Knock Knock, It's Noise Interrupting Your Life.

Being an architect is more than just improving spaces for others. Your space should be well thought out, perfect for working, and an example for others. Indow inserts aren't just a great solution for your clients, they can work for you.

Indow window inserts block up to 70% of outside noise. When placed over single-pane windows, that's a 18.9 dBA reduction with our Acoustic Grade inserts and a 10-12 dBA reduction with our Standard Grade inserts. We like to say that it will hush outside noise to a whisper, because you may still hear it, but it won't be the annoying, interrupting noise it once was.

Wood remains the prime choice for traditional-style windows and doors. It provides the correct period-style look, and its longevity all but guarantees that it will last as long as the historic buildings it is used in.

Here are some of the millwork specialists who are bringing the past back to life again.

Adams Architectural Millwork Co. adamsarch.com

Using vintage machines such as single-end tenoners, shapers, and jointers, the artisans at Adams Architectural Millwork create historically accurate wood windows, storm windows, and storm doors, shutters, and other millwork items.

“The designs usually come from architects, contractors, or the homeowner,” says Chad Lueken, the company’s owner.

“We also produce replicas. If we can’t get the actual product to replicate, we provide shop drawings and keep tweaking the design until we get it right.”

Most of the company’s products are made of mahogany, which is durable and weathers well. “There is a warmth and beauty that comes from using wood,” he says. “It has superior insulative and sound-proofing properties, and it is versatile in both design and finishing to give you the look you want.”

Adams Architectural Millwork, which has 15 employees, has done a variety of residential and commercial projects in the Midwest. The company made the doors for the Railroad Roundhouse at The Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Michigan; supplied doors for the General Dodge House in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and for Beardshear Hall at Iowa State University in Ames; and provided doors, windows, and trelliswork for the Brucemore National Trust Historic Site in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

“We have employees who have been fabricating windows for over 40 years,” Lueken says. “Their experience, combined with technology and tools, gives them the ability to fabricate custom products to meet historic preservation standards and specifications as well as those for new construction.”

Architectural Components

architecturalcomponents.com

Specializing in custom and reproduction wood architectural millwork, primarily windows, interior and exterior doors, doorways, and architectural panels, Architectural Components is an expert on complex residential and commercial projects.

“We take on custom work that others may shy away from,” says President Chris James. “For example, bowed in plan windows, oval pivot windows, unique methods of designing screens, and mixing period windows with unique new hardware. Also, some customers want to only replace certain components of a window or door, such as a sash or a door slab, and leave the existing frame in place. We will often take on these types of projects where other companies may not.”

The family-owned company has 12 employees, many of whom have over 20 years of experience as woodworkers. The woodworking is done on site at its Massachusetts shop, which is in an old mill building. The craftsmen use vintage as well as newer machinery.

Architectural Components has worked on a number of historic or public buildings, including Harvard University, Yale University, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Historic Deerfield, and the Ellis Island Immigrant Hospital building.

The company prides itself on historical authenticity. “We always want to know the history of the building that we are working on to understand the period that we should be reproducing and what style best fits the project's goals," James says.

When the company does make a replica of a historic design, it often customizes it to allow for the use of modern weatherstripping, insulated glass, or modern hardware.

It's the details, James says, that make all the difference. An 18th-century plank frame window, for example, calls for through mortise and pegs on the sash joints and no sash-balancing system other than a wrought-iron pin. A late 19th-century double-hung window, on the other hand, may have stub tenons and closed mortises and no pegs with a weight and pulley sash-balancing system.

"We use historically accurate mortise-and-tenon joinery as it is still the best out there," James says. "Other shops often cut corners by using dowel joints. The traditional method takes more time and effort but is overall a better product and will stand—and has stood—the test of time."

He adds that wood doors and windows, when properly maintained, will last a century or longer.

JA Gulick Window Co.
jagulick.com

With over 30 years of experience in the industry, JA Gulick Window Co. custom fabricates wood windows, window sashes, and doors using traditional techniques and even some vintage machinery.

JA Gulick Window Co.
custom fabricates wooden windows, window sashes, and doors.

"Wood has served the test of time—it has a long service life proven over centuries," Gulick says. "We do not recommend any other material."

The company, which also makes custom storm windows with a lower interchangeable storm/screen panel, offers several glass options.

"Retrofitting an existing window with insulated glass can be difficult, so laminated glass is a nice option," Gulick says. "It provides the same insulating qualities but also is sound-deadening. Adding a laminated-glass storm window adds even more thermal and sound protection. For a new sash, we have the ability to use insulated glass and glaze it with special paintable silicone, so it looks like a traditional putty-glazed window."

Through the decades, JA Gulick Window Co. has worked on numerous residential and commercial projects in western New York, including the

The company, based in Buffalo, New York, was founded by John Gulick, who entered the trade more than a half century ago.

"Wood windows were originally crafted to last forever, so we take on that same philosophy," he says. "Our sashes are built using traditional mortise and tenon joinery, and the frames use a dado joint."

Although Forest Stewardship Council-certified select-grade Eastern white pine is the company's standard, it works in a variety of other woods, including white oak, cypress, and mahogany.

Jim Illingworth Millwork custom builds and manufactures windows and doors using old-world techniques and vintage machinery and tools.

glass dome of the main conservatory of the Buffalo and Erie County Botanical Gardens and the Old Fort Niagara near Youngstown.

“Our specialty is traditional craftsmanship and a passion and respect for classical construction methods,” Gulick says. “It has been part of our business plan since day one to train the next generation with the skills to fabricate and restore historic wood sashes and doors.”

Jim Illingworth Millwork
jimillingworthmillwork.com

Established in 1993, family-owned Jim Illingworth Millwork specializes in the custom building and manufacturing of traditional and historical wood windows and solid wood doors using old-world craftsmanship techniques and machines and tools dating from 1872 to the 1950s.

“We can replicate old moldings, casings, baseboards, and such,” says owner Jim Illingworth, who learned some techniques from his builder-father but is mostly self-taught. “We work exclusively in wood—premium-grade solid lumber—because it’s authentic and long lasting.”

The products produced by the boutique company, which is based in Adams, New York, and has only two employees, feature mortise and tenon joints.

“We custom build or produce doors, windows, moldings, storms, and screens to match historical or traditional styles or to meet the customer’s specs,” Illingworth says. “Our customers get exactly what they want.”

In addition to working on residential projects, the company also has done numerous high-profile commercial proj-

Garage Doors

For architects who design traditional-style residences, the placement of the garage can present a major challenge because homes from previous time periods often didn’t have them. Even if they were present, they were smaller structures that would not accommodate the contemporary automobile or the car collections of contemporary dwellers.

Period-style garage doors that complement the home’s architecture are one effective solution.

Here are some suppliers that specialize in traditional styles.

Cambek Designer Doors

The company, originally Designer Doors, has been handcrafting artisan wood garage doors, as well as entry doors and gates and shutters, for decades.

Moulton Custom Door of Vermont

moultoncustomdoor.com

For two decades, the company has been making custom sectional overhead garage doors that look like traditional swinging or sliding carriage doors when closed and roll up at the push of a button.

Town & Country Door and Operator Co.

The family-owned and -operated company specializes in fabricating carriage house-style garage doors and matching entry doors, transoms, and side lights.

ects. At Manhattan’s Union Square Park, Jim Illingworth Millwork reproduced the hopper and double-hung windows; at the train station in Rutherford, New Jersey, it reproduced some of the windows and front entry doors; at a train station in South Dakota, it built all the windows; and at Rock Island Lighthouse State Park in New York’s Thousand Islands region, it produced replica windows for the lighthouse and keep house.

Parrett Windows & Doors

Since its founding in 1982, Parrett Windows & Doors has had a history of providing historic-style products—and a wealth of knowledge—to architects and designers.

The company, which is based in Dorchester, Wisconsin, manufactures all-wood and aluminum-clad windows and doors, and upon request, replicas with historic profiles.

“Metal and synthetics do not capture the warmth and beauty of natural wood, and when compared with metal, wood will provide superior energy efficiency,” says president Ron Safford, who bought the company in 1995 and whose sons, John and Tyler Safford, are involved in the operations and ownership of the 110-employee company. “Wood also gives us the ability to machine the profiles to the exact detail of the original historic profile, whereas metal and synthetics generally have very limiting options and excessive costs.”

The correctly designed windows and doors, he adds, “help maintain the history, character, and often the architectural beauty of the building so its story lives on.”

They also can be equipped with high-tech features that save energy, dampen sound, and enhance the home’s security.

“Glass technology has developed to a level of electronically optimizing tint levels during daylight, thus allowing for natural daylight to penetrate through but rejecting unwanted solar radiation,” Safford says. “And laminated glass, through the use of interlayer films sandwiched between two sheets of glass, has improved sound-deadening value and also provides a better level of security protection.”

Parrett has manufactured windows and/or doors for virtually every U.S. metropolitan city that has historic commercial and residential structures. Projects include Tavern on the Green in Manhattan’s Central Park, Lincoln Hall at the University of Illinois

Vintage Millwork & Restoration fabricated a variety of wood products for historic Star Barn Village at Stone Gable Estates, which won a 2021 Palladio Award for commercial interior design.

Urbana-Champaign, the Four Seasons Private Residences at 706 Mission in San Francisco, and McKinley High School in Oahu, Hawaii.

“The combination of skilled employees and modern technology separates Parrett from many competitors,” Safford says.

Vintage Millwork & Restoration vintagemillworkrestoration.com

Pairing old-world craftsmanship with modern technology such as CNC machines, Vintage Millwork & Restoration, a one-stop shop established in 2000, creates a variety of custom designs ranging from wood doors and windows to gates, cupolas, and staircases.

“The majority of our projects center around creating new works of functional art,” says General Manager Amos Fisher. “Sometimes clients provide historic photos as inspiration; in these instances, we’re able to create custom pieces that are reminiscent of historic design, but we have the freedom to add our own touch. We can also replicate historic designs.”

As the idea of making old buildings look new again is becoming commonplace, clients are investing in restorations and showing an increased interest in reclaimed wood, he says, adding that he believes that this trend will remain popular, especially for the fabrication of doors and windows for traditional-style structures.

“White oak and mahogany are growing in popularity,” he says. “Both species offer tight grain patterns, which means the wood is more dense, and in turn more robust, adding longevity to finished doors and windows.”

The company, which typically works with sapele mahogany, white oak, Spanish cedar, western red cedar, and knotty alder, has been experimenting with adding a metal interior to its doors.

Metal Windows

The oversized walls of windows that defined factories in the 19th and early 20th centuries are becoming prominent in traditional-style contemporary homes. They open the indoor and outdoor spaces, inviting in illumination and nature, beautifully blurring the boundaries between inside and outside. In some cases, the glass and metal panels even serve as room dividers, retracting into the walls like pocket doors to create a loft-like space for entertaining.

Here are some longtime key suppliers.

Crittall Windows

crittall-windows.co.uk

The English maker, which bills itself as “the original steel window manufacturer,” has been in business since 1849 and has expertise in residential and commercial projects.

Graham Architectural Products

grahamwindows.com

The company, which has been in business for more than four decades, manufactures commercial and architectural windows, including steel replicas.

Hope’s Windows

hopeswindows.com

For more than a century, the company has been manufacturing custom-designed, solid hot-rolled steel and solid bronze window and door systems; it specializes in historic preservation, cultural, institutional, commercial, and luxury residential projects.

Seekircher Steel Window

seekirchersteelwindow.com

The company, which was founded by John Seekircher in 1977, has one of the most comprehensive collections of vintage steel casement windows in the country. Today this family-owned business is managed by John’s son Todd Seekircher.

St. Cloud Window

stcloudwindow.com

Founded in 1952, the second-generation female-owned business designs and manufactures commercial aluminum windows and doors.

Steelworks Etc.

steelworksetc.com

Based in Canada, the company works with architects and builders and supplies historically accurate custom steel, stainless, and bronze doors and windows.

“If the application calls for a more robust door that will undergo heavy use, we can add a hidden aluminum frame inside the wood door,” Fisher says. “Often used in barns, this technique prevents warping and reinforces the door’s strength.”

Vintage Millwork & Restoration’s small staff—the 13 employees are like a family, Fisher says—is united by its passion for exceptional design.

The company has fabricated the millwork for a variety of public projects, including for the historic Star Barn Village at Stone Gable Estates, which won a 2021 Palladio Award for commercial interior design.

“We pride ourselves on honoring the past through accurately replicating design and bringing spaces back to their original, intended beauty,” Fisher says. “At the end of the day, everything we do goes back to one main point—we create quality custom products that are made to last.”

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDEBOOK

Welcome to the 2022 Guidebook. For this year's Guidebook, the editors have selected 200+ COMPANIES whose products or services meet the ever-growing need of architects, builders, developers, conservators, facility managers, property owners, and those who work preserving, restoring, renovating, and creating new buildings in traditional styles. You can find these in our Product & Service Index starting on page 28.

Granted, most of this material can eventually be found on Google—if you spend lots of time sifting through all the undifferentiated results Google floods you with. To save you time, the editors of TRADITIONAL BUILDING have done all the sifting for you. As a result, the listings in this issue provide:

- CURATED LISTS Only products and services appropriate for buildings in traditional architectural styles have been included.
- SYNERGY & SURPRISE DISCOVERIES

Because the editors have carefully grouped like-with-like, these listings allow you to make surprise discoveries of things you weren't looking for—but which are extremely helpful. It's just like searching for movies and seeing related titles you hadn't known about.

The Product & Service Index is divided into 20 MASTER CATEGORIES (listed below) and there are 650+ SUB-CATEGORIES therein. There is comprehensive cross-referencing across the categories. For example, if you look for Gazebos in the Landscape section, we will refer you to the Conservatories, Greenhouses & Outbuildings section where you will find the sub-category for Gazebos.

Once you find the sub-category you are looking for, you will see a list of companies that provide that product or service. To learn more about each company, see the Company Listings (starting on this page) which has a description with contact information for every company in the index.

There are many more companies we maintain information on that due to space limitations we are unable to publish in the magazine. Please visit www.traditionalbuilding.com and there you'll find over 1000+ companies broken down by the same 20 master categories and 150+ sub-categories.

Lastly, we feature companies with a photo of their work in the Portfolio starting on page 40.

LEARN FROM THE PAST TO BUILD FOR THE FUTURE

Upcoming Winter & Spring Education Programs

The Elements of Classical Architecture: Introduction to the Corinthian Order Saturday, February 5, 2022

This practical hands-on drawing course covers the fifth subject in the Elements of Classical Architecture sequence—the nomenclature, grammar, and proportional relationships of the canonical Corinthian order. Instruction is live and on-line.

Introduction to the Classical Moldings

Part I, Tuesday, February 8, 2022

Part II: Using Moldings, Tuesday, February 15, 2022

This class provides an introduction to the use and rationale of the classical moldings through freehand drawing. Moldings are the basic building blocks of classical buildings, the “atomic units” at the very heart of the classical language of architecture, and a working knowledge of moldings is the starting point for a thoughtful approach to design.

Students of all abilities will find interest and value in this fast-paced introduction.

Workshop in Classical Architectural Design

Texas State University, February 25 & 26, 2022

Samford University, March 25 & 26, 2022

The ICAA Workshop in Classical Architecture introduces classical architecture as a living language to encourage literacy with the enduring forms which shape our built environment. The grammar, syntax, and proportional relationships of the classical canon are explored through freehand drawings of the classical orders and exercises that adapt the language to an architectural composition. The workshop kicks off with a series of short architectural case studies that highlight the use of the classical tradition in the design of new buildings and places today.

Christopher H. Browne Washington, DC Drawing Tour

May 12 – 15, 2022

Building on successful ICAA Drawing Tours in Williamsburg, Charleston, and Savannah, the 2022 Christopher H. Browne Washington DC Drawing Tour is a four-day program to intensely study, through measured and analytical field drawing in a sketchbook, the rich diversity of architecture and urbanism of the Federal City of Washington, DC.

Custom home furnishings, such as this hand-forged fireplace element, are available from Bill's Custom Metal Fabrication.

Chadsworth's custom made these Temple of the Winds columns for a mantel in a private residence; they are a miniature version of those used throughout the house.

Driwood provided the wood mantel for this old South Carolina vernacular farmhouse outside of Darlington, SC.

Forshaw of St. Louis' hand-carved Ithaca mantel has a classic plinth block and corbel design.

Haddonstone's Louis XV chimney piece includes an optional hearth.

James DeMantis created this Custom Steel & Glass door fireplace for a residence on the East End Of Long Island, NY.

Old Carolina Brick supplied the brick for this fireplace and chimney.

Steven Handelman Studios fabricated this spanish log basket.

Wiemann Metalcraft created this bronze fire screen.

Wittus offers the Phenix Green 120 zero-clearance built-in fireplaces from Bodart & Gonay of Belgium. Equipped with the latest retractable door technology, it allows the user to enjoy the fire with the door open or closed.

Zepssa Industries designed and built this mantel and over-mantel.

Collaborative Minds

Frank L. Wright and the Architecture of Steinway Hall

BY STUART COHEN

316 pages, $35
ORO Editions

RIGHT Dwight Perkins, Robert Spencer, and Myron Hunt, and Frank Lloyd Wright all shared office space in Steinway Hall in Chicago.

Art Institute of Chicago, Ryerson and Burnham Digital Archive.

AT ABOUT THE SAME TIME architects, builders, and craftspeople were locked down and working from home alone, the educator, architect, and author Stuart Cohen wrote a book about collaboration. When the collaborative process, so important in architecture and traditional building, was challenged by remote working, Cohen's book, Frank Lloyd Wright and the Architects of Steinway Hall: A Study in Collaboration crossed my desk, hot off the ORO press.

This book celebrates teamwork and collaboration over the individual, a refreshing take on a practice which is given to celebrating starchitects. Frank Lloyd Wright may have been a "genius," but he did not act alone. His professional peers, Cohen writes, were Dwight Perkins, Robert Spencer, and Myron Hunt, all of whom shared both design ideas and office space in the Steinway Hall of Chicago. And they had an occasional visitor to their Steinway Hall loft: Louis Sullivan, their mentor.

This peer group, Wright's office mates, were young architects, most in their twenties and thirties who "saw their work in opposition to the status quo, challenging the established traditions in their field." They had different ideas from their classical-design predecessors and sought a unique American style.

Cohen's extensive research for the book included Leland Roth's article about the history of Ladies' Home Journal houses and Joseph Siry's article about Wright and Perkins's collaboration on the Abraham Lincoln Center in Chicago. Another source was Wilbert Hasbrouck's history, The Chicago Architectural Club, which, like the Steinway Hall, was a venue where these designers met and traded ideas.

In addition to shedding new light on Frank Lloyd Wright, Stuart Cohen devotes three separate chapters to Wright's influencers: Robert Closson Spencer Jr.; Dwight Heald Perkins, and Myron Hubbard Hunt. Each of these chapters is richly illustrated with black and white photographs of the architect's work. This work undoubtedly inspires period home designers today.

Naturally, I was drawn to the chapter where credit is given to the magazine editor Edward Bok of Ladies' Home Journal. Cohen writes, "Bok felt a keen desire to take hold of the American house and make it architecturally better." Bok's publication helped make the Prairie Style the well-known architectural style it is today, a style for which Wright is well known but his collaborators, not so much, until now.
