349.

Media sponsors are Palm Springs Life magazine, Modernism magazine, and Luxe magazine. For updates and announcements on the 2011 Modernism Week visit www.modernismweek.com.

Uniquely Ours: Modern Architects in Bakersfield
Bakersfield Museum of Art, Through March 6, 2011

A new exhibition at the Bakersfield Museum of Art (BFCA-IBI Group Architecture Planning, 2001) focuses on the work of Richard Neutra and Frank Lloyd Wright in beautiful Kern County. Guest curator and SAH/SCC Member Barbara Lamprecht and BMOA curator Vikki Cruz assembled photographs, drawings, furniture, sketches, and letters from UCLA, Dion Neutra, Cal Poly Pomona, and private collectors for an intimate portrait of five projects. “These were wonderful commissions,” says Lamprecht, who will be giving a lecture on Thursday, March 3rd, at 6PM. “Many of us might associate Bakersfield with pit stops, heat, guns, Merle Haggard’s pearly white hat, Buck Owens, oil, agriculture, and Henry Fonda in the Grapes of Wrath,” she says. “It’s all that but much, much more—including some really accomplished mid-century work by Bakersfield’s own ‘second generation’ of Modernists in addition to Neutra and Wright.”

According to Lamprecht, highlights include:
- Davis House (1937). A very fine example of Neutra’s 1930s “International Style” with later renovations by the talented Swiss architect Frank Ghezzi, whose professors at the famed Zurich ETH included critic Siegfried Giedion.
- Leddy House (1958). A “hand-made” Neutra, mostly built by a young dancer and her husband, the county’s district attorney—and still owner-occupied. The rear glass walls of this rustic post-and-beam retreat open to sprawling, lovingly tended gardens and trees.
- Ablin House (1961). Completed two years after Wright’s death for a surgeon and his wife and their large tribe of children, it has been part of the family until recently. Here, a large Usonian design defined by low, angled wings anchors a central, taller core of kitchen and living areas. A Gesamtwerk based on Wright’s characteristic use of the 30- and 60-degree angles, it features a Spartan palette of mahogany, glass, and ornamented, pink-painted concrete block.
- “And, not to be missed is a Modernist gas station and the never-exhibited Falcon Flyer Country Club, complete with a story of Neutra’s quick save of a wolf cub,” says Lamprecht.

Uniquely Ours: Modern Architects in Bakersfield: through March 6, 2011; The Bakersfield Museum of Art, 1930 R Street, 661.323.7219; www.bmoa.org. Lecture: Thursday, March 3rd, 6PM (there are reduced rates for museum goers at the nearby Bakersfield Marriott).
